When Mr. Griffiths, in describing the manner in which the source-image ahead of the objective is formed, says that each single cone of rays from a point of the source carries a full film image to the objective "and then reduces the full film image to a point at the image of the source" he falls into grave error indeed. It is wise, when considering the action of the projection objective, to divorce it from the condensers entirely, and to start at the aperture, which, of course, is the object projected. No matter whether the object (aperture or film picture) is illuminated by diverging or by converging light, each point of the object will be reproduced by the lens as a corresponding point in the image, but it is palpably wrong for any one to state that the complete object (either aperture or film picture) is reduced to a point in the image by the action of the lens.

Mr. Griffiths states that obstructions in the path of the rays occur from the marginal points of the source, and as our previous article, and figure show, when one places the condensers too far from the aperture he does the same as if he cut off with a stop a portion of his light source (or condenser surface). We might state here that in our experimental work, and in our previous article, we assume that the customary metal cone does not intercept any rays proceeding from the front surface of the condenser system, and it is then apparent, as we have repeatedly pointed out, that the machine aperture is the determining factor in regulating the cross-section of the image-bearing bundle of rays which traverses the objective. This is a point of importance, because the aperture is of substantially the same dimensions on all projecting machines, and makers of lenses are well aware that in the case of focal lengths under six inches an objective does not require an effective aperture much in excess of the diagonal of the machine aperture.

Mr. Griffiths' further statement that the bundle of rays proceeding from the aperture to the objective will be of greater angular width in the case of a short source distance than in the case of a long source distance is a point in favor of the nearer condenser position, rather than otherwise, because the greater the angular width of the effective portion of the condenser beam, the greater is the illumination from a light source and condenser system of given brightness and dimensions. It was clearly shown by our previous article that excessive source distance reduces the effective angular width of the condenser beam, and this is the effect which Mr. Griffiths has in mind when he says: "Increasing the distance between the source and the aperture reduces the area over which the individual rectangles are deposited, and also reduces the divergence of each cone, making for better efficiency and better definition." We must object to Mr. Griffiths' claim of better efficiency with this arrangement, however, as our earlier article abundantly proves that excessive source distance results in a very inefficient utilization of the available light-source. We would also recommend that Mr. Griffiths abandon his conception of a number of separate rectangles of light proceeding from the machine aperture to the objective, because all of these rectangles overlie one another and proceed to the objective as a single beam of rectangular section, and in considering the illumination transmitted to the objective we have always to consider the totality of rays in the beam which can pass through the machine aperture. When a converging beam is considered, the beam is, in effect, parallel between the machine aperture and the objective, because its margins have been trimmed off by the edges of the aperture, and unless the objective is of very long focus the bundle will enter the objective without sensible loss at the sides of the objective, although in the case of extremely long focus objectives this rectangular bundle commences to diverge and then, of course, larger lenses are required to collect the light.

It might appear from the foregoing that we are widely at variance with Mr. Griffiths' views concerning the action of the projector optical system, and that we are unwilling to place a proper value upon his deductions. Such, however, is not the case, for, as a matter of fact, we believe that many of the things stated by Mr. Griffiths are in accordance with the observed action of the light rays when the source is at a great distance from the aperture.

The fundamental difference between Mr. Griffiths' contentions and our own is merely that Mr. Griffiths bases his remarks on the study of a condenser beam which is generally diverging when it reaches the aperture, while our recommendations are principally confined to the case of true collimation, or, in other words, the illumination of the object (or aperture) by a converging or at least a parallel beam of light. It is the result of experience that a greater extent of the effective aperture of the condenser system can be utilized when the source is at a moderate distance from the aperture (the proper distance is ascertained as shown in our previous article), and it is also readily apparent (from our previous published diagram) that the light source is not efficiently used when the condensers are at an excessive distance from the aperture. Under the circumstances we are obliged to declare ourselves in favor of the arrangement which represents the most efficient utilization of the light source, but we do not wish to be considered as depreciating the value of Mr. Griffiths' experimental endeavors. We compliment him upon his initiative in carrying out extensive experimental investigations, and upon his diligence in reducing the results to numerical data, because we know that Mr. Griffiths has done this purely from the love of experimenting, and with no desire for publicity or monetary gain. It would be our pleasure to assist or co-operate with Mr. Griffiths, and we can assure him, on behalf of our readers, that his further communications will be welcome at all times.

With regard to Mr. Griffiths' postscript, concerning the term "aerial-image," we favor the abolition of this term because it has no established meaning in optical literature or terminology, and when it is used it is most always used to indicate a virtual image. A real image (such as that of the light-source formed ahead of the objective) is a real image even if it does exist in air, because it can always be received upon a screen, so we think it advisable to refer to a real image as such, or, for brevity, to refer to it as just an image.

Seattle Supply House Gives De Luxe Motiograph a Novel Introduction

UPON the arrival of the first De Luxe model Motiograph shipped to the state of Washington, the Theatre Supply Co. of 2006 Third avenue, Seattle, proceeded to introduce this ornate and serviceable projector to their customers by sending out embossed invitations of which the following is a fac-simile.

So that you may know

I HAVE JUST ARRIVED AND OFFER MYSELF FOR YOUR APPROVAL AND THEREFORE EXTEND TO YOU AND YOUR FRIENDS A CORDIAL INVITATION TO CALL AND INSPECT THE WONDERFUL OPPORTUNITIES THAT I OFFER.

IT IS SAID, AND I DARE SAY IT IS TRUE THAT I AM POSITIVELY THE LAST WORD IN MOTION PICTURE PROJECTING

SEEING IS BELIEVING. SO KINDLY CALL AT YOUR EARLIEST CONVENIENCE

1918 DE LUXE MOTIOGRAPH

AT THEATRE SUPPLY CO

2006 THIRD AVENUE SEATTLE, WASH

This attractive card proved very beneficial to the Theatre Supply Co., who are the Motiograph dealers in that territory, and they report that a large number of people have been calling at their showrooms every day since the invitations were mailed.

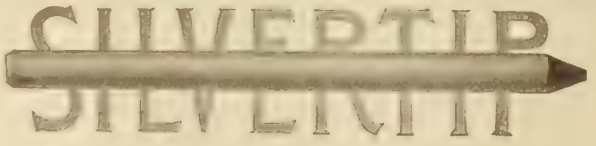
Has Trouble With Motor Drive

M. Swaringen, Petersburg, Va., writes: "I take pleasure in writing you for a little comment on the following apparatus, for which I will thank you in advance, though not knowing whether you will give me the desired 'light.' Will you please pass it along in the Projection Department and see what other operators have to say.

"It is in reference to the New Style Power motor drive. Although it is not new, it is the latest style, or the latest I have used. I use two Power motor-driven machines, one with the old style and one with the new style motor drive. I find that I have considerable trouble with the new style, which in my opinion is designed wrong, or which after only a short use will give trouble. The old style motor drive which I am using is giving absolute satisfaction, and I can't understand why the change was made.

"In the old model the large friction disc was on the motor shaft and revolved therewith, driving the other friction disc which supplied power to the mechanism, and in the new model this arrangement was reversed, the large friction drive being on the countershaft which carries the belt pulley driving the mechanism, and the leather disc wheel on the motor shaft, the same being stationary, while the friction disc is movable, etc. The N. Power Co. says that their objection against the old model, or rather one of the imperfections which developed through use, lay in the tendency to vibration, which operated to loosen up joints on the stand. Beg to state that I ran one of the old models for two years and it did not either loosen any of the joints, nor did it require any repairs, and very little attention. They claim that the new model does away with this tendency.

"You will notice from the illustrations of their new model the thing with which I am having my trouble.



"I double my reels each day and performance; in other words my reels average 30 minutes each, which with Power's old style take-up attachment, naturally requires the take-up belt to be pretty tight in order to take up 2,000 feet with the heavy 14 in. reels. This of course causes the machine to pull heavier, and this also causes the belt from motor attachment to the friction driving pulley below to be very tight, which will very soon cause too much vibration with the new model motor drive, and as soon as the friction shaft and one or two other small points begin to wear, this will cause the friction disc to give and pull from its regular course, which lessens the connections at that point, and then you get poor results, viz., loss of speed and vibration. I didn't feel justified in asking the manager to buy these several new parts, and my own remedy to stop this annoyance was the following, which worked like a clock. I put a large hook screw further into the floor, which then pulls the disc back in proper position.

"The old style motor on my other machine is still running like a clock after over two years' use."

Comment: With regard to the respective merits of the old and the new styles of Power motor drive, we certainly agree with the Power Co.'s contention that the present model is an improvement over the earlier one, although we have found them both satisfactory in operation.

All friction drives seem to be somewhat liable to vibration, and the duty imposed upon such an appliance is very heavy when 2,000 foot reels of film are used continuously. For this reason the motor drive and speed controlling device needs careful attention, and even though properly lubricated and kept in adjustment there will inevitably be some wear in the course of time. It is undoubtedly some slight wearing of the speed controlling parts which has caused the correspondent's trouble, and without a knowledge of the exact places where this wear has occurred we could hardly advise how to compensate for the same, but we suggest that if the correspondent makes a close investigation, taking the apparatus apart if necessary, he will speedily discover whether any parts need renewing. If it is found that new parts are required, there should be no delay in purchasing and installing the same, because no device can be expected to work in an entirely satisfactory manner unless it is in perfectly sound mechanical condition.

From his letter it appears that the correspondent has remedied his own trouble after a fashion similar to rendering "first aid to the injured," but if the wear is severe in his speed controlling device we believe, as above stated, that the installation of new parts is the proper remedy. Other operators who have had similar trouble are, however, invited to send in their methods of surmounting the same for the benefit of the present correspondent.

MOTION PICTURE CARBONS

FOR DIRECT CURRENT

Banish Flicker and Insure Satisfactory Projection

The light of high intrinsic brilliancy given by Silvertips is ideal for the projection of the modern photo-play films. The use of these films demands a steady, intense, even white light to bring out correctly the details of the picture. You cannot find a light source using direct current that will meet the requirements more exactly than the light given by the National-Silvertip combination.

These carbons have been tested and tried so that today Silvertips and satisfactory projection mean the same thing. Exhibitors the country over know that this new carbon has answered every demand—they know that Silvertips have made perfect direct current projection a reality.

FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT PROJECTION

The White A. C. Special Carbons are as popular with operators using alternating current as the Silvertips are with operators using direct current

THEY, TOO, ARE STANDARD IN THEIR FIELD

Send today for our folders describing these carbons

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC. CLEVELAND, OHIO

Operators' Inquiries

C. W. CORSTARPHER, Lead, S. D., "What is a good gear compound to use on the Powers machines?"

REPLY: The Powers Company supplies a gear preparation which has their endorsement, and they will be pleased to advise you as to its price if you will write them. Powdered graphite worked up with vaseline into the form of a paste has proven a satisfactory gear lubricant for all makes of machines.

R. V. WRIGHT, Morris, Ill., "What is the cause of the picture jumping up and down after the tension springs have been adjusted?"

REPLY: Without a description of the character of the jump in the picture it is difficult to state the cause with certainty, but it can be stated that increasing the tension of the springs on the gate is in no case a remedy for a jumping picture.

Assuming that the machine is rigidly anchored to the floor of the operating-room, and that there is no vibration of the floor itself, the following causes of a jumping picture suggest themselves: (a) worn intermittent movement, or worn intermittent sprocket, (b) improperly adjusted intermittent, (c) movement or sprocket bent out of true. Remedies are, (a) if the movement is not too severely worn it may be made to run steady by careful, accurate adjustment. If the teeth of the intermittent sprocket are badly worn, i. e., hooked or "undercut," the sprocket should be renewed forthwith, and the same applies to the movement if it is so extensively worn that accurate adjustment will not eliminate lost motion. (b) If the intermittent is improperly adjusted this condition should be rectified at once. Improper adjustment of the intermittent is commonly of two varieties, (1) lost motion not sufficiently taken up, (2) cam and sprocket spindles not parallel, i. e., one or both spindles running out of true. The lost motion should be taken up by means of the eccentric bushings, so that there is just a hair's breadth of play between cam and star; lack of parallelism between cam shaft and star shaft is also generally removed by manipulation of the eccentric bushings on the latter, but in the case of wear in the cam shaft bearings, considerable overhauling of the mechanism may be required. In some present-day machines there is only one eccentric bushing, in which case the star shaft and cam shaft cannot depart from parallelism with one another except in case they become bent. (c) When parts of the intermittent movement, or the intermittent sprocket, are bent, it is, in most all instances, advisable to install new parts.

Lastly, the pressure applied to the film at the aperture by the tension springs, is intended to counteract the momentum of the intermittent sprocket when it comes suddenly to rest (16 times per second) to expose the pictures. The amount of spring tension necessary to accomplish this is very slight, in the case of normal projecting speed, but must be increased, of course, in the case of high speed projection. No amount of spring tension will render steady the operation of an unsteady intermittent movement, and an excessive tension on the film at the aperture, merly causes injury to the film and unduly rapid wearing of the intermittent movement.

A. C. COOPER, Jonesboro, Ark.: Mention some ways of removing the blue spot in the center of the picture. How is the distance from aperture to condensers determined?

REPLY: As appears to have been inferred in advance by the correspondent, a blue spot in the center of the screen is generally removed by alteration of the distance between condensers and aperture. We cannot prescribe with actitude in the present instance, because the necessary data are lacking. If, for instance, A. C. is used the blue spot in the center of the screen might be removed by an alteration in the setting of the carbons. The distance between condensers and aperture is determined by observation of what produces the best screen results in conjunction with the exercise of common sense, but if the requirements mentioned in our recent article (The Regulation of the Rays) are not fulfilled the light source will not be efficiently utilized.

E. G. CORNWELL, Mansfield Pa.: We are having trouble breaking condensers in our Powers 6 B machine. In order to get a spot we have to run the carbons up very close to the condenser lens, and it seems there ought to be some way to get the focus with the carbons back from the lens. We have a Hertner Transverter and use about 35-40 amperes at the arc. Have been using 6½-inch back and 7½-inch front condensers. Would you advise the use of a Preddy condenser mount?

REPLY: If the conditions are as stated (that a spot is not secured unless the arc is very close to the condensers) it is a sign that the condensers are of shorter focal length than is supposed, or that the lamphouse is too far from the machine aperture. By advancing the position of the lamphouse a good spot should be secured with the arc about 3 to 3½ inches from the rear condenser, which is the usual distance with the 6½-7½ combination. If condensers continue to break it is a sign that draughts of air are reaching the condensers when they are hot, or that the condensers are held too tightly in their mounts. It might be found that by bending out the edges of the metal sheaths which carry the condensers on the Powers lamphouse your breakage would cease. Condensers should always be so mounted that they are a loose fit in the holders, and will rattle slightly when the condenser mount is shaken. The Preddy condenser mount is a first-rate article.

R. L. SMITH, Lynden, Wash.: I have a Powers No. 6 and the large idler gear is loose. I have tightened the set collar on the spindle, but I find it has worn in the machine. I have put a brass bushing in it, but this does not do much good. What would you do in a case of this kind?

REPLY: It is hard for us to say what we would do without actually seeing the machine in question. Possibly we would send the machine to the junk heap. The condition described indicates badly worn bearings, which, however, could probably be brushed so as to give the machine a further lease of operative life. It is clearly a mistake to bush the bearings with brass, because brass wears away very rapidly. A repair shop which understands motion picture projecting mechanisms could rebush the worn bearings with phosphor-bronze or steel—preferably the former—and this should prove durable in service. It is false economy, however, to spend much money in repairing a decrepit projecting mechanism; the best remedy is to secure a new one.

R. S. MIX, Williamsport, Pa.: How far should a 6½-inch and a 7½-inch condenser be spaced apart?

REPLY: When a condenser combination for use in motion picture projection consists of two plano-convex lenses, these should be mounted with their convex faces inward (or facing), and there should be a very slight space between the apices of the convex surfaces. Separating the components increases the E. F. of the combination, which is generally not desirable in ordinary practice, so the correct procedure is to mount the lenses close together, leaving only sufficient space (one-eighth inch) between them to prevent their touching when expanded by the heat of the arc.

YOUR PROJECTION

DEPENDS ENTIRELY ON

THE CARBONS

Speer Alterno Carbons

FOR A.C. WORK

and

Speer Hold-Ark Carbons

FOR D.C. WORK

HAVE PROVED THEIR WORTH AND VALUE

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

"THE CARBONS WITH A GUARANTEE"

SPEER CARBON COMPANY ST. MARYS, PENNSYLVANIA

STANDARDS
ADOPTED BY THE SOCIETY OF MOTION PICTURE
ENGINEERS
FIRST EDITION
MAIN OFFICE:
712 ELEVENTH STREET, N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
PRICE, 10c. EACH
$1.00 A DOZEN

THE MOST IMPORTANT PUBLICATION
OF 1917

It should be in the hands of every individual interested in our industry. Send 10 cents today

C. F. JENKINS, Pres.,
712-11th St., N.W., Washington, D. C.

SERVICE AND QUALITY

Owing to our Central location, we are able to give you quick service on all MAIL ORDERS. We carry a large stock of all goods for the Moving Picture Theatre and can make IMMEDIATE SHIPMENTS.

WE GUARANTEE ALL GOODS TO BE AS REPRESENTED OR MONEY REFUNDED.

GIVE US A TRIAL.

Write today for Catalog

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade
360-362 Mallers Building 5 South Wabash Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

Dealers in Motograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

SIMPLEX

SIMPLEX

Motion Picture Machines, not merely as good but far superior to any other. We are exclusive agents for Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland.

Motor Generators and General Supplies

MINUSA Gold Fibre Screens

SPEER CARBONS for Perfect Projection

We are equipped to give you expert service. We repair machines with tools made by the factories. No other concern can offer better service than we. Try us.

Lewis M. Swaab 1327 VINE STREET
DISTRIBUTOR PHILADELPHIA, PA.

National Anti-Misframe League

Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

William H. Holland	Memphis, Tenn.
Paul W. McDaniel	Newton, Kan.
Fred Grisamore	Toledo, Ill.
Jess Patton	Tacoma, Wash.
C. Guilbert Pratt	Manhattan, Kan.
Gabriel C. Florensan	La Vega, Porto Rico
J. Pearl Wells	Lake View, Iowa
Ralph Humbert	Lorain, Ohio
Paul Deucker	Lorain, Ohio
Edward W. Mosher	Ionia, Mich.
P. F. Engle	Brinkley, Ark.
Charles A. McKeen	Chatham, Ont., Can.
Charles D. McGregor	Chatham, Ont., Can.
Melvin E. Donelon	Towanda, N. Y.
James McCammon	Roseville, Ill.
Ray Peetcher	Roseville, Ill.
Kard P. Kiner	Fargo, N. D.
Frank Gattie	Phoenix, Ariz.
Merle G. Campau	Oconto, Neb.
E. W. Brown	Richmond, Va.
George Morin	Nashua, N. H.
Guy D. Hammitt	New Castle, Ind.
Knelon Wattonville	Pomeroy, Iowa
Joseph F. Lyons	New York City
William Raftery	San Francisco, Cal.
Harold Kruzan	Irving, Ill.
Wilbur C. Zoeller	Franklin Grove, Ill.

Members Previously Recorded	731
Members Recorded This Week	27
Total Membership to Date	758

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Member's name.....

Home address.....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but it is for those who have neglected doing so, many having merely given their names and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office to deliver the letters addressed to them.

The Camera

The Douglass Process of Color Cinematography

THE most recent addition to the list of natural-color cinematographic processes which has reached the stage of public demonstration is the Douglass color process, which comes as the result of several years' experimental work on the part of Leon F. Douglass of San Rafael, Cal.

The Douglass colorfilms are produced by the Douglass Natural Color Film Co., Ltd., of San Rafael, and were brought to New York for demonstrational exhibition by Thomas P. Boyd, general manager of the company.

That Mr. Douglass was working on a motion picture color process has long been known, and we set forth some notes upon his methods in the Camera Department eight months ago.[1] Although the outline of the Douglass process, as sketched in our early article, was based entirely upon supposition, events have proven that our conjectures were well founded, and that our description represents with exactitude the manner in which Mr. Douglass' ideas are carried out in practice.

As a newcomer to most of our readers, Mr. Douglass requires some words of introduction, which we supply by stating that he is an inventor by vocation, and has had a large share in perfecting the tonal rendition of the talking machine—his best work along this line being embodied in the Victrola. Thus it is apparent that Mr. Douglass is a practical man whose inventions are of recognized commercial worth.

Some years ago Mr. Douglass conceived the desirability of natural-color photography as an adjunct to the motion picture, and this has claimed his attention for a considerable period. In line with the best modern ideas on the subject, Mr. Douglass' efforts have been directed toward applying natural-color photography to motion pictures in a practical manner, such as would not require any alteration in the conventional methods of cine projection and could be effected with an ordinary projecting machine requiring no special attachments. Mr. Douglass has advised us in a private communication that he could have introduced natural-color motion pictures years ago, but the method he then had in mind involved the use of a special attachment on the projecting machine, so he withheld the proposition and has now come forward with the process and results which we shall proceed to describe and comment upon.

The manner in which the Douglass colorfilms that have just been demonstrated were produced is quite extensively described in our earlier article (loc. cit.), so a very brief outline of the method will suffice on the present occasion.

Panchromatic film is exposed in a cine-camera of conventional type, which is, however, provided with a pair of color-filters of red-orange and blue-green color, respectively. These filters may be in the form of a rotating disc (as in the Kinemacolor camera), or may be of any other form which is found convenient and adaptable to the customary motion picture camera.

After the color-selection negatives, thus produced, have been developed, fixed and dried, positive prints are made therefrom on ordinary positive stock by the well-known method. The result is a black-and-white positive print, the images of which alternately represent the redness and the greenness of the subjects photographed. The present Douglass colorfilms are projected by the additive method, which, it will be recalled, requires that the film pictures representing the redness of the subjects photographed must be projected by red light, and that the green-sensation images must be projected by green light. As the method is an alternating, or successive, method, the pairs of red-and-green-sensation pictures are superimposed in the eye by persistence of vision, which requires the pictures to be projected and photographed at not less than double the customary speed for black and white subjects. Mr. Douglass has advised us, however, that his taking and projecting speed is 24 images per second, instead of 32; a rate which is lower than we think can be competently employed with most successive processes.

In order to make his process simple and readily capable of introduction into all motion picture theatres, without necessitating the use of a special machine or any attachments, Mr. Douglass applies his projecting-filters directly to the film strip itself in the following manner: Each red-sensation image on the black-and-white positive film strip is covered with a layer, or coating, of transparent red dye, and each green-sensation image is covered with a transparent layer of green dye. Each separate image, or picture, on the positive film thus carries its own color-filter of proper hue, and a length of such film presents to the eye the appearance of a series of alternating patches of red and green color, corresponding to the alternating red-and-green-sensation pictures on the strip. When such a film is projected on an ordinary projector, at the rate of from 32 to 40 images per second, a representation in colors of the objects photographed is revealed to the spectator, and the closeness with which the projected results approximate the coloration of the original subject will be governed by the extent to which the physical and physiological requirements of color photography have been complied with. From this outline of Mr. Douglass' present method it will be seen that his procedure is substantially identical with the method which has been demonstrated and utilized by Prizma, Inc.,[2] and as the method has been experimented with, and described, on various occasions during the past three years, it appears that it cannot be specifically claimed as the invention of any one particular worker.

As Mr. Douglass' present methods will be well understood from the foregoing description, and a study of the accompanying references, it only remains to record our impressions of the demonstrational exhibition. An exhibition of motion pictures in colors is always of profound interest to the student of cinematography, and the contrast between black-and-white pictures and pictures recorded by color photography is so overwhelmingly in favor of the latter method, that the faults of a colorfilm exhibition are always outweighed by its virtues. We were quite prophetic in our article of July, 1917, when we said "it must be considered that up to the present the Golden State has not witnessed the results of numerous other workers wherewith comparisons might be made."

We feel that it has been Mr. Douglass' misfortune that he has not been able to study the work and progress of other colorfilm makers, most of whom are located in the East, because the exhibition of Douglass color pictures did not reveal as finished a technique as is embodied in other methods demonstrated in the last three years, and we can state from observation that the Douglass colorfilms do not realize the complete possibilities of the method by which they are produced. This is by no means a discouraging indictment of Mr. Douglass' endeavors, as we know that up until very recently his color experiments have been in the nature of personal recreation. However, the more recently photographed scenes in the Douglass exhibition show a consistent improvement, and there is no doubt that Mr. Douglass is now on the way toward a complete conquest of the technical details involved in his methods.

The Douglass exhibition comprised a wide variety of scenes, such as are usually employed to indicate the scope of a color process, among which may be mentioned: views in Yosemite Park and the Yellowstone, a life-portrayal of Millet's painting, "The Angelus"; a forest-fire, many attractive views of California womanhood, the residence of the inventor, his charming wife and children, and some ne'er-to-be-forgotten scenes of sunny California's daughters in bathing costumes. We must not neglect to state that "Old Glory," the standby of vaudevillians and colorfilm makers alike, was prominently featured in the scheme of things.

The dominating feature of the Douglass exhibition was the brilliancy of the colors, which have not been equalled in saturation since the days of Kinemacolor. The hues of the projecting-filters appear to be not standardized as yet, as a variation in the positive

[1] "California Inventor Demonstrates Color Process." Camera Dept. July 7, 1917, pp. 140-141.

[2] "Prizma's Latest Color Pictures." Camera Dept. Jan. 12, 1918, pp. 310.

Six New Features For Sure Results!

Faster, finer and CERTAIN results now are gained with the new improved Universal Motion Picture Camera—the camera that keeps abreast of the science of motion picture photography.

The New Advantages of

UNIVERSAL

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

New framing adjustment—Better film transmission—Advanced film channel—New focusing tube—New Footage indicator—New "static" prevention. New automatic dissolve now ready. 200 feet magazine capacity—more speed—better results.

At Less Than Half the Price of other similar cameras

Send Postal Today

for complete description of the world's greatest value in motion picture cameras.

BURKE & JAMES, INC.

Sole Wholesale Agents

240 East Ontario Street, Chicago

Eastern Branch: 225 Fifth Avenue, New York City

One Hundred Per Cent. Projection

Your patrons will be quick to notice and to appreciate the sharper, clearer pictures thrown on the screen by

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

Give them a comfortable theatre and good pictures, then complete your service by giving them the best projection available—and there'll be no doubt about returns.

Write us about your present equipment, and ask for free booklet on Projection Lenses.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.

559 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.

New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), and Other High Grade Optical Products.

synthesis was apparent at various stages of the exhibition. As near as could be judged from observation of the projected results, the projecting colors used by Mr. Douglass are: a bright scarlet and an almost pure green. This constitutes some deviation from what theory would seem to require as the positive synthesis for a two-color process; Mr. Douglass' red filter is about right, but a more bluish green projecting filter is required as its complementary. It is an absolute requirement that the projecting filters (for a two-color additive process) be exactly, or very nearly, complementary to each other in hue, because this is the condition for the reproduction of whites as whites in the projected pictures. Inasmuch as Mr. Douglass' filter combination is quite far from being a complementary pair, good sensation-whites were lacking in most of the scenes—the whites appearing greenish yellow or green in the majority of instances. The more recently photographed scenes showed large improvement in this respect, however, and Mr. Douglass has very probably mastered, by now, the problem of securing a good neutral white.

An important consideration in a successive (additive) process of color cinematography is the speed at which the pictures are projected, and in common with other workers along the same line Mr. Douglass has endeavored to decrease the rate of projection, as this appears to be desirable from both the practical and the commercial standpoint. Unfortunately, the reduction of the projecting speed below the theoretical 32 pictures per second is not compatible with freedom from pulsation in the bright filter colors, and when the projecting speed falls below 32 per second the reds and greens of the screen picture exhibit a fluttering appearance which is in direct proportion to the brightness of the screen illumination and the saturation of the projecting colors. We have insisted on numerous occasions that a high projecting speed is required with the method now under consideration, and it appears that the only way in which the speed may be lessened without introducing pulsation into the screen colors is by the use of a shutter so geared and so divided as to expose the red and the green images for different periods of time, as theoretically dictated, for instance, by the data of Broca and Sulzer.[3]

As previously stated, Mr. Douglass specifies his projecting rate as 24 images per second, and it follows that his pictures are photographed at substantially the same rate, in order to portray motion correctly. Experience shows that this is rather too slow a taking rate if the red-and-green-sensation images are photographed successively, because the blurring of objects moving rapidly, or at unfavorable angles with respect to the camera objective, will result in severe color fringing in the projected results.

In the case of moving objects Mr. Douglass' pictures showed the severest color fringing which has been seen since the days of Kinemacolor, but a recently issued patent would appear to indicate that he has in view the positive abolition of color-fringing. We must reiterate, however, that so long as Mr. Douglass practices the method which we now have under consideration, a much higher projecting rate than 24 per second will be required to free the bright colors from pulsation, and this is particularly important, because of the vivid hue of his projecting filters.

Some further points which require consideration are related to the purely photographic side of color photography and these are: (a) the quality of the black-and-white positive print and (b) the precautions which must be observed in exposing the negatives. All color processes require a soft quality of positive print, of very full gradation, but lacking the dense snappy blacks which are esteemed in an ordinary cine positive.

The importance of this requirement has not been fully appraised by Mr. Douglass up to the present, if his demonstrational pictures are a criterion, for a great many of the scenes were of too contrasty a quality to reveal the utmost in color and shade interpretation which the method can accomplish. Some other scenes could not be faithfully portrayed on the screen on account of incorrect exposure in the original negative, and it may not be altogether beside the question for us to dwell briefly upon the question of exposure in color photography.

All color photographers are aware that the latitude in exposure is very much less in color photography than in ordinary photography, so that whereas a very good black-and-white print can often be secured from a severely over or under exposed negative, the result of such conditions in color photography is a diluted color rendition or an oversaturated reproduction, respectively. This applies to both additive and subtractive color processes, but as we are here describing an additive method we will attempt to show how an incorrect exposure will influence the positive result. The film images in an additive color photograph are stencils which let through, at any point of the image, an amount of light of their corresponding color which must be as nearly as possible identical with the amount of light of that color which radiated from the corresponding point of the object photographed. It is thus apparent, from sensitometric principles, that proportionality must exist beween the density at any part of a photographic color-sensation image, and the light intensity possessed by the corresponding part of the object at the instant when the photograph was taken, and it must also be apparent that if such proportionality (or a very close approximation thereto) does not exist, the reproduction of fine gradations or tonal differences will be lacking in the completed color positives. Fortunately, exposure can be mastered very readily by Mr. Douglass' photographic staff, and we have only dwelt upon this point because it is frequently overlooked, in spite of its importance.

[3] Broca and Sulzer's paper appeared in the Comptes Rendus, but a resume in English will be found in P. G. Nutting's "Outlines of Applied Optics."

In a review of the present character some detailed description of the color effects is in order, and the colors in many of the Douglass scenes were a great delight to us, because we favor bright, vivid colors. The reds and all warm tones in these pictures came out very well, as they seem to in the majority of color processes. As Mr. Douglass has seemingly not standardized the spectral transmissions of his projecting filters, faces were too ruddy on a few occasions, but in some scenes, including human characters, the reproduction of flesh tints was equal to anything previously shown. When pronounced reds were in evidence these were reproduced with purity and clearness, and were only marred by the pulsating effect which was previously mentioned. A reduction in the pulsating effect has been achieved, however, in the scenes most recently made, because Mr. Douglass has learned that it is not wise to photograph subjects which correspond in color to the bright scarlet and green hues of his projecting filters.

In the views of natural scenery, Mr. Douglass' bright green projecting color has come to the fore with unpleasant prominence, and our only observation on this point is that skies and water are not convincing when rendered as a bright emerald green. It will quickly be found by Mr. Douglass, if it has not been already, that his green projecting filter should be rather more blue than green, and it is entirely possible that properly colored positive prints from some of his already existing scenic negatives would show a more faithful color rendition than the ones which we have just witnessed. Mr. Douglass and his photographic staff have attempted with complete success some striking scenes with back-lighting, and have secured the first good effects along this line which we have seen recorded by color cinematography. We refer to some flashes of flimsily (but colorfully) draped dancing girls, photographed against the light with a dark background afforded by a shady nook, and Mr. Douglass must be congratulated on the success of this experiment.

When it is considered that the majority of the scenes comprising the demonstrational exhibition were the subjects of the inventor's very earliest experiments, it must be said that the results were of commendable quality, and we were unable to notice any defects of so fundamental a nature that they could not be readily obviated by the application of correct theory or by standardizing the manufacturing procedure.

The principle of Mr. Douglass' process has already been pronounced practicable in some of our previous articles, and there is no doubt but what Dr. Douglass can develop this method to its utmost limits by a careful consideration of the factors we have drawn attention to.

Mr. Douglass has already turned his attention to a different type of color process (a subtractive process), which is designed to permit of motion pictures yielding natural-color effects being projected at the standard (black-and-white) rate of 16 images per second. When his perfected process is ready Mr. Douglass has promised that the first account of the new method will be presented in the Camera Department of MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and we have no doubt that the modified process will be equal in scientific and artistic interest to the results which have just been shown.

ALFRED S. CORY.

S. B. LELAND of the Leland Theatre Supply Company, of 97 State street, Montpelier, Vermont, has just announced that he has opened a branch office at 515a Congress street, Portland, Maine.

EASTMAN FILM

The result of highest grade materials and painstaking manufacture is shown in the results on the screen.

Identifiable by the words "Eastman" and "Kodak" on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Search no Farther

EVANS' DEVELOPING and PRINTING SERVICE offers that personal interest factor that you seek.

This, supported by experience and known reputation, can be relied on to secure the results you demand.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St., New York City
Telephone St. Nicholas 3443

GOERZ

Goerz Kino Hypar F/3.5

The popularity of this lens for motion-picture photography is based on actual use by well-known expert cameramen. These men wanted results—they got them with the GOERZ KINO HYPAR. It is made in 1⅝, 2, 2⅜ and 3-inch focus, and can be fitted to every standard equipment now on the market. Send or call for our latest information about the GOERZ KINO HYPAR, special GOERZ VIGNETTING DEVICES and GOERZ MICROMETER MOUNTS.

C. P. GOERZ AMERICAN OPTICAL COMPANY
317-J 34th Street, New York City

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Publications

1—"I Want to See My Girl in London," by M. Pinkard. A wealth of melody combined with snappy rhythms make this song exceptionally effective and desirable. In point of originality this song hit leaves nothing to be desired. (Published by the Independent Music Co., 850 S. 23rd St., Omaha, Nebraska.)

2—"I Wish I Had a Sweetheart," by Edwin Dicey. Unquestionably the most beautiful valse movement on the market. Order your copy at once and give the audience a musical treat. (Published by the National Music Co., 339 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.)

3—"Liberty Bell, It's Time to Ring Again," by Halsey K. Mohr. Is not a war song, but a tribute in words and music to the emblem that is sacred to every true American heart. (Shapiro-Bernstein Edition.)

4—"Sing Me Love's Lullaby." A delightful number by Theo. Morse. (Published for dancing as a waltz; also obtainable as a concert arrangement for cornet or trombone solo.) (Leo Feist edition.)

5—Compositions of value to the "Motion Picture Musician" obtainable from J. W. Stern, 102 West 38th St., New York City:

1.—Light Romantic Theme No. 1. Arranged as violin solo. Will make the love story on the screen stand out.

2.—Light Romantic Theme. Arranged in duet form. Two violins, 'cello and organ. Two violins, flute and oboe. Clarinet and two cornets muted with organ or piano accompaniment. Three unique tonal effects combined in one arrangement.

3.—"A. B. C. Sacred Set, No. 1. Contains "Onward Christian Soldiers," "Rock of Ages," "Doxology" and "Choral." Four different religious temperaments.

4.—Heavy Descriptive Agitato No. 1. A new style agitato that has class and depth. The kind of a number that keeps lengthy action of this character interesting. No up-to-date leader can afford to be without it.

5.—Redemption Theme. A theme that expresses mother-love in every sense of the word. Used in the Evelyn Nesbit picture, "Redemption." Don't neglect adding this to your library.

6—"Somewhere in France Is the Lily," the most appealing march ballad ever written, by Jos. E. Howard. (M. Witmark edition.)

7—"Some Sweet Day." The sensational fox-trot hit. Absolutely the greatest Jazz number on the market. Composed by the writer of the famous "Missouri Waltz." (Forster Music Co. edition.)

8—"Adoration," by Felix Borowski. An orchestra arrangement by Chas. J. Roberts, equally effective for small and large orchestra combinations.. (Carl Fischer edition.)

9—"Hawaiian Nights," by Lee S. Roberts. The most wonderful Hawaiian waltz sensation of the years, introducing the ever popular "Aloha Oe." (Richmond Music Co. edition.)

10—"Stolen Sweets," a beautiful and melodious waltz movement, by Harry von Tilzer. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

11—"Barnyard Blues," Jass fox-trot, by D. J. La Rocca. The big hit of the Dixieland Jazz Band, as recorded by the Victor Talking Machine Co., Record No. 18255, under the title of "Liberty Stable Blues." (Leo Feist edition.)

12—Sorrow Theme, by Edouarde Roberts. Most appropriate for pathetic scenes. (Cinema Music Co., Columbia Theatre Bldg., New York City.)

13—"Source Dans Le Desert," idyl by Marguerite W. Horton. Some most interesting songs by this composer have already been published and this new Orientale for piano is worthy of them. It is one of those exotically colorful bits of eastern impressionism which, without making to great demands, technically allows intelligent interpretation and a skillful use of the pedals on the part of the pianist to secure a maximum of effect. (G. Schirmer edition.)

14—"Chasing the Chickens," a fox-trot and Jazz number. (Recently published by the Forster Music Co., 509 South Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.)

15—"Slippery Hank," by Losey. A characteristic one-step of exceptional merit which should be in every musician's library. (Vandersloot edition.)

Piano and Drum vs. the Orchestra

THE many inquiries at the box office in regard to the orchestra and the hours it is on duty, to me, is ample proof that the music has a great deal to do in regard to filling the house. The time has arrived where the orchestra is a necessity.

There are a great many houses of large seating capacity using piano, piano and drums or orchestra. Organ: the question arises, do they give the service and pleasure to the audience that is given by the management of the house, maintaining the orchestra? The many complaints in regard to "canned" music will answer one part of the question. In regard to piano or piano and drums, can say the greatest fault of this combination is too much repetition. In seven cases out of ten the pianist will not put out a musical program, improvising and faking. It stands to reason that a man must have an extraordinarily inventive memory to play as few as three or four feature pictures without "old man" repetition sliding in every once in a while. With the orchestra it is a different matter. The men must have parts for every number in the program. The orchestra leader of a first class picture house of today must possess an enormous library of music. He must have same arranged that he can lay his hands on an appropriate number for a situation on the screen at a moment's notice, whether it be a nigger buck dance or an aria from one of the operas. To acquire such a library is by no means an easy matter, and I think your idea in organizing a club for the purchase of orchestra music with the co-operation of the publishers and suggestions of various leaders of numbers suitable for "themes" and the many situations we are called upon to synchronize is a very good one. To me the selection of a "theme" is a most important matter. That I am successful is proven by the audience as to "title" of the number used, I have had as many as a dozen requests through the ushers for the title and composer of the theme used in a picture. When you hear an audience humming a melody while they are leaving the theatre is a good sign to me, so must be also to the management.

After playing a picture I take the program used and put same in a cabinet for "used music." Only in case of requests or absolute necessity are any of those numbers used for at least six or eight weeks. In this way I avoid repeating. Suggestions of music covering the various actions on the screen would fill a book.

The many uses for the mysterioso and the kind to use. The uses of the galop. A bright two-four vivace would be far from appropriate for a fire scene. Numbers for love scenes are a very important matter. One used to advantage in one picture would probably kill a good situation in another. "Oh, Promise Me" if used in some Vamp picture I have played, if used improperly, would have made a good comedy out of a strong dramatic picture. The many loose leaf collections are indispensable to the progressive leader. I would be pleased to hear from some of the leaders through your columns, and am sure if they will show an interest in this subject it will not only mean "better music for the pictures," but more work for the musicians.

In conclusion will say: My firm belief is that if the "manager" using piano or piano and drums tries orchestras, not cheap, but good ones; if he is successful in procuring a leader who is one of those "better music for the picture" boys, I am sure he will have made the greatest possible addition to his business and his increased box office receipts will more than justify him in his expenditure.

Professionally yours,
DICK C. CAHILL,
Leader Strand Theatre, Norfolk, Va.

A. P. Wilcox Opens Offices

THE A. P. Wilcox Music Publishing Co. has opened offices in the Gaiety Theatre Building and has already released a number of good songs written by H. Lyon Smith. Jules Ruby, who has been in the popular song game since it started down in Twenty-eighth street, will act as general manager for the company.

The Wilcox firm has some very pretty numbers, especially "My Little Yellow Rose," which should become an excellent counter seller on its merits, and a big favorite with ballad singers. It is also a fine number for love scenes and quiet moments in moving pictures.

"I Want Some One to Love Me When I'm Old and Gray" is another good ballad. "How'd You Like to Have a Baby Like Me," a novelty number and good for flirting episodes in pictures. "Yankee Soldier Boy" is Mr. Smith's patriotic contribution to the war song cycle. Mr. Smith has been writting songs for a number of years and appears to be familiar with all the tricks of the trade, and he is just as versatile as he is wise. Comedy numbers are just as easy for him to write as quiet ballads, and his melodies have that something that clings to one after hearing them.

Gertrude Baum, formerly with Joseph W. Stern & Co., has been engaged as pianist for the firm, and what she does not know about teaching songs to performers and demonstrating at the stores is scarcely worth knowing.

Another new firm that is making itself heard owing to some good material is The Times Music Co., 145 West Fortyfifth street. Ralph E. De Vivo, the president, has been keeping every one on the jump, and, although very busy himself, has found time to write a few good numbers for the catalogue. "America, Make the World Safe for Democracy," is a corking good number for pictures where the story carries any patriotic elements. "St. Patrick's Day in the U. S. A." and "Love Cannot Say Good-Bye" are other numbers that are beginning to show results. Mr. De Vivo is doing things in a big way, and if he gets any breaks of the game he won't be long in getting his firm into the front line of popular music publishers.

Meyer Cohen is another addition to the ranks of publishers. He has been in the business for twenty years, knows all the worthwhile acts, leaders and every angle of the trade, as well as the buyers. His offices are in the Astor Theatre Building, and he has been fortunate in securing from another publisher, "There's a Vacant Chair in Every Home Tonight," which is doing well with singers and musicians and producing a raft of orders from the trade. As a professional and business manager for other houses Meyer has always been successful. So there is no reason why he should not win success for himself, for at the head of his own firm he will be free to apply his own theories into the business without encountering any opposition. His numbers are well worth playing.

E. M. WICKES.

General Comments

IN the February issue of the American Magazine there is a special article on Leo Feist, his theories and ideals of business. His photograph accompanies the article. The American Magazine has a monthly circulation of more than 800,000 copies, and when you figure that at least five persons read every magazine printed, you can readily see how more than 4,000,000 persons will read about Mr. Feist and his way of winning and holding success in one of the most uncertain lines of business in the world.

EARLE REYNOLDS and Nellie Donegan are busy trying to popularize two of their song compositions, namely, "My Hoosier Rose" and "Jerusalem Is True." They have induced several well known performers to use either one of the songs, and have interested a number of leaders and pianists in them.

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

THE GREAT PATRIOTIC HOME SONG HIT

Song 15c Orchestra, 11 and Piano 25c Band 25c
Waltz 15c Full Orchestra and Piano 35c

VICTOR RECORD BY PAUL REIMERS

I Wonder How The Old Folks Are At Home
With Patriotic Version
Companion to BACK AT DEAR OLD HOME SWEET HOME
By Same Composers

Also Published for Male Quartet, Mixed Quartet, Cornet & Trombone Solos with Orchestra Acc'ts

Words by HERBERT S. LAMBERT
Music by F. W. VANDERSLOOT
Patriotic Version by Ed Rose.

VICTOR RECORD No 45111 By Paul Reimers Issued Nov. 1917

Also Published for Solo Piano, Waltzes, Band, Orch. 10 & 8 pc., 15 & 21 pc., Full Orchestra & Pat. Ver.

I Wonder etc. 2 Patriotic Version by Ed. Rose, Copyright MCMXVII by Vandersloot Music Pub. Co., Williamsport, Pa.

PATRIOTIC VERSION BY ED ROSE

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
Williamsport, Pa.

"THE MARIONETTES"

(Select Pictures Corporation)

(Reviewed on page 1035)

1—"Angelus" (Sacred) from "Scenes Pittoresques," by Massenet, until—T: "Rogers De Montclars, etc."
2—"Longing" (2/4 Andamtino grazioso), by Floridia, until—T: "Fernande spends her Summer vacation."
3—"Souvenir (4/4 Andante con Moto), by Ed. German, until—T: "How would you like Fernande become, etc.?"
4—Love Theme, until—T: "After the honeymoon."
5—"La Grace," Piece de Genre (4/4 Moderato), by Bohm, until—S: Fernande (Clara Kimball Young) writing letter.
6—"Romance" from "Concerto No. 2" (12/8 And. non troppo), by H. Wieniawski, until—T: "I must speak to you before I go."
7—Love Theme, until—T: "I am going to be happy."
8—"Whims" (3/4 Allegro Giocoso), by R. Schumann, until—T: "Left alone in Paris."
9—"A La Bien Aimee" (Valse Lente), by E. Schuett, until—T: "At the dress rehearsal."
10—Marionette Theme, until—T: "Roger returns home."
11—Continue or repeat pp until—S: Interior of reception hall.
12—"Petite Bijouterie" (Valse Intermezzo), by C. Bohm, until—T: "I mean the modiste."
13—Marionette Theme, until—T: "Could I see you a minute?"
14—Continue pp until—T: "My dear, your gown, etc."
15—"Good Lancers" (Dance), until—T: "Their return home."
16—Love Theme, until—T: "Morning."
17—"Swing Song" (6/8 Moderato), by Barns, until—T: "That evening."
18—Continue to action, until—T: "The musicale."
19—Silence, until—S: Fernande at piano (playing).
20—Piano Solo—Improvise to action, until—S: Fernande stops playing.
21—Silence, until—T: "That was exquisite."
22—Marionette Theme, until—T: "I'll be back in an hour."
23—Continue pp until—T: "The Neapolitan party."
24—"Fantasia Napolitana" (On Neapolitan songs), by E. Boccalari, until S: Flashback to Fernande.
25—Continue pp until—T: "Every hour I'm away from you, etc."
26—Continue ff until—T: "You are not waiting for Roger?"
27—Love Theme, until—S: Neapolitan girls singing.
28—About 16 bars of "Fantasia Napolitana," followed by 29—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "Roger has just told me, etc."
30—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement, until—T: "At dawn."
31—Continue pp until—T: "I'm going to Spain."
32—"The Vampire" (A Dramatic Theme), by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "If I do that, you will ruin everything."
33—Love Theme, until—T: "Thank goodness, now I can go home."
34—Marionette Theme, until * * * * END.

"THE GUN WOMAN"

(Triangle Production)

Theme: "By the River" (Romance) (12/8 Animato) by Morse

1—"Western Moderato," by Bach, until—T: "An anonymous but active, etc."
2—Continue pp until—T: "La Mesa, dying metropolis, etc."
3—"Dramatic Tension," by Levy, until—T: "Well, just tell that feller."
4—"After the War is Over" (Echo Music Co.), until—T: "Another stranger in town."
5—"Cleopatra Had a Jazz Band," Trot (Leo. Feist Ed.) until T: "They call me the agent."
6—Continue pp until—T: "Then with the passing days."
7—Theme, until—T: "I'd make that pest a deputy."
8—Continue pp until—T: "Again in her roll."
9— until T: "The pest becomes an official."
10—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "He had to kill him."
11—Theme, until—T: "With thoughts of gentle future."
12—"Dramatic Tension No. 1," by Reissiger, until—T: "I know a little place you'd like."
13—Continue pp until—T: "The partnership."
14—Popular Rag to action (Western barroom scene), until—T: "Two more strangers reach La Mesa."
15—"Debutante" (Waltz), by Santelman, until—T: "I think we've got enough capital."
16—Theme, until—T: "As the tigress becomes, etc."
17—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement, until—S: Man on horseback appears.
18—"Western Allegro," by Winkler," until—T: "Won't you let me take you away?"
19—Continue pp until—T: "Bravos transformed almost over night."
20—Heavy Rag to action (Western barroom scene), until—T: "Awaiting for the first time in her life."
21—Theme, until—T: "Welcome to our city."
22—"Love Song" (Dramatic), by Flegier, until—T: "At the end of the month."
23—Continue pp until—T: "I don't know where she went."
24—"Allegro," by Bach, until—S: Hanging lamp in view.
25—Hurry to action, until—T: "For each man kills, etc."
[illegible] END

"THE LAW'S OUTLAW"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 442)

Theme: "After Sunset" (Dramatic Moderato) by Pryor

1—"Western Moderato" by Bach until—S: Interior of Room.
2—"Canzonetto (Mod.) by Nicode until—T: "You ought to be ashamed of yourself."
3—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Ethan Ransford, sheriff elect, etc."
4—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Pierne until—T: "I'm not drinkin' with you."
5—Theme until—T: "I'm going back to my range."
6—Continue ff until—T: "El Rancho Pincon, etc."
7—"Manzano" (Mexican intermezzo) by Brooks until—T: "Following a day's inspection, etc."
8—Continue ff until—S: Interior of cabaret.
9—"Stolen Sweets" Waltz (Harry von Pilzer) until—S: Dancing.
10—Continue ff until—S: Girl and sheriff leave dance hall.
11—"Dramatic Tension" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Oh daddy! how I wish, etc."
12—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough until—T: "Remember sheriff, prisoners are no good."
13—Theme until—T: "Impatient at the ineffective methods, etc."
14—"Intermezzo" (Moderato) by Huerter until—T: "I know you don't like Mr. Ransford."
15—"Yester Love" (Intermezzo Andantino) by Borch until—T: "Maybe I've discovered a clue."
16—"Dramatic Andante" by Ascher until—T: "A more or less friendly little posse."
17—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic) by Favarger until—T: "You're a quitter, etc."
18—Hurry to action until—T: "You know I shot in self defense."
19—"Dramatic Tension No. 1" by Reissiger until—T: "Be careful, not to say anything, etc."
20—"Dramatic Tension" by Andino until—T: "Ethan Ransford in death."
21—Theme until—T: "You're just the man I'm looking for."
22—"Violetta" (Characteristic Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "Distrusting the Mexican, etc."
23—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol. P. Levy until—S: The fight.
24—"Agitato" No. 4 by Lake until—T: "And the devil, etc."
25—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto) by Arenski until—T: "Rejoicing in her father's recovery, etc."
26—"LeRetour" (Allegro) by Bizet until—T: "Unlock that door, you boob!"

"THE HOPPER"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 887)

Theme: "Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy

1—"Chinese Serenade," by Puerner, until—T: "Man's memory is short."
2—"Serenade" (Allegretto), by Saint-Saens, until—T: "Come to the sale with me."
3—Continue ff, until—T: "No worse than you, etc."
4—"Dramatic Tension" by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "And while the tempest rages."
5—Theme ff, until—T: "But the vase which stayed."
6—Continue pp, until—T: "The same night finds, etc."
7—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Levy, until—T: "Two nights later they meet."
8—"Vera Waltz," by A. F. Lithgow, until—T: "Four years later."
9—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto), by Bohm, until—T: "A few miles away."
10—Continue to action, until—T: "After a successful sale of poultry."
11—"Mysterioso Agitato," by Becker, until—T: "The day you quit the son, etc."
12—Theme, until—T: "Give me the phone book."
13—"Cavatine" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato), by Bohm, until—S: "Child asleep (on bed)."
14—"Mysterioso Pizzicato No. 14," by Lake, until—T: "I don't know what to do with you."
15—"Ecstasy" (Dramatic Allegro), by Zameznik, until—S: "Burglar near window."
16—"Fourteen Fathoms Deep" (Dramatic Mysterioso), by Lake, until—S: "The fight."
17—Hurry to action, until—S: "Young woman at piano."
18—"Allegro," by Bach, until—T: "So that's what you went for."
19—"Aragonaise" from "Le Cid" (Allegro), by Massenet, until—T: "Oh, I don't know whether I can, etc."
20—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement, until—T: "Meanwhile the police of your counties."
21—Theme, until—S: "Close up of watch."
22—"Dramatic Tension No. 9," by Andino, until—T: "Watch out for the bulls."
23—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—S: "Child with man enter the house."
24—"Return to Me Soon" (Allegro), by Gregh, until—T: "I told you he stole that boy."
25—Theme, until * * * * * END.

[More Music Cues Will Be Found on Page 1340]

THE BARTOLA

GROWS MORE POPULAR WITH YOUR CUSTOMERS THE LONGER YOU USE IT

WRITE FOR CATALOGUE

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Theatres Worth While

Montana Theatre Scores Hit

PYTHIAN THEATRE, Belt, Montana, stands out among the theatres in the smaller cities that are distinctly making good. Although Manager J. W. Anderson admits that he has felt the influence of the war tax he means to survive by "digging in."

Belt is a town of 1,500, located in the center of a rich farming country and is a modern town in every respect. There is a rich coal field underlying the entire section, and eight mines are now in operation. One of the mottos of the theatre is "We are not boosting Belt; we are building Belt."

Exterior of Pythian Theatre, Belt, Montana

This house, which seats 204 people, boasts of being one of the best equipped houses in the whole Northwest. It is the owner of a $5,000 American Fotoplayer, which is operated by Mr. Anderson and his wife; Simplex machines of the latest model, Hallberg generator, Emerson exhaust fans and other modern conveniences. The pictures are shown on an 8 x 10 screen and the detail is made the more perfect by using a shadow box about six feet deep.

This theatre changes its bills each day, always using features, and including the product of Pathe, Bluebird, Butterfly, World and the Artcraft Hart, Fairbanks and Mary Pickford features.

Evans with National X-Ray

NATIONAL X-RAY REFLECTOR COMPANY announces the appointment of G. F. Evans as supervising engineer for the territory including Ohio, with the exception of Toledo and Cincinnati; West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania. Mr. Evans, who was formerly connected with the W. C. Moore Company, will have his offices at 825 Columbus Savings and Trust Building, Columbus, Ohio.

Directory of New Theatres

CALIFORNIA

Definite announcement has been made of the projected theatre building for the southeast corner of Clement street and Ninth avenue, San Francisco. Samuel H. Levin has engaged Reid Brothers, architects, to make plans and supervise construction of the theatre. The playhouse, which is intended for motion pictures, will cover a ground area of 82.6 x 125, and have a seating capacity of 1200 on the ground floor and 800 on the balcony. The building will be two stories in height, with two stores fronting on Clement Street, and a spacious vestibule and lobby between. Reinforced concrete will be used entirely for the structural parts. Exits will be provided on both streets and in the rear. On the second floor plans are made for the reception rooms and parlors for women. The cost estimate is stated at $110,000.

Recent improvements at the Atascadero theatre include a vestibule with doors to exclude the draft from the main entrance and still further improved heating facilities. More important, perhaps, than anything else, the doors have been rehung so that now they all open outward, and this fact, taken together with the number of exits from the building, makes the place as safe as a building can be in that respect. The theatre is on the ground floor and, besides the main entrance facing the playground has two double door exits on the street side and one double door exit on the opposite side.

Mrs. Ruth S. Cassil, formerly of Hollywood, the new owner of the Colonial theatre, Monrovia, is seriously contemplating the erection of a new theatre, being of the firm belief that Monrovia can and will support a more substantial and pretentious theatre than the one she now owns.

The new Liberty theatre at Camp Kearney, San Diego, was opened recently with great eclat. The theatre, with a seating capacity of approximately 1500, will do its bit toward providing clean, wholesome diversion for the men. It is of modern construction, well ventilated and sanitary in every way, and it is equipped with the very latest and best features essential to the showing of motion pictures, among them being the 100 per cent perfect projection.

It is the plan to have a change of program twice a week, and the management has been scouring the market for several weeks with a view to booking attractions which they feel sure will appeal to the boys in the camp.

J. A. Smith, 621 Investment Building, San Pedro, has completed plans for a theatre and store building to be erected on Palos Verdes avenue near Sixth street, San Pedro, for N. O. Anderson, F. O. Adler and Ray Piersons, all natives of San Pedro. The theatre auditorium will be 57 x 125 ft. in size and will have a seating capacity of 900 people. The entrance and lobby will be 25 x 75 ft. in size. There will also be one storeroom in the building. The building will have concrete foundation, tile and cement flooring, pressed brick and staff front, plate glass store front, composition roofing, skylights, ventilators, pine trim, plumbing and wiring.

ILLINOIS

Frank Bridgewater of Springfield announces his intention of converting his business property into a motion picture theatre in the near future.

IOWA

Extensive plans have been outlined by Manager E. M. Henle, of the Palace theatre, Muscatine, for a number of improvements to be made on his picture house during the early spring months. The first big improvement will be the addition to the seating capacity of the house, approximately one hundred and twenty-five seats to be added, and the adding of new carpets to replace the old ones all over the theatre.

MASSACHUSETTS

The new Broadway theatre at Springfield was opened last week to a capacity business, playing "The Garden of Allah." The Broadway was built by Goldstein Bros., who are putting on high class photoplays. It is a beautiful theatre, seating twenty-five hundred people.

Plans have finally been made for the erection of a theatre in Harvard Square, Cambridge, and it will be started on without delay. It is the new owners of the College House who are to start operations.

NEW BRUNSWICK

"The Nickel," St. John's newest motion picture theatre, was opened a week ago to capacity business, under the ownership and general management of Robert Armstrong. It has a seating capacity of one thousand and forty and is a beautifully designed structure.

NEW MEXICO

Hardwick Brothers, proprietors of the Lyceum theatre, Clovis, have contracted with architects of Kansas City for the erection of a new theatre building, which will have a much larger seating capacity than the one occupied at present.

NEW YORK

John Gillespie, the well-known Hoosick Falls builder and contractor, has been awarded the contract to rebuild the Knickerbocker theatre in Glens Falls. The Knickerbocker block, of which the theatre is a part, was recently purchased from the estate of Samuel Pruyn by Colburn and Lockwood, of Burlington, Vt. The contract for rebuilding the theatre calls for an expenditure of $40,000 for construction work. When completed the theatre will be named The Rialto, and a large pipe organ, valued at $15,000, will be installed.

An interesting structural alteration is planned on top of the new motion picture theatre at 623 Eighth avenue, New York City, forming an "L" around the northwest corner of Fortieth street, to Nos. 305 and 307 West. The Bofan Amusement Company, lessee, has commissioned S. B. Eisendrath, architect, to make plans for an open air theatre for the roof in order that it may operate during the summer months. The changes will cost about $30,000. The existing theatre was erected early in 1917 and leased to the Bofan Company for twenty-one years to Louis W. Weil.

Some one has revived the rumor that the West End, Newburgh, is to have a moving picture theatre this spring. According to the yarn, George Cohan is to convert a building near Broadway and Fullerton Avenue into a theatre. Others have it that the theatre is to be farther uptown. Had W. Schuyler Moore not been called to the colors it is probable that he and R. A. Brown would have had a company incorporated seeking to locate a moving picture there.

NOVA SCOTIA

Bridgewater's newest motion picture theatre, "The Empire," was opened a week ago under the management of Cragg and Fraser. It has a seating capacity of five hundred.

DU PONT AMERICAN INDUSTRIES

Seats That Stay Beautiful

Here is a theatre seat that will be beautiful after years of hard service because it is covered with Du Pont Fabrikoid which does not wear shabby and is absolutely unaffected by water, grease, stains, dust or perspiration.

DU PONT FABRIKOID CO.

Wilmington, Delaware

Canadian Factory and Office:
NEW TORONTO
ONTARIO

No. 680

Made by

WISCONSIN CABINET & PANEL CO.
105 West 40th Street
New York

DU PONT

Why Work In The Dark?

You would laugh at the business man who refuses to use light while he is working, to keep down expenses. That man would be paying dearly for his so-called economy. But you are doing the very same thing with your theatre, unless you subscribe for

"Screen Opinions"

The Independent, Comprehensive Reviewing Service

[illegible] the part we criticised—reviews—synopses—[illegible] And if you don't [illegible]

Write In for Full Information

Cahill-Igoe Co. Chicago
112 W. Harrison St. THE HOME OF CICO PRODUCTS

"NEWMAN"
Ticket Chopper

Safeguard against having your tickets used over again and resold. Circumstances sometimes cause many men to yield to temptation. Newman's ticket choppers positively chop and positively insure you against any collusion between ticket seller and ticket taker. The most practical and most attractive choppers made. Write in for 1918 Catalog of Ticket Choppers, Brass Frames and Rails.

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, O.
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Ill.
Established 1882
Coast Representative — G. A. Metcalfe, 119 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone [illegible] Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Can.

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

WASHINGTON

Marking the beginning of a new period in Bremerton's theatrical history, the new Rialto theatre had its opening performances Feb. 6 and 7.

An unusually good program was provided, and that doubled the pleasure of attending one of the opening performances to see the inside of the beautiful amusement structure, the building of which has caused so much interest in the city.

Probably not a city in the country the size of Bremerton can boast of a playhouse that is superior to the Rialto, in which are incorporated all of the most modern features for the comfort of the patron and for the presentation of a high class of entertainment.

A building permit for the erection of a $50,000 theatre building at South Ninth and Market Streets, Tacoma, has been taken out by John S. Baker and H. F. Moore. The permit states that the building will be 90 x 120, with the entrance on Ninth Street and the alley. Roland E. Borhek is named as the contractor and Dawson and Dahlberg as the contractors. It is estimated that the building, which was started last month, will be completed in five months.

Joe Lucas, manager of the Grand theatre, Centralia, announces that he has secured a lease on the new $50,000 theatre being erected at the corner of Tower Avenue and Maple Streets and which is rapidly nearing completion. The lease runs for a period of ten years. Arrangements have been completed for the furnishing of the new theatre, the equipment to be as fine as in any house on the Coast. All of the big road attractions possible will be booked for the new house, the stage of which is large enough to accommodate the biggest shows.

"DODGING A MILLION"

(Goldwyn Production)

(Reviewed on page 1038)

Theme: "Illusion Intermezzo" (2/4 Moderato) by Bustanoby

1—"A La Bien Aimee" (French Waltz Lente), by Schuett, until—T: "And this lowly person is Arabella Flynn."
2—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto), by Pierne, until—T: "She's stabbed me."
3—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "I will give you this gown and a dinner."
4—"Missouri Waltz" (Forster Ed.), until—T: "Arabella makes a delivery, etc."
5—"Serenade" (Allegretto), by Saint-Saens, until—T: "A late customer."
6—"Album Leaf" (4/4 moderato), by Kretschmer, until—S: "Arabella dressing in front of mirror."
7—Theme, until—S: "Arabella near taxi."
8—"Silvery Brook" (Waltz), by Braham (Melodious), until—S: "Arabella enters the restaurant."
9—"Swing Song" (6/8 Moderato), by Barns, until—S: "Arabella running out of restaurant."
10—"Allegro," by Bach, until—T: "Raquines, night watchman, etc."
11—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Does a dame Arabella Flynn?"
12—"Essence Grotesque" (Mysterioso), by M. Lake, until—S: "Interior of Hotel Lobby."
13—"Manzano" (Mexican Intermezzo), by Brooks, until—T: "Pardon, Senorito, but I am the manager."
14—Theme, until—T: "But I am not a fatalist."
NOTE: Watch Door Bell and Produce Effect.
15—Continue pp, until—T: "Her first false step."
16—"Sweet Jasmine" (Allegretto), by Bendix, until—S: "Arabella reading letter."
17—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "New York gets a little reading matter."
18—Theme, until—T: "Arabella comprehends a financial, etc."
NOTE: Watch for Telephone Bell.
19—"Dramatic Narrative," by Paulin Pement, until—T: "Throughout the day Jack was unable, etc."
20—"Egyptian Ballet" (Part 3 Andante Sostenuto), by Luigini, until—T: "And they say that opportunity, etc."
21—"Love Theme" (Dramatic), by Herzberg, until—T: "The second morning at the St. Rex."
22—"Cavatine" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato), by Bohm, until—T: "When the theatres are empty."
23—"Aurora" (Ballet Intermezzo), by Vonder Mehden, until—S: "Jack kissing Arabella."
24—"Serenade" (Andante), by Drigo, until—S: "Jack standing on stairs near window."
25—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—S: "Arabella telephoning."
NOTE: Watch for Scene "Jack Breaking Window" and Produce Effect.
26—"Serenade" (Dramatic Andante), by Widor, until—T: "Morning came as dull and grey, etc."
27—"Sorrow Theme" (Andante), by Pauline Pement, until—S: "Interior of office."
28—"Aragonaise" from "Le Cid" (Allegro), by Massenet, until—T: "To say nothing about your hotel bill."
29—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough, until—T: "My son has gone, etc."
30—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia), by Bach, until—T: "Don't you believe me?"
31—"Dramatic Andante," by E. Ascher, until—T: (on letter) "It is my sad experience, etc."
32—Theme, until * * * * * * END.

Emergol

METOL'S RIVAL

THE PERFECT FILM DEVELOPER

WRITE

Franklin Import and Export Co.

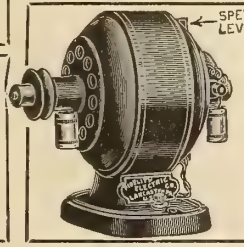
220 BROADWAY (INC.) NEW YORK

"WOLVES OF THE RAIL"

(Artcraft Production)

(Reviewed on page 734)

Theme: "Heartwounds" (Dramatic) by Grieg



1—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic), by Favarger, until—T: "At Smoky Cap, New Mexico."
2—Silence "just produce railroad effects" until—T: "The office of the division."
3—"Violetta" (Concert Piece), by Herman, until—T: "Box Canyon in the Sant Rita, etc."
4—"Manzona" (Characteristic Mexican Intermezzo), by Brooks, (watch for railroad effects), until—T: "Buck Andrade, one of the many."
5—Heavy Western Allegro—to action (watch for railroad effects), until—T: "A wild cat trail."
6—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Over the divide in another country."
7—"Ave Maria" (Dramatic), by Ascher, until—S: "When bandit shoots Andrade."
8—Watch Shot—with ad. lib. Tympany Rolls during fall, followed by 9—Dramatic Allegro—to action, until—T: "My son, you will tell me the truth!"
10—Theme, until—T: "After disloading and driving his followers, etc."
11—Continue pp, until—T: "On the Westbound limited."
12—"Hearts Devotion," Reverie (4/4 And.), by Hurst (Watch for railroad effects), until—T: "The mutiny that band, that refused."
13—Continue to action—with ad. lib. railroad effects, until S: "The hold-up."
14—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—T: "Morning."
15—"Con Amore" (Melody), by Beaumont, until—T: "With the arrival of No. 3."
16—Continue to action until—T: "A fortnight later."
17—Open with railroad effects, followed by 18—"Melody," by Friml, until—T: "In New York."
19—Continue to action until—T: "Then came the quiet mountain twilight."
20—Theme, until—T: "The band that rallied, etc."
21—"Olla Podrida" (Spanish Burlesque), by Puerner, until—T: "My name is Cassidy."
22—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Didn't your mother ever teach you, etc."
23—Theme, until—T: "The outlaw, Buck Andrade, is dead."
24—"Dramatic Tension No. 1," by Reissiger (watch for railroad effects), until—T: "Are you the man who? etc."
25—Heavy Battle, Hurry, until—T: "Is he Buck Andrade, my dear?"
26—"The Lion Chase" (Grand Galop), by Koelling (watch for railroad effects), until—T: "I'm going to kill you with my hands."
27—Continue ff until—S: "Andrade throws the bandit through the window."
28—Cymbal Crash, followed by
29—Theme, until—T: "The last of the Devil's division."
30—Continue to action (with ad. lib. railroad effects), until * END.

FOR SALE
$2000 WURLITZER
STYLE "O"
In use only 14 months.
A-1 condition. A Bargain.
Write LIONEL DELACROIX,
Plaquemine, Louisiana

JUST A MOMENT, PLEASE
Take elevator to the SIXTH FLOOR.
THE INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO. has every known supply for the M. P. Theatre.
Courtesy with Service
Room 603 729 7th Ave., N. Y.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A

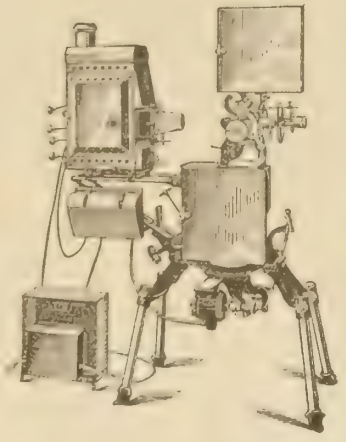
Business Offerings
MOVING PICTURE MACHINES, frames, motors, spot lamps, paintings, and other theatre supplies, both new and second-hand at bargain prices. We need the room for new stock and therefore are offering some exceptional bargains. WRITE FOR SPECIAL LIST.
ERKER BROS.
608 OLIVE ST. ST. LOUIS, MO.

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MOTOR
$16.00
Alternating or Direct Current Complete with variable speed lever. Immediate delivery.
Fidelity Electric Co.
Lancaster, Pa.

The Automaticket Policy for 1918
One of the greatest satisfactions in our business life is to hear so many exhibitors refer to us by such "pet terms" as "progressive," "leaders in their field," etc.
During 1918 we propose to live up to these expectations more strenuously than ever before.
We shall spare no efforts to deserve the patronage of exhibitors, improving constantly on our efforts in the past.
That this policy has been appreciated, is evidenced by our constantly growing patronage. It includes the largest circuits as well as medium and small houses.
It is evidenced by our busy factories in various parts of the country from which we ship our Automaticket Systems and tickets to exhibitors in this country and abroad.
The key note of our policy is to put the interest of the exhibitor FIRST. We know that is the best way to serve our own interest.
Automatic Ticket Selling and Cash Register Company
Manufacturers of Automatic Ticket Selling Machines
Tickets and Other Box Office Equipment
1731 BROADWAY - NEW YORK

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service
We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc. N 152
MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO Phone, 2003 Randolph
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City



TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

REMEMBER

It's The Man Behind The Gun

We're All Thinking Of These Days

How About YOUR MAN,
The Operator?

You demand results of him, but he cannot "produce" without the machine.

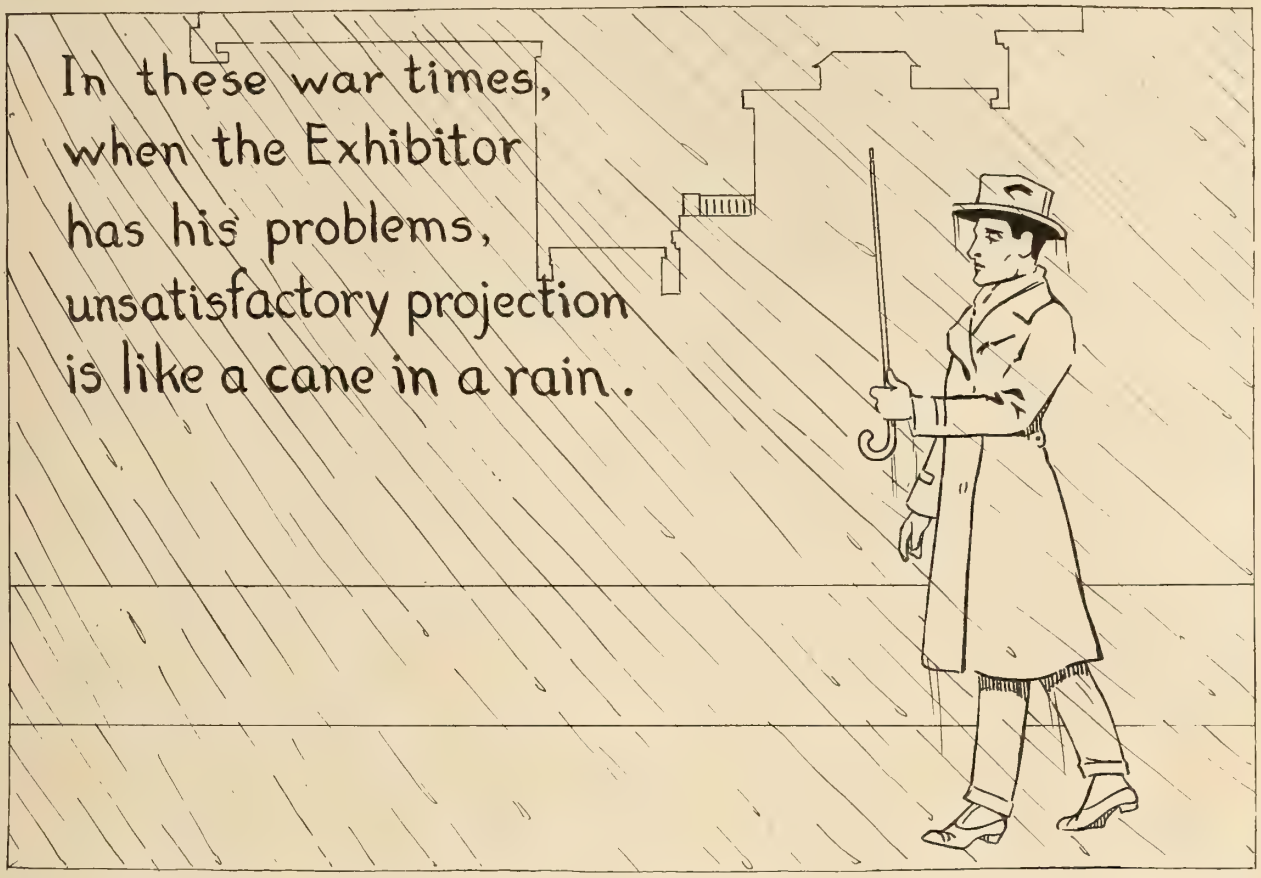
Give Him The Best—
A Power's Cameragraph—

If you expect the best of him.

Nicholas Power Company

Incorporated

Pioneers of Projection



90 GOLD STREET, NEW YORK, N. Y.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH
• ASSURES •
PEERLESS PROJECTION

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex

The climbing cost of living compels people to turn their money over before they spend it. Never before were they so discriminating; never so determined to make every coin count.

Under such conditions, you can't get their money unless you give a big money's worth. If you skimp on the very thing people pay you for—motion-picture projection—you're like a man with a cane in a rain.

Shrewd Theatre Men draw the crowds in war times as well as in times of peace with Simplex projection, because it's the biggest money's worth.

The Simplex Distributor helps the Exhibitor succeed. If you don't know him, we'll make you acquainted.

You can meet the most unfavorable conditions if you are properly equipped

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

Two Winners

A Drama that is packing the biggest houses—sweeping the country—pouring the money into Exhibitors' tills—

"The PRICE of a GOOD TIME"

A Lois Weber Winner in every sense of the word.

Coming—
Mildred Harris

In the latest
Lois Weber Production

"The DOCTOR and the WOMAN"

An Intimate Disclosure of Life as We live It

Reserve Now

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS INC.
1600 Broadway New York.

Lois Weber
Productions

MARCH 9, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

DOMINATES THE FIELD

THE RIALTO TIMES SQUARE — NEW YORK — THE RIVOLI BROADWAY AT 49TH STREET

My Dear Mr. Zukor:—

I thought you would be pleased to know that my schedule of bookings for The Rivoli and The Rialto throughout February and March and the first two weeks in April, contains, with one exception only

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

This fact gives me a decided feeling of security and satisfaction, as I know from past experience that it will mean excellent business at both houses. Thanking you for the splendid cooperation you have given me and assuring you of my continued good wishes, I remain,

Yours most sincerely

Managing Director .

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS MAR 8 1918

VOL. XVII-NO. 10 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

Bluebird Photoplays present

Herbert Rawlinson

as the man who laughed at death in the great American play

"Brace Up!"

Directed by Elmer Clifton

Book thru your local Bluebird Exchange or communicate with Bluebird Photo Plays (Inc.) 1600 Broadway, New York

Adolph Zukor presents

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

Directed by Maurice Tourneur

Scenario by Charles Maigne

An ARTCRAFT Picture

Maeterlinck's

"THE BLUE BIRD"

A spectacle of Happiness, a pictorial adventure of beauty inconceivable; an endless image of beating hearts thrown upon the sun-screen of Heaven.

Released on Easter Sunday, March 31st.

A mighty, emotional drama that the public will hail as the most artistic photoplay yet produced.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Thomas H. Ince
presents

William S. Hart

in

"BLUE BLAZES RAWDEN"

by J. G. Hawks, Directed by William S. Hart. Photographed by Joe August Supervision of
Thomas H. Ince

An ARTCRAFT Picture

WILLIAM S. HART is a boss-lumber-jack in "Blue Blazes Rawden," a tough customer who kills bears with his hands. He's a "fighting fool" and there's not a dull spot in this intensely vigorous story.

This Thomas H. Ince star is a 100 percent box office attraction. He is a splendid hero of the big outdoors. William S. Hart pictures are inspiring. They make folks breathe deeper.

That's why you've got to have William S. Hart in your theatre.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Benjamin Chapin

in

"The Son of Democracy"

A series of dramatic film stories of America in the making.
Written, directed and produced by Benjamin Chapin

A Paramount Series

AN audience of ten million has learned from The Saturday Evening Post and The Literary Digest what "The Son of Democracy" is and why they should see it.

No one who saw the "ads" will miss the photoplay.

The Saturday Evening Post and The Literary Digest are only two of many national magazines being used to make this picture a mighty box-office attraction.

Every patron who is sent to you by these advertisements is good for ten "admissions," because "The Son of Democracy" is so built that each chapter not only is all-satisfying but leaves a hungry desire for the next one.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice-Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Adolph Zukor

Presents

Elsie Ferguson

in

"The Song of Songs"

By Edward Sheldon

Scenario by Charles Maigne
Directed by Joseph Kaufman

An ARTCRAFT Picture

"THAT'S a downright good picture. It will get a pile of money," an exhibitor remarked at a trade showing of "The Song of Songs."

Of course it will. Success begets success and "The Song of Songs" was one of the greatest successes that ever thrilled the stage world.

The story of the ravishingly beautiful woman who trod the primrose maze of life brought blasé Broadway to its feet and packed the Eltinge Theatre for months.

Reinforced by a star whose very personality means a full house, the picture is greater than the stage version.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

J. Stuart Blackton

The Master of Screencraft

Presents

"The World For Sale"

From the Novel by

Sir Gilbert Parker

Picturized and personally presented by
J. STUART BLACKTON

A Paramount Picture

J. STUART BLACKTON productions are "pyramiders." Each one piles up even more business for you than the one before.

J. Stuart Blackton is a big drawing card in motion pictures and his fame grows even greater with the release of each of his Paramount Pictures.

Ann Little and Conway Tearle are featured players in this story of the Northwest. It's worth a long run.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

ALICE JOYCE

IN

"THE SONG of the SOUL"

A Powerful Story of a Woman's Shattered Soul, Healed by the Balm of Love and Devotion.

This Vitagraph Five Part Blue Ribbon Feature presents beautiful Alice Joyce, a never failing box-office star, in a big, appealing heart-drama with the dominant note of mother-love—the theme that never has failed and never will fail to touch a responsive chord in the heart of every motion picture patron.

Written by SHANNON FIFE

Directed by TOM TERRISS

VITAGRAPH

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

HARRY RAVER
ANNOUNCES
THE FAMOUS JEKYLL-HYDE OF SILENT DRAMA
EDMUND BREESE
IN HIS OWN HIGH TENSION MYSTERY-TALE

THE MASTER CROOK

WITH AMERICA'S MAGNETIC STAR
ALMA HANLON
AND A SUPERLATIVE SUPPORTING COMPANY

A PRODUCTION TEEMING WITH ROMANCE, ADVENTURE, THRILLS, SURPRISES, HEART-THROBS AND A SUCCESSION OF STARTLING CLIMAXES IN A STORY THAT MOVES WITH LIGHTNING-LIKE RAPIDITY

BUYERS, GET IN LINE! IT'S HARVEST TIME!

ADDRESS IN THE FIRST INSTANCE HARRY RAVER 1402 BROADWAY NEW YORK

SELECT SP PICTURES

A stage hit last season—
a screen sensation this!

Eugene Walter's wonderful play

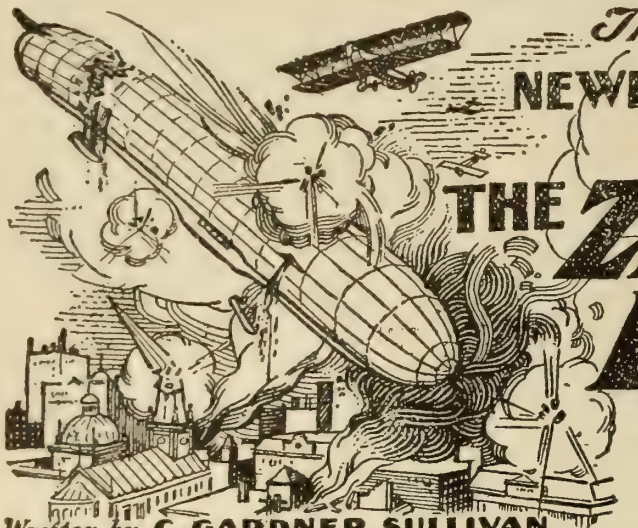
"THE KNIFE"

n which Select Pictures presents

ALICE BRADY

directed by Robert G. Vignola
scenario by Charles Maigne

The picture, "The Knife," is one of the most remarkable dramas ever shown through the medium of the screen—its action swift, straight, direct—like the stab of a blade through the dark. "The Knife" is a photoplay triumph!



Distributed by
SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

新戲院

請看好畫

Thos. H. Ince's
NEWEST and GREATEST SPECTACLE
THE ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID

Written by C. GARDNER SULLIVAN
Directed and Photographed by IRVIN V. WILLAT

本戲院准于今日及明日兩天(即一月四號五號)演空前未有之特別電畫名爲瀛船之末路蓋瀛船者德軍向恃之爲軍用品之要物不料邇來所製擊瀛船之炮敏捷非常遂使瀛船成爲無用之物此畫演出瀛船所建之功及其末路之情形能令閱者觀之如在戰場此畫之外尚有好畫兩齣合幷施演諸君盍來觀乎

新戲院主人披露

Verdi Theatre, San Francisco

BIG SPECIAL PICTURES LIKE "THE ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID," "THOSE WHO PAY" AND "THE BELGIAN," DO A TREMENDOUS BUSINESS IN EVERY NEIGHBORHOOD. IN BRIDGEPORT, CONN., (POP. 102,054) NINE THEATRES BOOKED "THE ZEPPELIN'S LAST RAID"—AN ABSOLUTELY UNPRECEDENTED DEMAND FOR A FEATURE—PROOF POSITIVE OF EXTRAORDINARY BOX OFFICE VALUE.

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CORPORATION

FRANK G. HALL, President

REPRESENTATIVES IN THE FOLLOWING EXCHANGES:

HOFFMAN-FOURSQUARE:
NEW YORK—729 Seventh Ave.
BUFFALO—47 W. Swan St.
CHICAGO—207 S. Wabash Ave.
DETROIT—204 Jos. Mack Bldg.
DENVER—1736 Welton St.
SEATTLE—2014 Third Ave.
PITTSBURGH—127 Fourth Ave.
LOS ANGELES—814 W. 8th St.

PHILADELPHIA—1325 Vine St.
CINCINNATI—301 Strand Theatre Bldg.
ST. LOUIS—301 Empress Theatre Bldg.
CLEVELAND—310 Sloan Bldg.
WASHINGTON—8 E St., N. W.
KANSAS CITY—1120 Walnut St.
SAN FRANCISCO—191 Golden Gate Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS—206 Film Exchange Bldg

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.:
ATLANTA—114 Walton St.
DALLAS—1900 Commerce St.
GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.:
NEW ENGLAND—20 Winchester St., Boston, Mass.
FRANK GERSTEN, Inc.:
NEW JERSEY—220 W. 42d St., New York City
SUPER FEATURE FILM CO.:
CANADA—59-61 Victoria St., Toronto, Ont.

FOREIGN RIGHTS: ROBERTSON-COLE CO., (23RD FLOOR, TIMES BLDG.,) NEW YORK CITY

Goldwyn Pictures

Goldwyn Announces The Turning Of The Tide

INCREASED business for Goldwyn Pictures from the great and unconquerable WEST—a sure sign of returning prosperity for the nation's exhibitors.

Increased businesss from the prosperous Ten Billion Dollar SOUTH; richer and wealthier than ever before in its history.

Increased business and bigger patronage from the recently-zero NORTH, just thawing out under the first sunshine after the worst winter ever recorded.

Bigger business than ever from all-powerful EAST—the financial heart of America with steadily mounting war profits coursing through its veins.

Goldwyn business is feeling and benefitting by these wonderfully changing conditions and the reason we are benefitting is that our productions throughout a desperate winter have kept thousands of our exhibitors "ahead of the game" in revenues; ahead of their competition in patronage; ahead of their rivals in quality product.

We definitely predict the most prosperous Spring and Summer exhibitors have had in several years and we can further insure this prosperity with Goldwyn productions made according to the most skilful box-office pattern.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

TWO TREMENDOUS GOLDWYN SUCCESSES

For February – March

POCKET-BOOK PICTURES—pictures with strength "on the door" of theatres; pictures with action, plot and humanity in them; but above everything pictures with profit in them. If they have Quality and Art in them, so much the better, but the profit-making essentials must come first.

These are the demands of every exhibitor in America today and Goldwyn, following up its string of profit-making pictures, is continuing to meet the exhibitor-demand with a consecutive series of remarkable productions which will cover the entire Spring and Summer. We are proud to submit for the box-office verdict:

MAE MARSH
IN
THE BELOVED TRAITOR
BY FRANK L. PACKARD

An emotional, melodramatic love story of action and romance—revealing the great dramatic power of one of the screen's biggest favorites. Released February 24.

MABEL NORMAND
IN
THE FLOOR BELOW
BY ELAINE STERNE

A bigger, faster and more thrilling romantic comedy-drama than her successful "Dodging A Million," which broke house-capacity records. Directed by Clarence Badger. Released March 10.

Consult the box-office charts of the trade press about every recent Goldwyn production and find these reports by exhibitors who played them: "Record for my house." "Big business at advanced prices." "Extra big business." "Weather awful—business great." "Drew tremendous business." "Turned hundreds away." "Two days to capacity." "22° below—S. R. O." All Goldwyn Pictures are drawing big business throughout America.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH President EDGAR SELWYN Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Goldwyn Pictures

A "THRILLER" AND A BIG "SENSATION"

For March — April

THINK what a sensation a melodramatic Madge Kennedy will be—the Madge Kennedy of the smile and the wonderful comedy eyes added to a new and still more remarkable Madge Kennedy in a rushing, mysterious, amazing drama that sets audiences aquiver. This is the big surprise picture we have made to keep your Spring business booming.

And to all of you who broke every house record with Mary Garden in "Thais"—think of the profits and the box-office prosperity that will be yours with another Mary Garden picture—more sensational, more daring than "Thais." Goldwyn is pleased to announce:

MADGE KENNEDY IN THE DANGER GAME

BY ROY SOMERVILLE

More than a "Feminine Raffles;" If you were not "in on the secret" you would call her "the most beautiful burglar in the world." Released March 24.

MARY GARDEN IN THE SPLENDID SINNER

BY KATE JORDAN

An amazing drama of a magnificent woman who sacrificed her honor but won redemption and became one of the world's martyrs. Directed by Edwin Carewe. Released April 7.

Already the world is demanding peace. When it comes America faces the greatest ten years of prosperity in its history. Every class will have an abundance of money. Labor will be better paid than ever before. Goldwyn is expending every ounce of its energy and effort to make for the nation's exhibitors productions that will be insurance policies against the possibilities of poor business.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH President EDGAR SELWYN Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

THIS BEAUTIFUL AMERICAN GIRL FOLLOWED HER HERO-HUSBAND TO AMERICA'S BATTLE LINE

Exhibitors Throughout North America Are Breaking All Existing House Capacity and Box-office Records with

Ira. M. Lowry's Tremendous Patriotic War Drama

For the FREEDOM of the WORLD

by Capt. Edwin Bower Hesser

A gigantic, spine-thrilling proof of the daring and bravery of the Nation's sons at war.

An epic of the loyalty and devotion of the Nation's wives and daughters.

A great, vivid and unparalleled production that makes every onlooker thrill with pride and love of country.

Featuring E. K. Lincoln, beautiful Barbara Castleton and Romaine Fielding.

Every exhibitor playing "For the Freedom of the World" has made a profit. 75% who have played it have booked "repeat dates."

Wire or write at once to your nearest Goldwyn branch office for prices and open dates.

Goldwyn
Distributing Corporation
16 East 42d Street New York City

B.A.ROLFE presents

The Incomparable

EDITH STOREY

IN

REVENGE

Adapted from Edward Moffats popular novel "Hearts Steadfast" and directed in 5 supreme acts by Tod Browning.

AN ALL STAR SERIES PRODUCTION of POWER and CHARM

RELEASED BY

METRO

FEBRUARY 25th

Trade-papers and News-papers agree

Exhibitors Trade Review

A PHOTOPLAY that can run into the seven part class without ever once losing its interest, without failing through every reel to bring regular tears to the eyes of the audience, deserves to go down in screen history as a rara avis. Yet this is what has been accomplished in the case of "Revelation." Words can hardly describe the wonderful acting of Nazimova, her illimitable art, her sinuous grace, the marvel of her changeable moods. From the first she wins her audience, when in the French cabaret, a half naked dancer, the curves of her delicate body move the spectators in the wine tavern to a mad outbreak of enthusiasm.

Then later the love episode—the woman who found in the American artist the ideal of her sadly tarnished life, and finally awakening to the Magdalene horror of sin in its bald, brazen aspects, conquers the passions of the flesh and yields all else in a sublime devotion to The Christ, the image of The Virgin and hope for Divine forgiveness.

This is but a poor description of a play which deserves far more space than it can be given at present. One can only dwell upon a few instances of such telling power that they must be outlined, if only in brief. As a Parisian grisette, light of love, living but for the moment, despising the future, revelling in a glamorous atmosphere of wine, song and rose leafs cast under her white, twinkling feet, Joline, as portrayed by Nazimova, captures all hearts.

And right here is seen the insight of the true artiste. The ordinary actress, staged in such circumstances would inevitably spoil the climax by overdoing the part. Not so Nazimova! When the model of whom she is jealous appears, the artist's sweetheart approaches her with all due humbleness. Her wonderful eyes seem to express nothing but sympathy, up to the instant when they flame into a hell fury of rage, and she hurls herself upon the other woman like an avenging demon. After which, the revulsion of feeling, the passionate desire to atone, followed by the gift to her rival of her rings, and declaration of guilt to her lover.

A finer cast could not have been collected and George Baker has directed the play with such skill and careful attention to detail as to establish his right to be numbered with the most admirable craftsman of the silent drama.

The war views, depicting the "going over the top," and search among the wounded by the Red Cross contingent, are wonderful even in these days of numerous battle films

The lighting is superb and considered as a whole, "Revelation" offers to exhibitors one of the finest drawing cards from a box office standpoint that the screen has known in many a long day.

G. T. P.

Dramatic Mirror

"Nazimova possesses great drawing power, and in "Revelation" she has a role that should satisfy her many admirers."

N.Y. Tribune

"Right from the start, one of the most fascinating pictures"

N.Y. Sun

"Excellent"

N.Y. Globe

"Genius"

N.Y. World

"Uncommonly interesting"

N.Y. Journal of Commerce

NAZIMOVA PICTURE A REAL PHOTO PLAY

"REVELATION" AT LYRIC RANKS HIGH AMONG FILMS.

Metro Production Is One of the Best Ever Screened and the Work of the Star Is Superb—Settings Are Beautiful and Appropriate Photography Is Excellent and the Supporting Cast Adequate.

One of the most noted dramatic reviewers of New York came out of the Lyric Theatre late yesterday afternoon after the first presentation of the Metro picture, "Revelation," with Mme. Nazimova as the star, and said:

"I've been going to pictures for a long time, looking for what I consider a real photo play, and at last I've found one."

That is what "Revelation" is—a real photo play. It has a beautiful story, beautifully told and wonderfully well acted. Practically all the interest centers in the one character, Joline, played by Mme. Nazimova. There never has been, never can be any question as to the talent of this actress, and in the role of Joline, the vivid, picturesque little model of the Latin Quarter, who, through a miracle, finds her soul, Mme. Nazimova is suited as she seldom has been before. Her playing, whether as model, mistress, Madonna or nurse, is a triumph, one that she never has exceeded on the speaking stage.

"Revelation" is a truly great picture, one of the best ever screened.

N.Y. Morning Telegraph

Nazimova's work in "War Brides" showed her splendid adaptability as a screen artiste, but the part played more or less on one key only. In "Revelation" she runs the scale of emotions, and holds the sympathetic interest of the spectator throughout.

N.Y. Evening Mail

"Better than War Brides"

N.Y. Times

"Spectators showed their warm endorsement"

Evening Telegram

"Displayed heights of temperament never before equalled"

N.Y. Herald

"Established a new type of terrific temperament"

Opportunity

Do you know when opportunity knocks at your door? — Reports from all over the land show tremendous receipts at the box office through METRO's feature productions. They set a new high standard for cash return to the exhibitor and through them Metro proves its ability to make big successes. Metro wants you to share in the clean-up.

"LEST WE FORGET," with RITA JOLIVET, will make you big profits. It has exceptional advertising advantages, such as the sinking of the Lusitania, an international star and a tremendous spectacle. Just having finished its big run at the Lyric Theatre, New York at prices of 25¢-50¢ and $1.00

"The LEGION of DEATH, with EDITH STOREY, should be advertised as a tremendous drama of modern American and Russian high life, with women actually fighting in the trenches.

"The Slacker," with EMILY STEVENS, and "Draft 258," with MABEL TALIAFERRO, are already demonstrated box office successes of tremendous size. In order to reap the full benefit from these big features, advertise them well before you show them.

"BLUE JEANS," with VIOLA DANA, is one of the greatest attractions presented in motion pictures. It is an absolutely certain clean-up.

These features, together with the other big Metro productions which are about ready for release, make the motion picture business safe for the exhibitor.

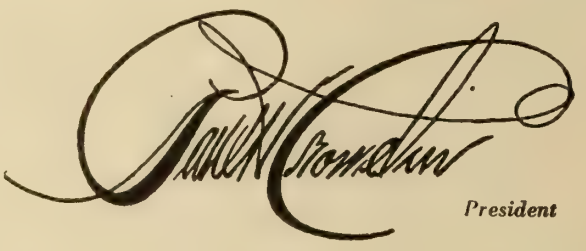
METRO

Coming soon

The sinful entertainment

PAYDAY

A 5 Act Feature Novelty starring the



DREWS

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

"A DESK AND A MAP OF THE WORLD"

(Little Talks With Foreign Buyers—No. 2)

By

President

INTER-OCEAN'S success in selecting American film for foreign buyers has tempted a number of people to go into "the exporting business." A DESK AND A MAP OF THE WORLD IS SUPPOSED TO BE GOOD ENOUGH TO CATER TO THE FOREIGN FILM BUYER'S WANTS. Oughtn't it be perfectly easy to be a successful "moving picture exporter,"—the whole world is buying film, so why not good naturedly accommodate the whole world? What the Inter-Ocean's competitor forgets is that Inter-Ocean has made of film-selection-for-foreign-buyers a highly specialized business that cannot be learned in a month or a year or by the installation of a shiny new desk; and that purchasers of American film for the foreign market are careful about their purchases to the point that they will ONLY deal with firms that know the FOREIGN market as completely as do the buyers themselves. It's a fact! It stands to reason that only a large exporting organization that is a 100 per cent FILM exporting organization, that devotes the brains of its entire well-trained force to the foreign film market, and the foreign film market only, CAN BE PERFECTLY EQUIPPED TO SELECT FILMS FOR THAT MARKET. The foreign buyer is accustomed to 100 per cent market knowledge at the place he buys his American film, and he knows that such knowledge can be only had by an organization that CONCENTRATES ALL ITS ENERGIES TO LEARN EXHIBITOR CONDITIONS IN ALL COUNTRIES. That organization is indisputably the—

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN PRES. & GEN'L. MGR. — 220 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields

READY FOR WORLD SALE—52 World Films (Brady-Made) a year; featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year; featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Gloam; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "To-Day," "The Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North"; the surefire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.

MARY MILES MINTER in "POWERS THAT PREY"

Produced by AMERICAN FILM COMPANY, INC.

Perfect Prints

The exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation handle only films in perfect condition.

All subjects reaching a certain age are taken off the market at a definite date.

All prints showing wear are immediately replaced.

There are no old prints in the Mutual's exchanges.

Ancient pictures circulated on a "give-away" or "next to nothing" basis are as bad for your business as a second hand suit of clothes.

Mutual prints are always clean, crisp and clear. Keep a clean screen, use enough light and you will find every Mutual picture a good picture.

MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION
220 SOUTH STATE STREET
CHICAGO

Coming—

February 25	"THE MIDNIGHT TRAIL"	WILLIAM RUSSELL
March 4	"POWERS THAT PREY"	MARY MILES MINTER
March 11	"ANN'S FINISH"	MARGARITA FISCHER
March 18	"THE GIRL AND THE JUDGE"	OLIVE TELL
March 25	"A BIT OF JADE"	MARY MILES MINTER
April 1	"PRIMITIVE WOMAN"	MARGARITA FISCHER
April 8	"THE RICHEST GIRL"	ANN MURDOCK

MUTUAL PAYS
THE WAR-TAX

COMPLETED

"MADAM WHO?" By Harold MacGrath
"WITHIN THE CUP"—By Monte M. Katterjohn
"BLINDFOLDED"—By Richard E. Schayer
"ROSE O' PARADISE" By Grace Miller White

So long as Producer and Distributor insist that all profit belongs to them, and let the Exhibitor whistle for his,
just so long will this business be headed for the toboggan.
It is high time for Producer and Distributor to realize that they must consider the Exhibitor not as an enemy, but as a Partner.

Wm. W. Hodkinson.

"Hodkinson Service"

PROGRESS — INTEGRITY — PERMANENCE
in the Motion Picture Industry

The First Four Paralta Plays

J. Warren Kerrigan in
"A Man's Man"

Henry B. Walthall in
"His Robe of Honor"

Bessie Barriscale in
"Madam Who?"

J. Warren Kerrigan in
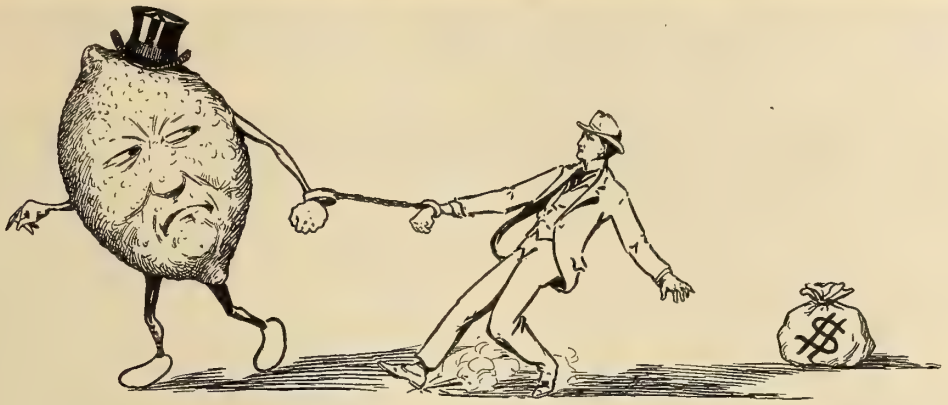
"The Turn of a Card"



"HODKINSON SERVICE"
at all General Film Exchanges

These and all other Paralta Plays are not to be obtained anywhere else.

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 Fifth Avenue, New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

Are You Handcuffed to a Lemon?

A poor greengrocer filled with envy thus addressed his neighbor, a motion picture exhibitor with a popular theatre playing a list of extravagant attractions:

"Judging from the crowds that go to see your show you will soon be able to retire from business."

"Knowing what my show costs me," replied the exhibitor grimly, "I soon will be compelled to."

MANY a picture showman performs the miracle of earning cake for the producer while earning not even bread for himself.

The showman who is today still in business is a good business man. The trouble is now that it takes all his business talent to overcome someone else's overhead expenses.

One body of exhibitors is on record as declaring that the rental price for some groups of pictures increased 100 to 300 per cent. in the last year, while the pictures did not increase at all in merit. There being a demonstrated limit to merit in pictures, how natural for the exhibitor to sigh for a limit in prices.

Imagine yourself an exhibitor who has committed himself to buying over-rated product, enduring every advance in price, upon the theory that he gets something exclusive—only to discover the net result to him is a thin existence, and that he has only fattened a profiteering monopoly.

Judge further of his emotions when he sees other exhibitors get from General Film Company pictures of equal merit at prices that are within reason.

And when he sees these exhibitors doing splendidly, making a normal profit, leaving him to carry the over-rated stuff they won't finance, then indeed does the thought strike him that he is neatly handcuffed to a Lemon!

Of what use is a film exchange unless it offers an exhibitor the means of making a living?

General Film Company is strictly a service organization for worth while product. By its system of reducing overhead costs of distribution, it insures with its service an adequate profit to the user of film.

General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York

General Film Company does not impose the 15-cent charge on any of its releases.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

THE THRILL SERIAL FOR PATRIOTIC AUDIENCES

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

with

JANE VANCE

and

William Sorelle

Exhibitors everywhere are demanding this big money maker.

Here are the reasons why:

Twelve One-Reel Chapters
The Serial Hit of 1918
Spy Plots Foiled
Action-crammed Episodes
A Daring and Beautiful Heroine
A Militant Leading Man
Romance! Color! Suspense!
A Great Story of the War at Home
Beautiful Photography
Most Wonderful Scenery
A Proved Box-Office Attraction
The Sensible Type of Serial
A Call to Patriotism

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City
Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

Another O. Henry triumph in pictures—another of those opportunities to start the fans beating a pathway to the door of the theatre showing something distinctive in pictures. An O. Henry day is prosperity insurance.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Thomas Bellamy and Ernest Butterworth, two of the clever boy comedians in Judge Brown stories.

"These two-reelers are very interesting. Don't miss booking them."—T. C. Lacey, Vaudelle Theatre, Muncie, Indiana.

Judge Willis Brown has demonstrated that clean and wholesome pictures can be both entertainment-plus and first aides for the box-office.

If your theatre isn't showing these two-reel subjects of undiluted essence of happiness and joy, your patrons are missing a rare treat. There is plenty of time to begin now.

Real, live comedy-dramas of real boy life—by a man who knows boys and who knows how to write photoplays with the human appeal, the demonstrated "Mark Twain of the Screen."

Produced by the Boy City Film Corporation

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

The Delight of Every Screen Audience

"Bud's Recruit"

"Chocolate of the Gang"

"The Lost Lie"

"Tad's Swimming Hole"

"Marrying Off Dad"

"The Preacher's Son"

Produced by the BOY CITY FILM Corporation

RUTH HAMPTON heroine in the Judge Brown Stories

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

NOW APPEARING IN HIS GREATEST COMEDY

"THE TRAMP"

New Essanay-Chaplin Print
Every Month

" A WOMAN "—" WORK "—" IN THE PARK "
—" BY THE SEA "—" A JITNEY ELOPE-MENT "—" THE CHAMPION "

ESSANAY COMEDIES

Will Keep Your Patrons
Roaring with Laughter

" THE LIE THAT FAILED "
" ALL STUCK UP "
" WILD ALGY OF PICCADILLY "
" CHECK YOUR HAT, SIR? "
" OUR LITTLE NELL "
" A TOUGH KNIGHT "

ONE EACH WEEK

presented by

GEORGE K. SPOOR

Distributed Exclusively by
General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

1333 Argyle Street, Chicago

Contract Now

William Fox presents Henry Lehrman's

Sunshine Comedies

Pretty Girls
Excruciating Comedians Emotional Animals

Son of a Gun
Damaged – No Goods
Hungry Lions in a Hospital
Are Married Policemen Safe
His Smashing Career
Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells
A Milk-Fed Vamp
Shadows of Her Pest

Fox Film Corporation

Fox Special Features

ONE A WEEK
52 A YEAR

WILLIAM FOX Presents

Gladys BROCKWELL in The DEVIL'S WHEEL

How a woman ruled the heart of the Paris Underworld.

By CHARLES KENYON – Staged by EDWARD LE SAINT

OTHER MARCH RELEASES

JEWEL CARMEN in THE GIRL WITH THE CHAMPAGNE EYES

PEGGY HYLAND in THE DEBT OF HONOR

VIRGINIA PEARSON in A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE

GEORGE WALSH in THE KID IS CLEVER

CONTRACT NOW

AT NEAREST FOX BRANCH

FOX FILM CORPORATION

Certified Feb. 24-18 William Fox

No. 1918 United States Feb. 24th 1918

National Prosperity Bank

Pay to the order of Every Fox Exhibitor

Excess profit in unlimited 00/100 Dollars

$unlimited Safe Deposit Vault Fox Film Corporation Standard Pictures

Here is a certified check for Fox Exhibitors who CONTRACT for STANDARD PICTURES

Two new ones-now released

WILLIAM FOX presents

WILLIAM FARNUM in Victor Hugo's Masterpiece- LES MISERABLES

Staged by Frank Lloyd

A $250.000 PICTURE MADE IN AMERICA

TURNED THOUSANDS AWAY AT LYRIC THEATRE-42nd ST. and B'WAY. N.Y.

WILLIAM FOX presents

JANE and KATHERINE LEE in AMERICAN BUDS

Staged by Kenean Buel

A PATRIOTIC ROMANTIC DRAMA WITH AN ALL-STAR CAST OF GROWN-UPS

FOX FILM CORPORATION

Here's Mo

YOU read in a recent Triangle advertisement of what Mr. H. R. Mason at Goldsboro, N. C., had to say about Triangle service.

Here's another letter which is also well worth reading. It was written by Mr. Herman J. Brown, President of the Brown's Amusement Enterprises at Boise, Idaho, the Company operating the Strand, Majestic, Isis and Comic Theatres at Boise, and the Majestic Theatre at Nampa, Idaho.

"Thinking it may interest you to know of our experience with Triangle Film, we are taking the liberty of writing you this.

When your service lost certain of its most prominent stars, we were of the opinion that its value had been hurt, and cancelled. We then opened our Majestic Theatre to a straight open market booking policy and secured a succession of high priced stars. With the inauguration of the 15-cent per reel "graft," we placed your service in our Isis Theatre, one change a week, throwing out the product of one of the predatory grafting producers. We immediately realized after seeing your new film what a foolish mistake we had made in cancelling your service and hastened to book a second change, thus eliminating the product of another one of the skin-'em-alive boys. As an experiment we then lifted your "One Shot Ross" into our Majestic Theatre and were astonished to find that it out-drew the high priced should-be, but is-not lady star, in one of our super-de-luxe feature company's pictures which had been in that house on the same day the preceding week. We pleased our public and made good money on "One Shot Ross"—we lost heavily on the lady star that had succeeded in sticking one of the producing companies with an en-

TRIANGLE DISTRIBU

1457 BROADWAY

S. A. LYNCH, President R. W. LYNCH, Vice-Presid

TRIA

re Proof

ormous salary, but is unable to get the public into the theatre. With this experience in mind we at once booked your service, two changes a week, into our handsome new thousand-seat theatre in Nampa, Idaho, the Majestic, which we claim is the finest theatre in a city of 10,000 or less in the United States. We opened this theatre with a succession of states rights pictures. We played three of them at high prices—then came the first Triangle "Fighting Back," which outdrew the three big state right pictures and succeeded in getting what they failed to get, viz., hearty applause. Exhibitors near here tell us that some of the new Triangles have broken their house record for business. We are now moving Triangle service from the Isis Theatre to the Majestic Theatre in this city, the largest and best equipped motion picture theatre in the state of Idaho, and they are going to stay there indefinitely.

With best wishes for your continued success in delivering the exhibitor fine pictures at fair prices with clean methods and an absence of bludgeoning tactics of other exchanges, we are,

Yours very truly,
BROWN'S AMUSEMENT ENTERPRISES, Ltd.,
Herman J. Brown (signed).

We want to repeat our recent statement. If the pictures you are running are not making money for you, if the service you are receiving is not prompt and satisfactory, if the business methods of the companies furnishing you pictures are not perfectly fair and square, let us suggest that you communicate with the nearest Triangle exchange and find out what Triangle has to offer you.

TING CORPORATION

NEW YORK

FRED KENT, Treasurer Y. F. FREEMAN, General Manager

NGLE

CUTTING YOUR FILM

Announcement and Explanation of Un

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC., has been chartered under the laws of New York to enable several thousand exhibitors in every section of the United States to own collectively and to distribute to its members pictures on which all members can and will make a profit. Through this organization which exhibitors themselves own and operate from top to bottom, we are bringing together our membership which will give a film 4,000, 6,000 or 9,000 days of booking time and wipe out instantly the cost of selling, overhead distribution and print waste, which are the chief reasons for the high rentals you are now paying.

Every manufacturer or producer of pictures wishes to do this, wishes to save this money, wishes to free himself of the burden of distribution and salesmanship expense in a highly competitive industry. But every producer who has tried to do this has failed. Therefore, this revolutionary change, which every producer will welcome, has had to come from THE EXHIBITORS OF MOTION PICTURES.

That is why United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., has been organized. We, as exhibitors, do not want to pay the tremendous cost of maintaining thirteen selling organizations with a first-run product trying to sell only three available first-run prospects in Salt Lake City, or seventeen exchanges spending a fortune weekly in seeking the business of five first-run houses in Minneapolis. We are now doing this. None of the various producing firms are any more anxious to pay these costs than we are—but they do not know how to escape them. But WE do know, and this means that this organization of exhibitors, because of its plans and purposes, is a friend and money-saving ally of all producers and one to be encouraged by every friend of the industry.

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., is the exhibitors' own solution of the costly evil that every factor in the industry wishes to destroy. What we will do is this: We will agree on a star whose popularity and money-making powers are unquestioned. We will make certain in advance that the star and productions are big enough for the foremost theatres, and therefore for all other theatres. We will then say to the producer having this star: "Make us six or eight pictures annually with this star and we will pay you for each negative a price that will give you a liberal and yet fair profit." We will make our own prints, our own accessories and take care of the distribution of this and all of our other pictures to our members here and in foreign lands. We are free of salesmanship costs because we have an assured playing time of several thousand days guaranteed in advance by our members. There is today no profit in distribution. The United plan relieves producers of the unprofitable exchange investment and worry and at the same time gives them cash on completion of pictures and wider distribution of their pictures than they now receive.

This collective buying is the principle of co-operation which dynamites selling expense out of existence. It accomplishes for the film exhibitor what the American Druggists Syndicate has achieved for its 22,000 druggist members. It has cut the purchase cost of drugs practically in half. It unites thousands of small buyers into one huge purchasing unit.

The druggists own 90% of all the stock of this company, so they are their own bankers and reap the bankers' dividends—the druggist members control the company, so all companies selling these druggists must give them fair treatment and fair prices. These druggist members are not only the bankers and customers of their own company, but they hire ited Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

RENTALS IN HALF

experts to run the A. D. S. for the equal benefit of all members. No drug manufacturer owns stock in the A. D. S., so all manufacturers are treated with equal fairness. When the A. D. S. members advertise and popularize a brand they derive the benefit. Starting with $400 eleven years ago, the A. D. S. today has received from its druggist members $5,000,000 with which to carry on its business. In return for this money the company issued common stock, and so large have been the dividends that the stock has long sold above par and the A. D. S. has assets enough to buy back its $5,000,000 worth of stock issued and still have remaining assets worth probably $10,000,000, which is about the total value of the quick assets of all the film companies combined. Everyone has been benefited by the A. D. S. No one has been hurt by it. The A. D. S. has profited its members by the elimination of the waste of competition by co-operation. Ask the A. D. S. druggist in your community.

Applying the A. D. S. method of organization to the exhibitors' problem, United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., will instantly cut your rental price for a picture thirty to fifty per cent below the price you are now paying and give you many of the very same pictures you are now playing.

Behind this organization, devoting their energies and capacities to creating this great new exhibitors' purchasing and distributing alliance, are the men whose names are undersigned, and who have heeded the urgent appeals of several thousand exhibitors to create this nation-wide organization and wipe out the ruinous waste incurred through separate buying.

The founders of this company have worked out a plan which many of the largest and best known exhibitors, practically all big producers in New York and many stars have pronounced to be unique and of great value to all branches of the industry. Within the next few weeks a United salesman—a high-class man whom you respect—will visit your community. He will thoroughly explain the United purposes, every detail of the plan, the method of incorporation and everything else. This is the exhibitors' company, and you are entitled to know. There are no insiders. There is nothing to conceal. The more you know about the United plan the stronger you will be for it.

In our next announcement we will tell you more about this revolutionary cost-saving plan, which will re-establish sanity and profit for all elements in the motion picture industry.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, Inc.

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

LEE A. OCHS, President
C. R. SEELYE, Vice-President
LOUIS F. BLUMENTHAL, Treasurer
CHAS. M. ROSENTHAL, Secretary
MILTON M. GOLDSMITH, General Counsel

Reproduction of 24-sheet Poster, by the Greenwich Litho. Co.

A "First National" Attraction
Rothapfel Presentation
An Edgar Lewis Production

"The Sign Invisible"

—a mighty drama of the Northland, featuring Mitchell Lewis—the giant of "The Barrier"—in a fighting, loving, daring role —with Victor Sutherland, Mabel Juliene Scott, Hedda Nova and a big cast of accomplished players.

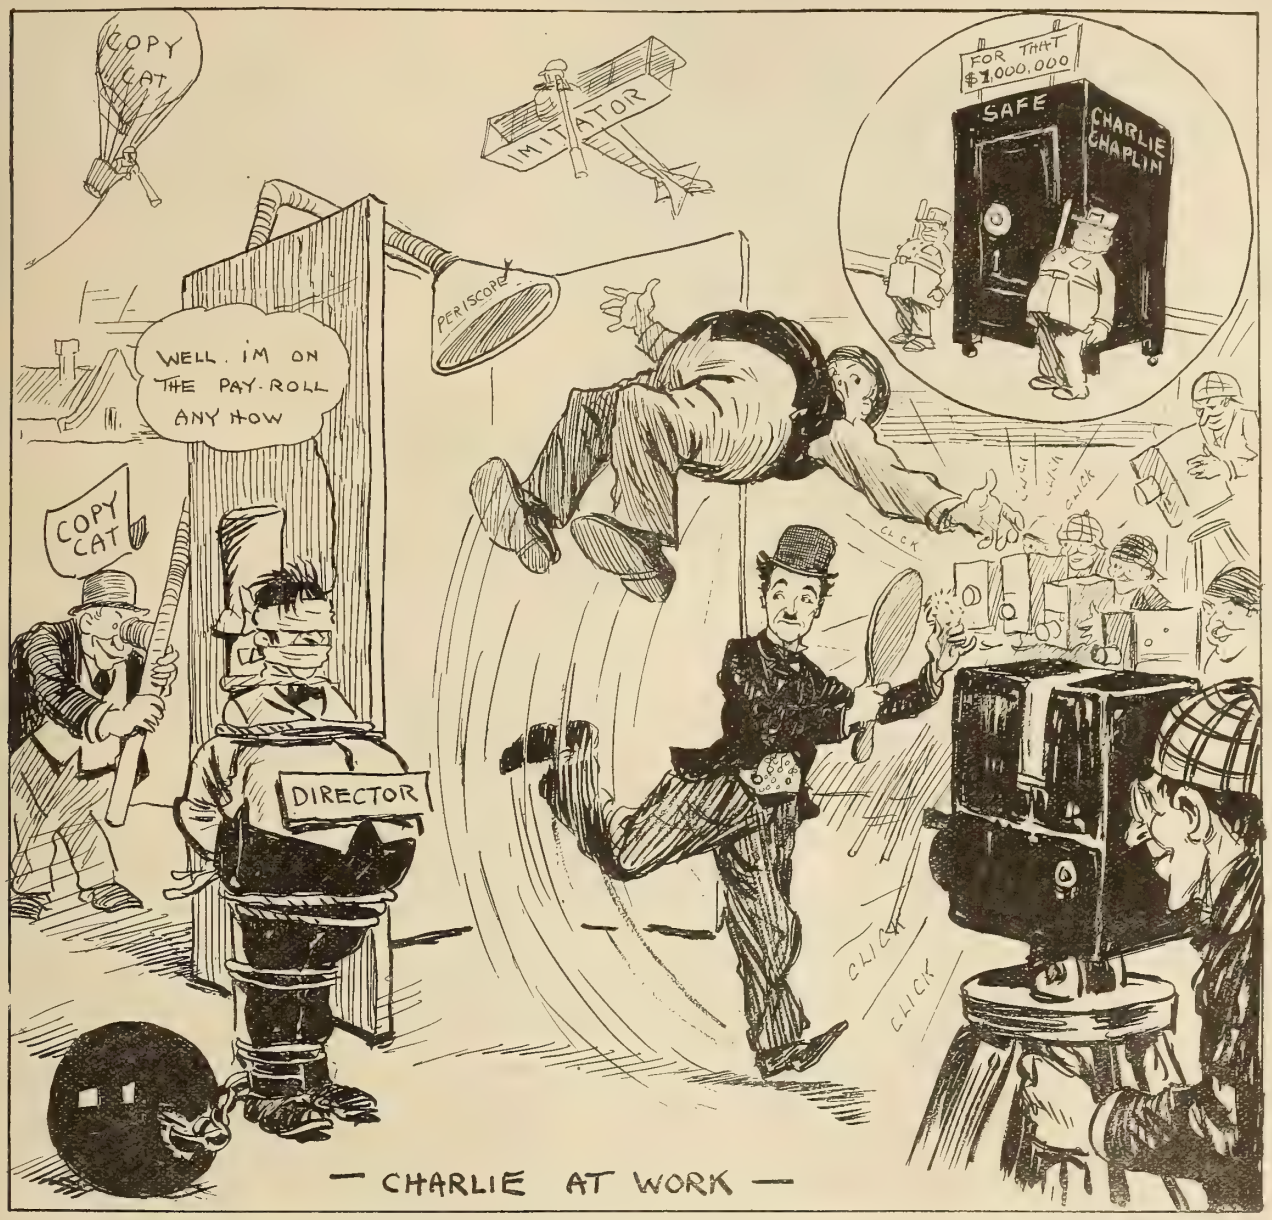
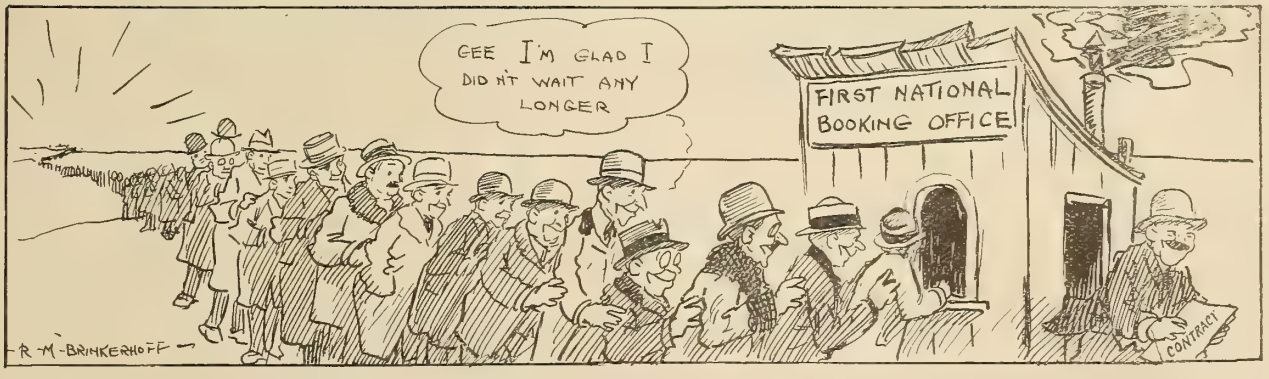
—in a story of how Providence scourged a rebellious soul by leading him out to where Nature's millstones of sky and mountain, and men and women free of pretence changed him from a thing to a man.

At the Rivoli, February 25



FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT



"We Pay the Tax"

This exceptionally beautiful and very human photoplay presented with Rothapfel's fine appreciation of musical and atmospheric enhancement demonstrated the perfection attainable by screen entertainment when all conditions were ideal.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Chaplin's First Million Dollar Comedy nearly finished!

Where do YOU stand in the waiting line?

Charles Chaplin

"Signature Protected"

Million Dollar Comedies

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

A "First National" Attraction now being eagerly booked in every land on earth.

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

AMBASSADOR

JAMES W. GERARD'S

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY

DIRECTED BY WILLIAM NIGH

"It is because our people should be INFORMED that I have consented that this photoplay be made. There are too many thinkers, writers and speakers in the United States. From now on we need the workers, the doers and the realists who alone can win this contest for democracy and permanent peace."

—JAMES W. GERARD.

For State Rights Apply to
My Four Years in Germany Inc.
601 CANDLER BLDG N.Y.

PATHÉ

MYSTERY!

Always in a Pearl White serial has there been an imagination-captivating mystery.
In "The Exploits of Elaine" it was the identity of "the Clutching Hand".
In "The Iron Claw" it was "who is the masked stranger?"
In "Pearl of the Army" it was the master spy;
In "The Fatal Ring" it centered around the ring itself.
In

THE HOUSE OF HATE

it is the "Hooded Terror," who is the most mysterious, the most dangerous and the most attention gripping of them all!

After seeing one or two episodes your patrons will be begging you to tell them who the man really is!
And from start to finish

PEARL WHITE

screendom's greatest attraction, and

ANTONIO MORENO

are the centre of a perfect whirlpool of mystery, suspense, action and thrilling deeds!

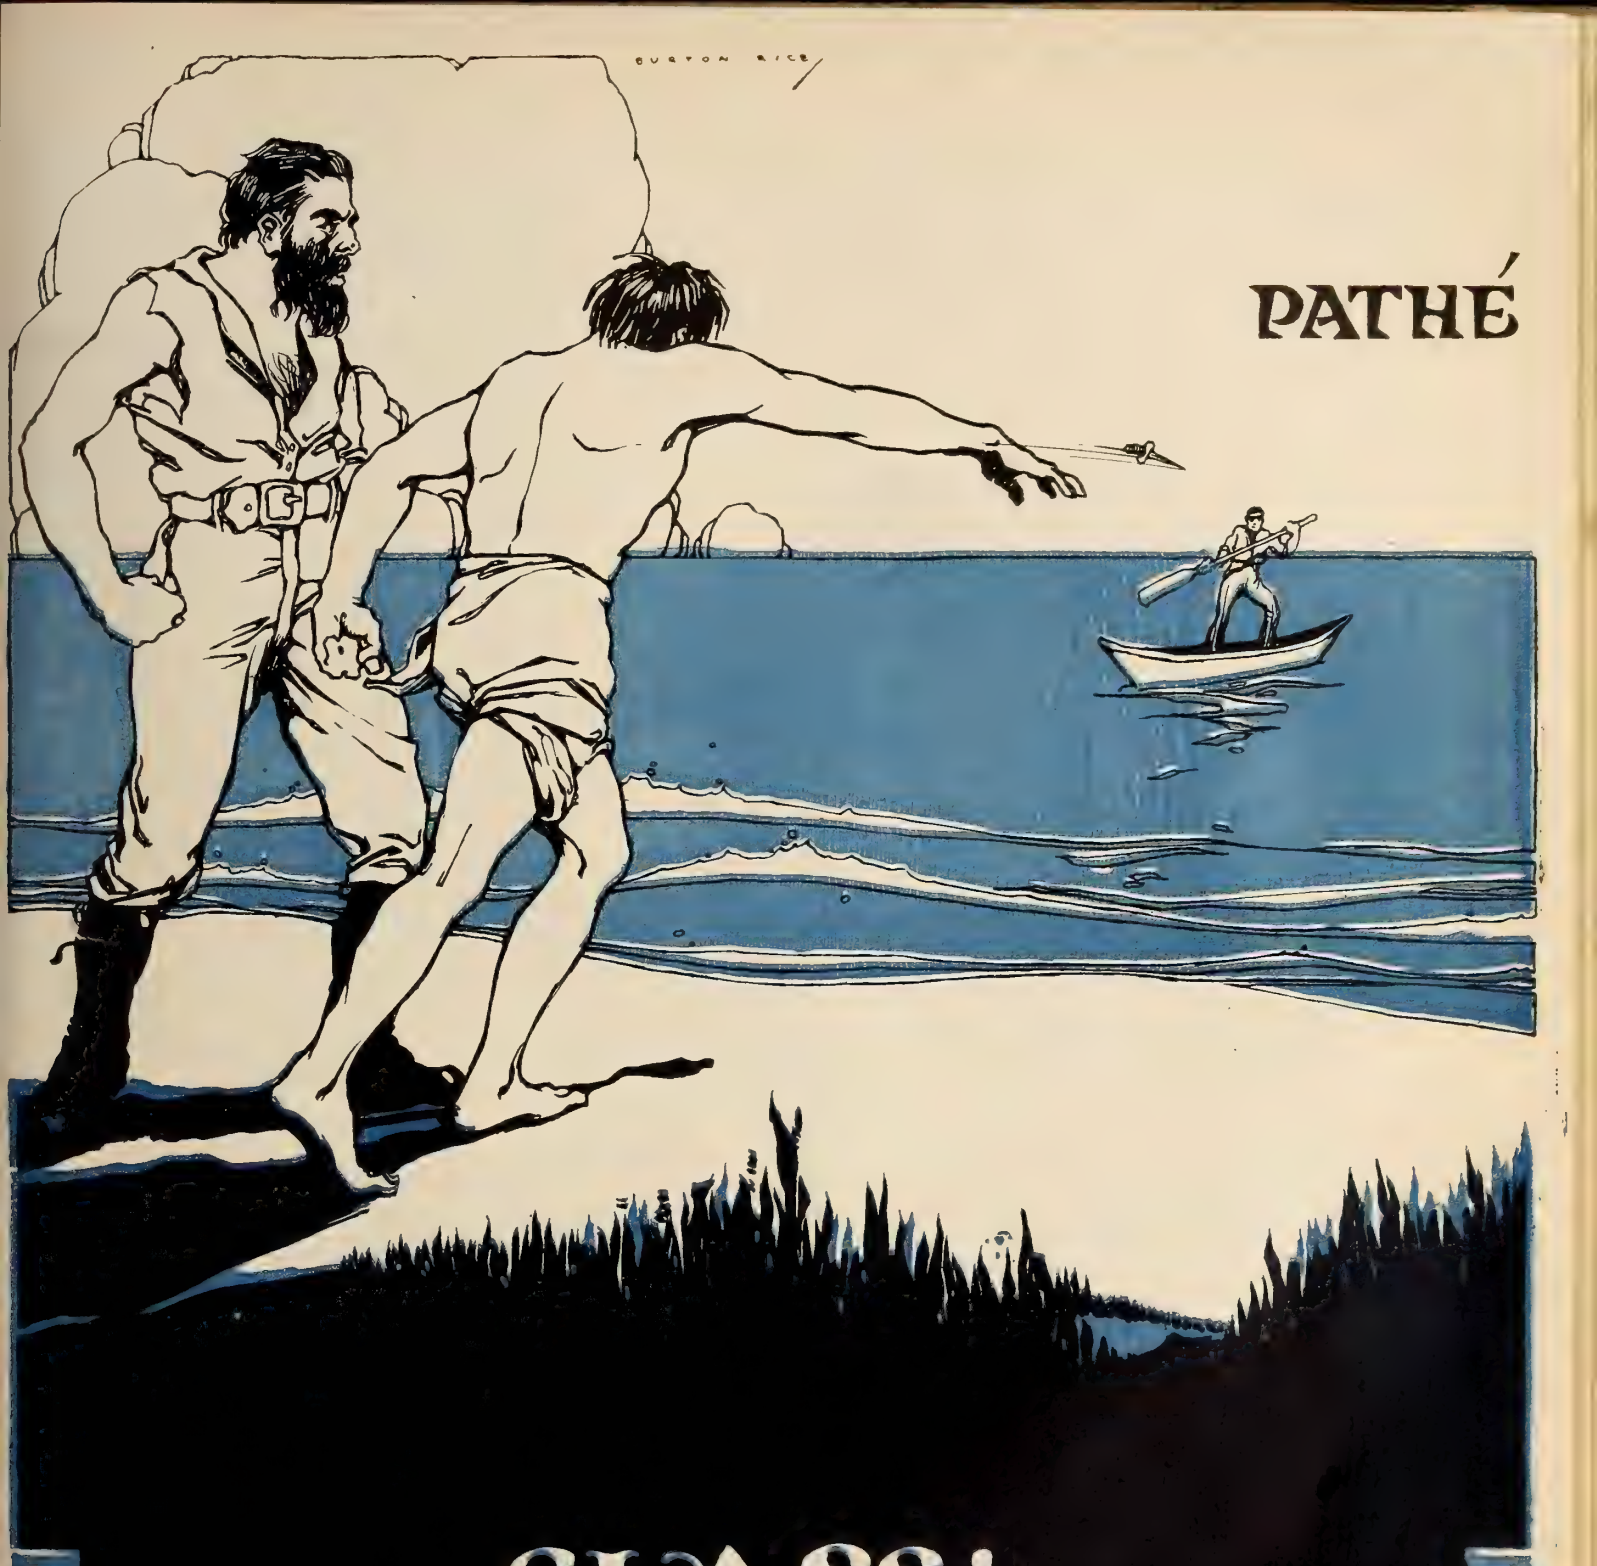
RELEASED MARCH 10th !!! BOOKING NOW !!!

PATHÉ

THRILLS !

Pearl White is celebrated the world over for daring deeds. As "Pathe's fearless, peerless Pearl" she is loved by the fans everywhere. The public expects thrills in a Pearl White serial.

THE HOUSE OF HATE



is full of them!

"The Hooded Terror" is ever seeking to put her out of the way. She saves herself only by her daring, her cleverness and strength. So in every episode there are constant struggle, thrilling conflict and breathless hazards.

As your audiences follow it week after week they will say: "This is the BEST serial ever starred in—the best that any company ever made!"

PEARL WHITE

PATHÉ

CLASS!

Never have there been put into a serial such costly sets, such splendid effects, such careful and expert direction as have been given

THE HOUSE OF HATE

It has everything that distinguishes the highest quality features. It has "class."

As a box-office attraction it is better than any feature for it insures fifteen week's big business. Each two reel episode will be the real feature of your program.

IT HAS THE STARS. IT HAS THE STORY. IT HAS THE DIRECTION AND IT HAS THE CAST.

IT IS NOW BOOKING

BURTON RICE

PATHÉ

STORY!

A successful serial must have a strong story—a fifteen week's long story, that at no point lets down in interest but always leaves audiences eager for more.

THE HOUSE OF HATE

has such a story.

It was written by the creator of the famous "Craig Kennedy" stories in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, Arthur B. Reeve, together with Chas. A. Logue. It has everything you have learned to expect in a Pearl White serial—and more. It was scenarioized by B. Millhauser, who wrote the scenarios for "The Fatal Ring." The direction is faultless. George B. Seitz wrote the scenarios for Miss White's earlier successes and directed "The Fatal Ring." He has given "The House of Hate" super-feature production. Astra produced it.

ASK THE MANAGER OF THE PATHÉ EXCHANGE SERVING YOU TO SHOW YOU OUR SPECIAL INFORMATION REEL. IT WILL DEMONSTRATE TO YOU WHY YOU OWE IT TO YOURSELF TO BOOK "The HOUSE of HATE"

Pathé

PATHÉ
presents
The NAULAHKA
with
ANTONIO MORENO
and ▫▫▫ DORALDINA ▫▫▫

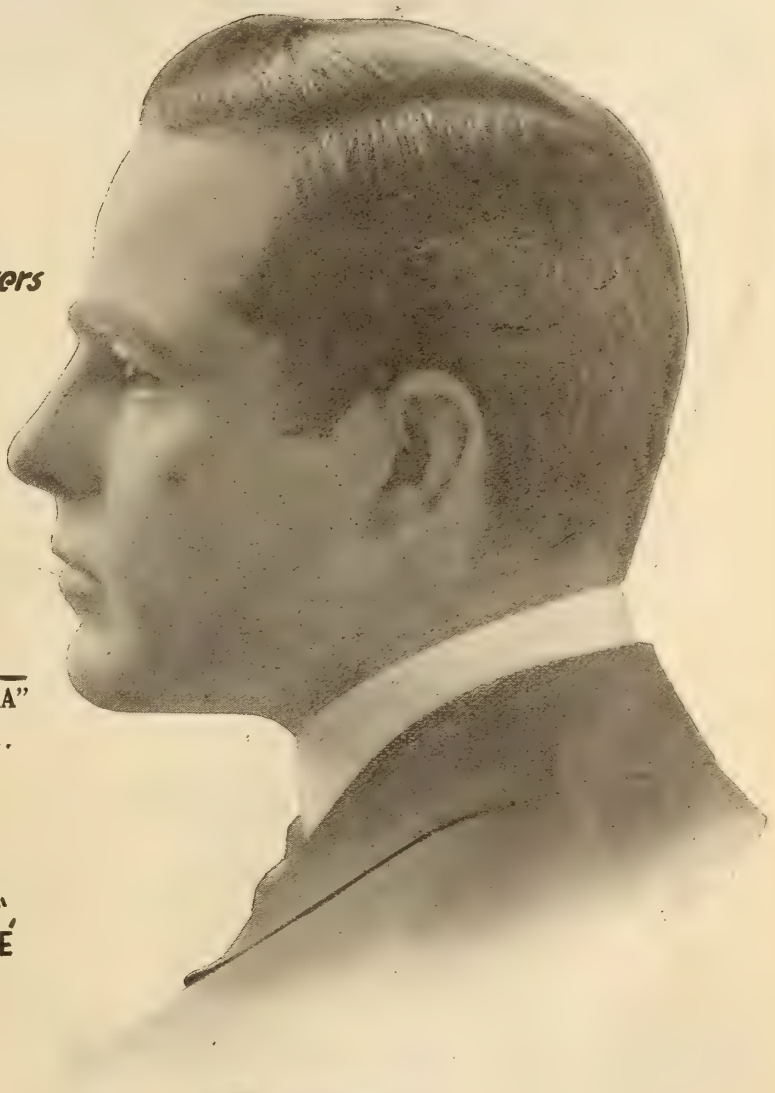
the biggest picture that has ever been put upon a program! .....

"A really great picture," say the reviewers



"'The Naulahka' is one reel longer than the average feature and proportionately greater. . . . Greater in story . . . greater in production which is rich and realistic . . . greater in cast. . . . Fairly oozes atmosphere. A great picture. . . . Will show as 'big' and 'extra' in the box office reports."—Motion Picture News.

"In every way 'The Naulahka' is of such even, high merit that it is impossible to determine one feature as better than another. . . . A production of the highest, artistic type. . . . An attraction of extraordinary value to the exhibitor."—Dramatic Mirror.

"INNOCENT," "LOADED DICE" and "The NAULAHKA" all great pictures and all on the — .....

PATHÉ PLAYS

program. They prove that the promise made by PATHÉ of "Big Stars in Big Plays", is being lived up to. They prove the PATHÉ PLAYS to be the "Best Buy" on the market for they are offered "AT A REASONABLE PRICE — A PRICE AT WHICH YOU CAN MAKE MONEY." .....

ANTONIO MORENO

The NAULAHKA

Adapted from the famous book by
RUDYARD KIPLING
.... and WOLCOT BALESTIER .....

Directed by GEORGE FITZMAURICE
Produced by ..... ASTRA .....

Pathé

TOTO

in two reel comedies, one every month, gives to your audiences real fun unsurpassed at any price. ..... The children love him; ..... The grown folks-well, just listen to the laughter when you show him. .....

RUTH ROLAND

and FRANK MAYO of "WHO PAYS?" and "The RED CIRCLE" fame in .....

"The PRICE of FOLLY"

EIGHT CHAPTERS-TWO REELS EACH

"Little features with a big star" Your program needs them. .....

Pathé

Announcing

BABY MARIE OSBORNE

in the five part GOLD ROOSTER PLAY

"DADDY'S GIRL"

..... Produced by DIANDO .....

"BABY MARIE OSBORNE with me out-draws two stars supposed to be the biggest. People tell me they want more of her pictures. They would ... come every night to see her!" .....

C.H.SCHOFIELD, DUNDEE
THEATRE, Omaha, Neb.

...RELEASED MAR. 3rd .....

It is the oldest, best known and the widest distributed of all news films; Its name is used everywhere to indicate film quality: .....
It has the best news pictures first; ....
It is the best of box office attractions;
It is.....

The HEARST-PATHÉ NEWS

The only one reel feature .....

The more YOU read these advertisements the more useful to YOU we can make the "NEWS."

WORLD-PICTURES
present
ALICE BRADY
in
"The Spurs of Sybil"
Story by Louise Winter
Directed by Travers Vale
Star of
"BOUGHT AND PAID FOR"
"MATERNITY"
"THE DANCER'S PERIL"
"BETSY ROSS"
"THE DIVORCE GAME"
"A SELF MADE WIDOW"
"A WOMAN ALONE"
"THE HUNGRY HEART"
"TANGLED FATES"
"MISS PETTICOATS"
"THE GILDED CAGE"
"LA VIE DE BOHEME"
"DARKEST RUSSIA"
"THE MAID OF BELGIUM"

Announcement Extraordinary

"The SERVANT in the HOUSE"—

is now being Filmed at Culver City, Cal., by Triangle Film Corp.

Every possible effort of Artistry is being expended to make this Production a PHOTO PLAY MASTERPIECE

More details soon

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

AN APPRECIATION OF FACTS
PICTURIZED IN
"THE EAGLE'S EYE"
BY
WILLIAM J. FLYNN
(RECENTLY RETIRED)
CHIEF of U.S. SECRET SERVICE

THE BILTMORE
NEW YORK
JOHN McE. BOWMAN
PRESIDENT

January 18th, 1918

Mr. W. J. Flynn,
New York City.

My dear Chief:

I have just returned from viewing your wonderful film, The Eagle Eye, and I am so much impressed with its power to do good that I must write you this line to congratulate you.

The episode connected with the Hotel Ansonia was particularly interesting to me on account of the hours of mental anguish we all went through before the navigating officers of our fleet were out of danger, and in viewing the picture I realize more than ever the strain you were under during that dreadful twenty-four hours.

Most pictures of this kind border on the melodramatic, but this has not one ounce in it but is really dramatic from beginning to end; and if at the end of the third episode, when you ask people in the audience if they are not going to help destroy German autocracy, I am much mistaken if the appeal does not bring the spectators from their seats into a loud declaration of loyalty for this great country in which they are living. I, personally, with the cold sober thought in my mind that it was only a picture, could hardly restrain from rising up and giving the answer the appeal called for.

It is extraordinarily well done, has the touch of authenticity behind it and will convey a wonderful message to the doubting ones, some of whom still believe we should be neutral.

Wishing you every success in the wonderful story you are putting before the public, believe me

Yours very sincerely,

John McE. Bowman.

A tremendous 20 episode serial of thrilling revelations of the Imperial German Government's spies and plots in America

"THE EAGLE'S EYE" DOES NOT PICTURE THE HORRORS OF THE WORLD WAR

PRODUCED BY

THE WHARTONS

WITH THE SCREEN FAVORITES

KING BAGGOT and MARGUERITE SNOW

Book Now Through Your Nearest Foursquare Exchange. Branches in Principal Cities

For further information address The Whartons' Publicity and Supply Department, 1476 Broadway, New York

RESOLUTION PASSED

AT

NATIONAL CONVENTION

OF THE

MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITORS LEAGUE OF AMERICA

AT CHICAGO, JULY, 1917

◆

MOVED by Mr. Eager of Nebraska and seconded by Mr. Hopp of Illinois:

RESOLVED, that the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, in convention assembled, offer to the President of the United States the freedom of the screen for the purpose of patriotic propaganda, and call upon the exhibitors throughout the country to give the widest publicity to such departments of the Federal Government as he may direct.

TARZAN OF THE APES

WILL BE

DISTRIBUTED BY

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT, INC.

RELEASE DATE

APRIL 2ND

BOOKINGS NOW BEING ARRANGED TO OPEN IN SIXTY PRINCIPAL CITIES IN AMERICA ON ABOVE DATE TO CO-INCIDE WITH WORLD-WIDE PUBLICITY CAMPAIGN BACKED BY 2000 NEWSPAPERS WHICH HAVE PUBLISHED THE STORY

60 PRINCIPAL CITIES IN AMERICA

WILL OPEN

APRIL 2ND

WITH THIS REMARKABLE PICTURE

RENTAL

OR

PERCENTAGE

ADDRESS NEAREST EXCHANGE

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT, INC.

OR

NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION

OF AMERICA

1604 BROADWAY

NEW YORK CITY

7 PEOPLE OUT OF 8 IN YOUR CITY HAVE READ THE STORY AND

CIRCULATION OF THE STORY

1,700,000 BOOKS SOLD

6,000 NEWSPAPERS PUBLISHED IT SERIALLY OVER A PERIOD OF ONE YEAR.

PUBLISHED IN 14 LANGUAGES INCLUDING

ENGLISH - FRENCH
GERMAN - GREEK
AUSTRIAN - RUSSIAN
ITALIAN - HUNGARIAN JAPANESE - TURKISH SPANISH - PORTUGUESE
ETC.

AWAIT THE FILM

Arrow Features Sy

Announce the Purchase

HELEN G

IN CLEO

WILL

GRAND OPERA

With Four Com
on Tou

SMALL an

Circuits i
Also B

"Eyes of the Worl

ARROW FEATU

TO THE CANADIAN THEATRE MANAGERS:

After carefully viewing all the current state rights offerings, I closed with the Cleopatra Film Co., Long Acre Bldg., N.Y.

"Helen Gardner in Cleopatra impresses me as being a tremendously pleasing picture. It's wholesome, big in conception, with ensembles that are amazing." We have the facilities to exploit the biggest picture, in the biggest way, BUT they must be real features like Helen Gardner in CLEOPATRA.

Chas. A. Haystead

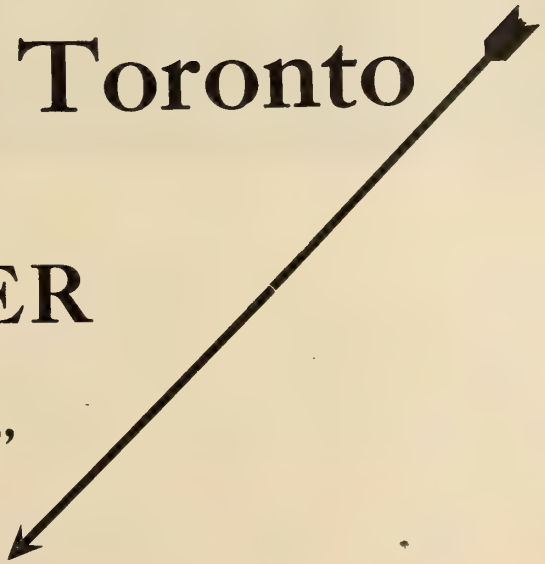
CHAS. A. HAYSTE
100 KING
TORONTO

ndicate of Toronto

of Canadian Rights for

ARDNER

PATRA



OPEN

HOUSE, Toronto

panies to Follow
of the

d WALKER

Canada
oking
" and "Ramona"

ES SYNDICATE

AD, General Manager
STREET W.
CANADA

Sessue Hayakawa, unique screen artist, will produce his own features, picturizations of unexcelled merit, red blooded stories teeming with startling originality and crashing dramatic action.

For date and manner of release, wire or write

Haworth Pictures Corporation

H. W. HELLMAN BUILDING Los Angeles, Cal.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

I am leaving the Goldwyn Company after completing my revision of and additions to the Mabel Normand Picture "Joan of Plattsburg."

GEORGE LOANE TUCKER

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

WILLIAM A. BRADY'S
BIG PICTURE

Did you play "The Whip"?

If you did you know what a box office bear it is.

Well, there is a companion picture to "THE WHIP" in the making.

Over $100,000 has already been spent on it.

The last reel alone remains unfinished and it shows a battle in mid-air between a monster Zeppelin (not a model—a real one) made on government lines at a cost of over $25,000, with a war hydroplane over the real ocean.

The real actors go in the clouds, not faked—the real thing.

Its Title

"STOLEN ORDERS"

founded on the Drury Lane play "Sealed Orders," written by Cecil Raleigh and Henry Hamilton, authors of "The Whip," which ran at the Drury Lane longer than "The Whip" did. The title, "Sealed Orders" was appropriated by a Danish picture some years ago, hence the change of name to "Stolen Orders."

Directed by Harley Knoles, George Kelson and William A. Brady

ACTED BY 6 STARS

CARLYLE BLACKWELL	KITTY GORDON	MONTAGU LOVE
GEORGE MacQUARRIE	MADGE EVANS	JUNE ELVIDGE

Guaranteed bigger than "THE WHIP."
It's in 8 Reels, just jammed full of Love, Sport, Passion, Jealousy, Crime and Thrills. No war.

A picture with a solar plexus punch in every reel.

For sale the world over on a territorial basis.

BRONCHO BILLY—REVIVIFIED

BRONCHO BILLY
(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Essanay yields to popular demand from showmen all over the country and announces an immediate weekly release of the world famous single reel Western BRONCHO BILLY (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) subjects.

No other character ever enjoyed the phenomenal success in shows that was afforded BRONCHO BILLY, the first exponent of the drama of the hills and plains, as well as the greatest. He appeared every week in a thrilling, Western picture for years, to the delight of millions of "fans." Every single reel BRONCHO BILLY has more action, story, plot than the present day five reel features. The best of the famous BRONCHO BILLY pictures only will be offered. All re-edited and rebuilt.

HERE ARE THE FIRST TEN—BOOK THEM ALL

"Broncho Billy's Leap"
"Broncho Billy and the Rattler"
"Broncho Billy's Close Call"
"Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter"
"Broncho Billy's Indian Romance"
"Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need"
"Broncho Billy's Wild Ride"
"Broncho Billy's First Arrest"
"Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child"
"Broncho Billy's Last Deed"

BETTER THAN EVER—ALL NEW PAPER

WONDERFUL PHOTOGRAPHIC BEAUTY

See Them Before Booking

ESSANAY

George Kleine System

Distributors Everywhere—Now

Perfection Pictures

GEORGE K. SPOOR
Presents

I, MARY MacLANE
in
"Men Who Have Made Love to Me"

GEORGE K. SPOOR
Presents

TAYLOR HOLMES
in
"Uneasy Money"
By P. G. Wodehouse

George K. Spoor says:

You are in the show business. Essanay has produced these two features, not just as pictures, but as shows. It has taken particular pains to make them stand out distinctive from other pictures. Here's your opportunity. Take your place in the front rank of the country's showmen. These shows are backed by national billboard advertising.

Essanay

Distributed by
GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM
Throughout the United States

Perfection Pictures

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 10. March 9, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

WHO IS WATCHING THE PUBLIC? (WM. A. JOHNSTON) 1407
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1408
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER....1409
THE CAMERA MAN (BY HAL REID)....1410-11
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS—KESSEL?....1419
DIARY OF A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR....1433
THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER....1465

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Box-Office Reports....1423
Exhibitors' Service Bureau....1426
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors....1432
Ready-Made Ad-Talks 1436
Film Specialties 1454
Short Subjects in Review....1455
Releases—Current and Coming....1477-78-79-80
Monthly Index of Releases....1481
Projection Department 1486
Music and the Picture....1493
Theatres Worth While....1497

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Censor Conditions in the Limelight....1413
Friends Honor William Fox....1418
"Don't Surrender!" Says Berst....1418
Outlook Bright in the West....1415
Camp Committee Prepares for Work....1416
Live News from the Producers....1438
Advance Offerings of the Programs....1448
In the Independent Field....1456
In and Out of West Coast Studios....1474
News Notes from Canada....1421
Among the Exchanges 1473

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Adam and Some Eves" (Clever)....1470
"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers" (Vitagraph)....1469
"Circumstantial Evidence" (Christie)....1470
"Flash of Fate, The" (Universal)....1469
"Girl with the Champagne Eyes, The" (Fox)....1468
"Great Adventure, The" (Pathe)....1467
"Heiress for a Day" (Triangle)....1466
"His Day Out" (King-Bee)....1470
"House of Hate, The" (Pathe)....1469
"In Poverty's Power" (Pathe)....1468
"In the Dark" (Christie)....1470
"Mum's the Word" (Christie)....1470
"My Wife" (Mutual)....1467
"Night of His Life, The" (Christie)....1470
"Orderly, The" (King-Bee)....1470
"Revelation" (Triangle) 1466
"Rogue, The" (King-Bee)....1470
"Rough Lover, The" (Bluebird)....1468
"Shoes That Danced, The" (Triangle)....1467
"Shuttle, The" (Select)....1472
"Six-Shooter Andy" (Fox)....1468
"Sold for Gold" (Pathe)....1470
"Spurs of Sybil, The" (World Film)....1469
"Stranger, The" (King-Bee)....1470
"Wild Women" (Universal)....1466

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

"Brace Up" Looks Like Another "Come Through"....1346
"The Blue Bird," Superlative Artistic Achievement....1347-48
William S. Hart, His Pulling Power and His Latest Feature 1349
Saturday Evening Post and Literary Digest Herald "Son of Democracy" 1350
"Song of Songs," Elsie Ferguson's Best....1351
"World for Sale," Blackton's Second for Paramount....1352
"Song of the Soul" Features Alice Joyce....1353
Harry Raver Presents "The Master Crook"....1354
Thrilling Scenes from "The Knife"....1355
"Zeppelin's Last Raid"—How One Theatre Advertised It.1356
Goldwyn Announces "The Turning of the Tide"....1357
Mae Marsh and Mabel Normand on Goldwyn Program for February and March....1358
And for March and April, Madge Kennedy and Mary Garden 1359
"For the Freedom of the World" Breaking Records....1360
Metro Announces "Revenge," with Edith Storey....1361
Trade Press and Newspapers Praise Nazimova in "Revelation" 1362
Metro Opportunities 1363
Little Talks with Foreign Buyers, No. 2, from Inter-Ocean.1364
Mutual Releases Displayed 1365-66
Paralta 1367-68
General Puts a Pointed Question....1369
"A Daughter of Uncle Sam"....1370
One of O. Henry's Most Popular Stories Picturized....1371
The Merit of the Judge Willis Brown Pictures....1372-73
"The Tramp," Latest Essanay-Chaplin Reissue....1374
Fox Comedies 1375
Gladys Brockwell's Current Feature on Fox's Program....1376
Fox Standard Pictures....1377
Triangle Offers More Proof....1378-79
About Cutting Your Film Rentals in Half....1380-81
"The Sign Invisible" and the Chaplin Releases....1382-83
Gerard's Message Anent "My Four Years in Germany"..1384
"The House of Hate," Pathe's Biggest Serial....1385-86-87-88
"The Naulahka," Pathe 1389
The Toto Comedies and "The Price of Folly" Series....1390
Baby Marie's Latest 1391
"The Spurs of Sybil" and Some of Alice Brady's Other Successes 1392
"The Servant in the House"—W. H. Productions....1393
"The Eagle's Eye"....1394-95
"Tarzan of the Apes" and Its New York Success....1396-97
Helen Gardner in "Cleopatra"....1398-99
Haworth Picture Corp. Makes an Announcement Regarding Sessue Hayakawa....1400
George Loane Tucker Makes an Important Announcement.1401
"Stolen Orders" a Big Brady Special....1402
Essanay to Reissue Broncho Billy Numbers....1403
Essanay Two Prize Winners....1404
"Ruggles of Red Gap" Bigger Attraction than Skinner Pictures 1406
"Doctor and the Woman" New Lois Weber Production..1461
Animated Weekly First Again....1462
"Bull's Eye" Playing to Big Audiences....1463

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1918, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

CALLS "RUGGLES OF RED GAP" GREATEST PICTURE

E. C. Bostick, of The Merrill theatre, Milwaukee, Wis., says: " ' Ruggles of Red Gap,' with Taylor Holmes is, without doubt, one of the greatest pictures I ever saw. It is my opinion that this picture will be a bigger attraction than the Skinner pictures, which up to this time held the record for attendance at The Merrill."

NATIONAL BILLBOARD ADVERTISING

DISTRIBUTED BY GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESENTS

TAYLOR HOLMES IN RUGGLES OF RED GAP

AT ALL FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES

ASK WHEN!

FEB 27 1918
©CLB409768

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 10 March 9, 1918

Who Is Watching the Public?

IN OUR editorial of last week we pointed out, as emphatically as we could, the prime necessity upon the producer's part of making pictures the public wants.

The latter phrase sounds trite, we confess; the text is one most any journal might select to spin out into an unread editorial.

But suppose we put the question more definitely. Suppose we ask each producer these questions:

Are you really producing your own pictures or is your director doing them?

If you are producing them—that is if you are originating them and executing them right through to the finish—then on what basis are you doing your work?

* * *

ARE you studying the public taste? Are you sensing it? Still more important, are you looking ahead—six months, a year—and estimating subtly what trend the times will take and what the public will want in consequence?

Are you in close touch with the exhibitor—the progressive exhibitor—the man who makes it his business to feel the public pulse through his patrons—and can tell you first hand what the public wants?

Or, if you leave everything to your director, is the director in close touch with the public? Is he sensing the future? Is he in constant touch with the exhibitors, North, East, South, West?

Or, is he never looking far beyond the extremely limited horizon of the film colony in which he creates?

These are mighty important questions.

Producer profits, exchange profits, exhibitor profits are mightily concerned in your answer to them.

We have overproduction but not overproduction of pictures the public wants. That's certain!

We have waste, and lack of co-operation, and exhibitor inefficiency and the many glaring evils a new and big industry always heaps upon itself.

But in our box-office reports we note here and there a picture that is going "big, big, big, big;" and we know perfectly well that despite all industrial evils that picture will send back a fine line of profits to its producer and exchange and exhibitor.

So, here in production, is the underlying problem after all; and the producer who isn't tackling it—and solving it—had better get right out and into the other kind of business his experience and forebears intended him for.

WHAT prompts us to write again of this all-important subject is a five-page letter from Frank L. Newman, manager of the Royal and Regent theatre of Kansas City. Mr. Newman writes spontaneously, and without reference to our previous editorial. He says: "My patrons tell me what they like. It is my business to have my finger always on the pulse of my public and my pictures." And that's where the producer should have his finger.

Agreed!

Mr. Newman asks us to hammer home some other suggestions; and we cheerfully give them the prominence and emphasis they deserve.

Let the producer, he asks, give the first-run exhibitor the footage of a picture and not its number of reels. Mr. Newman speaks, he says, for a large number of exhibitors in his state. We can add, from the letters we get, that he speaks for a large number of exhibitors in every state.

The exhibitor runs his show on a standard schedule. He wants to make it up in advance and advertise its make-up definitely in his newspapers and other advertising matter. He generally adds to his feature a comedy or current events picture or both. In order to fit his show to his schedule and in order to announce its character he must know the footage of the feature. Reels are indefinite and misleading.

Why not footage?

* * *

TRADE paper reviews, Mr. Newman says—and he speaks generally—do not suit his needs. They are too indefinite. The same fault, he says, reacts upon the producer. More definite appraisal of pictures would raise the standard of production.

We agree, in a way, with Mr. Newman; and we have been working on the problem he presents. It is of the utmost importance. And we shall have an announcement to make, as early as next week, we expect, which will be of exceeding interest to Mr. Newman and to every first-run and later run exhibitor in the country.

Watch for it!

Mr. Newman takes a bang at titles. Too many are misleading, he says.

And misleading titles are bad business—for pictures and picture theatres.

To use his own practical phraseology: "When you say 'lemon' you expect it to be sour; and 'salt water' means just that and nothing else."

(Continued on following page)

Speaking Editorially:

Russia's Lesson For Us

AN American newspaperman, returning from Russia, is explaining in a series of articles what he declares to have been the errors of Allied diplomacy in dealing with the revolution torn nation.

In particular he complains of the motion picture mistake. Fifty prints, he declares, of a picture showing America's vast industrial organizations were sent to Russia. The newly enfranchised peasant was shown Uncle Sam's steel mills, locomotive works, munitions factories, and so on.

With the result that the peasants were more than ever convinced that this is a capitalist's country, the war a capitalist's war, and the German agent right when he declared that the peasant would be a fool to continue fighting at the behest of American money-grubbers.

The newspaperman's opinion is that we should have shown the new Russia a more human story—our contented workingmen with their own homes, our schools free to all, and so on.

This incident in motion picture diplomacy, interesting enough in itself, is really dragged in here for the lesson it teaches us of the film industry in presenting our own story to the general public.

For years we gave the public through the newspapers nothing but tales of million dollar productions, fortunes made over night, wealth—wealth—wealth.

And when each year's legislature brings its crop of tax-grabbing bills we wonder why the representatives from Four Corners hasn't a more intelligent view of our business.

Aren't we a bit weak in our diplomacy?

* * * *

When Is a Comedy?

WE know an exhibitor who will back his judgment on a feature production against that of any man in the land.

He swears that he has never gone wrong in rating a feature's appeal to any of the different classes of audiences he has had to handle.

The same man wouldn't bet a five-cent piece on the chances of a particular comedy before any type of audience.

"I've seen the high-brows yawn all through a clever 'polite' comedy and then roar their heads off at slapstick," he declares. "And I've given slapstick to supposed low-brows who almost demanded their money back. I've never been able to lay down a comedy rule that would hold good till the next performance in the same house.

"No! I have found one rule. No matter how an audience may fool you temporarily, there is never any lasting pull in the comedy that makes a man sorry he brought his wife and daughter into your house."

You Are Right—We Are Wrong

A REVIEWER recently treating an average comedy endeavored to let it down lightly by saying that it would be found "suitable in the small house."

An exhibitor calls us sharply to account for the phrase. "I run what New Yorkers might think a dinky little village theater," he says "but what isn't good enough for the best Broadway house isn't good enough for mine."

We admit the error—and pass the correction along for the benefit of producers whose thoughts often slip just as did our reviewer's pen.

"Too many of the producers," continues the exhibitor, "when they set out to make a production that can be rented at a reasonable price for the small theater, seem to think that the thought level must also be low. That's where they are wrong.

"It's one thing to make an economical production and it's another to make a picture cheap in thought and execution. My patrons are as well educated as any you will get in the Rivoli, their tastes in magazines and literature are just as high—is there any reason then, because they live in a small town and my house seats only three hundred, that they will be satisfied with pictures of a lower level of intelligence?"

The point taken is correct—whether applied to short subjects, to comedies or to the occasional features announced as made "with the small house in view."

* * * *

The Man in the Sticks

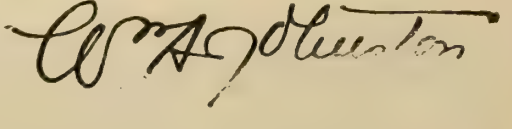
THAT obstreperous person, The Man in the Sticks, wants to know—

Why, when his five years reading of trade papers has convinced him that every film magnate in the game is a business wizard, an executive wonder and a dynamic whiz-bang—

He still finds the industry whirling around in circles with the self-same Goliaths still pursued by—

Overdistribution, overproduction and overadvertising.

* * * *



Who Is Watching the Public?

(Continued from preceding page)

Titles that bring people into the theatre and then show them something else are like false labels on any kind of goods. The purchaser is bound to feel deceived. The practice drives patrons away from the house. It is bad—very bad—for the picture business. Mr. Newman refers in this connection, he says, to all producers.

* * *

MOTION PICTURE NEWS is announcing this week, the formation of a staff of associate editors that will comprise a large group of exhibitors like Mr. Newman, and representative of all sections of the country. They will not only render valuable editorial service to their brother exhibitors, but we believe that this step will largely bring about the necessary link between the maker, distributor, exhibitor—and the public demand for pictures.

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

WE had expected to give you a real big bit of family news this week—by "family news" we mean an announcement from Motion Picture to its family of readers.

But, pending the full completion of our latest plan, if you will turn to Page 1422 you will find a sort of half-way announcement—a sort of invitation to a feast without showing you the menu.

It tells you of the new "Exhibitor Service Bureau Advisory Editorial Board."

Just as there is no room for debate about the popularity and value of our "Exhibitor Service Bureau," so are we certain of the enthusiastic welcome that will be given this latest innovation. The Service Bureau has gained its place now, through unselfish interest in the problems of their fellow exhibitors, it is to have the constant aid and advice of fifteen or more of the top-notch exhibitors of the country.

Think what that means. Each member of the Service Bureau Advisory Editorial Board has gained success and country-wide recognition—each has had his own experience and has his own methods—and now they have volunteered to put their shoulders to the service wheel for the benefit of the whole exhibiting family.

* * * *

THE details of that big bit of news will be one of the good things in next week's issue. Also, don't be startled if we spring another surprise next week.

There's no law against breaking the speed limit in trade journalism—

So—

Watch our dust.

* * * *

HAL REID, who is writing our "Practical Plays For Busy Producers," has discovered a man who can tame the wild and woolly dictator of all picture destinies—the director.

The man who does the trick is none other than the camera man.

The $1000 a week star can't do it, the boss can't do it, but the camera man can make the director eat out of his hand.

So says the author. And he goes on to tell just what the camera man's contribution is to studio inefficiency.

You remember, don't you, that the facts of all the incidents in these tabloid dramas are on file in our office?

Page 1410

* * * *

SPEAKING of studio matters we heard a story recently of a director on a long term contract who held up a producer in the middle of a film spectacle's staging and demanded an increase in salary.

"All right," said the manufacturer, "I'll give it to you."

And for four weeks the director drew the increased salary. Then the spectacle was completed and he called on the manufacturer to see what his next production would be.

"I haven't any work for you," said the manufacturer. "You are no longer in my employ."

"But I have a long term contract with you," said the director—the accent a trifle French.

"You did have a contract," replied the manufacturer. "In fact, that contract was worrying me to death. But you forced me to break it yourself by giving you an increased salary. Now the contract is void. Good day!"

And this quick-thinking manufacturer, who so easily shed a burdensome contract, is a man whom supposed wise film folk persist in declaring a "back number."

We don't believe it.

* * * *

SOMETIMES it's hard to write a page; sometimes it is more difficult to write less than a book.

William A. Johnston had to resist the latter temptation when he wrote "What Kind of a Fellow is—Kessel?" for this week's NEWS.

For it's hard to write about picturesque Ad. Kessel, Jr., and not write one half of a two-volume history of the motion picture industry.

W. A. J. didn't entirely resist the temptation—with the result that you will find "What Kind of a Fellow is—Kessel?" an extra long and extra interesting instalment of this popular series.

Page 1419

* * * *

THE Spring Drive of censor legislation is now on. Virginia started the rush, but sister states were not slow to follow the procession.

And strange to say, picture men have so far been granted a fair share of success in meeting the flood. Perhaps the censor advocates' Spring Drive is to receive the same welcome that is in store for the vaunted Teuton Spring Drive "over there."

* * * *

J. A. BERST comes to bat with somewhat of a scorcher this week. Banging away at an unmentioned organization and a five-year contract, which he declares this organization will soon present to exhibitors, Brother Berst swings his adjectives in a hot and heavy fashion—not quite his usual manner.

The story published in this issue tells of a letter being sent to exhibitors in all sections of the country.

* * * *

YOU may notice that we seldom get the chance to tell you about the good things in our Exhibitor Service Bureau.

Frankly, we are afraid to start. There wouldn't be room for anything else on this page.

Every week of the Service Bureau brings several features, one of which alone not many months ago would have given a trade paper crowing material for several months.

So—while there isn't room on this page to work off all our enthusiasm—there is room to urge you to turn now to Page 1426 and read every line of the Service Bureau.

Read it with an exhibitor's viewpoint. Then you'll have one of the reasons why MOTION PICTURE NEWS———

Dominates the Field!

Practical Plays For Busy Producers; No. 3

The Camera Man

By HAL REID

CAST OF CHARACTERS

TWISTEM, CZAR OF THE STUDIO—THE CAMERA MAN
DIRECTOR, HIS SERVANT—HIS MAJESTY
STAR, THEIR MUTTON—HERSELF ACTORS AND ACTRESSES—THEY EXTRAS, THE FOUR HUNDRED—THEM
C. HEWITT, THE ELECTRICIAN—HIM
EZEMON, THE PROPRIETOR—A. MUTT
SCENE: STUDIO STAGE

DISCOVERED

Director, Star, Actors, Actresses, Extras, Four Hundred of Them.

Director

(Yelling.) Electrician, turn on the lights!!

Electrician

Aw! Rats! How many times do you want 'em turned on and off?

Director

None of your business, lights I say!!

Elect.

(Pushing switch in.) There they are for the fiftieth time.

Director

(To Ensemble.) All ready for this scene!!

Ezemon—Tiptoes in to one side and listens.

Star

Thank God!!

Actor

Here too.

Actress

And then some.

Extras

Hurray!! Hurrah!! Whoopee!!

Director

Shut up!! Stand by.

Director

(Turns toward Ezemon, who ducks quickly and hides behind the scenery.)

Director

(Commanding.) Camera, all ready Twistem!!

Twistem

(Stands looking at director with a smile of pity upon his lips.)

Director

(Questioning.) Ready, Twistem?
(Looks at director, grins, shakes his head slowly.)

Director

(Questioning.) Ready?

Twistem

Whatta yuh doin—jokin'?

Director

No. What do you mean?

Twistem

(Pityingly.) Wuz you tinkin' 'bout shootin' dis?

Director

That was the idea, Twistie.

Twistem

Fergit it! (He saunters easily over and sitting upon the couch in the scene, picks up a prop newspaper and begins to read same.)

Director

(Going to Twistie.) What's the matter, Twistie?

Twistem

Say, are you "nutty," honest, do you tink' fer a minnit' dat I'd shoot in dis rotten light?

Director

Why, what's the matter with it—I've had all the "overheads" all the "banks" and everything changed nine times now.

Twistem

Well, I can't help it, dey ain't rite, I tell yuh.

Director

How do you know? You haven't even looked through the camera yet.

Twistem

Aw! I don't have to, a blind man could see dat dey ain't rite.

Director

Come ahead, Twistie. That's the boy, take a peek.

Twistem

What for?

Director

So we can go ahead. We have four hundred extras, the star, the company waiting. We've been two days on this scene now, I don't care only I'm tired of it. Come ahead, take a peek.

Twistem

Dey hain't no use, I tell you. I won't shoot 'til de lites are rite and dat's all dere is to it, do you wanna make a bum out o' me?

Director

(Imploringly.) Go ahead, Twistie, do me a favor, take a peek.
(Lighting a cigarette.) Nuthin' doin'.

Director

(In a temper.) I am the director here, and——

Twistem

I am de camera man, ef you tink you kin take wit'out me—— "shoot." (He starts to take the camera down.)

(Ezemon cautiously peeks around the scenery)

Director

(Laughing, apologetically, slapping Twistem on the shoulder.) Now, now, Twistie, be good; don't do that, I was only joking. Can't you stand for a little fun? Don't take the camera down. Tell me what you want and you shall have it.

Twistem

Yuh got me sore now. I don't think I wanna work any more to-day.

Director

Ah! Now, now, old fellow, be good. What do you want done?

Twistem

Move de "overheads" back where dey was, push dem "banks" furder back, send someone on de roof to block out dat sunshine, hang half a dozen "aristoes" down front, pull de "diffusers" half way—en den I'll take a peek.

Director

(Slapping Twistie on the back.) Good boy, thank you, Twistie.
(Yelling.) Lights out!

Electrician

Oh, hell! (He pulls the switches.)
(Catcalls from extras, moans from company.)

Director

(Yelling.) Here you, cut that out!

Star

(Sighs, looks about helplessly, shakes head silently, slowly sits in big easy chair—settles down.)

Actor

(To actress): I am going to telephone that I won't be home until midnight.

(Actor and actress exit)

Twistem

I'm goin' to de dark room. Lemme know when dey git ready—den I'll take a peek.

Director

(Placing his arm about Twistem's neck.) All right, old pal. You are not sore, are you? Excuse me, I forgot.

Twistem

Aw! dat's all rite. (He starts to exit.)

Director

(Goes to electrician. Gives him orders.)

Ezemon

(Comes cautiously to Twistie.) (Whispering.) May I speak to you, Mr. Twistem?

Twistem

You said it.

Ezemon

Will you take two hundred thousand dollars a year and run the studios for me?

Twistem

What are you doin', tryin' to kid me?

Ezemon

No. You are the first human being I ever saw who could run a director; if I could do it, I could save two million dollars a year.

Twistem

Dat's easy—learn to be a camera man.

(He swings out easily)

Ezemon

(Walks haltingly to director.)

Ezemon

Good afternoon.

Director

(Looks at Ezemon and turns his back upon him without replying.)

Ezemon

(Smiles sheepishly, waits a while and again plucks up courage—speaks.)

Ezemon

Do you think you will shoot this scene to-day?

Director

(Shortly.) How do I know?

Ezemon

Pardon me, but you are the director. If you don't know, who should—I—I——

Director

Say! Do you want me to call it off right now until to-morrow? I will if you don't let me alone—I'm not feeling very well anyway.

(Ezemon turns and sprints out of scene)

(Three hours later)

(The lights are all moved, the sunshine blocked out, the star asleep in the chair, the extras spread all over the studio and grounds, the company in their dressing rooms or the restaurant.)

Director

That's good, where's Twistie—go get him. somebody.

(Enter Twistem)

Director

Ah! Twistie, I was just going to send for you. How's that? (Pointing to lights.)

Twistem

(Looking at lights, goes to camera, peeks through finder, turns away shaking head. "No.")

Director

No? Not right yet, Twistie?

Twistem

Naw, dey wuz better de way dey wuz, have 'em all changed back again, an' den we'll take.

Director

What do you say, let's call it all off until to-morrow?

Twistem

Dat's rite, I hatt an engagement witt me "best" all de time; let's beat it.

Director

(Yelling): All off until to-morrow! (Star awakens.)

(He locks arms with Twistie and they exit. Extras shout and laugh. The electrician opens desk drawer, takes out a quart of booze and drinks half a pint.)

Star

(To actress.) Fine business, eh, can you beat it? Four hundred extras, stage crew, my salary, the company salaries, electric light bills, director's salary, camera man's salary. Cost about sixteen hundred dollars a day, not a foot of negative made. Some waste, eh? And not a word said about it. The proprietors stand for it, stand by and see, say nothing and lose, and yet Ezemon kicked yesterday when I asked him to raise my salary to eleven thousand dollars a week.

Actor

Well, what do you think of that, ain't it rotten?

THE END.

REMEMBER!

- This Series of Tabloid Dramas is based on actual facts.
- All the incidents pictured at different times in these "Practical Plays" have actually taken place in a motion picture studio.
- We have the real names and dates on file in Motion Picture News office.
- Those interested may have them for the asking.

YOUR CITY'S ADVERTISING

Discussion of Situation in Salt Lake First of a Series of Intimate Exploitation Talks

IN this week's issue of the Motion Picture News, we begin the discussion of motion picture advertising and the co-operation between exhibitors and advertising in various cities.

The first city discussed is Salt Lake. No especial geographical line of any special basis of population will be followed in the selection of the cities to be taken up. Your city may be the next one. Its identity will be given a week in advance of publication.

Exhibitors in that city will find their advertising analyzed there and they will get many hints as to how they can improve their displays, not alone as a single advertisement, but on account of its relations to those of other theatres.

Exchange managers who are seeking to build up more and permanent business will do well to call these discussions to all of the exhibitors in their city. Anything that tends to make them better advertisers is certain to make business for the exchange. Call their attention to the advertising studies in advance, for only the smallest number of extra copies of the NEWS are printed and these are quickly exhausted.

This is a new and serious attempt to obtain better advertising, to stimulate the co-operation between the exhibitor and producer on one hand and the newspaper on the other. We believe that it will bear healthy fruit.

Read these articles carefully, and write us suggestions about your home town, especially in cases when you note that conditions in that community will be treated next week.

WAR TAX — SEPARATE BANK ACCOUNT

A Suggestion Which May Save Embarrassment and Possible Legal Complications

AS soon as a person pays an admission tax to an exhibitor, the latter becomes a trustee of that tax until he turns it over to the Collector of Internal Revenue at the end of the following month. In other words, the money collected for taxes does not belong to the exhibitor at all. While under ordinary circumstances the exhibitor might not incur any penalty or inconvenience because of this, still it is likely that circumstances might occur under which an exhibitor would find himself in difficulties because of this commingling of funds.

The situation is different from that of an ordinary tax payer whose relation to the Government is that of debtor and creditor. If a manufacturer should fail, he would simply owe the Government tax; if an exhibitor should fail and has his admission tax on deposit with his other funds, he might be liable for larceny.

There is another interesting chance for trouble in this connection—namely, that if an exhibitor should pay his tax with a non-certified check, and the check should turn out to be "no good," the tax would be considered unpaid, and the exhibitor would be liable to any penalty that might attach to an overdue payment. This, of course, applies to a payment not made at the end of the month following the month for which the tax was paid.

The "News" recently wrote to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, and has received the following reply from B. C. Keith, the Deputy Commissioner:

. . . "Treasury Department
"Washington,
"February 15, 1918.

"Mr. Wm. A. Johnston, Editor,
"Motion Picture News, Inc.,
"729 Seventh Avenue,
"New York City.

"Sir: Replying to your letter of the 5th instant, you are advised that the Treasury Department has issued no definite ruling as to how the war tax money collected on admission should be handled pending its payment to the Government when due.

"The Act places the responsibility upon the person selling the admissions to collect the tax due the Government on such admissions, as imposed in Section 700. The tax thus collected belongs to the Government, and the management of amusement places is liable for turning it over to the Collector of Internal Revenue. However, there is no objection if a corporation or individual operating an amusement place desires to deposit the tax collected in a separate account in the bank to be paid over to the Government when due.

"Respectfully,
"(Signed) B. C. Keith,
"Deputy Commissioner."

In other words, the opening of a separate bank account is not required, but it is suggested to exhibitors as advisable.

There is another situation which is apt to arise unless the war tax collections are kept separately—namely, that if at the end of February, for example, you come to pay the January tax, you may find it quite a little job to raise the necessary money, while if the war tax is kept by itself and has not been touched, it is comparatively a simple matter to draw a check against that.

In the event that any readers of the "News" desire to open these special accounts, we are advised by bank men here in New York that the proper form would be as follows:

"(Name of firm or individual or corporation running the theatre) in trust for the Collector of Internal Revenue."

Review Board Adds to a Committee

The Hon. H. W. Adams, mayor of Beloit, Wis., and Rev. James Boyd Coxe, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, St. Louis, have been elected members of the national advisory committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. Mayor Adams has shown a very intelligent interest in the subject of regulation of motion pictures. Soon after entering office he invited the proprietors of the motion picture houses to meet him at his office for a conference on the subject of regulation. At this conference he told them of the city's desire to cooperate with them in placing their business upon a basis that would deserve public confidence and respect, and added that it was the city's intention that only acceptable pictures should be shown. The Mayor requested the exhibitors to inform him of any picture about which they had any doubt as to the desirability of exhibiting it in Beloit. "We found," said Mayor Adams in describing this plan, "that they were all willing to co-operate, and this voluntary censorship was established. I believe that the proprietors, knowing that we have this plan and practice here, are very careful as to what pictures they bring in."

New Jersey Women Discuss Censorship

Members of the women's clubs of New Jersey, since a bill for the regulation of motion pictures by a state board of censors was introduced in the Legislature of that state, have been discussing it at meetings of their legislative committees. The committees of the Contemporary Club of Newark, the State Federation of Women's Clubs and the East Orange Woman's Club have held meetings. The first two mentioned assembled at the Y. W. C. A. in Newark on February 14. This meeting was addressed by Mr. Roe, who prepared the bill, and Orrin G. Cocks, advisory secretary of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures. Mr. Cocks pointed out the ineffectiveness of any legalized form of censorship and showed that it was unnecessary. It is reported that the legislative committee of the State Federation voted that it did not favor state censorship.

A meeting was held on February 18.

Soldier Boys See Metro's "Lest We Forget"

As a result of arrangements made by William Atkinson, business manager of Metro Pictures Corporation, and Bert Ennis, publicity director of the Petrova Picture Company and McClure Pictures, one hundred soldier boys from Camp Upton witnessed the Metro patriotic film spectacle, "Lest We Forget," on Saturday, February 16. The entertainment afforded the Camp Upton boys, through their visit to the Lyric theatre, is but a return of the courtesy extended by Col. George Vidmer, commanding officer of the 306th Infantry of Camp Upton, through permitting the quartet to appear at a private showing of Messrs. Sawyer & Lubin's patriotic film feature, "The Crucible of Life."

Norma Talmadge, Caught by the Camera In Florida With Mr. and Mrs. Lewis J. Selznick

Constance Talmadge Completes Picture

Constance Talmadge has completed the second Select picture, which she has been making in California, "Up the Road with Sallie," and is now ready to begin work on a new production. "Up the Road with Sallie" is by Frances Sterrett, with the scenario by Julia Crawford Ivers, and directed by William D. Taylor.

Gerard's Picture to Open on Broadway

"My Four Years in Germany," screen version of Ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard's book of the same title, will probably be shown in not less than ten reels, according to an announcement made by My Four Years in Germany, Inc. Arrangements are now under way to have the feature play an extended run at one of the Broadway theatres. A trade showing is announced for the near future.

Women Discuss Motion Picture Publicity

The importance attached to the motion picture as a medium of publicity was emphasized at a dinner of the League of Advertising Women, held at their headquarters in New York on February 19.

The psychology of "putting it across" was discussed by various speakers, notable among whom was Dr. Alexander Black, known as "the grandfather of the motion picture," because of his success, some twenty-five years ago, in telling a screen story by means of three-to-the-second slides of the actors in a play. Several advertising films, illustrating the points under discussion, were shown the audience.

Miss Camilla Donworth, president of the Films of Business Corporation, and who is an active member of the league, was chairman of the evening.

Censorship Holds the Limelight

New Jersey Rejoices at Defeat of Roberts Bill, While Virginia Passes Through Stages of Battle—Maryland Puts Forces Into First-Line Trenches

CENSORSHIP, the ever-present shadow of dark forbodings to exhibitor and producer and the omnipresent haven of refuge of well-meaning reformers who seek to check the riotous pace which they claim the motion picture is traveling during the past fortnight, lost none of its magnetic tendrils which have drawn discussion and battle toward it since its advent into the industry. Instead, it became apparently imbued with the desire to go "over the top" in a supreme spring drive, and did so in various parts of the country.

In New Jersey, however, the tide of battle turned against censorship, and the Roberts bill went down in deefat. In Virginia things "are quiet," with hope still remaining that the proposed measure will be killed. In Maryland exhibitors are fighting hard

Killed—May Live Again

Unless Assemblyman Roberts, of Moorestown, Burlington County, New Jersey, has the power of bringing back the dead to life, the last rites were sung February 19 over his bill to create a Board of State Censors, each of the three members to get as salary $2,500 per year. This money, with other expenses for the upkeep of the bureau, would come from a tax imposed on the picture industry for all films that would receive the sanction or rejection of the trio.

Mr. Roberts made a plea for his bill principally on the ground that "it was necessary," and then minority leader Simpson led the attack on the measure. He declared that there was absolutely no justification for such a measure, following which he denounced it as a senseless interference by law with the rights of the individual. Simpson declared it was similar to putting the ban on free speech, by giving three men the authority to decide for each community in the state, and for each man and woman what pictures they should see and which they should not see.

Mr. Simpson cited that New Jersey, next to California, has the greatest motion picture producing percentage in the country. "Millions of dollars are invested here in picture production," he said, "and this law would impose an unjust and unnecessary tax on them when they are already severely taxed."

No other members spoke on the bill, and in the vote Roberts changed his "yea" to "nay" that he may be able to recall the bill for another vote when he musters up the thirty-one needed to pass it.

Several Maryland Hearings

The fight of the motion picture exhibitors in the state of Maryland to repeal the existing censorship law is now well under way. The first hearing of this bill was held at Annapolis recently before the joint committee of the Judiciary of both branches. Another hearing was held February 21 and it is expected that further hearings will also be necessary inasmuch as motion picture exhibitors from all sections of the state desire to be heard on this question.

The Motion Picture Exhibitors' League, which is conducting the fight to repeal censorship, is made up of 238 managers and owners in the state. Every first-class exhibitor in the state has gone on record as being opposed to legalized censorship because they maintain that it has proven a failure during the past two years that it has been in existence. The exhibitors declare that thousands of their patrons have criticized the censors for destroying the plots of many of the best pictures.

At the recent hearings there were many interesting reasons brought forth by the exhibitors for the abolishment of this board. As an example, it was stated that a picture was presented to this board by an exhibitor and it was carefully reviewed by one of the censors. It was passed and ordered to be run without any eliminations. This same picture was presented to the censors three weeks later under another title. The picture was an exact duplicate in every scene. The same censor went over the picture and ordered a great many eliminations made.

No Films for Children

Maryland is one of the few states in this country where educational pictures are not shown to children. The exhibitors declare that this is due wholly to the existence of the censorship board. In order to run a children's show it is necessary to have at least seven reels of pictures. The cost of censoring these reels amounts to $14. This means that 280 children's admissions will be necessary to pay the censor fees alone. With the cost of the production and the regular overhead expenses the exhibitor would lose money if he were to run educational pictures. The Civic Federation has been for two years endeavoring to have the exhibitors run educational pictures in all the theatres on Saturday mornings for children.

Furthermore, the exhibitors maintain that the present laws on the statute books are sufficient to prohibit the showing of any objectional film. They declare that the board is now being conducted for political reasons and that in spite of the fact that there has been a vacancy on the board since last September the Governor has not seen fit to fill the office. They also declare that one member of the board did not consider the position of enough importance so accepted another position. This member is now holding down two positions and spends but a very few hours daily in the office of the censor board.

They also point out the unusual activity of a certain state official who has already announced to his friends that he is to be a candidate for Governor next year. They declare that his only interest in the fight is to retain a position for a relative of his on the board.

"Eagle's Eye" Acclaimed at Biltmore

The Grand Ball Room of Hotel Biltmore had the S. R. O. sign out on the afternoon of Washington's Birthday. The occasion was the first public showing of the first three episodes of William J. Flynn's serial, "The Eagle's Eye," the story of the Imperial German Government's spies, plots and propaganda in the United States. The enthusiastic audience, which included many of the most prominent people in New York's society, representatives of every patriotic society in New York and army and navy officers, was unanimous in pronouncing the initial episodes of Chief Flynn's serial, entertaining and a marvelous exposition of German propaganda in America.

Among the prominent people present were:

Lieut.-Governor Schoenick; Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor; Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Prince and Princess Troubetzky, Justice Vernon M. Davis, of the Appellate Division; Supreme Court Justice Barstow S. Weeks, Judge William H. Wadhams and Judge Crain, of General Sessions; Justice Peter Schmuck, of the City Court; Senator James E. Walker, and representatives of the Army and Navy Intelligence Department; representatives from every patriotic society in New York City and the editors of practically every national magazine published in New York.

Ohio Exhibitor Denies Joining Combine

Melton Phelos, manager of the Strand and Rialto theatres in Elyria, Ohio, has issued a denial of the announcement made recently that he had joined the theatrical combine made some time ago in Elyria, whereby all theatres in the city would be operated by the Elyria Amusement Company.

"I have my own idea of running a motion picture theatre," said Exhibitor Phelos, "and I do not propose to be dictated to in the manner of operating it."

Exhibitor Phelos is said to be the only manager in Elyria who stood out against the combine.

Enid Bennett Marries

Enid Bennett, the Ince-Paramount star, and Fred Niblo, well known on the legitimate stage and in stock, were married at Christ Church in Los Angeles, February 23. Their engagement was announced several weeks ago.

It is said Mr. and Mrs. Niblo expect to establish a home on the Coast, and both will appear in pictures.

Fairbanks to Help Uncle Sam

Screen Comedian Goes to Washington to Confer Regarding a Stunt for the Next Liberty Bond Drive

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS, who has been devoting considerable time, energy, and money to raising funds for the Red Cross, leaves on about March 2 for Washington, D. C., where he is to confer with the government officials in regard to a "stunt" which Fairbanks will probably do for the third Liberty Loan. There seems to be considerable mystery attached to the visit, but it has been definitely ascertained that the Liberty Loan will be one of the things which Fairbanks will help put over. The comedian has received many letters and telegrams of appreciation from officials on account of the remarkable success he has made in getting up rodeos and other entertainments for the Red Cross. Actual figures at the present time show that Fairbanks and his company have raised $68,000 for war relief. With the exception of Dustin Farnum, who aided at San Francisco, Fairbanks and his company were practically alone in the enterprises, and to date he holds the record for getting out and doing things while many others have been talking about what they were going to do. As an example, upon his return from San Francisco where he staged two Wild West shows and a vaudeville performance for the benefit of the National War Camp Community Fund, he received a telegram from Herbert Hoover regarding special film for propaganda purposes. One hour after the message was received the film was being developed, and a strip of it with appropriate sub-titles and pictures of Fairbanks will be attached to every production in which the strenuous Artcraft star appears.

The message from the Government Food Controller reads:

"I ask as an immediate important patriotic contribution that you add at least one of the following trailers to every copy of every motion picture sent out by you during the next three weeks. 'Use only Victory Bread so that our boys at the front may be maintained. It is a small thing that our boys at the front ask of you as partial recompense for the much you ask of them.' 'Observe Mondays and Wednesdays as Wheatless Days and one wheatless meal every day.' 'Observe Tuesday as Meatless Day and one meatless meal every day.' 'Observe Tuesdays and Saturdays as Porkless Days and make every day a fat and sugar saving day. Use fruits, vegetables and potatoes abundantly.' 'Remember, children must have milk. Use all the milk —waste no part of it.' 'Hoarding food in your household is both selfish and unnecessary. The Government is protecting the food supply of its people.'

"(Signed) HERBERT HOOVER."

Fuel Embargo Helps Business

Such Is Conclusion of A. S. Kirkpatrick, of Mutual, Who Has Returned to Chicago After Visit to Eastern Branches

THAT the recent fuel embargo was beneficial rather than detrimental to the film business is the statement made by A. S. Kirkpatrick, of the sales department of the Mutual Film Corporation, in an interview with MOTION PICTURE NEWS in Chicago. Mr. Kirkpatrick has just returned from a ten days' trip covering branch offices of the Mutual organization in the East.

"The embargo actually increased our business one-third in most of the territory involved," said Mr. Kirkpatrick. "This was due to the fact that every man in our service was spurred to great activity by what most of us regarded in the beginning as a possible calamity. Under the impetus of this idea everybody worked unceasingly to overcome the handicap and the result was highly gratifying.

"During my trip I visited the Mutual branch offices at Albany, Washington, Philadelphia, New York and other points. I found the organization working admirably and may say that I believe we have a most efficient sales force. Our branch managers and their staffs have been carefully selected. They are young men, full of ginger and go. The work they are doing speaks for itself. The working staffs are compact and efficient. They work without friction and get good results.

"Discussing matters with the exhibitors in the towns named and others, I found a feeling of confidence in Mutual's business attitude. The thing that particularly impressed exhibitors, I judge from my talks with them, was Mutual's assumption of the war tax, which relieved them of a serious and endless embarrassment.

"The consensus of opinion among exhibitors is that no producing concern should issue more than one feature a week. They are asking for quality rather than quantity.

"The Screen Telegram is in strong demand. I found that it would be impossible for the present to take care of orders for that service which are pouring in from all directions. There was also enthusiasm for our Mutual press sheet. There was also general recognition of the physical condition of our film, which is declared to be one of the strong points of Mutual service.

"Generally speaking I think that the outlook is highly favorable to an era of prosperity in the film industry if those principles are subscribed to which John R. Freuler, president of Mutual, has so frequently emphasized—namely recognition of and adherence to sane business rules."

Ruth Stonehouse to Desert the Screen

Ruth Stonehouse is to desert the screen for the vaudeville stage, where she will do interpretive dancing, giving two original dances, one "The Debutante Dance" and the other "The Dance of the Vampire."

In and Out of Town

C. C. Pettijohn has returned to New York from a trip through the West in the interest of the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated. He reports that the exhibitors through the West have placed the stamp of approval on the "direct to the Exhibitor" plan.

Harry Rapf, who has been in the Middle West for the past two weeks in the interest of the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated, returned to New York from Chicago last week. He reports a successful showing of Herbert Brenon's "Passing of the Third Floor Back," one of the first releases of this organization.

William Steiner, Jester Comedies, returned to New York from Boston last week. While in Boston Mr. Steiner disposed of the New England territory to R. D. Marson Attractions Company for Jester Comedies.

Joseph A. Golden, president of the Triumph Film Corporation, returned from a trip through the South, where he had been in the interest of the Producer and Exhibitors—Affiliated.

Louis Burstein, president of the King-Bee Film Corporation, arrived in New York last week from Los Angeles to attend a meeting of the board of directors of the King-Bee company and to make arrangements for the first Billy West five-reeler, "Old King Sol."

C. H. Haystead, general manager of the Arrow Features Syndicate, Toronto, Canada, was in New York last week. He returned to Toronto with a print of Cleopatra, featuring Helen Gardner, which will be shown on the Small circuit of theatres and throughout Canada.

A. J. Small, large theatre owner of Canada, returned to Toronto last week after a trip to New York. Mr. Small looked at the current features.

W. F. Harris, prominent exhibitor from Hopewell, Virginia, was a New York visitor last week. Mr. Harris purchased equipment for his new 1,000-seat vaudeville and picture house to be erected in that place. Work on the new theatre will be started in a few weeks. Mr. Harris expects to open the new house late in the summer.

Roberts and Marshall in "M'liss"

Theodore Roberts, Tully Marshall and other well-known players will be seen with Mary Pickford in "M'liss," her new Artcraft picture from the story by Bret Harte. The scenario is by Frances Marion and Marshall Neilan is director, assisted by Al Green. Walter Stradling is doing the photographic work on the film.

Operators Held Following Theatre Fire

Investigation of the destruction by fire of the Annex motion picture theatre, one of the two pioneer photoplay houses in Indianapolis, burned on the morning of February 14, has resulted in the arrest of four motion picture operators. The union operators were taken in custody to be held as witnesses for the Criminal Court after George G. Swain, manager of the theatre, reported that he suspected that members of the motion picture theatre operators' union had something to do with the blaze which he declared was of incendiary origin. Swain told the authorities that union members placed boycott signs on his theatre at one time, warning the public not to patronize the place because union men were not employed as operators. Another time the theatre was entered and the screen was slashed.

Linder Wants to Work at High Altitude

Max Linder is already making his preparations for his return to America in April. He has communicated, through T. E. Letendre, his American representative, with the secretary of several Chambers of Commerce in cities of high altitude with a view of locating there. Mr. Linder feels that if he works in a high and dry climate, he will be less apt to be troubled with the stomach ailments which have bothered him in the past, due to injuries received while serving with the French army in the first year of the war. Several Arizona cities have made tempting offers to induce the French comedian to make his pictures in their locality, some going so far as to offer to build a studio for him. However, this matter will not be decided until M. Linder's arrival in this country.

Jester Studio To Be Enlarged

William Steiner, Jester Comedy Company, announces that extensive alterations will be made on the studio in Cliffside, N. J. An additional wing will be built on in order to increase the floor space of the stage.

At the present time the combined outdoor and indoor studio measures seven thousand five hundred square feet and, with the new addition, it will raise these figures to twelve thousand five hundred square feet. The laboratory also will be greatly enlarged, which will have a capacity of two hundred thousand feet of film per week, double the present capacity.

Pathe Shows New Serial to Trade

An event of interest last week was a special showing of the first episode of the new Pearl White serial, "The House of Hate," with Antonio Moreno, at the New York theatre roof on Thursday. Among those present were several hundred exhibitors of Greater New York and representatives of the press.

Mastbaum and Others Accused

Illegal Combination in Restraint of Trade, Is Charge Filed in U. S. Court in Philadelphia by Some Amusement Company

THE Some Amusement Company has filed in the U. S. District Court in that city a bill of equity accusing Stanley Mastbaum, the Stanley Booking Company, of which he is the head; the Metro Pictures Corporation of New York, and the Metro Pictures Exchange of Pennsylvania, of forming an illegal combination in violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. According to the complaint the defendants have formed a local "movie trust" and are using, it is alleged, illegal methods against independent exhibitors. It would appear from the complaint in the action that the Metro Corporation of New York is the producing company, the Pennsylvania Metro concern the distributing agency, and the Stanley firm the booking company in the alleged combination.

The Some company explains that up to December last it had a contract with the Metro companies to exhibit their feature films. In December, it is alleged, this contract was canceled and Mastbaum announced to the Some company that he had acquired some of the stock of the Metro companies and that in the future the latter's bookings would be under the control of the Stanley company. It is further stated in the complaint that Mastbaum and the Stanley company had threatened to put the companies operated by the Some company out of business. Slander of some of the officers of the complainant company is another charge, also the attempted proselyting of its employees.

The acquisition by Mastbaum of part of the stock of the Metro concerns was solely for the purpose of gaining control of the bookings, it is alleged, and the court is asked to compel Mastbaum and the Stanley company to relinquish their holdings in the Metro corporations.

While the Some Amusement Company is the sole complainant in the action it is charged that 167 in Philadelphia, Baltimore, Washington, Atlantic City and neighboring cities are experiencing similar annoyances and embarrassments.

"Revelation," With Nazimova, Has Premiere

"Revelation," Metro's special production starring the Russian actress, Nazimova, is said to have proved worthy of all the praises sung in its favor. At its premiere at the Lyric theatre, New York, public and press hailed the return of this star by way of the screen. Nazimova had not been seen by the public since her stage production, "'Ception Shoals."

The first night of "Revelation" had all the importance and eclat of a first night of the dramatic stage. Mme. Nazimova was there in person.

Hauser Brothers Take Projection Rooms

Hauser Brothers, owners of a chain of theatres in Greater New York, last week announced to the trade that they had taken over the lease of the two projection rooms on the eighth floor of the Godfrey building, at Seventh avenue and Forty-ninth street, and that they were now ready to transact business with the local exchange and the distributor. They also announced that the two projection rooms had been remodeled and rebuilt, and that they were now equipped with all of the latest improvements in the way of motion picture apparatus.

Metro Films Treasure

Edith Storey, Metro star, is about to begin work in her next picture in the Metro program, the working title of which is "Treasure." The story was written by Leighton Osmun, of the Metro scenario staff.

Secretary Francis M. Hugo Universal's Guest

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company, in co-operation with the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, tendered a testimonial luncheon to Secretary of State Francis M. Hugo of New York State, at Rector's, on Friday, February 22, in appreciation of the suggestion by Mr. Hugo and his co-operation in the production of two reels for a special "Safety First" Campaign to be conducted throughout the country.

Among the guests in addition to Mr. Hugo were John J. Curran of the New York State Automobile Bureau; Henry Goldsmith, Edwin S. Babcock, advertising manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company; J. G. Robinson, treasurer of the Firestone Company, and C. D. Studebaker of the same company; C. H. MacGowan, assistant to President and Director-General Carl Laemmle, of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company; Joseph Brandt, assistant treasurer of the Universal Company; Paul Gulick, publicity manager of the Universal; Harry Levey, manager of the Industrial Department of the Universal; Hal Hodes, of the Publicity Department, and some forty to fifty other guests.

Private Nat Wolf Writes from Camp

Private Nat Wolf, Receiving Company No. 3, Block C-10, Camp Johnston, Fla., who was formerly with the Goldwyn offices in Chicago, has written MOTION PICTURE NEWS that much lonesomeness has filled his army career, dating back some three months. With the exception of an occasional NEWS which he is able to get, Private Wolf declares film news is scarce in camp.

Plans Progress for Camp Films

Newly Appointed Committee Arranges Schedule of Rentals, with Graded Prices and Free Pictures for Certain Cantonments

THE plan to ensure the exhibition of the best motion pictures at small cost inside the army and navy training camps of the country, first news of which was given to the industry last week in MOTION PICTURE NEWS' story that P. A. Powers has been chosen chairman of the committee, is about to be put into effect by the body of producers and distributors appointed. In this work they will co-operate with Raymond B. Fosdick, chairman of the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities.

The plan calls for a schedule of rentals of photoplays graded at three to four prices, and including a free list provided for camps which cannot afford to pay for entertainment, and for entertainments for the military forces at which no admission charge is made. The prices quoted for the films will be far below those charged to commercial theatres, it is said, and in most cases will be sufficient only to cover the cost of distribution.

On the committee with Chairman Patrick A. Powers are William D. McGuire, Jr., who has been appointed secretary; Adolph Zukor, Richard Gradwell, J. A. Berst, William Fox, Richard Rowland, F. A. Lynch, J. R. Freuler, Samuel Goldfish, George Kleine, D. W. Griffith, Albert E. Smith and Orrin G. Cocks.

"This is a patriotic movement on the part of the whole motion picture industry," said Mr. Powers. "It is our intention to furnish fine motion pictures for the army and navy freely through any agency that may be engaged in providing this form of entertainment and recreation for the defenders of the country. It is recognized that motion pictures can contribute to the morale of the army and navy in a very important way. By means of this committee we will be able to contribute our bit as an industry to the success of the war."

The kind of pictures desired by the army and navy commissions for use in the camps will be chosen by the National Board of Review from the lists of productions of all the companies. The plan is to provide for an adequate number of first-rate pictures which shall be available at any point the Training Camp Commissions may designate and at a much lower cost than heretofore has been made possible for those organizations which are responsiblue for the entertainment of the men while in the cantonments. This will be done through the exchanges of the various motion picture companies scattered throughout the country.

The spirit with which the picture industry is taking hold of the opportunity to do its bit in connection with the entertainment of soldiers and sailors in training camps was illustrated at a meeting of the American Motion Picture Advertisers at Keen's Chop House in New York on February 21. Chairman Powers, of the committee, was present upon invitation.

Busy Times at Klutho Studios in Jacksonville

The Klutho Studios at Jacksonville, Fla., have been the scene of lively operations during the past month, with the Metro-Yorke Company and Harold Lockwood working on two stages and the Binney Comedy Company of the Florida Funny Films working on the other outer air stages.

Better Films Movement Grows

Mrs. Michael Decides to Make Scope of Her Illinois Uplift Organization Country-wide — Film Companies Cooperate

MRS. FREDERICK MICHAEL, for a number of years chairman of the Better Films Committee of the Illinois Congress of Mothers and the Parent-Teachers' Association, and since the first of the year affiliated with the Atlas Educational Film Company, has decided to enlarge the scope of her Better Films Clearing House and if possible extend her work, now confined to Chicago and the districts which can be reached from that distribution center, to the whole country.

The new bureau was organized for the purpose of distributing approved films through one centrally located exchange for use in schools, churches, community centers, clubs and cantonments, but Mrs. Michael declares the requests she is constantly receiving from points outside the radius she can reach from Chicago, has already caused her to revise her original plan of distribution and to now feel that she must have the co-operation of exchanges all over the country.

Up to this time she has had splendid co-operation, she says, from Paramount, Mutual, Pathe, Vitagraph, Wholesome, Universal and Atlas in Chicago, and hopes to have no trouble in getting the exchanges of these concerns in other cities to aid her in her work.

"While associated with the Congress of Mothers and the Parent-Teachers' Association as chairman of the Committee for Better Films I was doing all the work gratis. Now," she said recently in speaking of her new enterprise, "I am a film broker. While in the offices and affiliated with the Atlas Educational Film Company, I don't want anyone to think they are paying me a salary, for they're not. Neither is anyone else. I am in this thing as an independent. I want to carry out my own ideas in this matter and a salary would tie me up with obligations that might work contrary to the success of the plans I now intend to unfold.

Further Statement from "United Theatres"

The United Picture Theatres organization of which was announced in last week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS, has issued a further statement of its plans. The statement explains the waste in distribution which it is declared the new co-operative booking plan would eliminate.

The announcement follows:

"United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., is the exhibitors own solution of the costly evil that every factor in the industry wishes to destroy. We will agree on a star whose popularity and money-making powers are unquestioned. We will make certain in advance that the star and the productions are big enough for the foremost theatres and therefore for all other theatres. We will then say to the producer having this star: 'Make us six or eight pictures annually with this star and we will pay you for each negative a price that will give you a liberal yet fair profit. We will make our own prints, our own accessories, and take care of the distribution of this and all other pictures to our members here and in foreign lands.'

"We are free of salesmanship costs because we have an assured playing time of several thousand days guaranteed in advance by our members. There is today no profit in distribution. The United plan relieves producers of the unprofitable exchange investment and worry and at the same time gives them cash on completion of pictures, whereas now the producer must often wait a year or more for the exchanges to get back his negative cost. Producers also will receive a wider distribution for their pictures than at present. Whereas today the average good feature plays less than 2,500 days, the United will give 4,000, 6,000, 9,000 days of playing time."

The announcement then tells that the plan of the United is formed on the co-operative plan of the American Drug Syndicate and states that it is merely applying the well-known principles of co-operative buying to the motion picture industry. In this respect the announcement states: "Applying this principle to the exhibitors' problem, United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., will instantly cut exhibitors' rental prices for a picture thirty to fifty per cent below the price they are now paying and give them many of the very same pictures they are now showing."

Offices are being established at 1600 Broadway, New York.

Beverly Bruce Confirms Production Rumors

Beverly Bruce, well known in vaudeville and stock, this week confirmed the rumor that she was contemplating entering the motion picture producing field, announcement of which was made last week in MOTION PICTURE NEWS. Miss Bruce asserts she has as much money at her back as will be needed to produce the kind of pictures she has in mind, which she says will be of a happiness-scattering nature without a trace of war, crime or the more bitter sides of life.

Fire Damages Dallas Film Offices

A disastrous fire gutted the offices of the Select Pictures Corporation of Texas and the Standard Film Supply Company, Inc., located at 1919 Main street, Dallas, on February 22. Four people were injured when an explosion blew out part of the front of the building. A dozen girl workers escaped in advance of the explosion. The Standard's loss is estimated at $20,000, partially covered by insurance, while the Select company's loss is also considerable. N. F. Wirthheimer, owner and manager of the Standard company, was slightly burned. The fire was in the heart of the Dallas film district, which includes also the offices of Goldwyn, First National and other companies, and illustrates the pressing need of a fireproof film trade building in that city.

Private School Installs Picture Machine

The influence of the motion picture on modern education was demonstrated in a concrete way in St. Louis last week when Sister Mary Jane, directress of Loretta Academy (Sacred Heart, Catholic), an exclusive girls' school, installed a screen and machine for educational purposes. Sister Mary Jane will superintend the initial projection, but the machine will be used shortly in demonstrations before the classes. The innovation, it is said, is being watched closely by other educational institutions in St. Louis and it is believed the step will be followed by other schools, academies and colleges.

Pictures as Government War Insurance

It was announced from Washington this week that a two-reel dramatic motion picture with professional players in the leading roles will be shown at all military and naval camps throughout the country beginning this week as part of the Government's war-insurance campaign. The photoplay, which is called "His Best Gift," was produced by the Photographic Division of the Signal Corps, U. S. A., under the direction of Captain Edwin R. Hesser, a well-known motion-picture director and formerly in charge of photoplay propaganda for the Canadian Government.

Approximately one thousand persons take part in the action of the picture. A battalion from the 314th Infantry, Camp Meade and an Engineer Battalion from Washington Barracks take the leading part in the military action which is portrayed with full and picturesque details. Realistic overseas battle-scenes feature the picture.

Sold Twice in One Day

The Lyric theatre in Litchfield, Ill., probably holds the record for changing hands in quick order. It was sold recently to James Gehlman by S. E. Pirtle, and on the same day the former turned it over to James Grieg, who took control. Exhibitor Grieg also owns the Royal, in Litchfield, and will conduct both houses.

Predicts Good Times in West

Everything Points to Better Business, Is the Opinion of F. A. Van Husan, United Theatre Equipment Manager in Omaha

"BUSINESS will be better than it was last year."

Thus does F. A. Van Husan, head of the United Theatre Equipment Corporation branch in Omaha, Neb., dispose of fears, expressed from time to time by exhibitors in the Middle West. Mr. Van Husan, one of the oldest and most experienced film men in the Omaha territory, insists the exhibitor's business will be better, and that there will be more repairing, improving and building of motion picture theatres than in any year past. Last year set a record in this territory, the type of theatres and the quality of show-houses in general making great forward steps.

"The people have money—more than usual—and they will seek entertainment. Because of good business, and because of the steady progress in the motion picture industry, the exhibitors will improve their houses." Thus does Mr. Van Husan reason.

"Exhibitor Jenkins of Neligh, Nebraska, was just in here," said Mr. Van Husan, "and said he intends to build this Spring. I observed closely the plans he had in mind. He said he wanted a theatre that will seat about 600 people, and that it must be modern in every respect. He does not intend to build a large, elaborate theatre, but it must be essentially a motion picture house, intended for permanency and a structure that will be a credit to the community.

"His ideas coincided entirely with mine. I believe the smaller theatres in the Middle West will, in a couple of years, have entirely disappeared from the made-over store rooms and will occupy specially constructed buildings. These will be good, substantial theatres, built to last and built for a maximum of comfort and efficiency for patrons.

"The building boom in this section of the country will begin about March 15. Up to this time the exhibitors have been cautious. This attitude has been noticeable since the first of last November. It is now wearing away, with a satisfactory Winter's business, great promises for Spring and Summer, they are anxious no longer, but are decided to go ahead and be prosperous like those in other lines of trade. I am interested in the Hipp theatre, down-town house in Omaha, and its business has shown a thirty per cent increase in the last few months. Others tell me the same story.

"To show the opportunities in pictures—the Brandeis theatre, big Omaha legitimate house, the biggest and best theatre in this section of the country, is now showing pictures along with vaudeville. I have just put in a Powers machine and the management said they expected big returns.

"Sam Harding of the Overland Amusement Company, building the Liberty theatre at Kansas City, has contracted for two Powers machines, a Minusa gold fiber screen, a double dissolving lantern and a spot-light.

"The New Rialto theatre in Omaha is acting as a confidence-restorer for many exhibitors. Despite off and on days, this big theatre is steadily going up and will open about May 1, setting a new pace in motion picture affairs in the Middle West. We are to install two Powers machines, American auto-arcs, Newman frames and Minusa screen there. Manager Thomas looks forward confidently to a big financial success.

"I can see big prosperity in the future, in the immediate future, and I think it will not be many weeks until the exhibitors will not only see that prosperity, but will be realizing it."

Haystead Gets "Cleopatra" For Canada

Charles H. Haystead, general manager of Arrow Features Syndicate, Toronto, Canada, has purchased the Canadian rights to Cleopatra Film Company's independent feature, "Cleopatra," featuring Helen Gardner. Before leaving for Canada Mr. Haystead announced that four companies will be sent through the Dominion over the Small and Walker circuits.

Miss Gardner and her company, completed, last week, a number of additional scenes and owing to adverse weather conditions experienced by the company during taking of exteriors, the releasing date was postponed until last week. Miss Gardner has the title role. The story is a version of events happening during the life of the famous Egyptian queen.

The Cleopatra Film Company announces, also, that its feature has been booked for an extended run at the Paris theatre, one of the leading picture houses of Denver. Eighty twenty-four sheet posters in addition to small paper will be used to exploit this production.

"Carmen of Klondike" to Open at Strand

The Pioneer Film Corp., with offices at 130 West 46th street, New York City, will distribute in the New York territory the first State Rights Distributors, Inc., release "Carmen of the Klondike." The picture will be shown at the Strand theatre during the week of March 3, Managing Director Harold Edel being well pleased with the picture.

Fourteen Subjects in Gaumont-Mutual

Fourteen different subjects of news, all said to be interestingly pictured, are shown in the issue of Gaumont-Mutual No. 9, released February 24. In keeping with the times, many of these subjects deal with matters pertaining to the world war.

Foreign subjects show the graves where rest the first American soldiers who fell on French soil; French soldiers in the trenches and on the fighting line; and a remarkable engineering feat which has made possible a drawbridge so nicely balanced that it can be operated by one man.

"Don't Surrender," Says Berst

Pathe Official Warns Exhibitors Not to Sign Five-Year Non-Cancellable Contracts with a "Certain Organization of Producers"

IN an open letter headed "A Message to the Exhibitors of America," J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., sends a "Jack Johnson" over the trenches of "a certain organization of producers and distributors who," he says, "are scheming night and day to monopolize the motion picture industry." The special objective of Mr. Berst's attack is a five-year non-cancellable contract which, he states, the organization referred to will soon offer to exhibitors. He warns exhibitors that they are facing the most critical situation that has ever developed in the industry and advises them to "wake up in time and save themselves."

The letter follows:

Do you and all of your fellow exhibitors intend to surrender meekly to a certain organization of producers and distributors who, according to reliable information, are scheming night and day to monopolize the motion picture industry?

Do you want to be forced to sign a five-year non-calcellable contract that will place you and your business absolutely at the mercy of those who have already boosted the price of service from three to five hundred per cent?

Do you want to have your business policies, your admission prices and your service prices dictated to you by those who, thanks to YOUR indifference, will be placed by YOU in a position to close down your theatre and put you out of business if you do not submit to their demands?

These are the questions that you, Mr. Exhibitor, and all of your fellow exhibitors must answer right now—TO-DAY. For to-morrow may be too late. I give you my personal assurance that the situation you are facing to-day is the most critical that has ever developed in the motion picture industry, because an attempt will be begun within the next fifty days to force you to sign that new five-year contract.

The question you must answer is: Do you want to be your own boss or do you want to be bossed? For I warn you that if you permit present conditions to continue, a combination that is being daily strengthened by your support will within the next few months, force you to sign a five-year contract that will shackle you with bands of steel that you will not be able to break.

This combination is reported to be trying to corner all of the stars and all of the directors; all of the scenario writers and all of the motion picture authors. When they succeed in that, there will be no chance of escaping that five-year contract. AND THEY WILL SUCCEED UNLESS YOU, MR. EXHIBITOR, WAKE UP IN TIME AND SAVE YOURSELF.

But I have faith in the exhibitors. I believe that once they fully appreciate the danger of the situation, they will wrest themselves free from the monopoly that threatens to crush them. In this belief, I have inaugurated our new program of Pathe Plays, with some of the greatest stars and some of the greatest stories and plays the market affords. Every exhibitor who has seen our first three Pathe Plays releases—Innocent," "Loaded Dice" and "The Naulahka"—agree that never before have three features of such strength been released on any program.

We cannot continue to make features, however—and no other company can continue—unless it is with your support.

Having presented these facts to you, I sound this warning:

Unless our Pathe Plays program is supported by the exhibitors of the United States, we will cease making feature productions.

And when we cease, you may rest assured that within a very short time every other independent producing company will be forced to discontinue. Just stop a minute and realize what that means.

One company will absolutely monopolize the feature production—one company alone will have feature pictures. For five years at least you will have no selection. You will pay the price set for you. If you don't, your competitor will. You will sign a five-year contract with this monopoly, and then a real feature program trust will be a reality.

The plans are already formed, and it is generally reported that they are just biding their time—waiting until you exhibitors entrench them strongly enough to freeze out the independent producers.

I believe you are too good a business man to permit anything like this to happen. You would be sounding your own death knell. It would only be a question of time—and not a very long time either—when this monopoly controlled not only the feature picture but also your theatres—your business.

Already you have had a taste of high handed methods. Some of you have been arbitrarily forced to increase your admission prices to the danger point (many times beyond) to pay the high rental prices demanded. You know what the result has been. Business has fallen off and so have your profits.

We can't help you unless you help yourselves. Think it over. Your future and the future of the motion picture industry are in the balance.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

Friends Banquet William Fox

Eight Hundred and Fifty Attend Dinner Given as Testimonial to His Philanthropy and His Activities in Picture World

UPWARD of 850 men gathered in the grand ball room of the Hotel Astor on Sunday evening, February 24, at a dinner, organized by a committee of his friends, as a tribute to William Fox. The gathering was representative of the motion picture and theatrical world as well as the other branches of activity in which Mr. Fox has been engaged. The contributions of the guest of honor to the motion picture industry were fittingly celebrated, as was his success in the recent drive of the Federation of Jewish Philanthropic Societies for new members. Mr. Fox having led the team which enrolled the greatest number.

Prominent among the speakers were Felix M. Warburg and Supreme Court Justice Victor J. Dowling, the latter of whom presented a gold tablet, suitably inscribed, to the guest of honor. Mr. Warburg, who was associated with him in the recent membership drive, cited the fact that Mr. Fox's activities in Jewish charities dated from the time when he, a boy, was himself in the tender care of a Jewish hospital. He resolved then to repay the debt, Mr. Warburg said, and during the long years of his struggle to fortune he never forgot the resolution. Other speakers were George M. Cohan, Raymond Hitchcock, Rennold Wolf and Joseph Johnson. Charles Gehring was chairman of the committee which organized the dinner and Wilton Lackaye presided as toastmaster.

Arthur Brisbane, unable to be present, sent the following letter to Mr. Gehring which was read:

I regret extremely that it is not possible for me to attend the dinner in honor of Mr. Fox. I planned to go, reserving my accommodations on the train, and made an especial effort to do so. But I have recently undertaken the management of this newspaper in Washington, and I know that Mr. Fox, who has so many big enterprises on his hands, will realize that men are controlled by their work and its necessities.

It would have given me great pleasure to say in presence of Mr. Fox and his friends what I think concerning the industry to which he has devoted his energies, and through which he has usefully built up a very great fortune.

Better than the spoken word, infinitely better than the word written, the life-like moving picture talks directly to the brain.

Men have used the spoken word and written word for a few centuries only. They have used their eyes as men for a quarter of a million years—and for millions of years before that as animals.

The eye tells the mind INSTANTLY. The eye sees an entire picture, and all sides of any truth, moral or scientific.

To put good thoughts, noble actions, important truths into pictures that move, is to prepare food for the human brain—and there is no more important work than that.

Besides being an education, the moving picture offers the nation relaxation, at a time when it is needed, when the mind is tired and anxious.

The moving picture in its power of instant presentation is as much of an advance upon the printing press, as was the printing press upon the illumined manuscript, and the old hieroglyphics.

Mr. Fox is one of the few who have come through the rush and struggle of a new field of adventure with colors flying and success assured.

Those that appreciate the importance of the work in which he is a leader honor modern progress when they honor him.

I send to him through you my best wishes for continued useful work.

Among those present were Adolph Zukor, Jules Brulator, Harry Raver, Paul H. Cromlin, Hiram Abrams, Benjamin Schulberg, Herbert Blache, Edward Earle, Samuel Cassard, Arthur J. Lang, Samuel Goldfish, Edward Warren, Fred B. Warren, Alfred Weiss, R. A. Rowland, W. W. Irwin, W. W. Johnson, Al Kessel, E. D. Horkheimer, W. E. Greene, P. A. Powers, Harry Reichenbach, Winfield R. Sheehan, T. Lawrence Weber, C. F. Zittel, J. D. Williams, Harry Wilson, Maurice Tourneur, A. S. Kane, Arthur H. Friend and Harold Edel.

Local Discusses Live Issues

Members of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of America, New York State Local, No. 1, met Thursday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the pending legislation now before the State Legislature at Albany, relative to the admittance of minors to motion picture houses. New York State Senator S. A. Cotoillo was scheduled to address the meeting but sent word that he would not be able to attend. Senator Cotoillo introduced the bill in the Legislature.

John Manheimer, president of the local, and Sidney Asher, secretary, were appointed a committee of two to confer with Senator Cotoillo in reference to amending the bill as introduced. The matter of transportation of films was taken up at the meeting and discussed pro and con. It was decided to constitute a publicity department for the League. The Common Show License was discussed and a resolution was adopted to make the exhibitor pay $500 instead of the $25 which he now pays for retaining such license.

Those present were: John Manheimer, Brooklyn; Charles O'Reilly, Manhattan; Sol Coleman, Bronx; Benjamin Kelly, Queens; David Weinstock, Manhattan; Sidney Asher, Bronx; Morris Needle, Manhattan; Gus Koenigswald, Brooklyn; Haring, Isaac Hartstall, C. R. Mastineau, Charles Steiner, A. J. Wolf, William Hilkemeier, Otto Lederer, M. Oestreicher, Sydney S. Cohen, M. J. Gerson, Charles David Picker and Samuel Rhonheimer.

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Kessel?

Being a Glance at the Real Human Side of the Big Men of the Picture Game Caught in Action

By William A. Johnston

A. KESSEL, Jr., C. O. Bauman, Charles Kessel.

These are the names on the door of an office in the Longacre building, New York—an office that has played a very considerable part in the affairs of motion pictures.

The uninitiated, passing by, might suppose that A. Kessel, Jr., was some smart young man who had taken his uncle Chas. Kessel and one C. O. Bauman into partnership with him and was trying to edge into the picture business.

But those who know anything at all about pictures know of Kessel and Bauman—of Kay-Bee and Keystone and 101-Bison and Triangle and New York motion picture fame, and that far from edging into the business they have had a very large edge in it for the past eleven years—ever since in fact, they came up one day from Sheepshead Bay and discovered it.

And A. Kessel, Jr., is not Charley's nephew but his older brother; in fact Ad. is the older brother of all the Kessels, and an uncle to the film business. He's the man who put the Kay in Kay-Bee and the K into Keystone and a lot of other big things we can't mention here.

As we entered the office we spied a box marked "A. Kessel, Jr., Keeseville, N. Y."

As a reporter we are something of a sleuth if we do say it, not even taking off our hat to the famous boy sleuth of the business; and right away we scented a big story.

"Aha!" we said.

Then, right on top of Ad's desk almost as conspicuous as a copy of MOTION PITURE NEWS we sleuthed a book entitled "Modern Farming."

"Aha!" we said again.

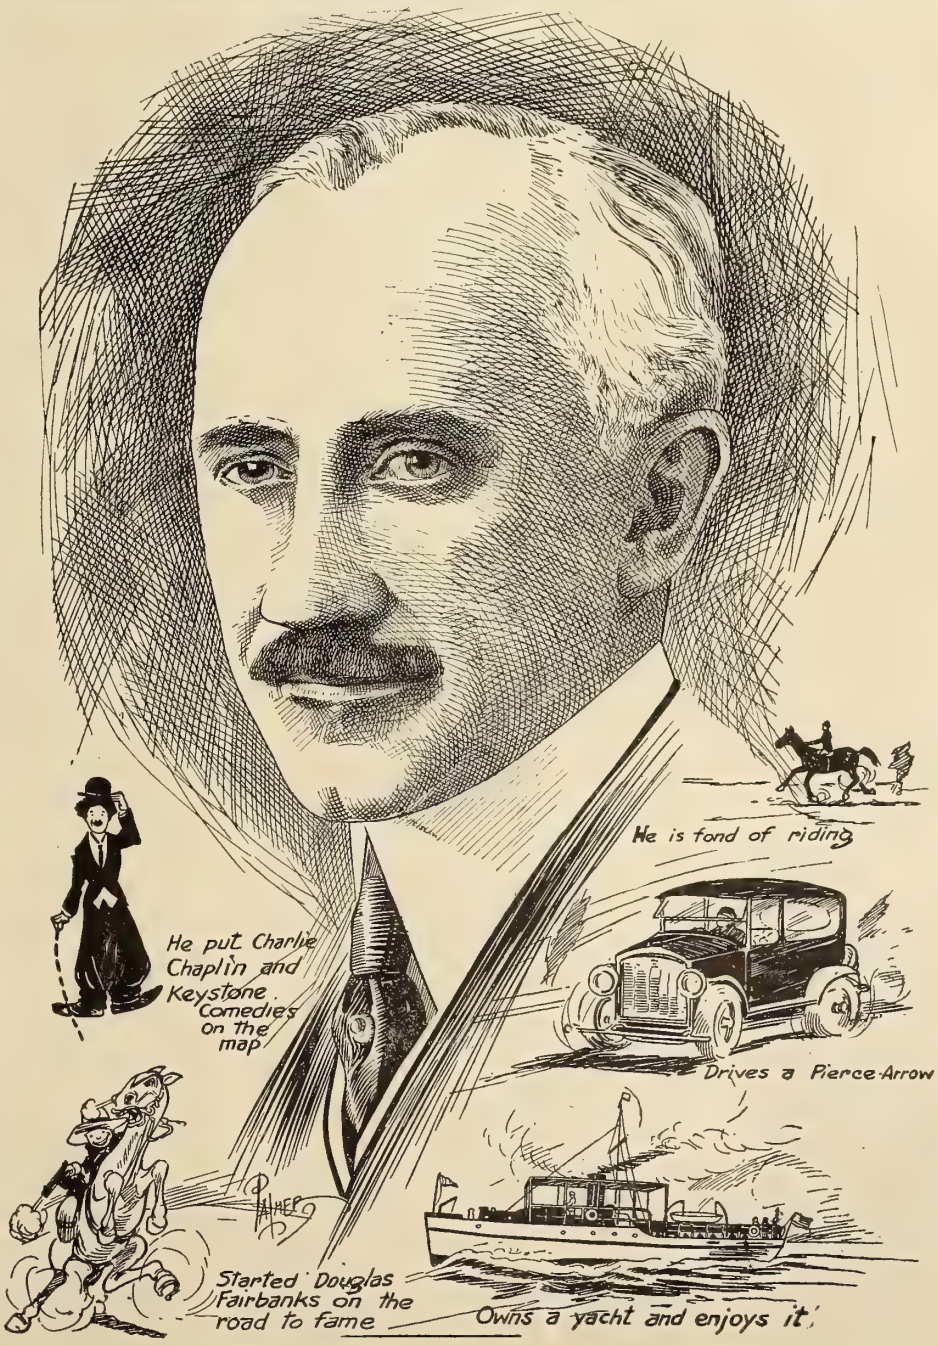
And then the truth came out.

Ad. Kessel has gone to the cows and chickens! Yessir!

Filmer once but farmer now! He's deep in it. You wouldn't say that he has hayseed in his hair; it seems to be inside his head. He started talking farm and we thought he'd never get to film.

"Were you born in the country" we asked, "that you enjoy it so much?"

"No," said Ad. honestly. "I was born in Brooklyn. But that's not for publication."



Ad. further admitted that he wasn't strong for the real old-fashioned country stuff—the old water trough and chilblains and cottage cheese and other inconveniences.

His place on the shores of Lake Champlain is modernized—electric lights, modern plumbing, push buttons, hot and cold water, hot and cold rum, hot and cold anything you want. You can press a button and turn on a light in the cow pasture, get a fresh egg by trolley from the hen house or order anything from a cocktail to a cabaret.

Ad. goes up there in his yacht, takes a crowd of at least sixteen fellows along, turns them loose and then sails back to Times Square and films.

He says he's mostly out of the film business (accounting thereby for his handsome estate and ability to maintain it). Perhaps we should say he's safely out. He'll never be wholly out.

But he's stopped working eighteen hours a day and he doesn't worry any more over stars' salaries. And he's done a lot of work and worrying of this kind.

Ad. Kessel, by the way, has been uncle to more stars than any other man in the business.

We started to count up the ones he brought into films.

"Well," said Ad., "there's Chaplin, Fairbanks — each did his first picture for us — Arbuckle, Mabel Normand, William S. Hart—"

"Mary Pickford?" we suggested.

"Well, Mary came to us from Biograph — that's when we owned the Reliance at 540 West 21st Street—Stanford White's old studio. We started in there with Arthur Johnson, James Kirkwood, Tony Sullivan, Henry Walthall, Marion Leonard, Gertrude Robinson —Then Mack Sennett came along and proposed making comedies. And a little later Thomas H. Ince came up from Florida where he had made a picture for Carl Laemmle and 'Doc' Willatt—

"And — well I can't count 'em all."

We referred to a call we once made on Mr. Kessel at which time we bumped into DeWolf Hopper in the elevator, stepped on Willie Collier's corns in the hall and on entering the office saw Eddie Foy—hat on side of his head—whispering confidentially to Mr. Kessel, Weber and Fields cracking jokes—real ones, and over in one corner Raymond Hitchcock talking to his own wife, Flora Zabelle.

(Continued on page 1420)

"What Kind of a Fellow Is —Kessel?"

(Continued from page 1419)

"It gives me a headache," said Mr. Kessel, "to think of them. They cost all the way from $2,600 to $6,000 a week."

We have spoken of A. Kessel, Jr., as uncle to many stars.

"Uncle" is right. He's the man who paid the bills. And he has stood a tremendous bombardment.

"Honestly, Johnston," said he, "I got so I couldn't open a telegram. I'd hand it to Charley and say: 'Here, read it. My heart is broken!'

"Why those fellows used to wire in: 'Send me $40,000 for next week's payroll.' And then along would come another: 'No, make it an even hundred thousand.' You know—just like you'd ask for a dime.'"

Kessel and Bauman have always been plungers. They plunged in pictures when others didn't dare; and they plunged right—almost always—because they made it their business to make pictures the public was hankering for. They worked night and day and they knew their business.

One day Bauman wired Kessel: "Can hire Miller's 101 Ranch for winter season at $2,100 a week."

That was back in the days of small expenditures and struggling bank accounts. When A. Kessel, Jr., got the telegram he fell backward out of his chair. Then he wired back: "If you think it's a good bet, take a chance."

That sentence tells the story of Kessel and Bauman.

And we close with it—though we could write all day about Ad. Kessel and what he knows about the making of pictures that pay.

St. Louis Looks for Big Spring Drive

A number of happy developments last week combined to lend a new impetus to the motion picture business in St. Louis. In the first place, the strike of 3,000 carmen was ended, thus enabling residents to get down to the big houses. Then the Fuel Board lifted the ban on all closing hours, and set aside all lighting orders save the Garfield lightless Thursday and Sunday proviso. The thermometer added a new joy when it broke the Winter snap that has lasted since two weeks before Christmas, and with balmy air, the snow, which had kept a good many movie fans indoors for eight weeks without a single break disappeared.

President Mogler of the St. Louis Exhibitors' League declares that the prospects for the early Spring are the most favorable in years. Frank R. Tate, head of the Cella-Tate Syndicate, controlling a string of the largest theatres, says that the prosperity of the film now anticipated will probably break all records since the Spring of 1915.

Denver Acclaims Hodkinson

Exhibitors Covering Big Territory in Several States Are "Tied In" in New Distribution Plan—Hodkinson on Coast

AFTER an absence of several years, W. W. Hodkinson arrived in Denver the other day for the purpose of entering into negotiations with the exhibitors there to effect the "tie-in" which is an important part of Mr. Hodkinson's new method of distribution.

He was met at the station by a number of exhibitors and was escorted to the Brown Palace hotel. There a banquet had been arranged in his honor, during the course of which Mr. Hodkinson was toasted as the man who had made the motion picture industry possible. Back in 1912, while connected with the General Film Company, Mr. Hodkinson brought about a complete change in exhibiting conditions in Denver. He increased the runs to two and three days where formerly the old daily change had prevailed. He also caused the admission prices to be increased from five to ten cents. It was only after a bitter fight that Mr. Hodkinson won his battle, however. At first the exhibitors failed to agree with him and fought him tooth and nail. In fact, so bitter became the fight that legal counsel was employed by the exhibitors to drive Mr. Hodkinson out of their territory, as they thought his ideas would mean their financial ruin. After a long struggle, he forced the exhibitors to accept his policies and then turned his attention to assisting and building up theatres that were losing money, into paying propositions. It was not until after Mr. Hodkinson had left Denver that what he had accomplished was appreciated, however, and then the exhibitors sent a petition to the New York office of the General Film Company asking that he be sent back to Denver. Today the exhibitors in the Denver territory swear by him.

Mr. Hodkinson spent only about twenty-four hours in Denver and during that time he closed the first "tie-in" of those he expects to effect all over the country. The territory affected by this arrangement includes all of Colorado, Wyoming, New Mexico and Utah, which will be known as zone fifteen. After consummating these arrangements in Denver, Mr. Hodkinson left for San Francisco where preliminary work has been done through the mail and it is expected that Mr. Hodkinson will have a portentous message for the trade within a few days.

Mr. Hodkinson expects to visit several exchange cities on his return East after his visit in California.

Camp Sherman Men Not to Lose Sunday Shows

Camp Sherman, the National Army cantonment at Chillicothe, Ohio, will continue to enjoy motion picture shows on Sundays, as the latest effort to suppress these shows has been frowned upon by Mayor Story, preachers, the military police and merchants of the city. This good news has been approved by the 20,000 soldiers now at Camp Sherman.

Rev. H. A. Straub of Ada, Ohio, tried to have the shows closed on Sundays. The Ministerial Association, in a report endorsed the Sunday movies.

The Scioto Gazette, in commenting upon the decision, said: "As long as the merchants and citizens of Chillicothe are of the opinion the shows should remain open on Sunday, Lieutenant Flora says they will be allowed to operate, unless the case is decided in court."

Educators See "Alice in Wonderland"

One of the topics scheduled to be discussed during the convention of the Department of Superintendence of the National Educational Association during the week of February 25 at Atlantic City, is the adaptation of motion pictures for the use of public schools. As a fitting subject to represent the discussion the Atlantic City Daily Press has selected "Alice in Wonderland." The editor, A. J. Feyl, has invited the educators to review this attraction at the Virginia theatre on Wednesday, February 25.

Sterling Corp'n Secures "The Natural Law"

The Sterling Picture Corporation, with offices in the Godfrey building, has secured through Arthur Beck, president of the corporation, the six-reel feature film owned by the France Films, Inc., titled "The Natural Law." Marguerite Courtnot, Howard Hall and George Larkin are among the featured members of the cast.

"The Natural Law" is a screen version of the play of that title originally produced by John Cort at the Republic theatre, New York. It prospered there for eight months during which over three hundred thousand theatregoers were thrilled by its story. It has also played in the majority of first-class theatres throughout the United States and Canada.

Appeal to Shipbuilders Through "U" Films

Edwin N. Hurley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board and president of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, made a flying trip to New York early last week, for the express purpose of conferring with the heads of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company relative to the part that organization is to play in helping the government obtain volunteers for shipbuilding.

Mr. Hurley's request for moving picture co-operation came as the result of his discovery of the assistance which Universal is now rendering the Fuel Service Commission, the Red Cross, Bureau of Public Information and other government departmental organizations.

News Notes from Canada

Quebec Raises War Tax One Cent

On Monday, February 11, the Quebec city authorities collected all the one-cent war tax tickets and replaced them with two-cent tickets, instructing the exhibitors to collect two cents on all tickets from five cents to twenty-five cents, inclusive. No previous notice whatever had been given that such action was to be taken, and the managers are of the opinion that the law governing the tax must have been changed over night.

The whole province of Quebec is affected by this order.

First National Announce Big Deals

Recently the First National Exhibitors' Circuit concluded two important deals—it closed for the United States rights to Herbert Brenon's "Fall of the Romanoffs," and for the distributing rights to "Tarzan of the Apes." Al H. Woods, acting for the Ilidor Picture Corporation, had made a thorough canvass of the distributing situation before deciding to place Mr. Brenon's drama of current Russian history in the hands of the First National. Since its successful Broadway run the Ilidor Company decided to add to the picture the most recent developments in the Russian situation, bringing the story up to date. The "Fall of the Romanoffs" has already been shown over Loew's New York circuit. The Canadian rights had been sold before the present deal was negotiated.

The release date awaits the completion of the large number of prints, on which the Rothacker plant is at present engaged. It will probably be set early in March, it is announced.

Earl Rodney Again with Enid Bennett

In view of Earl Rodney's individual success as leading man to Enid Bennett in her first two Thomas H. Ince productions, released under the Paramount trade-mark, this young actor will again appear opposite the star in her third picture, the title of which has not as yet been decided upon.

Rodeo Feature of Roy Stewart Play

What Triangle claims is one of the most thrilling rodeos ever seen in a "Western" is shown in Roy Stewart's newest subject, "Faith Enduring'," which Cliff Smith directed. Scores of spectators were present at the filming to see the Triangle cowboys ride outlaw horses and mules at the ranch studio, Hartville.

Flash-backs of Canada

Each Thursday night the Princess theatre in Calgary, Alta., has been giving away a whole ton of coal as a prize to the holder of a lucky number. American exhibitors would like to know how their Canadian brother manages to get the coal.

Sam Gibson, a well-known exhibitor of Montreal, who has likewise had long exchange experience, has joined the staff of Metro in the Quebec city.

L. Ernest Ouimet, president and general manager of Specialty Film Import, Ltd., Pathe distributors in Canada, recently made a trip to New York in connection with Fannie Ward's "Innocent."

The Francais theatre, Montreal's East End theatre, has booked first run ot the new Chaplin releases, handled in Canada by Metro for First National.

Manager O'Connell, of the Academy of Music, Halifax, had to think quickly during a reecnt evening performance to quiet his audience when a street car dashed down a hill and struck the box office.

An agitation has been started in Quebec City for the closing of all motion picture theatres on Sunday. Exhibitors have already won a point in this issue, but local influences are trying to get the houses closed.

Some important improvements are being made at the Empress, Amherst, N. S., owned by F. G. Spencer, of St. John. The arcade is being floored over, to give more space. Waiting and smoking rooms will be added.

Alfred Gaudet has accepted the management of the Gem theatre, Frederickton, N. B. He has lately been traveling representative for Famous Players in St. John.

Word from Truro, N. B., advises the coal shortage has been very acute throughout Eastern Canada, and many of the theatres have felt the pinch. The Princess in Truro closed recently until coal is again available.

Archie Mason, manager of the Opera House in Wolfville, N. S., has been doing remarkably well on features. He recently finished with "Joan the Woman" and voiced himself well pleased with business.

Rumor is current in Canada that Marcus Loew will erect four theatres in Eastern Canada. The St. Denis, in Montreal, may also go to Loew, it is rumored.

The city council of Saskatoon, Sask, has decided that the motion picture theatres must pay higher licenses for the privilege of operating in that western city. Houses seating more than a thousand will pay $250, an increase of $100. Smaller theatres will pay $50 more than formerly.

Winnipeg, Man., has had a strong discussion as to whether or not motion picture theatres would be permitted to remain open Sundays for benefit and patriotic performances. The quarrel seems to be evenly divided.

The first woman in the province of Saskatchewan to receive a provincial license to operate a projection machine is Mrs. Art. Pelletier, wife of the exhibitor at Estuary who operates the Sunset.

"Damaged Goods," the film dealing with a problem that confronts authorities looking after Canadian soldiers, will likely be shown to the men under arms throughout Ontario. A print of the film has been in Ontario for some time, and an attempt was made to have the picture passed by the censors over a year ago, but without success.

The food controller of Canada is co-operating closely with the film trade in the effort to teach Canadians how to cut down on their food waste. Film men of the Dominion have formed the Motion Picture Distribution Committee, and are circulating films dealing with the food question.

Arrow Features Opens in Toronto

Another film-distributing company has taken the field in Canada. This time it is the Arrow Features Syndicate, which has opened up head offices in Toronto, with Charles Haystead as general manager.

The new company has secured the Canadian rights to "The Eyes of the World" and "Ramona." They also have for sale the Canadian rights to "Persuasive Peggy," "Souls Redeemed" and "Weavers of Life." Mr. Haystead is one of the best-known theatrical men in that country, and previous to his entry into the film business was interested with the A. J. Small stage productions in Canada.

Soskin Visits Montreal

I. Soskin, general sales manager of the Famous Players Film Service in Canada, and his secretary are spending two months in Montreal. This is in line with the firm's plan of studying carefully conditions as they exist with the exhibitor.

Director Apfel Stages World Feature

Oscar C. Apfel, the well known director, has signed a contract with World Film Corporation, that organization announced this week, and will direct Kitty Gordon in a forthcoming feature as his first contribution to the World program. Apfel and his company are scheduled to leave at once for the South to get the exteriors of the picture, called "Her Great Moment."

Director Apfel has a number of excellent productions to his credit, among them "The Turn of a Card" and "A Man's Man," with J. Warren Kerrigan, and other features.

Ruth Roland In Pathe's "The Price of Folly"

ANNOUNCING the selection of the Exhibitors Service Bureau Advisory Board

Leading Exhibitors to Cooperate For Service to Fellow Workers

With the next issue the MOTION PICTURE NEWS will announce the names of an Advisory Board of some fifteen of the leading exhibitors of the Nation who will give such of their time as is necessary for the benefit of their fellow showmen.

Since the inauguration of the Exhibitors Service Bureau there has been a wonderful response to our plea for co-operation. Never in the history of this industry, and seldom in the history of any industry, have such a representative group of the leaders come forward and given the results of their work and their experiences to the trade.

On invitation of the NEWS these gentlemen have now consented to go still further in this work. They will not be responsible for matter regularly appearing in the Service Bureau, but the columns of this paper are to be open to them for any expression of disagreement with policies we advocate, for any suggestions of their own and for answers to any inquiries of exhibitors everywhere.

Next week will appear the first of the names of these men. This list will be added to from time to time. They represent various sections of the country and they are typical of the men who are doing the big things today. They are the thinkers and the workers. It is a remarkable privilege for a publication to be able to call upon them for their assistance—a labor of love they are doing for the good of their fellow exhibitors.

Watch for this announcement next week. It is a new step forward. It is one of the greatest progressive movements that has ever been recorded in any industry.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

LAST MINUTE BOX OFFICE REPORTS

Brown of Harvard (Selig—K. E. S. E.)—"Great! Opened on a Wednesday and held it over for the full week." (Extra big business.)

Cleopatra (Theda Bara—Fox)—"Advanced prices on this—50c., 75c. and $1—week run." (Extra big business.)

The Hopper (William V. Mong—Triangle)—"Good picture, poor title." (Average business.)

Jack Spurlock, Prodigal (George Walsh—Fox)—"Star makes this go big; Sat. Post story not so great, but brought in many new faces." (Big business.)

Les Miserables (William Farnum—Fox)—"Easily Farnum's greatest, fine direction, sure box-office." (Extra big business.) "Great story, great production." (Big business.)

The Light Within (Madame Petrova—First National)—"Can't see this one (no pun intended); not kind of story for Petrova." (Average business.)

Limousine Life (Olive Thomas—Triangle)—"Olive is always a money-getter." (Big business.) "Dandy picture." (Big business.)

Loaded Dice (Frank Keenan—Pathe)—"Keenan's work great, not popular type story. However, ought to have done better; comments good. (Average business.)

A Mother's Sin (Earle Williams—Vitagraph)—"Not up to standard, but star got it over." (Average business.)

The Other Man (Harry Morey—Vitagraph)—"Good picture. Morey popular." (Average business.)

Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy—Goldwyn)—"Snappy comedy, Madge the whole show. Nice picture, clever little star." (Big business.)

Son of Democracy—My Mother (Chapin—Paramount)—"Good patriotic feature for variety program; first chapter went big." (Big business.)

The Song of Songs (Elsie Ferguson—Paramount)—"This star coming, big advertising possibilities in this one, though picture far from a knockout." (Big business.)

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ALIMONY (Lois Wilson—First National)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Nicely presented play that thoroughly pleased our patrons." "Good." "Very acceptable." "Nice business, star's work liked."
AMERICAN WIDOW, AN (Ethel Barrymore—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good, clean, average business getter." "Good, but patrons like Ethel Barrymore in dramatic roles better" (N.). "Good entertainment" (S.). "Average picture" (W.). "Don't care for her in this" (N.). "Very good" (N.). "Why put Barrymore in young girl parts?" (W.).
AVENGING TRAIL (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very pleasing play." "Good picture, beautiful scenes, good photography—Lockwood a drawing card." "Unsuited to star." "Too rough, not up to "standard." "Fair." "People like this star dressed up." "Would please average audience, star always good."
BARGAIN, THE (Wm. S. Hart Re-issue—W. H. Prod.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Went over as good as any Hart we have ever played." "Excellent Hart picture."
BEAUTIFUL MRS. REYNOLDS, THE (Elvidge-Blackwell—World)	Poor	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Very ordinary." "Not up to usual standard of this pair."
BECAUSE OF A WOMAN (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good show." "Pleasing picture, but would stand more trimming." "Good but too long for story." "Very good."
BETTY TAKES A HAND (Olive Thomas—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good." "Not great, but pleasing." "This star is dependable; fair story." "Audience liked it."
BLIND ADVENTURE, THE (Edw. Earle—Vit.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Above average program release." "Good picture, very good business." "Satisfactory, liked it o.k."
BLUE JEANS (Viola Dana—Metro)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Viola Dana at her best, great—good picture but didn't get any money with it" (N.). "One of their best pictures, great drawing card" (W.). "Dana always good" (S.). "Will go over if advertised big—picture is there" (E.).
BROADWAY LOVE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Dorothy Phillips is gaining friends fast here" (S.).
BROWN OF HARVARD (Selig—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—well liked" (S.). "Very acceptable subject, a little different" (E.).
CINDERELLA MAN, THE (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Big	Big	Extra	Big	"Kind that pleases all." "Best Marsh release." "A very good picture." "Best Goldwyn since 'Polly.'" "Great—we want more like this." "Goldwyn's best so far." "Great." "Excellence of this picture brought added business second day, though star not popular yet." "We want more of this kind, everybody liked it." "This should give Mae Marsh a start here—lots of favorable comment." (For further comment, see issue of Feb. 9.)
CONVICT 773 (Mrs. Castle—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Picture good for a convict story, and photography fine."
CUPID'S ROUND-UP (Tom Mix—Uni.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Some swell picture—Tom Mix great." "Dandy title, clever work of star, too. Nice picture."
DAUGHTER OF DESTINY (Madame Petrova—First Nat.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good, though too little action, no punch,—however, is the best she has ever appeared in" (W.). "Simply terrible" (E.). "'Petrova's best,' was the comment of my audience" (W.). "Fair drawing card" (E.). "Scenery and costumes unexcelled" (E.). "Did not appeal to all, but decidedly better than recent Petrovas." "Money wasted." "Some good points, but on whole disappointing; supporting cast and production good."
DAUGHTER OF THE GODS (Annette Kellermann—Fox St.)	Big	Extra	Extra	Big	"Broke all records" (S.). "Good box-office attraction, could boost it big—it's well worth it" (N.).
DAYBREAK (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, story well carried with a good climax." "Very good, star liked." "Good—the song a gem." "Star not popular here." "Good story, strong cast, good photography." "Good picture." "Good, but padded too much." "Not even interesting."
DIAMONDS AND PEARLS (Kitty Gordon—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Good." "Very ordinary."
DODGING A MILLION (Mabel Normand—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Something different, and they liked it." "Another feather in Goldwyn's cap." "Only an average picture." "Normand fits role well, fine story." "Should make more of this kind." "Very pleasing picture, star has 'come back,' elaborately produced."
EYES OF MYSTERY, THE (Edith Storey—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good picture" (S.). "Very good, lots of punch" (W.). "Dandy star, some of her best work in this" (N.).
FIELDS OF HONOR (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Morbid, uninteresting" (S.). "Fine, very well liked by '400' class" (E.). "A disappointment here" (E.). "Not a popular subject" (E.).
FIGHTING GRIN, THE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"Below Bluebird-Farnum standard." "Poor picture for Bluebird."
FLARE-UP SAL (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Big feature, big business" (N.). "Dalton fine in this; Ince style direction shows to advantage" (E.). "A bit rough for Paramount" (S.).
FOR LIBERTY (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Very good picture." "Fine picture, good business." "Timely subject, good." "Star has drawing power" (W.). "Good" (N.). "Story great, star weak" (N.).
GERMAN CURSE IN RUSSIA (Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good of its kind." "Fair." "Timely, went over very well."
GHOSTS OF YESTERDAY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star well liked." "Star better than ever—corking good production." "Another pleasing Talmadge production." "Fine picture; Norma Talmadge not yet very well known here" (W.).

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
GIRL BY THE ROADSIDE (Violet Mersereau—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Better than her last" (E.). "Good" (W.). "Fair picture." "Very good." "Drew exceptionally well" (W.).
GOOD FOR NOTHING, THE (Blackwell-Greeley—W.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture." "Average picture." "Fair program picture."
GOWN OF DESTINY, THE (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Ave.	"Very good, but didn't draw." "No end—four different stories."
HEART OF A LION (Wm. Farnum—Fox St.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Getting back to his old drawing power." "Very good picture." "Good picture." "Best picture we ever ran." "Work of star fine." "Big business in face of a blizzard and 36 below." "Can always bank on Farnum, but this one of his very best." "Fine."
HEART OF ROMANCE, THE (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Ave.	"A very poor picture, far from being up to Fox standard." "Very ordinary." "Nothing to this one."
HEART'S REVENGE, A (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor draw." "Poor production." "Some liked it, only fair business."
HIGH SIGN, THE (Herb. Rawlinson—Uni.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good, great." "Took well with my audience."
HIRED MAN, THE (Chas. Ray—Para.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Very good picture" (N.). "Great—very good" (E.).
HIS ROBE OF HONOR (H. B. Walthall—Paralta)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too heavy" (W.). "Walthall's acting wonderful—nobody like him, I think; more like this and he will surely make good, but title too much like costume play" (S.). "Too much court and parlor stuff—give Walthall a real part like 'The Little Colonel' (N.). "Fair picture" (W.).
HIS OWN PEOPLE (Morey, Leslie—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard" (S.).
HONEYMOON, THE (Const. Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Very pleasing picture, clever direction." "Not as good as Scandal." "Good picture."
IMPOSTOR, THE (Ann Murdock—Mut.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Very poor production."
IN BAD (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not as good as some of his others" (E.). "Very good, big business; can always count on Russell" (E.). "Fair picture" (W.).
IN THE BALANCE (Earl Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"The usual Earl Williams picture; pleases some, but star does not vary recently in his characterizations." "Biggest business we have ever done on Williams" (S.). "Excellent; gave entire satisfaction." "Publicity of 'The Hillman,' from which it is taken, will get the money if exploited properly." "Goodpicture." "A well liked picture." "Best Williams picture in two years." "A dandy."
INNOCENT (Fannie Ward—Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Started off with a bang, should have run it a week, best Pathe we ever had—photography too dark, everything else o.k." (E.). "Fannie looks ten years younger than other pictures; clean, nice picture—patrons liked it." "Excellent, a real picture." "Ward is there, with the right stuff."
INTOLERANCE (Griffith Sp. Prod.)	Extra	Extra	Big	Extra	"Best ever made" (W.). "Had to keep open till 1.30 A.M. opening night to accommodate the large crowd." "Greatest of all motion picture spectacles" (N.). "Sure went over big here" (E.). "Impressed, but over heads here; didn't get the money" (S.).
JULES OF THE STRONG HEART (Geo. Beban—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beban's best." "A fine picture but he does not draw here" (S.). "Extra good" (N.). "Pleased, one of his best."
KINGDOM OF LOVE, THE (Jewel Carmen—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good attraction" (S.). "Does not draw" (E.). "No drawing card" (W.). "Fair business, good picture." "Poor title, stereotyped dance-hall-girl-parson story." "Seemed to please everyone" (W.). "Picture and star enjoyed by our patrons" (E.). "Same old dance hall" (N.).
LAND OF PROMISE (Billie Burke—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Has the merit of being different, only my patrons did not care for the story "Opinion divided. Just a fair picture and average drawing card." "Fair picture." "Well done and pleased." "Fair." "Extra good picture." "Star charming as usual, but story fails to please; with slight change in last reel would go big." "Cast and play pleased."
LEARNIN' OF JIM BENTON (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"A good Western drama." "Poor production." "Good picture if Hart had played title role." "Average picture."
MADAME JEALOUSY (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Big	"People didn't know what to think of this; expected something quite different. Why don't they give Frederick a real play?" (E.). "Frederick fine, picture disappointed" (N.). "More like this and 'nay, nay, Pauline'" (S.).
MADAM WHO? (Bessie Barriscale—Paralta)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very good picture, well liked—just a little too long" (N.). "Very good Barriscale" (E.). "Good production; Paraltas could cut subjects to advantage; five reels enough" (S.).
MAN ABOVE THE LAW (Jack Richardson—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, pleased—50-50 on comments."
MAN'S MAN, A (Warren Kerrigan—Paralta)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Our patrons said this was the best picture we ever had in the house" (S.). "Very fine production" (W.). "Went over very big" (N.). "Kerrigan's best production." "Well liked, better second day" (N.). "Excellent picture." "Pleased, but did not have box-office drawing power; his next one will" (E.). "Best Kerrigan has ever had" (S.).
MARIONETTES, THE (C. K. Young—Sel.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very wonderful." "Good picture." "Fair business, nothing extra."
MENACE, THE (C. Griffith, E. Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—both are going to make stars." "Fair production."
MISS JACKIE OF THE ARMY (Margarita Fischer—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A pleasing little picture—not big." "Fair, not good business-getter." "Bad—not much." "This star never draws with us" (N.). "Good, people liked it very much" (N.).
MODERN MUSKETEER, A (Doug. Fairbanks—Art.)	Extra	Extra	Extra	Extra	"Splendid, a knockout" (E.). "Best Fairbanks yet" (S.). "Best thing Doug. has done." "Very satisfactory feature from every standpoint." "First good laughs we have heard in our theatre in some time." "Best of Fairbanks to date." "Fairbanks' best." "Great business." "Best liked of all." "Best yet." "His best."
MRS. DANE'S DEFENSE (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Very good." "Excellent picture, but hardly a show for the tired business man." "Good production; story did not register." "Very good picture, but expected more from Pauline." "Unsatisfactory ending—leading man not popular here." Frederick needs something more suited to her former stunning work."
MY LITTLE BOY (Ella Hall—Blue.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Fine Christmas picture, pleased everyone." "One of the best Bluebird has made." "Everyone satisfied, splendid cast, went over big in high class locality." "Fine feature." "Beautiful, very well liked."
MY UNMARRIED WIFE (Carmel Myers—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent, pleased everybody."
NAN OF MUSIC MOUNTAIN (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good." "In a dress suit would make a bigger hit." "Very good." "Exciting Western with very pleasing effects." "Great picture." "Extra good show" (W.). "Star and play both good." "Good Western, Reid well liked." "Not a good story for Reid."
NEW YORK LUCK (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "This star always pleases." "Very good." "Clever stuff, well done."
OTHER WOMAN, THE (Peggy Hyland—Pathe)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"A good picture, they liked this."
PETTICOAT PILOT, A (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Star becoming popular." "Martin is gaining; a few more like this, please." "Kind of story this star should have."
PRICE OF A GOOD TIME (Jewell Production)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Very excellent" (W.). "Pleased everybody, but not easy to get them in" (W.). "Fine production, title makes some people stay away, gets others in" (E.). "Classy; wonderful production." "One of the best pictures of the season, full of heart interest, with a good moral."
PRIDE OF NEW YORK, THE (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"This is a dandy." "Great favorite here." "Ran close second to Fairbanks 'Reaching for Moon.'" "Fast gaining in popularity in all our houses." "Great show." "Star always pleases." "Picture full of punch." "Fine picture, lots of 'kick'." "Very good picture." "Geo. Walsh is Fox's best star." "Walsh at his best, good as any Fairbanks."
RAFFLES (John Barrymore—State Rights)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great picture, one of the best of its kind ever seen here" (E.). "First class; big; better than expected even" (N.).
RED, WHITE AND BLUE BLOOD (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bushman and Bayne are coming back strong." "Very good picture." "Good—good business getter." "Classy picture, mighty good entertainment." "Bushman's best." "Good picture, well liked, stars are drawing better" (W.). "Very good picture."
RIMROCK JONES (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Rest of the show saved the day for this one." "Ordinary." "They liked Reid." "Good star, fair picture."
ROSE OF THE BLOOD (Elsie Ferguson—Art.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Her best picture so far, my people say." "Good star, poor story." "Too much art, too little behind it; does not hang together to hold interest, somehow." "Away above the average. A1 product" (N.).
RUNAWAY ROMANY (Marion Davies—Pathe Sp.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very pretty picture, beautiful scenes, star good." "Fair picture, but wrong kind of story to draw big." "Fair story."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
SCARLET CAR, THE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Rather see Farnum in comedy." "Not up to standard of Bluebirds and Franklyn Farnum."
SECRET GAME, THE (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Great, one of Jap's best yet." "Dandy picture, very interesting" (N.). "Good enough picture, star does not draw here" (N.). "Excellent picture" (W.). "Regular Hayakawa stuff." "Very good." "Timely picture, Jap a favorite" (N.).
SEVEN SWANS, THE (Marguerite Clark—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"An excellent Christmas fairy tale." "Excellent photography." "Good matinees, poor evenings." "Very good picture of its kind, well suited to women and kiddies." "Draws for children mostly—children's pictures keep away an adult patronage." "Great holiday bill for kids." "A very fine picture." "Tired of star in baby pictures." "Biggest Clark day." "Good, but too childish."
SHIP OF DOOM, THE (Triangle)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very gruesome show." "Poor title." "Not an entertaining picture."
SPIRIT OF '17 (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing, big business" (S.). "Mawkish and obvious" (W.). "Tom Sawyer helped this star, good business" (W.). "Very fair." "Jack a comer, not much picture, but timely."
SQUARE DECEIVER, THE (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Lockwood always draws." "Much better than average." "Good picture." "Very pleasing picture." "Production good, star a good card." "Lockwood at his best." "Very good." "Well liked." "Good picture, didn't draw." "Excellent, like Lockwood in this kind." "Good picture." "All enjoyed this play." "Excellent comedy drama, good second day business." "Very good picture." "Kind that brings 'em back."
STELLA MARIS (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Pickford proves herself to be an actress" (E.). "Wonderful picture, almost too much dependent on fine acting, however, not a story people can get excited over" (S.). "Too morbid for my people" (W.). "Certainly great work for this star, some contrast with last one." "Splendid picture, best Mary has ever done from an artistic standpoint—as a box-office attraction did not come anywhere near 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.'" "Mary will never do better, story peculiar; surely this one will help star's drawing power for next picture." "One of her best." "Splendid picture, but not strong enough for two weeks' run." "Mary has never equalled this one." "Double exposure stuff marvelous."
STOLEN HONOR (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good story, poor photography." "Average picture." "Only fair picture—good star wasted." "Very ordinary picture." "Good picture but terrible photography, impossible to read titles." "Attractive cast, big business, ordinary picture."
STRONG WAY, THE (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Interest well sustained."
THAIS (Mary Garden—Gold.)	Extra	Extra	Extra	Extra	"Record for the house—wonderful production, remarkable achievement even for Goldwyn" (S.). "Big business, but not as good second day" (W.). "Well liked, big business at advanced prices." "Wonderful—went over some of their heads" (E.). "A knockout" (S.). "Pleased some, others thought it rotten; costume stuff don't please here—extraordinary business" (N.). "Weather awful—business great" (S.). "Story not liked" (S.). "Did not please but drew tremendous business." "Excellent." "Big business, but did not please average fan." "Not liked by our audience." "A very good picture." "Went over big on name, many adverse comments." "Sure got the money."
TOM SAWYER (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bully picture, had us guessing to handle the crowds." "Excellent—pleased greatly." "The kind we need more of—play it." "Everybody liked this picture." "Great—a winner." "Intend to repeat this one, when weather gets warmer, and believe will set record." "Great picture." "His best—pleased greatly." "Very fine; this kind of subject will put Jack Pickford on the top."
UNEASY MONEY (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"High class comedy, our patrons enjoyed it." "Seems to strike a popular chord—good picture." "Very good picture."
UNTIL THEY GET ME (Pauline Hart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Unknown star hurt the picture." "Good picture, but didn't draw." "Good." "Pleased—star not known."
UP OR DOWN (Geo. Hernandez—Tri.)					"Very poor picture" (N.). "Fair, that's all" (N.). "Fair production" (W.) "Rotten" (W.). "Entertaining comedy drama" (W.).
VOLUNTEER, THE (Madge Evans—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fine picture." "Not real big drawing card, but one of the most pleasing to date." "Not attractive for downtown house; kiddie picture." "Great picture for houses running World—Madge Evans not liked here."
WIDOW'S MIGHT, THE (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Clean, excellent novelty." "Fine, one of his best." "Eltinge best in this so far." "Better business than last one, Eltinge improving as draw."
WILD STRAIN, THE (Shipman, Whitman—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A fine picture, no star to draw." "Slow at beginning—as a whole fine." "Excellent production."
WINDING TRAIL, THE (Viola Dana—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big.	"Star growing more popular with each release" (S.). "Not liked" (E.). "Very pretty picture" (W.). "Good business this" (S.). "Fair—did not make hit with our audience" (N.). "Very unusual picture, peculiar ending. Good" (W.). "Very fine, excellent plot, Dana's work great." "Good Western setting picture."
WOLVES OF THE RAIL (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Would have broken record but for blizzard" (W.). "Good as Hart has done lately, railroad stuff splendid." "Hart 'fans' seemed to like this one." "Hart as the bandit—nuf sed." "Very good Hart subject."
WOMAN AND WIFE (Alice Brady—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Star a good favorite" (S.). "Enough to say 'Up to Select standard'." (S.).
WORLD FOR SALE, THE (Blackton—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"A very funny picture to make out, poor drawing card" (E.). "Not much picture for Blackton" (S.).

Box Office Service!

¶ These Box Office Reports and our Exhibitor Service Bureau are evidence of the effort that Motion Picture News is putting forth to give you real Box Office Service.

¶ We have other plums in store for you. And they too will be Box Office Aids.

¶ A few will be announced next week. Watch for them!

¶ Then let us know what you think of our Box Office Service. And what else you want—

¶ We'll give it to you!

Exhibitor Service Bureau

What Salt Lake City Papers Do

First of a Series of Talks About Co-operation in Motion Picture News and Advertising

IN the course of the various discussions of advertising in these columns we have had occasion to refer to the co-operation between newspapers and theatres in certain cases. Naturally conditions vary in different cities, but in our opinion a great deal of the prosperity of the future depends on just this co-operation and we are going to present here from time to time a discussion of conditions as they appear in various cities. These discussions are written largely from an examination of the newspapers themselves and a study of the advertising that is paid for by the theatres and the matter that the newspapers give free. It is possible that some errors will creep into these articles, but because it is the impression, the effect upon the public that we want to interpret, we prefer to look at the conditions as they appear to be rather than to attempt to go into these local conditions.

In some cities the theatres and the newspapers are co-operating loyally and to the financial benefit of all concerned. In others the theatres themselves are to blame, because they use the smallest amount of space that they can get away with and then insist that the newspapers give them a lot of free matter. In a small minority of cases the newspapers refuse to co-operate with any considerable extent and the theatre manager has practically to purchase all the space that he does get. Such newspapers as are pursuing this policy are generally relics of the days of ultra dignity or under the influence of editors who hold that the motion picture has no part among the arts of the day. These are gradually disappearing. In fact, we know of the case of one paper in a principal city where the editors declared that if they had their way not a piece of motion picture matter would enter their columns. A younger and liver paper took this hint and went into the motion picture co-operation with vigor and effect—so much that the older paper was soon glad for a chance to reverse its position and make an appeal for this patronage.

There are two other things that will enter into all of these discussions and which will come up with more or less vigor as various cities are treated. First is, that some newspapers fail to see the value of motion picture news from a circulation point of view. They are willing to give pages to baseball and other sports, because they are convinced that the reader interest is there and because they have to print this matter to sell their papers. Yet, from this matter, they derive practically no revenue from the sports themselves. For instance, the money that the local baseball club spends in its advertising is not a drop in the bucket to the pages of free publicity it gets. But the newspaper prints this, not because of any philanthropic desire to help out the local owners, but because the paper knows that it has to print it. Yet there are hundreds who go to the motion picture to every one that sees a ball game.

There are few papers who look upon motion picture matter as news. We believe that it would pay every paper in the country to devote a certain amount of space every week to motion picture NEWS, whether they get a cent of advertising return or not. We believe that the reader interest justifies it. But that is on ideal. What we are seeking to get at here is the way to better conditions, both for the exhibitor and for the newspaper.

There are two reasons for this failure to print NEWS. In the first place the publicity men have been to blame. Up to a couple of years ago it was almost impossible for the newspapers that wanted to co-operate to get anything but a lot of bunk, exaggeration and bad copy. When it was discovered in the trade that a lot of newspapers were waking up to the public interest in pictures, it seems that a great portion of the men who were doing the publicity, or the bosses themselves, welcomed this as an opportunity to put over the most glaring sort of free advertising, false statements and tiresome drivel. "Publicity" matter was written largely from the point of view of what the president of the company wanted to see printed, not from the viewpoint of what the reader wanted to know. We know, as a matter of fact, that motion picture editors then had to BEG for the sort of matter that they wanted—and in the majority of cases they didn't get it.

Another great drawback in the way of proper co-operation the exhibitor is responsible for. He is content when he gets a highly-adjectived notice of his own theatre. He either doesn't know or doesn't realize that the public is not misled by this sort of bunk and that one paragraph of indirect advertising matter with the NEWS element in it would do his theatre more good than columns of this bunk that few read and none believe. And so the average exhibitor is satisfied if the paper gives him the free reading notices and calls doing that running a motion picture department.

With these general remarks, and many others of similar character that will come up week after week, let us look at the situation as it exists in Salt Lake City.

Because of the more or less of romance that surrounds the city, one, offhand, would call this one of the largest cities of the country, but, as a matter of fact, in 1910 it had a census population of 92,777. There are four daily papers published there:

Deseret News—Afternoon daily, except Sunday, with main edition Saturday.

Herald-Republican; morning, daily and Sunday.

Telegram—Afternoon daily and Sunday morning.

Tribune—Morning, daily and Sunday.

On the opposite page we have printed specimen pages of these pages, both the Sunday and week-day issues.

In the top row we have printed two of the Sunday pages from the Tribune, and at the right one of the daily pages. In order to save space we have pasted over the center pages the advertising of the Paramount-Empress and the Rialto theatres as they appeared on still a third page. You will note that this paper makes no distinction between the motion picture houses and the legitimate, and that all the matter is printed under the head of "At the Theatres." It has been our experience that it is much better where you can get a separate motion picture page and where you can separate the advertising from those of the other houses. But the Tribune jumbles all of this matter together and the page consists largely of reading notices, yet toward the end there are a few news items about the players. These are carried along without any head, leaving it to the reader to begin at the star and read all the way through, a mighty bad theory to work on from the point of view of benefit to the picture house. Now for the benefit of those who are not familiar with advertising, it should be stated that the "reading notice" is a relic of the days of the beginning of advertising—of the days when every man who spent any money for an ad expected the editor to give him a free "write-up." It has held on in the amusement field alone, but it has resulted in the rate for amusement advertising being made higher than the regular rates, to compensate for the "free" space. Now these reading notices are essential and we don't want to be understood as indicating that we would sugest their elimination. They are very valuable when properly written—when the bunk and exaggeration are left out and they are made as nearly news as possible.

There are five cuts used by the Tribune and only one of these, that of Mabel Normand, is a motion picture player.

Advertisements of the Paramount-Empress, Rialto, Liberty and Broadway appear in this paper, a total of 66 inches of display.

Now look at the page at the right of the top row, a copy of the Wednesday morning issue. Many of the Salt Lake theatres are liberal advertisers during the week. In this issue Paramount-Empress and Liberty both use three inches double-column, Rialto three inches triple-column and Broadway two inches single. Now,

(Continued on page 1429)

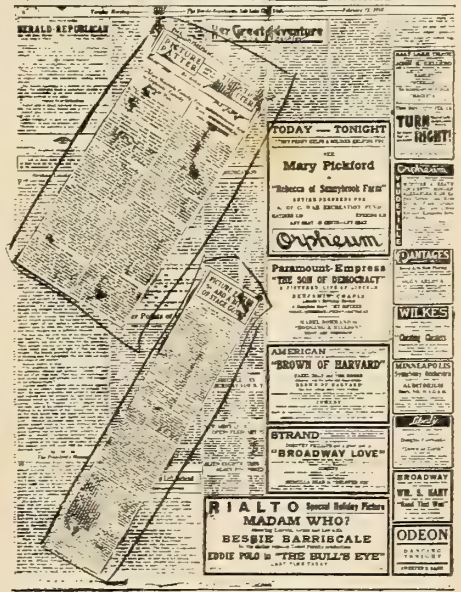
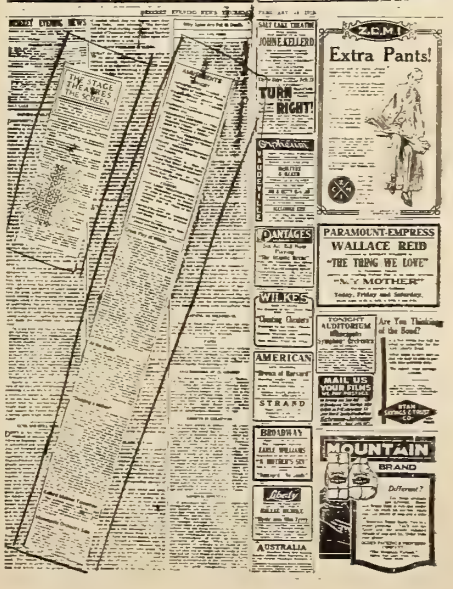
Here Is the Salt Lake City Treatment of Motion Picture Theatres

At the top are three pages from the Salt Lake Tribune. Below, three from the Herald-Republican and below two from the Deseret News, and at the right one from the Telegram. Portions of other pages pasted over show news matter given. See story opposite





Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel

SUPREME showmanship includes the art of keeping the jars out of a presentation of pictures and music. We have often spoken of the "little things" here, but it is often the little thing that is done or the little thing that is avoided that marks the line between the smooth, artistic effect and the jarring, blatant or gruesome.

There is just an instance of it this week at the Rialto which, while it is a little thing, is worth a whole lot of thought by managers through the country. One of the numbers this week is presented by the Ampico reproducing piano, a mechanical invention which reproduces perfectly the interpretations of the greatest players. For instance, this week Mme. Marguerite Volavy is the "invisible soloist" in Grieg's "Concerto—First Movement." Now at the start of this number the lights in the theatre were all dark blue and there was a green spot thrown on the big concert grand piano which occupied a place at the left of the orchestra. The orchestra itself accompanied the invisible player through the selection. Now this green light gave the mysterious, weird effect, which was especially noticeable when only the piano was playing or the orchestra dropped its accompaniment for the solo effect. It was a marvelous effect and one that got prolonged applause, largely due to the wonderfully perfect direction of Dr. Hugo Reisenfeld.

As we do each Sunday we were talking the show over after the first presentation when some one suggested that there should be a spotlight on the vacant stool at the piano to show more plainly that no one was playing it. "That," replied Mr. Rothapfel, "is an effect that I purposely avoided. There is only one excuse for the vacant chair effect and that is when something unusually solemn is to be achieved. Don't you see the meaning of the 'vacant chair.' How many people do you suppose among that audience out there have had the death of some loved one to whom the vacant chair would remind the fact? Its effect would be gruesome, and you always want to avoid anything like this ins a theatre. Especially do not remind the people of their private sorrows."

Special music and lighting effects help to put over the feature, Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter" this week. During the storm scene at the first of the picture which is little more than suggested, Mr. Rothapfel uses the lighting flashed in the extreme right end of the proscenium arch, just enough to get the effect on the audience without any big glaring of light that interferes with the screen. Effects of this sort should always be only suggestive, not heavily emphasized and distracting.

Rialto Animated this week is especially good and there is a strong effect gained by the opening and closing pictures. In the first place there is interest added by the introduction of a new set of animated titles for the various parts of the program and these made a big hit. But back to the Animated. It opens with Hearst-Pathe pictures of the Washington's birthday parade on Fifth avenue, and contained shots from many striking angles. These were introduced with a fanfare of trumpets and drums and then the crashing effects of "Over There" played now full volume and then with a lighter effect. This number got continuous applause, the same music continuing through the Universal cartoon on War Savings Stamps. Volcano scenes were shown with special music giving the effects. Just before the next picture was thrown on the screen there were two pistol shots from back of the stage and then comes the Universal title of Douglas Fairbanks's rodeo. For this the Douglas Fairbanks one step, an original composition of the Rialto was used. Following this was a humorous touch with two cartoons, one of waterless days and the other on "Straphangers' Extension." "This Is the Life" was the music that added a clever touch. "Mount Morris Dance" was used with Universal pictures of the horse show, and then there was a delightful human touch with Pathe pictures of "Lion's Cubs," with which Victor Herbert's "Badinage" was played. Then came a flash of the Bellevue nurses ready for the front, shown to a couple of bars of "Onward Christian Soldiers," and then pictures of poilus skiing with "Free and Easy" polka. Now watch the ending. The Animated had been opening with pictures of our troops getting ready for "over there," new men on whom hopes of the world rest. In striking contrast with that opening then came pictures of the review of the French heroes of Verdun. This contained some wonderful shots of marching thousands that got applause equal to that for the American soldiers. "La Pere de Victorie" was played and the effect on the audience was magical. Of course everyone in the audience got the effect; it wasn't labelled but it worked its way into the hearts and minds of all.

Riccardo Bonelli sang "Visions de Venicia" this week and for this the settings were all in blue with the display panels at the side showing scene in Venice. First the singer is heard from the side of the stage and then appears before the audience, without any distracting spotlight and finally strolls off following the vision of the city of the Doges. It was remarkably pleasing and the audience was insistent on an encore—except that this is never done at the Rialto. Rialto chorus, in costume, makes a big hit with "Chorus and Cavatina" from the last act of "Lucia di Lammermoor." The overture is "In the Spring," the first part of which was played with the main dome and the proscenium arch in red, the semi-dome over the orchestra in gold, the whole effect becoming gold toward the end.

First section of pictures of the Yellowstone Park form the scenic, and the comedy is a Metro-Drew, "Before and After Taking," which delighted the audience and sent them away whistling "They're Going Simply Wild Over Me" and "Who's Who Around Here."

It's a splendid bill—without a jar in it. These jars are worth your hunting for—so that you can kick them out. You'll be astonished at the result on your audiences.

This Week at the Strand

IT is rather unusual that there should be storm effects in the feature pictures at both the Rialto and the Strand this week, but during the showing of Mae Marsh in "The Beloved Traitor," Managing Director Harold Edel used the side panels very effectively reproducing the rain effect through his method of lighting and adding occasional flashes of lightning while the thunder and wind effects accompanied.

"Scheherazade" is the overture this week and is followed by the Strand Topical Review. This opens with pictures of a Red Cross unit starting from San Francisco and as the orchestra played "Onward, Christian Soldiers" the audience of its own free will began to sing, several hundred people joining in the chorus. Organ dirge music was used with the pictures of the Vernon Castle funeral. Then came scenes of the poilus skiing, followed by King Alfonso's inspection of one of his army camps. Paramount-Bray showed pictures of Southern moonshiners and then came scenes of the flood in Toledo. Marines raising pigs and making smokes for the soldiers followed. Then came the climax, the same pictures of the Camp Upton parade as were also used at the Rialto, except that they were treated differently. Instead of showing the departure of the troops from camp, the pictures were preceded by a cartoon of the Kaiser reading a newspaper saying that the U. S. was falling down on the war. Then the pictures broke into the actual parade, followed by a flash of Wilson on horseback as the commander-in-chief and then the cartoon came back but the lettering on the newspaper was changed to show that America had 2,000,000 soldiers and these figures fired a stream of bullets that keeled over the Kaiser.

Miss Mabel Beddoe sang "Pipe's of Gordon's Men" effectively and then came a Pathe scenic, "Vezera Valley, France," followed by a piano solo by Daniel Wolfe. After the feature Herbert Waterous rendered a double number and the program wound up with pictures of the "Invincible Tank" at Camp Dix and a screaming new James Montgomery Flagg comedy, "The Man Eater."

Here is an answer to the question: "Are exhibitors profiting from the Exhibitors' Service Bureau?" In the first of our series of articles on house organs we reproduced the program of the Elmwood theatre, Buffalo, among others. In the same article we pointed out where another theatre gave the casts of the features and recommended this. Last week came the copy of the new program at the Elmwood, showing that this suggestion has been followed. Such response shows that the live exhibitors are striving for improvement every moment the Tribune is liberal with the space given during the week. This free matter we have pasted diagonally across the page and inclosed in lines. Including a box that give the attractions at the theatres there is over a column and a half devoted to a combination of pictures and legitimate houses, but in this particular issue only two of the picture houses get attention. Similar columns are run each day. The great fault that we have to find with this daily matter is the continued inclusion of the legitimate and the picture under the same heading, and the lack of NEWS that is evidenced in the Sunday issue.

What Salt Lake Newspapers Are Doing In Cooperating With the Exhibitor

(Continued from page 1426)

Herald-Republican has the same fault of mixing things up, though it devotes two pages to amusements and as much as possible gives one (not reproduced) to the legitimate houses and the other to pictures. There is another thing that we distinctly do not like. The Herald-Republican allows each one of its advertisers so much space. Note that the three main headings on the page at the left refer to the attractions at the American, Paramount-Empress and Rialto respectively. This is the very sort of apparent free matter that is unconvincing to the patron. The newspaper reader is a whole lot wiser fellow today than he used to be and he knows that this is a bunch of matter printed because the theatre advertises—and not because the matter is interesting in itself. And therefore the wise reader is very likely to pass the matter up. There is a total absence on any news matter about pictures in the Herald-Republican.

So far as advertising is concerned in this paper Paramount-Empress reduces its space, but it has the added patronage of the American and the Isis.

During the week the Herald-Republican continues to keep picture matter and legitimate together, but there is some news matter about picture players under this. We have pasted across the page shown at the centre right one of the two-column headings and one of the single columns, one of which the paper uses each day. This matter is well written and will interest the readers and make business for the theatres. Daily advertising is about the same as that carried in the Tribune.

At the lower left we have printed the Saturday page of the Deseret News, the only paper in Salt Lake that really has a page devoted to pictures. There is NEWS on this page—something that will be read, something that will stir the interest of everyone in pictures and something that will bring people into the theatres.

First the paper has a distinctive heading. Starting off the pages are brief reading notices for the theatres that advertise. Then follows more than a column of matter under the heading "Single Reels." This is good chatty stuff about what the players and producers are doing. Of course these paragraphs don't enter into a mention of what local theatre the pictures referred to will be seen, but in our opinion this matter, in addition to the reading notices, is invaluable. There are three main stories on this page and every one of these has the element of news. One tells about Bill Hart selling his famous sombrero, another of Griffith's narrow escape in Europe and the other of Brady leaving the World.

Of course we realize that this is a Saturday evening edition, but we regret to see that the theatres have not patronized this paper any better than they have done. Rialto comes nearer having done so that any others. This sort of failure to patronize a paper that is really doing something for the motion picture houses is certainly not intended to make the other papers do more. The Deseret News is lacking in not having a "layout" giving scenes from the various productions, but for that matter not one of the Salt Lake papers does that.

Paramount-Empress uses good space in this paper daily, lower centre page. During the week this paper devotes a column to the theatres, but they are the same old reading notices to which we have referred. The longer column marked is the one from the Deseret News.

At the lower right we have reproduced a page from the Telegram. None of the ads. appearing on it actually appeared on that page, but we have pasted them over it to save space. Only one word describes this page—it is an enormity. There is a messy use of all sorts of old cuts and the only thing that the page suggests is that the paper is giving each theatre the free matter that it has to give to get the advertising. Yet, according to the copies before us, it carries the most motion picture advertising of any paper in the city. Can you beat it?

During the week the paper devotes no news space to the theatres. The shorter of the two marked articles reproduced on the lower centre page is the box that the Telegram runs during the week. It simply lists the attractions at the various houses and adds, "Our expressions on local attractions will be confined to this department." Yet during the week it appears to carry as much advertising as any of the other papers.

Political and religious divisions are probably responsible for the existence of four daily papers in Salt Lake—rather a heavy number to expect all of the theatres to patronize liberally. As we said at the beginning of this article, we are not going into local conditions in Salt Lake. We know that in this city, as in all others, it may be that one of these papers has a much greater pulling power than the others, and that

(Continued on page 1434)

Your Idea---and Ours

DURING the run of the Metro special production, "Lest We Forget," at the Lyric theatre, New York, there were a number of very effective lobby displays used, including some of the property of Rita Jolivet, star of the picture and one of those saved from the Lusitania. Of course, a great part of these displays are not available to the ordinary exhibitor who will show the picture, but there are lots of things that suggest themselves for lobby purposes, such as life boats, reproductions of a torpedo, etc.

One very striking feature used at the Lyric was a ship's clock which was stopped at 2.32, the hour at which the giant liner was torpedoed. Just above it was a card with the brief announcement. Especially in seaport towns it ought to be comparatively easy to get such a clock and it is bound to attract attention.

It's the fellow who makes today count who keeps the prospects for tomorrow bright.

ONE of the reasons why Manager John C. Green, of the Temple theatre, Galt, Ontario, is doing the big business that he is registering is because he never overlooks an opportunity. We have already told you how liberally he used newspaper advertising every day in the year, often whole pages of it.

Recently he showed "The Seven Swans" and he made a record for the day by giving two special matinees for the children. However, there was a difference in these matinees. He figured that there were a lot of pople whom he could get at a nickel, but who would not pay more, so he put on a special matinee in the morning at that price. It was advertised on the same cards as the afternoon affair. In short, if people wanted to get to the theatre a little earlier in the day and save money by doing it they had the opportunity. This arrangement might solve the problem of special children's shows for some exhibitors.

BIG DOUBLE
School Children's Matinee
Saturday, Feb. 16
Morning Matinee at 10 o'clock
Doors open at 9:15 a.m.
Children 5c. War Tax Free
Afternoon Matinee at 3 o'clock
Doors open at 2:00 p.m.
Children 10c. War Tax Free

Only way some people can keep out of hot water is to turn off the heat.

HERE is a clever advertisement that earns its recognition because it is just a little different from anything that you ever saw. And for the same reason it is going to attract the attention of the possible patron without any delay. It's the product of the Standard theatre, Cleveland,

O., so many of whose displays have been reproduced here and since you were told last week how Mrs. Grosman designs these advertisements there should be an increased interest in them.

Note the name of the star is used right against a picture of Miss Kennedy and there is a large amount of white space the name and that then the title of the picture is emphasized by the double rule above and below and then there is more white space and then just a few words about the picture, with the type centered. The whole display can be read without delay and the reader gets everything that he need to know about the picture.

POSSIBLY some of our readers think that we are insistent on our oft repeated advice to sell today's show first, but we cannot get away from the idea that every exhibitor needs to get the admissions while the admissions are possible and not pass up some opportunity that could be used. This advertisement, sent us by the Liberty theatre, Long Beach, Cal., is an excellent piece of display work from many points of view, and the designer of the display states that people were standing in line in the rain to get a chance to see Arbuckle. But he doesn't mention what happened on the evening that Kerrigan and Lois Wilson were to appear. Both papers published in Long Beach are afternoon papers and therefore there could be no separate time appeals made to the public. As we say the display on Arbuckle is excellent, but we believe that business would have been better on Kerrigan's appearance and just as good as Arbuckle's if the relative display had been reversed. Certainly if the argument is that Arbuckle is the more reason why as much of the display should be put on the Kerrigan appearance as possible.

An unusual border has been used on this display, one too heavy for most cases, but with the use of a large head at the top it serves to emphasize the half tone.

Newspaper space is the best remedy for removing the spots of stagnation from your theatre.

MANAGER S. BARRET McCORMICK of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, is as you have been told many times before a man who thinks about every picture that he shows and he devotes hours of his attention to planning his designs. During February he showed Mabel Normand in "Dodging a Million," and he used a unique advertising campaign because of the fact that the popular star has been away from the screen for over a year. He felt sure that she had lost none of her popularity, but he planned his campaign so as to be very sure that the appeal would be made to all of her old friends.

What Live Wires Are Doing

Note that in the display reproduced here and which was five columns wide and seven inches deep, and therefore loses much in its reproduction, he traces her career back to Biograph and then through her Keystone days and makes her NOW "A Regal Queen of the Screen." Similar lines have been employed in all of his other displays, including "She has crept up close to your heart and snuggled there," "An old sweetheart of yours," and "The little girl you never could forget."

You can be sure that this sort of advertising is going to get the most possible out of a picture. It is the sort if exploitation that doesn't take things for granted, but offers every sales argument.

"You are always welcome at this house, but it must appear in more ways than mere words"—Motto of the Nicollet theatre, Minneapolis.

QUEEN AND MAJESTIC THEATRE, Wilmington, Del., issues a joint program, devoting one of the inside pages to each house, which is ample, since both theatres make only two changes with each week.

The main thing shown here is the attractive result gained for the cover of the program by using one of the advertising plates furnished by Goldwyn. It will pay the exhibitors to always learn in advance what material they can get with various pictures, for there is always some opportunity like this to convert your program into an attractive affair, and without any expense. This program in question also bore on its last page, a letter to the women of the city, calling attention to the Mary Garden feature and it was used in that form for the whole of the houses' mailing list.

The fellow who "can't afford to advertise" might just as well cut off the current from his projection machine "to save money."

PATHE is supplying a novelty for exhibitors who are booking its latest serial, "The House of Hate" in the shape of a special reel which is in the possession of every Pathe salesman, and which not only gives an idea of what the picture is about, but introduces the casts in some of the scenes, shows some of the actual thrills, portrays various specimens of the attractive advertising matter and shows how to use "The Hooded Terror" in stunt advertising.

This is the first time that the exhibitor has had put before him in picture form all of these serial elements and the plan certainly ought to result in better exploitation of the serial, especially by the smaller exhibitors who are not apt to study publicity books as they should. One of the special pieces of display matter available is an art portrait of Pearl White.

He who expects business without going out for it is like the fellow in an island city waiting for his ship to come in.

GRAUMAN'S THEATRE, Los Angeles, a full description of which appears in the last week's issue, has adopted a distinctive style for its advertising, and one that is in keeping with the high class of the theatre. We have had a great deal to say here about individuality in advertising, and the man who achieves that has gone a distinct step forward. This particular display is Ben Day work, and shows the entrance to the theatre, with the announcement for the week let in with white letter effects.

This was one of the first of the Grauman advertisements. Others show different details of the architecture and reproduced with the same effect they are very attractive. It is one of the best ways that we know of to introduce all the features of a new theatre to the public. The immediate effect upon those who have seen the displays and then recognize that particular piece of architecture will be to bring the exclamation, "Look there, Frank, there's the doorway that was used in the newspaper."

Grauman's is a wonderfully fine theatre and it has great opportunities for use of this sort of advertising, but there is hardly a new theatre anywhere that could not follow this plan to some extent. Photographs of various parts of the theatre, even to the box-office and operating room could be used with the Ben Day effect. This is the sort of advertising that makes people KNOW your house, and know that it is different from other theatres.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

XLI—I find that the heatless Tuesdays have been a real benefit to me because they have made me think. As soon as they were announced I decided to put on a special bill for Mondays, and as the result I took in more money on those days than I formerly did on the two days combined. Now I have one of the three theatres in a town of 20,000, and I believe that I have the best house and that I am showing the best pictures. Yet I am uncertain whether I should continue to make the Monday bill the feature bill or make every day just as good. Do you think that the argument is that there are more people wanting to see each picture that I show, than have been coming to my house and that I ought to show each bill two days?—ABERDEEN.

ANYTHING that makes a person think is a real benefit in that respect. Your question is a corker. It proves that the things I have preached are so. That heatless Tuesday made you think, and consequently you put on a special bill, by which I take it you mean a bill which was a little better than your ordinary bills, that is, an improved presentation and better pictures. And you did a great business. Now your course is clear. Go ahead and make every bill a special bill. I think you will find that showing each bill two days will prove beneficial rather than detrimental.

I advise you to close down for a couple of weeks and THINK, if one heatless Tuesday brought such results. No, Aberdeen, you are like other exhibitors who have never thought. You left it all to the manufacturers. You let them do your thinking for you. Here the first time you think, you are rewarded. I am certainly pleased with your question. Now keep up the good work, and don't stop using your head. Get people coming to your theatre as a matter of habit. Get a trade mark—make the name of the Theatre mean all that is best in Motion Pictures, and see that the Motion Picture is honored, respected and loved, by conforming to those practices which reflect the very highest credit on you, your theatre, and the entire industry.

XLII—I have lost some two hundred of my best patrons through the war, young men who have gone off to fight for their country. I realize that there is ample population here for me to draw from, including many people who rarely if ever attend my theatre. I am running my show daily, except Sunday, and have three feature nights a week, two serial nights when the rest of the program is filled in with short subjects and one night that is given over largely to a local stock company which plays at other neighborhood houses in this city. My theatre is situated in a large and prosperous section of the city. This is a principal port and everyone seems to be making money, and the simple point is that the young men whom I have lost were "regulars," and I have been unable to recruit other regulars to take their places. You may say that I have been running an ordinary motion picture show. I have tried to give the best in pictures, but I realize that I have done nothing out of the ordinary. Now I am faced with the necessity of awakening new interest in my house. This is rather indefinite, but I wonder if you could suggest any method by which I could attract the attention of the people who are not coming to my house now. Ballyhoo methods won't do in my neighborhood, but still there is no use to improve the show itself unless I can get the attention of those that I am not reaching now.—MECCA.

IT is probably a good thing that two hundred of your best patrons have left for war service, because it apparently has had the effect of bringing you to your senses and making you do some thinking. Now you are forced to do something to offset the absence of the young men, and you have to use your head. Good!

You, like many other exhibitors, have gotten yourself in a rut, and are now compelled to get out of it. You may find it hard to do so, unless you do some hard and clear thinking.

Don't use ballyhoo methods because no sensible exhibitor ever does, especially in refined districts. Use your head. There are a hundred things you can do.

After YOU have tried the very best you know how with what YOU have, and have seen what YOU yourself are able to do, write me a letter c/o The Motion Picture News, and I will tell you what I think will help you. The best advice I can give you now is to use your head PLUS. Now go to it.

XLIII—This is a question of judgment. Recently I booked an attraction for a solid week, on the strength of the fact that the man who had the picture was supposedly a friend of mine and told me that it was the greatest feature ever. Now I ordinarily never run a picture longer than two days, and it has been only when there was something really worth while that I have broken my record. When I got this picture in question I saw that it was a poor one and closed it after the second night. I was unable to get a picture from my regular exchange for the third night, which was my fault because I had no bookings with that exchange for the entire week, but the exchange was good enough to help me out for the rest of the week. Now I have a chance to book another feature, and a really big one, for a week. I have seen it and know that ordinarily it would deliver the goods. I am willing to admit that I am bluffed by my last experience and don't know how I should go about advertising this picture to overcome the prejudice that my last big hit (?) aroused.—N. A. N.

FRIENDSHIP in business is something to be careful about. Placing your reliance in your friend's word has led you into a sorry mess, but not so bad as not to be able to get out of it easily.

Don't let your friends tell you how to run your business. Let your own heart and head dictate your policy. If you want things well done, do them yourself until that time when you are able to have efficient and sufficient help to do it for you.

I advise you to spend all the money you can in a big Publicity Campaign. Write an open letter, have it read by everybody; say in it: "I have made a mistake by listening to a friend's advice with the result that I have run a picture not altogether worth while, after having advertised it as a wonder. I am mortified and humiliated far more than I can say, and am sorry to the extent of being willing to return every cent to any patron who was not satisfied by the performance. I want to make reparation. Now I have booked a picture I have SEEN personally and KNOW justifies this campaign I am launching. I made a huge mistake before. I know it and am sorry for it. I want another chance. Will you give it to me? Thank you." Sign it. This appeal will have effect, and will I think quickly wipe away the result of your previous blunder.

XLIV—I have noticed several questions addressed to you about the competition of vaudeville. Without seeming to imply any criticism, isn't the fact that you include big musical numbers with special settings an admission that the people want some variety from the film itself? Now it is impossible for me to spend the money for such settings, but I can afford to get a couple of vaudeville numbers which I would change every week. Do you think that it would be a good idea for me to include these? I have read a great deal about the way that you weld the musical numbers in with the pictures, and I know that the vaudeville would cause something of a break between the pictures. If I could overcome the seeming dislike of the public to local talent I believe that I could solve my problem, but when I put on musical numbers with home people there seems to be a conviction that I am doing this to save money. How would you suggest for me to work up interest in their work? I have two young women and a young man who have really good voices who are available, but my problem is to make their appearances popular. Can you aid with any suggestions for doing this?—ST. ELMO.

YES, I do give little things such as songs, instrumental numbers, preludes and interludes, but I make them part of the picture program by making them pictures too. Not all pictures are on celluloid. A song may be a picture. It's all in the presentation.

When these numbers relate to a picture, or introduce a picture, or provide a proper atmosphere for a picture, they are advantageous, as they lend variety and strength to the picture program. But vaudeville proper is so varied, so diversified, that it is not always in good taste to mix it with pictures, unless it has a particular relation to the pictures in the manner I have noted. Otherwise, in showing vaudeville and pictures, it is best to divide the program into two parts, Part 1 being pictures, and Part 2 being the vaudeville. Don't mix them, but divide your program like the Minstrel Show, the olio being the picture program, and Part 2 the vaudeville. It depends entirely upon your arrangements.

It is not necessary for you to spend money for expensive settings. We have to do it here in New York because of the general vastness of things. With you it is not necessary. A plain curtain, with nice lighting effects are all you need, and these should not cost you over $50.

As for local talent, it is dangerous to use it unless you have production ability. Make your local talent numbers attractive. Choose attractive subjects—subjects not too long, and have them popular. To use local talent, without proper publicity, and proper presentation is a dangerous course.

I believe this answers your question. If you want any further advice, give me the specific conditions you are up against, with all details, and I will do my very best to help you further.

My Theatre and My Competitors

This is the eighth of our series of articles, "The Diary of a Successful Exhibitor," by an exhibitor who tells each week what he is doing to develop his house, the lessons that he learns and the errors that he discovers. It is a frank discussion of the pleasures and evils of exhibtion in a town of 15,000, and the tips contained here will probably be of value to managers in all sections.

By a Successful Exhibitor

FOUR months after I had opened the proprietor of one of the two other motion picture houses in my town came to me with a proposition that we combine resources and control the field. He admitted that I had eaten into his business, but still he felt sure that there was plenty of room in the town for two good houses, and he suggested that we get together and control the field. Naturally I refused. Already I had the cream of the business and I knew that this man was a poor showman, one who would rather resort to the fake methods than really work hard to get business on pure merit. I did not tell him that I thought merely to let it be known that he had a hand in my business would hurt it and that, similarly, I did not care to be known to be interested in his house. A couple of weeks later he came to me with an offer to sell out.

I didn't buy, but, after he had told me his hard luck story and I had a chance to think the matter over, I made him a proposition. He had a small farm, to which he said that he wanted to devote his attention for the future, and I agreed to take the lease of his theatre, which had about a year to run, off his hands. Then I spent two hundred dollars converting it into a business house and finally rented it at a price that resulted in a total loss of three hundred dollars on the entire transaction to me, figured purely from the viewpoint of the property itself. Neither my father or any other person could see any reason for this step. Everyone seemed to agree that there was plenty of room for two motion picture houses and that when I put the one out of business I was simply helping the two rivals that I had left. Those people who had some idea of the business side of exhibition held that I should have retained this second show and have charged a lower price of admission and put on cheaper pictures there.

I had a different idea. I have already told you how fully I had become coverted to complete publicity, to frank dealing with the public. The only use I made of this theatre was to put a larger announcement on the front stating that the lease had been taken over by my theatre, that the only house would remain dark, and inviting the patrons to come to a place where they would see the best pictures. Similarly I used newspaper space in making the announcement. I did not once refer to the two other houses.

These other houses counted on getting a share of the business resulting from the reduction in number, but I made it my point to see that this business was diverted to my theatre. If I could have done so I would have gotten a list of his regular patrons from the proprietor of this house, but he had no such list, and so on the very day that I decided to take over the lease I arranged for him to run two nights longer and placed one of my young men at the theatre to take the name of every person who entered. He got the greater share of the names and immediately I began a circular letter campaign, directing attention to my next picture. The result was amazing. Such regular patrons as the house had left felt that they were without an amusement friend when the old place closed. Of course, practically all of them had visited the other theatres, but still they wanted a place that had the "home" appeal to them. My letters did the work. I believe that I got permanently nine-tenths of the business.

Let me say right here that the theatre manager who has opposition makes a serious mistake in recognizing any of his rivals further than to always have a better show than they are putting on. I have never referred to my competitors in my advertising, even by inference, that is, not after the first couple of weeks. I started out by advertising my theatre as "the best show in town," but I soon cut that out and started out to make mine THE show.

Heretofore the policy among the competitors has seemingly been to try to get the film service that appeared to be drawing money to his rival. It was shortly after I had put this fourth theatre out of the running that a representative of one of the three exchanges from which I was getting service regularly came to me with the demand that I either take all of the service that the company had to offer or pay more for what I was getting. When I hesitated I was slipped the information that the exchange had a better offer for the service from another house in my town. I didn't hesitate a moment. It happened that this was the weakest of the three services that I was using, although there were some pictures that I desired to retain, but I had made up my mind early in the game that I didn't mean to stand for any four-flushing of this sort.

I knew well enough that the statement of the other offer was genuine. In fact, I had been approached by a couple of "friends," who had wanted to know how much I was paying for this service, and I knew that they had come from one or the other of my competitors. So my answer to the salesman was to turn to my typewriter and knock off a formal notice canceling the service entirely. He was very much taken by surprise and wanted to argue about the matter, but I had fully made up my mind as to how I would meet such a situation. "You have the offer from the other house, now go and take it up," I told him. I might have added that I didn't intend to try to get even by taking one of the services that house now had. I much preferred to leave him to pay the combined rentals. I knew that he couldn't be making much money as it was and that the more he was saddled with, the surer the end would be.

I still stuck to my plans of publicity. The very next day and for several days thereafter I announced in the newspaper that I would no longer show pictures of a certain brand. I gave no reason for the fact, and so firmly had my house become established and so accustomed were the people to finding my frank announcements in the newspaper, and finding them true, that I was not asked by more than three people why I had given up the service. Neither did I advertise what other pictures were to take their place. Probably such a policy would have resulted in comparing the substitute pictures, and at least two of the stars that were employed by company whose product I had been compelled to cancel were more popular than any of those on the roster of the company I picked to fill the vacancy.

But there was one striking result. When I went to the exchange city a week later I found that the salesman had himself told the story of what had occurred, and that I was received with a whole lot more deference than had ever been accorded me before. You will remember that most of these fellows had looked upon me at the start as a youngster who didn't know what he was doing and who would either come around to the "regular" ways of doing business or blow up.

It was not simply the way that I had dealt with this salesman, though, that brought me the respect of the exchange men. It was because of the fact that I had

(Continued on page 1434)

HIS HOUSE ALWAYS

That Was One of Successful Exhibitor's Secrets

IN this article Successful Exhibitor gives some sidelights on the success of his theatre. It came from the fact that he was always giving attention to his house. He ignored the others and centered all his energies on giving the public the very best that he had in him.

He wasn't figuring on getting control of the other theatres in his community and in thus crowding out competitors. His policy was to make his own theatre so good that it would be the only amusement of its kind worth while—the easiest way to dominate the entire field.

We'd like to hear what you are doing to put your house in the very leadership of things.

Specimens of pages from the "Movie Books" being made by a Cincinnati Woman's Society for our soldier boys abroad. Note the way that the lettering from the cover of the Motion Picture News has been employed on the cover

Cincinnati Theatre Aids in Making Booklets for Soldiers

HERE is an interesting piece of publicity work that is being used by the Walnut Street theatre, Cincinnati. Through the Cincinnati Woman's club the theatre has arranged for the women to prepare motion picture scrap books which will be sent to the boys in the trenches. These contain pictures of the stars taken from various publications, little jokes and stories about the players and a lot of interesting matter that is likely to bring a lot of chuckles to the boys on the firing line. Of course they are more or less crude, but the boys over there are mainly young fellows and they are likely to enjoy them very much.

It is a good way to stir up interest in pictures while performing a patriotic service and any theatre can interest the girls and women of its neighborhood in such work. It will be noted that the covers for these "movie books" have been made by clipping the lettering from the cover of the Motiton Picture News.

Successful Exhibitors and Competitors

(Continued from page 1433)

established the character and the appeal of my theatre that gave me the dominating position in the exchange center, as well as in my home town.

And here again I was met with the suggestion that I would soon be owning all the houses in my town. "Such a situation is impossible," I replied. "It might be that I will some day have two houses, because it is physically impossible to accommodate the people in one, but I don't believe in dominating a field with numbers. Quality is the only thing that counts."

That is a point I afterwards had opportunity to think over very carefully. But I had long decided that the man who made his theatre the dominant factor in his town had the battle won, and I always will believe it.

Prices Draw Big Parties to Illinois House

Majestic theatre, Perry, Ill., recently offered a prize of $3 to the person who would bring the largest number of people to the theatre in one vehicle. It was won by a man who brought 36 on his sled, while the local high school was second, with 32.

How Salt Lake Papers Treat Pictures

(Continued from page 1429)

fact governs the volume of advertising. Of course, we also know that in certain cases papers which do not co-operate with the picture theatres to any extent get more business for the theatre than the paper that gives columns of free space, because the paper has the public confidence and the circulation.

But we would like to see what would happen if the exhibitors of Salt Lake would get together—mind you, not in any spirit of attempting to dictate—and agree to give the bulk of their business to one paper that would undertake to run a real motion picture department. We are sure, from the experience in other cities, that the result would be improvement in the other papers, and that the benefits to the theatres themselves would be vast.

We have exhausted so much space in this introduction to studies of various cities that we haven't space to analyze the advertising of the various theatres, but in later articles we will take this matter up as part of the discussions.

Paramount Sends Stills to All Exhibitors

Paramount-Artcraft has inaugurated a new service to exhibitors in sending them three stills on each production for use in making their newspaper cuts. The service began with the Enid Bennett picture, "The Keys of the Righteous," and will continue so long as the exhibitors get results.

Many showmen and many newspaper men have complained that they have not been able to get suitable pictures from which to make their own cuts and this new service is expected to fill this long-felt need.

Bronze tablet in commemoration of the work of S. L. Rothapfel and presented by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, which has just been placed in the lobby of the Rivoli theatre. An account of the unveiling of this tablet, which is an unprecedented tribute, was published last week

Lobby Display of the Midway Theatre, Montreal, of "The Babes in the Woods"

Effective Lobby Display on Big Feature at Very Small Cost

MAKING an effective lobby display at a cost of $13.28 is some feat, but it is right in line with the things that A. J. Laurie is doing week in and out at the Midway theatre, Montreal. The one illustrated this week is on "Babes in the Wood."

The trees, the caves and the figures of the two children in front of the display, and that of the fairy as well as the connecting top pieces, were all made of cardboard and braced at the back with one-inch strappers of wood. A study of this display will show that Mr. Laurie has brought out all the essential details of the story except the gingerbread house. This would have required so much space that it would have cramped the other display, and therefore it was sacrificed in order to get the most striking results possible.

These fairy stories may be placed in the dream class of pictures, and so the two children were represented as dreaming beside the big trees, the remainder of the picture, including the stage coach, representing their dreams. It will be noted that the title of the picture is strikingly brought out so that any one will know at a glance what it is about. It is Mr. Laurie's theory that often a person gets a quick flash of a lobby display, and without the name being strongly displayed he will not take the trouble to investigate further.

A line which may barely be seen in the picture is made purposely to show where the portions of the display were joined. The entire background is formed of a frame eight feet high and twelve feet wide. This same frame may be used six or eight times by covering it on alabastine coating.

"Little Touches" Instill Spirit Into Rivoli That Brings Audiences Back

IF we were asked to tell the one chief secret of the success of the Rialto and Rivoli presentations, we would immediately say that it is the intimate touch that the bill always gives, the ability to pick pictures that get close to one, that bring laughter or tears or the applause of patriotism spontneously. It is that spriit which is so much a part of the two theatres that brings the patrons there day after day, regardless of what picture may be announced on the electric signs. And that spirit may be conveyed by some big smashing effect, or by some of the little touches—and it is fully possible to send the people away from your theatre remembering some little detail and just as much impressed by it as by some great climax that had been carefully created for you.

For instance, in the final instalment of "Hunting Big Game in the North," there is a considerable part devoted to showing a polar bear and her cub, and the lassoing it, and the mother's fight to save the little one. And when the title is thrown on the screen that the captor's admiring the mother's fight set the cub free, and the audience saw the two swim off together, applause swept the house. The first question of several persons who had seen the show was whether the audience applauded at the time we witnessed the presentation. It was one thing that impressed them in the midst of a most human bill.

Mr. Rothapfel continues to show the big things that the Rivoli is capable of doing, and with the current show there are a couple of novelties presented. The overture was selections from "Madame Butterfly." With the lights in the dome blue and the proscenium arch in red, and then the stage arch in blue, and the curtains parted about half way during the overture, showing a Japanese window view, which remained before the audience but a short time before the curtains came together again, it was simply a little touch of atmosphere that broke any monotony of the music, but which still did not remain long enough to distract attention. For a moment after the curtains had parted many in the orchestra expected some singers to make their appearance, and to have kept the display longer would have created a waiting expectancy that would have marred enjoyment of the overture.

The scenic was followed by Miss Helena Morrill singing "When You Are Away" in the rose arbor setting. Members of the Rialto quartet were distributed throughout the orchestra and behind the stage, and their accompaniment kept the audience wondering where their voices came from.

Rivoli Animated this week began in a great crash of patriotic music and ends in dead silence. Watch the reason for that. It opened with pictures of Southern troops at Camp Gordon and there is a medley of Southern selections, and as these were played with the mass of marching troops there was wild applause. These were Hearst-Pathe. Following these were pictures of Roosevelt signalizing his recovery and the audience used its combined voice to show its enthusiasm. Other Universal pictures showed the new invention enabling soldiers to walk on water, and then followed some of those delightful Finley nature pictures. There was a good laugh when the fish got away from the fisherman and some interesting views of deer, bear cubs, squirrels and bald eagles. There was a laugh and a thrill, too, with the Universal pictures of bob-sledding in Chicago. Hearst-Pathe showed the new Los Angeles plant for making Liberty bread and the pictorial ended with remarkable Universal pictures of an aviator's narrow escape. It was with this that the Animated came to an end without a sound, the silence adding to the impressiveness of the scene.

Rivoli quartet followed, first rendering one of the old negro melodies, "Jerusalem Morning," and then "We'll Never Let the Old Flag Fall." There was a striking effect brought in just at the end of this when the stage curtains parted showing the Statue of Liberty with the red, white and blue effects.

Elsie Ferguson, in "The Song of Songs," was the feature, an intensely dramatic but very human picture, and following this there was "Caprice Viennois," by Fritz Kreisler, danced by one of the Helen Moller pupils. This was made particularly effective by the changing rays of light that constantly mellowed into each other from the side of the stage, adding a fairy-like effect to the art of the scantily-robed dancer.

"His Generosity," a Metro-Drew comedy, of course, added another touch of intimacy to the already most human bill.

In short, this Rivoli bill was one of those well-rounded selections, with everything on it good, but with everything so good that the chief impression taken away from the theatre is that one has had a most human evening, with the best things in life. And that is the very feeling that brings people back to the theatre night after night, and builds a house up to the point where people know that they will always be intensely pleased. It is one of the reasons why people simply go to the Rialto or the Rivoli and are not drawn there simply by a single attraction over which their curiosity is aroused.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

"Wild Women"—Laughs Aplenty
Harry Carey and Molly Malone—A Corker
(Universal Five-Reel Comedy)

"Wild Women" is a corker—you want to see it if you want a bunch of laughs. "Wild Women" was produced by Universal under the direction of Jack Ford. It was written by George Hively. It is in five reels, and five reels of more laughs and more amusing entertainment than "Wild Women" affords you have never seen. Harry Carey and Molly Malone have the principal parts. You will also see Ed. Jones, Vesta Pegg, Martha Mattox, E. Van Beaver and Wilfred Taylor in action. "Cheyenne" Harry is foreman of the Circle Z ranch. He receives a letter from the rodeo association inviting him to participate in the coming rodeo meet. Harry refuses to accept the invitation unless the bunch can go. All agree and off they go for the rodeo. The boss learns of his employees' intentions and tells them that if they go they needn't return. They go. The only employee left on the ranch is the chief cook and bottle-washer. He tries to rope a two-year-old with disastrous results. The rodeo opens with exhibitions of roping and bucking broncho riding. Cheyenne carries off the prize. After the rodeo a celebration is had. They enter the "speediest" cafe in town and are all "set" for a rousing time. They all indulge in a "special" drink and—oh, what that special does do. After several rounds they all imagine they are in Hawaii with the dancers. Mentally they set sail on a raft and reach the shores of the famous isle. Here they meet with the dancers and—well, a good time is had by all—which is all one can say of they write a book. A good time is had by all—that is what every patron of the ——— theatre will say after leaving the theatre on the occasion of the above performance of "Wild Women." It's a corker—don't miss it.

"Wild Women" at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Harry Carey and Molly Malone featured.

Mary Miles Minter in "Powers That Prey"—Comedy-Drama with Punch
(Mutual Five-Reel Production)

Mary Miles Minter returns to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "Powers That Prey," produced by the American Film Company and released on the Mutual program. Henry King directed. In the supporting cast with Miss Minter are Alan Forrest, Harvey Clarke, Clarence Burton, Lucille Ward, Emma Kluge, Perry Banks and Robert Miller. Miss Minter has the role of Sylvia Grant, whose father, Burton Grant, is editor of the Daily News. She has inherited her father's talent for writing, and is elected editor of the paper published by the school at which she attends. Her father is unfriendly with Jarvis McVey, political boss. He has exposed his part in a franchise scandal. McVey visits Grant at his office and Grant orders him out at the point of a pistol. McVey has him arrested for attempted assault and Grant is obliged to leave town.

Grant goes to the school where his daughter is and asks her to go back home and put Summers, the city editor, in charge. She returns to her home and takes charge of the newspaper and runs it according to her own way of thinking. Summers treats her as a joke. She prints the truth in her father's paper, sparing no one or no class. Summers discovers McVey and the president of the railroad starting work on the franchase before they have been given permission by the City Council. Sylvia gets out an extra, appealing to the townsmen to tar and feather McVey. The people become furious at McVey's attempt to steal the franchise, and seizing McVey, prepare to carry out Sylvia's suggestion, when Grant appears. Grant prevents the crowd from carrying out their intentions and compels McVey to sign an agreement to drop his plan to sell the city rights.

Mary Miles Minter in "Powers That Prey" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Mabel Normand in Her New Goldwyn Success, "The Floor Below"
(Goldwyn Six-Reel Production)

Mabel Normand, who has scored a big hit in "Dodging a Million," will appear on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in her latest work before the camera, entitled "The Floor Below," written by Elaine Sterne and produced by Goldwyn under the direction of Clarence Badger, who is responsible for some of Mack Sennett's best comedy productions and is one of the oldest and most experienced directors for the screen drama. In the supporting cast with Miss Normand are seen: Tom Moore, who was seen to such a fine advantage in Miss Normand's last picture, "Dodging a Million;" Helen Dahl, Wallace McCutcheon, Lincoln Blummer, Charlotte Grenville, A. Romaine Callender, Louis R. Grisel and Willard Dashiell. This is Miss Normand's second appearance under the banner of Goldwyn. She made a big hit in her first Goldwyn and she makes a bigger hit in this, her second Goldwyn release. She presents the role of Patricia O'Rourke, who "runs" copy in the editorial room of a newspaper office. The care-free Patricia gives little thought to the problems absorbing the minds of the busy newspaper men, preferring to torment the older men in the office and match wits with the cubs. A band of crooks are preying upon the rich of the neighborhood, and the editorial staff of the newspaper is busy trying to get the inside of the story and to round up the band. The tip is passed that the police are watching the settlement house of the wealthy young Hunter Mason. She carries her fun a bit too far and the managing editor fires her. She is given one chance to save her job, by going to the mission house as a supposed derelict in order to get the story the editor wants. Her adventures in following the trail of the crooks and her capture of Hunter Mason as a husband form entertainment of the brightest sort.

Mabel Normand in "The Floor Below" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers," Hamlin Garland's Famous Story
(Vitagraph Five-Reel Production)

"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers," adapted from Hamlin Garland's most popular story, produced by Vitagraph under the direction of William Wolvert and presenting Alfred Whitman and Nell Shipman in the featured roles, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. In the supporting cast with Miss Shipman and Mr. Whitman are seen: Otto Lederer, Laura Winston, R. Bradbury, Rex Downs, Joe Rickson, Hal Wilson and Mrs. Hattie Buskirk. The story of the adventures of one of Uncle Sam's forest rangers is told in the most interesting five reels of pictures ever shown on the screen of the ——— theatre. Mr. Garland's stories are known from coast to coast for their vivid portrayal of strong, virile characters and homely life. Ross Cavanaugh is the hero of "Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers." Ed. Whetherford gets in bad with a band of cattle rustlers and quits the country, leaving his wife and young daughter, Virginia. Virginia is sent East to live with relatives, and after six years returns to find her mother proprietress of a cheap boarding house. She meets Cavanaugh and he protects her from the insults of the rough element of the settlement. Cavanaugh in his travels over the range finds an old man stricken with smallpox and cares for him. He learns that the old man is Virginia's father, who had left the country years before. He does not tell Virginia what he has learned. He succeeds in rounding up all the cattle rustlers in the neighborhood and he and Virginia are united in happiness.

"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman are featured.

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

March 2, 1918.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS
"My Wife"	Mutual	5 reels
"Blue Blazes Rawden"	Artcraft-Paramount	5 reels
"Loaded Dice"	Pathe	5 reels
"The Wooing of Princess Pat"	Vitagraph	5 reels
"Song of Songs"	Artcraft-Paramount	5 reels
"The Girl with the Champagne Eyes"	Fox	5 reels
"Whims of Society"	World	5 reels
"The Beloved Traitor"	Goldwyn	5 reels
"Adam and Some Eyes"	Klever Comedy (Paramount)	2 reels
"The Crucible of Life"	General Enterprises	7 reels
"Under Suspicion"	Metro	5 reels
"The Woman Between Friends"	Vitagraph	5 reels
"One More American"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Midnight Trail"	Mutual	5 reels

Bessie Love in "The Great Adventure"—Her First Pathe Production
(Pathe Five-Reel Production)

Bessie Love will be seen on the screen of the ——— in her first Pathe production, entitled "The Great Adventure." In support of Miss Love will be seen such well-known actors and comedians as Flora Finch, who will be remembered for her comedy work opposite John Bunny; Donald Hall, Chester Barnett and Florence Short—all talented actors and actresses. Chester Barnett was seen in "The Submarine Eye"; Donald Hall was seen in "Poppy," with Norma Talmadge, and Florence Short has an important part in William J. Flynn's serial just released, "The Eagle's Eye." Miss Love has the role of "Rags" Jansen. At the annual high school entertainment in the little town of Middletown she creates such a favorable impression that she is moved to seek her fame and fortune on Broadway. Arriving in New York, she finds things a bit different than what she expected. For days she is one of the thousands of jobless persons of the streets of New York. Billy Blake, a chorus man, who occupies a room adjoining that of Rags, is appealed to, and he gives her the name of the manager of the show which he is in. She sees the manager and gets a place in the chorus. Rags gets an opportunity to take the star's place. She takes the audience by storm, and the leading man as well. He uses all his known wiles to win Rags, but Billy, knowing his purpose, prevents him from gaining his point. After many adventures, Rags and Billy decide that they were meant for one another.

Bessie Love in her first Pathe production, "The Great Adventure," will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Typical Western Picture, Well Done, Is "Little Red Decides"
(Triangle Five Reel Production)

Cowboys, shooting, reckless riding—all the atmosphere that should be found in the typical Western photoplay—will be brought to the screen of the ——— theatre on ———, when Triangle presents "Little Red Decides." As the title would indicate, the central figure in the story is a child, and the producers have entrusted this stellar role to little Barbara Connolly. The youngster's part is that of a five-year-old boy, who is discovered by two cowboys of the Alliso ranch as he steps into the light of their camp fire. He leads them to a lonely cabin to awaken his father. The cowboys find the man is dead and that he has left a note asking whoever takes the boy to bring him up as a Christian. He is taken to the ranch, where he becomes greatly beloved by Col. Alliso and the cowboys and especially by Duck Sing, the Chinese cook. The church people of the neighboring town protest that the child should have a woman's care, but the cowboys buy their silence by donating the "kitty" from a poker game for the purchase of an organ for the church. The climax is reached when, following the recovery of the child from an attack of pneumonia, the doctor prescribes "one mama for Little Red, to be obtained at once." Now there are only three marriageable women in the town, two spinsters and a widow, and by the turn of a card it falls to the lot of Tom Gilroy to "go courtin'." Tom meets with indifferent success, and while he is pursuing his "courtin'," Little Red, who, under the doctor's orders, has been transferred to the home of the village parson, is kidnapped by Duck Sing and returned to the ranch. Moved by the devotion of the Chinese, Col. Alliso determines to adopt the child legally. He finally decides to let Little Red decide the mother question himself, and the boy ends it all by running to Duck Sing and saying laconically, "I guess I'll keep the Chink." Coro Kino does some remarkably fine acting as Duck Sing, and Jack Curtis, Frederick Vroom and Betty Pearce are prominent in a large and capable cast.

At the ——— theatre on ———, "Little Red Decides."

Tom Mix Scores in "Six Shooter Andy," Romantic Drama of Frontier Life
(Fox Five Reel Production)

Those who have never seen Tom Mix on the screen will do well to go to the ——— theatre on ———, when this virile Western star of the William Fox galaxy will be seen in "Six-Shooter Andy," a breezy drama of life on the plains. The story is taken from a page in the history of the gold rush of sixty-odd years ago. Conditions like those shown in the picture are gone and past, but they were times that tried men's souls. Andy Crawford is making for Bannack, Nevada, where he hopes to get rich by panning gold. Near the town he finds Susan Allenby with her eight brothers and sisters. Their father is lying in the road dead, having been killed by one of the "gang" of Bannack, whose leader was no less a man than the sheriff, Tom Slade. All go into the town, where Andy fights for everything that is decent. He proves to be quicker with his gun than the sheriff, and in the end turns Bannack into a place where men get their just dues. He even balks the sheriff's designs on Susan. To do all this, however, requires some clever acting, some quick gun play. Tom Mix, man of the plains, does some hair-raising stunts in winning the girl and cleaning up Bannack. Enid Markey, who, by the way, was born in Colorado, where the traditions of the pioneer still exist, appears as leading woman in the role of Susan Allenby. The part of Tom Slade, the sheriff, is well looked after by Sam De Grasse, and among the eight little brothers and sisters of Susan is Virginia Lee Corbin, who was the little star in "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp."

Tom Mix in "Six-Shooter Andy," with Enid Markey, at the ——— theatre, on ———.

"The Cast-off," Story of a Woman's Revenge, Starring Bessie Barriscale

(Four Square—Ince Production—Seven Reels)

A big picture—one of the finest which that master of screencraft, Thomas H. Ince, ever produced—is "The Cast-off," which comes to the screen of the ——— theatre on ———. It tells an intensely dramatic story of a woman's revenge, and in the emotional role of Pansy May, the orphan girl, who grew up to be famous as Pancrimee Nethaway, an actress, Bessie Barriscale achieves another triumph in her notable career as a screen star. The production was directed by Paul West under the supervision of Mr. Ince. According to the story, Pansy May has come from an orphan asylum with all the lovableness of a fourteen-year-old child, who sees nothing but good in the world about her. She proves a willing little maid-of-all-work in the exclusive boarding house of Mrs. Hendon Ware and forms quite an attachment for Guy Henley, one of the boarders, only to excite the amusement and derision of the guests, including Henley and Miss Wilson, who is in love with him. Her first great heartache comes when, on the afternoon Henley has promised to take her to a matinee, she sees him going in company with Miss Wilson instead. But here Dame Fortune intervenes and leads the little cast-off in the way of her future career. The manager of the play, seeing the child hiding behind the half-sheet frame of the star she worships, recognizes in her the type he has been searching for. An engagement is the result, and in the course of years Pansy May achieves fame on the stage as Pancrimee Nethaway. Henley sees her in her triumph and forgetting his wife, the former Miss Wilson, and his baby, woos her ardently. Pancrimee allows him to go on—for revenge. Here is created a big dramatic situation. What Pancrimee does, the punishment meted out to the cad Henley and the extent to which Dr. Thorpe, her true lover, figures in the events provide a novel twist to the ending of the story. Jack Livingston does splendid work as Henley, and others in the capable cast are Dorcas Mathews, Howard Hickman and C. Gardner Sullivan.

"The Cast-off," a Thomas H. Ince production, with Bessie Barriscale, at the ———, theatre on ———.

"Morgan's Raiders" Presents Vivid Picture of South Before the War

(Bluebird Five Reel Production)

Violet Mersereau, the tomboy of the screen, whose friends are numbered in the millions among motion picture devotees all over the country, comes to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— in "Morgan's Raiders," a Bluebird photoplay, based upon the exploits of "Morgan—Morgan the raider and Morgan's terrible men." Midsummer of '61 had passed when quiet Greensburg, Kentucky, finally awoke to the terrible actuality of war between the North and the South. When it did it became the secret rallying place of Morgan's famous raiders. Handsome Harry Dawley, disowned son of Greenburg's proudest family, was one of the first to volunteer for this intrepid band. Little Betsey, his daughter, was known as the Wild Cat. Betsey hated almost equally the North and the family of her father. Before the war she had met and attracted John Davidson, her proud cousin's fiance. Now he was back at Greenburg as captain of a Yankee company. Morgan needed a man to carry a message through Davidson's lines to the Dawley mansion. Handsome Harry volunteered, but a spy cut him down as he entered the house where he was born. To prevent his capture Betsey took his place, and clad in a trooper's uniform saluted her grandfather with "I'm one of Morgan's men." He was proud to acknowledge her as his granddaughter, and still more proud when several days later she saved her wounded father from John Davidson and his men, who had come to take him prisoner. "If you will stay outside I'll send him out," she promised sweetly. She did, but it was out the back door that he went. When Captain John saw the proud light in her eyes he could not find it in his heart to censure her. The victories of the South were not all won on the battlefield.

"Morgan's Raiders" at the ——— theatre on ———.

"Daddy's Girl" Reveals Remarkable Talent of Baby Marie Osborne

(Pathe Five Reel Production)

Baby Marie Osborne, Pathe's charming, chubby youngster, brings her remarkable personality and talent to the screen of the ——— theatre on ———, when she appears in "Daddy's Girl," a Pathe Gold Rooster play. The cast supporting the tiny star is an excellent one, including Marion Warner, Louis J. Cody, Katherine McLaren and Herbert Standing. The story of "Daddy's Girl" is based upon the life of a young married couple with one child. The father is a well educated young man who has not prospered in a business way. At the office where he is employed he is not in high favor owing to his laziness and continual tardiness. His little daughter, with her winning ways, is the favorite of the neighborhood. His father's uncle dies and leaves him considerable property, and at once the young man embarks upon a vastly different life. He goes in for high living, something he has never been able to do before. As his wife is home-loving and does not care for the "primrose path," he soon spends most of his time away from her, and eventually imagines himself in love with a widow of the sort known as "fast." By chance this woman becomes acquainted with the Baby and they become great friends, though she is ignorant as to who the child really is. Thus when the climax comes the Baby's influence over the widow is so great that the woman for her sake gives up the father and is the means of his becoming reconciled with his wife. In the course of the story the Baby makes friends with the little ebony-hued son of the family gardener and they hold a kid circus which is a scream.

Baby Osborne in "Daddy's Girl' at the ——— on ———.

"A Madison Square Arabian Night" Is One of O. Henry's Best Stories

(General Film Two Reel Production)

One of O. Henry's best short stories is "A Madison Square Arabian Night," which will be shown as a Broadway Star Feature on the screen of the ——— theatre on ———. A splendid cast, including Duncan McRae, Patsy Deforrest, Miriam Miles and Joe Burke, interprets the story. According to the tale Carson Chalmers has received two parcels in the foreign mail. One contains the photograph of a woman; the other is a letter from another woman, containing innuendoes concerning the one in the photo. Tearing the letter into bits, he orders his butler to go out and get a man from the bread line in Madison Square to dine with him. Seated at the table, the human wreck decides to discard all the conventional hard luck stories in his repertoire and tell the truth about himself, which was that he was Sherrard Plumer, once a noted portrait painter who, because of an uncontrollable trick of bringing out in the face of a portrait the hidden characteristics of the original, has come to be feared and shunned. Hence his downfall from "booze." As an experiment Chalmers sets him at work on a pastel sketch from the photograph he has received. After Plumer's departure Chalmers tries to look at the sketch but his courage fails. Finally he summons a young artist in the house, who pronounces it the work of a master and the face "one of God's own angels," whereupon Chalmers pounces upon the astonished young man, gripping his hand and shouting, "It's my wife. She's traveling in Europe. Take the sketch and paint the greatest picture of your life."

"A Madison Square Arabian Night," an O. Henry picture, at the ——— on ———.

"Heiress for a Day" Presents Olive Thomas, Triangle Star

(Triangle Five Reel Production)

The pretty and dainty Triangle star, Olive Thomas, comes to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— in "Heiress for a Day," a charming society drama. Miss Thomas is said to be prettier and daintier than ever in this, her latest production, in which she plays the role of a manicurist who suddenly inherits millions. The star is supported by an able cast, Joe King appearing in the leading male role of Jack Standring. Helen Thurston, manicurist at a fashionable hotel, is in love with her wealthy patron, Jack Standring, the most sought after popular bachelor in society, but realizes that her station in life precludes her winning him. While she is brooding over it all she suddenly hears that she is heir to millions left by her grandfather who has just died. Before learning the extent of the bequest she plunges into society, where she is welcomed as the city's richest heiress, but she fails to impress Standring. In the midst of her social preparations she discovers that her grandfather has left her only $1,000, the bulk of the fortune going to her cousin, Spindrift, under certain conditions. Recovering from her shock, she decides to use her $1,000 to be an heiress for a day. Society bows at her feet and her triumph seems complete except that Standring does not respond. Suddenly creditors clamor for the thousands due them and at a fashionable ball a detective threatens her with arrest. She is deserted by all except Standring, to whom the fact that she is only a poor girl after all, and not a member of the useless society set, appeals. However, the conditions of the will have been violated by Spindrift and Helen wins not only the fortune but a husband as well.

Olive Thomas, in "Heiress for a Day," at the ——— on ———.

TODAY'S BOOSTS

And These Talks Are Useful for Tomorrow, Too

RECENTLY we called attention to the co-operation that a certain theatre was getting through a couple of country weeklies in which it advertised. These two papers devote a certain amount of reading matter to motion pictures and the theatre utilizes the greater portion of this space by writing little paragraphs about the productions that are coming to that theatre in the future.

These Ad Talks afford you an excellent source for such little items. There is not one of these that will fail to give you a new angle on the picture.

"The Shoes That Danced" Portrays Life in New York's Underworld

(Triangle Five Reel Production)

Tirangle has transferred to the screen with rare faithfulness the atmosphere of New York's underworld in "The Shoes That Danced," which will be the attraction at the ——— theatre on ———. In it ———'s theatre goers will have the opportunity of seeing Pauline Starke, Triangle's newest star, who seems destined to reach the very heights of prominence in the motion picture world. Her work in this production as a daughter of the East Side is most impressive and reveals that she has all the attributes of a truly great artist. The play abounds in types peculiar to the underworld and they are portrayed by a cast of capable actors. Wallace McDonald appears as a gang leader who is reformed through the love of a girl, and gives a splendid character delineation. Rhoda Regan, East Side girl, and her lover, the Harmony Lad, flee from the Pepper Pot when "The Killer" shoots another gangster. Another gang follows, and Rhoda persuades the Harmony Lad to give up the life and go into vaudeville. But the Harmony Lad's pal, Stumpy, commits a murder, and the police seek the Lad in the hope that he will reveal Stumpy's hiding place. To outwit the police the Lad induces Rhoda to go to a masquerade while he is making his getaway, for he does not wish his vaudeville hopes wrecked. Rhoda goes to the ball, dances all night with Stumpy and decoys him to her home. There she kisses him and the police nab him, thinking he is the Harmony Lad. The latter has seen her kiss Stumpy and leaves in a jealous rage, only to return when he finds that Rhoda has been true to him after all.

At the ——— theatre on ———, "The Shoes That Danced."

Constance Talmadge in "The Shuttle," Adapted from Frances Burnett's Novel

Constance Talmadge's late appearance on the screen is in an adaptation from one of Frances Hodgson Burnett's most famous novels, "The Shuttle." The author's first big success was "Little Lord Fauntleroy," in which Wallace Eddinger made his stage debut. It has since been adapted to screen. Another of the author's successes is "Sarah Crewe," which was adapted to the screen under the title, "The little Princess," in which Mary Pickford was starred. The adaptation was made by Harvey Thew and Margaret Turnbull and produced by Select Pictures under the direction of Rollin Sturgeon. In the supporting cast are seen Edith Johnson, E. B. Tilton, Helen Dunbar, George McDaniel, Albert Roscoe, Thomas Perssem, Edward Peil and Sasson Ferguson. Miss Talmadge has the role of Bettina Vanderpoel, younger sister of Lady Nigel Anstruthers, whose life in England is made miserable by her titled husband. Sir Nigel had wasted his wife's fortune and adds insult to injury by treating her and her little son brutally. Betty, is determined to ascertain why her sister does not write. Arriving at the Anstruthers estate she learns the truth. Betty makes it possible for her sister to go out in society, and with her own money repairs the estate which had been left to ruin by Sir Nigel. She meets Lord Mount Dunstan of the neighboring estate. Lourd Mount has no money and is impoverished because his father had squandered the Dunstan fortune. He tries to avoid Betty's company because he does not want his friends to think that he is fortune hunting. Events turn so that Betty's sister is freed from the dominance of her husband and Betty becomes the husband of Lord Mount.

"The Shuttle," Constance Talmadge's late picture, will be shown at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Live News from the Producers

Pathe Offers Factory to U. S.

Plant in France Placed at Disposal of Our Government for Work of Cinematographic Divsion of Signal Corps

PATHE in France has extended to the United States Government the full use of one of its factories, with every up-to-date appliance for the developing, printing, etc., of motion pictures and "still" photographs, according to an announcement by J. A. Berst, vice-president and general manager of the Pathe exchange in New York.

This generous offer should render it unnecessary for the United States Government to build the structures hitherto deemed necessary for the work of the Cinematographic Division of the Signal Corps and will save the considerable expense entailed by a new installation.

In the letter to Mr. Berst announcing the offer, Charles Pathe says in part: "The American Cinematographic Service will have at its disposition the entire factory and our most complete and devoted cooperation. We are happy to thus give to you so quickly a favorable answer to the request which you have made of us. And we derive additional pleasure from the fact that we thus can aid in a most efficient manner the photographic and cinematographic service of our friends and allies, the Americans."

The many Americans who have visited the vast Pathe plants in France will remember their marvellous completeness and modernity, excelled by none other in the world. They are considered models of their kind and represent large expenditures. In the various units not only motion pictures are made, developed and printed, but the raw stock and every kind of motion picture appliances, cameras, projection machines, etc., manufactured. In some of them are also made the Pathe phonographs, which constitute a large business by itself. That the privilege accorded by the Pathe Company will save the United States much time, labor and expense goes without saying.

To J. A. Bert, it is understood, goes the credit for the suggestion which resulted in this new proof of the cordial feeling between France and the United States.

Petrova Offers a New Service

Announcement Is Made of Establishment of Special Service and Accessory Department for Aid of Exhibitors

THE Petrova Picture Company announce that a Special Service and Accessory Department has been established for the benefit of exhibitors presenting the special productions starring Madame Olga Petrova. This step has been taken, it is stated, as the result of the many letters received from exhibitors expressing their desire to exploit the productions to the fullest extent possible. The service will exploit individually each of the eight Petrova special features.

The new department will become effective in sufficient time to give the exhibitor complete service and advertising aid for "The Life Mask," the third production slated for release in March. A survey of the field has resulted in an exact knowledge of the exhibitors' wants and the Petrova Service Department will supply all theatre managers presenting their pictures with single and double matrices, together with electros, suitable for reproduction in newspapers or programs, and photographs, press sheets, etc. As a special aid to the Petrova showman, the Polish star's own production organization has ordered a limited number of exclusive and beautiful photographic poses which will be loaned to exhibitors as a novel lobby display during the Petrova presentation.

The Petrova productions are released through the branches of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

Sills, Not Tearle, Miss Young's Leading Man

It has been found necessary to make a change in the cast of "The Reason Why," which Clara Kimball Young and her own company are preparing to film for Select Pictures, and Milton B. Sills, not Conway Tearle, as previously announced, will be Miss Young's leading man.

Sills appeared in "The Seven Sins" in support of Shirley Mason; also with Mrs. Vernon Castle in "Patria," and in "The Honor System," the Fox presentation of prison evils.

Work has been launched in the New Rochelle studio on "The Reason Why," and the first scenes are well under way. While the cast is by no means complete, it is being rapidly assembled, and production will be in full swing by the end of the week. Robert G. Vignola is directing the piece and the photography is being handled by Lewis J. Physioc.

Jane Novak, Lead With William Hart In "The Tiger Man," Ince-Artcraft

Wm. S. Hart Completes "Tiger Man"

William S. Hart, the Thomas H. Ince star in Artcraft pictures, has completed "The Tiger Man," it was announced this week by Famous Players-Lasky. This feature is scheduled to follow "'Blue Blazes' Rawden," which was presented at the Rialto in New York the week of February 17. In this picture Hart has a new leading woman, Jane Novak.

It is announced that Hart will shortly begin work on his next Artcraft picture, a story by C. Gardner Sullivan. A title has not yet been chosen.

"Mr. Sullivan," said Mr. Hart, "has big, splendid ideas back of all his pictures. To this I attribute much of the success of photodramas. They are not merely western pictures but in every instance there is some motive behind the story, that has weight and depth and meaning; that makes people think and creates a profound impression.

Simril Now Manager

R. M. Simril, for a number of years a salesman with General Film Company, has just been appointed manager of the company's Atlanta office. He was at one time manager of the old General Jacksonville office, but more lately has been traveling out of the Atlanta office, of which he now assumes charge.

"Over the Top" Campaign Complete

Many Newspapers Co-operating with Vitagraph in Working Public Up to High State of Interest—Trench Scenes Being Made at Southern Camp

THE campaign of co-operation with exhibitors, designed to help them in making a success of "Over the Top," is practically complete, according to an announcement this week by Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization. A wide advance publicity campaign, operated in conjunction with the newspapers which are running the book or special feature stories, already is said to be catching on, and will be continued, it is said.

Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey is to star in the Vitagraph production, as previously announced in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, and Lois Meredith will have the role opposite him. The feature is expected to be a high mark in Vitagraph production records.

Epoch in Pictures

"The showing of 'Over the Top' will be an epoch in motion picture exhibition," said Mr. Irwin. "When Albert E. Smith, the president of Vitagraph, obtained Sergeant Empey's agreement to appear in a screen version of his book, he registered a big accomplishment for the motion picture industry as a whole, for the individual exhibitor and for the nation itself, because 'Over the Top' will be a national event in its relation to the part America is to play in the final readjustment of the world. And to insure the adequate handling of the enterprise, the entire production will be under the personal supervision of Mr. Smith."

Mr. Irwin said that advices which he had received through Mr. Smith indicated that the trench scenes which are being made at Camp Wheeler, Macon, Ga., for "Over the Top" will be completed much sooner than was expected. When Wilfred North, director, with Sergeant Empey, Lois Meredith, James Morrison, and the rest of the Vitagraph company arrived at the camp they found that everything was in readiness for the beginning of work, and they lost no time in setting to.

Sergeant Empey, it is said, found the soldiers there well advanced in the methods of trench warfare as it is practiced abroad, and needed little rehearsing for their part in the scenes which are to show them going over the top. The prompt delivery of the steel helmets for the thousand or more soldiers who are being used in these scenes presented a problem, but a wire was received at the Vitagraph studio early last week announcing that these had reached Camp Wheeler and that the big scenes would be completed within a few days.

Picture Nears Completion

This means that "Over the Top," which has been in course of production since the first working day of the new year, January 2, is nearing completion, and that the date of release may soon be announced. Under agreement with the War Department, the Vitagraph company has to submit to the Government authorities all the trench scenes taken at Camp Wheeler, and it also has been provided that the completed film will be submitted to the War Department officials for official review before it is released for public exhibition.

Mr. Irwin declares that the Vitagraph Company, in producing "Over the Top," is doing so with the idea in mind of having the picture equal in timeliness and accuracy to the importance of the star and the book from which it is made. He also expressed the opinion that "Over the Top" would prove the most sensational offering ever made for the screen.

Harry Morey, Vitagraph's Star In "The Desired Woman"

"Looking back over the history of the motion picture," he said, "we fail to find anywhere a motion picture production that ever had the popular appeal and the advance introduction which 'Over the Top' possesses. Empey himself is known personally to thousands and thousands of people because of his appearance on the lecture platform and in the prosecution of special patriotic enterprises, while his book and his other writings, through their dissemination in the columns of scores of the leading newspapers of the country, have made him known to millions more.

Publicity Is Widespread

"It has been found that Empey's name is being seen daily by more than twenty millions of people, this figure being the approximate reading circulation of the newspapers which are publishing his writings.

"In our plans for advertising 'Over the Top' we shall urge exhibitors to co-operate with the newspapers all over the country, so that they may reap the benefit from the ready-made audience of millions which already awaits the coming of Empey on the screen. I do not believe exhibitors ever were placed in such a fortunate position with a photoplay offering as they will have in connection with 'Over the Top,' because, with Empey's articles now being published in newspapers of thirty-four states, it is safe to say that they are being read in practically every state of the Union. Thus, there is not an exhibitor anywhere in the United States who has to introduce Empey or the picture to his public.

"The production will measure up fully to the enormous publicity which the personality of the star has received, because Vitagraph, in this feature, has exceeded anything it has ever done, and the picture is certain to take its place among the masterpieces of the screen. Mr. Smith has surrounded Empey with a cast of exceptional merit and has spared no expense in giving 'Over the Top' the finest settings that money can buy."

Third Tom Mix Feature in Progress

The announcement is made by the William Fox organization that the elevation to stardom of Tom Mix has pleased exhibitors and that there is a demand for the kind of plays that Mix is making. The first feature he made for Fox after his elevation to stardom was "Cupid's Round Up." This was followed by "Six Shooter Andy."

Another Mix offering is now in the process of making in the William Fox West Coast studios, and will be one of the early April releases. Mix is working under the direction of Lynn Reynolds.

Willat Directs Next Chas. Ray Picture

While Victor Schertzinger, who has directed Charles Ray's various Paramount pictures under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, takes a brief rest, Irvin Willat, of the Ince directorial staff, will handle the next Ray production. "The Family Skeleton," by Bert Lennon, is the latest Charles Ray Paramount to be completed and will be followed in order of release by still another picture directed by Victor Schertzinger before the Irving Willat film is released.

Levison Joins Select

Leo F. Levison has been chosen by Select Pictures Corporation to become manager of the company's exchange in Pittsburgh, succeeding Harvey B. Day, who has resigned that post in order to go into business for himself. Mr. Levison entered upon his duties as branch manager February 19.

Seventeen Triangles Working

Six New Features Have Been Started at Culver City, While Four Await Shipment—Jack Curtis Subject Ready

PRODUCTION is making rapid headway at the Triangle Culver City studios, an announcement this week makes known. Nine features, it is said, are in various stages of completion, and six new subjects have been commenced under the personal supervision of Vice-President and General Manager H. O. Davis. Two other companies have nearly completed their latest dramas, and Director Jack Dillon has sent his latest offering to the film editing department, where four additional subjects are awaiting shipment.

These completed pictures are "The Scar," a western featuring Roy Stewart; "The Sea Panther," a romance of the days of Captain Kidd, in which William Desmond is a swashbuckling pirate; "The Answer," a socialistic drama featuring Alma Rubens and Joe King, and "The Hard Rock Breed," with Margery Wilson, Jack Curtis and Jack Livingston in the leading roles.

Charles Rann Kennedy's play, "The Servant in the House," will be transferred to the screen as one of the features of the production program arranged by Triangle. Jack Curtis has been chosen for the important and difficult role of the Drain Man, the most ambitious role he has ever assailed in his motion picture career. Jean Hersholt will portray Manson, the Christ-like character, whose love and tenderness overcomes the conventionalities and dogmatic principles which obscure the truth from the professional churchman. The cast also includes Jack Gilbert, Claire Anderson, Clara Horton, Anna Dodge, Edward Piel and Dick Rosson. Zenaida Williams and Harvey Clark have been especially engaged for this production.

"The Law of the Great Northwest" is the working title of Director Raymond Wells' new feature. Wells, whose specialty is rough and ready stories of the great outdoors, is working with a cast comprising Margery Wilson, William Jeffries, William V. Mong, Eugene Cory, Wm. Dyer, Louis Durham, J. P. Wild and Leo Willis. This picture, adapted from Ralph Westfall's story, is the first of his tales of the Canadian wilderness to be produced by Triangle.

Myrtle Lind, Formerly a Keystoner, Is Now In Triangle Dramas

Following the completion of "The Sea Panther," a seventeenth century pirate story, Director Thomas Heffron has a society drama, entitled "The Veil." Heffron numbers, in the supporting cast, J. Barney Sherry, known as "the screen millionaire," who recently appeared in "Real Folks" and "A Soul in Trust"; Ed Brady, Mary Mersck, leading woman engaged especially for the picture; Frank Bonn and Dora Rodgers.

Director Frank Borzage is nearing completion on Pauline Starke's latest Triangle vehicle from the story by Frances Quillan, the working title of which is "Innocent's Progress." Intolerance drives Pauline Starke, as the heroine, from her home in a secluded village to the big city, where she is saved from its myriad pitfalls by the timely assistance of a newly found protector. Included in the supporting cast are Lillian West, Alice Knowland, a character woman engaged especially for the picture; Jack Livingston, Charles Dorian and Graham Pette.

Pathe Reports Demand for Lloyd Comedy

IN consequence of the change in policy by which Pathe is giving to exhibitors a one-reel Harold Lloyd comedy each week there has arisen a largely increased demand for the comedies, Pathe reports. Exhibitors who formerly complained that they found it difficult to arrange their programs to include them when they were being issued only every other week, have expressed themselves, according to Pathe, as being much pleased with the increased output.

A well known trade paper man sat next to the manager of the house the other evening while a Lloyd comedy was being shown in the theatre. Each of them had some hearty laughs as they watched the fun on the screen. "What I can't understand," said the trade paper man, "is why every big theatre in the country doesn't show these comedies. This one is going over big. It is my belief that the hardest thing for the exhibitor to get for his show is good comedy. Those of this brand that I have seen are all very good and what is more, unobjectionable." "I have shown them for over a year," answered the exhibitor, "and find my audiences like them and look for them. They never fall flat. There is always something doing and I find that the laughter is pretty continuous while they are being screened. If Pathe put an exhorbitant price upon them I suppose some exhibitors who are not now showing them would fall over themselves to get them. As for me, I am mighty glad to be able to get them at a reasonable price and make money. I like them as well as any comedies that are made, bar none."

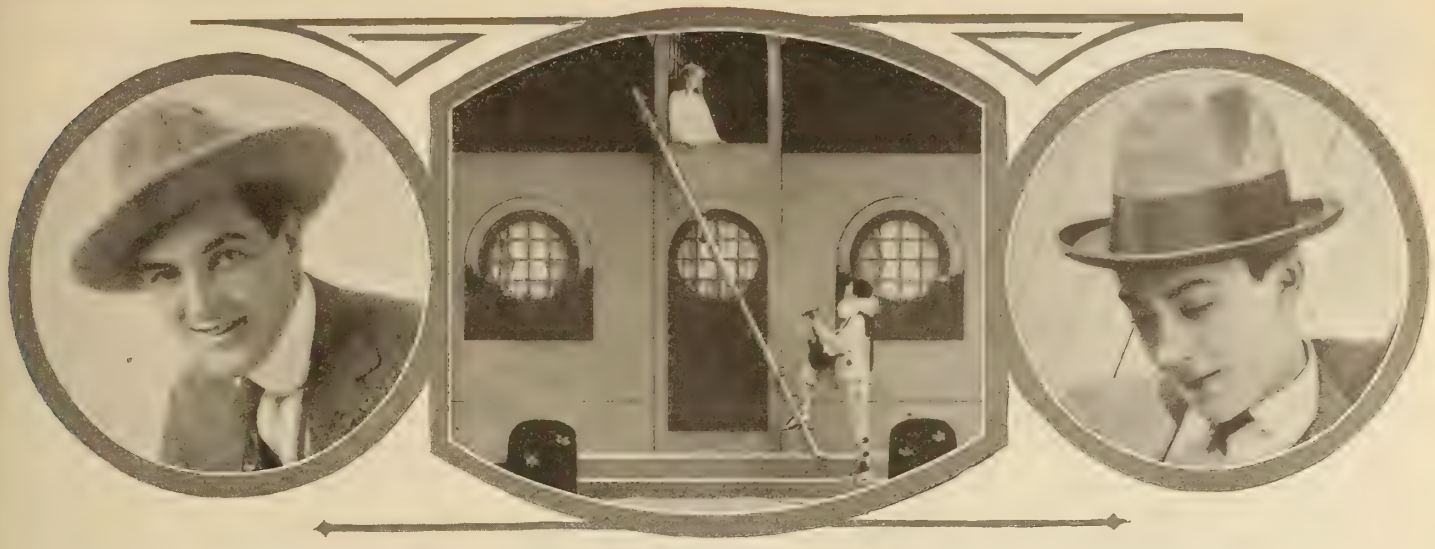
Mary Pickford New Play Abounds in Humor

Humor is said to be the keynote of "Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley," the new Mary Pickford production soon to be released by Artcraft. The story is by Belle K. Maniates, with the scenario by Frances Marion, who has done, it is declared, one of the best pieces of work of her career. Marshall Neilan directed, assisted by Nat Deverich. The principal players include, besides the star, William Scott, Norman Kerry, Margaret Landis, Kate Price, Ida Waterman, Thomas Wilson, Fred Goodwins, Herbert Standing, Wesley Barry, Frank Butterworth, Antrim Short, George Hackathorne, Gertrude Short and others.

Boy City Films Make Further Progress

The half-way stage, General Film this week announced, has been reached in the production of the Judge Brown stories being distributed by General Film Company. Ten of the twenty subjects are being filmed at Los Angeles by the Boy City Film Company, of which Judge Willis Brown, children's advocate and author of conspicuous moving picture successes, is the head, has been completed. Plans are well advanced for the filming of the remaining stories in the series.

Director King W. Vidor and Director McQuarrie are engaged in preparing Judge Brown's stories at the studios of the Boy City Film Company at Culver City, Cal.



The stories being distributed or ready for distribution are "Bud's Recruit," "Chocolate of the Gang," "The Lost Lie," "Tad's Swimming Hole," "The Preacher's Son," "Thief or Angel," "Marrying off Dad," "The Accusing Toe," "Frank's Endorser" and "The City of Boys."

Tom Moore Under Long Contract

Goldwyn this week announced that Tom Moore, the leading man popular with all the Goldwyn stars, as well as with the public, has been placed under contract for a long period. He has appeared in "Dodging a Million," "The Cinderella Man" and other Goldwyn productions.

Tom Moore, Under Contract to Goldwyn as Leading Man

In the Circles Are Earl Rodney, Left, Leading Man for Enid Bennett, Ince-Paramount Star, and Jack Pickford, right, Who Is Appearing In "Sandy" for Paramount Release. In the Center Is a Novel Set Used In Marguerite Clark's Paramount Picture, "Prunella"

Tourneur Rise Draws Praise

Well-Known Director, Pupil of Antoine and Later of Chautard, Has Many Big Productions to His Credit

IN his direction of Elsie Ferguson in "The Doll's House," for Artcraft, Maurice Tourneur, director, is said to have given the Ibsen masterpiece a finer expression than it has ever had upon the speaking stage, expanding the author's meaning to the full circumference of his thought. This indeed is no faint praise, for the works of Ibsen depend so much on symbol and suggestion to carry their lessons.

Maurice Tourneur was born in Paris in 1878 and was graduated from Lycee Condorcet when he was eighteen years old. After finishing college, he became a designer and interior decorator and has to his credit many illustrations for books and magazines, poster, lace curtain and fabric designs as well as a number of original stage settings. He then became associated with Rodin, the sculptor, and later with the French artist, Puvis de Chavannes and did much work with him on the decorations of the Boston Public Library. The next three years of his life were spent in the French Army as an officer of artillery. When his period of service expired, he was seized with the desire to go on the stage. His rise in the profession was rapid and in an engagement with Mme. Rejane he made practically a world tour including South America, England, Spain, Portugal, Italy and Africa. He then became associated with Antoine, greatest of French theatrical producers, and for seven years collaborated with him in the production of over four hundred plays.

About this time the motion picture was beginning to come into its own and Tourneur naturally looked to his old friend, Emile Chautard, who was a leading man under Tourneur's direction on the legitimate stage, but then director general of the Compagnie Eclair, the leading film company of Paris. The tables were now turned for Tourneur and he became an actor under Chautard's direction. It was only a matter of a short time that Mr. Tourneur himself was directing for the same company and was sent to Africa to produce war pictures. Here he produced several big features, including "The Fall of Constantine."

His rise in this country has been characterized as meteoric, although he has to his credit many productions.

Exhibitors Appreciate Triangle Policy

EXHIBITORS throughout the country are expressing their appreciation of Triangle's recently announced policy of making no charge for contracted service that is not used on the Tuesday fuel holidays, according to a statement issued from the Triangle offices. While Triangle is said to be incurring considerable loss in carrying out this measure, the sacrifice is far less than anticipated, says the statement. The exhibitors met the proposition half way, stood loyally by, and when they were able to use the service on another day, did so. But, on the other hand, when they could not use the pictures at another time, the charges were automatically cancelled, and Triangle stood the loss.

The following telegram is said to be indicative of the exhibitors' attitude toward the Triangle policy and this new step toward proving its claims of co-operation: "We believe in co-operation and highly appreciate the stand you have taken in regard to Tuesdays."

This recent action is in line with the earlier announcements of Triangle regarding its policy in the matter of war taxes, the company being among the first in the field to take the burden of the taxes from the exhibitors' shoulders. Later it inaugurated the monthly seven-reel feature as a business aid for the exhibitor, all making for the establishment of a closer personal relation between exhibitor and distributor.

Critic Marvels at Serial Stunts

Kitty Kelly, dramatic and photoplay critic of Chicago, places the life of a serial star among the most hazardous occupations filled by women, an announcement this week from Pathe advises.

Regarding Doris Kenyon, in "The Hidden Hand," Miss Kelly said: "Doris Kenyon is safe and sound. After losing one's breath over the hazardous things the young lady dashes briskly through in the various episodes of her new serial, 'The Hidden Hand,' it seems almost like a dream to recall having sat in her dressing room in the New York studio and chatted with her an hour's length. To think that any young woman should appear intact, let alone equal to comfortable chatting after such an existence is unbelievable—is one of the marvels of the serial celluloid world."

Unusual for Polly!

Polly Moran is now at work on a Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy which requires that she discard the familiar attire of Sheriff Nell and appear as a regular lady in skirts and everything. The change will be marked, no doubt.

A Moment of Indecision in "The Brass Check," a Metro Feature with Bushman and Bayne

Nearly All Nationalities Are Represented By Members of the Universal Serial Company, "The Lion's Claws," of Which Marie Walcamp Is Star, and Jacques Jaccard Director

Jaccard Starts New Universal Serial

DIRECTOR JACQUES JACCARD, who produced for Universal the serials, "The Red Ace" and "Liberty," has commenced work at Universal City on the production of "The Lion's Claws." Marie Walcamp, star of "The Red Ace" and "Liberty," will be the featured player in the new serial, and the supporting cast will include Edwin August, Ray Hanford, Thomas Lingham, Nigel De Bruilliere, Harry Von Meter and Rex De Roselli in principal roles. Parts of lesser prominence will be played by Gertrude Aster, Alfred Allen, Frank Lanning, Charles Brindley, Sam Polo, Leonard Clapham, Sam Appel, and others who have been identified with other Universal serials. The large collection of animals at the Universal Zoo also will have a prominent place in the production.

Jaccard himself is the author of "The Lion's Claws," and the locale of the play is the interior of Africa, much of the action taking place at a British military post on the Upper Nile. Nearly every setting, both interior and exterior, must be especially built for the play, and the task of designing and constructing these is under the supervision of Ed. M. Langley, who for two years was technical director of the American Film Company's Studios at Santa Barbara.

So thoroughly has Jaccard planned the production that the stage settings which are to appear in the last episode were designed before the introductory scene of the first episode was filmed and every costume, fixture and "prop" required for the entire serial was arranged for. Jaccard was determined that when the filming of "The Lion's Claws" started, nothing should interrupt or delay proceedings.

Mack Wright is acting as assistant director, and Milton Moore, who photographed the "Liberty" serial, is in charge of the camera work.

Adds More Realism

Famous Players-Lasky declares another touch of realism has been added by Cecil B. DeMille to his special Artcraft picture, "The Whispering Chorus," by the engagement of B. G. Seielstad, staff artist of a Los Angeles daily, to draw a portrait of Kathlyn Williams in the courtroom scene, which supplies one of the episodes in the story.

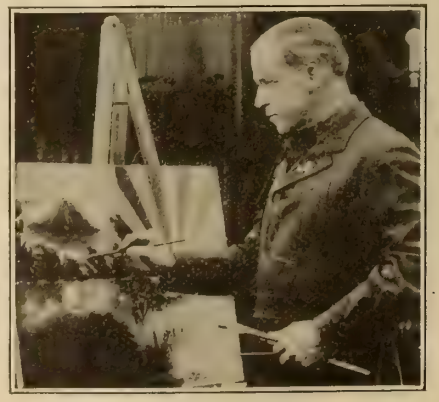
Collins Directs Dana Production

A Kentucky story without the traditional feud basis is announced by Metro as the next screen vehicle for Viola Dana, following her appearance in "Breakers Ahead." John H. Collins, who directed Miss Dana in "Blue Jeans" and many other of her Metro pictures, wrote the original story for her new picture, the working title of which is "The Night Riders." Mr. Collins will direct the production of "The Night Riders" from a scenario prepared by Albert Shelby Le Vino.

Triangle Offers a Pirate Story

Lovers of romance and colorful adventure, Triangle thinks, will welcome the forthcoming pirate play, "The Sea Panther," released March 10. William Desmond, Mary Warren, Jack Richardson, Arthur Millett, Lillian Langdon and Lee Hill are included in the cast of this seventeenth century costume play.

"Life Mask" Mystery Element Vouched For



Probably the most novel and strange procedure ever resorted to by a motion picture producer in order to assure the proper atmosphere of a screen poduction was the method pursued by Frank Crane, director of the third feature in which Madame Olga Petrova will soon be seen. The play selected by the Polish actress as a proper vehicle for the display of her talents is "The Life Mask," written by the mysterious and unnamed author who sprang into prominence some years ago with his novel, "To M. L. G." The story, dealing with an engrossing mystery concerning the strange death of a wealthy society leader, was scenarioized by Mrs. L. Case Russell, who has acted in a like capacity for Madame Petrova's two former special features, "Daughter of Destiny" and "The Light Within."

Blackton Paints His Own Subtitles

Maintaining that with few exceptions subtitles never have been accorded the consideration they demand, Commodore J. Stuart Blackton is painting his own decorative substitles for "Wild Youth," the production of which he has just completed for Paramount at the Lasky Hollywood studios.

"To my mind," the producer asserted the other day, "the subtitle is as important as the set and yet think of the amount of money that is spent on settings. Every possiblbe artistic adjunct is utilized in obtaining effective properties and scenes. Lighting effects are secured at great cost and trouble; miles are covered to obtain proper locations. And after this is accomplished and the picture is ready for subtitling only too often a low-salaried writer is employed to put in the titles. Yet these titles must do something nothing else can do—they must say in words what it is impossible to indicate by action.

"The titles in 'The World For Sale' and 'The Judgment House'—in fact in all Paramount and Artcraft titles—are examples of what I mean when I say that they should be in keeping with the rest of the production. They have been termed 'super-titles' but this is erroneous. They are simply what is demanded by the quality of the pictures themselves."

J. Stuart Blackton Paints His Own Paramount Subtitles

"The Way Out" Stars June Elvidge

June Elvidge, a World Picture star, will make her next appearance in "The Way Out," scheduled for release on March 25. This deals with a question of international marriage, and the story owes its creation to the characteristic cupidity of Americans who are prone to become interested in any individual who claims for himself a prominent position in Burke's peerage or the Almanach de Gotha.

Ned Finley Picture Nears Completion

The first of the Ned Finley Films, "The Return of O'Garry," General Film Company this week announced, will shortly be ready for release. The picture is in three reels, dealing with the new adventures of the Royal Mounted Canadian Police.

Probably twelve of these three-reel stories in which the Canadian mounted police hero will be featured, are to be produced in the studios located at Bat Cave, near Esmeralda, North Carolina. These O'Garry Stories will be released once a month by General Film Company.

Ann Little and Director Back on Coast

Ann Little, leading woman for Wallace Reid, who appeared with him in "Nan of Music Mountain" and "Rimrock Jones" and who is to be seen again in "Marcel Levignet," which is to be completed in the West, has arrived at the Lasky Hollywood studios. Donald Crisp, the director, is also back at the Coast workshop and filming of the new production will be immediately resumed. It will be a Paramount release.

Theda Bara Busy on New Production

Considerable mystery, which will no doubt be shortly dispelled by an announcement from the William Fox offices, surrounds the production of Theda Bara's next feature for Fox. Nothing concerning the picture has been given out, with the exception that Mr. Fox expects it to be the best she has yet done.

Director Edwards is staging the feature.

Jewel Carmen, William Fox Star, In "The Girl With the Champagne Eyes"

Constance Talmadge In Select's "Up the Road With Sallie" Has Norman Kerry As Leading Man. Her Sister, Norma, Stars In "By Right of Purchase," With Eugene O'Brien As Male Lead

Goldwyn Dates Its Next Four

WHAT Goldwyn asserts are the four pictures issued by that company in consecutive release since its organization, are now in process of booking and distribution. The first in order is "The Beloved Traitor," released everywhere Feb. 24. Mae Marsh is the featured player and here again Miss Marsh is found to have an emotional role. Although, so Goldwyn states, both exhibitors and the public eagerly welcome her in an occasional sweet picture of "The Cinderella Man" type, there is a frequent demand that she be presented in other productions calling for stronger emotional work. "The Beloved Traitor," by Frank L. Packard, comes, therefore, in direct answer to demand, Goldwyn says.

The next release in order gives exhibitors Mabel Normand in a comedy-drama, "The Floor Below." This is set for March 10. The story is by Elaine Sterne and is claimed to be bigger in interest and gripping quality than "Dodging a Million." While it is classed as a comedy-drama it is said to give Mabel Normand an opportunity for dramatic acting as well as laugh-creating tricks and mannerisms. Clarence G. Badger is Miss Normand's director.

As the Goldwyn release on March 24 comes Madge Kennedy in "The Danger Game," by Roy Somerville. As its title suggests, this, too, is of a melodramatic character, but with a measure of comedy. Madge Kennedy asked Goldwyn to give her the chance for a picture that could not be termed a "bridal veil comedy." She wanted a picture with an "acting role" and Goldwyn is now glad that it acceded to her wishes. "The Danger Game" is unlike anything she has done before. This production was directed by Edward Dillon.

On April 7 Mary Garden will be presented in "The Splendid Sinner," by Kate Jordan. This is said to be a bigger and more unusual picture even than "Thais," which, Goldwyn says, has been re-booked for repeat dates by more than sixty per cent of the customers who have played it. The advantage of "The Splendid Sinner" over "Thais" is said to lie in its modernness of theme and dress and the fact that it is an emotional drama. The production was completed early in December and was directed by Edwin Carewe. It goes to all Goldwyn customers at their regular rental price.

Vitagraph Plans Two More Serials

Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph company, announces that within a fortnight two companies will be at work simultaneously on Vitagraph serials at the company's western studio in Hollywood. At the present time Hedda Nova and J. Frank Glendon, under direction of David Smith and Paul Hurst, are engaged in making "The Woman in the Web," and plans are about completed for starting its successor. The name of the picture, the stars and the supporting company have not been announced.

Universal Changes Name of Feature

"The Risky Road" is the title decided upon by Universal for the Dorothy Phillips feature previously known as "Her Fling." "The Risky Road" is from a story by Katharine Leiser Robbins which appeared in "Live Stories" and was adapted and produced by Ida May Parks.

Dorothy Phillips is supported in "The Risky Road" by William Stowell, George Cheseboro, Edwin Cecil, Joseph Girard, Juanita Hansen, Claire DuBrey and Sally Starr. Release date has not been set.

Bessie Barriscale's Second Paralta Play, With George Fisher In Support, Is "Within the Cup." J. Warren Kerrigan Contributes "The Turn of a Card" As His Second Feature for That Company

Goldwyn Widens Distribution

Follows Up Australian Deal with Arrangements for South Africa, Argentina and Porto Rico—Further Moves Expected

FOLLOWING quickly upon the entry of Goldwyn Pictures into Australasia comes the further announcement from Goldwyn of the distribution of Goldwyn Pictures in South Africa, Argentine Republic and Porto Rico. Negotiations have been closed for distribution in these lands through Arthur Ziehm, of Goldwyn's export department, and signalize the further extension of the Goldwyn activities in foreign territories.

Goldwyn Pictures are to be shown in all of Africa south of the equator in association with the African Film Trust, Limited. This organization controls the South African territory, owning up-to-date theatres and representing the leading cinema producing organizations in that field.

Contracts for distribution in the Argentine Republic, Uruguay and Paraguay have been signed with Messrs. Saenz and Gonzalez, a comparatively new but powerful organization in Argentina. This company, Goldwyn says, has tremendous financial resources at its disposal, and after long consideration closed with Goldwyn for its productions because of their peculiar fitness for the South American market.

In India, Burmah and Ceylon Oriental audiences will see the Goldwyn productions, as a result of a contract just signed for exclusive distribution in this territory by K. D. & Brothers.

Agencia General Cinematografica of San Juan, Porto Rico, has closed negotiations with Goldwyn for the distribution of all Goldwyn productions in Porto Rico, Venezuela and Santo Domingo.

Goldwyn's entry into two of the great European nations and in still other parts of the world is expected to be announced shortly.

In less than six months from the date of its first release in the theatres of North America Goldwyn has girdled the globe and finds its productions being shown in virtually all civilized lands of the universe, with the natural exception of Germany and lands allied with the Germans in the war.

Good Weather Speeds Up Fox Studio Work

WITH improved weather conditions, William Fox announced last week, there has been a speeding up of work in the making of William Fox pictures in the East Coast studios.

In the production which June Caprice is making in the Victor studios under the direction of Harry Millarde "meatless days" play an important part. The plot hinges around a kiss in the dark and is said to be novel and to give Miss Caprice an excellent chance to display her coy love making.

Peggy Hyland has finished "The Debt of Honor," the first picture she has made for Fox. The play has a spy interest and war plot. R. A. Walsh expects shortly to finish "Woman and the Law" at the Biograph studios. This play is based on a recent sensational case in which a woman was acquitted of the charge of murdering her husband. Miriam Cooper returns to the screen in this production.

In the Biograph studio also Jane and Katherine Lee have begun work on a new Standard production, and Director Stanton is putting the finishing touches on "Rough and Ready," the new William Farnum de luxe production. At the Victor studios Edmund Lawrence is finishing a new picture for Virginia Pearson titled "A Daughter of France."

In the West Coast studios Jewel Carmen has completed a new picture which has a very interesting part of the underworld for its theme.

Denishawn Artists Dance in "Wild Youth"

Ruth St. Denis and Ted Shawn are said to have contributed an effective feature to the J. Stuart Blackton production, "Wild Youth," which is being filmed in California for Paramount, by arranging a special sequence of dances in which thirty of the Denishawn artists assist in the allegorical scenes of the play. The scenes in which the dancers appear are symbolical of youth and are said to be a distinct achievement. The dances were arranged by Ted Shawn to especially conform to the theme of the story and the scenes were filmed in a beautiful glade in the world-famous Busch Gardens of Pasadena. Leading the dancers was Miss Inez Stryker, who has attained considerable reputation through several years on the road with Miss St. Denis' company of performers.

Caprice Feature in Step with Times

"Meatless days," "Pork Barons" and "Hooverisms" are featured in the new feature which June Caprice is making for William Fox at the Victor Studio. As a result of the slogan, "Eat less meat and more beans," there is said to be unprecedented prosperity in a bean cannery, the proprietor of which falls in love with June.

The plot hinges around a kiss in the dark or, as it might be termed, a camouflage kiss.

Spoor Features Booking in Australia

The new Essanay agency in Sydney, Australia, conducted by Clement Mason, is now booking not only the Essanay scenics and comedies but the George K. Spoor Ultra features, "Uneasy Money," "Men Who Have Made Love to Me" and "Ruggles of Red Gap." Mr. Mason reports that Taylor Holmes has a host of admirers throughout Australia and also that North American scenics are popular among the natives of that country.

Mary Murillo's Rise Has Been Meteoric

From a beginning only a few years ago, at which the sum of twenty-five dollars a reel loomed large in her eyes, Mary Murillo, the Irish-American author of scenarios, has blazed a path for herself by the power of her typewriter. This sudden rise of Miss Murillo from obscurity to prominence among scenario builders would seem incredible were it not for the fact that meteoric flights to fame and fortune have marked the careers of many present-day leaders in the various branches of the motion picture profession, Bert Ennis shows in a current announcement.

"Song of the Soul" Has Alice Joyce as Star

"The Song of the Soul," with Alice Joyce as the star, is announced by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, as the Blue Ribbon feature scheduled for release the week of March 4. The story, which is described as one of exceptional power, was written by Shannon Fife and was produced under the direction of Tom Terriss. With Miss Joyce appear a number of notable players, among them Walter McGrail, Barney Randall, Percy Standing, Bernard Siegel, Edith Reeves and Stephen Carr, the boy actor.

Russian Expert Works on Brady Picture

Vladimir G. Tilleman, an expert on Russian art and customs, has been working as special adviser on the filming of "The Bride's Revenge," Select's new production starring Alice Brady. In this play Miss Brady will again be supported by Frank Morgan, who was her leading man in "The Knife," and her cast includes R. Walker, C. Porches, W. C. Carlton, Helen Lindroth, Jack Johnson, Yolande Bucquette and Tula Bell. The picture is being directed by Charles Miller and photographed by Hal Young.

Mae Marsh's Next Goldwyn Feature Is "The Beloved Traitor"

Surrounded by Everything a High-Class Production Requires, the Dolly Sisters Are Making Their First Motion Picture, Directed by Leonce Perret

World Makes Changes in Scenario Field

IN the cause of increased efficiency which will enable the World Film Corporation to give exhibitors better and better World Pictures at the minimum of cost, the World has recently made several radical changes in its scenario department and in the production end of the business. These changes are all said to be in the interest of better co-operation and coordination in the securing and filming of the highest quality of stories—stories that have the biggest possible box-office value to the exhibitors.

The World scenario department, under the management of Charles Sarver, whose engagement was recently announced, will operate on the principle that the subject matter is sixty per cent of screen success. In other words, the story is of vital importance in boosting the box-office for the exhibitors, and it is for the very best stories obtainable that Mr. Sarver and his assistants are now diligently searching. While the name of the author means nothing to the World scenario department, it is realized that established authors have achieved their position through successful work, and the leading authors will be gotten in touch with and their work purchased if found suitable for World filming. An instance of this occurred last week when two stories by Maravene Thompson, the novelist, were purchased in record-breaking time the morning after they were submitted.

Following the acceptance of a story by the World scenario department the story will be given to one of the staff scenario writers for the preparation of the working script. This script will be passed on by five high officials of the company before it is finally accepted for production. And after a script has once been put in work there will be no rewriting, no changing by the director. The work will be pushed through without expensive halts or changes, thereby assuring prompt, efficient completion of the film. In the casting, it is said, merit alone will count.

Keystoners Initiated Into the Dramatic

Ward Caulfield of the Triangle-Keystone forces has deserted comedy long enough to play a dramatic role in "Another Foolish Virgin," in which Alma Rubens and Texas Guinan are being featured. Another Triangle-Keystoner who has recently left the fun-makers for a serious part is Frank Bonn, "heavy," who has been cast for an important role in "The Veil," the first dramatic production in which he has appeared since he left the speaking stage. Ray Griffith appears for the first time in a Triangle feature picture as one of Miss Thomas' supporting cast in "The Siren in the House."

"Innocent's Progress" for Pauline Starke

Triangle has provided what is claimed to be another strong subject for Pauline Starke, sixteen-year-old star of "Until They Get Me" and "The Shoes That Danced," in "Innocent's Progress," a story of a country girl who seeks fame and fortune in a big city. Frank Borzage is directing it.

Russell Heads Own Company

Mutual Will Handle Distribution of Pictures of William Russell Productions, Inc.—In California Ready for Work

FROM the Los Angeles offices of William Russell Productions, Inc., comes the announcement that William Russell is to appear in a series of special productions made by his own company and distributed to the trade through the exchanges of the Mutual Film Corporation.

The studios of William Russell Productions, Inc., will be located in Southern California, centrally situated for the range of scenic settings necessary to the depiction of the Russell type of story with the "big outdoor stuff."

"It seems probable now that my first vehicle will be a story by William Hamilton Osborne," said Mr. Russell, who has just returned to the West Coast after a short sojourn in New York. "While in New York I negotiated with a number of writers of the first rank and I shall have an interesting announcement presently in that connection. I am also bringing on from the East a special staff scenario writer who is going to live on the job with me. I am not at liberty yet to give out the names of the members of the staff, including the director, as there is a possibility that I may make a change in directors before we start to shoot on story No. 1.

"I am pleased to have concluded arrangements for distribution through the Mutual Film Corporation. I may also admit that the fact that the Mutual is not now offering in competition the work of any other male star is a fact of importance in arriving at my decision."

Mr. Russell's eastern representatives are in negotiation with a number of writers for vehicles to be used in the Russell specials this year, including Charles LeRoy Edson, Sinclair Lewis, Rex Beach and others.

William Russell, Who Leads His Own Company to Make Pictures for Mutual

Vitagraph Reissues Its Drew Comedies

ALBERT E. SMITH, president of the Vitagraph Company, announces that the company has completed plans for the reissue of one-reel comedies, featuring Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, under the title of "Vitagraph Drew Comedies." The first of them will be put out on March 11 and they will be released at the rate of one a week.

These are the pictures in which Mr. and Mrs. Drew first attained fame as screen entertainers, although they had appeared in many Vitagraph pictures prior to the time they became a featured team. Mr. Smith is authority for the statement that these comedies will compare favorably with any now on the screen and he predicts that exhibitors all over the country will reap a harvest with them.

Most of the comedies were written and directed by Mr. Drew himself, and they contain all of the unctuous humor which has made him one of the big drawing cards of the screen. Mr. Smith says that the comedies, of which there are several score in the Vitagraph library, have been carefully selected and subjects have already been chosen for thirty-five weeks to come. The pictures as they will be released during the first fifteen weeks are announced by Mr. Smith as follows:

March 11, "Their First Quarrel"; March 18, "A Telegraphic Tangle"; March 25, "His Wife Knew About It"; April 1, "Following the Scent"; April 8, "The Home Cure"; April 15, "The Deceivers"; April 22, "Beautiful Thoughts"; April 29, "All for the Love of a Girl"; May 6, "The Story of the Glove"; May 13, "Fox Trot Finesse"; May 20, "The Mysterious Mr. Davey"; May 27, "Rooney's Cad Case"; June 3, "Romantic Reggie"; June 10, "A Case of Eugenics," and June 17, "When Two Play a Game."

Alice Brady Picture Changes Its Title

IT has been decided, according to an announcement this week from Select Pictures, to call the new production which Alice Brady is making for Select Pictures at the West Fifty-sixth Street studios "The Bride's Revenge," this title replacing "Ruthless Russia," the working title by which the production has hitherto been known.

While "The Bride's Revenge" as a title may have a somewhat melodramatic flavor, the producers feel that it is peculiarly suited to the new Brady picture, inasmuch as this story is claimed to be a strong and gripping tale of love and adventure in modern Russia, just before that land was plunged into chaos by revolution and internal strife. The scenes are laid in Petrograd, and the spirit of unrest and mood of the moment is reflected in the by-play of incident and happening with which the picture abounds. "The Bride's Revenge" is in no sense of the word a war picture, a political picture, or a picture of the revolution. It is a love story, told against the background of adventure in five reels.

Alice Brady, who has always done well in Russian stories, and whose "Darkest Russia" was one of her most popular pictures prior to her becoming a Select Pictures star, is said to be ideally suited to the role of Vera Souroff, the daughter of a major in the Russian Guards, and a protege of a family of noble birth. Opposite her plays Frank Morgan, who was also her leading man in the recently completed Select feature, "The Knife." This is Mr. Morgan's first Russian part. Such rapid progress in filming the picture is being made under the direction of Charles Miller that it now seems likely that the taking of "The Bride's Revenge" will be completed several days ahead of time, originally set for the end of February.

Bert Lytell Signs with Metro Pictures

Bert Lytell, whose last appearance was in "The Lone Wolf," a Herbert Brenon picture, and who also was announced as the star of "Empty Pockets," which has not yet been released, has signed a long-term contract to star in Metro pictures, the latter company this week announced.

Unlike some of the Metro stars, who devote their time between productions to appearances on the legitimate stage, Mr. Lytell plans to confine himself entirely to motion picture work. In addition to Mr. Lytell, Metro now has on its star list Ethel Barrymore, Effie Shannon, Emmy Wehlen, Emily Stevens, Rita Jolivet, Viola Dana, Mabel Taliaferro and Mlle. Nazimova.

Metro proposes, according to the announcement, to make Mr. Lytell's pictures a part of their all-star series features. Each production will have an all-star cast, and will be produced under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, manager of productions of Metro's Eastern studios.

Arrangements Made for New Jaxons

It was announced by General Film last week that arrangements have been made for the release of a new series of Jaxon comedies, beginning early in March.

The sixth series is now drawing to a close, with "What Will Happen Next?" as the current release. The last of the present series will be "Which Was Lucky?"

Well-Known Players in Essanay Comedy

Robert Conness and Virginia Valli are shortly to be featured in a short farce comedy, the idea for which was conceived by one of Essanay's scenario writers. Arthur Berthelet will direct the picture for George K. Spoor. The title of the comedy is "The Lie That Failed," and deals with the attempts of two hubbies to have an evening of poker in the face of the opposition of their wives.

Mrs. Thompson's Stories for World Pictures

World-Pictures has obtained the first call on all the screen rights to all of the work of Mrs. Marevene Thompson, novelist, playwright and short story writer, whose work appears regularly in Ladies' Home Journal, American Magazine, Woman's Home Companion, and other publications.

The World has just secured two stories from Mrs. Thompson, "The Blood of the Trevors" and "The Heart of a Girl," which will shortly be screened.

Osmun Joins Metro Scenario Staff

Leighton Graves Osmun, author of numerous motion picture scenarios, as well as novels and short stories, has joined the scenario department of Metro as a staff writer, and has made his first contribution, "Treasure," in which Edith Storey, Metro star, will shortly be seen.

Stage Play Adapted for Billie Burke

The next subject featuring Billie Burke to be released under the Paramount trademark by arrangement with F. Ziegfeld, Jr., is "Eve's Daughter," an adaptation of Alicia Ramsey's play in which Grace George was starred. Margaret Turnbull prepared the scenario and James Kirkwood directed the production.

Lockwood Feature Reaches Last Stage

Metro's screen presentation of Holman Day's romantic story, "The Landloper," which is Harold Lockwood's next starring vehicle, is reaching the final stages in production under the direction of George Irving. All the interior scenes, as well as a large number of exteriors, have been filmed. With the completion of the Palm Beach episode, which is now in the making, the picture is finished in so far as work before the camera is concerned.

Roscoe "Fatty" Arbuckle Is An Ardent Wooer In "The Bell Boy," for Paramount Release. Alice Lake Is the Other Half of The Duo

Pathe Points to March 10 List

Bessie Love's Initial Feature for That Company Scheduled, Along with First "House of Hate" Episode—Other Releases

PATHE attaches special interest to its program for the week of March 10, which, it is announced, marks the first appearance of Bessie Love in Pathe Plays and the release of the first episode of the Pearl White serial, "The House of Hate" which will be launched then.

Miss Love stars in "The Great Adventure," by Henry Kitchell Webster, with scenario by Agnes C. Johnston. The production was made with a cast including Donald Hall, Chester Barnett, Florence Short, Flora Finch and John W. Dunn. The comedy drama is said to be of the type very popular at the present time. The story deals with a little girl who forges her way to the top rung of the theatrical ladder through her innate sweetness, purity and naively ingenious initiative.

Pearl White stars in the first episode of "The House of Hate" with Antonio Moreno, the episode title being "The Hooded Terror." There seems to be no doubt that "The House of Hate" is the best Pathe serial yet and advance bookings are said to be pouring in. The punch in Episode One comes when the head of the House of Waldon is mysteriously murdered by an awe-inspiring black cowled stranger who has sworn an oath of hate against him and his only heir, a young and beautiful girl, who through his death becomes owner of America's largest munitions factory—The Waldon War Works.

Ruth Roland appears in the eighth of "The Price of Folly" dramas entitled "Shifting Sands," with Frank Mayo. Does divorce solve marital troubles? That is the question asked in this picture.

Harold Lloyd stars in a one-reel Rolin comedy entitled "Look Pleasant."

"Our National Parks"—Mesa Verda Park, and Rainier Park are shown in a striking split reel scenic.

International Cartoon and Educational split reel and Hearst-Pathe News No. 22 and No. 23 complete this program.

Mary Miles Minter Seen in Comedy-Drama

MARY MILES MINTER'S next production for Mutual is "Powers that Prey," which is to be released March 4. The play is a comedy-drama and is based on a story by Will M. Ritchey. It was produced by the American, under the direction of Henry King, and is a story of newspaper life involving the conflict of a scrupulous editor and unscrupulous politicians.

Miss Minter is cast in the role of Sylvia Grant, the pampered daughter of Burton Grant, editor of the Daily News, who is fighting the attempted stealing of a franchise by crooked politicians working in the interests of a railroad. The inside workings of a newspaper plant are shown and the actual process of getting out a newspaper is said to be tinctured with comedy that relieves the tension. Included in the cast are Alan Forrest, who plays lead; Clarence Burton, the crooked politician; Lucille Ward, Emma Kluge and Harvey Clark.

The first issues of the Screen Telegram, the Mutual's twice-a-week news release, are scheduled for March 3 and March 6. The Screen Telegram supplants the Mutual Weekly.

Billie Rhodes appears in a Strand comedy, "Waltzing Around," released March 5.

California "Gets" J. Stuart Blackton

CALIFORNIA has "got" J. Stuart Blackton. "I shall never make another foot of film in the East," the Commodore, who has just completed "Wild Youth" for Paramount, and will soon begin work on "Missing," asserted with emphasis to a friend the other day at Hollywood, Cal.

"It required just 21 years of worry and expense to drive me to this conclusion," he said, "but you know, it's never too late to learn. I probably could have moved out West long ago, if I had had any idea of the many advantages California possesses for the maker of screen entertainment. But when I heard all the wonderful eulogium of the State while I was busy turning out hundreds of films in the East, I thought them simply the exaggerated ravings of super-enthusiastic 'boosters!' What a mistake! I'm one of 'em myself since I reached here."

The Commodore let his eye rove across the Santa Monica hills. "Scenically," he went on, "I've been unable to discover a thing in any of the scripts intended for my forthcoming productions which cannot be found within a short distance of the Lasky Studio. It is really marvelous. Bear Valley for the Arctic; Playa del Rey for the tropics. The Panama Canal is out back of Beverly Hills, and old England in all its pastoral beauty is within two miles. Fairyland is to be found at Pasadena masquerading under another name. You can find Desolation over near Barstow. Near Newhall is the wildest of the Woolly West, and the quintessence of elegance and charm is —all over Hollywood. Los Angeles can supply the busiest of busy streets, and there is desert and wilderness less than five miles distant."

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Advance Offerings of the Programs

Contrasts in Triangle Program

Olive Thomas and Pauline Starke Presented in Dramas Depicting Widely Different Phases of New York Life

WITH the presentation of "Heiress for a Day," with Olive Thomas in the title role, and "The Shoes That Danced," featuring Pauline Starke, Triangle depicts two widely different phases of New York life in its releases for the week of March 3.

"Heiress for a Day," scenarioized by Robert F. Hill from Henry Albert Phillips' story of the same name, deals with the adventures of a little manicurist at the Ritz-Carlton whose sudden inheritance wins a place for her among the 400. Many of the scenes are staged at the Ritz, and the ballroom of that hostelry was reproduced for this production by the Triangle decorators. Elaborate costuming is said to be a feature of the play.

In her new vehicle Miss Thomas is featured for the seventh time as a Triangle player. Since leaving the Ziegfeld Follies to appear in "Madcap Madge," she has appeared in Triangle photoplays, her most recent features being "Indiscreet Corinne," "Betty Takes a Hand" and "Limousine Life." Joe King, Triangle's new leading man, is seen in her support and the cast also includes Eugene Burr, Graham Pette, Lillian Langdon, Mary Warren and Anna Dodge.

"The Shoes That Danced," second feature of the Triangle's March 3rd program, has been adapted from John A. Moroso's story of the same name which appeared in a recent edition of the Metropolitan Magazine. It picturizes gang life in the New York underworld as it flourished in the days before the Rosenthal murder turned the piercing light of investigation into the criminal police system. Many angles of life in the underworld are seen, and pictures of gang killings, views of well-known East Side corners, and gambling and cabaret scenes have been reproduced in vivid likeness. A feature of this production is a masquerade in an East Side dance hall.

Olive Thomas, Triangle Star

Pauline Starke appears as the heroine, supported by Wallace MacDonald as leading man. Others in the cast are Anna Dodge, Lydia Yeamans Titus, Dick Rosson, Anne Kroman, Edward Brady and William Dyer.

"A Lady Killer's Doom" is the Keystone comedy for the week and the Triangle Komedies are "A Discord in a Flat" and "His Hidden Shame."

"Queen of the Sea" Undergoes Tinting

EDITING of the William Fox new subsea photo fantasy, "Queen of the Sea," featuring Annette Kellermann, has been completed at the Fox offices and the prints are now at the Fox laboratory for unusual tinting. This picture will be released as a Standard production April 21.

Many of the scenes in "Queen of the Sea" were made at Bar Harbor, Me., last Summer. Those in the cast frequently were guests of the people summering there. Bar Harbor society folk got many a thrill during the making of the picture, it is said. One day Miss Kellermann walked a tight wire and dived eighty-five feet into the ocean. On another day a tower was destroyed by a powerful charge of dynamite.

The scenario called for these two stunts and society waited a whole week for them to come off. Miss Kellermann, as in all her work in pictures, refused to be doubled in the wire-walking scene. She was almost blown from the top of the tower, to which the wire was anchored. Five cameras were focussed on her as she started on her perilous trip across the wire. From the beginning it was a struggle against the gale which was blowing. In her dive the gale turned her in the air, but by a struggle she straightened out her body and struck the water eighty-five feet below perfectly.

First Bessie Love Pathe Released March 10

"The Great Adventure," the first picture in which Bessie Love appears as a Pathe star, is an adaptation of Henry Kitchell Webster's book, "The Painted Scene." In it Miss Love has the part of a lovable young girl who by her innocence and sweetness dispenses sunshine upon those about her and is an influence for good.

In the cast are Chester Barnett, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Florence Short, Walter Craven and Jack Dunn. Several of these players have appeared in Pathe pictures before. Chester Barnett only recently played leading man to Gladys Hulette in "Over the Hill"; Miss Finch was in the Gladys Hulette picture, "Prudence, the Pirate," and Mr. Dunn had a prominent part in the Pearl White serial, "The Iron Claw." The picture will be released March 10 in five parts.

Lockwood Romantic in New Feature

His last two Metro releases, "The Avenging Trail" and "Broadway Bill," having offered him in vigorous stories, Harold Lockwood will be presented, by way of sharp contrast, in a lighter screen romance in his next-to-be-released Metro vehicle. The story is an adaptation of Holman Day's novel, "The Landloper," and the production is now being made in Florida under the direction of George Irving.

Violet Palmer Again with Wm. Farnum

Violet Palmer, who was co-starred by William Fox in "The Blue Streak," a special feature released in 1917, is William Farnum's leading woman in the new William Farnum de luxe production, "Rough and Ready," which is scheduled for release as a standard Fox picture March 24. Others in the cast are Alphonze Either, Jessie Arnold, David Higgins, Frank Newton, Mabel Bardine and Franklyn McGlynn.

Durning's Career Shows Steady Rise

In a brief resume of the career of Bernard J. Durning, who directed the Edison six-reel picture, "Aliens," starring Shirley Mason, the Edison Company this week called attention to the fact that Durning has risen from the ranks of studio employment instead of stepping from the "legitimate" boards to the realm of the camera and megaphone.

Date Approaches for Pathe Serial

Arrangements Made to Release "The House of Hate," with Pearl White, on March 10 Instead of Earlier—Exhibitors Advised on "Stunt" Ideas

AN announcement of unusual import, coming from the Pathe offices this week, carries the news that "The House of Hate," the new Pearl White serial, with Antonio Moreno, will be released March 10. This, it is said, is in accordance with requests from exhibitors who find this date better suited to their booking requirements than March 3, for which the serial was originally set.

Interesting circumstances, Pathe explains, have developed in Chicago in connection with the release of "The House of Hate." M. Cooper, who owns the Twentieth Century theatre, and Sam Gold and his partner, Bartlestein, of the Gold theatre, have been careful to refrain from repeating pictures that either has run, with one exception—Pathe serials.

Booked Day and Date

These exhibitors, Pathe announces, have agreed to run every Pathe serial day and date and have religiously kept this agreement. They have signed for "The House of Hate" first-run to open on release-day in both houses. Within a block of these two houses are located the Circle and Springfield theatres. These two houses will repeat the picture of the larger houses at a later date. In Evansville, Ind., "The House of Hate" will play at the Majestic theatre, first run, and the Northside, second run. These houses are controlled by Charles Sweeton.

V. J. Haydel of the Jewel theatre, Helena, Ark., is another showman who has taken out what he calls a "House of Hate" insurance policy, and he is paying a higher premium than ever before, it is said. Mr. Haydel stated to R. K. Evans, Pathe's St. Louis manager, that in view of the star and production in "The House of Hate," he feels that he should pay more money than usual.

In New York a special showing was given at the New York roof recently. It was attended by several hundred exhibitors of the metropolitan district and intense interest was shown. "Manager Raynor of our New York office has big advance bookings and reports from other offices are equally as enthusiastic," said F. C. Quimby, sales manager.

Good Film—Better Price

"Most exhibitors," said Mr. Quimby, "realizing the value of a good serial, are willing to pay good prices for it. However, they generally cut down on their feature on the days the serial runs. The manager of the theatre circuit in question does not look at things this way. His idea is to book a very big feature for the opening and thus make sure that an unusually large number of people see the first episode. On the Pacific Coast, Mr. Pantages, one of the most successful showmen in the business, uses the same system except that he books a headline vaudeville act to run with the first episode of a new serial. This is an idea, the value of which is proven, and which I am calling to the attention of all of our managers and salesmen."

Mr. Quimby brought out a number of other ideas. Prince Paleologue has painted a very striking 24-sheet which Pathe is prepared to furnish free to exhibitors who will post from 5 to 30 for one month.

Ralph Kellard Returns to the Screen In a Pathe Play

"About two weeks before the first episode is to open these 24 sheets should be posted," Mr. Quimby said. "A novel piece of advertising matter, which we are issuing, will take the place of a banner and will help to make a striking lobby display. A generous use of the various advertising helps issued, together with good newspaper advertising and publicity, will insure launching the serial in a big way and the exhibitor can rest assured that each episode will bring the people back to see the next. Scattering through the paper in bold type the words 'The House of Hate,' and nothing else, will create interest."

Publicity Suggestions

The Hooded Terror in "The House of Hate" is a mysterious black-cowled creature, which it is believed will prove a greater mystery character than the Laughing Mask in "The Iron Claw."

A suggestion through which exhibitors can get a good deal of publicity was made by Mr. Quimby. In brief, it is as follows: Get a man and dress him in a black-hooded robe with white eyeholes and have him do unusual stunts, climb church steeples, ride through the streets, etc., running at the same time readers in the newspapers. After three or four days of this, run a striking advertisement in the paper, giving the letters of the name, "The House of Hate," all jumbled up, then announce that a prize of an admission ticket for the entire serial will be given to the first person who, on a certain day, walks up to the mysterious stranger in your city hall park and tells him the name of the picture he is advertising.

The next day run an advertisement in the newspapers containing the announcement of the winner of the contest and, if possible, a photograph of him or her in the act of winning it. After having announced that the man in the black robe is the Hooded Terror in "The House of Hate," then follow it with an advertisement showing him, telling your public: "This is the Hooded Terror, who vows vengeance upon the House of Waldon and the beautiful girl, who, through his murder of her father, becomes its head.

"Pearl White, the serial star, is Pearl Waldon; Antonio Moreno is Harvey Gresham in Pathe's continued photoplay, 'The House of Hate,' but who and what is this mysterious and awful man—the Hooded Terror? This is the question everyone who sees this serial will ask."

Jersey City Theatre to Show Pathe Plays

Following the reception accorded the Pathe Plays, Fannie Ward in "Innocent," Frank Keenan in "Loaded Dice" and Antonio Moreno and Doraldina in "The Naulahka," on the new two-a-month basis, many exhibitors have signed contracts for the pictures, Pathe announced this week. One of the latest is Louis F. Blumenthal, of the Nationtl theatre, Jersey City, one of the largest houses in the East.

Another Toto Comedy Is Released

On February 24 Pathe released a new Toto comedy, called "A One-Night Stand," which the company declares is even stronger than "The Movie Dummy." The picture shows the comedian as manager, scene shifter, ticket taker, electrician and performing other duties attached to the "opry house" of a small town.

Childs Closes Pathe's War Picture for Coast

E. O. Childs, manager of Pathe's San Francisco branch, has contracted with Sheehan & Lurie, managers of the Rialto theatre, San Francisco, not only to run "The German Curse in Russia," Donald Thompson's war picture, at that theatre for one week, but for them also to take over this picture for every theatre in Mr. Childs' territory.

"Blue Bird" Drive Is Planned

Will Be Released as Artcraft Easter Special, with Pretentious Exploitation Campaign—Whole Nation To Be Covered

WHAT Artcraft hopes to develop into the most pretentious, as well as distinctive exploitation campaign ever accorded a production of its kind, has been arranged for Maeterlinck's "Blue Bird," produced by Famous Players-Lasky under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, according to an announcement this week. The picture, as already announced in MOTION PICTURE NEWS, is to be released as an Artcraft Easter Special.

The campaign planned, according to Walter E. Greene, managing director in charge of the distribution department, will be of nation wide scope, reaching the picture public of every city and hamlet in the country.

In outlining the plan of action affecting the exploitation of this production, Mr. Greene said: "The fame of Maeterlinck's masterpiece is international. Our campaign, therefore, will directly tie up with the popularity of this subject and treat in a dignified manner, the wonderful thoughts so effectively portrayed in the Belgian poet's dramatic success, which in its transference to the screen offers perhaps, the first genuine visualization of Maeterlinck's story. The stage could never do full justice to this subject, and with the almost boundless possibilities of the film art only such a real interpretation could be disclosed.

"One of the distinctive features of our campaign will be, what is conceded by experts, a most effective arrangement for reaching the public in a direct appeal giving the exhibitor exceptional advance publicity. This drive will be conducted with the co-operation of newspapers throughout the country. Through this channel a unique exploitation campaign has been perfected in behalf of the exhibitors showing 'The Blue Bird' and which insures direct returns for these managers.

"Another feature of the campaign is evidenced in the distribution among exchanges, theatres and public, of a beautiful booklet of twelve pages plus an art cover of unusual attractiveness. This booklet will offer a standard entirely in keeping with that of the subject with which it deals and will be part of a direct-by-mail advertising drive.

"Arrangements for advance publicity in newspapers all over the country presenting large feature displays, are now under way and figures not compiled indicate that in this particular field alone the results will afford an exploitation service to exhibitors that has never before been duplicated. Waterson, Berlin and Snyder Company, the music publishers, have also seen the advisability of co-operating with us on a plan of tying up their song, 'The Blue Bird' with our photoplay. This promotion idea is also under way and will prove another good booster for managers showing the film."

Madge Evans Seen in Motherhood Play

Madge Evans, World Film's Diminutive Darling, Is Presented in "Wanted, a Mother"

MADGE EVANS is starred with George MacQuarrie in "Wanted, a Mother," a World Picture, to be released March 18. Those who see this picture will instantly recognize, it is said, the experiences of a child, surrounded by all the things that money can buy, who needs, but is denied, that priceless heritage of children of men—a mother's love, a mother's care and a mother's training.

The youthful star and her leading man are said to be surrounded by a cast of more than ordinary ability, including Gerda Holmes, Alec Francis, Lionel Belmore, Tom Evans, Rosina Henley and Harry Bartlett. The production was directed by Harley Knoles.

Madge Evans in the role of Eileen Homer is the neglected little daughter of a surgeon whose happiness was early blighted by the loss of his young wife. The child is turned over to the tender mercies of a governess and in her dreams constructs a fairyland which possesses all the requisites of happiness absent from her life. One evening Dr. Homer discovers Eileen playing in the street without her governess and he is so angered that he writes out an advertisement to be inserted in the morning paper and leaves it on his desk. The child reads the note and in order to retain her governess rewrites it and captains it, "Wanted, a Mother." It happens that Dr. Homer has formed the acquaintance of Dr. Thelma Winters, a woman physician and an expert on trephining. An opportunity presents itself to her to perform a delicate operation on Eileen, the child's own father being unnerved by the accident which has befallen the little one. The operation is a success, the friendship of the two surgeons ripens into love and Eileen soon has a mother.

Louise Glaum, Who Stars In "The Snapdragon" for Paralta

Jewel Carmen Release Slated March 3

The William Fox special feature release for March 3 will be Jewel Carmen in "The Girl with the Champagne Eyes." Most of the scenes are centered about trading posts of the far North.

The story opens on a steamship bound for San Francisco. Jewel Carmen, in the role of Nellie Proctor, a beautiful girl, steals a wallet from a fellow passenger. Fearing detection, she slips the wallet into the pocket of a male passenger who is convicted of the crime and sentenced to two years in the chain gang.

In the supporting cast are Francis Carpenter, who played Jack in "Jack and the Beanstalk," Aladdin in "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," and Jim in "Treasure Island." Gertie Messinger, the little maid in "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp," also lends her charm to this picture, as does Carmen de Rue, one of the youthful dancers in Aladdin and the Good Fairy in "The Babes in the Woods," and Lloyd Perl, who played "Black Dog" in "Treasure Island."

L. C. Shumway plays opposite to Jewel Carmen, G. Raymond Nye is said to be a capable villain. Others in the cast are Charles Elder, A. Padget, Charles Gorman and Eleanor Washington. The story and scenario are by Bernard McConville, and the play was staged by C. M. Franklin.

"It Pays to Exercise" Released March 10

The release date of the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedy "It Pays to Exercise" has been changed from February 24 to March 10. The cast of comedians includes Chester Conklin, Alice Maison, Harry Booker, Eva Thatcher and "Slim" Summerville.

Madame Olga Petrova's Third Picture at the Head of Her Own Company Is Called "The Life Mask," Which Is Said to Have a Vein of Mystery That Adds Much Interest to the Picture

Quarries Provide "Set" for Triangle Play

Realism in every detail is said to have been demanded by Director Raymond Wells in the production of "The Hard Rock Breed," a Triangle play soon to be released. This drama, adapted by George Elwood Jenks from Frederic Bechdolt's Saturday Evening Post story, deals with the life of men who tunnel through huge mountains, and has as its theme the experiences of a city-bred boss with two factions of laborers. Triangle was fortunate in securing the quarries of the Colton Company for the location work, and more than a score of the Colton employees were loaned to Director Wells for this picture and were gladly accepted, as they offer the types of every nationality which the script calls for. Jack Livingston, Jack Curtis, Margery Wilson and J. Barney Sherry are seen in the leading roles.

Jaxon Short Episode Serial Popular

Among the important bookings recorded during the past week for "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial distributed by General Film Company, was that of the Garden Theatre at Baltimore, which has arranged to show each of the twelve episodes for one week.

"A Daughter of Uncle Sam," by reason of its condensation of the action into one-reel episodes, is unique among serials, and reports from the twenty-eight General Film territories are said to substantiate the claim made some weeks ago by General Film that the production would be a big winner.

Secures Rare Exteriors

The third special production in which Madame Olga Petrova will make her appearance, namely "The Life Mask," is said to be marked by a series of beautiful exterior locations, many of which have up to now, never been seen in motion pictures.

Paramount-Artcraft in Long Broadway Run

At the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation headquarters in New York last week it was announced that with one exception the Rialto and Rivoli theatres have booked solid with Paramount and Artcraft pictures up to April 8. Undoubtedly one of the most pretentious booking arrangements of its kind, it is felt by Paramount-Artcraft that this deal involves the greatest array of stars for successive presentation ever consummated.

In a letter received by Adolph Zukor, president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation from Managing Director S. L. Rothapfel of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres, the latter expresses his feeling of entire security in making this arrangement and states that from past experience, he knows it will mean excellent business at both houses.

The productions to appear at the Rialto are: Enid Bennett in "Keys of the Righteous," for the week of February 17; William S. Hart in "'Blue Blazes' Rawden," February 24; Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter," March 3; George Beban, "One More American," March 10; Ann Pennington, "Sunshine Nan," March 17; Cecil B. De Mille's, "The Whispering Chorus," March 24, and Charles Ray, "The Family Skeleton," March 31. At the Rivoli for the weeks commencing with the dates mentioned, the following subjects will appear: Elsie Ferguson, "Song of Songs," February 18; Jack Pickford, "Huck and Tom," March 4; Douglas Fairbanks, "Headin' South," March 11; Blackton's "Wild Youth," March 18; Dorothy Dalton, "Love Me," March 25; Maeterlinck's, "The Blue Bird," April 1; Enid Bennett, "Naughty, Naughty!" April 8.

Involving a period of fourteen consecutive weeks' bookings, both parties to the agreement have expressed great satisfaction in the arrangement which will insure a high-class presentation on Broadway for these films as far as the producers are concerned as well as big box-office attractions, from the two theatres' standpoint. S. L. Rothapfel, in addressing a letter to Adolph Zukor on the matter, said: "My dear Mr. Zukor: I thought you would be pleased to know that my schedule of bookings for The Rivoli and The Rialto throughout February and March and the first two weeks in April contains, with one exception, only Paramount and Artcraft features.

"This fact gives me a decided feeling of security and satisfaction as I know from past experience that it will mean excellent business at both houses.

"Thanking you for the splendid co-operation you have given me and assuring you of my continued good wishes, I remain, Yours most sincerely," signed, S. L. Rothapfel, manager director of the Rialto and Rivoli theatres.

"A Pair of Sixes" Goes to Cutting Room

Taylor Holme's newly completed George K. Spoor feature, "A Pair of Sixes," an adaptation of the stage play by Edward Peple, is now in the cutting room and the subtitles are being designed. The George Kleine offices also report that bookings in "Ruggles of Red Gap," due for release soon, are already coming in. "Uneasy Money" is proving a paying attraction for exhibitors, according to reports.

Don Barclay, Essanay Comedian

Henry Kolker, on the Left, Has Been Cast with May Allison in Metro's Production, "Social Hypocrites"; and Bert Lytell, on the Right, Has Joined the List of Metro Stars Under a Long-Term Contract

Metro Announces Its March All Stars

METRO'S Eastern and Western studios will release four All-Star Series productions through the Metro exchanges during the month of March. Emmy Wehlen, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey and Viola Dana, in the order named, supported by all-star casts are the stars who will be seen in these pictures. The first two releases were produced at Metro's New York Studios, under the personal supervision of Maxwell Karger, and the last two weeks staged at Hollywood in sunny California.

"The Shell Game," a society crook play, starring Emmy Wehlen, is the first March release, ready for showing on the 4th. George D. Baker, who directed this production, adapted the story from "Good Will and Almond Shells," written by Kenneth L. Roberts and published in the Saturday Evening Post.

"The Brass Check," in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne appear, is scheduled for release on March 11. This vehicle is a society crook play, adapted by June Mathis from George Allan England's story, published in the All-Story Weekly. Will S. Davis directed it.

"The Claim," a picturization of Charles Kenyon and Frank Dare's play, starring Edith Storey, the third March release—underlined for the 18th—was directed by Frank Reicher. June Mathis and Leighton Osmun wrote the screen version. Edith Storey is cast as Belle Jones, a dance hall girl, who is reclaimed by maternal love for her child.

"Breakers Ahead," with Viola Dana as the star, is the March 25 release. Charles J. Brabin and H. P. Keeler wrote this story, and Brabin directed the production. In this story of the Cape Cod sea coast, Miss Dana portrays Ruth Bowman from childhood to womanhood.

Nazimova's initial photodrama, "Revelation," will be released under the Metro banner after its run at the Lyric theatre in New York. This picture presents the star as Joline, an artist's model, whose reformation is brought about in an unusual manner. It is a screen version of Mabel Wagnalls' story, "A Rose Bush of a Thousand Years."

Charles Bryant appears in the leading masculine role of Paul Granville. Others are: Frank Currier, Syn de Conde, John Martin, Eugene Borden, Phillip Sandford, Bigelow Cooper, True James, Dave Turner, Fred Radcliffe, A. C. Hadley and Hazel Washburn.

Kennedy Close-Ups in Goldwyn Release

Though, Goldwyn said this week, Madge Kennedy will be given an opportunity in her forthcoming Goldwyn picture, "The Danger Game," to reveal herself as a player of dramatic roles, the subject is to be by no means a gloomy one. "The Danger Game" is to open with a close-up of Miss Kennedy's eyes alone, closed. They will open gradually and slowly reflect the thoughts of Clytie, the heroine of "The Danger Game," as they are shown in various moments during the play. Boredom, obedience, inspiration, concentration will be expressed in the Kennedy eyes as Clytie thinks of the boredom of her idle life in the society of her mother's elderly friends.

Barclay Paper Hanger

Don Barclay is nearing the completion of his second Essanay comedy, "All Stuck Up," in which the comedian plays the role of a paper hanger's assistant.

His first comedy released on February is called "Check Your Hat, Sir?"

Myrtle Lind in Triangle March Release

In "Nancy Comes Home," Triangle March release, Myrtle Lind, formerly of the Triangle-Keystone Beauty Brigade, will appear for the first time in a five-reel feature. This society drama which Robert F. Hill scenarioized from the story by B. D. Garber shows Miss Lind as the vivacious Nancy, who, neglected by her parents, samples Bohemian life for herself. Several restaurant scenes were staged for this production under the direction of Jack Dillon. Jack Gilbert, well-known juvenile, who recently returned to the Triangle lot, is seen as leading man. Myrtle Rishell, a newcomer at Culver City, appears as Mrs. Mortimer Worthing. Eugene Corey, is cast as a gunman in this feature. George Pearce, Anna Dodge and Percy Challenger also have important roles.

Charles Ray Again in Diversified Role

"The Family Skeleton," which Paramount will release March 11, provides Charles Ray with a diversified role, it is said. Ray plays the part of Billy Bates, sole heir to the Bates millions, who is convinced by his over-solicitous guardian that he has inherited his father's craving for drink, when as a matter of fact this condition exists only in his imagination. Sylvia Bremer plays opposite Ray as Poppy Drayton, of the Follies Beauty Chorus, and the rest of the cast includes Andrew Arbuckle, Billy Elmer, Otto Hoffman and Jack Dyer.

Ruth Roland in Pathe Two-Reeler

"Shifting Sands," the eighth of Pathe's "The Price of Folly" series of two-reel dramas, is released the week of March 10. The story deals with the question, "Does divorce solve marital troubles?"

Ruth Roland, who is co-starred with Frank Mayo in "The Price of Folly," is well known to motion picture fans for her work in other Pathe productions. Although only twenty-three years old, she has been on the stage seventeen years. She made her debut in child parts on the Pacific Coast and was one of the attractions of the company in which she played.

As an ingenue she won even greater laurels. She was well known for her versatility, playing comedy or dramatic parts with equal ease. She began her work in motion pictures about five years ago in Western and Indian plays. Later she was put into comedies and was a success in them. Her first continued play was "Who Pays?" Then she was chosen for the star of the Pathe serial, "The Red Circle" and "The Neglected Wife."

Enid Bennett Busy

Enid Bennett has started on her third Ince production for Paramount release, the title of which has not yet been decided upon. Earl Rodney is leading man and Melbourne MacDowell has an important role. Jerome Storm is directing the picture.

Pathe's "France in Arms" Going Strong

Of all the war pictures released by Pathe, it is claimed none is proving a better attraction than "France in Arms," the five-reel official French picture to which especial interest attaches, owing to the presence on the French front of American soldiers.

A number of big exhibitors report great success with this picture, among them Manager A. A. Miller of the Knickerbocker theatre, Columbus, O.; Manager George Fischer of Saxe's Alhambra theatre, Milwaukee, Wis.; Manager Gregory of the Strand theatre, Stevens Point, Wis., and many others.

Two Triangles Now Being Edited

Triangle pictures now in the editing department, according to an anouncement this week, are "Innocent's Progress," with Pauline Starke and Jack Livingston, made under the direction of Frank Borzage, and "Smoke," a society drama directed by Jack Conway, in which Gloria Swanson and Edward Piel are seen in the leading roles, supported by a cast including Jack Richardson, Darrel Foss, George Hernandez and a bevy of Triangle-Keystone beauties.

General Releases New O. Henry Film

"A Madison Square Arabian Night," a story by O. Henry of New York life, has been released by General Film. In it there is said to be a powerful last-minute climax. Duncan McRae, Patsy Deforrest, Miriam Miles and Joe Burke are included in the cast.

The succeeding General release in the O. Henry series is announced as "The Rathskeller and the Rose," featuring Adele DeGarde and Evart Overton.

Paramount Releases Second Tom Sawyer Picture

Jack Pickford's latest picture, "Huck and Tom," is released by Paramount March 4. This is the second of the Tom Sawyer pictures, from Mark Twain's immortal books, although each in itself is a complete release. Director William D. Taylor, a fervent admirer of the great American humorist, found that there was too much material to be contained in a mere five-reel photoplay, so he has divided the subject matter into two productions.

"One More American" New Beban Picture

The Famous Players-Lasky Corporation will wind up its February releases under the Paramount trade mark on the 25th, with George Beban's newest photoplay vehicle which was recently finished at the Hollywood studios. This production, under the title of "One More American," is an adaptation from William C. De Mille's play, "The Land of the Free," which won wide recognition for the author. Mr. De Mille also directed the production.

Fairbanks' Latest a Tale of Two Borders

"HEADIN' SOUTH" is the title of Douglas Fairbanks' newest picture. This Artcraft subject, which is released February 25, discloses a thrilling tale of two borders, Mexican and Canadian, dealing with the capture of a notorious band of Mexicans who defy all laws and governmental warnings. The scenario is by Chief Director Allan Dwan and is said to present an extremely unique plot containing a strong undercurrent of fascinating mystery which is expected to create wide comment from this standpoint alone.

"Headin' South" marks the entrance of Art Rosson as a director of Fairbanks pictures. Rosson is a pupil of Allan Dwan, who supervised his work in this photoplay. The feeling of both the star and the chief director that Rosson was entirely capable of handling the direction of a Fairbanks picture is said to be amply justified in his results obtained for "Headin' South," which is proclaimed the most thrilling of all Douglas Fairbanks pictures.

A new leading woman for the acrobatic Douglas appears in this production in the person of Catherine MacDonald. Other important parts in the story are portrayed by Frank Campeau and James Mason.

New Dates Set for Bluebirds

Change Is Made in Order of Release of Several Productions Announced for Presentation in March and April

UNIVERSAL announces changes in the dates of release of forthcoming Bluebird photoplays as follows: March 18, "Brace Up," with Herbert Rawlinson; March 25, "The Wine Girl," featuring Carmel Myers and Kenneth Harlan; April 1, "The Mollycoddle," with Franklyn Farnum and Juanita Hansen; April 8, "The Heart of the Desert," with Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford. This list supersedes all previous release date announcements.

"Brace Up," in which Herbert Rawlinson is featured, was written by Elmer Clifton, who also directed the picture. Waldemar Young prepared the scenario. Thought transmission is the foundation of the plot in which Rawlinson has the congenial role of an American college boy, who is the star of the football team until he is "framed" by a traitor to the team during the progress of a game and deliberately injured in a manner that affects his brain and strength. Sam De Grasse, Claire Du Brey, Alfred Allen and Blanche Gray are included in the cast.

"The Wine Girl" provides an Italian character part for Carmel Myers. She is supported by Rex De Roselli, E. A. Warren, and Katharine Kirkwood in addition to her leading man, Kenneth Harlan. The story was written by Harvey Gates and Stuart Paton directed the production.

In "The Mollycoddle," Franklyn Farnum, christened Laurence Percival Van Huyler, proves to be all that the term implies until he discovers that he really is of Irish descent. From that time on he is a changed young man. "The Mollycoddle" was written by John McDermott and produced by Linn F. Reynolds.

Monroe Salisbury in "The Heart of the Desert" has the type of role in which he is said to do his best work—that of an Indian. He plays a half Apache-half Pueblo, who is a Yale graduate and engineer, and who has a longing to return to his people and lead them. Other members of the cast are Ruth Clifford, Val Paul, Gretchen Lederer, Allan Sears, Monte Blue and Princess Neola.

"The Girl in the Dark," featuring Carmel Myers, is the Bluebird release of March 4, and Monroe Salisbury in "Hungry Eyes," the March 11 release.

"Raffles" Booked for Big Coast Theatres

Sol L. Lesser, president of All Star Features Distributors, Inc., who has purchased recently "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," featuring John Barrymore, for the territory covering California, Nevada and Arizona, reports that he has closed with Maurice Markowitz, Strand theatre, San Francisco, and Mr. Kehrlein, Kinema theatre, Los Angeles, for an extended first run.

Billie Burke, Paramount Star

Film Specialties

Hearst-Pathe Shows Moroccoans in Army

"IN the Hearst-Pathe News No. 16, released February 20," said an announcement from the Pathe offices this week, "are some striking scenes dealing with a country and incidents which are very rarely seen in this country. They depict the rush of the natives of Morocco to join the French army. The great picturesqueness of the scenery, the unusual costumes, the life and the action of these scenes make them of a kind to be remembered. Their importance may be judged from the fact that some 225 feet of the issue is absolutely devoted to them alone."

The previous number of the Hearst-Pathe News showed American soldiers of France wearing for the first time gas masks and undergoing training from French officers as to their use. These scenes are expected to be all the more interesting since recent newspaper dispatches refer to German gas attacks upon the sector held by the Americans.

No. 15 also showed the review of an entire division of the National Army at Camp Gordon in the South. This is perhaps the first time that such a large number of soldiers of the new army have been caught by the camera in review. The "shots" are said to be excellent and most impressive.

Human Polar Bears in Bray Pictograph

In the 108th release of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph, "the magazine on the screen," "The Human Polar Bears" are shown taking their daily plunge in the Altantic Ocean. Clad in no more than the regulation bathing suit, these men and women were caught by the Pictograph camera man enjoying a swim off Brighton Beach among the grinding cakes of ice on one of the coldest days that has ever visited the eastern shore. Tired by the buffeting of the waves, they found rest stretched out on a convenient bit of ice that lay on the sand, and then, undisturbed by a forty-mile gale, romped about on the beach.

Among the tricks shown in "Magic for Home Use" is one which has its origin among the East Indian fakirs and has been the cause of endless comment. A seed is planted in a flower pot and in a moment or two it sprouts and grows to the height of several feet and evidently without any assistance on the part of the magician. It is a simple trick when understood, and its explanation is minutely shown.

Deceased Aviator in Screen Telegram

The last appearance before the camera of Captain Vernon Castle, of the British Royal Flying Corps, who gave his life in averting a collision with another airplane above the flying field at Dallas, Tex., will be included in the initial release March 3 of the Screen Telegram, the new twice-a-week news release of the Mutual Film Corporation.

Blain McGrath, editor of the Screen Telegram, has moved into offices at the American Film Company plant, 6235 Broadway, Chicago, where the laboratory work on the news films will be done. Mr. McGrath has organized a large staff of cameramen who are stationed at advantageous points throughout the country for covering every news happening of pictorial importance.

War Stamps in Cartoons

War Savings Stamp cartoons, Universal announced last week, will be included in the weekly releases of animated newspaper cartoons shown in the Universal Current Events.

Universal Animated Weekly Shows What Is Said to Be the First Scenes of U. S. Soldiers Using Liquid Fire, for Battle Purposes

In This Universal "Shot" There Were 3,800 Marines

Universal Gets Rare "Shot" of Marines

The 3,800 United States marines who were "shot" by one Universal camera in a living reproduction of the anchor and eagle emblem of our "Soldiers of the Sea" are shown as one of the features of Universal Current Events No. 41.

Jack Cohn, editor of the Universal Current Events is said to be particularly proud of this "shot," not alone for the patriotic appeal or interest but in the fact that a special tower, two hundred feet in height, had to be erected before the picture could be taken, thus providing another example of what his cameramen are prepared to do in order to get proper "shots" of what they are after.

Physical Culture Magazine Enlarged

Beginning with the sixth number, soon to be issued, Bernarr Macfadden announces that he will enlarge the scope and size of his Physical Culture Screen Magazine. Each number will be a complete 1,000-foot reel, published monthly—as soon as present facilities are added to, fortnightly. The magazine will not be on a program, but will be issued by territorial rights, so that the independent exchanges can handle it.

Mr. Macfadden's plans include everything of interest in the big outdoors and athletics generally. Champion athletes will be shown at their training tasks, doings at soldier camps will be recorded, women's activities illustrated and much practical information about food and health will be pictorialized. In addition to the "takes" of its own expert camera staff, Physical Culture Photo Plays is in the market for any good negative of the above character.

I. S. Seidman, who has been long connected with educational film work and also of the Western Newspaper Union staff, is in active charge of the publication. He will give special attention to the reporting of athletic events, and the titles will be written by an expert in the Macfadden office, who is thoroughly acquainted with the popular requirements of concise information as to sports, dress, hygiene, health and diet.

Universal Current Events

In Universal Current Events No. 41 many interesting views of the army and navy are shown, according to Universal.

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

For the Patriotic Program

A picture particularly suitable for a performance designed to meet or create the spirit of patriotism is the feature released by the George Kleine System and made by Edison called "The Unbeliever." The story of the boy who learned in the trenches that the hatred of evil need not include the hatred of even one's enemies, that in the essentials of courage and kindness aristocrat and the man of humble birth are brothers, and that faith in God survives the cruelest suffering, is sympathetic, humorous, and at times strongly dramatic. The democratic feeling existing between officers and men in our own army is contrasted with the arrogance of the German officer. The trench scenes are unusually realistic and well done; the raid made in the dead of night through the dangerous wire entanglements shows the youthful hero to great advantage.

With this as its feature, a news weekly or screen magazine giving glimpses of our nationwide activities in war preparation and industry, a short scenic of one of America's magnificent national parks, and a patriotic cartoon, a program could be arranged that would make a sure appeal and win an enthusiastic response from boys and girls as well as the adult members of the community.

C. DEL. B.

War Camouflage Explained

Camouflage was first employed in the war when it was discovered that the Germans quickly discriminated between the white sandbags of the British trenches and the holes for the rifles that lay between. They themselves had painted many of their sandbags black to confuse their opponents. Thereafter the Allies adopted and improved on their disguise, as shown by the clever cartoons in the 108th issue of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph. While the German guns vainly tried to locate rifle holes in the diagonal lines of black spots on the face of the French trenches, the French guns were pounding at the even rows of spots and apertures in the Boche trenches. The principle of "countershading" to produce distortion or flat surfaces in a rounded object, and imitative coloring as illustrated by nature and the war paint of artillery and ships, is also shown by photograph and drawing.

Fido Bumps, after suffering indignity at the claws of a stranger cat, develops a terrific toothache and is taken by kind-hearted Bobby to the dentist. In the gas dream that ensues during the tooth-pulling operation Fido "gets back" at that cat with gratifying thoroughness, though to be sure the awakening proves a sad disillusion.
Paramount-Bray Pictograph 108.
Paramount Pictures Corp.: March 2.

Little Birds and Tadpoles

"Once upon a time" (years not stated), we with our little brothers used to hunt tadpoles in what is now the cultivated tract of Riverside Drive. The tadpoles, who were placed in a soup-dish on their arrival at our home, always died before they turned into frogs. But the pleasure of the chase never diminished.

We were reminded of this phase of our past by the delightful Finley picture, "Rambles with a Naturalist," in which boys and girls in early spring search the banks of streams for frogs' eggs, and through the microscope watch the curious evolution of the black speck into the wriggling tadpole that later becomes the frog.

But as Mr. Finley says, not everyone likes frogs. For these is the joy ot seeking the tiny bird in its nest. Here are sandpipers in their home among the reeds, and baby sandpeeps, all bill and perky tail, who dart about on the water like toy steam boats. A brood of partridges just out of the egg is a charming sight, as unlike wild birds they are covered with thick, striped down, and look very much alive.

We suggest that any exhibitor showing this—and may his name be legion!—choose for this latter part the music used by the Rivoli when this picture was shown there—"Flowerette," with a piccolo obligato imitating the tiny bird calls.
"Rambles with a Naturalist."
Universal Film Mfg. Co.: February 25.

Offered by the News Weeklies

The grip of ice still laid on our land by this unparalleled winter is still offering interesting subjects to the camera man. Mutual Weekly No. 8, released February 8, shows how an ice jam on the Ohio River was broken; Hearst-Pathe News No. 16, released February 20, gives some striking scenes along the Potomac, when the great ice floes melt and inundate the land; and Universal Animated Weekly No. 12, released February 20, has a fine shot of the launching of a merchant ship amid the ice wreckage just produced by a blast of dynamite.

Foreign pictures shared by the Universal Animated Weekly No. 12 and Hearst-Pathe News No. 16 are pictures taken in the deserts of Morocco, showing the native troops rallying to the aid of the Allied forces. The picturesque dress of the men, the fine Arabian horses, and the strange land through which they move give these camera shots all the quality of paintings.

Universal Current Events No. 41 responds to Uncle Sam's call for co-operation by showing some of the most needed activities. For instance, the Boy Scouts of Fort Lee, N. J., who did such valued service in selling Liberty Bonds, are here shown vigorously chopping wood to help out the fuel shortage; the people of Durham, S. C., start a trainload of 400,000,000 cigarettes on their way "over there"; the Hotel Biltmore chef does his part by teaching would-be navy cooks to bake bread; and the popular Marine Corps shows us how they can work and play with equal enjoyment.

Universal Animated Weekly No. 12 continues the patriotic work by pictures that remind us to hasten with our Income Tax declaration. It presents some striking scenes of the ruins of Guatemala City after the earthquake that might well be the work of the invaders in France. Vernon Castle receives a tribute in a picture taken while he was at the training field where he met his death.

Hearst-Pathe News No. 15 is strongly martial. It opens with big scenes at Camp Gordon, where the entire 82d Division takes part in a stirring review. Scenes at Camp Logan show the men learning the art of wire entanglements, while the Official War Films from France present the interesting sight of detachments going into a "gas chamber" for a rehearsal of the defense against the deadly weapon of the Germans. All emerge smiling. A parade of a less military character is that preceding the rodeo given in San Francisco. Here are the cowboys and cowgirls of the Wild West of our childhood memories.

Hearst-Pathe News No. 16 pays its tribute to both branches of the Navy, showing the pleasant "home life" of the sailor recruits stationed at San Pedro, California, and the vigor with which the rookie marines at Mare Island work and play. Some fine wrestling matches furnish scenes that are far too short for the interested spectator. That we are not being left entirely unprotected while the main body of our new army goes abroad is proved by the pictures of armored cars being used by the New York State guard. The pictures of the cars parading New York's streets, and close-ups of their guns, are excellent and interesting. In the midst of which it is pleasant to watch the "little children of the rich" enjoying the games that the summer climate of Palm Beach makes possible.

Scenery Plus

Commissioner Finley's fine picture devoted to the Geysers of the Yellowstone is an example of how interest in the beautiful and curious in nature can be heightened by attention to the editorial matter accompanying the pictures. A panorama of Upper Geyser Basin, with a few words as to its extent and the number of geysers and boiling springs found in it, paves the way for an intelligent appreciation of what the film contains. A picture of Old Faithful, most famous of Yellowstone wonders, with a brief explanation of the cause of the phenomenon known as a geyser, is first seen. Then follow close-ups of Old Faithful in the intervals of his hourly eruptions, and of the crater. Finally the geyser is seen in action, sending a jet of boiling water and steam to a height of one hundred and fifty feet.

Close-ups of other geysers, each with a character peculiar to itself, of the Giant Paint Pots with their boiling mud, of the seething Punch Bowl, and the beautiful Fire Hole Pool, set in the midst of the Yellowstone woods, form an exceedingly interesting and beautiful subject.

A short film on the same reel, entitled "Flower of the Orient," shows Japanese girls, village life, and Japanese youngsters.
"The Geysers of the Yellowstone.'
Universal Film Mfg. Co.: March 11.

Encouraging Community Interest

The Bulletin of the Affiliated Committees for Better Films, with headquarters at 70 Fifth avenue, New York, reports a successful method of increasing patronage on dull nights which results in added prestige for the theatre while aiding in the nationwide movement to aid the Red Cross.

Co-operating with local community committees, the owner gives his theatre on what he considers his poorest night of the week to a performance of an especially patriotic nature, the nature of which is determined by the committees. A short patriotic address is given by a committee member, and a special musical program is furnished, also by the committees, who of course advertise the performance as widely as possible.

Of the receipts the owner of the theatre gets what he would ordinarily take in on this otherwise poor night. The remainder goes to the local Red Cross. Community spirit has been encouraged, patriotism practically served, and the theatre has been established in prestige and popular esteem.

Food Supplies

In the olden days, pigs were an offense to every sense until killed, dressed, and served on the table. Under modern methods, Mr. Pig, as we are shown in the current Universal Screen Magazine, is housed in sanitary edifices of concrete, his food is carried to him in clean conveyors, and he himself is held to strict accountability in the matter of personal appearance. Thus do hygiene and the principles of efficient management combine to produce a vast and profitable industry.

The oyster needs no such care. Keep him free from polluting waters and he will increase and multiply, as he is here doing in Chesapeake Bay, to the joy of epicures and the satisfaction of Mr. Hoover.

The making of steel, ordinarily shown as an intricate and not easily understood process, is here presented in its essential features with titles sufficient to carry over the meaning of what is shown.

You may not know it, but the need for horses on farms is greater than ever, despite the gasoline-driven machinery. The United States Department of Agriculture here presents many handsome and useful types, from the mighty Percheron brood mares to the sinewy jumpers who clear the bar at six feet nine inches.

Willie Hopkins's "Souls and Soles" in animated clay are unusually good.
Universal Screen Magazine 61.
Universal Film Mfg. Co.: March 8.

No Rent Bills for Them!

When is a reptile not a snake? When it's a turtle, of course. For they are first cousins, and the relationship is easy to understand when you see some of the queer fellows photographed by Mr. Ditmars in his film, "Turtles of All Lands." For instance, there is one chap whose snakelike neck is so long that he cannot draw it in after the manner of other trutles, but must fold and pack it in sideways.

Equally interesting is the submarine turtle from the Amazon, provided with a periscope arrangement on his nose, and the African veldt tortoise whose shell has a scoop extension for digging into the sand. Last come the enormous tortoises from the Galapagos Islands, weighing all of three hundred pounds. They are lineal descendants of the prehistoric tortoise monsters ten times their size, who used to move over the landscape like animated adobe huts. Mr. Ditmars shows one of these just emerging from his egg all ready for business, and a half-grown specimen strong enough to carry a man on his back.
"Turtles of All Lands."
Educational Films Corp.: March 11.

In the Independent Field

"Tarzan" Through 1st Nation

First National Exhibitors' Circuit Will Distribute National Film's Production in United States and Canada

BY arrangement with the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, the National Film Corporation of America's production, "Tarzan of the Apes," will be distributed throughout the United States and Canada, through the First National exchanges. The deal, Harry Reichenbach announces, does not constitute an outright sale. It is primarily an arrangement by which the First National exchanges control the bookings and the National Film Corporation aids, both in the booking and the exploitation. Harry Schwalbe and J. D. Williams, of the First National Exhibitors, acted for their organization and Harry Reichenbach represented the National Film Corporation.

Mr. Schwalbe in a letter to the National Film Corporation, said:

"Believing 'Tarzan of the Apes' to be the kind of picture to arouse new interest in the motion picture and realizing your ambition to handle it so that it will bring the best results to individual theatre owners, we accept outright your proposal for the distribution through your circuit."

Harry M. Rubey, president of the National Film Corporation, in answer to Mr. Schwalbe, wrote:

"After convincing ourselves that the First National Exhibitors Circuit was the logical distribution channel for our picture, and noting your broadmindedness in considering theatre owners outside your own directorate, we hereby advise you that your acceptance of our proposed agreement can be considered a closing of the arrangement. I am glad to know that we are to have so successful a coterie of theatre managers associated with us in the dissemination of the production."

By the arrangement, any theatre owner in the country can secure the picture in competition to even the franchise owner of the First National. That is, the booking of the picture is open and can be secured for first, second or third run by any theatre manager who sees the value of the picture to his house, and in order to get the picture himself, the territorial representative of the First National Circuit will have to outbid the other.

It was the willingness of the directors of the First National to accept this broad clause in their contract which influenced the National concern to distribute through them.

On April 2, it is proposed by the producer and distributor that sixty prints will open in sixty principal cities for a run of one week or longer.

Exhibitors can secure rental either on percentage basis or on a flat rental for the opening periods. Both exploitation and advertising will begin in each city immediately contract is closed.

Harry Reichenbach at the National offices in New York will co-operate with the First National in designating the first run accounts.

Spanuth Reports Sales on "Frozen Warning"

H. A. SPANUTH, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation with offices in the Consumers' Building, Chicago, is at present making a trip through the East in the interests of "The Frozen Warning," the special Commonwealth feature starring Charlotte, the ice queen. The territory for this picture is rapidly being sold out and Mr. Spanuth expresses gratification at the reception that is being given him in all the cities he has visited. He is confining his attentions solely to the members of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit.

During the past week word came into the Chicago office from Mr. Spanuth that he had sold "The Frozen Warning" to the First National representatives for the state of New York, had closed a deal with Tom Moore of Washington for Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, and had sold Stanley Mastbaum the rights to Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey. Not content with this for a little more than a week's work, the Commonwealth president announced that there was a deal now pending for more Eastern and foreign territory.

William Sievers a short time ago purchased the film for Missouri and will introduce the picture by running it at his new Grand Central theatre, in St. Louis. P. J. Dawson, who has the Kitsilano thetre in Vancouver, B. C., has bought the film for all the western half of Canada. Roland and Clark of Pittsburgh have secured it for Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Alone At Last! One of the More Tender Moments in "Mickey," With Mabel Normand,

Direct Plan Accepted in South

Joseph A. Golden, president of Triumph Film Corporation, and one of the eight producers affiliated with the Producers and Exhibitors, Affiliated, returned last week from a trip through the South in the interest of the new organization, and reports that he closed for Maryland, North and South Carolina, Delaware, District of Columbia, where Harry Crandall has taken the matter up, and Virginia, Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama. Mr. Golden had with him a print of Harry Rapf's "The Struggle Everlasting," featuring Florence Reed. He expressed satisfaction with the success of the venture.

Louis Levine, prominent member of this organization, who has charge of the Eastern territory, announces that the exhibitors of New Jersey at a meeting held Tuesday, February 12, at Robert Treat Hotel, Newark, adopted the proposition. He also announces that he has closed with the Up-State exhibitors for all territory outside of Greater New York.

"Triumph of Venus" Is Shown Feb. 26

"The Triumph of Venus," written and directed by Edwin Bower Hesser, controlled by the Victor Film Manufacturing Company, and featuring Betty Lee, will be shown Tuesday morning, February 26, at the Strand theatre for review of the trade. Miss Lee is supported by William Sherwood, Percy Standing, Hassan Mussalli, Phyllis Beveridge and Grace Hamel. It is said that more than five hundred people appear in the production. The locale of the story is laid in ancient Greece. It is a classic drama. The action takes place in the open, not one exterior being used.

Jack Sherrill, In "The Crucible of Life," Controlled by General Enterprises, Inc.

Special Music for "Crucible of Life"

ARTHUR H. SAWYER and Herbert Lubin of General Enterprises, Inc., are providing a musical score for "The Crucible of Life," the latest of their territorial specials. Arrangements have been entered into with William J. McKenna, song writer, who will furnish an original and appropriate musical setting for the feature, which stars Grace Darmond, Jack Sherrill and Frank O'Connor. Mr. McKenna has so devised the various music cues which accompany "The Crucible of Life" as to be used by a small orchestra or one containing several pieces.

In addition to the entire musical setting compiled by Mr. McKenna, arrangements have been entered into between the F. B. Haviland Publishing Company of New York City and General Enterprises, Inc., whereby the former concern will provide all exhibitors showing "The Crucible of Life" with a full orchestration of "My Broken Rosary," which melody forms the dominant theme of the special music.

William J. McKenna is the composer of "Has Anybody Here Seen Kelly," "Mandy Lane" and other song hits.

U. S. Exhibitors Subjects Popular

Circuit bookings obtained for subjects distributed by the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation indicate the increasing popularity of the special productions west of the Mississippi, according to Lynn S. Card, general manager of the Exhibitors' concern.

All of the large theatre circuits in the Chicago district have been booked for the entire output of the U. S. to date, embracing the Thomas Ince production, "The Zeppelin's Last Raid"; "Those Who Pay" and the Sidney Olcott drama, "The Belgian." Among those which will show the aforementioned productions are the Jones, Linnick and Schaeffer circuit, Ascher Brothers and Lubliner and Trinz.

Advertising for "Eagle's Eye"

Special Campaign Book Issued for Exploitation of Flynn's Serial—Unique Designs on Posters—Novelty Stunts

AN intensive advertising campaign has been launched in connection with the exploitation of William J. Flynn's serial, "The Eagle's Eye," produced by Whartons, Inc., and distributed through the Foursquare exchanges.

The campaign book for the "Eagle's Eye," which made its appearance last week, maps out a campaign in detail. A series of newspaper advertisements, heralds, slides and lobby displays have linked up "The Eagle's Eye" with the national publicity which has already been given to its author and his subject.

Six single column cuts for newspaper insertion or for use as "throwaways" constitute the beginning of the local campaign. These contain no direct reference to the picture, but are intended to arouse interest, and are so closely connected with advertising to follow that they constitute a most effective "teaser" campaign at a very small cost. Each of the cuts is effective. One of them depicts the medal which was distributed throughout Germany to commemorate the sinking of the Lusitania.

The direct display advertising has been prepared with the express purpose of connecting it up closely to the publicity which has been given in newspapers everywhere to the subject matter of the serial as a whole and of each separate episode. Such titles as "The Song of Hate," "The Destruction of the Atlantic Fleet," "The Crime of the Ages" (across a picture showing the sinking of the Lusitania) and others of eye-compelling interest feature each cut, followed by copy emphasizing the authenticity of the facts shown by the picture, attested by the authorship of the serial.

It is when the book reaches the part of the advertising over which the exhibitor himself has absolute control that the campaign strikes its most unusual note. The banners, heralds, slides, lobby displays and portraits, all are a departure from the ordinary. The banner is in four colors. It is of especially heavy waterproofed canvas and prepared to stand twenty weeks of any kind of most strenuous weather.

Novelty stunts of various kinds are suggested for lobby or store window display. Photographs of various articles of unusual interest, with methods for duplicating them at slight expense, with a detailed description of how they can be incorporated into attractive displays, are in this section of the book.

Arrow Reports on Foreign Business

ARROW FILM CORPORATION announces that its foreign department has sold the United Kingdom rights of "Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman," in which John Barrymore is featured, for L. Lawrence Weber. According to W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow organization, the film brought a record price.

The Arrow Corporation also announces the sale of the South American rights of the two Edward Warren productions, "Souls Redeemed" and "Weavers of Life." The Indiana rights of these two films were also sold this week.

Mr. Shallenberger said: "We have been greatly widening our foreign service. For months past we have had representatives traveling in all parts of the world studying film conditions and getting a first-hand knowledge of the exact requirements of the various markets. We have collected a vast amount of valuable data that has proven of immense value not only to us, but to the producers, with whom we are associated, as well.

"In line with our expansion in the foreign field we have established a special South American bureau, which will devote its energies exclusively to business in this field. We have been paying special attention to South American film conditions and have just completed a fifteen months' research campaign there. Mr. Luis O. Tornero, who is widely known in film circles in the Southern Hemisphere, has been appointed special representative for the Arrow organization and is now on his way back to Buenos Aires. He is to make another tour of the big film centers of South America, taking with him, among others, prints of the two W. H. Clune productions, 'Ramona' and 'Eyes of the World'; the two Warren productions, 'Souls Redeemed' and 'Weavers of Life'; three Arrow productions, 'The Woman's Law,' 'The Deemster' and 'Right Off the Bat'; the Mayfair production, 'Persuasive Peggy,' and the two-reel comedies made by the Jester Comedy Corporation."

"Business Shows Increase," Says Wolfberg

Harris P. Wolfberg, Wolfberg Attractions, Inc., Pittsburgh, and one of the most successful states rights men in the Middle West territory, writes the MOTION PICTURE NEWS that exhibitors throughout the Middle West look for a record-breaking business during the Spring and Summer. Mr. Wolfberg is in immediate touch with the conditions in this territory and especially with the exhibitor. He reports good business in Ohio and Pennsylvania, and said that despite the one-day closing, business noted an increase.

Regan, Assistant Director for Jester

"Tommy" Regan, who has been for many years an assistant director of comedies for Pathe, Mittenthal, Pokes & Jabs and the World Film Company, has been engaged by the Jester Comedy Company as assistant director for the Jester Comedies, featuring Twede-Dan, the international mirth maker.

Jester Comedy Company, In Turning Out Two-Reel Twede-Dan Comedies with Real Comedy, Has Named the April Release "All Fur Her"

Jester Comedies Report Big Bookings

EXCHANGE men who are handling Jester Comedies report to the New York office that the exhibitors are pleased with the way the initial Jester releases, featuring Twede-Dan, are going over. William Steiner, executive head of the Jester Company, says that he attributes the success with which these comedies have been disposed of to the "show you" policy inaugurated in the exploitation of these releases. This policy was incorporated in the contract with the buyer, and the exchanges have followed it in selling to the exhibitor, Mr. Steiner reports.

F. J. Fegan of the Standard Film Corporation of St. Louis, Mo., practically signed up his whole territory on the first showing of "The Recruit," the first of the series of the Jester Comedies. In St. Louis, he is down for a week at William Sievers' New Grand Central and follows for another week's stand at the downtown Grand Central.

In the South, R. M. Savini of Atlanta, Ga., has closed for week stand showings at the Arcade theatre in Jacksonville, Fla., and the Strand theatre at Spartanburg, and all of the Lynch theatres in the South.

"The Recruit," "His Golden Romance," "All Fur Her" and "The Wrong Flat" are the first four releases of Jester Comedies. They are in two reels each.

"'Mickey' a Real Big Picture"—Woods

AL WOODS, theatrical producer, who is generally conceded to be one of the best judges of dramatic values in the theatrical world, after reviewing Western Import Company's "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand made the following statement:

"'Mickey' is what I call a real big picture. It is vivid and appealing and the characters are real and human. The people in the play will make a lasting impression. 'Mickey' particularly appeals to me very strongly as a story of universal interest. It is a human tender narrative that in the telling is somewhere between laughter and pathos. There are charming bits of comedy in it, and there are places where the story trembles very close to the brink of tears. I have read thousands of plays and have produced hundreds of successful plays, and I believe 'Mickey' will be one of the greatest hits ever produced on the screen. I would like to have the opportunity of making a play of it some day. Miss Normand as the quaint little mountain girl is wonderful. To my mind this marvelous child, with her little scoffed over-shoes and her bull dog and lap-eared old burro, is one of the best characterizations I have ever seen. In 'Mickey' she is a combination of the personality of all of the most popular screen stars, and a little more besides. The action of the play is off the ordinary run of picture plays, and what impressed me a great deal was the fact that there is no padding—when the story comes to the natural end, the curtain goes down. I do not think it is possible to put anything into a picture that is not in 'Mickey.'"

Boston Man Reports Good Bookings

S. V. Grand, Boston manager for the Foursquare exchanges, has contracted for first-runs on "The Eagle's Eye," it is announced. Mr. Grand reported to the Whartons, who are producing the picture, that before the release of the first episode of "The Eagle's Eye," which is scheduled for February 27, he expects to have enough signed contracts to break all records.

Song Dedicated to Mabel Normand

Arrangements have been made by Western Import Company with Daniels & Wilson, music publishers, to release a song called "Mickey," and dedicated to Mabel Normand, the star of the picture. The words of the song, based upon the Mack Sennett feature production "Mickey." were written by Harry Williams and the music by Neil Moret.

New Englanders Like "Zep" Picture

In Bridgeport, Conn., a city of about 102,000 inhabitants, nine of the fifteen theatres devoted to motion pictures have booked "The Zeppelin's Last Raid" production, released by the U. S. Booking Corporation. They are the Poli, West End, Strand, Hippodrome, Elite, American, South End, Barnum and Bostwick. Frank Hall, president of U. S. Booking Corporation, said:

"The Bridgeport bookings obtained by our representative, S. P. Farber, prove beyond question that an exhibitor's success depends solely upon the kind of pictures he shows. Furthermore, it proves that a distributor's success hinges upon the caliber of production he distributes. Give the exhibitor the kind of picture he can advertise extensively and reap a fair profit, and you will sell your products at a good price. That has been our experience in the brief but satisfactory life of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation.

"When a production like this can do the amount of business for which we have contracted in a city like Bridgeport it proves conclusively that the wails of the calamity-howlers are without foundation; in fact, the main difficulty is in the kind of picture involved. The distributor that sells the highest-grade product is not complaining. Business may not be at the best, to be sure, but the decline has not hit the distributor who specializes in good productions as hard as the one who has glutted the market with mediocre film."

Abramson Finishes Graphic's "Moral Suicide"

Ivan Abramson, president and director-general of the Graphic Film Corporation, has completed Graphic's latest photodrama, "Moral Suicide," and is now busily engaged in assembling the film. The play will be released soon. Heading this cast is John Mason, who originated the part of Richard Covington, the principal character in the stage play. "Moral Suicide" deals with an important problem of life of today, and teaches the manner of overcoming some of the difficulties met with in one's course through the world.

"Romance of Underworld" Progressing

JAMES KIRKWOOD, who is directing Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation's first production, "A Romance of the Underworld," written by the late Paul Armstrong, playwright, and featuring Catherine Calvert, with Eugene O'Brien in chief support, announces that four episodes have been shot and the production is progressing rapidly at the Biograph studios, where the interiors are being taken. The exteriors have been taken around lower Manhattan.

The completed scenes have been run off in the projection room, announces Mr. Keeney, and indicate that Keeney Pictures Corporation's first production is full of pep and punch. The theme of the story relates life in the underworld as the title suggests. One of the tense scenes of the play as presented on the screen will be the court room scene. The lighter element of the drama is afforded by the cabaret scene. It is said that two prize fighters of note give a lively exhibition of the manly art before the camera.

The screen version is an adaptation of the stage play of the same title.

"A Romance of the Underworld," a Frank A. Keeney Picture, Presents Catherine Calvert, Eugene O'Brien, David Powell and Harry Lee

Special Advertising for Hart Features

W. H. Productions, releasing Hart features, announces that the advertising matter for "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," consists of two styles each of one-sheet, three-sheet, six-sheet and a twenty-four sheet; a lobby display consisting of ten 8x10 photographs with two title cards, six 11x14 photographs, two 22x28 photographs, and a campaign book that will be of exceptional benefit to every exhibitor, because it was compiled primarily for the purpose of helping exhibitors sell the picture properly to the public. It embodies a story of the play, reasons why exhibitors should book the production, stories on the cast, the punch situations and big scenes, photographs of all posters, complete line of newspaper cuts and publicity matter, star cuts, advice on the heralds, lobby displays and finally suggestions for free advertising.

Lynch Enterprises Closes For Re-Issues

S. A. LYNCH ENTERPRISES, INC., have closed a contract for the sale of the Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge re-issues through Hiller & Wilk, Inc., to the following open market operators: Boston Photoplay Co., 195 Pleasant Street, Boston, Mass.; Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.; Quality Film Company, 404 Ferry Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Central Film Co., Chicago, Ill.; De Luxe Feature Film Co., 2014 Third Avenue, Seattle, Wash., and the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., are retaining the re-issues for their own offices located in Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

The Hart and Fairbanks pictures in the list if re-issues are: "The Disciple," "Between Men," "Hell's Hinges," "The Aryan," "The Primal Lure," "Captive God," "The Patriot," "The Dawnmaker," "The Apostle of Vengeance," "The Return of Draw Egan," "The Devil's Double," "Truthful Tulliver," "The Gun Fighter," "The Square Deal Man," "The Desert Man" and "Wolfe Lowry." The Douglas Fairbanks pictures are: "The Lamb," "Double Trouble," "His Picture in the Papers," "The Habit of Happiness," "The Good Bad Man," "Reggie Mixes In," "Flirting with Fate," "The Half Breed," "Manhattan Madness," "American Aristocracy," "The Matrimaniac" and "The Americano."

The Frank Keenan re-issues are: "The Coward," "Stepping Stones," "The Phantom," "Honor Thy Name," "The Thoroughbred," "Jim Grimsby's Boy," "The Sins Ye Do," "Bride of Hate" and "The Crab." The Talmadge pictures are: "The Missing Link," "Martha's Vindication," "Children in the House," "Going Straight," "The Devil's Needle," "The Social Secretary" and "Fifty Fifty."

"Parentage" Makes Good Showing

Frank J. Seng's "Parentage" had its initial showing on the Pacific Coast February 9 at the Strand theatre, Seattle, Wash. The management of the Strand writes that the feature broke all house records. The same success is reported from the management of the Majestic theatre, Portland, Ore., where "Parentage" has an extended run.

Garrett Back on the Job

Sidney Garrett, president of J. Frank Brockliss, Inc., is back at his desk after a severe illness which confined him to his home for more than a month. Mr. Garrett suffered from pneumonia. H. A. Gillespie was in charge during Mr. Garrett's absence.

"Educationals Regarded as Features"

The Bruce scenics and Ditmars animal pictures, Educational subjects, are finding a steadily expanding market in Chicago, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburgh and Kansas City, according to the reports received at the New York offices of the Foursquare Pictures from Branch Managers Flaherty, Erdmann, Lux, Bronstetter and Baker, of those cities. These subjects, according to the reports, are regarded as features, despite their brief length.

"Every week discloses progress in our distribution of Educational Pictures," said Mr. Key of the Foursquare organization. "The people would rather see a Bruce scenic and a Ditmars animal picture nine times out of ten in preference to the average program feature.

"Mr. Hoffman recognized this fact some time ago. His experience had been a convincing teacher. He knew that the ordinary 'scenics' and 'animals' wouldn't do, but he had an abiding faith in such subjects as the Educational was producing. And the results are proving what Mr. Hoffman believed to be true."

Lazarus Buys Territory for "Redemption"

Julius Lazarus, exhibitor and distributor of Canada and New York, announces that he has bought from the Nanuet Amusement Corporation Julius Steger's production of "Redemption," featuring Evelyn Nesbit and her son, Russell, for California, Nevada and Arizona. Mr. Lazarus left for the coast last week where he will open an office in San Francisco and Los Angeles. N. R. Greathouse is associated with Mr. Lazarus in this undertaking.

Seena Owen and Norma Talmadge In "Martha's Vindication," Through Hiller and Wilk

Warwick Feature Under Direct Sales Plan

Harry Rapf, one of the eight independent producers to market their productions through the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated, direct-to-the-exhibitors plan, announces that "The Accidental Honeymoon," featuring Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein, will be distributed in accordance with the direct sales plan.

"The Accidental Honeymoon" is a romantic-comedy. It was written and directed by Leonce Perret. It is the fourth feature to be added to the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated releases. The others are "The Struggle Everlasting," featuring Florence Reed; Herbert Brenon's production of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back," featuring Sir Johnson Forbes-Robertson, and "The Window Opposite," produced by the Rialto Film Corporation.

MacFadden Tells Why He Made "Zongar"

Bernarr MacFadden, expert on physical culture, who has entered the producing field of the industry with "Zongar," has the following to say on his production:

"I would not hope to interest the young people by preaching to them nor even by presenting a propaganda picture, no matter how excellent. I wanted to fascinate and enthral them, so chose the medium of a fictional story pictured with romantic charm and lively incident. Audiences will like 'Zongar,' whether interested in physical culture or not. But the exemplification of the body beautiful, together with the glories and achievements of athletic training, should exert a powerful effect in directing youth of both sexes and influencing them to get ready for the strenuous tasks that America has in hand."

The president of Physical Culture Photo Plays, Inc., is an active patriot. He scored a ten-strike in the current number of his book-magazine by publishing an article on "President Wilson and Health." It is shown by what means the Chief Executive of the country always keeps fit; that he is 100 per cent man in his body as in his thinking. For thirty-five years Bernarr MacFadden has been a sort of pioneer of physical preparedness. His own career is a romance of the results achievable by firm purpose, sound sense and perfect body.

Long List of Buyers for "The Warrior"

The following independent buyers control territory for General Enterprises' "The Warrior"; Regal Films, Ltd., Toronto, Ont.; Canada. John F. Paine, Palace hotel, San Francisco; California, Civilization Film Corp., Newark, N. J.; New Jersey. American Photoplay Co., 257 North Twelfth street, Philadelphia; eastern Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia and District of Columbia. Special Features Co., 609 Market street, Knoxville, Tenn.; Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee. Eastern Feature Film, 57 Church street, Boston; New England states. Westcott Film Corp., 700 Film Exchange building, Minneapolis; Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota. Eltabran Film Co., Piedmont Theatre building, Charlotte, N. C.; North and South Carolina. Mid-West Civilization Co., 763 Gas and Electric building, Denver; Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and New Mexico. Allen Film Corp., 139 North Clark street, Chicago; Illinois, Louisiana, Mississippi, Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Michigan, Iowa and Nebraska. Allen Attractions, 404 Sincere building, Cleveland; Ohio and Indiana. First National Exhibitors Exchange, 300 Westinghouse building, Pittsburgh; West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. Jordan-Brewster Film Corp., 205 Orpheum building, Seattle; Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana. Atlantic Film Co., 126 West Forty-sixth street, New York city; New Jersey. Boston Photoplay Co., 195 Pleasant street, Boston; New England states. Allen Attractions, 404 Sincere building, Cleveland; Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky. Allen Film Co., 139 North Clark street, Chicago; Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma, Arizona, Louisiana and Mississippi. First National Exhibitors Exchange, 300 Westinghouse building, Pittsburgh; West Virginia and western Pennsylvania. Westcott Film Corp., 700 Film Exchange building, Minneapolis; Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota.

Export and Import in South America

Ben Blumenthal, president of the Export and Import Film Company, Inc., reports that he disposed of twenty-five five and six-reel Selig features, including "The Carpet from Bagdad," "The Millionaire Baby" and "The Rosary," for Argentina, Uruguay, Paraguay and Chile. He has also sold for this territory the Selig World Library and Selig Athletic Series.

He further announces that he is sending a representative to South America within a few days, for the purpose of determining the exact needs of this country in the film line. Mr. Blumenthal said: "The resulting understanding between our customers and ourselves amply repays us, for in no other business is it as essential to success that the exporter and buyer come into personal contact, as in the exporting of films. Active preparations for an aggressive campaign in European film centers after the close of the war are now being vigorously prosecuted.

Ethel Burton In King Bee Comedies

Striemer Buys Territory for "Mother"

Charles H. Striemer, general manager of Modern Feature Film Company, New York, closed a deal with Herbert Lubin and Arthur Sawyer, General Enterprises, last week, for the New York State and city rights to George Loane Tucker's production, "Mother," in which Elizabeth Risdon is featured.

Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin stated that the disposition of their state-right serial, "Mother," to the Modern Feature Film Company leaves but 17 per cent of the territory for this picture unsold. At the present time the following territories are still being offered by Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin on the basis of territorial allotment: New Mexico, Colorado, Utah and Wyoming; eastern Pennsylvania; Washington, Maryland, Delaware and West Virginia; Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee, North and South Carolina.

"Eagle's Eye" Makes Hit in Detroit

Joseph Horowitz, manager of the Foursquare Pictures Exchange at Detroit, sent the following wire to M. H. Hoffman immediately after the showing of the first three episodes of "The Eagle's Eye" to the trade in his territory.

"Screening a great success. Over one thousand people, large percentage exhibitors, attended. General opinion, serial is great. Bookings have started at a rate that makes me predict record for my district."

"Mr. Horowitz's enthusiasm," said P. V. R. Key, of Foursquare Pictures, "is merely that of all other exchange managers. The trade showings have not all been made, yet in every instance the verdict has been the same. The reason is evident; 'The Eagle's Eye' offers so much exceptional entertainment, and appeals to the patriotic feelings of people to such an extent that it impresses the vast majority alike."

Why do Doctors sometimes suddenly disappear?

That's the mighty-close-to-where-they-live question that every married or unmarried man or woman in your town will crowd into your Theatre to see answered in

Lois Weber's Newest Wonder-Play

"THE DOCTOR AND THE WOMAN"

An Intimate Disclosure of Life as We Live It

Adapted from Mary Roberts Rinehart's famous "K"—the Story that had Two Million Readers. Published in book form by Houghton, Mifflin & Co.

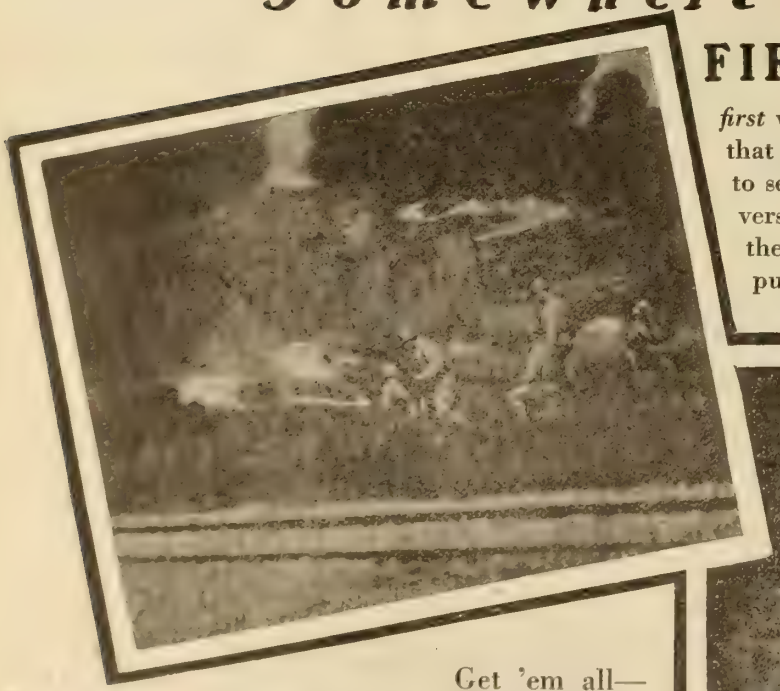
FEATURING

MILDRED HARRIS

Reserve now thru Jewel Productions, Incorporated.

1600 Broadway, New York

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"



first again!

in UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS

Huge News Scoop Showing Exclusively liquid fire

as used on the Western Battle Front "Somewhere in France"

FIRST Again!—but, oh, what's the use? We're always first—first with the big news pictures of our boys in France that your patrons will walk miles through the snow to see. First, because there isn't a corner of the universe that our expert cameramen don't cover when the news breaks. First, because we know what the public want—and give it to them first.

Get 'em all—Universal Current Events—Animated Weekly—Universal Screen Magazine. Each is the unqualified winner in its class!

Remember—These Liquid Fire Pictures are

Not shown in any other news reel

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MN'FG. CO. Largest Film Mn'fg. Co. in the Universe. Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Polo defies death in "The BULL'S EYE" Serial

From coast to coast—in every town of any size or consequence, EDDIE POLO in "THE BULL'S EYE" is playing to thousands with a calibre of high pressure continued entertainment that is dragging people out of their "comfy" homes and warm firesides to drink in the fascinating pictures, absorbing action and rapid fire punches. Swift as lightning—gripping as a vise and charmingly sweet with romance, this

UNIVERSAL SERIAL THRILLER—WITH

EDDIE POLO

AND CHARMING, DAINTY VIVIAN REED

—is fairly packing 'em in everywhere. With a record of 14 successful serials out of 16 serials to date—the Universal sets a pace not equalled by any film concern in the Universe, and "THE BULL'S EYE" adds another success scalp to our belt. In a Western Universal Exchange recently, several exhibitors staged a healthy scrap to see who would get the favored contract, and you can take it from us—they knew what they were scrapping for. If you've not booked "THE BULL'S EYE" yet, it's a cinch you're not going to let a stream of dollars slip away from you. Wire for it right NOW

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange, or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MN'FG. CO., Largest Film Mn'fg. Co. in the Universe, CARL LAEMMLE, President, 1600 Broadway, New York

Hart Features Booked Heavy

Buyers Write W. H. Productions That Hart Re-issues Are Meeting with Big Success—Exhibitors Pleased

LETTERS received by the W. H. Productions from exchange men and exhibitors throughout the country would indicate that the Hart features released by this company are meeting with great success.

Leon Netter, general manager of The Masterpiece Film Attractions of Cleveland, Ohio, who has the rights to Ohio, says: "We are booked solid on William S. Hart as 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' for some time to come, and the bookings that have already been filled have brought exceptional returns to the exhibitors."

Phil Ryan, general manager of the Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, who control this production for the Middle West, writes: "We find that we will need two more additional prints on 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain.' It is a sure fire hit in all of the territories we control. We attribute a great deal of the success of this production to the fact that it is bringing home the bacon to the exhibitors."

Sol Lesser, of the All Star Feature Distributors, of San Francisco, Cal., who has the rights to California, Nevada and Arizona, of "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," says: "William S. Hart as 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' is a sure winner in this territory. It books itself, and that is the greatest asset for any picture."

Mike Rosenberg, of DeLuxe Features, Inc., of Seattle, Wash., who has Washington, Oregon, Idaho and Montana, writes: "If we meet with as much success with 'The Bandit and the Preacher' and 'The Hell Hound of Alaska' as we are with 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain,' we certainly will be perfectly satisfied. This picture is a clean-up in this territory."

T. E. Larson, manager of the Favorite Features Co., of Oklahoma City, Okla., who has Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, advises that "'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' was a great start off for our new Exchange. It is making money for the exhibitors."

Max W. Herring, of Pittsburgh, Pa., who controls the rights to Western Pennsylvania and West Virginia, states: "The results so far obtained on bookings of 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' is very satisfactory, and the outlook on future business for this production is great."

Jake Wells, of Richmond, Va., who controls the Rights to So. Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee, advises: "All of our prints on 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain,' are booked solid. This certainly speaks for itself."

The Magnet Film Exchange of New York, which has just acquired the rights of "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain" for that territory, writes: "We believe this will be one of the biggest hits of the year. On the first showing at the 81st Street theatre, it broke all house records."

"Must Supply Every Confidence"

M. H. Hoffman, Back from Visit to Foursquare Exchanges, Says All Have Suffered, But Alarm Not Justified

M. H. Hoffman, back from a two weeks' trip to the Foursquare Exchanges of the Middle West, makes an appeal to those who must supply the confidence now needed.

"With conditions adjusting themselves toward an improvement, there must be no faltering at this time," he said. "No long faces and no hesitation in going forward courageously. The trade must not indicate that its bone and sinew are 'fair-weather sailors.'

"Every one has suffered—producers, distributors and exhibitors. But out of the suffering there will come benefits. Viewing the situation frankly, it reveals nothing justifying the alarm which I have observed in certain quarters. It is a temporary condition: a state of affairs resulting from overproduction; extravagance in the making of pictures; overpayment by distributors for distribution rights; and the booking of many, many photoplays at prices in excess of what should have been charged.

"The industry has served, for the moment, as the receiving end of a bowling alley; its various units being the nine-pins that have knocked down one another. For the errors of the first have affected the second, the errors of the third the fourth—and each being dependent upon the others has had its share to pay for wrong policies and methods.

"Recently the exhibitors have discovered the ill results of those methods which I have been preaching about now for months. A series of events brought matters to a climax; and now they are awake to the facts, a body of men determined to stand firm for the good of the industry.

"It is a pity that the lesson has had to be learned in a way that is proving, and is to prove, so drastic for so many. Altogether too large a number of persons who are innocent are suffering, and will suffer. Still, it is a salutary lesson, and being that will be more thoroughly learned. What every man in the industry must now do is to approach his own problem constructively. He owes it to the business as a whole, quite as much as to his individual affairs, to refuse to be overworried by the slump through which the industry is passing.

"Now is not the time to pull a long face, and crawl inside one's shell. Economies are in order; the development of efficiency to its highest possible point; but not pessimism, or the curtailment of expenses legitimate and essential to progress.

"Let the deadwood be cut off, by all means and stop all monetary leaks so long permitted through carelessness.

"Birth of a Race" Well Under Way

William L. Sherrill, president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, has returned to his offices from Tampa, Fla., where he has been supervising the production of "The Birth of a Race," which production is being made by the Frohman Amusement Corporation under contract as manufacturers with the Birth of a Race Photoplay Corporation of Chicago.

The entire Frohman production staff, numbering more than three hundred in its directorial, technical and art departments, has been engaged on "The Birth of a Race" at Tampa, for more than three months, under the direction of John W. Noble, director-in-chief of Frohman productions, assisted by Charles Horan, Arthur Vaughan and Ralph Dean. Mr. Sherrill, in speaking of the progression being made by his Tampa company, and also the magnitude of the production, said: "I am confident that with the completion of 'The Birth of a Race' the abilities of the Frohman production staff will be fully and ably demonstrated, and we are positive that we will turn over to the Birth of a Race Corporation a finished product which will warrant the confidence placed in the Frohman Amusement Corporation when it was employed to produce this spectacle for the Birth of a Race Photoplay Corporation."

Director Noble expects that an additional three or four months will be necessary to complete the production.

First Episode Released Feb. 25

The Whartons announce that the first episode of "The Eagle's Eye" will be released the week of February 25-March 4. The remaining nineteen episodes of the serial will be released at weekly intervals.

The advance bookings for the serial are heavy, according to reports from all the branch offices of the Foursquare Exchange, which will distribute the picture. The timeliness of the subject matter, combined with its unquestionable authenticity on account of the authorship, are the reasons given by the branch exchange managers for the interest which has been taken in the serial by exhibitors.

King Baggot plays the part of Harrison Grant and opposite him, as Dixie Mason, is Marguerite Snow. Count von Bernstorff is impersonated by Bertram Marburg, Captain von Papen by Paul Everton, Captain Boy-Ed by John Wade, Dr. Albert by Frederick Jones and Franz von Rintelin by Wellington Playter. Florence Short, as Madam Augusta Stephan, and William Bailey, as Heinric von Lertz, complete the cast.

"Preacher's Son" for General Release

Another intimate study of boy life is said to be provided in the latest Judge Brown story, "The Preacher's Son," a General Film release. This is the sixth of the series of stories of youth, and is said to be picturized in very acceptable fashion.

"Thief or Angel," another boy story, will be the following release in this series.

Chicagoans Hear "Direct Plan"

CHICAGO Special.

REPRESENTATIVES of the Producers and Exhibitors, Affiliated, came to Chicago February 13 and laid their cards on the table for the inspection of the exhibitors interested in the "producer to exhibitor direct" plan which is now being propounded throughout the country. Charles C. Pettijohn, former general manager of the A. E. A., William Sherrill of the Frohman Amusement Company, and Harry Rapf represented the producers, and at an interesting meeting at 19 West Adams street, explained the advantages, possibilities and merits of the plan the independent manufacturers first broached at the recent allied exhibitor conference in Washington.

After calling on Mr. Sherrill and Mr. Rapf for explanatory addresses from the manufacturers' viewpoint, Mr. Pettijohn, chairman of the meeting, went into the salient features of the program and invited questions. W. D. Burford moved that a committee of seven exhibitors be appointed by the chair to co-operate with the producers. Mr. Pettijohn named the following men: Jacob Cooper, William Heaney, W. D. Burford, Harry Corbett, Joe Hopp, Louis Frank and Dee Robinson of Peoria.

The committee was given "full power and authority to devise ways and means of distributing and handling the film and of closing with the Producers and Exhibitors—Affiliated, for the Illinois quota of 188 days, in the so-called 'Producer to Exhibitor Direct' plan."

After the meeting everybody adjourned to the Bluebird projection room on the fifteenth floor of the Consumers' building where a trade screening was held of "The Woman Eternal," featuring Elaine Hammerstein, and Herbert Brenon's "Passing of the Third Floor Back."

Abramson Discovers "Star" in South

Ivan Abramson, while at Palm Beach, Florida, shooting exteriors for his latest production, "Moral Suicide," discovered a new "star," in the person of Miss Helen Price, Glasgow, Mo., one of the prominent members of the society colony and the great-granddaughter of Sterling Price, Confederate general and one-time Governor of Missouri. Miss Price is now considering a contract offered her by Mr. Abramson to appear in future Graphic productions.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	First Na'l Exhibitors' Circuit, New York	New York State.
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	Tom Moore, Washington, D. C.	Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia.
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	Stanley Mastbaum, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey.
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	William Sievers, St. Louis, Mo.	Missouri.
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	P. J. Dawson, Vancouver, B. C.	Canadian Rights.
"The Frozen Warning" (Commonwealth Pictures)	Roland and Clark, Pittsburgh	Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia.
"Raffles, the Amateur Cracksman" (Hiller and Wilk, Agents)	Sol L. Lesser, San Francisco	California, Arizona, Nevada.
Jester Comedies (4) (Jester Comedy Co.)	R. D. Marson Attractions Co., Boston	New England Territory.
"Mother"	Modern Feature Film Co., New York	New York State and City.

Fontenelle Buys Territory for West Comedies

Nat H. Spitzer, sales manager, King-Bee Films Corporation, announces that he has closed a year's contract with the Fontenelle Feature Film Company, 1504 Harney street, Omaha, Neb., for all future releases of Billy West comedies. "The Stranger" will be the first to come under this contract. Fontenelle covers Iowa and Nebraska.

He announces also that the New York state territory has been sold to the Gardiner Syndicate, 325 Chamber of Commerce Building, Buffalo, New York. They control all the cities and towns in upper New York state with the exception of Albany and Troy, and all cities and towns south of Albany and Troy touching the Hudson River.

The first release of the Gardiner Syndicate is "The Slave," the only comedy ever produced without a sub-title. The Gardiner Exchange is controlled by T. R. Gardiner.

W. H. to Release Series Barriscale Features

W. H. Productions Company announces that it will release a series of feature productions with Bessie Barriscale starred. They will be disposed of on a state-right basis, and the advertising will be complete, covering each production—two styles of one's, three's and six sheets and a twenty-four sheet stand, a lobby display composed of 8 x 10 photos and 11 x 14s, and, in addition to this, a sixteen-page campaign book.

Comedy At Its Most Laughable Height Is Exploited by This Quartette of Stars and One Producer, Who Contribute the Smiles to Christie Comedies. They Are Jay Belasco, Betty Compson, Al E. Christie, Ethel Lynne and Bobby Vernon

Screen Examinations

"Heiress for a Day"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

TRIANGLE offers "Heiress for a Day," a story by Henry Albert Phillips, scenarioized by Robert F. Hill and directed by Jack Dillon, as a starring vehicle for Olive Thomas. The plot of the story is obvious almost from the beginning of its unfolding. A manicurist who holds forth in the barber shop of a fashionable hotel suddenly finds herself, or rather believes herself to be, heiress to twenty millions left by her grandfather. A scheming young cousin has tried to persuade the old man to leave all his property to him but the millionaire has tied up things in his will so that any interference on the part of the young man will cause all the estate to revert to the girl. The manicurist starts to spend money right and left, only to find that she is not fabulously rich as she has supposed. Then the young cousin kicks over the traces, the lawyer steps in and the girl is really rich after all. A lover is there, of course—a wealthy young society man who loves her as a manicurist and who, strange to say, continues to love her after she gets her twenty million.

Olive Thomas is pretty and pleasing as Helen Thurston, the manicurist-heiress. Especially pleasing is she when she dances, and of all the dancers who appear in the various ball room scenes she is easily the best, or at least appears to be the best. Joe King as the young man in pursuit of Helen makes a most acceptable lover, but Eugene Burr as the young man in pursuit of Helen's money overplays the cad. A fine fall by Graham Pette who plays the old millionaire should not be overlooked in any review. The continuity hesitates at times—at some points it actually jumps—and with the exception of the barber shop scenes at the beginning the settings and props are hardly up to the standard which the story would seem to call for. But on the whole "Heiress for a Day" makes a very acceptable program picture.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Helen Thurston (Olive Thomas), manicurist at a fashionable hotel, longs for wealth and social position so that she may win the love of her wealthy patron, Jack Standring (Joe King). Brooding over her ill-fortune, she hears that her grandfather has died leaving her the bulk of his millions. News of the sudden inheritance turns her head and she plunges into social life, endeavoring to overawe society with her extravagance. The impression which she tries to make on Standring fails. Then she learns that she is heir to only a thousand dollars, the bulk of the fortune going to her cousin, Spindrift (Eugene Burr), under certain conditions. She decides to plunge in with her thousand dollars for just one day. Standring fails to respond, and creditors suddenly clamor for the thousands due them. At a ball a detective swoops down upon her and society turns away from her. Then Standring comes to her rescue. But the conditions of the will have been violated by Spindrift and Helen wins both the fortune and Standring.

"Wild Women"

(Universal—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

HARRY CAREY and his troupe of cowboys drink Honolulu cocktails while performing in "Wild Women" and then indulge in a dream of Hawaii and points of interest thereon. These travels of the cowboys under the leadership of "Cheyenne" constitute something of a series. They have been shanghaied and have visited New York any number of times. Now they hie themselves to sunny climes with results that possess some humor although things don't happen very quickly. Most people will remember the old one reel burlesque of the drunkard's dream wherein he sees himself on an island midst cannibal natives, pursued by an ugly queen when a pretty princess stands temptingly in the distance. It is an elaboration of this idea that forms the story of "Wild Women," although the elaboration does not go far enough.

The five reels are not without some humor despite the padding. The view of the cowboys floating in toward the island on a raft that is dressed up like a parlor is a touch of real comedy. The effect of a rolling sea on their stomachs brings to view a long row of legs (torsos being on the other side of the rail). There are some interesting rodeo scenes and the action on the distant isle is burlesqued, crude and rather childish in conception, but registering at times. But where "Wild Women" fails to produce is in its cast. A comedy to be such in every sense of the word must be enacted by comedians and none of these are present among the cast. Carey is much better as a bad man than as a comedian and the array of cowboys, for ever being astonished at something new to them, rely altogether on the situations in which they are the puppets than any abilities of their own.

The support includes Vester Perry, Molly Malone and Martha Mattox. George Hively prepared the scenario for Jack Ford's direction.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

After winning fat purses at the rodeo, Cheyenne Harry (Harry Carey) and his companions from the ranch partake of many Honolulu cocktails, which put them safely to sleep. The dream follows. They are shanghaied and put to work as sailors. Fire breaks out and they find themselves stranded on an island, where a Queen (Martha Mattox), possessed of a very lengthy name and a face of the same sort, rules over a collection of whites and blacks. The Queen sets her cap for Harry, but he prefers the Princess (Molly Malone), and eventually succeeds in winning her and putting the Queen on the track of one of his pals. Just as he is happy with the Princess Harry awakes with a very dry mouth.

"Revelation"

(Metro-Screen Classics—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

NAZIMOVA reveals herself as a true artiste of the screen in "Revelation," a Metro special. That tendency to be too emotional and her ignorance of all the niceties of studio makeup which were the only drawbacks to her performance in "War Brides" have been overcome in this, her second appearance in pictures. And here, too, she is provided with a role which offers her versatility full play. As Joline, the Parisian cabaret dancer, unthinking and unbelieving, to whom the fact of God is revealed by a miracle, Nazimova gives a characterization rich in contrast and capable of playing the full scale of human emotions. At one moment she is the careless, selfish Joline. At the very next she is the seeming embodiment of spiritual innocence and suffering. Hers is the ability to sway her audience from laughter to tears by the mere change of expression, so significant that Joline becomes a character that one knows intimately, that one feels with, suffers with and joys with. If Nazimova were unknown "Revelation" would establish her.

In pointing out the chief merits of the story the reviewer must perforce come back to Nazimova every time. Her distinctly foreign beauty, her slim figure, even her short hair, make her a most realistic Joline, introduced as dancer in a Parisian cafe. Her meeting with the artist, Paul, the immediate awakening of her love for him are full of interest. Then comes Paul's success, a success he seems to forget is partly due to Joline his model. He plans doing a Madonna. With Joline as model? Joline! Joline a Madonna! Paul smiles at the thought of it. But in jealous passion she prevents him hiring another model and proves herself actress enough to take the part to perfection. Here is a passage filled with humor, which, at the same time, possesses a subtle undercurrent of pathos. It is delightful. Then comes the revelation even after Joline has mocked the Church and subsequently the birth of a truer and finer love than she had ever known before. In each phase Nazimova rises to her opportunities with the result that the picture is never without interest and generally truly absorbing.

The picture is based on the novel by Mabel Wagnalls, "A Rose Bush of a Thousand Years." George Baker collaborated on the continuity and directed. It is without doubt his greatest production. It has been done on a lavish scale throughout but particular attention is due the marvelously realistic exteriors selected. From the smaller shots representing the streets of Paris to the expansive takes of the countryside and one wonderful view of a village and canal typically European, they possess an atmosphere that never allows a false note to enter. The staging of the scenes is excellent and the photography always of the best.

Charles Bryant as Paul, the artist, makes a very human creation of the author's a very human personality. Frank Currier as the Prior and Bigelow Cooper as the Count play excellently. Syn de Conde goes a little too far in making Duclos, the Apache, an oily villain. The supporting cast is commendable from first to last.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Joline (Nazimova), forsakes her dance for Paul Granville (Charles Bryant), an American student. She poses for him and his canvases bring him fame and fortune. Count Adrian (Bigelow Cooper), who has long longed for Joline, commissions Paul to do a Madonna of the Rose Bush. (There is a legend regarding this bush which stands in the courtyard of a monastery. Fra Augustine (John Martin) had tended it for years before he saw a vision of the Madonna. It had then bloomed. But this has been long ago and the bush has not blossomed since.) The Count's motive for this commission is to separate Joline from Paul as he believes the latter will seek for another model. This he does but is prevented from engaging one by the jealous and artful Joline. And eventually she poses for him. She is obliged to disguise herself to enter the monastery, and while the inmates are at prayer she poses. Fra Augustine, sick, staggers into the courtyard and sees her. He believes her a vision and is positive of a miracle when, later, the bush blossoms forth. Joline laughs at all this and decides to tell the truth to the Prior (Frank Currier). He, however, interprets it all through his own pious eyes. He tells her that at the moment she was seen by Fra Augustine she must have felt her part. This so affects Joline that she leaves Paul and determines to live a new life. Then comes the war and Joline is seen as a nurse at the very monastery of the Rose Bush. Paul is brought in wounded but when he recovers there is a marriage and he and Joline start again.

Eugene Bordon, Philip Sandford, True James, Dave Turner, Fred Radcliffe, A. C. Hadley and Hazel Washburn complete the cast.

"The Great Adventure"
(Pathe Play—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

EVIDENTLY the spirit of Henry Kitchell Webster's story from which "The Great Adventure" was adapted was supplied by the unsophisticated girl from the country coming in contact with sophisticated Broadway and getting the better of it. This might seem to unfold any number of possibilities before the eye of an imaginative producer and with Bessie Love in view as the star their value might well be set down as doubled—always provided that the story received intelligent handling during its progress toward the screen. And this "The Great Adventure" has not received. And the fault probably lies with the director. For surely a scenario writer of the ability and refreshing charm of Agnes Johnston could never have blundered so in the adaptation.

In the first place the continuity as the finished product shows it is not a continuity. And in the second place any dramatic crises that the story may have contained never become apparent in the five reels of "The Great Adventure" picturized. The director in his visualization of life behind the scenes of a metropolitan theatre is quite wrong. Everyone is a philanthropist except the leading man. The producer lets them all have their own way. The "vamp" of the show dresses with the country girl who has been made a star in one afternoon and, though delineated as somewhat catty temperamentally, she buttons up the little star's dress and makes everything hers in the dressing room. There is a chance to rectify the anachronisms of time by inserting new subtitles here and there but certainly the stage atmosphere can never be made realistic or even convincing.

It is something of a pity that Bessie Love makes her debut on the Pathe program under such adverse conditions. She herself makes a spirited effort to put the picture over and does succeed in creating an amusing little character, particularly in that episode wherein she discloses the leading man in his true colors and proves to herself and her lover that he is nothing more than a vain boaster. As "Rags," a name which aptly describes the type of part she plays, she creates a character that stands out in a setting that by no means does justice to her talents. Donald Hall as the comedy-heavy leading man does creditable work. Flora Finch returns to the screen as the maiden aunt of Rags and does a comedy part acceptably. Chester Barnett as juvenile and Florence Short as "vamp" round out the cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Rags (Bessie Love), her dramatic talent heartily endorsed by the home folk, journeys to New York with her maiden aunt (Flora Finch) and looks for work on the stage. She is unsuccessful until Billy Blake (Chester Barnett), a chorus man, who lives in the same boarding house, tells her the only way she can get a job is to hold up the producers. She takes him at his word and proceeds to hold up the producer of a show in rehearsal. She gets a job in the chorus, and when the leading lady quits she proves competent enough to take her place. Sheen (Donald Hall), the leading man, takes a liking to her. Hazel Lee (Florence Short), heavy in the show, who has an acquaintanceship with several of Sheen's former wives, collaborates with Billy on showing the matinee idol up. But all this Rags does herself in a single afternoon. She takes him riding and he can't ride, canoeing and he can't canoe. She upsets and he can't swim. All this, of course, causes Sheen to quit the show in disgust, and one is left to surmise that Billy gets his job and also Rags.

"The Shoes That Danced"
(Triangle—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

WHEN John Moroso invaded the realm of gang warfare and wrote for Metropolitan Magazine "The Shoes That Danced" he built a good story, and Triangle has not injured it in the least in translating it to the screen. Be this said to the individual credit of Jack Cunningham, who prepared the scenario; Frank Borzage, who directed the production, and Pauline Starke and Wallace McDonald, who were happily entrusted with the leading roles. The settings are well constructed and in their reproductions of the haunts of New York's gangster should prove to be entirely in harmony with the average lay conception of the big city's underworld. The titles are good, too, although they persist in locating several of New York's best known gangs on this or that side of Manhattan Island with a reckless disregard for their actual habitats. However, this will never be noticed in the provinces.

While the meaning of the title, "The Shoes That Danced," remains rather vague until the fourth reel it is there revealed as indeed unique. It is at a masquerade that Rhoda Regan, the little East Side heroine, dances all night long under the eyes of a detective, with the same partner, in order that her sweetheart may make his getaway. With the little girl's thoughts miles removed from the dance hall, her heart torn with agony lest the man she loves be apprehended, her feet crippled from her bodily exertions, it is only her shoes that are dancing. In the part of Rhoda Pauline Starke gives an admirable performance. If a brilliant future for this young lady was predicted when she appeared in "Until They Get Me"—and it was—surely she has now arrived. Here is a star who seems destined soon to become fixed in the firmament of motion pictures. Convincing, also, is the work of Wallace McDonald, who plays the part of the gang leader who reforms under the influence of the girl who loves him. Excellent character portrayals are given by William Dyer, Anna Dodge and Lydia Yeamans Titus, the last named, by the way, being a daughter of Annie Yeamans, stage celebrity of more than a half-century ago.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Rhoda Regan (Pauline Starke) is the sweetheart of the Harmony Lad (Wallace McDonald), a clean-cut gangster. There is a gang murder committed in a resort known as the Pepper Box while the Harmony Lad, Rhoda, Mamie, her friend (Anne Kroman), and Stumpy Darcy (Dick Rosson) are passing the evening there. This and another gang murder soon after so weighs on Rhoda's mind that she begs the Harmony Lad to give up the old life. This he does for her sake, turns over the leadership of the gang to Stumpy and becomes a cabaret singer, at which calling he is a success. Stumpy, jealous of Mamie's attention to a rival gangster, Wedge Barker (Edward Barker), kills Barker. Stumpy flees and the Harmony Lad, who is just to start a vaudeville engagement in the South, makes a getaway so that his theatrical hopes will not be smashed, knowing that the police will try to get him to reveal Stumpy's whereabouts. Meanwhile he persuades Rhoda to go to the masquerade to throw the police off the trail. There she meets Stumpy and dances with him all night long under the very eyes of Detective Hogan (William Dyer), who is certain that Stumpy is the Harmony Lad. Going home with Rhoda Stumpy is pushed by the girl into the arms of Hogan, but only after exciting the jealousy of the Harmony Lad, who is waiting for her. Explanations set matters right.

"My Wife"
(Mutual—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

ALTHOUGH the basic premise of this story, the hinge upon which the subsequent action swings, is nailed to the improbable, "My Wife," produced by the Empire All Star Corporation and released through Mutual, is due for a cordial reception in the houses where Ann Murdock is known and liked. She takes to the part of an impetuous young girl diving into perplexing and delicate situations much as a duck takes to water. She decides to marry on the spur of the moment and proposes to the first man who comes into her mind, when, after her aunt's death, she discovers the latter has added a codicil to her will which would cut off a large bequest if she failed to become some man's better half before attaining eighteen years of age.

Impulsive Beatrice gets her guardian to marry her, promising him beforehand that she will divorce him as soon as her real sweetheart, one of the boys in khaki, returns from "over there." As a further inducement she tells him that they will be married "in name only." The rest of the story deals with the amusing situations which arise as a result of the unusual compact and with the final triumph of love which developed and ripened unexpectedly. The husband began to feel an uncomfortable lightness about the heart when other men took his wife out and showered her with attentions, and she, in turn, awoke to a realization of the fact that her soldier boy, after all, didn't mean half as much to her as the man who was already her husband.

The picture is a good average program number. Rex MacDougal and Ferdinand Gottschalk make a good pair of bachelors, with a penchant for wine and the company of pretty women.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

When Beatrice Hammond (Ann Murdock) is told of a codicil in the will of her maiden aunt specifying that she marry before attaining eighteen years of age or be cut off from a large heritage, Beatrice decides to get the fortune. Gerald Eversleigh (Rex MacDougal), a wealthy bachelor and a life-long friend of hers, is named as one of the executors of the will. Beatrice thinks she is in love with Ronald Farwell (Jules Rancourt), who has been called to the colors and sent to France.

When she learns of the codicil she persuades Gerald to marry her "in name only," in order to save her inheritance, with the understanding that they shall be divorced when Ronald returns from France. Ronald, in the meantime, is wounded, falls in love with the French girl who nurses him in the hospital, and marries her. Gerald falls in love with his "temporary" wife and becomes jealous of the attentions of other men to her, while fervently praying that Ronald may reap the glory of a dead hero. Ronald returns from France and offers Eversleigh a bribe of sixty thousand dollars if he will remain married to Beatrice. Eversleigh, however, refuses the money, and discovering that his wife reciprocates his love, considers the bargain a good one.

"The Rough Lover"
(Bluebird—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

WITH Franklyn Farnum presenting a dual role, appearing both as a studious gentleman with manners almost ladylike and a prize fighter who says "dis" and "dat" and "gimme," "The Rough Lover" offers some moments of good comedy arising out of mistaken identities, although one cannot be unstinting in praise of it because the producers seemed to have let many opportunities slip by and have made the final grand mixup too much of a mixup. There is, however, considerable to commend in the five reels. Aside from the comedy furnished by the two characters identical in appearance Fred Montagu in his characterization of the jealous Count contributes much to the comedy value of the picture. He has a sense of comedy that shows to splendid advantage.

The film is endowed with a production altogether consistent with Bluebird standards. The photography is excellent and settings and scenes were well selected. Juanita Hansen, a baby-doll type is a delight in the leading feminine role while Catherine Henry and Martha Mattox complete the cast of principals.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Richard Bolton (Franklyn Farnum), studious student, has little time for his sweetheart, Helen (Juanita Hansen). At the seaside, where he is stopping, there is also the Countess (Catherine Henry), who admires him very much, and her jealous husband, the Count (Fred Montagu). The Countess persists in thrusting herself upon Richard, to his great annoyance. The Count vows that he will kill the young man if he catches them together again. At length the Countess surprises Richard while he is resting on the float. She drives him into the water and he does not come up in the immediate vicinity. He is thought dead. His aunt (Martha Mattox) mourns for him and plans a spiritual meeting to greet his ethereal self on his return. Richard has landed near the training camp of "Breeze" (Franklyn Farnum), his double. Taking advantage of the situation, Richard sends Breeze for his clothing. He arrives when the meeting is at its height and Auntie thinks her concentration has done its work. Breeze meets the Countess and likes her and then meets Helen and likes her better. The Count discovers him with his wife and challenges him to a duel. He journeys to the fighters' camp the next morning with pistols. Breeze insists on fighting with gloves. Here the action becomes a succession of chases with all the characters terribly confused over the resemblance of Richard and Breeze. However, when all is right again, Richard has decided to pay a little more attention to Helen and a little less to his books.

"In Poverty's Power"
(Pathe—Two Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

BROTHER and sister are driven from their home by maurauding Mexicans. They seek refuge in the city. Here the brother is unable to find work until he is hired as a strike breaker. He is forced to remain in the work yards for several days, as to attempt to pass the strikers would mean death. During this time the sister is evicted from their apartment and is so disconsolate that she accepts the assistance offered by Sally Breen, a shoplifter. When the brother returns he is unable to locate her. In time he joins forces with a burglar. In due time both are caught and they arrive in jail on the same day—a rather sorry reunion.

This is the story that "In Poverty's Power," sixth of "The Price of Folly" series tells. Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo are the unlucky pair.

"Six Shooter Andy"
(Fox—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

ONE loses track of the number of men who drop dead with a bullet resting in their respective anatomies in this feature and it can be judged from this and the marked suggestion of bravo carried in the title that it is a Western. It is of the tried and true type in which the principal characters are a gold-seeking hero, a heroine with eight small brothers and sisters and a villain who is sheriff in name but murderer, thief and despoiler of homes in reality. Tom Mix presents the title role convincingly and Enid Markey and Sam De Grasse are the other angles of the trio. The action is keyed at high speed throughout. It is always leading up to a murder or away from one with thrilling results.

Bernard McConville, once of Fine Arts, who has been kept very busy at the Fox studio of late, is author of the story. While most of the material, in fact all of it, is more than merely familiar to the consistently attentive observer of pictures, it is handled with a good eye to its possibilities and produced in competent fashion. S. A. Franklin directed. There is the usual big street set representing the western village and the dance hall and bar room scenes are not neglected altogether. There is plenty of gun-play and of course a final rescue of the heroine from the threatening arms of the villain by S. S. Andy.

The three leads run true to form and the support is adequate. A squad of the Fox kiddies are present to add some comedy to the action that would otherwise be totally heavy in characters. All in all "Six Shooter Andy" is a good Western. It will probably greatly delight the junior portion of an audience and there are plenty of adults who will thrill with it.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Bannack, Nev., is the locale of the story, the time during a gold rush. Andy (Tom Mix), with his father (Bert Woodruff) journey toward the town. They come upon Susan Allenby (Enid Markey) and her eight younger brothers and sisters, mourning the death of their father (Ben Hammer), who has been killed by Skinner (Pat Crisman) and Bil (Bob Fleming), henchmen of the corrupt sheriff of Bannack, Tom Slade (Sam De Grasse). Andy establishes himself prospecting, while Susan opens a restaurant in the town. Slade's men "get" Andy's father while he is journeying to town with the gold dust. He demands satisfaction from Slade, as he knows the murderer to be Skinner. In a duel the guilty man is killed. Later, when Susan's older brother is on his way to Bannack, he is also killed in a fight. Andy forms a vigilante committee and demands that the sheriff take action. He refuses and Andy gives him two hours to leave town. Slade attacks Susan and is rescued by Andy when the children warn him. This leads to a final fight between Slade and Andy and the former pays with his death.

"The Girl with the Champagne Eyes"
(Fox—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE basic idea of "The Girl With the Champagne Eyes" is the same as that of "Six Shooter Andy," its predecessor on the Fox program. In fact they are so much alike in plot and treatment which includes some of the detailed action that one could almost believe that Bernard McConville wrote them both at once. But for all that "The Girl With the Champagne Eyes" interests and entertains on its own merits. That these are similar to those of the other makes little difference if the exhibitor is wise enough not to play the two pictures on successive dates.

The title might mean a story of Broadway, cabarets and chop suey palaces but a western gold town is the locale. Here are set down three fugitives from justice, the girl, the man and the girl's protector and here is found the villain in the person of the sheriff. Again appear the Fox kiddies and it is they who fetch the hero to save the heroine from the villain.

The picture gets away to a fine start when the band of crooks is forced to disperse with the coming of the cops. Flashes of chased and chasers, all dare-devils, furnish a number of fine thrills. Jewel Carmen, certainly one of the most attractive actresses on the screen, appears in the title role and pleases with an intelligent performance. L. C. Shumway is hero and G. Raymond Nye the villainous sheriff. The group of kiddies is led by Francis Carpenter, probably the cleverest child player in the business. C. M. Franklin directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Nellie Proctor (Jewel Carmen), of the light-fingered sisterhood, plies her trade on board a ship bound for San Francisco. She relieves a rich gentleman of his wallet. He discovers the loss and she is forced to dispose of it by throwing it under the steamer chair occupied by James Blair (L. C. Shumway). Blair is accused of the theft and, unable to prove his innocence, is arrested and sentenced to two years at hard labor when the boat docks. Nellie informs Milligan (Charles Elder) of the arrest, and his escape is ultimately effected. Blair, though holding Nellie in high scorn, is forced to flee with them to the West. Here he turns prospector.

high scorn, is forced to flee with them to the West. Here he turns prospector. With Blair away with Milligan, McKenzie (G. Raymond Nye), the sheriff, receives notice of Blair's escape from jail. Going to Nellie, he informs her that if she will pay the price he will permit Blair to go unmolested. For love of Blair she consents. Children she has adopted follow Blair and inform him of the case. He returns to kill the sheriff and claim Nellie as his own.

Al Paget, Charles Goreman and Eleanor Washington complete the cast.

"The Spurs of Sybil"

(World Film—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

ALICE BRADY reappears on the World program in "The Spurs of Sybil," of which Louise Winter is author and Travers Vale director. Sybil is a rich young lady from the country who is told by her guardian she must work for a year and win her spurs before she inherits her fortune. Her experiences in New York constitute the five reels. Due to the type of story and its manner of production it must be said that "The Spurs of Sybil" falls considerably below the average maintained by this company. It is Sybil's misfortune to be mistaken for a crook by her hero as soon as she registers at the Hotel Plaza. And a number of other times he has his suspicions confirmed but, at the rate he travels in this picture, the hero would be suspicious of his own mother if she were late returning from tea. The mighty long arm of coincidence, a handy implement always, has been used to excess in the development of "The Spurs of Sybil." There is hardly a turn in the story that results from any logical dramatic building. It is hardly necessary to add that this process becomes obviously mechanical as the reels run by. And above all "The Spurs of Sybil" rises to no strong climax.

The production is average, and Miss Brady labors in the main role, but it is a rather unrealistic part and she is unable to make much of it. John Bowers is opposite and Jack Davidson is principal heavy.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sybil Drew (Alice Brady) must earn her spurs in the business world before she inherits her aunt's fortune. Journeying to New York, she registers at the Plaza and because of her hesitancy is thought a crook. Dr. Ross Alger (John Bowers), a young physician who apparently spends the greater part of his time hanging around the hotel desk, sees Sybil and is attracted by her. A search for work on Sybil's part proves fruitless. She is obliged to move to smaller quarters. Finally she secures a job with eccentric old Miss Berwick (Eugenie Woodward) and here meets her worthless nephew, Paul (John Davidson). Dr. Alger happens to live in the apartment below. Her position with Miss Berwick does not last long, as she is discharged when Paul flirts with her. After suffering an automobile accident she is taken to the home of Mrs. Penfield (Iseth Munroe), who conducts a gambling house. She is made a prisoner there for some unknown reason. She finally gets Dr. Alger on the wire, and he comes to her rescue with a squad of police. It is only then that he learns her real identity and is acquainted with the fact that Sybil is not a crook.

"The Flash of Fate"

(Universal—Five Reels)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

"THE FLASH OF FATE," from the story by James W. Atchison, has for its theme the determination of a young broker, who has been ruined by the unscrupulous tactics of his competitors, to go after the money regardless of honesty or anything else. His motto is to be "get the money," and this Randolph Shorb (Herbert Rawlinson) starts out to do. His father, whose business dealings had always been beyond reproach, kills himself on realizing his financial ruin, which increases the son's bitterness. Sallie Starr makes as much as is possible out of the part assigned her and as Mary Freeman acquits herself creditably. But, after all, there is really nothing convincing in the story, and while there is an attempt at the spectacular, some of the situations are so far-fetched as to tax one's credulity to the utmost. A thrill or two are interspersed and in one act a lively free-for-all fight is staged, in which half a score of civilians and half a dozen policemen take part. Randolph Shorb falls in with a notorious crook, Philadelphia Johnson (Charles West), and they, at the head of a vicious gang, turn a trick or two, from the proceeds of which the defunct brokerage business of Shorb and Son is rehabilitated. Abner Hinman, who was responsible for Shorb's failure, is satisfactorily portrayed by Willis Marks, and Jack Nelson makes an acceptable country boy as Joe Freeman, who comes to the city, finds employment in a bank, and in an ill-advised moment is lured into a questionable resort and there relieved of a considerable sum of money belonging to the bank. Randolph, who has vouched for Freeman at the bank, learns of this and also of the latter's expressed intention of committing suicide. Desiring, therefore, to reach him and not knowing of his whereabouts he hurries to the city's power house and there throws the switch controlling the city's lights. By means of the Morse code he signifies a 'phone number, hoping almost against hope that Joe, who also is a telegraph operator, will catch the message and act thereon. The scheme succeeds; the bank's shortage is made good and Randolph decides he cannot even make a good crook, so he deserts his evil ways to again tread the straight and narrow path.

"The House of Hate"

(Pathe—Second Episode)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE second episode of "The House of Hate" continues the exciting pace set by the opening number. Gresham arrives just in time to drag the helpless Pearl from beneath the descending cauldron. Later the servant of the Hooded Terror who carried her off to the Waldron works makes an attempt on her life. Gresham fires at the would-be assassin and mortally wounds him. He attempts to confess the identity of the Hooded Terror before he dies but is unable to do so.

Gresham and Pearl note that someone has attempted to break into the safe where the Waldon private papers are kept. That night a camera is concealed in the head of a tiger rug lying before the safe so that one attempting to break in will be photographed. The Hooded Terror is the guilty one. The flash from the powder frightens him away. Pearl gets the plate and starts to develop it while a detective guards the door. The Hooded Terror steals up behind him and knocks him senseless with a blow on the head. He then breaks through the laboratory door and is about to attack Pearl when the episode closes.

"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

HAMLIN GARLAND'S "Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers" has been adapted to the screen by Vitagraph and produced under the direction of William Wolbert, with Alfred Whitman and Nell Shipman presenting the principal roles. The author has created some very clever human touches and in the weaving of his story has steered clear of the style followed by the average writer of Western drama. His story is something different from the usual run and has been worked up to a striking climax and the events from start to finish have been introduced in logical order. Director Wolbert has not given Mr. Garland's story the production that it deserves. There is a certain weakness noticeable in the direction which detracts considerably from the production as a screen drama. The picture affords a new type of Western drama and will be accepted by an audience with a welcome.

As in most Western drama, much of the action takes place in the open. Director Wolbert has taken his company to ideal locations and some of the shots which his cameraman have registered are beauties. The picture opens with a bang and for a reel or more moves with a punch. Then come forced situations in developing the plot which detract in interest.

The main title has strength and promises all and more that follows. The sub-titles are used in some instances to supply action which should have been supplied by the director. Without some of the sub-titles used, an audience would be left in the dark as to the true meaning of the scenes which follow. This Vitagraph production has, first, an excellent title; second, an original and human theme; third, a purpose, strong and virile, and fourth, some beautiful backgrounds and snappy action.

Alfred Whitman, in the title role, presents the part with appreciation and meets the stronger situations with ability. Nell Shipman presents the principal feminine role without enthusiasm, with very little dramatic expression and with less appreciation for proper emotion. Otto Lederer, in a heavy character role, gives a fine performance. Laura Winston, in a character woman's role, registers with every change of expression. R. Bradbury, Rex Downs, Joe Rickson, Hal Wilson and Mrs. Hattie Buskirk are seen in minor roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ross Cavanaugh (Alfred Whitman) is a ranger patrolling Uncle Sam's acres in the West. Ed. Whetherford (Otto Lederer) arouses the enmity of a band of cattle rustlers. He leaves his wife (Laura Winston) and his little daughter, Virginia (Nell Shipman), and flees the country. Six years later Virginia returns after spending that time in the East. She finds her mother as proprietress of a cheap boarding house. Cavanaugh meets Virginia, and they fall in love. Cavanaugh's superior officer tells that Virginia is Cavanaugh's inferior, and Virginia overhears.

Cavanaugh's time is taken up with chasing the cattle rustlers, and he avoids Virginia as much as possible. Virginia's mother feeling that her time has come, confesses that she not her mother. This confession removes the stain which stands between her and Cavanaugh. While making his rounds on the range, Cavanaugh comes upon an old man stricken with smallpox. He cares for him, and learns before his death that he is Whetherford, Virginia's father, who had left the country six years before. He does not tell Virginia of the confession. She learns that Cavanaugh really loves her, and she starts out to find him. She then learns that he is carrying for her father. The two are united.

Four Christie Comedies
(Christie Film Co.—One Reel Each)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

AL E. CHRISTIE'S late contributions to the list of screen comedies are "Circumstantial Evidence," featuring Betty Compson and "Smiling" Billy Mason; "In the Dark," featuring Ethel Lynne and Bobby Vernon; "The Night of His Life," with Willie Archie, Elsie Greeson, Harry Edward and Ethel Lynne and "Mum's the Word" with Bobby Vernon, Bartine Burkett and Harry Edwards.

For straight comedy sketches with some incidents in each of the four verging on to the slapstick, this late product from the Christie Studios, paves the way for smiles and laughs but never roars. Coming right after a five or six-reel feature on the program, anyone of the four will serve a good purpose. The action in all four moves swiftly. Director Christie has not attempted to inject "old stuff" into his work. He has worked for one reel of comedy in each run and has succeeded in bringing to the surface the best that was in the scripts submitted. Of the four, "In the Dark" and "Circumstantial Evidence" are the more substantial and afford the best comedy situations. All four rise a bit above the average Christie standard. Anyone will get a laugh and may be two or three. All will make you smile and place you on the verge of a good hearty laugh at different stages during the run. If this be done, a comedy is worth while. These four Christies are.

Betty Compson and "Smiling" Billy Mason unravel the plot of "Circumstantial Evidence." Billy meets and weds a dashing young widow. From the start, wifey insists that hubby take out an insurance. The brother of the bride is trailing a dangerous character. Billy hears him discussing the chase with his wife and believes they are plotting against his life. Hence the anxiety about the insurance. Explanations follow, and hubby and wifey make up.

"In the Dark" presents Bobby Vernon and Ethel Lynne in comedy teamwork. Bobby gets a laugh now and then, and Miss Lynne makes up in loveliness for what she lacks in ability as a comedienne. Both together put this comedy over. This number was shown at the Rialto last week which fact speaks well for its merits. The Rialto audience liked it. Ethel and Bobby are engaged but something always happened to cause a postponement of the wedding. Ethel objects to the manner in which Bobby conducts himself in the presence of other girls. The boys at the club kidnap the two lovers and perform a mock marriage. The bride and groom flee in a auto and register at a hotel. The boys tell mother and mother thinks it awful. The hotel is stormed but Bobby surprises the crowd of inquisitive by presenting a marriage license. The honeymoon continues.

"The Night of His Life" gives Willie Archie an opportunity to present his miniature self before the camera to good advantage. Willie can imitate a drunk to perfection and at the same time put over nice bits of mild comedy. Elsie Greeson, Harry Edwards and Ethel Lynne assist in the fun-making. Miss Lynne looks pretty as usual and will grace any scene in which she appears. Her smile is worth more than comedy instinctiveness. Willie is engaged but is found among those missing when the minister arrives to tie the knot. He has been detained at the club or a bachelor dinner. When the time comes for Willie to go he returns to his apartment having forgotten that he had given it up that morning. He finds a pretty girl about to splash around in the tub when he enters. The girl is the fiancee of his "best man." A mix-up follows. But Willie eventually arrives—and so does the "best man." Matters are explained and there are two weddings.

"Mum's the Word" presents Bobby Vernon again, supported by Bartine Burkett and Harry Edwards. Miss Burkett hasn't much to do but she does her bit well. Bobby falls a little short of giving the same brand of work as he does in "In the Dark." Bobby and Phil are in love with Peggy. Bobby is a singer of note and Harry having Bobby's I. O. U. for a large amount won at cards, tells Bobby that if he will refrain from singing or speaking to anyone for twenty-four hours he will cancel the debt. It is agreed. During Bobby's enforced silence Harry courts Peggy. The tables are turned after the expiration of the time and Bobby wins both the money he owed and the girl.

Ben Cohn wrote the first three named and Joseph F. Poland wrote the fourth. Al. E. Christie directed.

"Sold for Gold"
(Pathe—Two Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

WILL RITCHEY, author of "The Price of Folly" series, has taken the capital versus labor theme for "Sold for Gold," the fifth number. West, a big mill owner, desires to obtain control of a manufacturing plant operated by Mrs. Crider. The only manner in which he can do it is to marry his daughter, Roma, to Mrs. Crider's dissolute son, Jack. The life of the bartered bride is far from pleasant. Jack continues on the downward path and insists on entertaining a drunken party in his home. In the midst of this the mill workers riot as West has closed down the factory. When the smoke has cleared away Roma has drowned herself, Jack has been shot and killed by the rioters and West finds that he cannot purchase all with money.

Ruth Roland, Frank Mayo, Daniel Gilfether, Ruth Lackaye and Philo McCullough portray the principal characters with an obvious sense of melodrama. The action of the two reels is high speed, the situations sensational.

"Adam and Some Eves"
(Paramount-Victor Moore Comedy—One Reel)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

VICTOR MOORE'S latest, "Adam and Some Eves," is a clever burlesque on woman's rule in municipal affairs. Vic lands in "Feminineville" after his flying flivver has collided with a cloud. He makes a hit with the women folks, who rule supreme in the courts and police department. It is a toss-up between the chieftess of police and the judgess of the magistrates' court. Both fall for Vic. Director Chester M. De Vonde has a good eye for the slapstick variety and has served a sprinkling of the straight comedy throughout the run. Some pretty girls grace the jury box during the trial scene, which gets some good laughs. D. L. Don, Peggy Adams and Agnes Neilsen are the supporting comedy makers. "Adam and Some Eves" is a snappy one-reeler, has bits of originality and will serve as a good trailer to a dramatic feature. It is better than the average Klever comedy.

Four Billy West Comedies
(King-Bee—Two Reels Each)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

BILLY WEST enacted four two-reelers for the reviewers last week—"The Orderly," "The Stranger," "His Day Out" and "The Rogue." The first-named is a corker of the comedy-slapstick variety. Originality in comedy situations and the general atmosphere which surrounds "The Orderly," places it well in the lead of the other three. "The Stranger" is the weakest of the four, but in view of the fact that no one of the collection can be considered poor or without the material for exciting a bunch of laughs, its worth is not lost in the expression weakest. King-Bee Film Corporation has a quartette of fun-makers that can be flashed on the screen and will send back to the management of any theatre the echo of laughs from all sections of his house and roars from the gallery.

"The Orderly" finds Billy as an orderly in the "Peace and Quiet" Sanitarium, tending to the sick or near-sick and indisposed guests. From one patient to the other he goes, and at the expense of each one he collects a laugh for his audience. This is the best comedy Billy West has done. Ethel Burton is seen in the role of a nurse.

"The Stranger" is a burlesque on Western life and falls short of providing the same brand of comedy as "The Orderly" or the other two because the author has failed to provide situations with value as comedy makers. The scenes in the pawnshop, where Billy takes his faithful burro as collateral for a loan, reveal the liveliest comedy. Here and there during the run of this number there appear incidents that provoke laughter, but there are times when a number of feet are spun without even a snicker

ANTHONY KELLY

PLAYWRIGHT

Played Last Week at the Strand

JOHN BARRYMORE

in

"RAFFLES"

Direction of George Irving

Playing This Week at the Rivoli

"THE SIGN INVISIBLE"

An Original Drama of the Northwest

Direction of Edgar Lewis

Coming Soon to Broadway

ARNOLD DALY

in

"MY OWN UNITED STATES"

An Original Drama based on the evolution of our country

"THREE FACES EAST"

An Original Drama for the "Legitimate" Stage Which Cohan and Harris will soon present.

N. B. Mr. Kelly wishes to state that, despite current rumors, he has absolutely no connections with the motion picture entitled "The Birth of a Race"

OH! IT'S PEACH AND ORANGE BLOSSOM TIME IN FLORIDA

NATURE IS "BUSTING" OUT IN ITS SPRING CLOTHES.

WE ARE HAVING LONG STRETCHES OF SUNNY DAYS.

A BALMY ATMOSPHERE AROUND 70°.

COME ON DOWN, THE FISHING'S FINE.

BATHING, MOTORING, GOLFING, TENNIS.

EXCELLENT STUDIO FACILITIES IN JACKSONVILLE.

ATTRACTIONS:—FLORIDA STATE EXPOSITION
ATHLETICS VS. PIRATES
BUFFALO BILL'S CIRCUS
CAMP JOS. E. JOHNSON

MOTION PICTURE SERVICE DEPARTMENT, JACKSONVILLE CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

JACKSONVILLE, FLORIDA

responding to the doings of Billy and his support. Leatrice Joy, Budd Ross, Oliver (Babe) Hardy and Leo White serve the laughs with Billy, in this number. Billy arrives in Red Dog Gulch without a penny to gingle. Susie, the daughter of the hotel manager, rides to the outskirts of the town and is attacked by a couple of Mexicans. Billy rescues her. Back in town, Billy, after putting his burro in hock, repairs to the gambling and dance hall. A lively time is had by all. Again he rescues Susie and is received as the hero of the town.

"His Day Out" presents Billy in the role of an escaped prisoner who meets with a pretty dame in the park, accompanies her to her father's barber shop, and is immediately placed at work by the father who has spied a chicken and doesn't believe in letting business interfere with pleasure. Billy's adventure as a tonsorial artist follows. "His Day Out" ranks next to "The Orderly" and takes second prize. Babe Hardy and Leatrice Joy put over some good comedy in support. Budd Ross, Leo White and Joe Bordeaux are seen in action.

"The Rogue" vies with "The Stranger" for second place. Billy starts as a kitchen helper, is thrown out, and repairs to a restaurant where he is engaged as a waiter. His position doesn't last long, but it remains for a automobile and a pretty girl to put him in soft. He is dined and wined at the palatial home of the girl and during his stay was "some time." A tea party is in progress when Billy turns loose a mouse and the excitement starts. He is a bit too rough to suit the old man who shows him the door and the fade-out finds Billy again facing the cold, cold world. Arvid Gilstrom directed all four comedies. He has demonstrated his ability as a comedy director in more ways than one.

"The Shuttle"

(Select—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

WITH every performance before the camera, Constance Talmadge does a little better. Following "The Studio Girl" she takes Frances Hodgson Burnett's, "The Shuttle," and assuming the aggressive, winsome spirit of Bettina Vanderpoel, invades the home of nobility, brings happiness and contentment out of chaos and misery and wins a Lord. When she walks into a set she hits the audience squarely between the eyes. Her every move is perfected grace. Her anxiety to interpret the director's commands never once leads her to overact. Although not gifted with the ability to express depths of emotion, she is gifted with a lightness of heart and a winsomeness of manner that attract with as much force and with as little resistance as does the other extreme of dramatic ability. Miss Talmadge is a comedienne, not an emotional actress. She can interpret the lighter veins of the drama with as much ability and with a much better purpose back of her every action as well as if not better than some headliners in the art. She brings sunshine and lots of it, to Frances Hodgson Burnett's creation of Bettina Vanderpoel and this is no mean stunt. She puts over "The Shuttle"—more could not be said.

Margaret Turnbull and Harvey Thew did the continuity for the author's work. The plot gives evidence of being forced in spots but because of the nature of the drama and the comedy element which is exposed this defect may be overlooked. It is not serious. Rollin Sturgeon directed and he has given the best of evidence to sustain the contention that he is strong on detail and atmosphere. His directorial work in connection with this Select offering is commendable. He picked a good one when he selected a duplicate for the author's setting for the Vanderpoel estate. Not a detail missed his attention in the interior setting representing the living room of Sir Nigel's home. The fact that Sir Nigel had allowed his possessions to go to ruin did not have to be explained with sub-titles. Neglect and carelessness on the part of Sir Nigel was plainly reflected in Director Sturgeon's faithful reproduction of his home. The photography is clear and James C. Van Trees, the cameraman's presence, is felt throughout the run of this Select feature.

Edith Johnson in the principal feminine supporting role, gives a commendable performance. Her work stands out with all prominence. George McDaniel is an excellent type, a good actor, and fills the shoes of Sir Nigel to perfection.

Studios For Rent

Most conveniently located Studio in New York City—

318-320-322 East 48th Street.
Floor space—80 x 100.

Room for six good sized sets.

Carpenter shops equipped with latest machinery.

2000 Amperes gives any kind of light effects.

Will contract to furnish you your sets on a 10% basis, saving you your rent in lumber alone.

People can reach your Studio in four or five minutes. Props, on a minute's notice. No waits on account of location of Studio. A big money saver.

Rent by the week or month, also yearly leases.

Address ROLAND WEST
318 East 48th Street New York City

FOR RENT
KLUTHO STUDIOS

Jacksonville, Florida

22 West Ninth Street

OPEN AIR, AND COOPER-HEWITT LIGHTED, INDOOR STAGES; FULLY EQUIPPED

TWENTY-SEVEN HOURS FROM NEW YORK CITY

While the Northern Parks are under ice and snow, in Florida the flowers are blooming; the months of March, April, May, and June, are among the best for filming; then why not make your Pictures under a clear sky, in the KLUTHO STUDIOS, in the Sunny South?

Among the Exchanges

Omaha Gains What Des Moines Loses

The Select Feature Film Company has opened an exchange at 1512 Howard street, Omaha, with C. W. Taylor in charge as manager. This exchange was moved to Omaha after being opened eight weeks in Des Moines, Iowa.

This makes six exchanges, including the General, Triangle, Mutual, Select and two smaller ones, that have left Des Moines recently and have been established in Omaha. Better railroad facilities, the fact that Chicago can supply the Iowa towns along the Mississippi River, that Nebraska exhibitors wouldn't book from a Des Moines (Iowa) exchange, but Iowa exhibitors will book from an Omaha exchange, are counted as factors in Omaha taking the lead away from her sister city.

Paramount-Artcraft Open in Omaha

Paramount and Artcraft have established an exchange in the Bromley Building, Omaha, Neb., with G. E. Akers in charge as manager. Mr. Akers had charge of the short subject department of the Kansas City Feature Film Company. J. E. Kirk, well known among motion picture people in the Omaha territory, has charge of the short subject department in the Omaha exchange. F. W. Thiele, formerly manager of the Triangle exchange in Omaha, is assistant manager under Mr. Akers.

The Omaha Paramount-Artcraft exchange began releasing January 1, covering the territory of Nebraska and western Iowa. This makes fifteen exchanges in Omaha, which has grown rapidly during the last year as a motion picture center.

Ben Title Re-enters Exchange Field

Ben Title, the well known exhibitor and proprietor of the T. N. F. theatre, in Flatbush, Brooklyn, N. Y., and formerly of the Imperial Film Exchange, has gone back into the exchange business. He has opened offices at 220 West 42d street, New York, and will handle for the State of New York the Jester Comedies, featuring Twede-Dan.

World Exchange Increases Force

The World Film Corporation of Boston, in consequence of the offer to give to contract holders free of charge pictures for the number of days for which they hold contracts, in addition to their regular releases, has had to add five extra to its office force to take care of the managers taking advantage of this offer. George Fecke, manager of the World Film Office for New England, is pleased with results.

Exchanges Here and There

The Peerless Photoplay Company Exchange has been opened at 1504 Harney street, Omaha, Neb., with Phil Goldstone as manager.

E. T. Lux, division manager for the Foursquare Pictures was in Cleveland last week visiting with G. W. Erdman, the company's local representative. Mr. Lux was on his way from Cincinnati to New York.

Alfred Weiss, vice-president of Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, was in Cleveland on Tuesday of last week, the guest of the local manager, H. A. Bandy.

General Manager Fitzpatrick, of the Kleine-Edison office in Chicago, was recently in Cleveland going over the local situation with Manager J. H. Norwood.

Arrangements concluded between the Educational Film Corporation and Foursquare Pictures will result in the distribution, through the latter concern, of the Bruce and Newman scenics and the Ditmar animal pictures in several of the Foursquare Exchanges.

C. W. Staombaugh, manager of the Standard Film Exchange in Minneapolis, was in Omaha the other day visiting Jules Rachman, local manager. He was on his way to the Standard managers' meeting in Kansas City. "Business is great," he said.

A story is being freely circulated in Omaha, Neb., about a small town exhibitor who came to the city crying about the low plight of business. He went to one manager and pleaded for a reduction in rates. The manager listened for a time, then, looking his visitor straight in the eye, asked: "Isn't it true your business is just as good as ever, and that you are trying to stir up sympathy for yourself just to get a reduction in rates?" The exhibitor, says the report, looked startled for a moment, then with a sheepish smile, admitted that the manager was right.

The Allen Film Company has recently opened a Cleveland office in the Sincere building. This is the first invasion of the Allen Film Company into Ohio, and if it proves a successful venture, it is the plan of the organization to keep on going East until they can't go any further. "We expect to release our pictures on the state rights basis," said D. L. Martin.

It has been announced that the seven-reel picture which the Essanay Company took of Camp Sherman in Chillicothe, Ohio, will be distributed throughout the state by Jack Needham of Cincinnati, assisted by Maurice Lebensberger of Cleveland. The film is to be known as "Man Making and Soldier Making in Ohio."

George Wyatt, who has been booking agent for Mutual the past five years in Calgary, has been taken on by the management of the Dominion Exclusives (Fox Features).

The St. John office of the Canadian Universal Film Co., under the management of G. A. Margetts, reports excellent business on the current Universal serials.

Claire Hague, general manager for the Canadian Universal Film Company, Limited, made a short trip to New York to get in touch with the new plans for the coming year, which will most likely take place under the new general sales manager, Joe Brandt.

Mayher and Phil Monsky, brothers, are now the roadmen out of Omaha for the Standard exchange. Mayher has Nebraska and Phil has Iowa. Both are well known throughout the middle west.

"We have made an excellent start, picking up a lot of business we were refused when we were in Kansas City because the expressage to the Omaha territory was too great," said Manager G. E. Akers of the Paramount-Artcraft exchange, recently opened in Omaha. The exchange has been fitted up in ornamental manner and Mr. Akers says he has entertained many callers from among the out-state exhibitors.

Kingsley Manages General Exchange in Cleveland

C. G. Kingsley has just been appointed manager of the Cleveland exchange of General Film Company. Mr. Kingsley is rated as one of the most successful exchange men in the country. He served under the Fox banner in Boston, Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Detroit and is thoroughly familiar with the Cleveland district. He was also connected with Paramount for a time. Previous to entering the film business, Mr. Kingsley was advance man for a number of important theatrical productions.

Jewel Tries New Exchange System

Jewel Productions, Inc., working to obtain the maximum efficiency in their sales department, has reshaped its policy of distribution to meet the requirements of war time conditions. All local exchanges are put under the jurisdiction of a zone sales office, in which is installed a zone sales manager who attends to the larger accounts and has direct supervision over the salesmen in that territory. The sales manager will work independently of the exchange manager and will confine himself strictly to getting business and running down complaints in his zone.

All sales managers will be under the control of the Sales Manager of the Home Office and will make their recommendations direct to him.

First National in Oklahoma City

E. H. Hulsey of Dallas, Texas, who controls the First National Exhibitors' Circuit franchise for Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, announces the opening of the Oklahoma City branch of the "First National," of which T. E. Larson is president and general manager. Mr. Larson is well known in Southwest film circles. He will handle all "First National" releases, including Chaplin's new "Signature Protected" Comedies. The new exchange is now doing business.

Harden Quits Foursquare in Atlanta

Charles W. Harden, one of the best known motion picture exchange managers in the South, has resigned as manager of the Foursquare Pictures office in Atlanta. This move was made necessary, it is said, owing to the increasing business of the E. & H. Film Company, of which Mr. Harden is half owner.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Vitagraph News Bits

Announcement is made by the Vitagraph that another company will be put to work either this week or during the next. However, that depends upon the finishing of the stage. The Nell Shipman and Earle Williams companies, each producing five-reel pictures; "The Woman and the Web" serial on its third episode, the "Vengeance—and the Woman" serial, which is being directed by William Duncan, and the two comedy companies working, tax the capacity of the studio to the utmost. The company soon to be added will produce two-reel stories adapted from the "Wolfville" stories of Alfred Henry Lewis. During the past week all of the companies at work have been filming interior scenes, and for the William Wolbert Company, a temporary stage was built to accommodate its sets for "A Texas Romance" on the lower acreage where the trees and underbrush furnish a good background for these interiors.

Being unable to find a whirlpool in California for the "Vengeance—and the Woman" serial, William Duncan had one constructed. Down at the lower part of the studio where a wide ditch is located, two gas engines were installed and water piped into a large concrete tank. Two powerful air compressors were placed under the water, and were operated so that the water for about twenty feet deep swirled continuously. The suction was so great that a man could not remain but a few seconds above the surface. Although it is dangerous, at least a thrill will be given by the awfulness of the death of the villains in the serial.

Universal Newsettes

Director Jacques Jaccard, who has been in charge of directing "The Lion's Claw" serial for the Universal, was taken ill this week, and Harry Harvey has now taken charge and is at work on the fourth episode of this animal serial.

Rupert Julian is finishing "The Iconoclast," and James Horne is working on the sixteenth episode of "The Bull's Eye."

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran are at work on a comedy as yet unnamed.

No definite information as to when Universal City will open again in full blast has as yet been given out. Morris Fleckles, who was here from New York, has now gone North, and will visit Seattle, Portland, Spokane and then continue East. Mr. Fleckles could not be induced to make any statements as to exactly what would be done when Universal City re-opened. He would say nothing in regard to the date, or what people or companies would again start work at U City.

Monroe Salisbury, the Bluebird star, has not as yet witnessed his latest feature, "Hands Down," on the screen, although he has certainly tried hard enough to view it. Monroe went down to the Superba theatre in Los Angeles, where the picture is being shown, on three different occasions, but no such luck as seeing the film. The first time he came in as the weekly was being shown and had barely been in the theatre five minutes when an usher tapped him on the shoulder and informed him that he was wanted at the studio. That night he tried once more to see his film and again he was called away by the studio after seeing a little of the first reel.

Live Triangle Items

In order that not a moment will be lost between pictures, General Manager H. O. Davis of the Triangle is speeding up things. Eight companies are at work on five and seven-reel pictures, while the ninth is doing a one-reel comedy.

Two pictures have been completed in the last week. The first is called "Innocent's Progress" in which Pauline Starke and Jack Livingston are the principal players. The direction was in the hands of Frank Borzage. The second is titled "Smoke," and was directed by Jack Conway, with Gloria Swanson and Edward Peil in the leading roles. With the completion of "Smoke," Conway immediately started work on "The Servant in the House," which is a picturization of the Charles Rann Kennedy play. Theatregoers of a few years ago will easily recall the success which this production enjoyed. The continuity was written by Lanier Bartlett.

"The Honorable Billy" is the title of the present William Desmond production which is being directed by Frank Borzage. The story deals with the better class of society in London, with Desmond in the part of a "good angel," for a flock of hangers-on. The action starts when he finds he has wasted his fortune. At this point Gloria Swanson, who has the feminine lead, enters as a young woman who desires to "break" into society. Gloria's father, a member of the nobility who had deserted his wife, with the result that his daughter made her way in the world as a mannequin. The daughter's desire for revenge prompts her to offer the honorable Billy a large sum to introduce her into the exclusive set. Desmond accepts the offer, and the customary romance follows. Included in the cast are Lillian West, Lillian Langdon and Charles Dorian.

Paralta Paragraphs

The entire personnel of the board of directors of the Paralta Company have arrived in Los Angeles, i. e., with the exception of Robert T. Kane, who is in the officers' training reserve at Camp Lewis. President Carl Anderson, who has been at the studio for several months, was joined by John deWolf, chairman of the board of directors; Herman Katz, treasurer; Nat I. Brown, secretary, and Frank Kane, who represents his brother, Robert T. Kane. These men, with Fernando M. Guinzburg, compose the board of directors. However, Nat. I. Brown has been confined to his hotel with a severe cold which he picked up while on his way to the coast. The entire board have expressed themselves as being particularly pleased with the plans put into operation by Carl Anderson and Robert Brunton. It has not been definitely stated whether Frank Kane will be officially connected with the company.

Many changes have been made in the scenario staff of the Paralta, and the list of writers and continuity people include at the present time Monte M. Katterjohn, Tom Geraghty, Jane Holley, J. Grubb Alexander, Fred Myton, E. Richard Shayer, Robert Kidd, Julian Lamothe and Richard Bret Harte. Katterjohn has completed the original story and continuity which will serve as an introduction for Louise Glaum, now with Paralta; Geraghty is preparing a new story for Bessie Barriscale; Jane Holley and Robert Kidd have written an original story, and Julian Lamothe is preparing the continuity for a forthcoming Barriscale production. Alexander and Myton prepared the original scenario for the Barriscale picture which has just been completed. Shayer is preparing the screen version of the Thomas Dixon story which the Mastercraft Corporation will produce, and Richard Bret Harte has recently rejoined the forces.

Fox Studio Doings

It is expected that William Farnum will arrive in Los Angeles in about two weeks. There is quite a bit of discussion in Los Angeles as to which of the Farnum boys will picturize Zane Grey's book, "The Riders of the Purple Sage." Stories have appeared in a majority of the newspapers that Dustin Farnum had the rights to the book. Now the report is that William will do it.

Tom Mix is at work at the Fox studio on a story written by himself; the continuity was made by Lynn Reynolds, who is also directing the production. The action takes place in Arizona, New Mexico and Los Angeles.

Jewel Carmen has just finished her production under the direction of S. A. Franklin, and the picture is now being cut and assembled. The story is of the underworld, giving a chance for rapid action and thrills.

Monroe Salisbury As a Noble Red-Skin Is Featured In Bluebird's "Heart of the Desert." Carmel Myers Is Starred In "The Wine Girl"

Here and There

Director Howard Mitchell has begun work on a new picture for Balboa, which will star Kathleen Clifford. Besides being the featured player, she is also the author.

Walter Edwards, formerly of the Triangle Film Corporation, has been signed by the Famous Players-Lasky organization, and it is expected he will take charge of the Constance Talmadge company, as soon as he starts work at that studio.

Fred Starr, another giant, has been engaged to fill the place made vacant by the recent death of Eric Campbell with Charlie Chaplin. Zasu Pitts, formerly with the Mary Pickford organization is also a newcomer to the Chaplin studios.

Chaplin has broken one of his rules about visitors at his studio. It is much easier for the average person to get into a safe deposit vault, than it is to enter the grounds of the Chaplin Company. Forty sailors for the U. S. Naval Reserve station accepted Chaplin's invitation to visit the studio, and for several hours they were his guests. He even went so far as to violate one of the rules of the institution, that of permitting the visitors to watch him at his work. Before they had departed, the usual photograph was made, with Chaplin standing in the center. A copy of the photo will be sent to each of the boys as a souvenir of their visit. In the future any soldier or sailor in uniform, whether he come alone or with others of the fighting forces, will be admitted after four-thirty in the afternoon.

One of the features of the advance advertising used for the Henry Walthall picture, "His Robe of Honor," was a strip of film showing Walthall, Bessie Barriscale, Howard Hickman, J. Warren Kerrigan and other film people as they filed out of the theatre on the occasion of the review of the Walthall production.

The working title of the Louise Glaum Paralta production, "Intelligence," has been changed to "The Blonde Beast," as it was thought this title was more appropriate.

After a vacation of several weeks spent in the East, Olive Thomas is back on the job and hard at work on a five-reel comedy-drama called "The Siren in the House," which is being directed by Jack Dillon. As usual, Miss Thomas has a new leading man. Wallace MacDonald, who played the juvenile lead in "The Shoes That Danced," was chosen as the principal supporting player. Others in the cast are William V. Mong, Claire McDowell, Ray Griffith and Lee Phelps. This is Griffith's first appearance in a feature production, but he will be remembered by picture fans for his work in recent Keystone and Triangle comedies.

The one-reel comedy which is being made is called "Many Happy Returns," and Jack Livingston, Jack Richardson, Lillian West and May Walters are the principal members of the cast.

The exteriors for the latest Roy Stewart picture have been finished by Director Cliff Smith, and work on the interiors is now progressing rapidly. The title of the production is "The Boss of the Lazy Y," a screen adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of that name.

It is expected that E. Mason Hopper will finish his latest subject, titled "Another Foolish Virgin," within the week. Alma Rubens, Texas Guinan, Joseph Bennett, Lee Hill and Betty Pearce have the leading parts.

Director Raymond Wells is putting the finishing touches to the "Law of the Great Northwest," a story dealing with the Canadian wilderness.

Since it has been announced that Roscoe Arbuckle is looking for a studio site, practically every city of any size in Southern California has been confronting his office with offers. Santa Ana started first with an exceptionally attractive offer, and up to date it leads the field because of a more definite and concrete proposition. They will erect a studio to cost $100,000, to be used solely for the Comique Film Corporation, of which Joseph M. Schenck is president and Roscoe Arbuckle, vice-president. Architects and engineers are working on the plans for the Santa Ana Chamber of Commerce, and will be presented to Arbuckle this week. Delegations of business men from Long Beach, where Arbuckle is located; from Santa Ana who hope to get him, and from Redlands, Riverside and Anaheim, who are also in the race, will attempt this week to prove to the satisfaction of Arbuckle exactly why he should take up a permanent residence in their city. Although Jacksonville, Florida, is too far away to send a delegation, with their usual progress they have kept the wires warm with their messages, and have made several alluring offers.

Preparations are nearing completion for the photographing of the first scenes for

Vitagraph Used An Unusually Large Cast for "The Woman and the Web" Serial, Starring Hedda Nova

"Six Shooter Andy," with Tom Mix, Is Expected To Be One of the Best Things of Its Kind from William Fox in Some Time. Jane and Catherine Lee Are Stars of "American Buds"

"The Man from Brodneys," a strong drama.

William Wolbert, who is now filming "A Texas Romance," will have for his forthcoming story "A Son of Kazan." As it is impossible to find a dog sufficiently trained to enact the part of Kazan, there will, of course, be changes made in the story.

Hedda Nova had a narrow escape from serious injury last week in the filming of a scene for "The Woman in the Web," the forthcoming Vitagraph serial. The company had deserted the hills where they had been doing a lot of daring riding and other stunt scenes, for San Pedro harbor. The action called for Miss Nova and J. Frank Glendon, who plays opposite her in the serial, to enter a small boat and when seeking to escape from a pursuing launch, to be run into and the smaller craft completely demolished, the players being thrown into the ocean, where they are captured.

The scene was made several times, but the captain of the launch engaged to run the small boat down, fearing an accident, was overcautious and the scene did not film as effectively as Directors Smith and Hurst thought it ought to. Finally, under orders, the engineer ran the gasoline launch full speed ahead into the boat occupied by Miss Nova and Mr. Glendon. No realism was lacking in the smash-up and the jump made by the players to escape being hit by the larger boat.

Miss Nova was hit by an oar and although later it was discovered that her ankle was badly sprained, she held the scene and gave an exhibition of swimming a professional would envy. This is the first accident Miss Nova has suffered, although strenuous riding and dare-devil stunts have been performed in the first three episodes.

Charles Ray, Ince Star, in Paramount Pictures

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 9, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

Paralta is not broke.

Income Tax are not popular.

Weather—nothing but climate this week.

Charley Gerrard has a pro-German haircut.

Financial Note: Monte Katterjohn has a new car.

All swains take note. Theda is among us again.

Unusual paragraph: Tom Mix is going to do a western story.

Chet Withey strained his midnight lens shooting last week.

B. Ziedman carries a newspaper clipping to prove he is an actor.

Health note: An epidemic of adopting regiments has broken out among our film actresses.

Jacques Jaccard was taken suddenly ill while filming "The Lion's Claw" for the Universal.

Bad colds are being worn by many of the film people, and others not so well known.

Ruth Stonehouse is to give "The Debutante Dance" and "The Dance of the Vampire." She's versatile anyhow.

George Holt is dead again. As the villain in "Vengeance and the Woman" he was drowned in a "prop" whirlpool this week. George claims it is the best death he ever died.

At last we have found an actress who lives for her work and loves her art. The Balboa P. A. accuses Mabel Hyde of doing this.

Wallace MacDonald has recovered from a two weeks' siege of the Chicken Pox. By keeping his hands securely bound together, he escaped without marring his fatal beauty.

Pat Dowling has moved his large stock of exclamation points and commas from the publicity offices of the Lasky Company to the Paralta.

Consolidated Crepe Hair received a severe blow this week when J. Stuart Blackton ordered Ernest Joy to raise his own disguise for the next picture.

Sign on Broadway picture house: "'It May Be Your Daughter' and Charlie Chaplin," which is not club-like, we rise to remark.

Jack Conway has reached the height of fame. Instead of having a cigar named after him, he has a modiste creation. Ye Ed. hasn't the nerve to tell you what it is called.

A would be screen tragedian asked Arthur Hoyt this question: "What are the principals of a movie actor?" Hoyt refused to answer on advice of council.

Phil. Hurn received a telegram from a friend: "Just heard you were married. Congratulations." Hurn answered: "Report untrue. Had no intention of getting married." Friend wired: "Delete first five words."

Nell Shipman is so sympathetic, that when she saw Theda Bara in "Cleopatra" make a trip up the Nile, with nothing around her but Anthony's arm, she was immediately confined with a case of La Grippe.

Speaking of versatility, we note by the papers that several of our wk. comediennes have come to realize the serious side of their art, and are now full-fledged dramatic artists. Turn on the tears, Henry. Pass the onions.

Doug. Fairbanks started a new style. According to evidence, while in San Francisco, he wore a sombrero in his right hand, and wore the right hand in the aid, where it waved back greetings to San Francisco's cheers. Some hand, say we.

It has been discovered by a railroad conductor that Roscoe Arbuckle could not have possibly failed in pictures. He was press-agented for many years under the brand of "Arbuckle Coffee," but didn't realize it until told.

Alma Rubens was explaining to a child the meaning of the picture of Elijah's journey in the fiery chariot. The child noticed the halo around Elijah's head and asked: "Why is he taking a spare tire with him on the trip?" Woodside has apologized for the above.

A play in one act: Title: "Sporting Blood." Characters: Roscoe Arbuckle, who weighs around three hundred; and Willie Archer, who tips the beam at ninety pounds. Arbuckle: "I'll bet you I'm right." Archer: 'What'll you bet?" Arbuckle: "A suit of clothes." Archer: "You don't want any odds, do you?"

Features---Current and Coming

Bluebird Photoplays

Feb. 4. The Wife He Bought (Carmel Myers) 5
Feb. 11. Hands Down (Monroe Salisbury, Ruth Clifford) 5
Feb. 18. Morgan's Raiders (Violet Mersereau) 5
Feb. 25. The Rough Lover (Franklyn Farnum) 5
Feb. 25. The Grand Passion (Dorothy Phillips Super Production) 5
Mar. 4. The Girl in the Dark (Carmel Myers) 5
Mar. 11. Hungry Eyes (M. Salisbury) 5

Universal Productions

Jan. 7. The Wolf and His Mate (Louise Lovely) 5
Jan. 14. Hell's Crater (Grace Cunard) 5
Jan. 21. Madame Spy (Jack Mulhall) 5
Jan. 28. The Phantom Riders (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Feb. 4. Painted Lips (Louise Lovely) 5
Feb. 11. New Love for Old (Ella Hall, Emory Johnson) 5
Feb. 18. The Flash of Fate (Herbert Rawlinson (Sally Starr) 5
Feb. 25. Wild Women (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Mar. 4. Nobody's Wife (Louise Lovely) 5
Mar. 11. Beauty in Chains (Ella Hall) 5 D

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

(Successors to Paramount Pictures Corp.)

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Feb. 4. Madame Jealousy (Pauline Frederick) 5
Feb. 4. Flare-Up Sal (Drotohy Dalton) 5
Feb. 11. The Keys of the Righteous (Enid Bennett) 5
Feb. 18. The Thing We Love (Wallace Reid) 5
Feb. 18. Hidden Pearl (Sessue Hayakawa) 5
Feb. 25. One More American (George Beban) 5
Mar. 4. Eve's Daughter (Billie Burke)
Mar. 4. Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford)
Mar. 11. The Family Skeleton (Charles Ray).
Mar. 11. Sunshine Nan (Ann Pennington)
Mar. 18. Prunella (Marguerite Clark)
Mar. 18. J. Stuart Blackton's Wild Youth
Mar. 18. Love Me (Dorothy Dalton)

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Feb. 11. The Song of Songs (Elsie Ferguson) 5
Feb. 18. Blue Blazes Rawdon (Wm. S. Hart) 5
Feb. 25. Headin' South (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Mar. 11. Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Mary Pickford)
Mar. 25. De Mille's "The Whispering Chorus"
Mar. 31. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Dec. 2. The Babes in the Wood (Carpenter-Corbin) 5
Dec. 9. The Pride of New York (George Walsh) 5
Dec. 16. Unknown 274 (June Caprice) 5
Dec. 23. The Kingdom of Love (Jewel Carmen) 5
Dec. 30. For Liberty (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Jan. 6. Stolen Honor (Virginia Pearson) 5
Jan. 13. Cupid's Roundup (Tom Mix) 5
Jan. 20. A Heart's Revenge (Sonia Markova). 5
Jan. 27. Treasure Island (Carpenter-Corbin) 6
Or Troublemakers (Jane and Katherine Lee) 7
Feb. 3. The Heart of Romance (June Caprice) 5
Feb. 10. Jack Spurlock — Prodigal (George Walsh) 5
Feb. 17. The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb. 24. Six-Shooter Andy (Tom Mix) 5
Mar. 3. The Girl with the Champagne Eyes (Jewel Carmen) 5
Mar. 10. The Debt of Honor (Peggy Hyland) 5
Mar. 17. Woman and the Law (R. A. Walsh) 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Dec. 16. The Heart of a Lion (William Farnum) 6
Dec. 30. Du Barry (Theda Bara) 7
Jan. 20. Cheating the Public 7
Feb. 3. The Forbidden Path (Theda Bara) 6
Feb. 10. Les Miserables (Wm. Farnum) 9
Feb. 24. American Buds (Jane and Katherine Lee) 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Dec. 2. The Auction Block 6
Dec. 16. The Cinderella Man (Mae Marsh) 6
Dec. 30. Thais (Mary Garden) 6
Jan. 14. Fields of Honor (Mae Marsh) 6
Jan. 28. Dodging a Million (Mabel Normand) 6
Feb. 10. Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy). 6
Feb. 24. The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh). 6
Mar. 10. The Floor Below (Mabel Normand). 6
Mar. 24. The Danger Game (Madge Kennedy) 6

GOLDWYN SPECIALS

The Manx-Man 7
For the Freedom of the World 7

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

(Paralta Plays)

Dec. 15. A Man's Man (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Jan. 1. Madam Who? (Bessie Barriscale) 7
Jan. 15. His Robe of Honor (Henry B. Walthall) 7
Feb. 15. The Turn of a Card (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Mar. 1. Within the Cup (Bessie Barriscale). 7
Mar. 15. Humdrum Brown (Henry B. Walthall) 6

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama) —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama) —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama) —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama) —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama) —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama) —
Dec. — K (Drama). —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Uneasy Money (Essanay) 6
Brown of Harvard (Selig) 6
I, Mary MacLane (Essanay) 7
The Unbeliever (Edison) 7
Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay) 7

Metro Pictures Corporation

Feb. 4. Under Suspicion (Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne) Metro 5
Feb. 11. Broadway Bill (Harold Lockwood) Metro-Yorke 5
Feb. 18. A Weaver of Dreams (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5
Feb. 25. Revenge (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 4. The Shell Game (Emmy Wehlen) Metro 5
Mar. 11. The Brass Check (Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne) 5
Mar. 18. The Claim (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5

(METRO SPECIALS)

Blue Jeans (Voila Dana), Metro-Rolfe 7
The Legion of Death (Edith Storey), Metro-Rolfe 7
Revelation (Nazimova), Metro 7
The Slacker (Emily Stevens) 7
Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro) 7

Mutual Film Corporation

Jan. 7. Molly Go Get 'Em (Margarita Fischer) 5
Jan. 14. The Imposter (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5
Jan. 21. In Bad (Wm. Russell), American 5
Jan. 28. Beauty and the Rogue (Mary Miles Minter), American 5
Feb. 4. Who Loved Him Best? (Edna Goodrich) 5
Feb. 11. Jilted Janet (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Feb. 18. My Wife (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5
Feb. 25. The Midnight Trail (Wm. Russell) American 5
Mar. 4. Powers That Prey (Mary Miles Minter) American 5
Mar. 11. Ann's Finish (Margarita Fischer) American 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Feb. 3. The Other Woman (Peggy Hyland, Milton Sills, Wm. Parke, Jr.), Astra 5
Feb. 10. Loaded Dice (Frank Keenan, Florence Hillings, Guy Coombs), Pathe 5
Feb. 17. The Inner Voice (I. I. Mozukin), Russian Art 5
Feb. 24. The Naulahka (Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Doraldina, Mary Aldin, Warner Oland) Astra 6
Mar. 3. Daddy's Girl (Baby Marie Osborne) Diando 5
Mar. 10. The Great Adventure (Bessie Love, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Chester Barnett, Florence Short) 5
Mar. 17. The Beggar Woman (Mme. N. A. Lesienko, I. I. Mozukin) 5

Petrova Picture Company

Dec. 23. Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Light Within (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Life Mask (Mme. Petrova) 5

Select Pictures

Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady) 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady) 5
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge) 6
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge) 5
Mar. —. By Right of Purchase 6
Mar. —. The Shuttle 5
Mar. —. The House of Glass 5
Mar. —. The Knife 5

SPECIAL RELEASES

Over There (Chas. Richman, Anna Q. Nilsson) 6
The Lone Wolf (Bert Lytell, Hazel Dawn) 5
The Barrier (Rex Beach Production) 7
The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay) 5

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Feb. 3. Limousine Life (Olive Thomas) 5
Feb. 3. The Hopper (Wm. V. Mong) 5
Feb. 10. Captain of His Soul (Wm. Desmond) 5
Feb. 10. Real Folks (J. Barney Sherry) 5
Feb. 17. From Two to Six (Winifred Allen) 5
Feb. 17. Keith of the Border (Roy Stewart) 5
Feb. 24. Little Red Decides (Triangle Players) 5
Feb. 24. A Soul in Trust (Belle Bennett) 7
Mar. 3. Heiress for a Day (Olive Thomas) 5
Mar. 3. Shoes That Danced (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 10. The Hard Rock Breed (Margery Wilson) 5
Mar. 10. The Sea Panther (Wm. Desmond) 5
Mar. 17. Faith Endurin' (Roy Stewart) 5
Mar. 17. The Answer (Alma Rubens) 7

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Feb. 4. The Other Man (Harry Morey, Grace Darmond, Florence Deshon) 5
Feb. 11. The Woman Between Friends (Alice Joyce, Marc MacDermott) 5
Feb. 18. The Wooing of Princess Pat (Gladys Leslie, J. Frank Glendon) 5
Feb. 25. Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers Neil Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5
Mar. 4. The Song of the Soul (Alice Joyce, Walter McGrail) 5
Mar. 11. The Desired Women (Harry Morey, Florence Deshon) 5
Mar. 18. An American Live Wire (Earle Williams, Grace Darmond) 5

World Pictures

Jan. 7. Stolen Hours (Ethel Clayton) 5
Jan. 14. The Strong Way (June Elvidge) 5
Jan. 21. The Beautiful Mrs. Reynolds (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge) 5
Jan. 28. Gates of Gladness (Madge Evans) 5
Feb. 4. Divine Sacrifice (Kitty Gordon) 5
Feb. 11. Whims of Society (Ethel Clayton) 5
Feb. 18. Broken Ties (June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley) 5
Feb. 25. His Royal Highness (Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Greeley) 5
Mar. 4. Spurs of Sybil (Alice Brady) 5
Mar. 11. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon) 5
Mar. 18. Wanted, A Mother (Madge Evans) 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

American News Weekly

One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.

May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Argosy Films, Inc.

The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arrow Film Corporation

The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary

The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions

Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

Jules Burnstein

Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation

Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies

(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)
Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels
BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S PARAMOUNT SERIES
The Son of Democracy..

Christie Film Company

Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel
Honeymooners.
Out for the Coin.
Her Awful Predicament.
Crazy by Proxy.
Green Eyes and Bullets.
Betty's Big Idea.
Local Color.
Love and Locksmiths.
Hearts and Clubs.
Almost a Bigamist.
More Haste Less Speed.
Betty Wakes Up.
Stepping Out.
Almost Divorced.
Help! Help! Police!
Their Seaside Tangle.
One Good Turn.
Thirty Days.
Nearly a Peach.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Five to Five.
Many a Slip.
The Night of His Life.
Mum's the Word.
Circumstantial Evidence.
In the Dark.
Whose Wife?
The House that Jack Built

Cinema Distributing Corp.

The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Clune Productions

Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.

Charlotte, in The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company

The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation

LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company

Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Dixie Films

Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Ebony Film Corporation

A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.

Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.

People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Export and Import Film Co.

Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation

Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.

War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.
Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova).
Herbert Brenon's "Empty Pockets."
The Sign Invisible (Big Mitch Lewis).

Fort Pitt Corporation

The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.

(Standard Pictures)
The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Frieder Film Corporation

The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises

A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.

The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

General Enterprises, Inc.

Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays

The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features

A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company

Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features

The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith

Intolerance .....9 reels

Hanover Film Company

Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart

The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation

Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation

Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.

The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Historic Features

Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.

One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation

The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.

Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Feature Productions

One Law for Both (Rita Jolivet, Vincent Serrano, Leah Baird, Pedro De Cordoba, James Morrison).....7 reels
Babbling Tongues (Grace Valentine, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson).....7 reels
Married in Name Only (Gretchen Hartman, Milton Sills, Marie Shotwell).....6 reels
Sins of Ambition (Barbara Castleton, Wilfred Lucas, Leah Baird, James Morrison) .....7 reels
Human Clay (Mollie King).....5 reels

Jester Comedies

Feb. —. The Recruit (Twede Dan).....2 parts
Mar. —. His Golden Romance (Twede Dan) .....2 parts
April —. All "Fur" Her (Twede Dan)...2 parts
May —. The Wrong Flat (Twede Dan)..2 parts

Juvenile Film Corporation

World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

(Continued on page 1480)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 20. Son of a Gun.....2 C
Feb. 3. Hungry Lions in a Hospital.....2 C
Feb. 17. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

The Fifth Wheel (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
Compliments of the Season (Herbert Prior, Betty Blythe, Aida Horton)...2 D
The Moment of Victory (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan) .....2 C-D
The Trimmed Lamp (Mildred Manning, Alice Terry) .....2 C-D
Schools and Schools (Jean Paige, Chas. Hutchison) .....2 D
A Madison Square Arabian Night (Duncan McRae, Patsy De Forrest).....2 D
The Rathskeller and the Rose (Adele De Garde, Evart Overton).....2 D
By Injunction (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
The Song and the Sergeant (Alice Terry, Stanley Dunn, Templar Saxe).....2 D

ESSANAY
GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

Lunch .....1 C
Nut Stuff .....1 C
He Loved Her So.....1 C
One Night .....1 C
Next .....1 C
The Soup and the Fish Ball.....1 C
A Tough Knight.....1 C
Our Little Nell.....1 C
Check Your Hat, Sir.....1 C
Wild Algy of Piccadilly.....1 C
All Stuck Up.....1 C
The Lie That Failed.....1 C
The Jazbo Sheriff.....1 C
The Lunch Grabber.....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.
Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada .....1 Sc.
Water Powers of Eastern Canada.....1 Sc.
A Romance of Rails and Power.....1 Sc.
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelley .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 C
A Woman .....2 C
The Tramp .....2 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON FILM CORP.

"A DAUGHTER OF UNCLE SAM" SERIAL (Jane Vance, Wm. Sorelle) 12 Episodes .....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Breaking In .....1 C
Blundering Boobs .....1 C
Disappointed Love .....1 C
He's In Again.....1 C
How It Worked.....1 C
Their Model Careers.....1 C
His Fishy Footsteps.....1 C
Out and In (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
The Inspector's Wife.....1 C
In Wrong (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Anybody's Money .....1 C
Her Fatal Shot (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Marooned .....1 C
Sherman Was Right.....1 C
What Will Happen Next?.....1 C
Which Was Lucky?.....1 C

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Bud's Recruit .....2 C-D
Chocolate of the Gang.....2 C-D
The Lost Lie.....2 C-D
Tad's Swimming Hole.....2 C-D
Marrying Off Dad.....2 C-D
The Preacher's Son.....2 C-D
Thief or Angel.....2 C-D
The Accusing Toe.....2 C-D
Black and White.....2 C-D
The Rebellion .....2 C-D
Frank's Endorser .....2 C-D
City of Boys.....2 C-D

SPARKLE COMEDIES

Monkey-Maid-Man .....1 C
On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

THREE C COMEDIES

Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Candy Kid.....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Hobo .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Slave .....2 reels
Jan. 15. The Stranger .....2 reels
Feb. 1. His Day Out.....2 reels
Feb. 15. The Rogue .....2 reels

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

George Kleine System

MONTGOMERY FLAGG'S COMEDIES
"GIRLS YOU KNOW"

Jan. 2. The Screen Fan.....2 C
Jan. 16. The Bride .....2 C
Jan. 30. The Superstitious Girl.....2 C
Feb. 13. The Matinee Girl.....2 C
Feb. 27. The Artist's Model.....2 C
Mar. 13. The Spoiled Girl.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Jan. 14. Why Henry Left Home.....1 C
Jan. 21. Their First Love.....1 C
Jan. 28. Under the Influence.....1 C
Feb. 4. Help Wanted.....1 C
Feb. 11. The Bright Lights Dimmed.....1 C
Feb. 18. After Henry .....1 C
Feb. 25. His Generosity .....1 C
Mar. 4. Before and After Taking.....1 C
Mar. 11. His Strength of Mind.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Jan. 15. Burglars .....1 reel
Jan. 22. Their Little Kid.....1 reel
Jan. 29. Somebody's Widow.....1 reel
Feb. 5. Her Friend Brown.....1 reel
Feb. 12. Three Times and Out.....1 reel
Feb. 19. Miss Cinderella .....1 reel
Feb. 26. Up in the Air.....1 reel
Mar. 12. Finishing Mary .....1 reel
Screen Telegrams issued Sunday and Wednesday of each week

Serials

Dec. 3. The Lost Express, No. 12 (Daring Death) .....
Dec. 10. The Lost Express, No. 13 (The Escape) .....2 D
Dec. 17. The Lost Express, No. 14 (Unmasked) .....2 D
Dec. 24. The Lost Express, No. 15 (The Return of the Lost Express).....2 D

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 20. Out West .....2 reels
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C
Feb. 3. Watch Your Neighbor.....2 C
Feb. 10. Sheriff Nell's Tussle.....2 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Dec. 3. Osaka to Nagasaki.....1 Trav.
Dec. 10. Canning Time in California.....1 Trav.
Dec. 17. In Glacier Park.....1 Trav.
Dec. 24. Going to the Sun.....1 Trav.
Dec. 31. On the Farm Where the Food Comes From.....1 Trav.
Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.1 reel
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia .....1 reel
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.....1 reel
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.....1 reel
Feb. 4. Adelaide, Capital of South Australia .....1 reel

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, March 3, 1918

The Hidden Hand, No. 15 (The Girl of the Prophecy) .....2 D
The Price of Folly, No. 7 (The Rebound) Balboa .....2 D
A Gasoline Wedding (Harold Lloyd, Babe Daniels, Harry Pollard) Rolin.....1 C
Our National Parks (Col.) Yellowstone Park; Buxton (Derbyshire, Eng.), Trav. Split reel International Cartoon and Educational.....

Wednesday, March 6, 1918

Heast-Pathe News, No. 20. .....1 top

Saturday, March 9, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 21.....1 top

Sunday, March 10, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 1 (The Hooded Terror) (Pearl White, Antonio Moreno, Paul Clerges, Peggy Shanor), Astra.....2 D
The Price of Folly, No. 8 (Shifting Sands), Astra .....2 D
Look Pleasant, Please (Harold Lloyd, Babe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin.....1 C
Our National Parks (Col.), Mesa Verda Parks Trav.....1 reel
Katzenjammer Kids "Spirits" (Cart.) and "Jackie's Clothes" (Ed.), International. Split reel

Wednesday, March 13, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 22.....1 top

Saturday, March 16, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 23.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES

Feb. 3. Airing Their Troubles.....1 C
Feb. 3. A Safe Disaster.....1 C
Feb. 10. His Nine Lives.....1 C
Feb. 10. A Game Gambler.....1 C
Feb. 17. Their Undercover Capers.....1 C
Feb. 17. A Full Dress Fizzle.....1 C
Feb. 24. A Coward's Courage.....1 C
Feb. 24. His Nimble Twist.....1 C
Mar. 3. A Discord in A Flat.....1 C
Mar. 3. His Hidden Shame.....1 C
Mar. 10. Wives and Worries.....1 C
Mar. 10. She Didn't Do It.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES

Feb. 3. A Sea Serpent's Desire (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims, Maude Wayne).2 C
Feb. 10. Wronged by Mistake (Harry Gribbon, Myrtle Lind, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers, Carolyne Rankin).....2 C
Feb. 17. His Double Life (R. Griffith, Dorothy Hager, Claire Anderson).....2 C
Feb. 24. A Tell-Tale Shirt (Fritz Schave, Peggy Pierce, C. Roberts, Baldy Belmont) .....2 C
Mar. 3. A Lady Killer's Doom (Wm. Franey, Maude Wayne, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims) .....2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong? (Harry Gribbon, Claire Anderson, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers) .....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, March 4, 1918

NESTOR—At Sword's Point (Harry Mann).1 C

Wednesday, March 6, 1918

L-KO—A Flyer in Folly (Hughie Mack, Gale Henry) .....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 14.

Saturday, March 9, 1918

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 61.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 43. (Shipping date, Mar. 2.)
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The House of Trickery (Fifteenth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial).....2 D 4
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Swing of Death (Fifth Episode of "The Bull's Eye" Serial) .....2 D
SPECIAL—Finley Nature Studies, No. 8, "The Indian Fisherman" and "The Grandeur of Switzerland" (Sc.)....Split reel

Monday, March 11, 1918

NESTOR—At Swords' Point (Harry Mann).1 C

Wednesday, March 13, 1918

L-KO—Ambrose and His Widow (Mack Swain) .....2 C
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 62.

Saturday, March 16, 1918

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 44 (shipping date March 9).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Forced Marriage (Eixteenth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial).....2 D
SPECIAL—Finley Nature Studies, No. 9, "The Geysers of Yellowstone Park" and "Flower of the Orient".....Split reel

Vitagraph

BIG V COMEDIES

Feb. 4. Telephones and Troubles.
Feb. 11. Babes and Boobs.
Feb. 18. Courts and Convicts.
Feb. 25. Rooms and Rumors.
Mar. 4. Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11. Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18. Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25. Stripes and Stumbles.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES

Jan. 7. A Little Ouija Work.
Jan. 14. Seeking An Oversoul.
Jan. 21. A Four-Cornered Triangle.
Jan. 28. Their Anniversary Feast.
Feb. 4. Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11. Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18. Sweets to the Sour.
Feb. 25. Their Godson.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)

Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).
Feb. 4. The Wolf Trap (Seventh Episode).
Feb. 11. The Mountain of Devastation (Eighth Episode).
Feb. 18. Buried Alive (Ninth Episode).
Feb. 25. The Leap for Life (Tenth Episode).
Mar. 4. The Cavern of Terror (Eleventh Episode).
Mar. 11. The Desperate Chance (Twelfth Episode).
Mar. 18. Sands of Doom (Thirteenth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Jan. 28. Children of the Feud.....2 D
Jan. 28. Getting Up a Practice.....1 C
Feb. 4. The Pirates .....2 C
Feb. 4. The Wings of a Moth.....1 D
Feb. 11. The Sacrifice of Kathleen.....2 D
Feb. 11. Art for A Heart.....1 C
Feb. 18. The Mischief Maker.....2 D
Feb. 18. Sonny Jim in Search of a Mother..1 C
Feb. 25. Old Reliable.....2 D
Feb. 25. Stenographer Troubles.....1 C
Mar. 4. An Officer and a Gentleman.....2 D
Mar. 4. Unlucky Louis .....1 C

DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 11. Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18. A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25. His Wife Knew About It.

RELEASES IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD

(Continued from page 1478)

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").....

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Photoplay Magazine

Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges).

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

The Public Defender.....6 reels
Naked Hands .....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....6 reels
Souls Redeemed .....6 reels
Mother Love and the Law.....7 reels
In Treason's Grasp.....5 reels
Should She Obey?.....7 reels

Selig Special

Beware of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Sterling Pictures Corporation

Peg o' the Sea (Jean Sothern feature)....6 parts
A Mute Appeal (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy feature) .....5 parts
Her Good Name (Jean Sothern feature)..5 parts
Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana feature).....5 parts
The Cloud (Jean Sothern feature).....5 parts
The God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
A Mother's Ordeal (Jean Sothern feature) 5 parts
Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon feature)6 parts
Miss Deception (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Law that Failed (Alma Hanlon f'ture)5 parts
Great Bradley Mystery (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
The Mystic Hour (Alma Hanlon feature).6 parts
When You and I Were Young (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
The Golden God (Alma Hanlon feature)..5 parts
She Was a Dangerous Girl (Cartoon comedy) .....500 ft.
Zippy the Fireman (Cartoon comedy)....500 ft.
Zippy in a Sanatorium (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Zippy Buys a Pet Pup (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Slick and Tricky (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo (Cartoon comedy)...500 ft.
The Old Forty-Niner (Cartoon comedy)..500 ft.
Mr. Coon (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Mose Is Cured (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Insurance (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Pets (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
The Unknown (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

W. H. Productions Co.

William S. Hart as Two Gun Man in "The Bargain" .....6 reels
William S. Hart in "The Bandit and the Preacher" .....5 reels
William S. Hart in "The Hell Hound of Alaska" .....5 reels
Also Series of two-reel W. H. Hart productions.

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

EXHIBITORS' PERSONALS

KENTUCKY

Jack Palmer has accepted the position of manager of the Woodruff theatre at Murray.

MARYLAND

Benjamin Abrams, formerly of Philadelphia, has assumed the active management of the Blue Mouse theatre, 28 West Lexington street, Baltimore.

MASSACHUSETTS

Heirs of the William H. Wood Estate have sold to Dr. George Southwick the Brighton theatre at 400-404 Market street, Brighton, consisting of a two-story brick building and 11,000 square feet of land, all taxed at $17,800. Besides the theatre the building contains stores.

MONTANA

E. Marshall Taylor, formerly city ticket agent for the Milwaukee railroad at Butte has been named as manager of the Orpheum motion picture theatre and assumed charge last week.

Dr. George W. Clay has bought the Orpheum theatre at Malta from Lyman Bernis, and will be assisted in its management by John Survant.

NEBRASKA

J. E. Kirk has bought the Grand theatre, Sixteenth and Binney streets, Omaha, from Jules Rachman. The Grand is the biggest and most beautiful of Omaha's suburban houses. Mr. Kirk has for years been one of the best known exchange men in the Omaha territory.

NEW YORK

J. F. Bearce and Jack Long, of Canandaigua, have purchased the Temple theatre in South Main street, Canandaigua, from George Hagar and George Bachman, who have been operating the house for the past three years.

G. D. Vandervoort, who until recently has conducted moving pictures at the Temple theatre, Ossining, for several years, has sold his machine and business to David Fuhry, of Portlandville. Mr. Fuhry will open the theatre to the public the middle of February.

NORTH DAKOTA

W. F. McKallor is now sole owner of the Lyceum theatre, Moorhead, having purchased the interest of his partner, J. J. Isaacs. The deal was completed and the transfer was made to the new owner recently.

Last September Mr. McKallor came to Moorhead from Grand Forks and acquired an interest in the Lyceum, forming a partnership with Mr. Isaacs, when E. G. Brown retired from the management.

OHIO

The Forrest City Investment Comany has leased to Morris Friedman and R. M. Gordon, the Strand theatre at the southwest corner of Superior avenue N. E. and East Eighty-ninth street, Cleveland, for six years at a rental of $2,400 a year.

PENNSYLVANIA

The moving picture theatre at the southwest corner of Fifty-third street and Lansdowne avenue, Philadelphia, lot 66 feet by 173 feet, has been conveyed by Jay Emanuel to Samuel Segall, subject to a mortgage of $22,000. The assessed valuation is $25,000.

Illig Brothers, of Ebensburg, have purchased the Happy Hour theatre at Lilly.

Clayton Eiler, of Eagle, and G. Potts, of Pottsville, have purchased Euclid theatre, Eagle, from Jacob Daubert and J. Rettinger.

Monthly Index of Releases

All releases of the month are listed. In the index, C. stands for "Comedy"; Cart., for "Cartoon"; C.-D., for "Comedy Drama"; D., "Drama"; Juv., "Juvenile"; Sc., "Scenic"; Top., "Topical." The figure before the abbreviation is the number of reels, date is the date of release and the figure the page of Motion Picture News on which the picture was reviewed. The second number refers to the music chart for the picture. The number in parenthesis ( ) refers to the page whereon will be found the "Ready-Made Ad-Talk." Numbers preceded by an asterisk * refer to "Short Subjects in Review."

FEATURES

AMERICAN Buds (Foxfilm), 7D, Feb. 24 ——

BARGAIN, The (W. H. Productions), 6D (S.R.) 1033
Beauty and the Rogue (Mutual-American), 5D, Jan. 28 1036
Beloved Traitor, The (Goldwyn), 6D, Feb. 24 (1283)
Blue Blazes Rawden (Artcraft), 5D, Feb. 18 1315 (1282)
Blue Jeans (Metro Special), 7D ——
Broadway Bill (Metro-Yorke), 5D, Feb. 11 ——
Broken Ties (World Film), 5D, Feb. 18 1036 (996)

CAPTAIN of His Soul (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 10 1034 (996)
Carmen of the Klondike (Selexart), 7D (S.R.) 1187
Castoff, The (Foursquare Pictures), 6D (S.R.) 1184
Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers (Vitagraph), 5D, Feb. 25 1469
Crucible of Life, The (General Enterprises), 7D (S.R.) 1183 (1283)

DIVINE Sacrifice (World Film), 5D, Feb. 4 888
Dodging a Million (Goldwyn), 5D, Jan. 28 1038 1340 (556)
Draft 258 (Metro Special), 7D ——

FIELDS of Honor (Goldwyn), 5D, Jan. 14 890 1054 (556)
Fighting Grin, The (Bluebird), 5D, Jan. 28 1032 (557)
Flare-Up Sal (Paramount), 5D, Feb. 4 1036 (997)
Flash of Fate, The (Universal), 5D, Feb. 18 1469
Forbidden Path, The (Foxfilm), 6D, Feb. 3 1030
From Two to Six (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 17 1185 (1146)

GRAIN of Dust, The (Crest Pictures), 6D (S.R.) 887
Grand Passion, The (Bluebird-Universal), 5D, Feb. 25 ——
Guilty Man, The (Paramount-Ince), 5D, Jan. 28 1186 (1146)

HANDS Down (Bluebird-Universal), 5D, Feb. 11 1034
Headin' South (Artcraft), 5D, Feb. 25 ——
Heart of Romance, The (Foxfilm), 5D, Feb. 3 1184 (1147)
Heart's Revenge, A (Foxfilm), 5D, Jan. 20 888 (707)
Hidden Pearls (Paramount), 5D, Feb. 18 1181 (1147)
His Royal Highness (World Film), 5D, Feb. 25 1317
Hopper, The (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 3 887 1338 (851)

INNER Voice, The (Pathe-Russian Art), 5D, Feb. 17 1183 (1147)

JACK Spurlock—Prodigal (Foxfilm), 5D, Feb. 10 1183 (1147)
Jilted Janet (Mutual-American), 5D, Feb. 11 1315 (997)

KEITH of the Border (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 17 1185 (1146)
Keys of the Righteous, The (Paramount), 5D, Feb. 11 1316 (1147)
Knife, The (Select Pictures), 5D, Mar. 1187 (1147)

LEGION of Death, The (Metro Special), 7D ——
Les Miserables (Foxfilm), 9D, Feb. 10 ——
Lest We Forget (Metro Special), 7D, Jan. 26 1032
Life Mask, The (Petrova Pictures), 5D, Feb. 15 ——
Light Within, The (Petrova Pictures), 5D, Feb. 1 1314 (707)
Limousine Life (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 3 886 (850)
"Little Red" Decides (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 24 1318
Little Red Riding Hood (Wholesome Films), 4Juv. (S.R.) 889
Loaded Dice (Pathe), 5D, Feb. 10 1031 (1282)

MADAME Jealousy (Paramount), 5 MD, Feb. 4 1035 (996)
Marionettes, The (Select Pictures), 5D (S.R.) 1035 1338 (996)
Marvelous Maciste, The (Hanover-General), 6D ——
Midnight Trail, The (Mutual-American), 5D, Feb. 25 (1283)
Moral Law, The (Foxfilm), 5D, Feb. 17 ——
Morgan's Raiders (Bluebird-Universal), 5D, Feb. 18 1318
Mother's Sin, A (Vitagraph-V-L-S-E), 5D, Jan. 28 1186 (996)
My Wife (Mutual-Frohman), 5D, Feb. 18 1467 (1282)

NAULAHKA, The (Pathe-Astra), 6D, Feb. 24 1031 (997)
New Love for Old (Universal), 5D, Feb. 11 1034

OTHER Man, The (Vitagraph), 5D, Feb. 4 1030
Other Woman, The (Pathe-Astra), 5D, Feb. 3 888 (851)
Our Little Wife (Goldwyn), 6D, Feb. 10 1317 (996)

PAINTED Lips (Universal), 5D, Feb. 4 ——
Petticoat Pilot (Paramount), 5D, Feb. 11 1033 (996)

REAL Folks (Triangle), 5D, Feb. 10 1036 (996)
Revelaton (Metro Special), 7D 1466
Revenge (Metro-Rolfe), 5D, Feb. 25 ——
Rough Lover, The (Bluebird-Universal), 5D, Feb. 25 1468
Ruggles of Red Gap (Kleine-Essanay), 5D, Feb. 25 (707)

SIX-Shooter Andy (Foxfilm), 5D, Feb. 24 1468
Slacker, The (Metro Special), 7D ——
Song of Songs, The (Artcraft), 5D, Feb. 11 1187 (1282)
Soul in Trust, A (Triangle), 7D, Dec. 24 ——

THING We Love, The (Paramount), 5D, Feb. 18 ——
Turn of a Card, The (Paralta-Hodkinson), 7D, Feb. 15 1182 (1146)
Two Gun Men, The (W. H. Productions), 6D (S.R.) 1033

UNBELIEVER, The (Kleine-Edison), 5D, Feb. 11 ——
Under Suspicion (Metro), 5D, Feb. 4 (1283)

WEAVER OF DREAMS, A (Metro-Rolfe), 5D, Feb. 18 ——
Whims of Society (World Film), 5D, Feb. 11 1188 (1282)
Who Loved Him Best? (Mutual-Goodrich), 5D, Feb. 4 1033 (997)
Widow's Might, The (Paramount), 5CD, Jan. 28 887 ——
Wife He Bought, The (Bluebird-Universal), 5D, Feb. 4 ——
Wild Women (Universal), 5D, Feb. 25 1466
Woman and Wife (Select), , 6D (S.R.) 889
Woman Between Friends, The (Vitagraph), 5D, Feb. 11 1185 (1283)
Wooing of Princess Pat, The (Vitagraph), 5D, Feb. 18 1317 (1282)

SHORT SUBJECTS

ACCUSING Toe, The (Judge-Brown-General), 2CD ——
Adelaide, Capital of South Australia (Burton Holmes-Paramount), 1Trav., Feb. 4 ——
After Henry (Metro-Drew), 1C, Feb. 18 ——
After the Matinee (Sparkle-General), 1C ——
Airing Their Troubles (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 3 ——
All for the Ladies (Pathe), Happy Hooligan Cart., and "American Arms" (International), Ed., Split reel, Feb. 10 ——
Along the Riviera, Italy (Col.), Trav., and Watching the Flowers Bloom (Col.), Educ., Pathe Split reel, Feb. 17 *1018
American Arms (Pathe-International), Ed., and "All for the Ladies," Happy Hooligan cart., Split reel, Feb. 10 ——
Anybody's Money (Jaxon-General), 1C ——
Are Married Policeman Safe? (Fix Sunshine), 2C, Feb. 17 ——
Argus Pictorial, No. 7 (Pathe), 1Ed., Feb. 10 ——
Argus Pictorial, No. 8 (Pathe), 1Ed., Feb. 24 *1169
Around Central Auvergne, France (Col.) and "Clermont-Ferrand" (Col.), Pathe, Trav., Split reel, Feb. 24 *1169
Art for a Heart (Favorite Film), 1C, Feb. 11 ——
Artist's Models, The (Flagg-Kleine System), 1C, Feb. 13 ——

BABES and Boobs (Vitagraph-Big V), 1C, Feb. 11 ——
Beaches and Peaches (Universal-L-Ko), 2C, Feb. 20 ——
Beat It (Pathe-Rolin), 1C, Feb. 24 ——
Best of a Bad Bargain, The (Sparkle-General), 1C ——
Blundering Boobs (Jaxon-General), 1C ——
Bright Lights Dimmed (Metro-Drew), 1C, Feb. 11 ——
Bud's Recruit (Judge Brown-General), 2CD (997)
Bull's Eye, The (Universal Serial):
First Blood, First Episode, 2D, Feb. 9 ——
The Fearless One, Second Episode, 2D, Feb. 16 ——
Desperate Odds, Third Episode, 2D, Feb. 23 ——
Burglars (Pathe), Katzenjammer (Cart.), and "Appleblossom Land" (Educ.), International Split reel, Feb. 24 ——
Buried Alive (Vitagraph), Episode of "Vengeance—and the Woman" Serial, 2D, Feb. 18 ——

CATSPAW, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Price of Folly" Serial, 2D, Feb. 3 1033
Check Your Hat, Sir? (Essanay-General), 1C ——
Chocolate of the Gang (Judge Brown-General), 2CD ——
Coals for the Fire (Vitagraph), 1C, Feb. 11 ——
Compliments of the Season (O. Henry-Broadway), 2D 1184 (850)
Courts and Convicts (Vitagraph-Big V), 1C, Feb. 18 ——
Coward's Courage, A (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 24 ——

DESPERATE Odds (Universal), Episode of "The Bull's Eye" Serial, 2D, Feb. 23 ——
Detective, The (Sparkle-General), 1C ——
Devil with the Wimmen, A (Universal-Nestor), 1C, Feb. 11 ——
Disappointed Love (Jaxon-General), 1C ——
Donkey Did It, The (Universal-L-Ko), 2C, Feb. 6 ——
Double Cross (Sparkle-General), 1C ——

EYES in the Wall, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Hidden Hand" Serial, 2D, Feb. 10 1187

FEARLESS One, The (Universal), Episode of "The Bull's Eye" Serial, 2D, Feb. 16 ——
Finley Nature Studies (Universal), Split reels, Scenic:
No. 3. "Bears of the Yellowstone" and "The Long White Trail," Feb. 2 *1018
No. 4. "Birds of Crag and Cavern" and "Gems of the Adriatic," Feb. 9 *1169
No. 5. "The Salmon Fisheries of the Columbia" and "The Drum Dancers of Java," Feb. 16 *1169
No. 6. "Mount Hood" and "The Garden Spot of the World," Feb. 23 *1169
First Blood (Universal), Episode of "The Bull's Eye" Serial, 2D, Feb. 9 ——
For Dessert (International-Pathe), Ed., and "Policy and Pie" (Pathe), Katzenjammer Cart., Split reel, Feb. 3 ——
Full Dress Suit, A (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 17 ——

GAME Gambler, A (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 10 ——
Girl of the Prophecy, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Hidden Hand" Serial, 2D, Mar. 3 ——
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelley (Essanay-General), 1Sc ——
Great Sea Scandal, The (Universal-Nestor), 1C, Feb. 4 ——

HASH House Romance, A (Three C-General), 1C.....
Hello Teacher! (Pathe-Rollin), 1C, Feb. 10.....
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 11 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 2..... *1169
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 12 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 6..... *1169
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 13 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 9..... *1301
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 14 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 13..... *1301
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 15 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 16.....
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 16 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 20.....
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 17 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 23.....
Hearst-Pathe News, No. 18 (Pathe), 1Top, Feb. 27.....
Help Wanted (Metro-Drew), 1C, Feb. 4.....
He's In Again (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Her Fatal Shot (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Her Friend Brown (Mutual-Strand), 1C, Feb. 5..... 1035
Hidden Hand, The (Pathe Serial):
Trapped by Treachery (Eleventh Episode), 2D, Feb. 3..... 1034
The Eyes in the Wall (Twelfth Episode), 2D, Feb. 10..... 1187
The Jaws of the Tiger (Thirteenth Episode), 2D, Feb. 17..... 1316
The Unmasking (Fourteenth Episode), 2D, Feb. 24.....
The Girl of the Prophecy (Fifteenth Episode), 2D, Mar. 3.....
His Day Out (King Bee), 2C, Feb. 1..... 1470
His Double Life (Triangle-Keystone), 2C, Feb. 17..... 1315
His Fishy Footsteps (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
His Generosity (Metro-Drew), 1C, Feb. 25.....
His Hidden Purpose (Paramount-Mack Sennett), 2C, Jan. 27..... 889
His Nimble Twist (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 24.....
His Nine Lives (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 10.....
Hit Him Again (Pathe-Rolin), 1C, Feb. 17.....
Hod Carrier's Million, The (Three C-General), 1C.....
How It Worked (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Horse in Action, The (Pathe), Ed., and "Rocamadour, and the Valley of Lot" (Trav.), Split reel, Feb. 10..... *1301
Hungry Lions in a Hospital (Fox Sunshine), 2C, Feb. 3.....

IN POVERTY'S Power (Pathe), Episode of "The Price of Folly" Serial, 2D, Feb. 24..... 1468
In Wrong (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Inspector's Wife, The (Jaxon-General), 1C.....

JAWS of the Tiger, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Hidden Hand" Serial, 2D, Feb. 17..... 1316
Junkman, The (Pathe-Rolin), 2C, Feb. 17.....

LAMB, The (Pathe-Rolin), 1C, Feb. 3.....
Leap for Life, The (Vitagraph), Episode of "Vengeance—and the Woman" Serial, 2D, Feb. 25.....
Line of Death, The (Universal), Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial, 2D, Feb. 9.....
Lost Lie, The (Judge Brown-General), 2CD.....

MADISON Square Arabian Night (O. Henry-General), 2D.....
Marooned (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Marrying-Off Dad (Judge Brown-General), 2CD.....
Matinee Girl, The (Flagg-Kleine System), 1C, Feb. 27.....
Mischief Maker, The (Favorite Film), 2D, Feb. 18.....
Miss Cinderella (Mutual-Strand), 1C, Feb. 19.....
Monkey-Maid-Man (Sparkle-General), 1C.....
Mountain of Devastation, The (Vitagraph), Episode of "Vengeance—and the Woman" Serial, 2D, Feb. 11.....
Mutual Weekly, No. 6, Feb. 4, 1Top Ed..... *1169
Mutual Weekly, No. 7, Feb. 11, 1Top Ed..... *1301
Mutual Weekly, No. 8, Feb. 18, 1Top Ed.....
Mutual Weekly, No. 9, Feb. 25, 1Top Ed.....
Mystery Ship, The (Universal Serial):
The Rescue (Tenth Episode), 2D, Feb. 2.....
The Line of Death (Eleventh Episode), 2D, Feb. 9.....
The Rain of Fire (Twelfth Episode), 2D, Feb. 16.....
The Underground House (Thirteenth Episode), 2D, Feb. 23.....

OLD Reliable (Favorite Film), 2D, Feb. 25.....
On the Love Line (Sparkle-Geenral), 1C.....
One Night Stand, A (Pathe-Rolin, 2C, Feb. 24.....
Our Little Nell (Essanay-General), 1C.....
Out and In (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Out West (Paramount), 2C, Dec. 20..... 887

PEARLS and Girls (Universal-L-Ko), 2C, Feb. 13.....
Picturesque Brittany and Bonnets of Brittany (Pathe), Ed., Feb. 3.....
Pirates, The (Favorite Film), 2C, Feb. 11.....
Policy and Pie (Pathe), Katzenjammer Cart., and "For Dessert" (International), Ed., Split reel, Feb. 3.....
Preacher's Son, The (Judge Brown-General), 2CD.....
Price of Folly, The (Pathe Serial):
The Catspaw (Third Episode), 2D, Feb. 3..... 1033
The Sin of Innocence (Fourth Episode), 2D, Feb. 10..... 1182
Sold for Gold (Fifth Episode), 2D, Feb. 17.....
In Poverty's Power (Sixth Episode), 2D, Feb. 24.....

RAIN of Fire, The (Universal), Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial, 2D, Feb. 16.....
Red Ace, The (Universal Serial):
Virginia's Triumph (Final Episode), 2D, Feb. 2.....
Rescue, The (Universal), Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial, 2D, Feb. 2.....
Rocamadour, and the Valley of Lot, France (Pathe), (Trav.), and "The Horse in Action" (Ed.), Split reel, Feb. 10..... *1301
Rogue, The (King Bee), 2C, Feb. 15..... 1470
Romance of Rails and Power, A (Essanay-General), 1Sc.....
Rooms and Rumors (Vitagraph-Big V), 1C, Feb. 25.....
Round-Up, The (Paramount), Episode of "Who is Number One?" Serial, 2D, Feb. 4.....

SACRIFICE of Kathleen, The (Favorite Film), 2D, Feb. 11.....
Safe Disaster, A (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 3.....
Schools and Schools (O. Henry-General), 2D.....
Sea Serpent's Desire, A (Triangle-Keystone), 2C, Feb. 3.....
Sheriff Nell's Tussle (Paramount), 2C, Feb. 10.....
Sherman Was Right (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Ship, Oy! Oy! (Universal-Nestor), 1C, Feb. 18.....
Sin of Innocence, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Price of Folly" Serial, 2D, Feb. 10..... 1182
Smashing the Plot (Sparkle-General), 1C.....
Sold for Gold (Pathe), Episode of "The Price of Folly" Serial, 2D, Feb. 17..... 1470
Somebody's Widow (Mutual-Strand), 1C, Jan. 29..... 1035
Sonny Jim in Search of A Mother (Favorite Film), 1C, Feb. 18.....
Stealing a Sweetheart (Three C-General), 1C.....
Stenographer Troubles (Favorite Film), 1C, Feb. 25.....
Surprising Husband (Vitagraph), 1C, Feb. 4.....
Sweets to the Sour (Vitagraph), 1C, Feb. 18.....

TAD'S Swimming Hole (Judge Brown-General), 2CD.....
Telephones and Troubles (Vitagraph-Big V), 1C, Feb. 4.....
Tell Tale Shirt, A (Triangle-Keystone), 2C, Feb. 24.....
Their Godson (Vitagraph), 1C, Feb. 25.....
Their Model Careers (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Their Undercover Capers (Triangle), 1C, Feb. 17.....
Thief or Angel (Judge Brown-General), 2CD.....
Thing's the Play, The (O. Henry-Broadway), 2CD.....1184 (1146)
Three Times and Out (Mutual-Strand), 1C, Feb. 12..... 1182
Tramp, The (Chaplin-General), 2C.....
Trapped by Treachery (Pathe), Episode of "The Hidden Hand" Serial, 2D, Feb. 3..... 1034

UNDERGROUND House, The (Universal), Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial, 2D, Feb. 23.....
Universal Animated Weekly, No. 10 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 6..... *1169
Universal Animated Weekly, No. 11 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 13..... *1301
Universal Animated Weekly, No. 12 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 20.....
Universal Animated Weekly, No. 13 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 27.....
Universal Current Events, No. 39 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 2.....
Universal Current Events, No. 40 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 9..... *1301
Universal Current Events, No. 41 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 16.....
Universal Current Events, No. 42 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 23.....
Universal Screen Magazine, No. 6 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 2..... *1169
Universal Screen Magazine, No. 7 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 9.....
Universal Screen Magazine, No. 8 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 16.....
Universal Screen Magazine, No. 9 (Universal), 1Top, Feb. 23.....
Unmasking, The (Pathe), Episode of "The Hidden Hand" Serial, 2D, Feb. 24.....
Up in the Air (Mutual-Strand), 1C, Feb. 26.....

VENGEANCE—and the Woman (Vitagraph Serial):
The Wolf Trap (Seventh Episode), 2D, Feb. 4.....
The Mountain of Devastation (Eighth Episode), 2D, Feb. 11.....
Buried Alive (Ninth Episode), 2D, Feb. 18.....
The Leap for Life (Tenth Episode), 2D, Feb. 25.....
Virginia's Triumph (Universal), Episode of "The Red Ace" serial, 2D, Feb. 2.....

WATCH Your Noighbor (Paramount), 2C, Feb. 3.....1182 (1146)
Watching the Flowers Bloom (Col.), Educ., and "Along the Riviera, Italy," Trav. (Pathe), Split reel, Feb. 17..... *1018
What Will Happen Next (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Which Was Lucky? (Jaxon-General), 1C.....
Wild Algy of Piccadilly (Essanay-General), 1C.....
Wings of a Moth, The (Favorite Film), 1D, Feb. 4.....
Wolf Trap, The (Vitagraph), Episode of "Vengeance—and the Woman" Serial, 2D, Feb. 4.....
Woman, A (Chaplin-General), 2C.....
Wronged by Mistake (Triangle-Keystone), 2C, Feb. 10.....

Things Here and There

E. T. Garrish, sales manager of the Famous Players Film Service in Cleveland, was taken suddenly ill recently, and was removed to the hospital. An operation was predicted.

Manager Wessling, of Pathe's Cincinnati branch, is confident of big success for Pathe during 1918, and declares the company can count on the Cincinnati office to do its bit.

William Steiner, of Jester Comedy Company, is still on the go, with the first two Jester Comedies [illegible]. When last heard from he was up [illegible] and flowers. Lucky Bill!

[illegible] of the Paramount-Artcraft sales force in Cleveland, tumbled on the ice recently [illegible] "out of the running" several days.

H. E. Friedman, who recently resigned as Denver manager of Pathe, has been succeeded by C. G. Epperson.

J. E. Scott, formerly with the Denver Paramount and Triangle offices, and recently with Mutual as road man, has joined the staff of Manager Epperson.

Every exchange in Omaha, Neb., has MOTION PICTURE NEWS calendar prominently displayed. "It is one of the handiest things we ever had about the exchange," said Manager L. A. Getzler at the Vitagraph. "We can look as far ahead as we want to when discussing bookings with an exhibitor; we can note the holidays—oh, it helps us a lot. It was a splendid idea."

The Laemmle Film Service, including the Universal, Bluebird, Butterfly, and Jewel exchanges, moved Monday, January 28, from Twelfth and Farnam streets, Omaha, Neb., to the big Maeor Building, at 1304 Farnam street. "Big business made us move," said J. H. "Curley" Calvert, manager. A report that the Universal exchange at Des Moines, Ia., will be discontinued and the business handled from Omaha could not be confirmed. Such a step is expected, however. Recently a number of Des Moines exchanges have been closed and the business transferred to Omaha.

J. Milo of the Palace theatre, Des Moines, Ia., has sued the Standard exchange at Omaha, claiming he had an option and a contract on Billy West and Hart pictures. Jules Rachman, manager of the Standard in Omaha, announces he has booked the West and Harts at the Royal, Casino, Unique and Family theatres, all in the same block, in downtown Des Moines, while the suit is pending.

Manager Herman has resigned at the Mutual exchange in Omaha, Neb., and his place is taken by R. S. Ballantyne, for years with the Mutual in the middle west and formerly manager at the exchange in Des Moines. The Des Moines exchange has been closed and the business transferred to Omaha.

Hugh Rennie, of the U. S. Booking Corporation in Denver, has reported a good business on his first visit to New Mexico exhibitors.

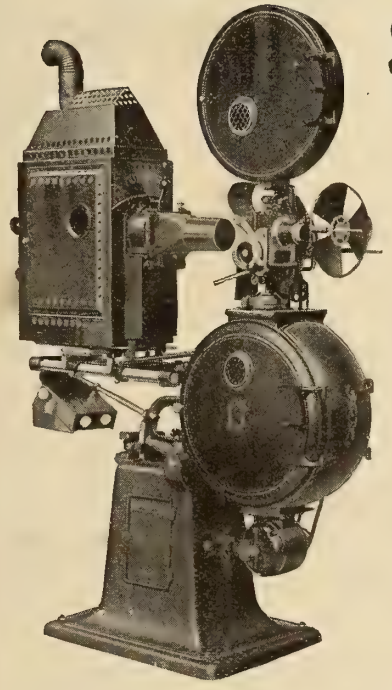
A. S. Bailey, formerly with Triangle in the Denver territory, has joined the Foursquare sales force, and is now covering Wyoming.

General Film is now located at 1533 Welton street, Denver, and is getting comfortably settled.

Manager J. H. Norwood, of the Cleveland Kleine-Edison Exchange, is said to be getting inquiries from all over the state for the forthcoming James Montgomery Flagg series, "Girls You Know."

R. J. Churchill and A. F. Bergen, of Fox offices in Denver, have been in Salt Lake City on a business trip.

Earl King, former sales man for Victor Film Service in Cleveland, has resigned. He is quitting the picture industry, it is said.



Accessory News

– SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS –

MOTIOGRAPH DE LUXE

Complete—Ready for Installation

$375.00

There are special features on lamp house, mechanism, pedestal, in fact, every part of machine has been specially adapted to guarantee perfect projection with small upkeep cost.

Write for the De Luxe catalogue.

Motiograph Non-Friction Non-slip Speed Control. Will not slip when under heavy load or exposed to oil.

Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Co.
564-572 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Illinois

WESTERN OFFICE
833 Market Street San Francisco, California

It's Up to You Mr. Manager!

¶ We are bending every energy and our every resource to give your musicians and operator the best of expert service in our Music and Projection Departments.

¶ So it's up to you!

¶ Call the attention of your staff to these departments. If necessary, let them read your copy of the NEWS. Then we will all be pulling together for—

Better Pictures
Better Projection
Better Accompaniment

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

Operators' Licenses

I WAS asked the other day what I believed should be required of an individual before being allowed to operate a projection machine as a licensed operator.

This is rather a difficult question to answer as there are so many details and conditions which enter in, that a hurried survey would never cover them all. We might start by saying that every auditorium must be made absolutely safe for the audience and then proceed to some, at least, of the details.

I. We all know that the obtaining of a license, which is a municipal or state requirement, is in many instances a mere form. To be sure a man must have more or less knowledge, yet, unfortunately, political pull is apt to play altogether too large a part. There is no reason why these examinations should not be held at regular intervals and on the same general basis as civil service examinations—where a man passes or not depending upon actual knowledge and not on bluff or friendship. There is too much at stake for the slip-shod method to even be considered. It should not be a matter of how many votes a man can deliver at the next election but whether he is a safe man to whom to intrust human lives. The answer from any license bureau will be that this is the case at present. If it is we have nothing to say, but if it is not and the hat fits, put it on, pull it way down over the ears, and act accordingly. Issue licenses on merit to men who actually have the knowledge.

II. We have so-called operators' schools where the only object is to give any one who can pay the fee a lick and a promise, but no real knowledge. The candidate goes up for an examination, after the advertised six lessons, frequently gets his license, after which he is a full fledged licensed operator, ready to take any job. He has human life in the hollow of his hand, and yet he is no more capable of holding a position of responsibility in a theatre projection room than the stoker on a ferry boat would be; perhaps less. I have heard stories which may or may not be true, where men with the right influence have applied and obtained a license without even having seen a projection machine or knowing the difference between an ampere and a left handed monkey wrench. These men did not even attend one of our operators' finishing schools, yet they were ready to compete with men capable of holding the responsible position for which they were absolutely unfit.

III. We have certain laws, differing according to states, but yet, all aimed to protect the public. Any one of them may be used for the sake of illustration. For argument, we will take the one forbidding the operator to smoke in the projection room. Before he becomes an operator he knows that this law exists and if he does not wish to obey it he may follow some other line of work where it does not apply. If he is going to be an operator he MUST obey the LAWS which are enacted for public safety and not to cut down the income of the American Tobacco Company or deprive the operator of any pleasure. This is not a question of license—it is a question of self-government and here is where operators' organizations can be a power by absolutely enforcing the law. When a member fails to obey the law he should be dropped immediately from membership, without an appeal. He should also be reported to the authorities and lose his license. It is not a joke; it is a serious consideration—laws are laws and no operator should be allowed to get a license anywhere before he can pass an examination on the laws governing projection booths, film, etc., in the particular city and state where he intends working, as well as the fundamentals of operating and electricity, so that ignorance of the law will be no excuse.

It is because the organizations do not govern their members as they should and because individuals are not men enough to obey the laws that the Society of Motion Picture Engineers are today discussing the Open Booth in which the operator cannot disobey the law without being caught and punished. It will then not be the fire inspector, who is naturally good natured, who will do the reporting, but the public, who will refuse to attend a theatre where things are not run as they should be and also the owner or manager of the house whose patronage is being killed as a result of lawlessness. Then, too, patronage will be increased if the people know the theatre is safe and they can prove it by seeing the operator at work.

IV. Today projection machines have been developed so that they are not being greatly improved upon as far as their mechanical features are concerned. The projector mechanism is comparatively delicate. It can not be kept in order by any Tom, Dick or Harry who may have learned enough to get a license, but who has not made a study of the mechanism. It takes time to learn all the many things which can happen. No man is capable without considerable apprenticeship of stepping into a booth and running one of these carefully built, well adjusted, sensitive mechanisms. A man must know all about the machine he is to operate—what to oil, when to oil, when to adjust, how to adjust, and many other details. He must be man enough so that the theatre owner can actually trust him to run the machines and get the most out of them. He must be sufficiently capable so that when he says the head must be sent to the Service Station for an overhauling the manager can depend upon it that he is being given the proper advice. In other words, the operator must be a mechanic of a high order as well as sufficient of an electrician to know the fundamental principles of electricity so that he can at least temporarily make adjustments and repairs.

V. Many of the troubles which beset the operators particularly in the larger cities, are traceable to the operators' Union and other local organizations. The pros and cons as to the advantages of these organizations are not under consideration—the only question is whether these organizations are strict enough with their members. When a man is not doing what is right he should be fired out without a question or appeal. He should have his membership

(Continued on page 1496)

Equipment Operating Projection Questions Answered

Speed Indicators Again

Mr. Glenn Woodbury, Pomeroy, Iowa, writes: "Just a few words about those speed indicators that are causing so much talk.

"What good are they in a theatre?

"The operator can tell the speed at which his machine is running by looking at the crank shaft. He knows the number of reels in the production, so he can figure the time of his shows. He can set his speed at sixty or sixty-five [crank] revolutions per minute and does not have to rely upon a speed indicator to tell him how fast he is running. The only case I know of where it would have been of value was in projecting 'The Birth of a Nation,' where the music and the picture had to synchronize at all times. But why are they of any value in projecting the modern photoplay? The shows must start on time no matter how bad the action is upset, which leads me to remark about the way in which a certain picture, 'The Crisis,' was butchered in Des Moines. This production is in eight full reels and this was run off at the rate of one hour and forty-five minutes to the show. Verily the art of good projection is losing out for the sake of time.

"After reading Mr. J. H. Anderson's description of his operating-room [NEWS of February 16, p. 1046)], I took a little trip to Fort Dodge to see what kind of a place he has. I found out. His operating-room is the best I've ever been in, and I've seen a few of them. Everything was neat and clean, and his machines are just like new, although they have been in use for over a year. Mr. Anderson is working on a new type of D. C. shutter, which he claims will entirely eliminate all flicker at any speed.

"The picture I saw projected [at Fort Dodge] was 'The Crisis,' but oh what a difference between Mr. Anderson's projection and that at Des Moines. His time was two hours and ten minutes to a show, but whoever had previously had his print surely did not belong to the N. A. M. L., because in part 2 there were punch marks in the center of the reel.

"In the reading-room at the Strand, Fort Dodge, you find all sorts of books on projection and things electrical, also copies of the trade journals for nearly three years back.

"Well, I've got my opinion of speed indicators, and of Mr. Anderson's projection equipment, off my mind, so now let's hear from others about those indicators.

Comment: As we remarked in commenting upon the earlier letter on speed indicators, from Mr. J. H. Anderson, of Fort Dodge, we really believe that if our correspondents had the opportunity of examining and testing out a good speed indicator they would appraise it as one of the most valuable items of their equipment. This particularly applies to correspondents such as Mr. Anderson and Mr. Woodbury, whom we know take pride in rendering their pictures correctly.

We feel that Mr. Woodbury takes an unprogressive angle from which to view the matter when he states that the operator can figure the time of his shows, set his speed at so many crank revolutions per minute and then not need to depend upon a speed indicator at all. Viewing the matter the other way around, it appears that an operator who is provided with a good speed indicator does not have to figure the time of his shows; the indicator tells him this and other things besides, but without some extremely sensitive and accurate form of speed indicator how does the operator know that his machine is running at 60 or 65 or any other specified number of crank revolutions per minute. To determine this with exactitude requires a very exact indicator or measuring device, and it might interest our various correspondents on the subject of speed indicators to learn that an operator cannot crank sixty feet of film through a projector and maintain a constant speed, and that most motor driven machines will also show a fluctuation in operating speed at any given position of the speed regulator. The customary tachometer, or speed indicator, will not, perhaps, reveal these fluctuations, but our remarks are based on the study of the Robin Cinema Time and Speed Indicator, which is used in New York's largest photoplay houses, but which has probably not become generally known in the West. Like many other innovations in projection apparatus the Robin Indicator will provide much hitherto unsuspected information to any operator who uses one for the first time.

There is no doubt whatever that a good speed indicator is a requisite article of operating-room equipment, in the case of theatres where the performances are regulated with nicety, and we can assure our correspondents that they have before them the pleasure of trying out a good speed indicator, after which we know that they will endorse our remarks.

It is interesting to note that our present correspondent was prompted by a recent communication in our columns to go and see for himself the equipment of a fellow operator in a nearby city. We like to see and hear of operators getting together and comparing notes, as Mr. Woodbury has done, and it appears from his letter that the trip was of value to him because, as he writes, he saw the finest operating-room he had ever entered, and this also confirms the claims made by Mr. Anderson of Fort Dodge, who is the proud possessor of this fine operating-room.

We trust that Mr. Anderson will favor our readers in due course with a description of the flickerless D. C. shutter he is working on. Although our correspondent (Mr. Woodbury) states that the proposed shutter is designed to "eliminate all flicker at any speed," we think that this is a rather large order, and another item which must be taken into consideration in the elimination of flicker is the screen illumination, or brightness of the projected picture. However, we will await Mr. Anderson's description of his improved shutter with interest.

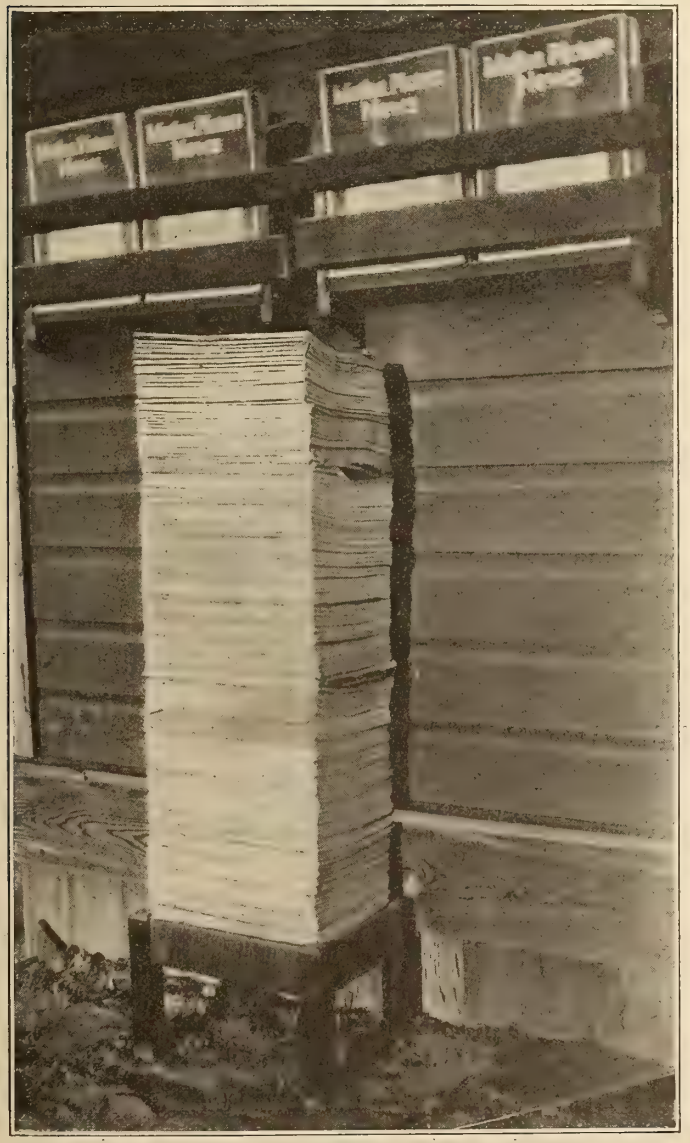
Sheck Adapter Going Strong

MOTION picture projection with Mazda lamps is being given a tryout by numerous theatres throughout the country, according to reports which are constantly coming to hand, and we learn from the Argus Lamp and Appliance Company, of Cleveland, O., who were one of the earliest in the field with the Sheck adapter, that they have made numerous installations of this device in representative theatres.

The Sheck Adapter

The Sheck Universal adapter, shown in the illustration, is designed to enable Mazda projection to be accomplished with any carbon arc projecting machine now on the market.

The adapter is a complete lamp-house in itself, and will replace the lamp-house of any carbon-arc machine so that any type of Mazda projector lamp may be properly focussed for successfully projecting motion pictures, within the limitations of the different types of Mazda projector lamps.



At the present time the Sheck adapter is made in three models; model A, which employs a 600 watt lamp; model B which uses a 750 watt lamp, and model C using a 1.200 watt lamp.

In theatres where alternating current is used at the projector arc, the Argus Company claims that comparable results may be secured at less cost by the use of their equipment on throws of less than 100 feet, and when the picture does not exceed fourteen feet in width. They also state that for throws up to ninety feet their lamp will yield results comparable to those secured with a 35 ampere D. C. arc.

For Future Reference

FROM Mr. Jesse Geuler of Kellogg, Idaho, a member of the National Anti-Misframe League, comes the accompanying photo of his file of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS from 1914 to date.

Mr. Geuler, who finds the NEWS an indispensable chronicle of trade conditions, as well as an epitome of technical progress in cinematography says:

Three Years of the Motion Picture News

"I not only preserve the Projection Department, but also the entire magazine. I have practically every copy from the time I entered my subscription in 1914."

The illustration eloquently shows the pretentiousness of the industry's leading trade journal, and the task of compiling the contents of Mr. Geuler's stack of copies can well be imagined. It is surprising how valuable such a file of journals can become, as is proven by delving through back volumes and noting the interesting and valuable, although long forgotten, articles and illustrations which are to be found.

At the office of MOTION PICTURE NEWS is a file of this journal and its predecessors which extends back to the earliest days of the industry in this country, and it is needless to state that that set of volumes is esteemed above price by the proprietors of the NEWS.

Wants More Light

John A. Stephens, Martinsville, Va., writes: "My picture seems to have a little flicker in it. Now I may be mistaken as to what flicker is, but what I mean is this. If you close one eye and look at the [projected] picture you will see that the shutter or something doesn't work exactly right and there is a kind of jump or a black space in it. I wish you would please advise me how to remedy this matter.

"Then again, I can't get what you might call a real good light on the picture. If I move my arc away from the condensers it gives a blue circle on the screen, and if I move it up to the condensers there will be a blue streak in the picture.

"Also, can I make a coil, or have a coil made, so as to get more 'juice'? I saw where some other operator was asking you the same question not long ago, but I never did see an answer to his question. I wish you would please inform me; a diagram would be best, showing just how to go about making one and putting it up. If you will answer all my questions I will certainly be obliged."

In Reply: Although we start under the handicap of insufficient, or, we should say, a total lack of, the necessary information concerning the correspondent's equipment, we shall endeavor to unravel the causes of his troubles, which do not seem very formidable on the surface.

If, as is stated by the correspondent, he perceives dark intervals or interruptions, in the screen illumination when his projector is running, he can be sure that what he perceives is the flicker (properly so called) caused by the action of the revolving shutter in periodically interrupting the light beam. We are led to believe that the correspondent uses A. C. current, and in this event his machine is probably equipped with a two-wing shutter. Flicker becomes readily apparent when a machine equipped with a two-wing shutter is operated at too low a speed, and even a three-wing shutter will show pronounced flickering if the projecting speed falls below the normal rate. Again, if a three-wing shutter is used, and the arc current is 60 cycle A. C., a very severe stroboscopic beating will be noticed at most projecting speeds—caused by the shutter impulses getting into step with one side of the A. C. wave. Remedies are: a higher projecting speed if the shutter is a two-wing, and the installation of a two-wing shutter if the one in use is a three-wing. This assumes that the correspondent uses A. C. If D. C. and a three-wing shutter are used the remedy is to increase the projecting speed. If a two-wing shutter is being used with D. C., the same could be changed for a three-wing with favorable results.

Our reason for assuming that the correspondent uses A. C. is found in his description of his screen illumination. When the arc is too far removed from the condensers a circular blue screen ghost will result, as the correspondent has discovered for himself, but if a blue streak is observed in the field of projected light, when the arc is advanced toward the condensers, then the appearance noted is that which frequently results when one tries to use the light from both of the incandescent carbon tips of the A. C. arc. If alterations in the distance of lamp and condensers fail to remove this blue streak, the only remedy seems to be that which we recently recommend to another correspondent, i. e., throwing one of the bright carbon tips out of focus by altering the angle of the trim. This end is achieved by slightly advancing the lower carbon, as in the case of the D. C. trim, but as the light from the upper carbon tip alone is then utilized in projecting the picture, an increase in amperage may be required.

With regard to the preparation of a coil which would give more "juice," our present correspondent is not quite correct in his statement that we did not supply the answer to a similar question which was previously propounded. If the correspondent will refer again to the NEWS of February 2, page 749, he will note that the previous

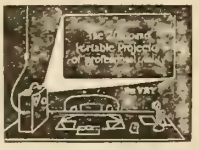
Have You a Friend in the Service?

Buy him a pair of our

6x30 Military Stereo

Binoculars

Made according to approved military design. Russet cowhide case, with neck swing and shoulder strap. A gift that will be greatly appreciated.



Write for prices.

Dealers' discounts quoted on application

CROWN OPTICAL COMPANY
ROCHESTER, N.Y.

Previewing or Screening Film

at your convenience with

THE DE VRY PORTABLE M. P. PROJECTOR

Operates at the touch of a button

Motor Drive

Size 17" x 17" x 7" over all
Weighs but Twenty Pounds
Takes Standard Size Reels and Film

Used by—Majestic Theatre, Detroit; Schade Theatre, Sandusky; Empire Theatre, Detroit, and many film manufacturers and exchanges.

THE DE VRY CORPORATION, 117 North Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Corner Unit Hinged Frames

Accompanying cut shows our new style unit frame for corners of theatre lobbies. Especially designed to fit irregular shaped columns and sloping entrances. Neat, attractive and complete, it enables the passer-by to see at a glance the entire program.

Send sketch for prices and ask for new 1918 catalog.

The Newman Mfg. Co.
Established 1882

Write for our Latest Catalogue

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois

Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone Films, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

inquirer mentioned the make of his equipment, and we supplied him instructions based upon the data submitted.

Our attitude with regard to the ability of the average operator to calculate and wind reactances or transformers has undergone no change, however, since our earlier remarks. We cannot set forth instructions for the preparation of such devices because we know that the attempts of most operators along this line would result in failure, and it has also to be pointed out that for an equivalent expenditure any operator, or exhibitor, can procure a ready made economizer or generator of any desired capacity, and of known and guaranteed performance. An inspection of the letters of both correspondents who desire to make their own transformers would seem to indicate that neither of them is equipped with the necessary knowledge of electricity to achieve success in the undertaking.

Alaska Operator Praises N. A. M. L.

Mr. Roy C. Shelton, Nome, Alaska, writes: "Have been reading about the Anti-Misframe League and can heartily recommend any paper that has the push behind it to lend such assistance not only to the operator but to the exhibitor and exchange as well. I have been in the business for the past twelve years and can say the League is the best thing that has come to the film torn front. I have always tried to do my duty as an operator by removing all the evils as much as possible.

"I have worked along the coast from California to the land of the midnight sun, in houses from the smallest to the largest, but have almost always found these evils existing. Most of the first run films come from the exchanges here with the tail end punch marks. The house I am now in is far to the north, and we receive from two hundred to one thousand reels at a shipment, so you know our service is in some shape as it is most all junk. None of our film is under two years old. But of all the junk Triangle is the worst. I always have to thoroughly inspect every show before I attempt to run it. We change every day.

"You may add my name to the League as I would do anything to help my brother operators. I hold both a stage hand and an operator's union card and have for years. I am enclosing a sample of a report system I have gotten up and have been using for over a year and have found co-operation with most of the exchange managers. Yours for success with the Anti-Misframe League."

Comment: Mr. Shelton has certainly taken modern ideas to Alaska, as his specimen report sheets show. The blank form of Mr. Shelton's operator's report is headed "Department of Projection," and when one of these reports is properly filled out it conveys a very complete description of the quality, the history and the condition of the reel of film which it accompanies. Unfortunately, the limits of space prevent us from publishing the form in fac-simile at the present time, but we believe that by submitting carefully gotten up reports of this character to film exchange executives, co-operation could be obtained by all operators and exhibitors, as it has been by Mr. Shelton.

Independent Movie Supply Co. Reports Good Business

THE Independent Movie Supply Co., 729 Seventh avenue, New York, have enlarged their quarters to double capacity. The concern, a comparatively new organization, have in the past ten months progressed to such an extent that it became necessary to enlarge their quarters for the third time during this period, and they now have offices and demonstration rooms which are second to none in New York City.

They have placed on the market a screen, called the Imsco screen, which has a silver finish. Several of these screens have been installed throughout the country, and some recent installations in New York and suburbs are: Plaza theatre, Fifty-ninth street and Madison avenue, New York; Home theatre, New York; Keystone and Cortland theatres, Jersey City, N. J.; Hippodrome theatre, Bridgeport, Conn.; New Bristol theatre, Bristol, Conn., and Lafayette theatre, Newport, R. I. Army cantonments in this country and abroad have been supplied with over 400 of these screens.

Mr. Rabell, the president and general manager, when interviewed, stated that due to the volume of his concern's business the shipping department and other departments are working in two shifts, and he expects this year to surpass by far, the ten months' previous business.

National Anti-Misframe League
Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

Roy C. Shelton.....Nome, Alaska
Paul Martin.....Austin, Texas.
Robert H. Morton.....Douglas, Wyo.
Francis J. Brooks.....Monticello, Ill.
York McClary.....East Newton, Ia.
Gomer Nichols.....Muncie, Ind.
Henry H. Cole.....Endicott, N. Y.
H. A. Eder.....Bayonne, N. J.
F. Greenhill.....Durham, N. C.

Members Previously Recorded.....758
Members Recorded This Week..... 9

Total Membership to Date.....767

Operators' Inquiries

J. A. CHEEK, Mattoon, Ill. "I read in the News of February 9th (this column) that G. W. Bossard of Rochester, N. Y., wanted to know of something with which to clean a projector after it had been through a fire. I have had trouble of this sort and have found denatured alcohol to be better than anything else I ever tried.

"Could you tell me how to remove the carbon dust that is burned into the condensers without scratching them?"

Reply: Readers who happen to have a film fire will doubtless give denatured alcohol a trial in cleaning their mechanisms.

The black carbon specks which accumulate on the rear condenser surface are thrown against the lens, while in an incandescent state, by the striking of the arc. Many of these carbon particles will be washed away when cleaning the condenser in the usual manner, as, for instance, with alcohol, but some of these carbon particles are found to be fused right into the glass, so that it is out of the question to remove them save by the use of some hard steel tool, which would deface the polished condenser surface worse than does the presence of the carbon particles.

It is the deposition of these carbon particles while in an incandescent state, and the attendant roughening of the lens surface, which renders it necessary to finally discard the rear condenser lens and substitute a fresh lens with a clean and polished surface. This is necessary because where the rear condenser surface is severely roughened, or pitted, a considerable amount of otherwise available light is lost by diffusion or scattering.

W. GARDNER, Cairo, Ill. "Suppose you were using an arc rectifier hooked up to one side of a three wire system and were ordered to attach to the two outside wires. How is the rectifier changed to meet this requirement?"

Reply: Both the General Electric and the Westinghouse mercury arc rectifiers are capable of being operated on either 110 volt or 220 volt circuits. The change is easily made through alteration in the position of movable copper links, which alter the passage of the current supply within the rectifier. The exact manner in which these connector links are manipulated cannot well be shown without the aid of a photo or diagram, but the operation is simple and the makers of mercury arc rectifiers would be pleased to send a catalog giving full instructions, or if a rectifier is purchased suitable operating instructions will accompany the outfit.

M. H. CAPELMAN, Philadelphia, Pa. "What is the difference between a series and a compound motor?"

Reply: The easiest way to answer this question is to consider three types of motors, viz., series, shunt and compound wound motors. In a series motor the field magnets, or fields, are in series with the armature; in a shunt motor the fields are connected across the brushes; while a compound motor is a combination of a series and a shunt winding working in unison. By consulting any elementary work on physics, or on electricity diagrams will be noted which show very clearly the difference in the connections for the simplest types of motors or dynamos.

PROJECTION THAT PROJECTS

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS
for A.C. Work

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS
for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY

SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

GUARANTEED REBUILT MOVING PICTURE MACHINES

We have on hand all makes of rebuilt machines which we GUARANTEE to be in A1 ADJUSTMENT, all worn parts having been replaced by NEW PARTS.

Simplex complete with lenses and Rheostat, Hand Drive..$125.00
Simplex complete with lenses and Rheostat, Motor Drive.. 160.00
Powers 6A complete with lenses and Rheostat, Hand Drive 75.00
Powers 6A complete with lenses and Rheostat, Motor Drive 110.00
Powers 6 complete with lenses and Rheostat..... 75.00
Motio, 1908, complete with lenses and Rheostat..... 25.00
Motio, 1909, complete with lenses and Rheostat..... 30.00
Edison Exhibition Model, complete with lenses and Rheostat 25.00
Standard, 1915 Model, complete with lenses and Rheostat. 50.00
Ft. Wayne A.C. to D.C. Generator, used 3 weeks, 110 volt, 60 cyc., 1 phase..... 200.00

All order subject to prior sale
Write today for Particulars and Catalog

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY CO.
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade
300-302 Mallers Bldg., 5 S. Wabash Avenue Chicago, Illinois
Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Pictures Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

STOP LOOK

Before you lay this aside write to us at once and ask us to send you a descriptive catalog of our Motor Equipment for Power's 6A that will save you from $28.00 to $31.00.

We guarantee the efficiency of our Motor Equipments. We have Genuine Power parts, and we are Exclusive Distributors for the Peerless Simplex Projectors and all supplies.

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine Street PHILADELPHIA, PA.

The Camera

Chapters on Photographic Optics—IV

(Continued from issue of Feb. 9th)

ALTHOUGH a knowledge of how to determine the principal points of a single lens comes first, of necessity, in the study of this subject, the photographer and optical projectionist has, nowadays, to deal mostly with compound lenses, so in taking up next the method of determining the positions of the principal points of compound lenses we touch upon matters of considerable importance to the user of such instruments.

If we know the positions of the principal points and the focal points of any two separate lenses, then, when these two lenses are placed at any given distance apart the positions of the principal points and the focal points of the combination can be readily found. (The method of determining the principal points and the focal points of single lenses was explained in the previous installment of this chapter.—Ed.) The geometrical construction for locating the principal points of a two-lens combination is very simple, and is shown in Fig. 1.

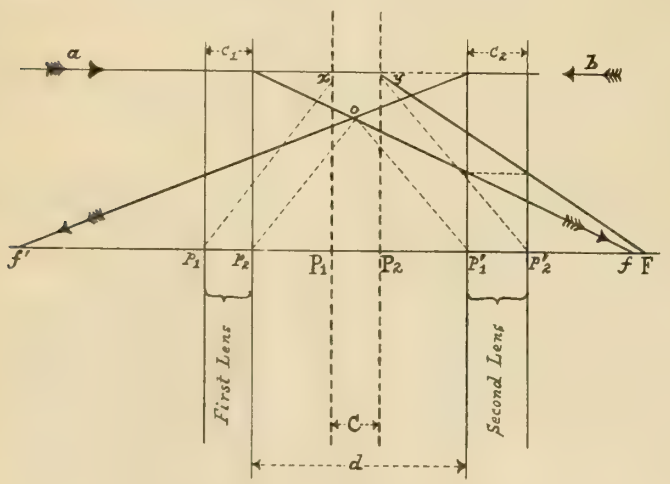

Fig. 1.

In Fig. 1, the principal points of the first lens are designated by p_1 and p_2, while f is its principal focus for light passing from left to right. The principal points of the second lens are designated p'_1 and p'_2 and f' represents the principal focus of the second lens for light passing from right to left. We require to find the positions of the principal points and the principal focus of the combination, which we proceed to do graphically as follows, referring to Fig. 1.

We first consider any ray path, for instance, $a\ b$ which is parallel to the axis. A parallel ray from a will, after passing through the principal planes (corresponding to the principal points) of the first lens, be directed toward the point f on the axis of the system. In similar fashion, a parallel ray travelling in the opposite direction from b, after passing through the principal planes of the second lens will be directed toward the point f', also on the axis. The paths of the incident rays from a and b, after refraction by the first and second lenses, respectively, will cross one another at o.

We therefore join $o\ p_2$ and $o\ p'_1$; then draw $p_1\ x$ parallel to $o\ p_2$; and draw $p'_2\ y$ parallel to $o\ p'_1$. The planes P_1 and P_2, drawn perpendicular to the axis through the points x and y, are the principal planes of the combination. The resultant focus of the combination, designated by F, is found by considering the parallel ray which starts from a and passes through o toward the point f. According to our previous description of the apparent action of the principal points, the ray proceeding toward f will, in traversing the second lens, be shifted forward through a distance equal to that between the principal planes p'_1 and p'_2 and then turned toward the axis as though it came from y.

A little consideration will show that if the two lenses of the combination were close together, the distance P_1P_2 between these principal planes (or principal points) of the combination will be represented by the sum of the distances $p_1\ p_2$ and $p'_1\ p'_2$; while if the two lenses are moved farther apart P_1 and P_2 will come nearer together, and may even pass one another, in which event the principal planes are said to be crossed. If the two lenses are placed at a distance apart equal to the sum of their focal lengths, the principal planes P_1 and P_2 will not only be crossed, but will have separated to an infinite distance apart. In such a case the combination has an infinite focal length and is said to be telescopic. It is apparent also, from the foregoing, that increasing the distance between the lenses of a combination also increases its equivalent focus.

We can now proceed to set forth formulae for calculating the resultant focal length and the resultant distance between the principal points of a combination of two lenses at distance apart, referring still to Fig. 1,

Let $f_1 =$ principal focus of 1st lens.
Let $f_2 =$ principal focus of 2nd lens.
Let $d =$ distance between the adjacent planes of the two lenses.
Let $c_1 =$ distance between principal points of first lens.
Let $c_2 =$ distance between principal points of second lens.

Then, the resultant focal length, F, of the combination is given by $$F = \frac{f_1 \times f_2}{f_1 + f_2 - d}$$ and the resultant distance, C, between the principal points of the combination is given by

$$C = c_1 + c_2 - \frac{d^2 \times F}{f_1 \times f_2}$$

while the distances of the principal planes, P_1 and P_2, of the combination from the outer principal planes, p_1 and p'_2, of the component lenses are represented, respectively, by

$$\frac{Fd}{f_2} \text{ and } \frac{Fd}{f_1}$$

(Note. These formulae are applicable to any combination of two lenses, but it must be remembered that dispersing lenses have negative focal lengths, and that distances with negative focal lengths must, therefore, be reckoned outwards.)

From the foregoing formulae it follows that the resultant focal length of a combination of two positive lenses, when separated by an interval, is always greater than the reciprocal of the sum of their reciprocals, and that this resultant focal length increases with increasing separation of the lenses. The resultant distance between the principal points of the combination decreases from the value $c_1 + c_2$ down to zero, and then increases negatively, becoming infinite when $d = f_1 + f_2$, and again becoming finite when d exceeds that value. When the distance between the principal points (or planes) of a combination of two lenses is greater than the sum of their focal lengths, another quantity is introduced into the calculations. This is the distance between the rear focal-plane of the first lens and the front focal-plane of the second lens, which was termed by Abbe[1] the "optical interval" and is designated by the Greek letter Δ.

(Note. If the optical combination be not achromatic, the positions of both the principal planes and the principal foci will, in general, be different for light of different colors.)

Mention must be made of still another pair of points (or planes) having special properties which should be noted. These points are situated on the axis (the corresponding planes being, of course, perpendicular to the axis) on either side of a single or compound positive lens, at distances equal to twice the respective principal foci, and are conjugate to one another. They were termed by the late Professor S. P. Thompson the "symmetric points" (or planes), a designation which we think should be perpetuated in optical terminology. These symmetric planes possess the useful property that any object situated in one of them has its image, inverted but of exactly the same size, reproduced in the other, i. e., the symmetric planes are planes of unit magnification.

[1] "Das Mikroskop," by L. Dippel, Bd. I, 2nd Edition, Braunschweig, 1882. Although not written by Abbe, this work contained the first authorized account of his theories on geometrical optics.

As the determination of the positions of the principal points of a compound lens, such, for instance, as a photographic or a projection objective, by the use of mathematical formulae may not appeal very strongly to some readers, we proceed to describe a device wherewith the positions of the principal points and the principal foci of a lens may be exactly determined by experiment.

The device in question is termed a "nodal slide" and photographers have to thank Dr. Reginald S. Clay[2] for bringing it into popular one. This handy piece of apparatus, which is made of wood and can be easily constructed by anyone, is shown in Fig. 2. As Fig. 2 shows, the nodal slide consists of a cradle into which the lens is laid, and in the centre of the base-board, as near as possible in line with the axis of the lens, is a row of holes into which a round peg may be slipped. The device is placed on another board (not shown in Fig. 2) containing a corresponding series of holes.

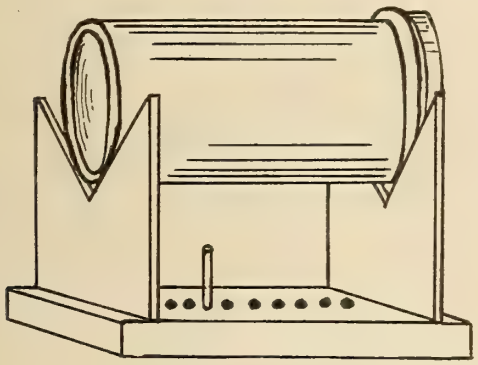

Fig. 2.

The manner in which the positions of the principal points and the principal foci of a compound lens are determined with the device is as follows: An opaque screen containing a pin-hole is placed at some distance in front of the lens, and behind the pin-hole in the opaque screen is placed a source of light. This yields a point source, or artificial star, which is focussed upon a white card placed perpendicular to the axis at a suitable distance behind the lens. When the point of light has been sharply focussed, the peg is placed in one of the holes on the base of the cradle, or nodal slide, and the slide (with lens in place) is rotated slightly from side to side. It will generally be found at first that the rotation of the slide causes the focussed point of light to move across its receiving screen, but the peg is shifted from hole to hole, rotating the slide (and lens) at each new position of the peg, until a point is found at which the slide can be rotated sideways to a considerable extent without causing any movement, or change of position, of the point of light focussed upon the screen behind the lens. This follows from the known action of the principal points on a ray of incident light (we previously learned that a ray was apparently transmitted straight across from one principal point to the other and emerged parallel to its direction of incidence) and it is thus apparent that the position of the peg, when rotation of the slide causes no shift in the focussed point, represents the position of the second principal point of the lens (in the case of most objectives, when the front component is toward the incident light). Also, the distance from this principal point to the sharply focussed image of the point of light on the receiving screen represents the principal focus of the lens. By turning the lens around in the slide and repeating the foregoing procedure, the other principal point and the focal length for light traversing the lens in the opposite direction may likewise be ascertained. The location of the principal points may be marked on the lens mount, or barrel,

[2] "Photography," 1901 (London), p. 110 et seq.

The film that first made motion pictures practical is easily identifiable by the words

"EASTMAN"
AND "KODAK"

on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

DONT FORGET IT

Quality DEVELOPING and PRINTING are possible only where experience guides and a high standard of workmanship is maintained.

On each point you will find us competent to serve you in an efficient and reliable manner.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th Street, New York City
Telephone, St. Nicholas 3443

Printing, Developing, Toning, Tinting

Titles
Domestic Foreign

Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc.
345 West 40th Street New York

Better to read fifty advertisements than to miss the one YOU need.

WANTED AT ONCE ONE OR TWO PAIR IMPORTED LENSES

SIZE 3¼ SHORT FOCAL LENS FOR MOTION PICTURE MACHINE.

PLEASE WRITE IMMEDIATELY FULL PARTICULARS AND PRICE.

Address:
SID GRAUMAN,
Care of GRAUMAN'S THEATRE,
BROADWAY at THIRD ST.,
LOS ANGELES, CALIFORNIA.

by a nick made with a file, while the lens is still in the proper position on the slide, and it sometimes proves very handy to have the positions of the principal points so marked. This procedure is known as Clay's method of determining the focal length of a lens, and its practical value is fully equal to its theoretical interest.

An important measurement which is made from the principal points is the distance from the lens at which the image is formed for any given distance of the object, or the distance of the object from the lens for any given distance of the image. These distances are known as conjugate foci, and the manner in which they are calculated is as follows:

Let u represent the distance of an object from the principal point P_1 and let v represent the distance of its image from the second principal point P_2 or, in the case of a single lens, let the distances u and v be measured from the principal points p_1 and p_2. Then, by reasoning which we need not present in detail, the formula for ascertaining the value of the conjugate distances is.

$$\frac{1}{u}+\frac{1}{v}=\frac{1}{f}$$

(NOTE.—This formula is given in the form of reciprocals—a reciprocal being 1 divided by the numerical value of the letter or symbol beneath it.)

As will be apparent after a little consideration, conjugate distances always shift in the same direction along the axis of a lens or lens system, so that the closer we bring an object to the lens the further back of the lens is its image formed. An illustration of this with which all photographers are acquainted is the increased extension required to focus a near object.

If we know the distance of one conjugate point (either the distance of the object or the distance of the image) and the focal length of the lens we can easily find the other conjugate point. Suppose for instance, we know the distance (u) of the object from the lens and we wish to ascertain the distance behind the lens at which the image is formed. We of course assume that the focal length of the lens is known, or has been ascertained by the use of the formula previously given, or by any other suitable formula:

Then

$$\frac{1}{f}-\frac{1}{u}=\frac{1}{v}$$

the distance of the image.

Or if we know the distance of the image (v) and wish to ascertain the distance of the object

$$\frac{1}{f}-\frac{1}{v}=\frac{1}{u}$$

the distance of the object.

We can derive another important measurement from the conjugate distances, u and v, and that is the magnification, or size, of the images for various distances of the object, or in other words, for various focal extensions. The magnification will evidently be represented by the ratio of the image distance v to the object distance u, or expressed as a formula,

$$\frac{v}{u}=\frac{\text{Size of image}}{\text{Size of object}}=\text{M},$$ the magnification factor.

(To be continued)

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO. N 153
80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO Phone, 2003 Randolph
Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.

HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A

WHY HESITATE
to SAVE yourselves MONEY on M. P. Supplies and Accessories.
VISIT the
INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO.
and receive
PERSONAL ATTENTION
Room 603 729 7th Ave., N. Y.

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

300 REELS FOR SALE
2-3-4-5 and 6 Reel Features.
MASTERPIECE FILM ATTRACTIONS,
1225 Vine Street,
Philadelphia, Pa.

PHOTOGRAPHERS and LABORATORY MEN,
Submit your questions to the CAMERA DEPARTMENT.

"WE NEVER DISAPPOINT"
TELEPHONE BRYANT 5576
CROMLOW FILM LABORATORIES
INCORPORATED
220 WEST 42ND STREET
NEW YORK
ALLAN A. LOWNES
GEN. MGR.

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Publications

1—A List of Hits published by Leo Feist:
1—"Darktown Strutter's Ball," Fox Trot.
2—"In the Land of Wedding Bells," Fox Trot by Geo. W. Meyer.
3—"Round Her Neck She Wears a Yeller Ribbon," Fox Trot, by George A. Norton.
4—"Cleopatra Has a Jazz Band," Fox Trot, by Rocca.
5—"Liberty Lads," March, by Lee Orean Smith.
6—"The Rainbow," March, by Louis Maurice.

2—"Fifteen Minutes of Laughter and Tears." A double number in fact and musical intent. Illustrates the two extremes in melodious temperaments. (A) Beautifully defines the plaintive which is the most serious requirement of the Photoplay. Obtainable from J. W. Stern, 102 W. 38th St., New York City.

3—"Told at Twilight," by Huerter. A composition most appropriate for pathetic situations. (Published by the Boston Music Co.)

4—"When a Boy Says Good-Bye to His Mother," by Jack Frost. (Published by Frank K. Root & Co.)

5—"Way Down in Macon, Georgia," by Paul Bese. A composition of standard quality in 2/4 time. (Published by the Frank K. Root Music Co.)

6—"Just as Your Mother Was," by Harry von Tilzer. The very latest of this gifted writer's musical gems. A really delightful melody which shows Harry von Tilzer at his very best. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

7—"You're Breaking My Heart with Good-Bye," by Abe Olman. A pathetic composition which every musician should add to his library. (Published by the Vandersloot Music Co.)

8—"Give Me the Right to Love You," by Abe Glatt. Considered by many and competent judges to be the finest composition of its kind—most appropriate for love themes and scenes. (Published by Harry von Tilzer,)

9—"Chasing the Chickens," a great jazz number. (Published by Foster Music Co., Chicago, Ill.)

10—"Serenade," by C. Saint Saens, arranged by Chas. J. Roberts. An exquisite number for a good program beautifully arranged. (Carl Fischer edition.)

11—The following numbers have just been published by G. Schirmer from the great New York Musical Success, "Over the Top":
1—Waltz Medley introducing Golden Pheasant and Galatea.
2—Fox Trot introducing Justine Hohnstone Rag and Galatea.
3—One Step introducing "Oh Justine" and "Algerian Girl."

12—Three new numbers have recently been added to the Famous-Cinema Incidental Series":
1—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy.
2—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement.
3—"Sorrow Theme," by Edward Roberts. Obtainable from the "Cinema Music Company," Columbia Theatre Building, New York.

Park Theatre in Boston Engages Mr. Krauth as Musical Director

MUSICIANS are often accused of being men of only one idea. Whether there is any truth in this statement or not, it is at least unusual to find a musician who covered so many and varied fields as William A. Krauth, the musical director of the Park theatre in Boston.

Mr. Krauth began his career at Keith's theatre, Boston, as violinist, and before long was made assistant director in that theatre. It was while in the latter position that his accomplishments and rare genius were recognized by Eva Tanguay. She immediately offered great inducements to him and persuaded him to become her musical director. He traveled for two years with Miss Tanguay as her manager and musical director.

Boston again claimed her own and Mr. Krauth was once more induced to return to his home city as a member of the Boston Opera Company. At the same time he undertook the management of the Meister Singers. He retained these two difficult positions for three years, and then entered the employ of the Old Orpheum theatre as musical director.

When the "Birth of a Nation" picture was released Mr. Krauth was induced to take charge of the music. Then it was that Manager Thomas D. Soriero recognized Mr. Krauth's ability, and succeeded in signing him up for the Park theatre, Boston. Mr. Krauth studied at the New England Conservatory of Music, and also with Messrs, Jaques Hoffman and Gustav Straube. He is the composer of many pieces, and is well known for his orchestral arrangements.

To-day, Mr. Krauth is one of Manager Thomas D. Soriero's most able assistants. He is the orchestra leader of the Park Theatre Symphony Orchestra in Boston, and we predict that in a short time the "Park Orchestra" will become one of the finest and most popular musical organizations in Boston.

Fischer & McCarthy Winning Out

When Fred Fischer and Joe McCarthy went into business for themselves some of the wiseacres gave them six months, saying that they know how to write hits, but what they don't know about the business end of the song game would fill a library. But it looks as if Fred and Joe are fooling the prophets. They did not get away to a flying start and they did not lose any time worrying about it, but kept plugging away and always writing new numbers. Today they have a big seller in "They Go Wild Over Me," which is a big feature with leaders all over the country. One hit, however, does not appear to satisfy Fred and Joe, so they have started two new ones on the way to prosperity and popularity. "My Beautiful Alsace Lorraine" and "In Yama Yama Land" carry typical Fischer melodies, which mean that they will become equally as popular as anything that Fischer has ever turned out.

Fischer and McCarthy try to find out what will please performers and the public and then write that sort of stuff, instead of aiming to force their own theories over. The kind of novelty numbers they turn out are always in demand by singers and musicians.

Gilbert and Friedland are also wise in this respect, and much of the success that they have won in the past few years has come from novelty numbers. "Lily of the Valley," which they wrote some time last year, is just as big a hit now as it ever was, and they have been quick to take advantage of the song's popularity by writing a companion song to it, called "I'm the Brother of Lily of the Valley." Lily's brother is an excellent motion picture number, as well as being an ideal selection for an overture or a dance.

Many small publishers who spend a great deal of time and money on funeral ballads and hackneyed war songs would do well to pay more attention to novelty numbers, for they receive more attention from singers and musicians and cost about half as much to exploit. Publishing a song because no one else will bring it out is not a wise policy; better not go into the game at all unless you offer what you really believe will find a market.

The fact that novelty songs are the biggest sellers on the market is the best proof that musicians in picture houses should keep well stocked with them. If the public buys them at the music

ANNOUNCEMENT

To Whom It May Concern:

OSCAR OSSO—sole agent for the SOCIETY OF FRENCH PLAYWRIGHTS AND COMPOSERS is also appointed sole agent for the SOCIETY OF FRENCH AUTHORS, COMPOSERS AND PUBLISHERS OF MUSIC

No public performance of French dramatic and musical works may be given without his consent, and all royalties due for same are to be paid to said—
OSCAR OSSO, who is the SOLE DULY AUTHORIZED REPRESENTATIVE of the following societies:—

Société des Auteurs et Compositeurs,
12 Rue Henner, Paris, France.

Société des Auteurs, Compositeurs et Editeurs de Musique, 10 Rue Chaptal, Paris, France.

OSCAR OSSO
1457 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

counters the same public likes to hear them played when it patronizes a picture theatre. It takes a little time and money to keep up to date in novelties, but any one who goes to this trouble and expense will find that he will be well repaid, just as the well-known singers are by being constantly on the lookout for novelties.

E. M. Wickes.

General Comments

There seems to be a big demand for Spanish music at the present time, according to reports from leaders and phonograph companies.

Miss Gladys Hart, known on the stage as Gladys Siddons, who played in "Rambler Rose," and was a wonderful singer, was married to Charles H. Mapes, a wealthy banker and ranchman.

"It's a Long Way to Berlin," published by Leo Feist, is the biggest phonograph seller in years. At the present time one company is 100,000 records behind on "Over There," another Feist hit.

"The Military Waltz," by Frederick Knight Logan, the popular waltz king, is keeping Fred Forster's staff busy filling orders. It looks as if it will be another "Missouri Waltz" in sales.

James W. Casey, president of the Echo Music Co., is going on the road to get more orders for "My Golden West" and "My Hawaii, I Hear You Calling Me."

An American soldier on being hurled into the sea after his ship had been hit by a German torpedo shouted to one of his comrades: "Where do we go from here?"

"BROWN OF HARVARD"

(Essanay-Perfection)
(Reviewed on page 129)

Love Theme: "When Love Is Young" by Ellis
College Theme: "College Life," March by Frantzen

1—College Theme, until—T: "Evelyn Ames, the one and only, etc."
2—Love Theme, until—T: "Wilton Ames, Evelyn's brother."
3—"Canzonetta," by Schuett, until—T: "Marian Thorn, Nancy Winston."
4—"Sweet Ponderings" (A Melodie Sentiement), by Langey, until—T: "Your sister Evelyn is engaged to Tom Brown."
5—Love Theme, until—T: "I'm sorry Wilton, but I can't give you any more money."
6—Intermezzo, by Huerter, until—S: "Where college boy shows his tutor—through window—students in row boat."
7—College Theme, until—T: "I've been unable to raise the money."
8—"Eva," Prelude by Massenet (ff during short change of scene), until—T: "I'll bet they are going to bring, etc."
9—Continue ff, until—T: "While Marian waited."
10—"Dramatic Adagio," by Kretschmer, until—T: "Bud Hall, the coach for, etc."
11—College Theme pp, until—T: "Edith Sinclair, Madden's fiancee."
12—"Monona," Intermezzo by Armand, until—S: "Girl standing near Brown's door."
13—"Awakening of Spring," by Bach, until—T: "My son ought to be, etc."
14—Silence until—S: "Dancing."
15—Piano Solo—to action until—T: "I've got a new game."
16—Second Movement "Allegro" from "The Romantic Overture," by Keler Bela, until—T: "Let's lock him in his room."
17—Continue ff with ad. lib. Tympany Rolls until—S: "Girl (Marian) faces the whole company."
18—"Among the Roses," by Lake, until—T: "Two weeks later."
19—College Theme, until—T: "I must have money to go away."
20—Love Theme, by Herzberg, until—T: "In the afternoon."
21—College Theme, until—S: "Browne with Evelyn near bench."
22—Love Theme, until—T: "You need money! Well, etc."
23—Fourth Movement of "After Sunset" (47 bars from beginning), until—T: "During the evening."
24—"After Sunset" from beginning, until—S: "College boys at piano."
25—Piano to action (College Song with Ukelele accompaniment), until—T: "The day of the big race."
26—"Ein Maerchen," Fantasia by Bach, until—S: "Thorne near row boat reading letter."
27—Continue pp until—T: "To h—l with the race."
28—Hurry to action until—T: "Brown will take the place."
29—"Under the Leaves," by Thome, until—T: "It's Tom Brown."
30—College Theme, until—T: "The opposing crew."
31—Silence about 10 seconds until—T: "They're off."
32—Galop ff, until—T: "Harvard wins by a length."
33—Continue to action, until—T: "Pet him, cheer him, hail him!"
34—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "I have nothing to say."
35—Continue ff, until—S: "After short fight."
36—Continue pp, until—T: "After an all-night sesion."
37—Serenade, by Widor, until—T: "He's got to settle with me now."
38—Agitato to action, pp or ff, until—T: "Very well, I'll wait."
39—"Adoration," by Borowski, until—S: "Tom trying to kiss Evelyn—when his college mates enter."
40—Love Theme, until * * * * * * END.

"LIMOUSINE LIFE"

(Triangle Production)
(Reviewed on page 886)

Theme: "Sweet Jasmine" (Melodious Allegretto) by Bendix

1—"Vision" (Characteristic), by Blon, until—T: "Mated from childhood."

2—"Entr'Acte Valse," by Helmesberger, until—T: "[illegible] Emma Ballard the stock old maid."
3—Continue to action, until—T: "Where the evening [illegible]w."
4—Theme, until—T: "The plain fare of three weeks follo[illegible]"
5—"In Lovers' Lane" (Characteristic Intermezzo), by [illegible]ryor, until—T: "A silent exit from a silent town."
6—"Pizzicato Mysterioso," by M. L. Lake, until—T: "Afternoon at Yvettes."
7—"Maesmawr" (Valse Lente), by Braham, until—T: "Well, now that you are here."
8—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "The furnished flat of Gertrude."
9—Continue pp, until—T: "With the dull morning, etc."
10—"Capricious Anette" (4/8 Allegretto Moderato), by Borch, until—T: "That's Moncure Kelt's Kiddo."
11—Theme, until—T: "As the days fly by."
12—"Reve D'Amour" (2/4 Allegretto Grazioso), by Zamecznik, until—T: "You're so much nicer."
13—"Vanity" (4/4 Allegro), by Jackson, until—T: "But, Miss Welkins, he is no different."
14—"Longing Reverie" (Moderato), by Armand, until—T: "Will your mother be back."
15—Theme, until—T: "I'm going to wait right here."
16—"Menuet des Follets" (3/4 Moderato), by Berlioz, until—T: "Eleven o'clock of some morning."
17—"Flirtation" (Valse Intermezzo), by Meyer Helmund, until—T: "Minnie is all right."
18—"Club Galop," by Laurendeau, until—T: "I could have run it, etc."

NOTE: Play to Action pp or ff.

19—"Petite Bijouterie" (Valse Intermezzo), by Bohm, until—T: "The young woman has been discharged."
20—Theme, until—T: "A day of unsatisfied, etc."
21—"Nocturno in F" (Moderato), by Krzyzanowski, until—T: "If you'll go away."
22—"Illusion," Intermezzo (2/4 Moderato), by Bustanoby, until—T: "Gertie, I've broken with Moncure."
23—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo), by Herman, until—S: "The acident."
24—Cymbal Crash—folowed by 25—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "The speeders' court opens."
26—Theme, until * * * * * END.

"THE CAPTAIN OF HIS SOUL"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 1034)

Theme: "Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia) by Bach

1—"Canzonetta" (Moderato) by Nicode until—T: "Martin's Daughter Nira."
2—Theme until—S: Three men at breakfast table.
3—"Heloise" (Moderato Intermezzo) by Langey until—S: Old man looking at picture.
4—"Sorrow Theme" by Edw. Roberts until—T: "Rollins, whose 25 years," etc.
5—"Albumleaf" (Melodious Moderato) by Kretschmer until—T: "Impatient to carry out his orders."
6—"Serenade" (Moderato) by Drdla until—T: "Four weeks after his arrival."
7—Continue pp until—T: "In the Van Vleet home."
8—Theme until—S: Martin reading newspaper.
9—"Draamtic Andante" by E. Ascher until—T: "While the world is convulsed."
10—"Tragic Theme" by Paul Vely until—T: "Another week and the," etc.

NOTE.—Ad. Lib. Tympany Rolls during short Battle Scene.

11—Continue to action until—S: Old man at telephone.
12—"Allegro" by Bach until—T: "Leave Martin to me."
13—"Prelude" (Heavy Dramatic) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "Anywhere save where his brother is."
14—"Le Retour" (Dramatic Allegro) by Bizet until—T: "A solitary mountain hermit."
15—"Serenade D'Amour" (Moderato) by Blon until—T: "Feeling now only compassion."
16—Continue pp until—T: "In a land that draws," etc.
17—Popular One-Step to action until—T: "I can't, I won't, how can you?" etc.

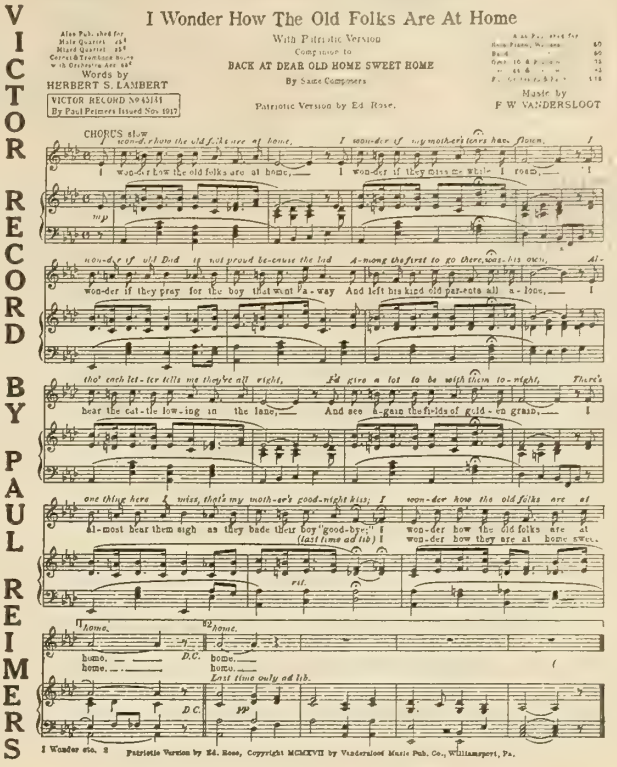
NOTE.—Play ff during dancing scenes only.

18—Theme until—T: "Across the hall," etc.
19—"Dramatic Tension" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "I want you to meet a little lady," etc.
20—Continue pp until—S: (one letter) "Myra, I am leaving for good."
21—"Serenade" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Widor until—T: "With the morning comes news," etc.
22—"Cavatine" (4/4 Dramatic Mel.) by Bohm until—T: "During the day of Henry's," etc.
23—Theme until—T: "Still bewildered by Henry's strange," etc.
24—"Dramatic Agitato" by Becker until—T: "Under the Physician's quieting," etc.
25—"Love Song" (Dramatic) by Flegier until—T: "I loved Martin and after," etc.
26—"Dramatic Mysterioso" by Borch until—S: Flashback to former scene.
27—"Bond of Love" (Melodious Waltz) by A. Roth until—END.

"REAL FOLKS"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on Page 1036)



Theme: "L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic) by Favarger

1—"Violetta" (Characteristic Moderato) by Tobani until—T: "And then the Mansion of the Dugans."
2—"Missouri Waltz" (Forster Music Co.) until—T: "Come down to the Parlor.
3—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "James Francis Xavier Dugan," etc.
4—"Yester Love" (Intermezzo-Andantino) by Borch until—T: "I am Dugan of California."

THE GREAT PATRIOTIC HOME SONG HIT

Song 15c Orchestra, 11 and Piano 25c Band 25c
Waltz 15c Full Orchestra and Piano 35c

VICTOR RECORD BY PAUL REIMERS — PATRIOTIC VERSION BY ED ROSE

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
Williamsport, Pa.

STANDARDS

ADOPTED BY THE

SOCIETY OF MOTION PICTURE ENGINEERS

FIRST EDITION

MAIN OFFICE:
712 ELEVENTH STREET, N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

PRICE, 10c. EACH
$1.00 A DOZEN

THE MOST IMPORTANT PUBLICATION

OF

1917

It should be in the hands of every individual interested in our industry. Send 10 cents today

C. F. JENKINS, Pres.,
712-11th St., N.W., Washington, D. C.

5—Hurry pp until—S: The fight.
6—Continue ff until—T: "And so ended Jimmy Dugan's first," etc.
7—Theme until—T: "Forlorn misfits in a New York Hotel."
8—"Serenade" (Allegretto) by Saint-Saens until—T: "Delightfully installed in the Clinton Home."
9—"Garden of Love" (Melodious Caprice) by Ascher until—T: "My daughter, Mildred."
10—"Moonlight Waltz" (Forster Edition) until—T: "Another week-end finds," etc.
11—Theme until—T: "Mother Dugan, however, is breaking in," etc.
12—"A la Ballerina" (Valse Lente) by Braham until—T: "Some weeks and later," etc.
13—Continue to action until—T: "Then if I arrange the marriage," etc.
14—"Menuet" (Melodious) by Paderewsky until—T: "Jimmy! It's a grand wedding."
15—Theme until—T: "Jimmy takes his father at his word."
16—Repeat ("Menuet" by Paderewsky) (same as Cue No. 14) until T: "Beginning the weekly routine."
17—"Menuet" by Bocherini until—S: Jimmy meets his former partner.
18—Canzonetta (Moderato) by Godard until—T: "Jimmy's father is also a firm believer."
19—Repeat "Menuet" by Bochereni (same as Cue No. 17) until S: Old man talking to girl.
NOTE.—Must be produced as a Piano Solo.
20—Theme until—S: Girl goes back to her dancing pupils.
21—Repeat "Bocherini Menuet" (as Piano Solo) until T: "Lady Blessington prepares."
22—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Bohm until—T: "Pat I want you to get me back."
23—Continue pp until—T: "Real Folks of wealth," etc.
24—"Velvet of the Rose" (Waltz) by Barnard until—T: "And now I want you to meet," etc.
25—"Pastel Menuet" (3/4 Allegro Giocoso) by Paradis until—END.

"WOMAN AND WIFE"

(Select Pictures)

(Reviewed on page 889)

Theme: "Lost Happiness," Nocturno (12/8 Andante Sostenuto) by R. Eilenberg

1—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until:—T: "I'll teach you to touch my books."
2—Continue ff until—T: "Pack her belongings."
3—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until T: "The tragic honeymoon of Edw. Rochester."
4—"Home from the Club" (Characteristic) by Laurendeau until S: Norwood Charity School.
NOTE.—Cue No. 4 is a Characteristic Composition opening with the old song hit, "We Won't Come Home 'Til Morning."
5—Theme until—S: Rochester brings his afflicted wife home.
6—"After Sunset" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by Pryor until T: "A few months later."
7—"Baby Sweetheart (6/8 Allegretto, by Corri until S: (letter) "My dear son-in-law."
8—Continue pp until—S: Interior of school.
9—Theme until—T: "Two days later, an opportunity."
To Action pp or ff.
10—"Yester Love (3/4 Intermezzo Andantino) by G. Borch until—T: "Thornfield Hall, the English home."
11—"Serenade" (2/4 Allegretto) by Kautzenbach until—T: "A few days later."
12—"Serenade" (3/4 Moderato) by Chaminade until—S: Rochester looking at Governess and girl.
13—"Dramatic Narrative" by Pauline Pement until—T: "Days of Happiness."
14—"Moonlight Waltz" (Forster Music Co.) until—T: "Evening Shadows."
15—"Am Kamin" (Song) by Schumann until—T: "I heard Adele's prayer."
16—Theme until—T: "The next day, an answer."
17—Continue to action until—T: "Rose tinted dreams."
18—"Valse Gracieuse" (3/8 Allegretto leggiero) by Ed. German until—T: "There was another to whom," etc.
19—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia) by Bach until—T: "That mental-ruin is my wife."
20—Continue pp until—S: Jane in automobile, etc.
21—L'Antomne, Bacchanal from "The Seasons" (2/4 Lento) by A. Glazounow until—T: "She must be told."
22—Continue pp until—T: "A night of agony."
23—"Prelude" (Heavy Dramatic) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "After a week."
24—"Erotik" (Dramatic) by Grieg until—T: "Jane, would you care if," etc.
25—Theme until—T: "The wedding."
26—"Sleeping Rose (Valse) by Borch until—S: Crazy woman trying to escape.
27—Continue ff until—S: Wedding ceremony.
NOTE.—With Ad. Lib. Tympany Rolls.
28—Organ Solo—improvise to action—until—S: Crazy woman looks at wedding ceremony.
29—Silence until—T: "Who is that woman?"
30—"Heavy Dramatic" by Oehmler until—S: Dead woman on ground (near lake).
31—Theme until * * * * * END.

"OUR LITTLE WIFE"

(Goldwyn Production)

(Reviewed on page 1317)

Theme: "Dramatic Narrative" by Pauline Pement

1—Theme until—T: "Fanny Weston inclined to be catty."
2—"Bonheur" (Moderato-Gavotte Serenade) by Hartog until—T: "You were my inspiration."
3—Theme until—T: "Don't worry about my husband."
4—"Capricious Annette" (6/8 Moderato) by Borch until—T: "And this is the way it started."
5—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Bohm until—T: "The honeymoon in full blast."
NOTE.—Watch for Railroad effects.
6—"In Lovers' Lane" (Characteristic Intermezzo) by Pryor until—T: "I must tell my poor boys."
7—Theme until—T: "Yes, I did send it to myself."
8—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—T: "Heavens! Her voice."
9—"Pastel Menuet" (3/4 Allegro giocoso) by Paradis until—T: "An authority on heart murmurs."
NOTE.—Watch for Railroad effects.
10—"The Vampire" (A Dramatic Theme) by Levy until—T: "And you growled at me."
11—Theme until—T: "And because Dodo kept her promise."
12—"Vera Waltz" (Melodious) by Alex. F. Lithgow until—T: "Then came Dodo's first anniversary."
13—Continue to action until—T: "Do you know what day this is?"
14—Theme until—T: "Dodo let me present Mr. Geo. Haywood."
15—"A la Ballerina" (Valse Lente) by Braham until—T: "Something terrible is going to happen."
16—"Love Song" (Dramatic) by Flegier until—T: "Doctor Elliot did not permit."
NOTE.—Play Tremolo ff.
17—"Jasmine" (Allegretto) by Kretschmer until—T: "That part of Herb's brain," etc.
18—"Iris" (Moderato) by Reynard until—S: Woman reading poem.
19—"Aurora" (Ballet Intermezzo) by Von der Mehden until—T: "Geo. Haywood's apartment."
20—"Menuet des Follets" (Ala Mysterioso-Allegro) by Berlioz until—T: "Oh! Doctor."
21—"Bizzicato Bluette" by Lack until—S: When Doctor's wife is trying to break door.
22—Hurry to action until—T: "Here is another pale."
23—Continue pp until—T: "I was on my way to Alumni."
24—Theme until—S: Police arrive.
25—Continue ff until—T: "Let's make up, deary!"
26—Continue to action until * * * * * * END.

Operators' Licenses

(Continued from page 1485)

card taken away at once. He should be reported to the license bureau and have his license revoked. It should be a matter of professional pride to make a fellow member attain and hold a certain position so that he will be an honor rather than a detriment to his profession and organization. Let it be self-government among the organizations and let them see to it that their memberships mean something which is worth while to the community.

VI. This all leads up to one thing—the proper training of the man before he is allowed to take charge of the projection in any theatre from the largest to the smallest. To accomplish this we recommend the strictest of examinations conducted in a manner beyond possible criticism, followed by the issuance of a preliminary license so that the applicant can act as an assistant operator. Then after a given time, say two months, he is allowed to take a second examination which, if he passes, allows him to apply for a position as a regular operator. In order that his progress may be aided with all possible advantages the apprentice should join national or local bodies of operators which are organized and run for the benefit of their members and where instruction is given.

If this plan is followed out we will have only men worthy of holding down a responsible job, where human life is at stake, applying for an operator's license. These men will then replace those at present in the booths who are not reliable and never should have received an operator's license.

E. K. GILLETT.

THE BARTOLA

Organ stops added to your pipe organ will give you a new instrument. Your customers will be more than pleased with the wonderful improvement in your music. Write for catalogue.

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

Theatres Worth While

Exteroir and Interior Theatre Wilbert, Plaquemine, La., on Opening Day

Theatre Wilbert Opens

THEATRE WILBERT, Plaquemine, La., was formerly opened on February 3 with a program that made the dedication one of the most imposing events that has ever occurred in this prosperous Louisiana city. The theatre was erected by the A. Wilbert's Sons Lumber and Shingle Company as a monument to the Wilbert name and as a place of amusement for the citizens of Plaquemine for years to come.

It is a structure that would do honor to a city of much greater size than Plaquemine, which has a population of about 15,000, giving a potential theatre population of about 10,000.

The building is of brick and steel, most substantially constructed and it is fitted with every appliance that in any manner will contribute to the comfort and safety of the patron of the house. It is equivalent to four stories high and the entire structure is to be devoted to amusements. The front is of terra cotta and pressed brick and is artistically finished. The interior is elaborately, yet artistically, decorated and presents a most inviting appearance. Provision has been made both for the showing of motion pictures and for the presentation of the most pretentious road shows. The stage is 52 feet wide; 40 feet deep and 551 feet high with a proscenium arch 32 feet wide by 30 feet high.

A magnificent pipe organ is a part of the regular installation and the theatre has its own electric light plant which has been installed by the lessee, Lionel Delacroix, who is one of the best known of the Louisiana exhibitors. Outside of the electric light plant the theatre cost over $100,000.

At the opening speeches were made by prominent citizens, and despite the very disagreeable weather, over 4,000 persons accepted the invitation of the management. An orchestra from Baton Rouge furnished the music. For the picture presentation two 6B Power machines are used with a throw of 122 to a screen 17 by 22 feet.

An $8,000 photoplayer supplements the organ.

Winner Theatre Makes Hit

WINNER, South Dakota, has an attractive and most successful theatre in the Cosmo which was opened in May, 1917, and managed by J. C. Lakin. The house seats 448 and is doing an excellent business, partly due to the fact that it uses the local weeklies for advertising and gets large numbers from a distance.

The theatre occupies a plot, 33 by 130 feet, and is constructed of brick, tile and concrete, with the front finished with special stucco sunburst effect design. There is an electric light placed in each of the terra cotta ornamental blocks, outlining the whole front. The lobby is twelve feet wide and twenty feet deep. One sheet posters and photo frames are used in the lobby.

Cosmo Theatre, Winner, S. D.

Music is furnished by a piano and an orchestra of five to eight pieces is used on special occasions.

In the operating room are a Model S Simplex and a 1916 Motiograph. The throw is 90 feet to a Minusa Gold Fiber screen. Triangle, Select, Mutual, Pathe and Universal pictures are used.

Pretty Little Virginia House

NEW LYRIC THEATRE, Norton, Va., is an excellent example of what can be done with a house in a small town, for the building is attractive and comfortable and the patrons are given the very best in motion pictures.

Better Satisfaction

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements.

The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Arc Controllers
2. Advertising Novelties
3. Brass Rails
4. Building Materials
5. Cameras
6. Camera Lenses
7. Carbons
8. Chairs
9. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing and Printing
14. Developing Materials
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. Economizers and Rheostats
18. Electric Signs
19. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cleaners
24. Film Dyes
25. Film Stock
26. Fire Extinguishers
27. Floral Decorations
28. Gas Engines
29. Heating
30. Heralds
31. Interior Lighting
32. Interior Telephones
33. Lithographs
34. Lobby Display
35. Metal Ceilings
36. Motors
37. Mural Paintings
38. Musical Instruments
39. Paints
40. Perforating Machines
41. Printing Machines
42. Programs
43. Projection Booths
44. Projection Lenses
45. Projection Machines
46. Projection Machines (Home)
47. Reels
48. Rewinders
49. Safety-Exit Locks
50. Screens
51. Slides
52. Stage Settings
53. Studio Lights
54. Ticket Selling Machines
55. Ticket Taking Machines
56. Uniforms
57. Ventilating and Fans
58. Vacuum Cleaners

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

Lyric Theatre, Norton, Va.

The building occupies a plot, 25 by 150 feet, and has a stage eighteen feet wide. The building seats 400 and was built at a cost of $15,000. The house gives one show each day except Saturday when there is a matinee. Five and six-reel features, series of two reels and two serials are shown each week. The house uses a Power 6B machine.

Directory of New Theatres

CALIFORNIA

A deal was closed recently between W. G. Henshaw, Oakland banker and capitalist, president of the Riverside Cement Company, owner of the Macdonough theatre, and Ackerman & Harris, owners of the Hippodrome circuit of 23 theatres in the principal cities of the Western states, calls for the complete replacement of the present Macdonough theatre at Fourteenth and Broadway, Oakland, by a new structure, combining all the latest features in theatre construction and costing in the neighborhood of $250,000. The present lease to Crane Wilbur expires June 30, by which time the plans will be completed and the material on the ground ready for the beginning of the work. A. C. Blumenthal of A. J. Rich & Co. of San Francisco, representing both parties to the transaction.

The plans, tentatively accepted, for the theatre, call for the construction that will necessitate the razing of the present office building on the corner of Broadway and Fourteenth street, which will be rebuilt at the same time to a height of five stories, at a cost over all of approximately $500,000. The entrance to the new theatre, which will be named "The Palace," will be on Broadway, and will be 30 feet wide, with a foyer of wonderful richness. The seating capacity of the new Palace will be between 1,800 and 2,000 on two floors, with inclines instead of stairs, and large, commodious lobbies, rest-rooms, complete heating and unique lighting systems, it being the aim of the amusement company, when it is completed, to have one of the finest theatres on the Pacific Coast.

The largest motion picture theatre at any army cantonment in the United States is under construction at Camp Kearny, near San Diego, by Michael Gore, owner of Gore's circuit of theatres in Los Angeles.

It is said that Gore is spending $25,000 in his plans to give the liberty boys in Uncle Sam's service the best to be had in picturedom. He will exhibit only the choicest of pictures. Twice each week the Pantages and Hippodrome will put on the cream of the vaudeville acts at Gore's big theatre at Camp Kearny. "Sunshine Theatre" is the name decided upon by Gore and the building has a choice location at the camp. The ventilation and seating are to be the last word in theatre construction. The building will be completed in 30 days.

The new Liberty Star theatre, recently constructed by Johnson and Eaton at Bay Point, was formally opened a week ago, when the entire community was invited to witness a free show. The theatre is described as the finest between Stockton and Oakland. The interior is tastefully decorated and no pains have been spared to insure the patrons' comfort.

F. W. Rodgers of Corning is fitting up a room recently used as a grocery store for the purpose of showing motion pictures.

Wilmington's motion picture theatre, the Crystal, was opened Saturday of last week, and Manager Del Hammer announced that the entire receipts for the day would be given to the Red Cross.

After seven months of preparation, including the drawing of two sets of plans by Architect A. B. Rosenthal and an exhaustive canvass of the large cities of the country for the newest ideas in equipment, actual construction work was begun yesterday on Miller's new theatre on Main street near Eighth, Los Angeles.

The enterprise will represent, when completed, an investment of about $500,000. It is undertaken by Col. J. B. Lankershim, the well-known capitalist, for the Millers, who have made an enviable record as showmen by their successful handling of Miller's and the Alhambra theatres and building up of a clientele of large proportions and stable character.

Harry Leonhardt, formerly with the Goldwyn Film Corporation and now associated with the Millers, for several weeks has been traveling through the east gathering ideas for use in the new house, which will be one of the finest in America devoted exclusively to music and pictures.

It will be finished by September 1 next and will, it is promised, be the last word in theatre construction, with a specially built organ of magnitude and every elegance that has been conceived for catering to the wants and pleasures especially of women and children.

The house will have a seating capacity of 2,500. Winner & Nicholson have been awarded the general contract for the construction work.

Coronado's new film playhouse, the Silver Strand, opened Feb. 9 last to capacity business, with Mary Pickford in "The Little American."

MISSISSIPPI

Clarksdale's new theatre building which is being erected at an approximate cost of $100,000 and which will compare most favorably with similar structures of the larger cities of the South, is nearing completion. The contractors announced that the building would be ready for occupancy about March 1. No expense or care to the most trivial detail has been spared to make the building one of the most modern in the South.

MISSOURI

Plans for the remodeling of the Jefferson theatre building, Jefferson City, have been prepared, and they call for rather extensive interior changes, with a view to eliminating waste floor space, and incidentally increasing the seating capacity by about 400. Manager William Mueller expects to have the work completed early this Spring.

MONTANA

The Roman theatre, the new moving picture playhouse built by Steve Roman on the east side of Broadway, just south of Thirteenth street, Red Lodge, opened its doors a few days ago, and an audience of several hundred persons admired the interior of the pretentious structure. The theatre, modern in every respect, has comfortable seating arrangements for 500 persons, the screen being plainly visible from every seat in the house. The stage is deep and wide and adaptable to scenic arrangement for the spoken as well as the silent drama.

NEW MEXICO

The new Park theatre at Gallup was opened to capacity business two weeks ago under the management of W. E. McCoy.

The new Majestic theatre, situated on Gold Avenue, Deming, was opened a week ago.

NEW YORK

Architect William E. Lehman, of Newark, N. J., will receive sealed bids soon for the erection of a $60,000 theatre for Frank A. Kenney, to be erected on Wall street, Kingston.

PENNSYLVANIA

Plans are now being perfected by A. H. Berg of the Berg Amusement Co., McKeesport, to erect a high-class photoplay theatre.

TEXAS

The Queen theatre, Dallas, having been redecorated, was recently reopened to the public in its new dress with many unique features. One of these is a commodious library on the second floor, which will be free to the patrons of the house. It is furnished with tables, lounges, the latest newspapers and motion picture magazines. People are invited by the management to use this room for a waiting place for their friends at any time. A room has also been arranged on the second floor where men may go to see the show and at the same time smoke their favorite cigar or cigarette.

Throughout the theatre close attention has been given to color schemes, the rooms being done in lavender and dark purple. There is a complete system of ventilation throughout the theatre, which forces in currents of fresh air and forces out the stale air. Hot draughts circulate through the house in cold weather and it is arranged for cold draughts in summer weather. A lighting system has also been installed which will assist in carrying out picture effects, and an arrangement has been installed in the basement for the perfuming of the atmosphere with various flower scents to aid in the realistic presentation of pictures. On the third floor a lounging room with baths has been installed for the benefit of the

Comfort plus Good Picture
EQUALS
SATISFIED PATRONS

You have the picture. Have you the necessary comfort? You must have only the right sort of seating equipment to give a satisfactory reply to this question.

OUR

OPERA CHAIRS

Assure

That necessary comfort to patrons and economy to you. Low prices, but high quality. Quick shipment of many styles.

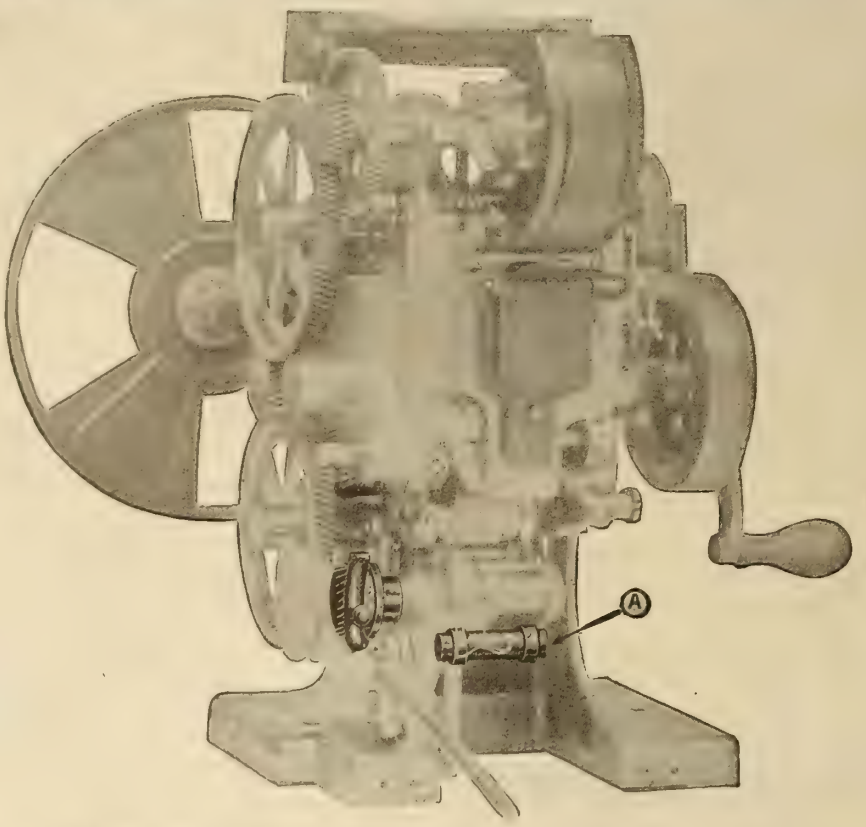
Write for Catalogue N.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
1475 Buchanan Ave., S. W., Grand Rapids, Mich.

CAMERAMEN!
WANTED — Good negatives of physical culture, sporting and athletic events. Wire or write us what you have or can get.
Sy Seidman, Physical Culture Photo Plays, Inc., 949 Broadway, New York City.

UNIVERSAL
Motion Picture Camera
more speed, better results, at half the price.
Write for 6 new features
Burke & James, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

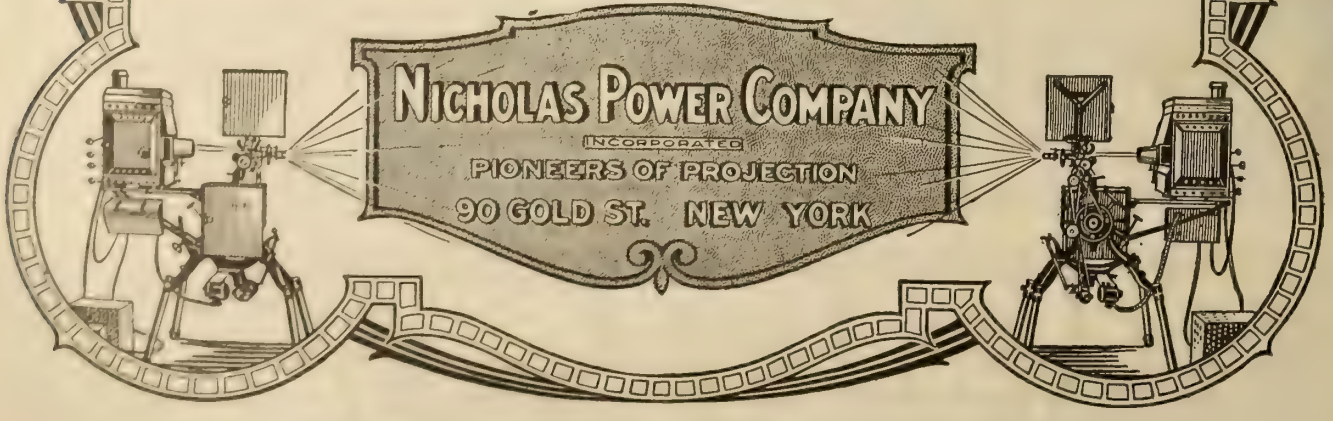


TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

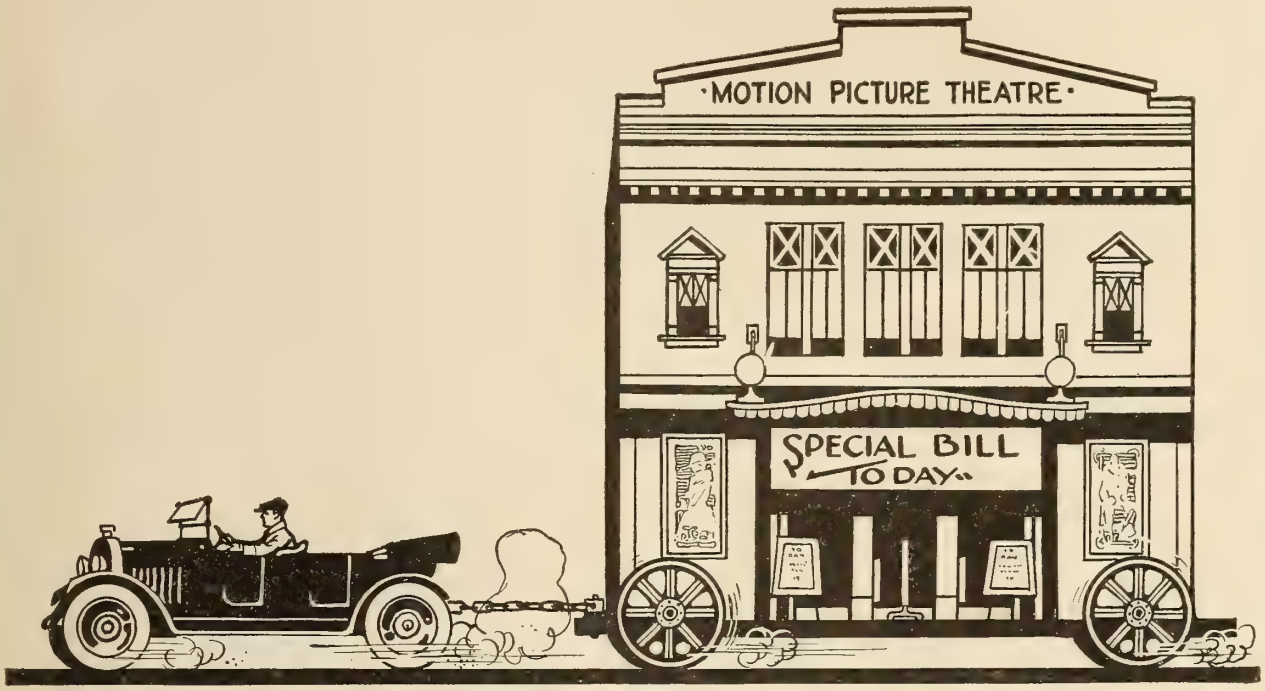
The Loop Setter

An Exclusive Feature Of



POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

By means of this simple and effective device, the lower loop is always automatically maintained; thus eliminating one of the most annoying troubles in motion picture projection.



This is only one of its many individual features which give this projector the pre-eminent position it holds in the motion picture industry.

A catalogue will give detailed information.

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex

IF YOUR HOUSE WERE ON WHEELS YOU COULD GET A NEW AUDIENCE EVERY DAY

But—it is NOT!
Consequently, it's up to you to put on a show that makes repeaters.

Good subjects alone won't do that. Imperfect projection will shake the drawing power out of the best pictures.

So don't go half-way. Don't be like the restaurant man who served excellent food in dirty dishes. He wondered why people didn't come back.

Now apply that to your own business and serve your good pictures the Simplex way.

The House with eye-delighting Simplex-projected pictures needs no wheels

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

The Members of the First National Exhibitors Circuit stand for quality plus service—and they won't stand for anything else—

That's why we are doing the manufacturing and shipping of First National Releases.

We will be pleased to quote prices on developing and printing in quantities large or small.

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO, U.S.A.

There are reasons—
Come and see them.

MARCH 16, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

DOMINATES THE FIELD

Let the other fellow take the dust!

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

(Nationally advertised.)

carry the wise exhibitor speeding along on the road to success. He's far in the lead with a clear, smooth track in front of him. Be a leader! Show Paramount and Artcraft Pictures.

Paramount Pictures — FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION — ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

VOL. XVII-NO. 11 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

"THIEVES' GOLD"

A vivid Flesh-and-Blood Western Drama.

Produced by Jack Ford

From a Story by Frederick R. Becholt in "The Popular Magazine."

— a powerful

HARRY CAREY

production

with

MOLLY MALONE

Book thru your nearest UNIVERSAL Exchange, or Universal Film Mfg. Co.-Carl Laemmle, President.- 1600 Broadway, New York.

de Grasse

Adolph Zukor presents

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

Directed by Maurice Tourneur,
Scenario by Charles Maigne

An ARTCRAFT Picture

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

An ARTCRAFT Picture

A mighty spectacle of Happiness ✕ Released on Easter Sunday March 31st

A FEW OF THE THINGS IN THE PLAY

The Soul of Fire.
The Soul of Water.
The Soul of Milk.
The Soul of Sugar.
The Soul of Light.
The Soul of Bread.
The Palace of Berylune.
The Palace of Night.
The Grotto of the Ghosts.
The Cave of the Sicknesses.
The Pit of the Terrible Wars.
The Million Blue Birds.
The Forest of Night.
The Graveyard of the Happy Dead.
The Fog of Forgetfulness.
The Palace of Happiness.
The Banquet Hall of the Luxuries.
The Cave of Miseries.
The Luxury of Being Rich.
The Luxury of Satisfied Vanity.
The Cathedral of Happiness.
The Destruction of the Banquet Hall.
The Happiness of Being Well.
The Happiness of Pure Air.
The Happiness of the Blue Sky.
The Happiness of the Forest.
The Happiness of Sunny Hours.
The Happiness of Spring.
The Happiness of the Rain.
The Happiness of Innocent Thoughts.
The Joy of Being Just.
The Joy of Being Good.
The Joy of Fame.
The Joy of Thinking.
The Peerless Joy of Maternal Love.
The Kingdom of the Future.
Fat Laughter, who is Irresistible.
Beautiful Memory Land.
The Happiness of Loving One's Parents.
The Dance of the Stars and of the Perfumes in the Garden of Dawn.
The Transformation of the Home of the Happy Dead.
The Luxury of Sleeping More Than Necessary.
The Great Galley Loaded with Children.
Father Time Who Opens the Gates for the Children to be Born.
The Rich Children's Christmas Party.
The Myriad of Mothers Meeting the Ship as it Sails Out of the Sunrise.
The Luxury of Drinking when You are not Thirsty and Eating when You are not Hungry.
The immense Halls of the Azure Palace, the Home of the Unborn Children.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

in

"Headin' South"

Story by Allan Dwan. Directed by Arthur Rosson under supervision of Allan Dwan. Photographed by Hugh McClung and Harry Thorp

An ARTCRAFT Picture

URGING you to book Douglas Fairbanks is like urging you to breathe good fresh air.

Douglas Fairbanks is an absolute necessity for the exhibitor who wants to establish his theatre as a substantial factor in the amusement life of his town.

You can show Douglas Fairbanks at a profit, no matter how small your theatre.

The price is right. Show all of them.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies
"SHERIFF NELL'S TUSSLE"

with Polly Moran, Ben Turpin and Billy Armstrong

BOOK ONE AND YOU'LL BOOK THEM ALL!

PARAMOUNT-MACK SENNETT Comedies are added features that bring business.

¶ Everybody knows that Mack Sennett always is six jumps ahead of the other laugh-makers, and the sign "Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedy" in front of your theatre means "S. R. O."

¶ The quality of your short reels often gives you the balance of power over your competitor.

¶ Remember that! Try a Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedy this week.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

MARGUERITE CLARK

IN

"Rich Man, Poor Man"

From the novel by Maximilian Foster, adapted by George Broadhurst Directed by J. Searle Dawley

A Paramount Picture

HER charm, her daintiness, her piquancy, have made Marguerite Clark one of the best-loved stars in the motion pictures.

Hers is a name that draws worth-while patrons and makes their patronage permanent.

Marguerite Clark's productions have a distinction all their own. Every one of them is good for a long run.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

A. H. WOODS presents his Broadway success

"THE GUILTY MAN"

By Ruth Helen Davis and Charles Klein
Irvin V. Willat, director; supervision of

THOMAS H. INCE

A Sure-Fire Money Maker

"THE GUILTY MAN" contains every element necessary for box office success. It's a long-run picture, for it's the sort people talk about, the kind they send their friends to see. Look what the critics say:

Exciting story. Excellent atmosphere. Can safely be recommended.
—Moving Picture World

Strong drama with plenty of tense moments. Truly dramatic. Cleverly maintained suspense.
—Exhibitors' Trade Review

Direction commendable, sets realistic, photography all that could be desired.
—Motion Picture News

The success of "The Guilty Man" when it was presented on Broadway will undoubtedly be repeated in the screen version.
—Morning Telegraph

"THE GUILTY MAN" IS READY NOW! BOOK IT AT ONCE!

Released by

Paramount Pictures Corporation

SELECT SP PICTURES

ALICE BRADY

the brilliant star of Eugene Walter's drama

"THE KNIFE"

cenario by Charles Maigne irected by Robert G. Vignola

'Alice Brady does the best ork of her screen experince."
—Moving Picture World

'Alice Brady does the best work
f her long career in this role."
—The Dramatic Mirror

"Alice Brady does by far the best work of her screen career."
—Morning Telegraph

"Alice Brady, in the heroine role, must be marked as having scored the greatest hit of her career."
—Exhibitors' Trade Review

"Alice Brady in 'The Knife' has added another superb characterization to her collection of triumphs."
—Exhibitors' Herald

A Stage Hit Last Season--
A Screen Sensation This!

Distributed by SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION
729 Seventh Avenue New York City

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

MR. and MRS. SIDNEY DREW

IN THE VITAGRAPH COMEDIES THAT MADE THEM FAMOUS

ONE REEL A WEEK

THIS latest unit of Vitagraph service will be enthusiastically welcomed by exhibitors all over the country who should reap a harvest of dollars with these clean, original comedies, free from all vulgarity and suggestiveness. They are the very pick of the inimitable laugh-makers that placed the Drews on the ladder of fame.

Each subject has been carefully re-edited and will strengthen the program of any high-class theatre.

They're sure-fire hits!

VITAGRAPH

Mostyn's sister tries to discourage his love for Dolly.

ALBERT E·SMITH
presents

HARRY MOREY
WITH FLORENCE DESHON
in

"THE DESIRED WOMAN"

A FIVE PART BLUE RIBBON FEATURE

From the Widely Read Novel of the Same Title by WILL N·HARBEN

Directed by Paul Scardon

Mostyn spends much of his leisure time with his little son, Dick.

"The Desired Woman," is a feature that cannot fail to register strongly at the box-office.

The adaptation of a famous writer's most widely read book, its novel story and appealing title have remained in the minds of readers everywhere.

And supporting big, virile Harry Morey is a practically all-star cast which, in addition to Miss Deshon includes such universal favorites as Eulalie Jensen, Julia Swayne Gordon, Jean Paige, star of several O. Henry releases, and little Aida Horton. And it is just different enough to make it a picture that will be talked about.

Mostyn tells Dolly of his love.

"And I think I can ask for discretion in the mother of my boy!"

"Am I repulsive, now that you have become infatuated with another?"

VITAGRAPH

Goldwyn Pictures

JHK

John H. Kunsky, Michigan's Biggest Exhibitor, Says:

"I HAVE just seen one of the best motion pictures made within the past twelve months—exactly the kind of production that will bring the public back to the theatres—the kind of production I like to present in my own theatres.

"And I have just seen a wonderful star resume her important place among the few great personalities of the screen. The star and story to which I give my hearty approval are combined in the

Goldwyn presentation of

Mabel Normand in THE FLOOR BELOW

by Elaine Sterne

Directed by Clarence Badger

This great Michigan showman of keen vision and big fortune plays Goldwyn productions in his ten Detroit theatres, headed by the splendid Madison Theatre. 4,000 other exhibitors throughout the United States also profit by playing our powerful attractions regularly in their theatres.

"The Floor Below" is released everywhere March 10.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Goldwyn Pictures

WHO bid the highest for a kiss from this little "bad girl" who was being reformed?

WHAT did his society sweetheart do when she saw this?

WHY did this lovable girl steal a watch and run for shelter in a mission?

Here are but a few questions of the many that point to the mystery, the romance, the jealousy and the comedy-drama plot surrounding

Mabel Normand

in

Her Second Triumphant Goldwyn Production

THE FLOOR BELOW

A dramatic, pathetic and beautiful Mabel Normand—a story of love and laughter—and with the solution of the mystery saved for the last minute.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

PARALTA PLAYS
PICK OF THE PICTURES

Forthcoming!

The Second Paralta-Barriscale-Play

"Within the Cup"

Directed by Reginald Barker

Written by
Monte M. Katterjohn

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions

Booking

J. Warren Kerrigan
in
"A Man's Man"

Bessie Barriscale
in
"Madam Who?"

BESSIE BARRISCALE

Booking

Henry B. Walthall
in
"His Robe of Honor"

J. Warren Kerrigan
in
"The Turn of a Card"

Paralta Plays, Inc.

6 West 48th Street
New York City

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

An Early Release

The First

PARALTA—GLAUM—PLAY

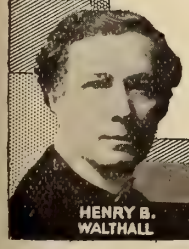
starring

Louise Glaum

in

"An Alien Enemy"

by



Monte M. Katterjohn

directed by WALLACE WORSLEY

"AN ALIEN ENEMY" is copyrighted, 1918
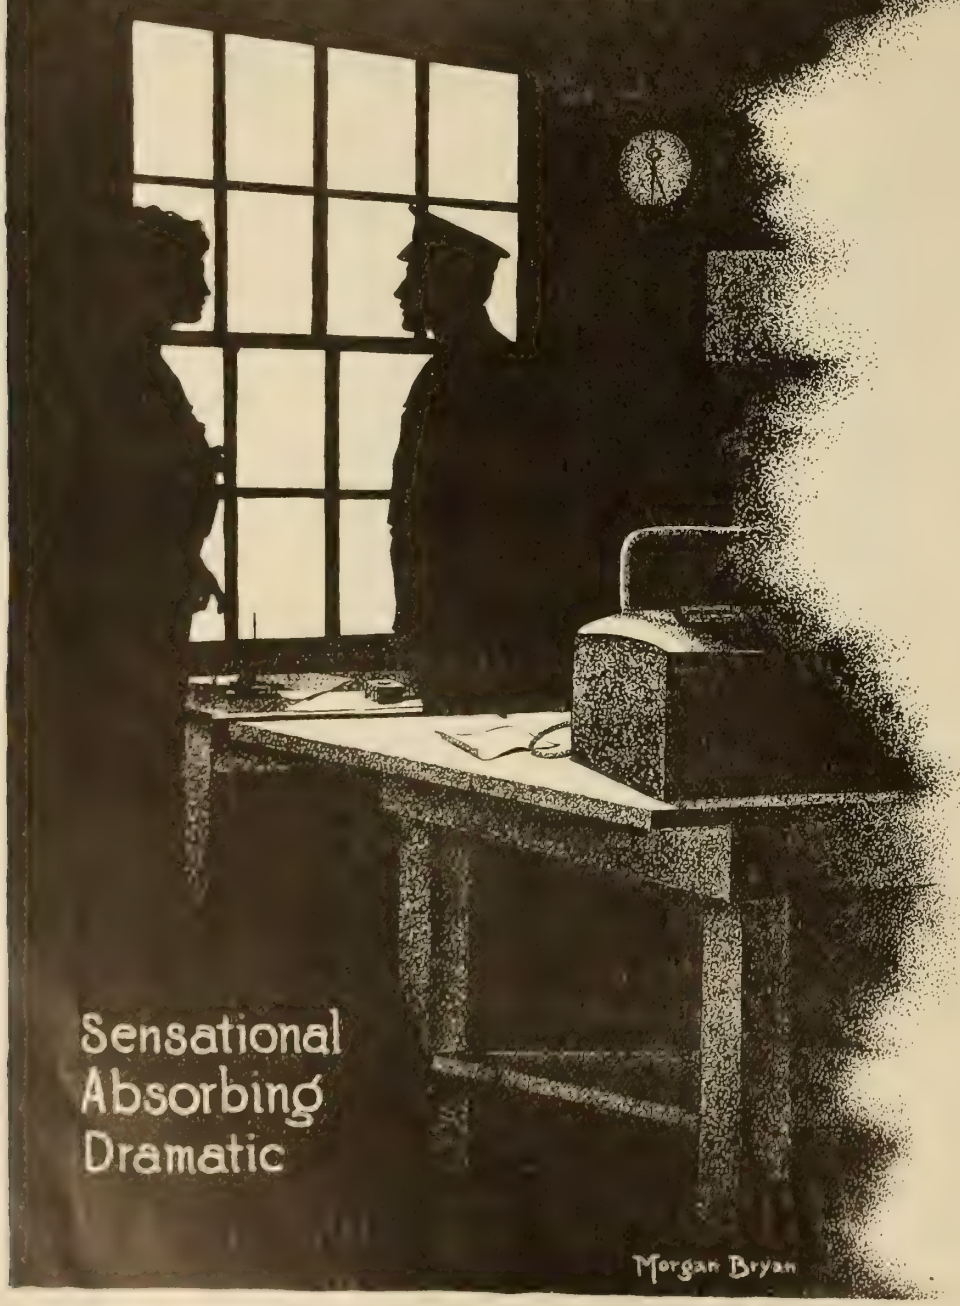
by Paralta Plays, Inc.
Under the Title
"Intelligence"

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

No. 6 WEST 48th STREET NEW YORK CITY



DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

with

JANE VANCE

and

William Sorelle

Approved by

U. S. Censor
Canadian Censor
The Exhibitor
The Public

Box-office Verdict:

"The greatest drawing card that ever struck this town."—J. Meehan, Orpheum Theatre, Muncie, Ind.

The Great Spy Exposure Serial.

It means Prosperity for any Theatre.

Produced by the

JAXON FILM CORPORATION

New York City

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 W. 44th St., New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

Gravel Bank or Gold Mine?

When I wuz West I seen out thar,
With a sluice box on th' river bar,
A miner washin' th' gravel he got—
Which either he prospered or he did not.
To shovel industrious at gravel don't pay
Onless there's gold when it's washed away.

YEAR in and year out the picture house handles hundreds of reels of film for the entertainment of the public. For this entertainment the public pays an admission price to the film exhibitor. He at the same time lends the popularity of the house and his showmanship to support whatever value the film possesses.

Whether the exhibitor prospers, or does not, depends upon the margin that is left him. His endeavor is like that of the placer miner who toils over the dirt of the creek bed. Whatever gold it yields must remunerate him for his effort and his time.

Extravagantly priced film that is unprofitable disappoints the exhibitor more bitterly than any kind.

There is a point at which both gravel and film are commercially unprofitable to handle. The nominal value of a film production may be more or it may be less. But if it brings in nothing to the showman above what it costs him to handle it, he had better prospect elsewhere.

General Film Company has thirty exchanges in the United States and Canada through which the best product of many manufacturers is made available to the showman to best advantage—through the elimination of duplicate distribution overhead and the exercise of intensified service. The profit for the exhibitor continues to exist, a deserved and tangible reward which he can extract for his labors.

In other words, why not choose to operate your show as a gold mine instead of gravel bank?

GENERAL FILM COMPANY
25 West 44th Street, New York

General Film Company does not impose the 15-cent charge on any of its releases.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

TRIANGLE

To think

—while you still have the God-given privilege—

Brains, backbone and money must be hitched to the pen that dictates the policy of successful motion picture concerns these "hot" times.

This is an age of split second watches.

When fast manufactured munitions and gigantic guns grow out of date before they even get to the firing line,—

When war is costing the world almost a million a minute in cash and "NO MAN'S LAND" is making all other battle grounds look like faintly remembered "pikers",—

When American business takes a holiday every week just to add another million tons of coal to the choking of the intolerable Hun,—

When General Pershing's daily report is being read by Secretary Baker and the war department in Washington almost before the ink is dry on the original document in France,—

When General Sherman's everlasting epigram is coming home with new force and meaning at every tick of the clock,—

When wheatless days, lightless nights and common sense are asking every patriotic American to KILL WASTE—to STOP THE LEAKAGE,—

TRIANGLE

—why don't you hitch your check writing arm to your brain?

Quit flirting with the Sheriff and his FOR SALE sign if you expect that theatre of yours to feed and clothe the wife and baby during the rest of the year 1918.

Triangle dollars are spent so efficiently that they get right through to your screen 99% strong.

We've cut the corners, but we've saved the meat for you. There isn't a ten thousand dollar a week star on our payroll. Our department heads and managers are business men with a product that was designed as systematically as ever Ford built an automobile.

Triangle days may not be the largest box office days in your town but at the end of the month your Triangle contract will help you pay back some of the money you gambled away with other pictures.

We expect to make in 1918 more pictures of high quality and box office value than all the rest of them put together—the Triangle machine is oiled, steam is up—are you ready to ride?

There's a Triangle Exchange just at the other end of your telephone—and we pay the war tax.

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway, New York

S. A. LYNCH, President
R. W. LYNCH, Vice President
FRED KENT, Treasurer
Y. F. FREEMAN, General Manager

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY, Inc.

ANNOUNCE

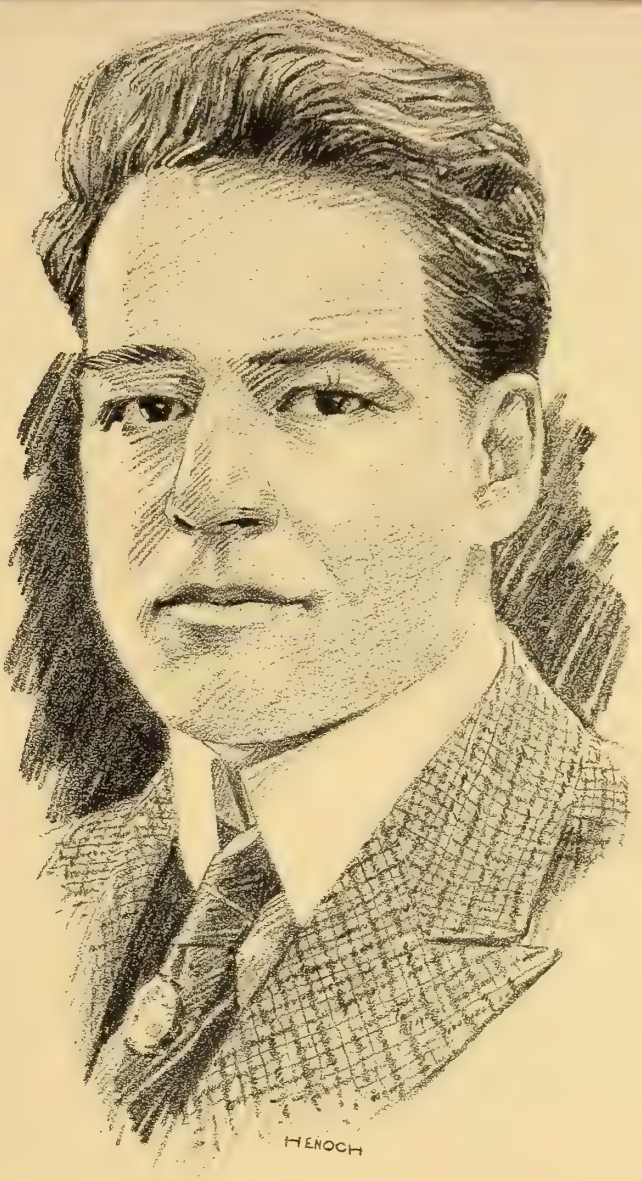
The First Showing of the Most Vital Production of the Year

AMBASSADOR

JAMES W. GERARD'S

"MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY"

Beginning March 10th, TWICE DAILY
FOR AN INDEFINITE ENGAGEMENT



AT THE

KNICKERBOCKER THEATRE

NEW YORK

Directed by WILLIAM NIGH

Adapted for the screen by Chas. A. Logue

Mr. William Russell

Announces

The organization of WILLIAM RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS for the picturization of a series of special feature dramas of quality and magnitude and—

A contract for the distribution of these productions through the exchanges of the MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION.

WILLIAM RUSSELL
PRODUCTIONS
6411 Hollywood Blvd Los Angeles California

The exquisite

MARGARITA FISCHER

in "Ann's Finish"

The story of a man in a girl's room and what happened

Produced by American Film Company, Inc.

Available Mar[illegible] through Mutual Film Exchanges

Supporting—

BILLIE RHODES

in

STRAND COMEDIES

100 per cent quality

In first class Theatres Everywhere

Booking at Mutual Exchanges

STANDARD PICTURES
At prices within the
CONTRACT NOW

WILLIAM FARNUM
IN
Victor Hugo's Master-drama
LES MISERABLES
A William Farnum Deluxe Production
Directed by Frank Lloyd

THEDA BARA
IN
THE FORBIDDEN PATH
A Theda Bara Super-production
Directed by J. Gordon Edwards

FOX FILM

THAT CAN BE BOOKED NOW

reach of all exhibitors

AT ANY BRANCH

CHEATING The PUBLIC

ALL STAR CAST

The most thrilling cinemelodrama of modern times
Directed by Richard Stanton

Jane and Katherine LEE

IN

AMERICAN BUDS

A patriotic drama with an all star cast of grown-ups
Directed by Kenean Buel

CORPORATION

FOX
SPECIAL FEATURES
One a week
52 - a year

JEWEL CARMEN in
The Girl with the Champagne Eyes

PEGGY HYLAND in
The Debt of Honor

March Releases

GLADYS BROCKWELL
in
The Devil's Wheel

VIRGINIA PEARSON
in
A Daughter of France

GEORGE WALSH in
The Kid is Clever

Contract Now
FOX FILM CORPORATION

NEARING COMPLETION

"The SERVANT in the HOUSE"

A PREDESTINED SUCCESS

A wonderful story from

The famous play—with

A notable cast,

Excellently directed.

The settings are unique,

The photography perfect!

THE ULTIMATE IN MOTION PICTURES!

TRIANGLE
FILM
CORPORATION
1459 BROADWAY
NEW YORK CITY

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

She was poor, defeated and on the verge of ending her life when, suddenly Deception showed her the way to riches and luxury. She made her decision and the most amazing thing in the world happened to her-

Exquisite

EMMY WEHLEN
in The SHELL GAME

A Metro all star series production in 5 Acts from the famous story "Good Will and Almond Shells-as written by Kenneth L. Roberts for the Saturday Evening Post. Directed by George D. Baker

Released by METRO March 4th

MAXWELL KARGER Manager of Productions

More reviews of Nazimova in Revelation and not a voice of dissent-

Motion Picture News

NAZIMOVA reveals herself as a true artiste of the screen in "Revelation," a Metro special. That tendency to be too emotional and her ignorance of all the niceties of studio makeup which were the only drawbacks to her performance in "War Brides" have been overcome in this, her second appearance in pictures. And here, too, she is provided with a role which offers her versatility full play. As Joline, the Parisian cabaret dancer, unthinking and unbelieving, to whom the fact of God is revealed by a miracle, Nazimova gives a characterization rich in contrast and capable of playing the full scale of human emotions. At one moment she is the careless, selfish Joline. At the very next she is the seeming embodiment of spiritual innocence and suffering. Hers is the ability to sway her audience from laughter to tears by the mere change of expression, so significant that Joline becomes a character that one knows intimately, that one feels with, suffers with and joys with. If Nazimova were unknown "Revelation" would establish her.

In pointing out the chief merits of the story the reviewer must perforce come back to Nazimova every time. Her distinctly foreign beauty, her slim figure, even her short hair, make her a most realistic Joline, introduced as dancer in a Parisian cafe. Her meeting with the artist, Paul, the immediate awakening of her love for him are full of interest. Then comes Paul's success, a success he seems to forget is partly due to Joline his model. He plans doing a Madonna. With Joline as model? Joline! Joline a Madonna! Paul smiles at the thought of it. But in jealous passion she prevents him hiring another model and proves herself actress enough to take the part to perfection. Here is a passage filled with humor, which, at the same time, possesses a subtle undercurrent of pathos. It is delightful. Then comes the revelation even after Joline has mocked the Church and subsequently the birth of a truer and finer love than she had ever known before. In each phase Nazimova rises to her opportunities with the result that the picture is never without interest and generally truly absorbing.

The picture is based on the novel by Mabel Wagnalls, "A Rose Bush of a Thousand Years." George Baker collaborated on the continuity and directed. It is without doubt his greatest production.

Moving Picture World

ALL those who witnessed Nazimova in the screen version of "War Brides" are aware of the intensity of feeling at her command. It remained for "Revelation" to show the range and perfect control of her art. The seven-part photoplay adapted from Mabel Wagnalls' novel, "A Rosebush of a Thousand Years," and produced by Metro Pictures Corporation, is a fine vehicle for the display of this ardent Russian woman's electric acting. The story has romance, ideality, beauty of thought and dramatic strength. It suffers an unnecessary slacking up of its action, near the close, by the retention of a superfluous portion of the printed story, but most of the picture is of so high an order of merit and is acted with such superb art by the star that it outranks ninety per cent. of representative screen products. ***

As to Nazimova, a new and brilliant screen star has arisen. Since the making of her first picture she has mastered every detail of photoplay technic. Her own force of character and intellectual equipment have already carried her far in the spoken drama, and she takes her rightful place among the leaders of the silent stage before "Revelation" comes to the end of the first reel. The quick temper, reckless spirit, elfish love of mischief and warm heart of this volatile girl of the studios are indicated with surprising ease and firmness. Disguised as an impudent young porter, she wears the clothing and the manners of the character with a saucy air that convulses the beholder. A moment later, garbed as the Holy Mother, she checks the laugh instantly and excites only profound reverence. She is shown, half mad with jealousy, trying to tear to pieces a model who has come to pose as the Madonna in her place; but the light that looks out of the eyes beneath her nurse's cap is that of a woman who has found her soul through sacrifice and bitter pain. She laughs and weeps, smiles and pouts, sins and suffers, as might the real Joline, and gives refreshing proof that the mission of an actress, even on the screen, is to act—not to pose.

The Bill Board

This is a graphic story, told with trenchant emphasis and flawless continuity, leading up to a gripping climax. From a Parisian cabaret dancer to a madonna in a cloister is a stupendous leap, but the gulf is spanned in a brief hiatus by the heroine of Revelation. This unusual photoplay is a whale of a hit, and the public will flock to it like a house afire. This is one of the best of Metro releases, and an assured box-office success, the hour being pregnant with a spiritual upheaval following the great war's devastation. Madame Nazimova and Revelation will be hard to beat. The screen drama is without a doubt a classic and reflects the highest standard in picturization. The story evolves rather slowly at first, but when it reaches the point of gripping heart interest it registers a solar-plexus blow that starts the tears flowing like swiftly falling rain. No better scene of a battlefield with the dead and dying strewn about like gray ashes, with soldiers toppling into the trenches and ruthless destroying missiles clouding the air, while DEATH shrieks out its triumph—a brutal, barbaric vizualization of modern warfare that has not been equaled in the silent drama. A thrill like the explosion of a Zeppelin playing tag with a U-boat is felt when our boys go over the top, and in the carnage that follows one remembers Sherman's words. Yet Revelation is not a war play, but has a spiritual appeal, as it depicts the gradual awakening of lethargic souls from base passions to the sublimity of unselfish sacrifice.

To Exhibitors—

Get this tremendous production and get it quickly — before your rival beats you to it-

METRO

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

Your big chance

LEST WE FORGET with RITA JOLIVET after a record run at the Lyric, N.Y. is breaking records at Marcus Loew's Big Palace Theatre, Brooklyn. This production is an absolute clean up for Exhibitors.

The Bolshevik commanders have called on the women fighters to defend Russia. You see women actually fighting in the trenches in

The LEGION of DEATH

with The Incomparable

EDITH STOREY

Advertise this big feature and reap a harvest

B. A. ROLFE presents

VIOLA DANA in BLUE JEANS

The greatest repeat production ever offered.

EMILY STEVENS in The Slacker

MABEL TALIAFERRO in Draft 258

Two absolutely demonstrated successes.

Coming PAYDAY, the feature novelty of novelties with the DREWS

Every one of these cash making METRO attractions is

Your big chance

A Selexart Production

"Carmen of the Klondike"

Conceived and Written
by
MONTE M. KATTERJOHN

Directed by
REGINALD BARKER

! A Tremendous Sensation !

An epic of snow-bound Alaska;—
where men measure their brute strength for the possession of mother Earth's treasure;—
where they think with fists hard as steel,
and love
with the hearts of children !

Featuring
CLARA WILLIAMS

Playing at Strand Theatre
NEW YORK CITY
Week of March Fourth

STATE RIGHTS DISTRIBUTORS, Incorporated
418 LONGACRE BLDG., NEW YORK CITY

A magazine's success is measured by its advertising. Look at the "News!"

The Key to Success Is Co-operation

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

Asks YOU, THE EXHIBITORS, to get rid of the staggering expenses and r u i n o u s competition that threaten to strangle the industry.

The time has come for plain words. Unless this plan of concerted operations be adopted, the business of motion picture exhibition faces the direst and blackest disaster in the history of commercial amusements. War caused practically all producers and 25 per cent of the picture theatres of England and of France to close. Expenses must be cut—middlemen eliminated—exhibitors' rentals reduced—cash paid producers so they will dare make bigger and better pictures—all this can be accomplished—but only by exhibitor co-operative buying.

THE OLD WAY

1 Overproduction and consequent waste of negative and positive.

2 Useless competition of distributors' exchanges.

3 Millions wasted in home office overhead.

4 Big salaries to stars who are not stars.

5 Charging what the traffic will bear, meaning UNLIMITED PROFITS.

6 Contracts hog-tying the exhibitor, thus rendering him helpless.

7 Anarchy and haphazard profiteering.

THE NEW WAY

1 Production only at exhibitor demand.

2 No costly exchanges—merely inexpensive service depots.

3 Overhead cut down to a tiny fraction of film cost.

4 Careful selection of stars of proved drawing power.

5 Charging only the CERTIFIED COST plus a reasonable percentage for producer's profit.

6 Easy agreements, in the framing of which the exhibitor-stockholder has a share.

7 Helpful, friendly cooperation and profit-sharing between producer and exhibitor.

Eliminating the Waste of Competition

Motion Picture Proprietors of the Nation, Now Is the Time to Assert Your Collective Buying Power

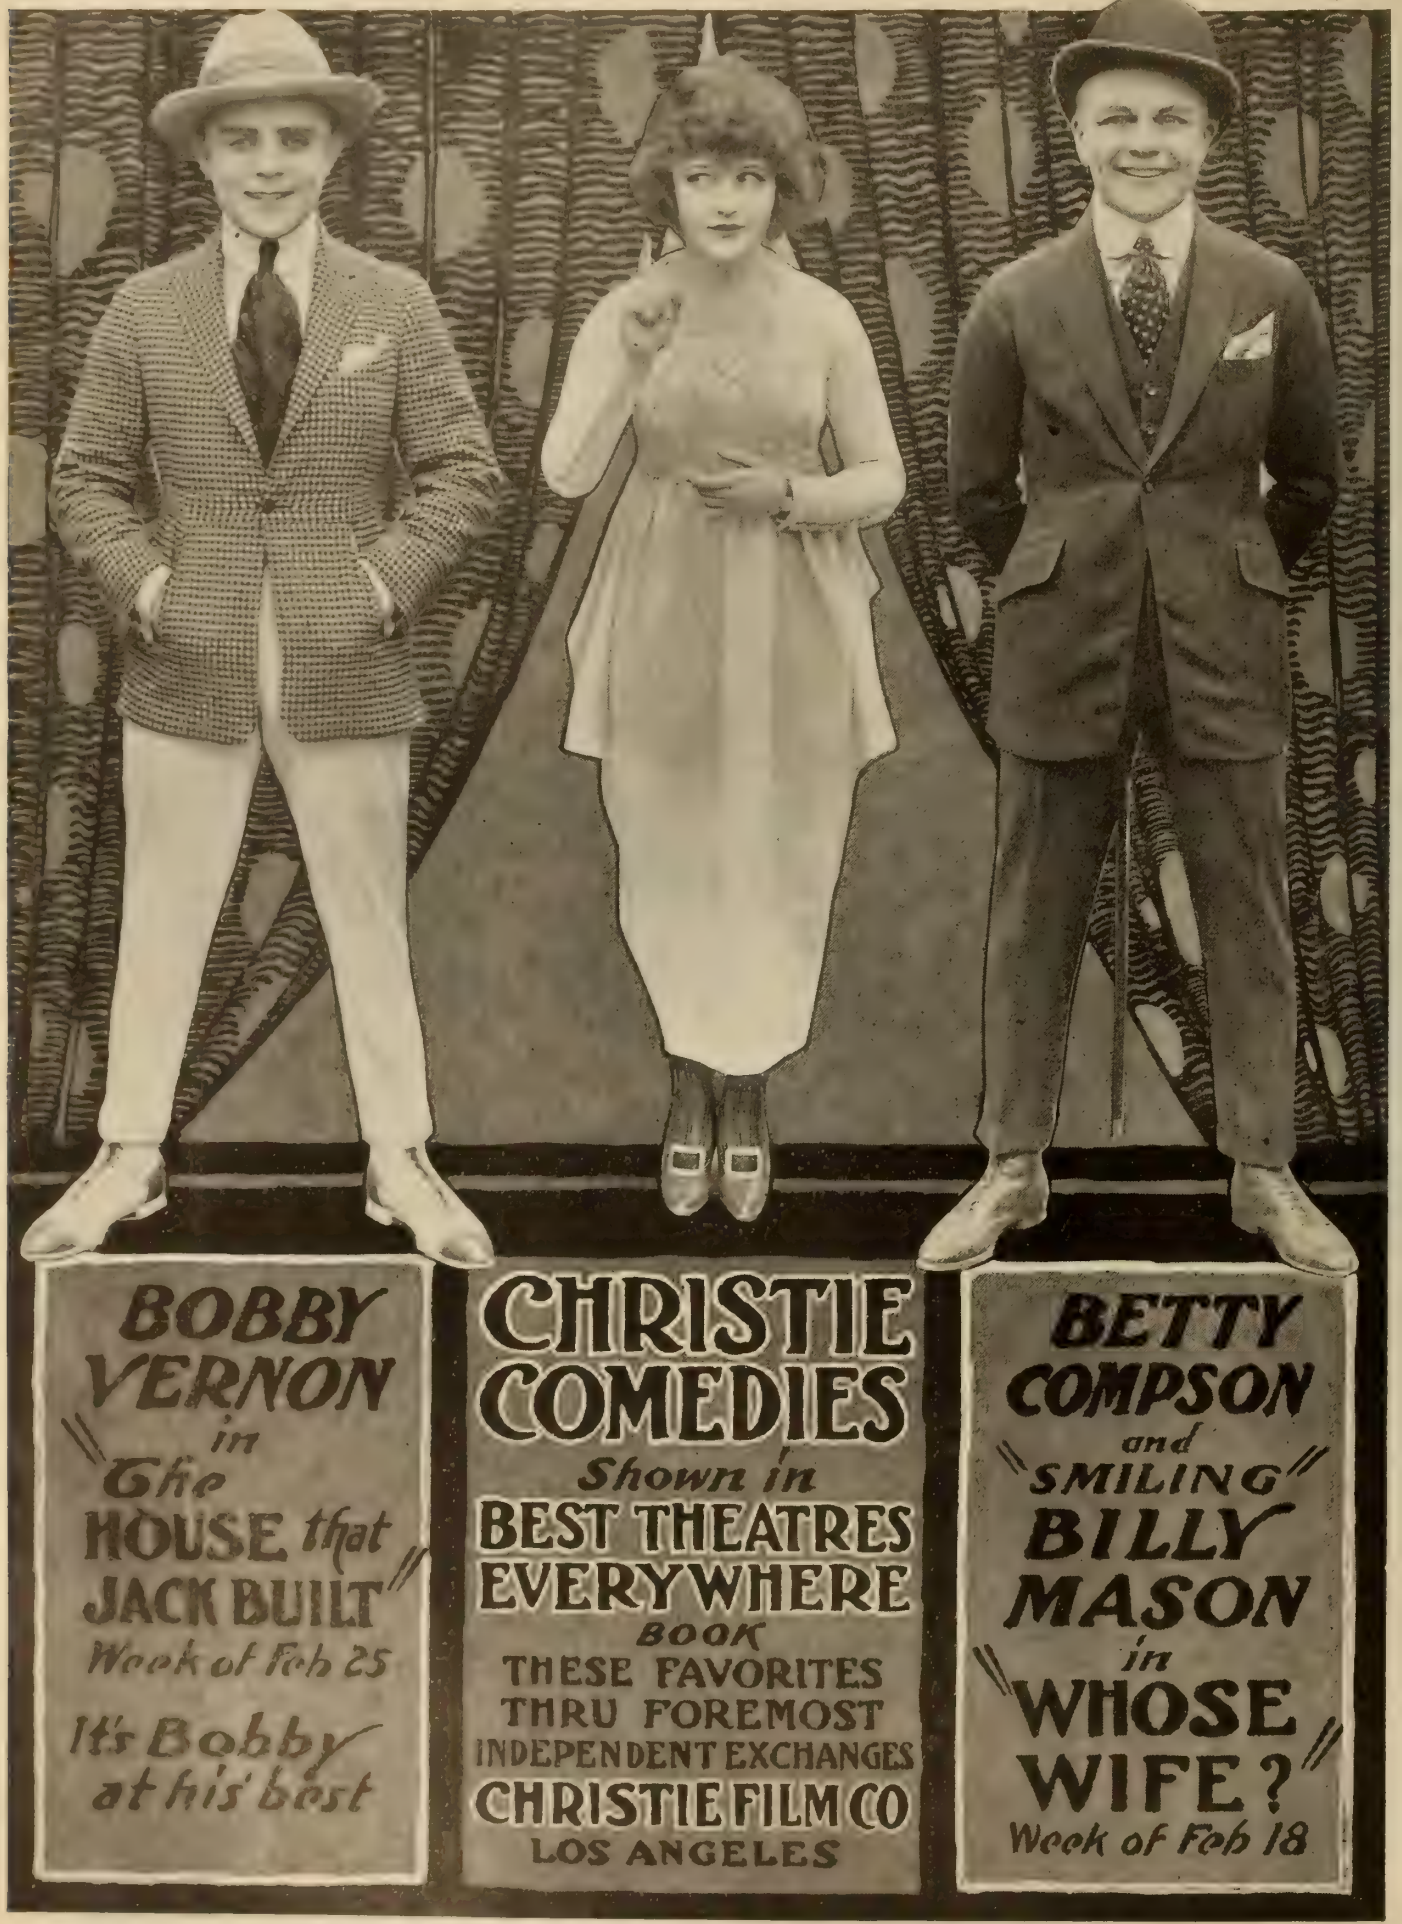
Study carefully the differences between the present out-dated distributing system and the new way which we outline.

The most trusted leaders of exhibitor-activity and exhibitor-organization are concerted in this plan. Cooperation cannot proceed from the producers or distributors—that has been tried and failed. The only true and economical cooperation is among yourselves—in the exercise of your united buying power.

We are in this campaign with good will to all and malice toward none. Producers will experience the benefit of the plan because the enormous waste due to the present hurried and mechanical manufacture and the present uneven, unscientific and unsatisfactory method of distribution will be eliminated. The producer will always find an excellent market for his standardized product with us, a product that will be distributed in all sections of the country with equal thoroughness, and the prompt payment for which will enable the producer to do away with financial worries and the making of pictures by the clock or the calendar.

Fill out and mail the blank today, and we will explain in detail how you can enroll in this great, nation-wide movement.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC.
1600 Broadway, New York



UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA, INC.
Dept. N, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Gentlemen: Please advise me of the detailed plans of your organization, methods of enrollment, and participation by individual exhibitors in its savings and benefits.

Name .....

Theatre .....

City and State .....

BOBBY VERNON
in
"The HOUSE that JACK BUILT"
Week of Feb 25
It's Bobby at his best
CHRISTIE COMEDIES
Shown in BEST THEATRES EVERYWHERE BOOK
THESE FAVORITES
THRU FOREMOST
INDEPENDENT EXCHANGES
CHRISTIE FILM CO
LOS ANGELES
BETTY COMPSON
and
"SMILING" BILLY MASON
in
"WHOSE WIFE?"
Week of Feb 18

SHIPPING CONDITIONS IN WAR-TIME

(Little Talks With Foreign Buyers—No. 3)

By

President

A 1917 FACTOR in Inter-Ocean's success has been its keen knowledge of the varying shipping conditions caused by the Great War. Our energies and methods have been on a war-time basis! All sorts of shipping "switches" occurred last year but—due to our intensive watch—we ANTICIPATED ALL OF THEM. Our customers reaped the spectacular benefit! They received their American films altho competitors suffered all sorts of disappointment. Small wonder these buyers have become our warmest boosters. They swear by the Inter-Ocean system that guarantees satisfaction under any and all conditions, even those of war-time. They swear by Inter-Ocean's market knowledge—the knowledge that tells us what sort of productions that theatres the world over are MAKING MONEY WITH. These films are selected by us from the following list of material, which we exclusively represent in the foreign market:

52 World Films (Brady-Made) a year; featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "Today," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules;" the surefire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION

PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L MGR. — 220 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields

THE WHARTONS PRESENT AMERICA'S SERIAL SUPREME

"THE EAG

The Story of the Imperial German

By WILLIAM J. FLYNN recently retired

The Public Wants to See It

Despite the fact that New York was in the grip of one of the worst blizzards of this winter; that 10,000 soldiers from Camp Upton were parading Fifth Avenue less than a block away; that every theatre in the city was given a special holiday matinee, more than 1,600 people crowded into a room which was prepared for 1,000. More than 1,200 eager guests permit them to enter the ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore, where there was an unadvertised showing of the first three episodes of

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

The Public Will Know Where to See It

More newspapers have been given contracts for space in which to advertise it, and the theatres booking it, than have ever been used in exploiting any serial. More helps to exhibitors in gaining their local publicity at little, or no cost, have been prepared for it than for any other serial. The importance of the subject, the authenticity of it, the general public interest in it, all advertise

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

BOOK THROUGH FOURSQUARE

ATLANTA, GA.,
73 Walton Street

BOSTON, MASS.,
16 Piedmont Street.

BUFFALO, N. Y.,
47 W Swan Street.

CINCINNATI, OHIO,
301 Strand Theatre Bldg.

CLEVELAND, OHIO,
312 Sloan Bldg

CHICAGO, ILL
207 S. Wabash Avenue.

DALLAS, TEX.,
1911 Commerce Street.

DENVER, COLO.
1735 Walton St

DETROIT MICH.,
304 Joseph Mack Bldg.

KANSAS CITY, MO.,
1120 Walnut Street.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.,
514 W 8th Street.

With KING BAGGOT and

The Favorite Stars o

"THE EAG

LE'S EYE"

ernment's Spies and Plots in America

IEF OF U. S. SECRET SERVICE

OF THESE HANGES

EAPOLIS, MINN.,
Fourth Street.

ORK, N Y.,
eventh Avenue.

DELPHIA, PA.,
Vine Street

BURGH, PA.,
ourth Avenue

LE, WASH.,
V 8th Street.

RANCISCO, CAL.,
olden Gate Avenue.

UIS, MO.,
mpress Theatre Bldg

N, N. F., on Street.

TO, CAN.,
nge Street.

REAL, CAN.,
ill College Avenue.

The Public Should See It

It is the only authentic revelation of the activities of the vast spy-army of the Imperial German Government in America. It is based upon actual facts furnished by the greatest authority on the subject, William J. Flynn, recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service. Twenty reasons why this country is at war with Imperial Germany—one vital reason exposed in each episode—makes this the most damning indictment against the Kaiser that has ever been prepared for the public, as shown in

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

Help the Public to See It

The exhibitor is the man to whom the public must look for the opportunity to see it. Aside from the importance of the subject its picture value sets a new pace for serials. The situations are thrilling. The romantic interest is sustained and exciting. The acting is superb. The impersonations are marvelous. Further, it is timely, topical and patriotic in its appeal. The public want to see it. The public should see it Satisfy and gratify your patrons by booking

"THE EAGLE'S EYE"

ARGUERITE SNOW

on Picture Patrons

LE'S EYE"

AMERICA'S SERIAL
SUPREME
PRODUCED BY THE WHARTONS

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

W. S. HART

THE BIG 4

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

NORMA TALMADGE

FRANK KEENAN

Are the stars you can depend upon in the list of Triangle features that S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., announce have been sold for the following territories:

MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT, RHODE ISLAND, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE and VERMONT, to Boston Photoplay Company, 195 Pleasant St., Boston, Mass.

EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY, to Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA and WEST VIRGINIA, to Quality Film Company, 404 Ferry St., Pittsburgh, Pa.

WASHINGTON, OREGON, IDAHO and MONTANA, to De Luxe Feature Film Company, 2014 Third Ave., Seattle, Wash.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, MARYLAND, DELAWARE and VIRGINIA, to Superfeatures, Inc., Sidney B. Lust, 1209 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA and NEVADA, to Sunset Film Corporation, Julius L. Lazarus, Pres., San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif.

ILLINOIS and INDIANA (Talmadge and Keenan Re-Issues), to Central Film Corporation, 110 S. State St., Chicago, Ill.

MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA, TEXAS, OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, S. CAROLINA, N. CAROLINA, MISSISSIPPI, LOUISIANA and TENNESSEE, will be handled by the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., through the Triangle Exchanges, in the following cities: Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

Regarding Territories Not Closed as Yet, Apply for Detailed Information to

HILLER & WILK, Inc.

1476 Broadway, New York

Selling Agents for the S. A. LYNCH ENTERPRISES, Inc.

The Motion Picture Industry

has undergone many changes during its lifetime. But from the very first, one name has been a synonym not only of enterprise but of stability — a name known in every quarter of the globe - - - - - - - -

GAUMONT

Pictorial News Service

As necessary as the daily paper. Gaumont News Service covers the world. It is comparable only to the Associated Press dispatches of the newspapers.

A better plan of distribution soon will enable every theater to show - - - - -

The News Reel of Real News

Gaumont Co.

PARIS FLUSHING, N. Y. LONDON

A Radical Step in Review Service

¶ Next week MOTION PICTURE NEWS will inaugurate a department of picture review service, marking a revolutionary departure in film trade journalism.

¶ This department, linked with our remarkably successful Exhibitors' Own Box Office Reports, will mean the last word in direct and authoritative service to the exhibitor on the product on which his business success depends.

¶ P. S. Harrison, well known on the West Coast through his exchange association with W. W. Hodkinson and C. Mel Simmons, and also active as an exhibitor for years, has been engaged to conduct the new service.

¶ Given a free hand, Mr. Harrison will view all pictures with the eyes of a man experienced in box office values. His opinions will be presented to you in concise, readable manner, shorn of all adjectives and confusing verbiage. No more wading through columns of fine writing to end in indecision—the Harrison reviews will be the crisp, terse appraisals that you would yourself give to a fellow exhibitor asking your opinion of a picture you had just viewed.

¶ In addition, Mr. Harrison will seek to give advance appraisals of the posters and other advertising matter on all features.

¶ Watch for this department in next week's MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

¶ We can't possibly give you all the details here. But we can say that after next week it will be possible for the exhibitor to get in a glance every possible bit of advance information on his bookings. "Every possible bit"—remember that and weigh it up next week.

A shot rings out upon the air,
A woman staggers down the stair!
My God, those eyes they haunt me still!
Forgive me, Phil; forgive me, Phil!
And, now we've met you face to face,
We want to say we took this space
To tell you that we hope you'll like
The Twins that we call MIKE and IKE

Will make a weekly appearance in a one reel production. Goldberg's cartoons appear daily in more than two hundred newspapers in the United States

HARRY GROSSMAN, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

WATCH
FOR HAYAKAWA PRODUCTIONS
Made by
MOST UNIQUE OF
ALL SCREEN STARS

SON OF JAPAN
Now Heading His Own Company

For Release and Other Particulars

Write or Wire

HAWORTH PICTURES CORP.
H. W. Hellman Bldg. Los Angeles, Cal.

BRONCHO BILLY—REVIVIFIED

BRONCHO BILLY
(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

Essanay yields to popular demand from showmen all over the country and announces an immediate weekly release of the world famous single reel Western BRONCHO BILLY (Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.) subjects.

No other character ever enjoyed the phenomenal success in shows that was afforded BRONCHO BILLY, the first exponent of the drama of the hills and plains, as well as the greatest. He appeared every week in a thrilling, Western picture for years, to the delight of millions of "fans." Every single reel BRONCHO BILLY has more action, story, plot than the present day five reel features. The best of the famous BRONCHO BILLY pictures only will be offered. All re-edited and rebuilt.

HERE ARE THE FIRST TEN—BOOK THEM ALL

"Broncho Billy's Leap"
"Broncho Billy and the Rattler"
"Broncho Billy's Close Call"
"Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter"
"Broncho Billy's Indian Romance"
"Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need"
"Broncho Billy's Wild Ride"
"Broncho Billy's First Arrest"
"Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child"
"Broncho Billy's Last Deed"

BETTER THAN EVER—ALL NEW PAPER
WONDERFUL PHOTOGRAPHIC BEAUTY
See Them Before Booking

George Kleine System
Distributors Everywhere—Now

ESSANAY

Perfection Pictures

GEORGE K. SPOOR
Presents

I, MARY MacLANE
in
"Men Who Have Made Love to Me"

GEORGE K. SPOOR
Presents

TAYLOR HOLMES
in
"Uneasy Money"
By P. G. Wodehouse

George K. Spoor says:

You are in the show business. Essanay has produced these two features, not just as pictures, but as shows. It has taken particular pains to make them stand out distinctive from other pictures. Here's your opportunity. Take your place in the front rank of the country's showmen. These shows are backed by national billboard advertising.

Essanay

Distributed by
GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM
Throughout the United States

Perfection Pictures

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 11. March 16, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

BEFORE YOU LEAP—(WM. A. JOHNSTON).....1549
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1550
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER.....1551
SYSTEMATIZING DISTRIBUTION (BY JESSE J. GOLDBERG) 1552
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS—WILLIAMS?.....1559
DIARY OF A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR.....1575
THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER.....1601

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Box-Office Reports.....1565
Exhibitors' Service Bureau.....1568
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors.....1574
Ready-Made Ad-Talks 1578
Short Subjects in Review.....1593
Releases—Current and Coming.....1615-16-17-18
Projection Department 1622
Music and the Picture.....1629
Theatres Worth While.....1633

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Laemmle Celebrates Anniversary.....1555
Mutual Names New Directors.....1556
Seattle Plans Film Ball.....1557
Live News from the Producers.....1580
Advance Offerings of the Programs.....1589
In the Independent Field.....1600
Canadian News Notes.....1605
In and Out of West Coast Studios.....1606

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Beggar Woman, The" (Russian Art-Pathe).....1608
"Broncho Billy's Leap" (George Kleine-Essanay).....1614
"Eve's Daughter" (Famous Players-Paramount).....1611
"Family Skeleton, The" (Paramount-Ince).....1612
"Girl in the Dark, The" (Bluebird).....1612
"Girl of the Prophecy, The" (Pathe).....1611
"Hard Rock Breed, The" (Triangle).....1611
"Headin' South" (Artcraft).....1609
"House of Glass, The" (Select).....1608
"Huck and Tom" (Lasky-Paramount).....1613
"Hungry Eyes" (Bluebird).....1628
"Matinee Girl, The" (George Kleine-Edison).....1614
"Midnight Trail, The" (Mutual-American).....1609
"Nobody's Wife" (Universal).....1609
"Rebound, The" (Pathe).....1612
"Ruggles of Red Gap" (Essanay-Perfection).....1608
"Sheriff Nell's Tussle" (Paramount-Mack Sennett).....1608
"Sign Invisible, The" (First National Exhibitors).....1614
"Trimmed Lamp, The" (General Film).....1612
"Triumph of Venus, The" (Victory Film).....1610
"Unmasking, The" (Pathe).....1611
"Wasp, The" (World Films).....1610
"Woman Eternal, The" (Shubert-Hammerstein).....1610

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Carey Goes Back to Western Melodrama in "Thieves' Gold" 1504
"The Blue Bird," What it Stands for and What it Will Mean to the Exhibitor.....1505-1506
"Headin' South" Is Fairbanks' latest..... 1507
Polly Moran Is Another of the Sheriff Nell Series from Sennett 1508
Marguerite Clark in "Rich Man, Poor Man," Version of Broadhurst Play 1509
"The Guilty Man," a Paramount Special..... 1510
Alice Brady in "The Knife"..... 1511
Vitagraph Re-Issues Drew Comedies..... 1512
"The Desired Woman," from Vitagraph Stars Harry Morey and Florence Deshon..... 1513
What a Michigan Exhibitor Says Regarding Goldwyn's....1514
A Goldwyn Talk to Exhibitors.....1515
About Paralta's "Within the Cup"..... 1516
The Hodkinson-Paralta Combination..... 1517
"Daughter of Uncle Sam" Unanimously Approved..... 1518
"Gravel Bank or Gold Mine?"—A Message from General Film..... 1519
Eliminate Waste Is Gist of Triangle's Weekly Letter..1520-1521
"My Four Years in Germany" Booked for New York House 1522
Mutual's Offerings Have Special Interest.....1523-1524
"Supporting Billie Rhodes"—What?..... 1525
Fox Releases 1526
Fox Standard Pictures That All Can Book Now...1527-1528
"The Servant in the House" Promises to be Exceptional.. 1529
Emmy Wehlen in a Picture That Is Different..... 1530
More Praise of Nazimova in "Revelation"..... 1531
Big Chances for Exhibitors Offered in Metro Releases... 1532
"Carmen of the Klondike" Goes in New York's Strand.. 1533
The United Picture Theatres Announcement.....1534-1535
Christie Comedies 1536
Inter-Ocean 1537
"The Eagle's Eye".....1538-1539
Hiller and Wilk Offer Pictures with Four Big Stars.... 1540
Gaumont a Name That Remains Steadfast in Picture Industry 1541
Mike and Ike and "Rube" Goldberg..... 1543
The Hayakawa Feature Productions..... 1544
Broncho Billy Here Again!..... 1545
Essanay's Big Feature Attractions..... 1546
"Ruggles of Red Gap" Gets Quick Praise..... 1548
An Invitation to the Universal Studios.....1594-1595
And Yet Another Universal Serial.....1596-1597
Profit by England's Lesson, Says Universal Speaking of Comedies 1598

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1918, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

CALLS "RUGGLES OF RED GAP" A SCREAM

The Exhibitors' Trade Review says: "The story and dramatization of 'Ruggles of Red Gap' were a scream. The acting of Taylor Holmes and Frederick Burton alone is worth going to see, but there are other things which make the picture unusual. The scenes in the Grand Canyon are wonderful and the photography very superior."

NATIONAL BILLBOARD ADVERTISING

DISTRIBUTED BY GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM THROUGHOUT THE UNITED STATES

GEORGE K. SPOOR PRESENTS

TAYLOR HOLMES IN "RUGGLES OF RED GAP"

AT ALL FIRST CLASS PICTURE THEATRES

ASK WHEN!

Perfection Pictures

MAR -7 1918 ©CLB409769

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 11 March 16, 1918

Before You Leap—

WE referred some time ago to exhibitors' cooperative booking circuits—their rapid development along local lines and their probable expansion into national bodies.

The movement, we stated, was one of significance and bound to assume considerable importance.

Today the development of these bodies is well under way. So much so that practically every exhibitor in this country already is a member or will be asked to become a member of a national and cooperative booking circuit.

It therefore behooves him to think very clearly and with much foresight before he allies himself in any large or permanent way with any one of these plans.

The movement is significant we have said.

It is significant in a general way of exhibitor unrest—a stirring against industrial abuses and waste—a striving after salable product with profit-making possibilities.

WE shall have to draw a sharp dividing line here, however, between the large theatres and the smaller houses—a division to which we have already referred in other connections. The unrest among the larger theatres today is more particularly in the way of an effort to guarantee the future and not so much a protest against present conditions.

The larger theatres today are about in this position: they have very large investments, ranging all the way from one hundred thousand dollars to as high as nearly two million dollars; they have the seating capacity to make considerable money provided their pictures will attract the public; they get good admission prices; they are not strenuously objecting to high rentals (we know of one house that has paid a weekly film rental as high as four thousand dollars). Their main concern is to know that they will continue to get the pictures their public demands. In fact, to put it plainly, the value of their large investment hinges almost entirely upon this one big consideration.

As a consequence, they feel a considerable sympathy with the manufacturers. They realize that each other's interests are interdependent. On the one hand they must have pictures of an assured and permanent standard; on the other, they realize that the manufacturer must be encouraged—by them—to turn out such a product.

The smaller houses, or at least that very large percentage of them which are either breaking even only or else losing money right along, feel altogether differently—and naturally so. They consider themselves oppressed and discriminated against. They are out of joint with the manufacturer. They are naturally, therefore, turning toward each other to form some kind of a mutually protective union.

WE have said that the exhibitors' cooperative movement is of much significance.

But we believe that this significance goes deeper down than the matter of exhibitor unrest—and for instance, the effort through cooperation to reduce distribution expense and other industrial wastes.

If we are to consider the subject of cooperative agencies we shall have to do so in a broad way. We must include the factor of manufacturer-exhibitor cooperation, as well as purely exhibitor-exhibitor cooperation; for in the pages of Motion Picture News there have already been announced the plans and policies of manufacturer-exhibitor cooperation, and it is a fact today that the manufacturer realizes keenly that he must cooperate with the exhibitor if both are to succeed.

We have, in fact, very little hope for any manufacturer today who does not feel keenly this necessity.

THE deep down significance of this whole cooperative movement—amongst the exhibitors alone and also between manufacturers and exhibitors—is simply this: that at last the realization is fully here, that the picture houses of the United States constitute the industry's greatest and most solid asset. The total investment runs into many millions—in fact, there are instances of single theatres the actual capital investment in which is greater than that of some of the leading producer-distributor corporations.

This million fold investment represents real estate, leases based upon real estate values, building, equipment—in other words, substantial enduring and material values. Through the box-offices of these theatres come the millions of dol-

(Continued on next page)

Speaking Editorially:

He Never Saw the Picture

IN referring to the Russian situation last week and in asserting a firm belief we hold that this great nation could have been held to the Allies' cause through proper and sufficient film propaganda, we referred to the one worth while American picture sent there as having conveyed an unfortunate impression of American capitalistic enterprise to the Russian proletariat.

In making the statement we were misled by an appraisal of the picture in an article which appeared in the Sunday New York American of February 23d.

The writer of this article we are now convinced never saw the picture. We have just had this privilege; and we are enthusiastic over the picture, as well as over its wide distribution and effective exhibition. The picture reflects the greatest of credit upon its makers, their patriotism, liberality, painstaking labor, and ability.

We cannot write more definitely of the picture, out of deference to the idea back of it, namely to keep it free of all publicity and the slightest label of official propaganda. An excellent idea and one which should be carefully observed by the film division of the Committee of Public Information.

Caleb Powers of the Eleventh Kentucky

ALL those of the industry who went to Washington about a year ago to protest against Federal Censorship remember Congressman Caleb L. Powers of Kentucky. He was one of the members of the House Committee who signed that strong minority protest against Government Censorship of films.

But for Mr. Powers and a few others the exhibitors of Kentucky might now be bearing this unjust burden.

Caleb Powers is up for reelection. His district is the 11th of Kentucky. We believe we need not remind a single exhibitor in this district that, irrespective of politics, it is only right to be as fair to Mr. Powers as Mr. Powers has been fair to the motion picture; to be liberal to liberal-mindedness and through slides and every other means ask the voters of the 11th Kentucky to return such a man to Congress.

More to Come

A FEW weeks ago we published an article called "I Am An Exhibitor" by a contributor who signed himself "Anarchist."

"Anarchist" wanted to know why the men at the manufacturing and distributing end of the game seemed to think that all exhibitors had brows so low they collided with their chins.

From such representative exhibitors as George Carpenter in the Far West and William Fait in the East have come words of praise for "I Am An Exhibitor."

Many say they would like to see more articles by the same author. So now we announce that we have induced "Anarchist" to take a few hours off between counting up his box office and cussing the express companies to write a series.

The articles will be "humdingers." We've told "Anarchist" that he has to take the responsibility.

The Man in the Sticks—

THE Man in the Sticks is in again. This time he wants to know—

"With all this flub-dub about artistic new-art subtitles, why doesn't someone go a big step further and give us titles like the good old cleancut Biograph ones?"

The Man in the Sticks stumps us every time.

Before You Leap—

(Continued from preceding page)

lars in cash which furnish the sinews of our whole industrial fabric.

The theatres, in other words, are the broad foundation stone of the industry, and as a consequence, exhibitors, distributors and producers today are founding their plans solidly upon this essential and permanent foundation.

That is what cooperation really means—deep down.

We shall therefore have this year such plans and policies; some will make headway, some will be finally consummated and some will fall by the wayside.

IN considering his alliance with any one of these plans the exhibitor, as we have said, will have to do a lot of clear and broad thinking. His interest in them is a very simple and practical one. He wants to make money now and in the future. This involves largely two big considerations. First, he must have the right kind of pictures at logical prices. Secondly, he must sell these pictures successfully to the public.

In considering any plan he must consider these points:

First, the integrity, ability and experience of the executives behind the plan. He is in effect making these men his business partners. He should consider them in this practical light.

Secondly, he ought to investigate the history of cooperative dealers' movements in this country and abroad—their success or failure and the reasons therefor.

He will have to decide whether or not it is safe and business like for production and exhibition to be placed in the same hands.

Thirdly, and this is of the utmost importance, he must consider the matter of product.

We need not tell you—the exhibitor—what product means to you.

Product means pictures. Pictures are your attraction—for the public What the public wants you must give them if you are to fill your seats.

Any number of plans will promise good pictures. In fact, all plans will naturally proceed upon the ready made assumption that the pictures proposed will be the kind you want,—and secondly as many as you want.

But what guaranty have you? What is going to assure you enough and enough good pictures? That is the point for you to consider.

And there is also the related question: What service will you get with the picture?

All in all, the problem is the most important facing you today, demanding your most practical thought and involving most directly your future business success.

WM. A. JOHNSTON.

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

WE don't like to admit that there can be anything in MOTION PICTURE NEWS more important than this page—but occasionally the truth will out.

Every once in a while some kind friend tells us, "Say, NEWS is certainly showing some speed these days." We repeat this with all due modesty and merely to introduce the statement that the whole twelve cylinders got chug-chugging like the rattle of a machine gun a few weeks ago with a number of results—the first of which gets a four page announcement in this issue starting on page 1561.

We gave you a hint last week of our new Advisory Board of exhibitor-editors—this week you get all the details. Turn to page 1561 now and read them. Turn—gosh, how it hurts—even at the expense of "Speed and Ginger."

Four pages is a lot of space, but we have read them over in manuscript and we don't know of a word that you can afford to miss. Especially if you are a Times Square inhabitant.

For exhibitors know of the Service Bureau and what it has done. All this week's announcement means to them is a big stride forward in guaranteeing value and service.

But there are those on Times Square who still think that anything with two covers and their own advertisement somewhere in between is a picture trade paper.

* * * *

AS we said before, the twin six never worked in such glorious fashion. We had just got the plans for the Advisory Board fairly under way when the man came along who could handle another plan that had been in our minds for many moons.

He has been an exhibitor, exchange man, and all around front trench film man for over ten years. "Aha!" we said. "Here's the man who can give us the new sort of picture reviewing service. The sort that will cause exhibitors to toss their hats in the air and give three round cheers."

So next week we have another "big stride forward" to give you. You'll get the details and the service itself then; this week we give you a half-way announcement on Page 1542.

* * * *

JUST to tantalize you we might add that next week will bring still another permanent addition to MOTION PICTURE NEWS "Table of Contents."

We had better rest a while or Hoover will be after us. On a charge of over-feeding our readers.

* * * *

THAT near-System Magazine make-up on the following page is worthy of the article that Jesse J. Goldburg has contributed to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

The results of a recent trip to every exchange center in the country and much real hard statistical study have been put into this article on "Systematizing Distribution."

Two prominent film men who read it before going into type told us that they would like to see more serious business studies of this sort in MOTION PICTURE NEWS. They will.

Principally because semi-technical features in a business as complex as this one always cause discussion. And we thrive on that.

There is a possibility, for example, that some program heads reading from their own exchange figures might question some of Mr. Goldburg's calculations as to the relative values of different territories.

But in the few instances which we can call to mind where this might happen it would not be due to natural territorial conditions—the basis of Mr. Goldburg's percentages—but to the fact that in individual cases the programs are benefitting by more efficient exchange organizations.

* * * *

HOW is a poor exhibitor going to keep track of players and directors in a game like this?

Just a few weeks ago announcement was made that William Duncan, the Vitagraph serial director, was about to transfer his hat to another peg.

This week Vitagraph breaks into the NEWS with a page story on serial activities that is led off with the blunt announcement that William Duncan, of Vitagraph, is starting work on a Vitagraph successor to Vitagraph's "Vengeance—and the Woman" and "The Fighting Trail."

Well, we said a lot of good words about Duncan on this page a few weeks ago. Now we say: "Ditto."

Page 1581

* * * *

SPEAKING of producer announcements—there's a bing-bang one found in the advertising pages this week.

Universal invites all the other companies to close up their studios and come under the Universal City roof. The idea is to concentrate and save money. Universal City has the room and the facilities to house the whole blame industry—so why waste the overhead on separate establishments?

The ad makes interesting reading. Don't miss it.

And, by the way, "R. H.," if the plan goes through, please save a corner in the world's only studio for a MOTION PICTURE NEWS office.

Page 1594

* * * *

THERE are two sides to every story, aren't there?

Do you remember a story we told you last week regarding an unnamed director and what had happened to him when he sought to hold up a quick thinking producer in the middle of a picture?

We're glad now that we didn't mention names.

Because during the week we heard another story about the same director. And the other story has all the details just the opposite to the first tale.

And the director appears to have the facts on his side of the story.

Which proves that this picture life is a great one if you don't weaken.

How this country would look if the size of the states correspond to their population as shown by the last census. Each dot is 500,000 people. (Used by courtesy of System, the Magazine of Business, and O. A. Owen)

SYSTEMATIZING DISTRIBUTION

By JESSE J. GOLDBURG

IN a prior article written for the Motion Picture News I made the statement that the apportionment of percentage among the various states on productions had undergone a radical change, but here I should state without any fear of error that the percentages allotted by various state right and distributing organizations is all out of proportion, and seem to have been arrived at without any systematic attempt to regulate them according to population and the number of theatres in any particular locality.

Published herewith is the strangest map of the United States ever conceived. An examination of it will show the State of Texas reduced in size so that New York and Pennsylvania appear by comparison to occupy about three times the area, whereas Texas is actually larger than both states put together. This map shows how each state would look if the size of the states corresponded to their population, as shown by the census of 1910, and each dot represents a group of 500,000 people.

The states west of the Missouri river are as inconsiderable in population as this map actually shows. One can readily appreciate, therefore, the immense importance of New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois; a belt that comes near being one-half of the United States.

Now let us take the scale of percentage that seems to be the most popular one today, and analyze it as to its consistency and in comparison, with reference to this particular map. Illinois, with eleven centers of half a million population each, is rated at seven and one-quarter per cent of the whole, whereas the New England States, with fourteen centers of half a million population each, receives the same percentage; Kentucky and Tennessee, having eight centers of half a million population each, are apportioned at two per cent of the whole, while Michigan, having five centers of half a million population each, is apportioned to twice what Kentucky and Tennessee are rated at, namely, four per cent; but Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, with fourteen centers of half a million population each, are rated at four and three-eighths per cent; while Minnesota, Wisconsin and North and South Dakota, which have eleven centers of half a million population each, scattered over a larger area than the Texas territory, are rated at five and one-eighth per cent.

I refer to the fact that the Minnesota territory is greater in area, because it takes longer to fill bookings there than it does in Texas, has a less number of population centers of half a million or over than the Texas territory and yet is rated at a greater percentage.

Now, let me here give a classification of states with the number of cities in each state possessing a population; first, of a hundred thousand or more; second, from fifty to a hundred thousand population; and so on down to cities with a population of from five to ten thousand, in order that the exhibition value of each state might be properly gauged when it is based upon population.

Now, take by way of comparison the six New England States of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont. These six States, with transportation from State to State and from town to town, as favorable as in any other territory, and where it does not take any more time to travel from the southern to the northern end than it does to travel from Northern Illinois to Southern Illinois, we find that there are eight cities possessing a population of a hundred thousand or over, twelve cities with a population of from fifty to a hundred thousand, twenty-one cities with a population of from twenty-five to fifty thousand, fifty-six cities with a population of from ten to twenty-five thousand and one hundred and eight cities with a population of from five to ten thousand. Whereas, Illinois has one city with a population of a hundred thousand or over, three cities with a population of from fifty to a hundred thousand, eight cities of from twenty-five to fifty thousand, twenty cities with a population of from ten to twenty-five thousand and forty-one cities with a population of from five to ten thousand, and yet, according to the percentage arrangement commonly used by the motion picture industry, both territories are rated at exactly the same figure, namely seven and one-quarter per cent.

Of course, there is yet another consideration that would enter into the regulation of these percentages, namely, the number of theatres in the territory, but that does not seem to have been systematically taken into consideration by releas-

	100,000 and over	50,000 to 100,000	25,000 to 50,000	10,000 to 25,000	5,000 to 10,000
Alabama	1	1	1	4	6
Arizona	None	None	None	2	5
Arkansas	None	None	1	4	4
California	3	None	5	13	10
Colorado	1	None	2	1	7
Connecticut	2	2	3	10	20
Delaware	None	1	None	None	None
District of Columbia	1	None	None	None	None
Florida	None	1	1	2	8
Georgia	1	1	2	5	14
Idaho	None	None	None	1	4
Illinois	1	3	8	20	41
Indiana	1	4	None	20	26
Iowa	None	1	7	9	12
Kansas	None	2	1	9	14
Kentucky	1	1	2	4	12
Louisiana	1	None	1	4	5
Maine	None	1	1	5	15
Maryland	1	None	None	3	4
Massachusetts	5	7	13	30	59
Michigan	2	1	7	17	25
Minnesota	2	1	None	5	16
Mississippi	None	None	None	5	10
Missouri	2	1	2	5	16
Montana	None	None	1	5	3
Nebraska	1	None	2	1	9
Nevada	None	None	None	1	None
New Hampshire	None	1	1	6	6
New Jersey	3	6	5	19	26
New Mexico	None	None	None	1	2
New York	6	4	12	30	28
North Carolina	None	None	3	4	12
North Dakota	None	None	None	2	4
Ohio	5	3	6	23	43
Oklahoma	None	1	1	6	6
Oregon	1	None	None	1	5
Pennsylvania	3	7	10	41	69
Rhode Island	1	1	3	2	3
South Carolina	None	1	1	2	9
South Dakota	None	None	None	2	4
Tennessee	2	None	2	1	5
Texas	None	4	4	12	20
Utah	None	1	1	None	2
Vermont	None	None	None	3	5
Virginia	1	1	3	5	7
Washington	2	1	None	5	5
West Virginia	None	None	2	4	6
Wisconsin	1	None	7	10	18
Wyoming	None	None	None	1	3

ing or producing organizations, for as an example, in the six New England States there are thirteen hundred and fifty-eight motion picture theatres, and in Illinois twelve hundred and eighty-one.

The reader may readily make his own tabulation, comparing other territories which will lead to but one conclusion, and that is an inequitable percentage arrangement, commonly adopted by the industry.

So, it is readily appreciated from these tables, that with all the hue and cry for "System" and "Equity" that after all, no principles are adapted that would ordinarily apply to any other legitimate industry.

And did either time or space permit, I could quote tables and figures in connection with every branch of the industry from the producing to the exhibiting end, conclusively proving how little business logic is employed in the motion picture trade.

I have compiled my own table of percentages based upon my investigations, and which would allow of a more equitable division of price. I might forecast this: When the brains of the industry are devoted to the employment of other brains that work along intelligent lines and employ a real knowledge of the motion picture business, that productions will be made at one-half their present cost, and the biggest picture will not book for even as great a sum as one hundred dollars a day, and with both of these situations, producers will still make a profit, even greater than that which they now realize on an average, on their investment, and naturally with less risk and greater profit to both the exchange and exhibitor.

AUTHOR'S NOTE.—The figures in this article are based on the census of 1910. Total population in cities of 1,000,000 or more—18,860,920, or 20.5 per cent of the population of the United States. Total population in cities of 50,000 to 100,000—4,144,715, or 4+ per cent of the population of the United States. Total population in cities of 25,000 to 50,000—4,017,803, or 4.3+ per cent of the population of the United States. Total population in cities of 10,000 to 25,000—5,486,997, or 5.9+ per cent of the population of the United States.

Total population in cities of 5,000 to 10,000—4,305,721, or 4.6+ per cent of the population of the United States. Total population in towns under 5,000—56,585,995, or 60.5 per cent of the population of the United States. Total population of the United States—93,402,151.

Society Girls Manage a Theatre

Miss Aileen Fisher, daughter of J. N. Fisher, president of the City National Bank of Morristown, Tenn., and Miss Pauline Bruxner, daughter of Dr. D. S. Bruxner of the same city, have ventured into the motion picture industry, on the exhibiting end. They have taken over the Princess and Strand theatres in Morristown, and are making remarkable progress, it is said. Their places of amusement are reported to be fast forging to the front as among the most popular theatres in the South.

The Princess is using Paramount, Triangle, Metro and other service, and on Saturday (Goblin day) serials and short reels are presented. The Strand has been closed for repairs.

"Dupe" Controversy Breaks Out in Minneapolis

A controversy has broken out in Minneapolis over the matter of selling duplicate prints. The Standard Film Corporation claims release rights for the Northwest territory for the William S. Hart two-reel Ince pictures. The Supreme Feature Film Company of Minneapolis, the Standard people say, has "duped" these and are exploiting them, extending a false impression. A double-page advertisement in a local trade paper, inserted by the Standard Film Corporation, duly chastises the Supreme Company. Legal action is said to be impossible since the copyright on the two-reelers has expired, but Manager Stombaugh in his advertisement urges the exhibitors of the Northwest to "do the right thing." Manager Conhaim of the Supreme Feature Film Company maintains that he has as much right to the use of the pictures as has anyone. The controversy is still some distance from a decision.

Mutual Exchange in New Quarters

The Mutual New York branch exchange, of which M. J. Sullivan is manager, is now settled in its commodious new quarters in the Mecca building, Broadway and Forty-eighth street. The exchange, which occupies the entire tenth floor, has a large reception room and lounge around which are placed the executive offices, separated from each other by finely finished partitions of wood and glass. Reserved for the use of President Freuler and the directors is a conference room handsomely panelled in rare wood. The shipping department is reached by a corridor leading directly from the elevators. Adjoining it is the projection room. Mr. Sullivan, the new manager, comes from the home office in Chicago.

St. Louis Manager Visits Select Home Office

E. W. Dustin, manager of Select's St. Louis exchange, recently visited the home office in New York. He has been in charge of the St. Louis exchange for the past five months and among the interesting things he had to tell the people in the home office was how he had been instrumental in helping to take down the bars in St. Louis after only two Tuesday closings.

After a week in New York Mr. Dustin returned to St. Louis by way of Buffalo, where he visited C. R. Rogers, Select's branch manager in that city.

W. W. Irwin Makes Visit to Florida

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, left last week for a brief outing vacation in Florida, and will return in about ten days. He will visit the company's branches in the South and on the Eastern seaboard on his return trip.

Maryland Exhibitors Aroused

Hold Meeting at Baltimore to Arrange Plan of Battle Against Proposed Legislation Barring Children from Theatres

A SPECIAL meeting of the Exhibitors' League of Maryland was held last week in the New theatre, Baltimore, for the purpose of arranging a plan of action to fight the bill recently introduced in the State Legislature, which, if passed, will prohibit children under twelve years of age attending motion picture entertainments unless accompanied by their parents or legal guardians. The meeting was attended by nearly every moving picture exhibitor in Baltimore and many from New York.

The moving picture exhibitors claim that if the bill becomes a law it will mean a loss of several thousand dollars a week to them, and they are going to use every means in their power to defeat it. Frank A. Hornig, president of the League, presided at the meeting. The following committee was appointed to visit Annapolis and fight the passage of the bill: Thomas Goldberg (chairman), J. Louis Rome and Frank Durkee.

It is claimed by the exhibitors that more than 20,000 children attend motion picture entertainments in Baltimore each and every Saturday, and that on week days the average attendance is more than 10,000 a day. Many of the theatres give special Saturday morning matinees for children when educational features are shown. The exhibitors also claim that the majority of motion picture theatres in Baltimore provide special attendants for children and that when the mothers of children are downtown shopping they leave their children in the picture theatres until they are ready to return home. These children receive the best of attention, it is pointed out, and not only enjoy the entertainment but receive instruction as well.

More Weight Can Be Put in Parcels

The order of Postmaster General Burleson, issued February 27, increasing the allowable weights of parcel post packages effective March 15, will no doubt be of inestimable value to the motion picture industry as the present limitation on weights has tended to reduce the volume of business which otherwise would have been diverted from the express companies to the parcel post.

The new order of the department will permit film shipments in the first or second zones for delivery in the first, second or third zones to be as heavy as 70 pounds, where they are now restricted to 50 pounds. The weight limit for all other zones will be increased from 20 to 50 pounds. The film exchanges are utilizing the parcel post for shipments in the first and second zones in the Eastern territory, while in the West they extend into the third and fourth zones so that the industry will be very materially benefitted through this course, as both exchanges and exhibitors would thereby effect a saving in transportation charges, aggregating hundreds of dollars daily.

Brockliss Gets Moss Features for England

J. Wenecor, sales manager for the B. Moss Motion Picture Corporation, announces that he has completed arrangements with J. Frank Brockliss, whereby Mr. Brockliss has secured the rights to exhibit in England the Moss features, "One Day," "The Girl Who Doesn't Know," "Boots and Saddles" and "In the Hands of the Law."

Introducing Miss Schulberg

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Schulberg announce the birth of a daughter, Sonya Gladys, on Wednesday, February 20.

Officers Elected for Producers-Affiliated

At a meeting held February 25, 1918, executive officers of the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated were elected by the eight independent producers who plan to market their pictures from manufacturer to exhibitor direct. They are: William L. Sherrill, president; L. Lawrence Weber, vice-president; Joseph A. Golden, secretary and treasurer; I. E. Chadwick, Lester Park, L. Lawrence Weber and C. C. Pettijohn, executive committee. These officials, with the exception of C. C. Pettijohn, who is the general manager, are the producers who form the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated. William L. Sherrill is president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation, Mr. Golden is president of the Triumph Pictures, Mr. Weber is president of L. Lawrence Weber Photo Dramas, Mr. Park, president of Lillian Walker Productions, I. E. Chadwick, president of Rialto Pictures Corporation. The remaining producers who have joined the plan are Herbert Brenon, Harry Rapf, Shubert, Hammerstein and Ince.

The plan adopted by these independent producers is to eliminate all exchanges by having a committee of exhibitors arrange their own bookings in each state and also to share in the profits of each picture. It contemplates the release of one picture a week.

Seligman Offers Film to Relief Fund

Jefferson Seligman has offered the Stage Woman's War Relief the use of a motion picture called "The Corsican." The film is of particular interest as it shows the life of Napoleon, the fighting of the Old Guard, Battle of Waterloo and the Duke of Wellington with his English troops. So numerous are the entertainments being given for the soldiers and sailors by the Stage Woman's War Relief that the picture will be kept in constant use.

New Corporations

A LIST of new motion picture corporations in the States of Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, New Jersey and New York for the week ending March 2 as furnished from the records of the Corporation Trust Company, 15 Exchange Place, Jersey City, N. J., is as follows:

DELAWARE

AMERICAN PROJECTING COMPANY.—For the manufacture of motion picture cameras, etc Incorporated for $300,000, at Dover. J. P. Grier, N. D. Cross, R. E. Church, all of Chicago, Ill., are the incorporators.

CHRISTIAN HISTORY FILM SOCIETY, INC.—For the business of taking and producing motion pictures, in the sum of $300,000, at Dover. Arthur W. Britton, Samuel B. Howard, George V. Reilly, all of New York City, are interested in the venture.

QUALITY FILM CORPORATION.—For the purpose of manufacturing and dealing in motion and talking picture machines and supplies. Incorporated for $50,000, at Wilmington. F. R. Hansell, Philadelphia, Pa.; J. Vernon Pimm and S. C. Seymour, of Camden, N. J. are the incorporators.

ILLINOIS

PREMIER THEATRE COMPANY.—Incorporated to operate a moving picture theatre. $500 is the sum involved, and papers were filed at Chicago by Yadwiga T. Wrzesinski, Jozef Wreninski, Anthony Balcerzak, all of Chicago.

MARYLAND

VARIETY PICTURES CORPORATION.—To deal in motion picture films of all kinds and to conduct a general film exchange business, etc. Incorporated for $25,000, at Baltimore. J. Louis Rome, 444 Equitable Bldg., Milton Caplan, 210 N. Calvert street and Morris Klein, 509 S. Broadway, all of Baltimore, are the incorporators.

NEW JERSEY

THE MATAWAN COMPANY, INC.—For the furtherance of Amusement enterprises, in the sum of $25,000, at Matawan. George W. Parker, August Kattner, Jr., Clifford N. Hulsart and August Kattner, Sr., all of Matawan, are the incorporators.

NEW YORK

SONG HITS IN PHOTOPLAY, INC.—For the purpose of manufacturing motion pictures. Incorporated for $10,000, at Manhattan. Harry Cohen, Jack Cohn and George E. Kahn, all of 1600 Broadway, New York City, are the incorporators.

DAVID P. HOWELLS, INC.—To manufacture motion pictures. Incorporated for $25,000, at Manhattan. David P. Howells, Addie C. Howells and Stuart M. Kohn, all of 440 Riverside Drive, New York City, are the interested parties.

MOTION PICTURE CHAIR CO., INC.—To manufacture theatre and school furniture. Capitalized for $100,000, at Manhattan. William F. Voorhees, 54 Ocean avenue, Brooklyn; Arthur D. Fisher, 237 E. 161st street, New York City and Harry Lipschuetz, 29 Wilson avenue, Long Island City, are the incorporators.

AURIGA FILM CORPORATION.—To enter motion picture business, in the sum of $30,000, at Manhattan. John E. Smith, Normal School, Ind.; William F. Smith, Normal School, Ind. and Joseph A. Fleitzer, 220 W. Forty-second street, New York City, are the incorporators.

Kenneth Hodkinson Recovers from Illness

Kenneth Hodkinson, son of W. W. Hodkinson, who has been actively connected in an executive capacity with his father for a number of years, has sufficiently recovered from a recent slight attack of appendicitis to resume his office duties.

Beverly Bruce Buys First Scenario

Beverly Bruce, who recently announced her intention of entering the producing field, has bought "Letitia-for-Happiness" as her first working script. It was written by Willard Bradley.

Laemmle Celebrates an Anniversary

Has Been Twelve Years Since He Entered the Motion Picture Industry to Begin a Steady Climb Toward the Top—Cochrane Speaks of His Career

CARL LAEMMLE, president and Director General of Universal Film Manufacturing Company, this week celebrates the twelfth Anniversary of his entrance into the motion picture field. As one of the pioneers who are still prominent in the trade, the event is considered of particular interest to the industry at large.

Whenever the history of the birth and growth of the motion picture comes to be written, the twelve years that have passed since Mr. Laemmle opened his nickelodeon in Chicago will no doubt get space on a prominent page. His activities have been noted at every stage of the progress of the picture.

Cochrane Closest Associate

The one man who probably knows more about Mr. Laemmle in a business way than any other living individual is R. H. Cochrane. As vice-president of Universal, Mr. Cochrane has been associated with Mr. Laemmle almost from the day the latter went into the film business.

In the course of a conversation last week Mr. Cochrane paid a remarkable tribute to the head of the Universal organization.

"There are thousands of men with brains," said Mr. Cochrane, "but there are fewer men who have the nerve to back up their brains. I know of one such man in the moving picture industry and his name is Carl Laemmle.

"I probably know Mr. Laemmle more intimately in a business way than any man living today. I am prejudiced in his favor, but not so prejudiced that I cannot see his weaknesses as well as his strong points. I know why some like him and why other men hate him. I know furthermore, that even the men who do hate him cannot despise him.

"Only a handful of years ago, Laemmle was nobody in the moving picture business. That he should in so short a space of time rise to the top of the heap; that he should do it honestly and accomplish it without losing his head, is something to marvel at. There are mighty few parallels in the business world.

"Mr. Laemmle started modestly in the moving picture business; so modestly that it was laughable. His original capital was a few hundred dollars and a full supply of nerve. Many of the men who were the giants of the trade when he edged his way into the business have dropped from view, but this nerve, coupled with the characteristic Laemmle determination to succeed, has enabled him to survive and to leave his indelible imprint upon this industry's progress.

Shrewd—But Considerate

"To me," continued Mr. Cochrane, "Laemmle is at once the shrewdest man and the easiest mark in moving pictures. I could tell you of a dozen instances where he closed deals immensely to the advantage of our company, only to turn around after the deal had been made and pay more than the price stipulated simply because he thought the other fellow hadn't got all that was coming to him. Now, how many men do you know of who are so shrewd and yet so easy as that?

"I could tell you scores of instances, each showing the fight he has had to make against crookedness, dishonesty, double-dealing and plain thievery; how he has forgiven wrongdoer after wrongdoer, in spite of the fact that they sought to ruin him, either financially or in reputation.

"Physically, Mr. Laemmle is a small man. I don't suppose he is much over five feet in height, although the pictures in his advertising convey the impression to those who don't know him that he is tall and athletic in build. This is the only misrepresentation he has ever been guilty of and then it was the camera's fault.

"When he came to me years ago with a proposition to help finance a moving picture exchange, I laughed. Moving pictures did not interest me at that time. I didn't see much of a future for them. Look back over the years and remember how little interest they held for you. So I laughed.

"Nor was I alone. Others laughed him off also. Friends tried to talk him out of wasting his time and the little capital he had. But they made the same mistake that I did regarding his capital. They did not know that his few hundred dollars were backed with brains and that the brains in turn were backed up with plenty of nerve.

Has Not Changed Any

"Mr. Laemmle of today is still the Laemmle of those old days. One of his strongest characteristics is his intense eagerness to tackle in a two-fisted way anything that threatens the welfare of the industry. Eight years ago it was the trust, to-day, it is the overpaid star.

"He has attacked this evil with all his old-time vigor and inasmuch as he has never been beaten, it's perfectly safe to bet that the industry is presently going to join him in his fight. After two years of constant hammering upon 'The Play's the Thing' idea, he has actually brought the majority of producers to view it his way, eye to eye.

"In other words," concluded Mr. Cochrane, "Mr. Laemmle has made every problem that has ever confronted the moving picture industry a matter of personal interest. It has never occurred to him that competitors would also derive benefit as the result of his efforts. Enough for him the thought that here was an opportunity to take a crack at something that deserved to be cracked.

"An instance of this broadmindedness is his invitation to producers everywhere to make use of Universal City and so cut down their own overhead expenses. If you are at all familiar with producing expenses you will realize that the saving this makes possible is enormous. The idea originated with Mr. Laemmle and is typical of him. The acceptance of his offer would ultimately result in a lessening in film rental for the exhibitor—and this is enough for him."

When the head of Universal got wind of a testimonial dinner which his associates arranged to give in honor of his twelfth anniversary as a film man, he promptly requested that the idea be abandoned. The only reason he gave was that functions of this nature were not in keeping with the government's request for food economy.

Woodward Closes General Release Contract

O. D. Woodward, president and general manager of the National Film Company, which started a few weeks ago with making short reel comedies at its new studio in Denver, has returned from a two weeks' business trip to New York, where he went to conclude contracts for the company's output.

While in New York Mr. Woodward closed a contract with the General Film Corporation for fifty-two one-reel comedies and twenty-six two-reel Western subjects.

Mr. Woodward was accompanied to Denver by W. W. Hodkinson of Paralta, who is considering a contract with the National for a number of six-reel features. Before closing a deal he wished to inspect the new studio and its facilities.

Selznick Returns from Florida Rest

Lewis J. Selznick, president of Select Pictures Corp., has returned to New York after an absence of three weeks at Palm Beach and is again "back on the job" in his offices at 729 Seventh Avenue.

On his return trip from Florida, Mr. Selznick made a brief stay in Washington, paying a visit to the Select Pictures' offices there, and exchanging greetings with a number of old acquaintances in that city. He was accompanied by Mrs. Selznick, who had been helping him enjoy his vacation at Palm Beach.

Goldwyn Trade Showings in Washington

The Washington branch of the Goldwyn Distributing Corporation has installed a projection room where there will be a regular trade showing of pictures every Friday afternoon. George Lenehan, the manager of the Washington branch, set Friday afternoon aside especially for Baltimore exhibitors, as many of them go to Washington Friday to arrange their bookings.

Fox Films Owe Much to Carlos

Since William Fox's Early Days in the Industry Abraham Carlos Has Been His Trusted and Resourceful Lieutenant

AWAY back in 1908, when the film industry was largely confined to the Fourteenth Street District of New York City, Abraham Carlos was associated with William Fox in the Greater New York Film Exchange. The association continues to this day, and when the history of the industry is recorded few names will be written larger than that of Abraham Carlos, Mr. Fox's personal representative and one of his most trusted and resourceful lieutenants.

Following the long fight waged by William Fox against the film trust, ending in its dissolution, Mr. Carlos continued with his chief, and it was largely through his personal efforts that the organization of the Box-Office Attractions Company was perfected. From this company was evolved the Fox Film Corporation, with its branch offices and exchanges encircling the globe, and from its inception Abraham Carlos has been the personal representative of its creator, William Fox.

Mr. Carlos occupies a most unique position in the motion picture industry. He knows not only the producing or making of pictures, but the selling and organization end, as well. Time and again he has demonstrated that he is not only able to supervise the production of features, but that he can get out and sell them with equal intelligence. Because of this unusual combination of the artistic and commercial phases of the business, he has been of invaluable aid. He was entrusted by Mr. Fox with the absolute supervision of the making of "A Daughter of the Gods," with Annette Kellermann, and that Mr. Fox's confidence was not misplaced is demonstrated by the unprecedented success, both artistic and financial, of this spectacular picture fantasy.

Abraham Carlos, Personal Representative of William Fox

Early in 1916 Mr. Carlos was commissioned by Mr. Fox to go to Hollywood, Cal., where he planned and built the huge studio plant of the Fox corporation. Moreover, pending the completion of the permanent plant he erected temporary studios and there supervised production. Since then he has been responsible to Mr. Fox for every picture made, from the selection of the story to the engaging of directors, the cast, etc., etc. He supervised the making of the most talked of Fox productions ever given to the public. Among these were "A Tale of Two Cities," with William Farnum; "Cleopatra," with Theda Bara; "Jack and the Beanstalk" and "Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp."

Mutual Names New Directors

Included in Members Are Well Known Financiers of the Windy City—Move to Strengthen the Organization

THE Mutual Film Corporation announces from the office of John R. Freuler, president, in Chicago, the election of a new board of directors including five new financier members, representing and connected with several of the larger banking and investment houses of the middle west.

The new Mutual directors include: Charles Henry Bosworth, former president of the People's Trust and Savings Bank and former chairman of the board of directors and federal reserve agent of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

William Tabor Abbott, lawyer and banker, vice-president of the Central Trust Company of Chicago, Illinois.

Walter Field McLellan, assistant federal reserve agent and secretary of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago.

Isaac Compton Elston, Jr., investment broker, of 39 South LaSalle street, largely interested in utility concerns, and Warren Gorrell, investment securities, 208 South LaSalle street.

The new board of directors includes also James M. Sheldon, long associated with film enterprises, including the Randolph Film Corporation and the Empire All Star Corporation of which he is also the president.

The other members of the board are: John R. Freuler, president; Samuel S. Hutchinson, president of the American Film Company, Inc., John F. Cuneo, P. H. Davis, George W. Hall, J. W. Smith, banker of Fargo, N. D., Dr. Wilbert Shallenberger, F. E. Kahn of New York and Crawford Livingston of New York.

"The board election represents a move for the strengthening of the Mutual's directorate, enabling us to the execution of our firmly established policies of film distribution on a business like and effective basis," said President Freuler.

New York Exhibitors in Convention

Tuesday and Wednesday, March 5 and 6, were set recently for the annual convention of exhibitors of New York State, with the Hotel Astor center of activities.

One of the more important questions facing the exhibitors is that of launching a campaign for a law to permit Sunday picture shows. Already the question of the status of such shows is pending before the Court of Appeals of New York.

It was expected that 400 or more exhibitors would attend the convention, which closes with a banquet Wednesday night. William A. Brady and others were to address the meeting Wednesday.

Several candidates have been named for the presidency, to succeed Louis Buettner, of Cohoes, who may run again. John Manheimer, Brooklyn exhibitor, and Charles Steiner, of Manhattan, have been mentioned among the candidates.

Virginia Censor Bill Passes Senate

The Motion Picture Censorship Bill of Virginia, which measure has called forth a general protest and stiff battle from mation picture men in the state, passed the State Senate at Richmond, February 28, by a unanimous vote. It now goes to the House of Delegates for concurrence, and it is generally predicted the House will pass the bill.

Jake Wells and the Virginia Exhibitors' League have waged a determined fight against the bill since it was introduced, and succeeded in getting several concessions before the bill was passed the Senate. The amendments obtained by Mr. Wells and his associates reduce the fee to be exacted from $2 for a certificate for each original film to $1, and from $1 for duplicates to 50 cents.

Report Due on Rentals Over $800

Hermann E. Goldschmidt, a certified public accountant, with offices at 1265 Broadway, has received a ruling from the Treasury Department stating that every moving picture exhibitor who paid film rentals in excess of $800 during the year 1917 to any film exchange or film manufacturer must report the name to whom he made such payments and the total amount of such payments before April 1 on the form 1099, to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue at Washington, D. C. The total so reported will be checked up with the Income Tax return of the film exchange.

Mr. Goldschmidt explained to a representative of the News that it will be necsary for all moving picture exhibitors to take their bills for the past year and add up the rentals of each exchange or manufacturer, and where he finds that he has paid more than $800 during this year to make out a report on form 1099. These forms may be had from any Collector of Internal Revenue or Mr. Goldschmidt will be glad to furnish such forms and further information to any exhibitor who may choose to call for same.

Queens Exhibitors Banquet and Dance

The Exhibitors Association of Queens County held its annual banquet at the Chalet, Long Island City, on Monday evening, February 25, the guest of honor being ex-Senator Peter M. Daly. The management of the Chalet had provided an extra list of cabaret talent especially for the occasion, while dancing was indulged in between the courses of the dinner. The gathering dispersed at 4 A. M. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Sam Sheer, Mr. and Mrs. John Holley, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Riley, Mr. and Mrs. Douglass Faulkner, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Sheer, Mr. and Mrs. Marshal Seaton, Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Marks, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Levy, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Rossary, Mr. and Mrs. Frank C. Memendez, ex-Senator Peter M. Daly, Harold W. Rosenthal, M. J. Gerson, Ida Bearman and Ruby Nevins.

Twice-a-Week Conferences for Select Officials

Lewis J. Selznick held in his room at the offices of the Select Pictures Corporation last Wednesday the first of a series of conferences of executive heads of the corporation, which Mr. Selznick, as president of that corporation, has inaugurated.

These conferences will be held twice a week in the office of the president, and are for the purpose of bringing together into the closest possible contact the various men directing the activities of Select departments.

At the meeting on Wednesday brief talks were made to the executive force by President Selznick and General Manager Arthur S. Kane. A genuine spirit of co-operation was manifested by all the officers present.

Exchanges at Omaha Trace Shipments

Express agents at Omaha, Neb., say the two last weeks have been the worst in their history for the number of shipments going wrong. Two per cent. of all shipments are said to go wrong—while some exchange managers insist 99 per cent. never arrive at the intended destination.

One exchange has 350 uncollected claims against express companies. Added to unsatisfactory service in delivery, they say they are not even given just consideration when they file complaints.

Form War Savings Society at Lasky Studios

The Lasky Studio War Savings Society was recently organized at Hollywood and is said to have already accomplished excellent results in disposing of thrift stamps. In addition, the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation is acting in the capacity of agent for the Government in promoting the stamp sales. Individually the stars and others in the organization are aiding the Government in many ways, and the company as a unit, besides contributing many of its men to the army, has engaged in various movements to foster the sale of bonds, stamps, etc.

Dinner of the Exhibitors' Association of Queens County, Given at the Chalet, Long Island City on February 25

Seattle Plans a Spring Ball

SEATTLE theatre owners and exchange managers are now making plans for an exposition and ball to be held early in the spring for the purpose of raising money that will create a fund to care for disabled soldiers who were formerly connected with the motion picture industry. At present it is planned to invest the money in third Liberty loan bonds which will later be turned over to a permanent organization of a national character.

The plan was originated by members of the Northwest Film Board of Trade, composed of film exchange managers of Seattle. Following two meetings the officers of the Washington exhibitors' association, composed of one hundred and fifty members were asked to co-operate with the exchange men, and later it is proposed to induce theatre men of Oregon, Montana and Idaho, who are organized to take part in the exposition and ball and aid in making this a national movement.

While no definite plans have been formulated by the committee selected during the past week, which is composed of J. G. Von Herberg, of Greater Theatres Company; C. F. Hill, Goldwyn Exchange; J. G. Woody, Select Pictures; H. G. Rosebaum, Paramount-Artcraft; John Hammrick, Rex theatre; and Melvin Wintsock, Schlaifer Attractions, it is proposed that the exposition shall be held at one of the larger halls of Seattle lasting three days. At this the public will be given a general idea of the making of motion pictures, and the showing of same. The exposition is to end with a ball given on the last evening. The members of the committee hope to secure a number of the best known stars of the screen to attend the exposition, and make public appearances at theatres during the exposition, as well as be the guests of honor at the ball. Higher prices will be charged at the theatres, and a large percentage of the receipts will go to the endownment fund, as will all the net receipts of the exposition and ball.

Kenneth Spear and John Hawkinson Enlist

Kenneth Spear, who assisted Jack Eaton of Town and Country Films in the producing of the James Montgomery Flagg series of comedies, "Girls You Know," has enlisted in the Naval Reserve, and is now stationed in the Navy Communication Bureau in New York City. John L. Hawkinson, cameraman with Town and Country Films, enlisted in the Aviation Corps as an observer, but has been transferred to a ground school to train as a pilot.

Mutual Closes Branch in Baltimore

The Mutual Exchange branch of Baltimore, located at 412 East Baltimore street, was closed last week. Exhibitors from now on will book their pictures through the Mutual Exchange in Washington.

Percy Visits New York

W. L. Percy, prominently identified with the work of the Atlanta Board of Review of Motion Pictures, and a member of the National Advisory Committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, was in New York for a few days last week.

Another Star for Triangle Service Flag

M. S. Houston, superintendent of the laboratories at the Triangle Culver City studios, has resigned his post and left for New York, where he will attend the school of military cinematography at the University of Columbia, thus adding another star to the Triangle service flag.

"Dark Clouds Dispersed"—Greene

Work for All, Plenty of Money, Embargoes Raised, Better Weather, All Have Helped, Says Lasky Managing Director

THAT the darkest clouds have now rolled away so far as exhibitors are concerned and that business generally throughout the country is now moving forward with an added impetus with the breaking up of the severe Winter, is the opinion expressed by Walter E. Greene, managing director of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, in charge of the distribution department.

"The passing of 'heatless days' and the abnormally cold weather which has gripped the country throughout the entire Winter has already brought about a reaction," says Mr. Greene, "and the rapidity with which business has increased after being relieved of the deterrent factors is added proof of its rock-ribbed foundation and its resiliency.

"The next few months promise to be the banner season as compared with similar periods in the past. The more reassuring view of the crisis in Europe, the successful landing of countless American troops, as announced by the Secretary of War, and the prospect that the conflict may be terminated this year, as well as the loosening up of railroad congestion and the rescission of embargoes in connection with the advent of milder weather will benefit the entire world of amusements, and the motion picture in particular.

"The maintenance of a high price for wheat, and the prediction that it will be increased slightly, as well as the unprecedented demand for farm products, is spelling prosperity for the farmers.

"In the manufacturing field everything is being speeded up and factories are attempting to work twenty-four hours a day. For every hour that has been lost in the past few months, two will be made up in the near future. There is no problem of unemployment but rather a shortage of men, and the wage scale is the highest the country has every known.

"There is no scarcity of money, and the limitations of food and clothing are patriotic ones. Conservation of food is asked by the government in order that our soldiers may be fed and our allies assisted. This means that every pound of foodstuff will find a ready sale at good prices.

"This all means a boom for moving pictures, for it has been clearly established for centuries that amusement is essential to the well being of the human race, and the photoplay is the favorite of all entertainment. Under the strain of the war and forced industrial conditions, the motion picture is the safety valve for an overwrought people, who can conserve their health and happiness with its pleasant and diverting entertainment.

"The exhibitor's province in these times is that of a keeper of a house of good cheer. Notwithstanding the fact that a man has his pockets filled with money, if he is tired out from long hours of overwork, and is worrying about a son or a brother 'over there' the funereal mien of the manager of a morgue-like theatre will not prove inviting."

Cuts Instead of Raises

C. E. Carns of the Strand theatre, Sioux City, Ia., is reported to have cut his theatre admission charge from 15 to 5 cents.

United Settles Into Offices

Plans to Put Thirty Branch Managers to Work in March—All Department Heads Secured—Office Advantages

THE United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., has now completed its headquarters organization and has moved into the fifth floor of the Mecca Building, where it has embarked on a campaign of lining up the motion picture exhibitors of the country to buy film co-operatively. All the department heads have been secured, it is said. Thirty branch managers are expected to get to work between March 4 and March 11, and the sales forces will probably all be out on the road by March 18.

As soon as alterations now making in the offices are completed the exhibitors of the East will be invited, it is said, to a housewarming and opening reception.

A feature of the plan is to make the exhibitor member easy and comfortable on his visits to book films.

The head of United Pictures is Lee A. Ochs, President of the National League, and the treasurer is Louis F. Blumenthal, with Charles M. Rosenthal as secretary and Milton M. Goldsmith as general counsel.

C. R. Seelye announces his intention of leaving New York on March 6 on a nation-wide tour in the course of which he will organize the distributing branches of the co-operative agency. Three days later President Ochs expects to begin his visits to all the more important cities, where he will address exhibitors on the organization's plans and purposes in public meetings now being specially arranged.

The published appeal of the organization says, in part: "Get together and rid the industry of staggering expenses and ruinous extravagances. The time has come for plain words. Unless this plan of concerted operations be adopted, the business of motion picture exhibition faces the direst and blackest disaster in the history of commercial amusement. War caused twenty-five per cent of the picture theatres of England and of France to close. Your houses must cut down expenses, eliminate middle men, buying co-operatively and carefully, or many of them will go into the hands of the receiver. Co-operation cannot proceed from the producers or distributors—that has been tried and failed. The only true and economical co-operation is among yourselves—in the exercise of your united buying power."

In and Out of Town

W. R. Rothacker, Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, Chicago, arrived in New York last Thursday. Mr. Rothacker will be in the city for several days. He is stopping at the Hotel Astor.

Thomas Graham, Ebony Film Corporation, Chicago, is in New York in the interest of his company.

L. J. Pollard, Ebony Film Corporation, Chicago, arrived in New York last week on business.

S. Barrett McCormack, manager of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, is in New York on business.

Herman Liebler of the Circle theatre, Indianapolis, is in New York. He is stopping at the Astor.

Phelos Enjoined from Operating House

Melton Phelos, manager of the Strand and Rialto, two motion picture theatres of Elyria, O, has been enjoined from operating the latter theatre, as a result of the differences arising from the recently formed combine of theatres in that city.

Some time ago, as previously stated in Motion Picture News, all motion picture theatres in Elyria formed a combination, but Phelos stood out against the field. He claims he has been operating independently, but the Elyria Theatre Company asserts that the Rialto is included in the combination, and took recourse to the law to prove the point. Early last week an injunction was issued against Phelos, enjoining him from operating the Rialto. It is said he refused to turn the house over, and has been held in contempt of court. In the meantime, he has instituted a counter-suit, asking for a restraining order of the injunction.

During the controversy the Rialto is being operated by Manager Bannon, one of the parties interested in the Elyria Theatre Company.

China's Board of Review an Active Body

China has a volunteer committee, similar in character to the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures in this country, which sits at Shanghai and passes upon all pictures for China. In a letter from S. E. Hening, executive secretary of the committee, it is stated that the body is composed of seventy representative Chinese and foreigners. They receive the hearty support of two leading film agents of Shanghai and on four afternoons each week a group sits for two hours reviewing pictures. While this committee has not undertaken to review films specifically for Shanghai, its recent adverse report regarding a certain well-known American picture showing the nude was supported by action of the municipal government.

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Williams?

Being a Glance at the Real Human Side of the Big Men of the Picture Game Caught in Action

By William A. Johnston

J. D. WILLIAMS is one of those "initial" fellows.

You wouldn't think of calling him "James" or "Jim," or just plain "Williams."

If you did, people would say: "Oh, yes, you mean 'J. D.' Williams."

So, "J. D." he is.

This manner of nickname signifies his democratic principles. You don't have to approach J. D. through his secretary or valet, or by special dispensation of the Church.

You simply ask if he's in; and a kindly voice is apt to yell out over his secretary's head: "Sure, come on in."

This matter-of-fact appellation also signifies, to X-ray analysts like ourselves, a man who is always on the job, a practical cuss, and a constructive, conscientious worker.

J. D. is a Showman. That's his proper classification.

As a Showman, he's an uplooker and an onlooker, and a wide-looker.

That is to say, he's an optimist, and he looks and builds ahead; and he has broad vision. The first time we met J. D. which was when the New York Strand opened and when W. W. Hodkinson came out of the West, and big theatres and big photoplays were on the rise, he started right in telling us what theatres would be like a year hence.

And every time he has written us since them—from Australia, India, Japan, San Francisco or Chicago, he always forecasted approaching developments.

And he's always about right.

He thinks of, and his heart interest is in, the bigger development of films, big houses and big chains of houses.

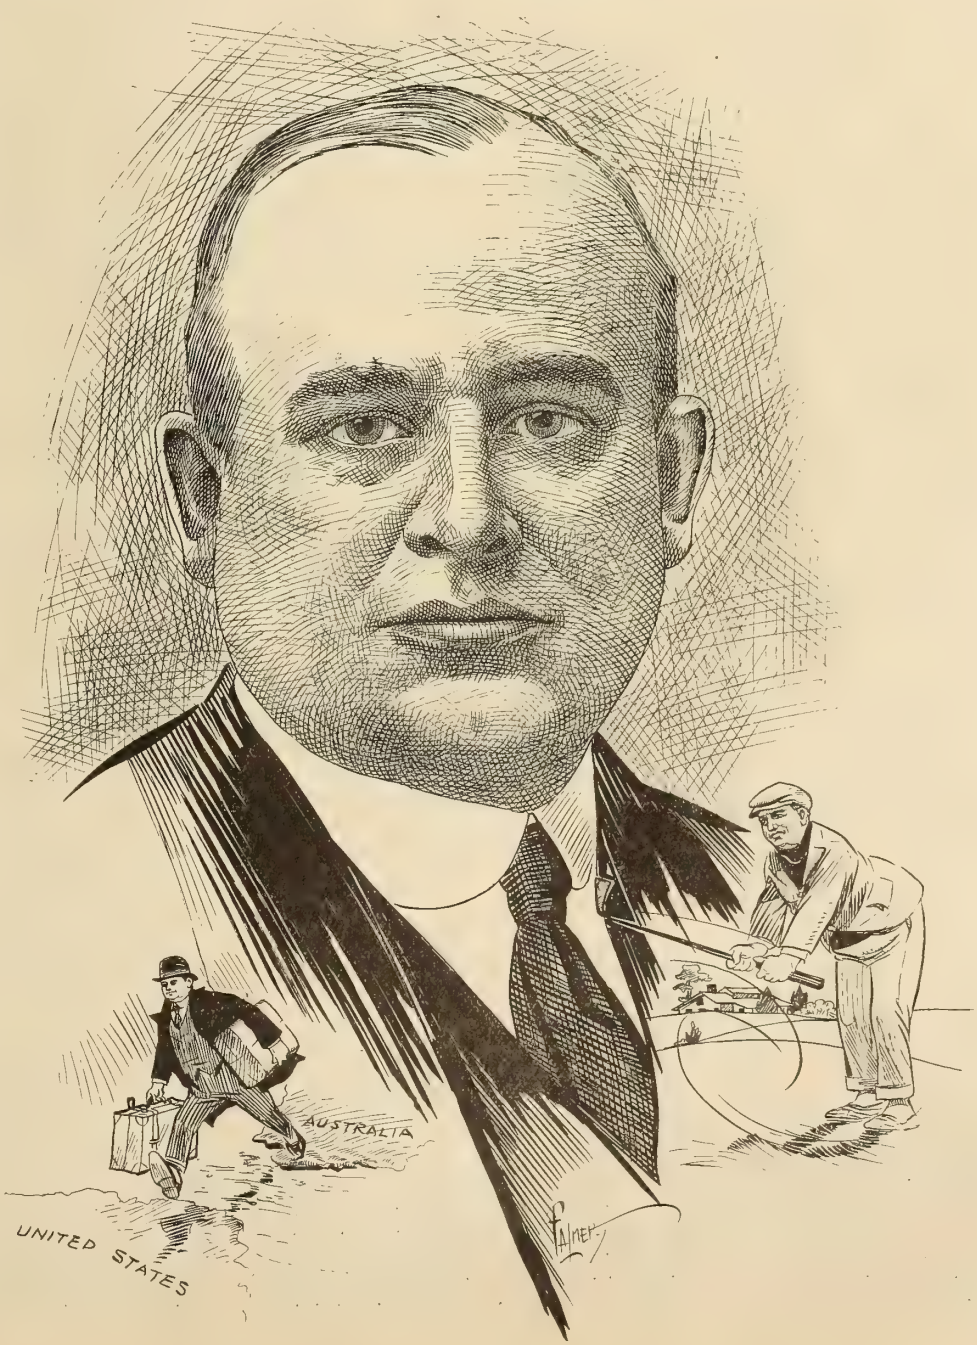
So naturally he is now where he is—general manager of the First National Exhibitors Circuit.

The idea was his; and it was such a good idea that a lot of big theatre men grasped it immediately.

J. D. is fair, fat and forty. Just turned forty, by the way, on February 27.

He's a Virginian. And, consequently he likes fried chicken, hominy, corn syrup and poker—just a li'l' game, you know, among friends. In the latter connection he rises so easily that his friends call him Mr. Yeast.

He radiates good humor, does J. D.



His greeting is always—and we say this pointedly to future subjects in this series: "How are you? Have a cigar."

Then he generally says: "Sure, I'll be glad to." (Referring not to your return proffer of a cigar but to the request you make.

If you stay and gossip he'll start pretty soon with "When I was in Australia——"

For J. D. put Australia on the motion picture map.

He owned and operated there the first continuous theatre. Then he organized Greater J. D. Williams Amusement Company, which built and organized a chain of big modern houses, afterward amalgamated with West's and Spencer's Amalgamated Pictures, Ltd.

So J. D. has always had the idea of a nation-wide chain of theatres, booking on the co-operative plan.

He's a born Showman, jumping right into the business from high school, and probably calling himself at that time James Dixon Williams.

The show business, added years, his democracy and cosmopolitanism have simmered him down to J. D.

He first entered the Carnival business, revoluting on the Western wheel. Pictures caught his eye and he catapulted from the wheel into three picture theatres in Vancouver, B. C., and then into the theatre and exchange business in Seattle.

He is, we are pleased to say, a born advertiser. Yet for an advertising Showman he's the most unassuming man, in a personal way, we have ever met.

He's a quiet, modest listener; and he's fair.

When he agrees with you he says, "Well's that's logical."

He's—and this is as fine a thing as we can say of any man—loyal to his friends.

Renew Campaign for New Coin

National Association and American Newspaper Publishers' Association, which Wants Two-cent Piece, May Join Forces

THE National Association of the Motion Picture Industry has renewed its campaign for a 15-cent coin. The American Newspaper Publishers' Association is now agitating for the issuing of a two-cent coin and it is not improbable that the national motion picture and newspaper organizations will co-operate in their respective efforts. Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, is in communication with the executive officials of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association with a view towards an active co-operation in this respect.

The recent advance in price of practically all newspapers of the country to two cents is the cause of the publishers' drive for the new coin as a convenience to the public. The government has produced a two-cent piece in the past and a return to this coin would really be a re-issue.

The motion picture interests first launched the agitation for a 15-cent coin about a year ago. The war tax has since made the 15-cent piece a practical necessity in handling crowds quick and satisfactorily. It is a theatrical proverb that the popular and successful admission price is the one that can be paid at the ticket office with one piece of money.

The National Association of the Motion Picture Industry in presenting its brief to Hon. Roy Baker, director of the mint, referred to the following recommendations, as adopted by its executive committee:

"1. That the public generally would be greatly benefited by having a coin of this denomination between the dime and the quarter."

"2. That the fifteen million daily patrons of the seventeen thousand motion picture theatres in the United States would be greatly convenienced by the issuing of such a coin."

"3. That it would facilitate the handling of these millions of motion picture patrons who are put to great annoyance and inconvenience in crowded theatre lobbies while waiting for change."

"4. That the motion picture patrons in many localities are obliged to wait in line, on the sidewalk often during inclement weather, owing to delays in making change at the box office, which condition has grown much worse since the advent of the war tax."

"5. That along with the general trend towards increased prices of admission for the better class of picture entertainment comes a demand for the new coin. Thousands of theatres in the larger cities have been forced to raise their price from 10 cents to 15 cents."

"Mutt and Jeff" Change Abode

Bud Fisher, Creator and Producer of Animated Cartoons, Makes Contract with William Fox for Distribution of His Productions

MUTT and Jeff, famed comedians of animated cartoons, have become members of the large and growing family of William Fox.

This change of home was made during the present week, with the consent and assistance of Bud Fisher, the comedians' creator. Their first appearance under the new guardianship will take place March 24 and there will be subsequent appearances, to the extent of about 500 lineal feet, once each week. Bookings will be handled exclusively through the Fox offices throughout the world.

Under the new arrangement Mutt and Jeff not only will have a new home, but a greatly extended field of activity. As newspaper cartoons, they are known from one end of the country to the other. They were introduced to the screen more than two years ago under the auspices of a corporation promoted by Bud Fisher. Now, they are to have the benefit of a larger distributing organization—become a regular feature of the William Fox output along with Standard Pictures, Fox Special Features and Fox-Lehrman Sunshine Comedies.

There will be no change in the plan of release or the general style of the pictures, according to Mr. Fox, and assurance is given that there will be no delays in service in consequence of the new arrangement. Contract blanks and other detailed information already are at the Fox branch offices or the home office.

"When Mr. Fox contracted with Bud Fisher," said Winfield R. Sheehan, general manager of the Fox Film Corporation, "he paid a premium as an additional inducement to Mr. Fisher to make Mutt and Jeff cartoons greater and funnier than ever before. They already are the best cartoons shown on the screen, having been so established and recognized throughout the United States, but under the Fox releasing arrangement they are to be greater in entertainment and in laugh-making and box office attraction."

When seen at his office, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, Mr. Fisher was making preparations for his expected departure. He confirmed the Fox announcement of the arrangements for marketing his cartoons and expressed great satisfaction over it. "I feel certain now," he said, "that I will not have to give the slightest consideration while away to the business management of my film work. Mr. Fox has arranged matters in such a way that I can confine my pictures. I consider myself extremely forthought absolutely to the drawing of the tunate in having concluded a deal with a concern having such a remarkable distributing organization as that which has been built up by Mr. Fox."

Mr. Fisher's offices in New York City, it is understood, will be continued indefinitely.

Paul Smith Feature Gets an O. K.

"The Finger of Justice," a seven-part feature production, manufactured by the Paul Smith Pictures Company, and dealing with the white slave traffic, has been passed by the National Board of Review. It will be remembered that the National Board announced something over a year ago that it would not pass on this type of feature when it was obvious the producer aimed to cater to the morbidly curious without teaching a lesson. "The Finger of Justice" is the first picture dealing with the slave traffic to reach the standards set by the Board subsequent to this ruling. In the Board's report it was stipulated that the Rev. Dr. Paul Smith of San Francisco, should supervise all publicity regarding the feature. This was to prevent any of the more sensational exportation of the picture.

Dr. Smith is known as one of those who exerted all his efforts in the recent vice crusade in San Francisco and was largely responsible for the closing of the Barbary Coast. The story of "The Finger of Justice" is based on data collected in this crusade. Its propaganda, presented in a stirring drama, is directed against the "middle man" in the white slave traffic.

"Soul of a Vampire" Nears Completion

"The Soul of a Vampire," Harry Raver's first American presentation of his previously announced star, Pina Menichelli, Italian actress, is nearing completion, Mr. Raver announces. Mr. Raver says the lady is young and decidedly pretty, as her photograph plainly shows. That she can act like Sarah Bernhardt did when in her prime, we have Raver's assurance. Hence, the coming of Vampire Pina, will be awaited with interest, especially as her first production portrays a human tigress with her soul laid bare. Mr. Raver explains, however,, that Miss Menichelli is not the "Eve" type of vampire, in spite of her faultless form.

"Miss Menichelli received her training in companies headed by Eleanor Duse," Mr. Raver added.

Eltinge Plans Return to Pictures

Julian Eltinge, it was announced last week, has extended his tour in vaudeville for about four weeks, after which time he will return to motion pictures. His plans for the screen are now well under way.

Mr. Eltinge will return to California when the time comes to begin activities.

W. H. Exploits Select Pictures Abroad

H. Winik, acting for W. H. Productions Company, and Lewis J. Selznick, for Select Pictures Corporation, signed contracts March 2 whereby W. H. Productions acquired the exclusive rights to the entire Select Pictures output for a number of foreign countries. It is said the deal came at the close of an all-night conference.

Service Bureau Mobilizes Leading Exhibitors to Advise All Showmen

NEARLY eight months ago the MOTION PICTURE NEWS inaugurated the Exhibitors Service Bureau. We announced that this was to be a real service for, of and by the exhibitor. We invited the co-operation of the successful exhibitors for the benefit of those who are falling by the wayside; we invited those who needed help and advice to ask for it here.

Before this there had been services that were more or less genuine, but the moment that a man who was asked to rent a film heard that the distributor was going to give him "service" be became suspicious that there was some trick behind this offer. And more often than not the exhibitor was right. "Service" that does not bring the exhibitor himself returns is bunk under a pseudonym.

WE came frankly into the field and told you that here was a ground untilled, that you had to wake up to doing better things and that we meant to devote the greater part of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS to spurring you along to greater endeavors. We told you that we had gathered a staff of experts whose business was to devote their time and their brains to giving you the service that you needed, without any charge of obligation. We invited the co-operation of the leaders to the exhibitors.

We told you that every item that appeared in this department would appear on the basis of its worth. We told you that the time had come when no suggestion would be recommended simply because some manufacturer of film urged it and that every plan had to pass the acid test before it appeared in these columns. You had heard such things before, but you waited to be convinced, you waited to see whether we would really condemn things that manufacturers were urging, whether we were really acting in your behalf. And we were satisfied that we had to prove ourselves.

LIKE the beginning of all things worth while the beginning was small. Exhibitors hesitated and hung back. The men we had employed were discouraged and loafed at their desks, because they had nothing to do but THINK. But they did think and they thought for you. And then the tide began to roll in. We believe that we proved ourselves Exhibitors came not with one request, but returned with thanks for what we had done for them and with more requests and there were none that were not answered. You got the SERVICE that was promised you through the columns of the NEWS and through private correspondence. Those of you who have asked know that no request has been ignored or denied.

This department could not have been possible without the co-operation that came from the leading exhibitors who are really DOING THINGS. Once they saw that this department was really FOR the exhibitor many of them began to give their time to recounting here the things that they were doing because they believed that these accounts would help the other exhibitors. Never before in the history of any industry has there been such a genuine response as has come from the exhibitors to the appeal of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. It has proved that a motion picture magazine that tries to do things will have the help of men that are doing things.

NOW we have gone a step further. In addition to the work of our own staff of experts we have invited some twenty of the most prominent exhibitors of the country, men who have shown their interest to become members of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors Service Bureau. These men will contribute the time necessary to giving their best efforts for the benefit of the exhibitors of the country. This week announcement is made of an incomplete list of the members. There will be some additional names to be announced later. These men represent all sections of the country; they represent brains and energy and progress. They come to you with unselfish motives, ready to make sacrifices for your good and the good of your fellow exhibitor.

These men will not be responsible for matter that appears generally in the Exhibitors Service Bureau unless it appears under their own signatures, but the columns of this publication will always be open to them to differ with any statement that we make, to call us to account for any lapse, to spur the exhibitors on to better efforts. The NEWS is going further than to assure you that this department is being conducted in the interest of the exhibitor alone. We believe that we have proven that, but we are marching forward. We are now making the department one that to all intents and purpose can be run by the exhibitors whom we have selected as representative of the industry. And you will note that they are ALL EXHIBITORS, men whose chief interest is the prosperity of the showman.

WE believe that the co-operation of these men is going to make this department the greatest field for the interchange of thought and criticism that has been established in the history of any industry. They come into the field ready and unafraid. They have the medium for the expression of their ideas. And the department is not alone open to them but TO YOU. Today we are getting hundreds and hundreds of letters every week from the exhibitors. We hope to get hundreds and hundreds more. We have had scores of messages telling us that we have helped the inquirers. We hope that there will be many times these scores that will be helped, and we are sure that with the brains that have been added to this Bureau the result is certain.

Read these statements from the members of the board in which they tell their views of this idea. Everyone of these men brings out some striking point that is worth considering. Not one of them has stepped into this work merely as a matter of chance. They have considered it from the point of view of what can be done for the exhibitors as a whole.

None of the departments now forming a part of the Exhibitors Service Bureau will be dropped. Rothapfel's answers, criticism of advertising, articles on exploitation, suggestions on showmanship, and all of the other features that have attracted so much attention will be continued. Mr. Rothapfel has already been contributing his time and work to this department, and he will continue to do so. The Advisory Board means that other leaders among exhibitors will join their efforts.

THIS Advisory Board means something more than that there will be contributors to this department. It means that these men will safeguard the interests of exhibitors. It means that they will come to the front and tell you when something is being done wrong, whether you are doing it or whether we are doing it. We have been giving you SERVICE for months. The Advisory Board means that there will be behind this Service men who KNOW and men who will not hesitate to say what is what.

HERE are the members of the Advisory Board as so far announced:

Samuel L. Rothapfel, Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York.

Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatre, Lowell.

Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.

E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.

S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.

Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.

M. W. McGee, Majestic theatre, Detroit.

E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.

Ernst Boehringer, Liberty theatre, New Orleans.

F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.

H. M. Thomas, Strand theatre, Omaha.

P. E. Noble, American theatre, Butte, Montana.

George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.

Sam W. B. Cohn, Liberty theatre, Spokane, Wash.

G. F. Fullerton, Advertising Manager, Greater Theatres Co., Seattle, Wash.

E. J. Myrick, Liberty and Columbia theatre, Portland, Ore.

Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.

Read what these men have to say in the following pages. It's worth your while if you stand for or strive for progress.

W. A. JOHNSTON.

ALMOST since the start of the Exhibitors Service Bureau "Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel" had been one of the features of this department and since the opening of the newer house acounts of the shows at the Rivoli have been added. These have supplied intimate sidelights on the two greatest New York houses and have brought the readers close to them through the writer's discussion of the preparations for the presentations with Mr. Rothapfel. For several months Mr. Rothapfel has been giving his time and attention, at a personal sacrifice to answering inquiries of exhibitors everywhere These departments will all be continued. Mr. Rothapfel in accepting his post on the Advisory Board writes:

"I have received your request to join the Advisory Board of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. It is needless to say that I consider this a great honor, and I shall be glad indeed to serve. It is a move in the right direction and will prove of incalculable benefit not alone to the exhibitor, but also to the manufacturer, the exchange man and, indeed, to the entire industry."

THOUGH still in his twenties, Thomas D. Soriero, manager of the Park theatre, Boston, and the Strand theatre, Lowell, Mass., recently celebrated his fifteenth anniversary of entrance into the amusement business. He is a veteran and most competent to advise. He writes: "In reply would state that I am pleased to accept your kind invitation to become a member of your Advisory Board which you are establishing on the MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"It is such a Board as this that the Producer and the Exhibitor have needed for a great many years, something that will bring them closer together for their mutual benefit, and make them to understand that to work for each other's interests is to bring success to both of them.

"The Board would do well to bear in mind that the smaller Exhibitor is the one who needs the help of its advice most of all, as he has only a limited amount of money to spend, and therefore must use that amount to get the greatest results. The smaller Exhibitor must be taken into consideration at all times, for after all, they are the builders of the larger industries, to whom we must look in the future."

"The Producer will find that by the co-operation of the Exhibitor great things can be accomplished both in the Exchanges and the theatres which will be of advantage to all concerned."

READERS of the NEWS are familiar with the work on Harold B. Franklin, manager of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, for accounts of the splendid accomplishments to his credit have appeared in these columns week after week. He has one of the handsomest theatres in the country and knows what to do with it. In accepting the post, he says:

"The creation of an advisory board in connection with the Exhibitor's Service Department is probably one of the most progressive steps ever taken by a trade paper, and shows a sincere desire to benefit the exhibitor by co-operation and exchange of thought.

"A board such as you propose ought to clearly comprehend the problems of the exhibitor and I shall deem it an honor to serve on it, and will do all I can through personal effort to further its interests."

E. MANDELBAUM, manager of Loew's Stillman theater, Cleveland, O., is one of the best known men in the entire exhibition end of the business. His house is one of the most attractive in the whole country, splendidly managed and representative of the very best in advertising. He is also representative of the First National Exhibitors Circuit in Ohio.

"I will accept the appointment on your Advisory Board and will endeavor to do my best and to give it as much time and attention as it is possible for me to do," he writes.

S. BARRET McCORMICK is easily one of the best known of the exhibitors of the country and his splendid work is recognized everywhere. He sees excellent results to come from the advisory board and writes us:

"It is with pleasure that I accept your invitation to become a member of the proposed Advisory Board of Motion Picture News Service Bureau.

"This amalgamation of thought and interest in the advancement of the Silent Art, I am sure, is going to prove one of the most beneficial steps taken in the industry and I surely congratulate both Mr. Johnson and yourself for your initiative in creating this department which will be an open forum where the problems that confront photoplay presentation may be analyzed and studied not only for individual benefit but which is sure to reflect the unselfish desires of the men associated with you and which will leave its indelible mark of progress upon the entire business of entertainment.

"Motion Picture News has ever been the vanguard, reaching out into the distant, yet ever near, future, anticipating needs and supplying the answer to problems when they were immediately required. Often they were questions that less visionary branches of the business were prone to disregard, classifying them in the index of a future not likely to arrive.

"Somehow I have come to consider Motion Picture News the Periscope of the Industry.

"I will be glad to have you refer any inquiries that you consider I may be in position to answer and can assure you of my hearty co-operation and sincere interest."

THEO. L. HAYS, manager of the New Garrick, St. Paul, Minn., is too modest to allow his picture to be printed, but he declares that he will cheerfully join in the movement for the betterment of exhibition conditions, and adds:

"There is no question but that a great deal of good to the exhibitor will result from any plan that invites closer contact between men who really are trying to do things and who seek to raise the standard of photoplay presentation."

Mr. Hays's letter of acceptance brings accounts of new steps forward being taken by the New Garrick. Mr. Hays is one of the live wires of the kind that whose advice and criticism can do wonders for the industry in general.

E. V. RICHARDS, JR., general manager of the Saenger Amusement Company, with headquarters in New Orleans and controlling nearly forty theaters in Arkansas, Texas, Louisiana, Florida and Mississippi, is one of the big young men of the industry, a most wise exhibitor and a most frank man. His words and his advice will be worth while because they will come straight from the shoulder. His letter of acceptance is typical of the energy, the genuineness and the whole-heartedness of the man, for he says:

"I believe the Motion Picture News is wide awake and attempting to sincerely develop a sorely needed department in all trade papers for the general good of the business and I will gladly accept the honor you have conferred upon me." We had written him that no question would be asked him that would embarrass him in business, and he adds: "However, with reference to inquiries that may embarrass me in business relations, you may rest assured that you have carte blanche to go after the whole world under anything that I may tell you, because I live in an atmosphere where I can always look every man in the eye and tell him to go to."

WHEN the final acceptances are in there will be three cities in the country represented by two members each on the Advisory Board. One of these is New Orleans and the second member is Ernst Boehringer, whose new Liberty theatre will soon be opened. He was one of the first exhibitors in the south and went to New Orleans after a big success in Baton Rouge and in the larger city startled exhibitors by making a wonderful success of a house that had always been a Jonah. He will soon have one of the finest houses in the whole country. He writes:

"Your most welcome letter, outlining a very commendable idea in the shape of an advisory board of exhibitors, in connection with the work of your Exhibitors' Service Bureau, has been received.

"I am naturally flattered that you thought of me in this connection and will be pleased to serve you. We will gladly submit whatever we feel may be of interest in our publicity and will try to be constructively critical in our expressions of the work of your department and of other showmen."

M. W. McGEE is known as one of the liveliest exhibitors in the Middle West. He is manager of the Majestic theatre, Detroit, and is heartily in accord with all movements for the welfare of exhibitors. In accepting a position on the Advisory Board he writes:

"I will be glad to render any service in my power for the betterment of exhibitors and the motion picture industry at large. Your Exhibitors' Service Bureau is a brilliant idea and should prove of the greatest value."

F. L. NEWMAN, manager of the Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, is one of the class of men who inspired the formation of the Advisory Board. He has wide experience and he has a clear idea of what the Board seeks to accomplish. And his voice is one that every power in the industry heeds. He says in his letter:

"I feel highly complimented that you have selected me as one of the members of the Advisory Board for the Exhibitors Service Bureau. I will be very glad to serve on the board. I am sure that it will mean a great deal to the small exhibitors who are just breaking into the industry if they will be guided by the comments of these well known exhibitors.

"In my eleven years' experience, there has never been a time when I have gone to New York or any other large city, that I have not learned something, and after all if you just take this illustration; if you give one a dollar in exchange for another dollar, you have really gained nothing but if you exchange one idea for another one, you have two ideas and it is these ideas that mean success for the theatre. If I understand it correctly, the Advisory Board will mean that you want each member to write you from time to time the experiences they are having and the different ideas that we may be using in our theatres and the different obstacles that may come up from time to time."

H. M. THOMAS, secretary and manager of the Strand theatre, Omaha Company, Omaha, which is now operating the Strand and which will soon open the splendid new Liberty, is in heart accord with the idea and believes that it is an original plan which will help the whole industry. He says:

"I have your favor with reference to forming an Advisory Board to your Exhibitors' Service Bureau, and I think the idea is a very excellent one, indeed.

"Personally, I am free to admit that I secure any number of ideas from this department, and this is the first thing I turn to in the NEWS.

"If I can be of any help to you in swapping ideas, I will only be too glad to do my part, feeling sure that I will receive far more valuable pointers than I am able to give.

"I wish you all the success in the world in your new undertaking, which is surely original and bound to be of wonderful help to the industry at large."

P. E. NOBLE, manager of the American theatre, Butte, Montana, is known under the nickname of "No Bull" as the result of his earnest work in that city where he has established a very high grade of motion picture exhibition. He is the sort of a manager with "get up and git" in him and his example is bound to put new "pep" in other showmen. He says:

"I wish to thank you sincerely for the honor in placing me on your Advisory Board. Hats off to you."

You are already familiar with Mr. Noble by the many accounts of his work that have appeared in these columns from time to time.

SAM W. B. COHN, manager of the Liberty theatre, is making them sit up and take notice in Spokane, Wash., in the midst of the live wires of the west coast. He believes that the Advisory Board will accomplish much and he gives his reasons for that opinion:

"It is with much pleasure that I accept the honor you confer upon me in offering me a place upon your recently created 'Advisory Board' and I sincerely trust that my experience in the business of motion pictures, may, in the future, prove of some benefit to those who have more recently joined the exhibitor's ranks.

"I believe your tentative plans will work out to be 'the big idea' of the industry for 1918 and managers everywhere will surely appreciate the meaning of this new departure.

"Publicity and exploitation as applied to the moving picture business has long been a favorite study of mine and as an exhibitor I welcome this new opportunity of gathering fresh material."

GEORGE E. CARPENTER is manager of the Paramount-Express theatre, Salt Lake City He has had wide experience in the industry and before taking this post was publicity manager for one of the exchanges in Salt Lake. He is constantly doing things out of the ordinary in that breezy way of his. Every letter of his breathes something of the spirit of the West and his acceptance comes in the same vein:

"I certainly am blushing right up to the roots of my hair over the honor. A fellow swells up somewhat when he is asked to travel in the company of Rothapfel, et al. As a member of your Exhibitor Service Advisory Board I will be somewhat of a frost, but shoot."

G. F. FULLERTON is advertising manager for the Greater Theatres Company, Seattle, which controls the Coliseum, Liberty and Mission. He is known all over the industry as "Hundred Per Cent Fullerton" because of the splendid results that he has accomplished with the newspapers. His advice will be worth a great deal to the exhibitors of the country. He is modest, and direct to the point in his acceptance:

"I will be glad to serve on your Advisory Board, but frankly believe there are many others more qualified to give advice. Now, just what is it that you wish me to do?"

ATMOSPHERE of the West Coast where exhibitors are really doing this worth while seems to inspire the managers to directness and briefness in their statements. One of the men who has scored a success beyond all question and who stands in the very front rank of showmen, is E. J. Myrick, who manages the Liberty and the Columbia theatres, Portland, Ore., for Jessen and Von Herberg.

Mr. Myrick is always pulling live wire methods and always attracting the public through new means. He is ready to help and wants to help right away, for he wires us:

"I will be glad to serve on your Advisory Board. Wire instructions."

DELAY in the mails from the Pacific coast, which is responsible for failure to have full statements from some of the members of the board who have accepted and from one or two whose names will appear later, is responsible for the failure to receive the letter from Eugene Roth, manager of the splendid California theatre, San Francisco, but in answer to our telegram he sent this inspiring message:

"I am writing you today my acceptance to serve as a member of your Advisory Board. I fully concur that the idea is splendid and this board should prove of much importance to the trade in all its branches. I sincerely trust that those whom you have honored will co-operate with your efforts to the fullest extent."

A few other names will appear, and further announcement will be made next week.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

LAST MINUTE BOX OFFICE REPORTS

Blue Blazes Rawdon (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)—"Type of play not suitable for Hart—too rough." (Average business.) "Best acting Hart has done, but my audiences prefer him on horseback." (Average business.) "Business fell off on this—not Hart's best." (Big two days, average two days). "Hart is a sure bet." (Extra big business.)

Empty Pockets (Brenon—First Nat'l Production)—"A mystery play without a mystery." (Poor business.) "Most unusual story, strong appeal." (Big business.)

Headin' South (Fairbanks—Art.)—"Full of Fairbanks "pep." (Extra big business.)

Hidden Pearls (Hayakawa—Paramount)—"Good picture." (Big business.) "Star not as good as usual." (Average business.) "Another feather in the Jap's cap." (Big business.)

Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford)—"Excellent picture." (Big business.)

Jack Spurlock, Prodigal (Geo. Walsh—Fox)—"Not a typical Walsh subject, star big drawing card." (Big business.)

Keys of the Righteous (Enid Bennett—Paramount)—"Title killed it." (Poor business.) "This type of story not popular." (Average business.)

The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young—Select)—"Splendid; a few more subjects like this and C. K. Y. will come back." (Extra big business.)

The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)—"Poor photography; subject will not please." (Poor business.)

Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy—Goldwyn)—"Comedy drama—good—but public will not support them. Star very good, but does not draw." (Average business.)

The Thing We Love (Wallace Reid—Paramount—"Cheap and obvious; two-thirds conversation and one-third cut-backs." (Poor business.)

A Weaver of Dreams (Viola Dana—Metro)—"Star popular—picture good." (Big business.)

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
AVENGING TRAIL (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very pleasing play." "Good picture, beautiful scenes, good photography—Lockwood a drawing card." "Unsuited to star." "Too rough, not up to "standard." "Fair." "People like this star dressed up." "Would please average audience; star always good." "Excellent, but fight's a farce."
BARGAIN, THE (Wm. S. Hart Re-issue—W. H. Prod.)	Extra	Extra	Big	Extra	"Went over as good as any Hart we have ever played." "Excellent Hart picture." "Charged 20c. and broke previous house record held by Chaplin" (W.). "Broke all Hart records" (E.).
BEAUTIFUL MRS. REYNOLDS, THE (Elvidge-Blackwell—World)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very ordinary." "Not up to usual standard of this pair."
BECAUSE OF A WOMAN (Belle Bennett—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A good show." "Pleasing picture, but would stand more trimming." "Good but too long for story." "Pleased, but a little too long." "Very good."
BETTY TAKES A HAND (Olive Thomas—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good." "Not great, but pleasing." "This star is dependable; fair story." "Audience liked it."
BLIND ADVENTURE, THE (Edw. Earle—Vit.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Above average program release." "Good picture, very good business." "Satisfactory, liked it o.k."
BLUE JEANS (Viola Dana—Metro)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Viola Dana at her best, great—good picture but didn't get any money with it" (N.). "One of their best pictures, great drawing card" (W.). "Dana always good" (S.). "Will go over if advertised big—the picture is there" (E.). "Booked for week, closed on Wednesday night" (W.). "Big business" (N.).
BROADWAY LOVE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Dorothy Phillips is gaining friends fast here" (S.).
BROWN OF HARVARD (Tom Moore—K.E.S.E.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Good picture—well liked" (S.). "Very acceptable subject, a little different" (E.). "First class picture" (N.). "Great! Opened on a Wednesday and held over for a full week run" (N.). "Very satisfactory" (N.).
CINDERELLA MAN, THE (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Big	Big	Extra	Big	"Kind that pleases all." "Best Marsh release." "A very good picture." "Best Goldwyn since 'Polly.'" "Great—we want more like this." "Goldwyn's best so far." "Great." "Excellence of this picture brought added business second day, though star not popular yet." "We want more of this kind, everybody liked it." "This should give Mae Marsh a start here—lots of favorable comment." (For further comment, see issue of Feb. 9.)
CLEOPATRA (Theda Bara—Fox)	.....	Big	.....	.....	"Advanced prices on this—50c., 95c. and $1.00—week run" (N.).
CONVICT 993 (Mrs. Castle—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Picture good for a convict story, and photography fine."
CUPID'S ROUND-UP (Tom Mix—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Some swell picture—Tom Mix great." "Dandy title, clever work of star, too. Nice picture." "Very good program picture." "Customers ate it up."
DAUGHTER OF DESTINY (Madame Petrova—First Nat.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good, though too little action, no punch,—however, is the best she has ever appeared in" (W.). "Simply terrible" (E.). "'Petrova's best,' was the comment of my audience" (W.). "Fair drawing card" (E.). "Scenery and costumes unexcelled" (E.). "Did not appeal to all, but decidedly better than recent Petrovas." "Money wasted." "Some good points, but on whole disappointing; supporting cast and production good." "Drawing power due to popularity of star" (S.).
DAUGHTER OF THE GODS (Annette Kellermann—Fox St.)	Big	Extra	Extra	Big	"Broke all records" (S.). "Good box-office attraction, could boost it big—it's well worth it." "A big production, great box-office attraction—but no better Kellerman picture than Neptune's Daughter." "Return date broke all records" (W.).
DAYBREAK (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, story well carried with a good climax." "Very good, star liked." "Good—the song a gem." "Star not popular here." "Good story, strong cast, good photography." "Good picture." "Good, but padded too much." "Not even interesting."
DODGING A MILLION (Mabel Normand—Gold.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Something different, and they liked it." "Another feather in Goldwyn's cap." "Only an average picture." "Normand fits role well, fine story." "Should make more of this kind." "Very pleasing picture, star has 'come back,' elaborately produced" (N.). "Very good" (N.). "Can't understand why they wouldn't come in, but pleased few that saw it" (W.). "The kind they all like; Mabel sure a beauty" (N.). "Did not draw; good picture, strong opposition" (W.).
EYES OF MYSTERY, THE (Edith Storey—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good picture" (S.). "Very good, lots of punch" (W.). "Dandy star, some of her best work in this" (N.).
FACE VALUE (Mae Murray—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good, Mae Murray well liked" (W.).
FIELDS OF HONOR (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Morbid, uninteresting" (S.). "Fine, very well liked by '400' class" (E.). "A disappointment here" (E.). "Not popular subject" (E.). "Star good, but story poor" (W.). "Very good picture, but star not popular here" (E.).
FIGHTING GRIN, THE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"Below Bluebird-Farnum standard." "Poor picture for Bluebird."
FLAMES OF CHANCE (Margery Wilson—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—pleased."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
FLARE-UP SAL (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Big feature, big business" (N.). "Dalton fine in this; Ince style direction shows to advantage" (E.). "A bit rough for Paramount" (S.). "Star liked; Miss Dalton will make good in any theatre." "Ordinary" (E.). "Not up to standard" (S.).
GERMAN CURSE IN RUSSIA (Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good of its kind." "Fair." "Timely, went over very well."
GHOSTS OF YESTERDAY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star well liked." "Star better than ever—corking good production." "Another pleasing Talmadge production." "Fine picture; Norma Talmadge not yet very well known here" (W.). "Excellent production, fine business all week" (W.).
HEART OF ROMANCE, THE (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very poor picture, far from being up to Fox standard." "Very ordinary." "Nothing to this one." "Failed to draw any business."
HEART'S REVENGE, A (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor draw." "Poor production." "Some liked it, only fair business." "Just an ordinary picture."
HIRED MAN, THE (Chas. Ray—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good picture" (N.). "Great—very good" (E.). "Kind that will bring 'em again" (S.). "Excellent" (W.).
HIS ROBE OF HONOR (H. B. Walthall—Paralta)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too heavy" (W.). "Walthall's acting wonderful—nobody like him, I think; more like this and he will surely make good, but title too much like costume play" (S.). "Too much court and parlor stuff—give Walthall a real part like 'The Little Colonel' (N.). "Fair picture" (W.).
HONEYMOON, THE (Const. Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing picture, clever direction." "Not as good as Scandal." "Good picture." "Story very pleasing—didn't draw, but her next picture will" (W.). "Good picture—pleasing" (W.).
HOPPER, THE (Wm. V. Mong—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor title."
I LOVE YOU (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Picture was extra good" (S.). "Fine picture" (W.). "Some picture—best yet" (N.).
IMPOSTOR, THE (Ann Murdock—Mut.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Very poor production."
IN BAD (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not as good as some of his others" (E.). "Very good, big business; can always count on Russell" (E.). "Fair picture" (W.).
INNOCENT (Fannie Ward—Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Started off with a bang, should have run it a week, best Pathe we ever had—photography too dark, everything else o.k." (E.). "Fannie looks ten years younger than other pictures; clean, nice picture—patrons liked it." "Excellent, a real picture." "Ward is there, with the right stuff." "This in my estimation is all that has been claimed for it" (W.).
INTOLERANCE (Griffith Sp. Prod.)	Extra	Extra	Big	Extra	"Best ever made" (W.). "Had to keep open till 1.30 A.M. opening night to accommodate the large crowd." "Greatest of all motion picture spectacles" (N.). "Sure went over big here" (E.). "Impressed, but over heads here; didn't get the money" (S.).
JACK SPURLOCK, PRODIGAL (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star makes this go big; Sat. Post story not so great, but brought in many new faces."
JULES OF THE STRONG HEART (Geo. Beban—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beban's best." "A fine picture but he does not draw here" (S.). "Extra good" (N.). "Pleased, one of his best." "Excellent."
KINGDOM OF LOVE, THE (Jewel Carmen—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good attraction" (S.). "Does not draw" (E.). "No drawing card" (W.). "Fair business, good picture." "Poor title, stereotyped dance-hall-girl-parson story." "Seemed to please everyone" (W.). "Picture and star enjoyed by our patrons" (E.). "Same old dance hall" (N.). "Fair picture; did big business under substituted Klondyke title" (W.).
LEARNIN' OF JIM BENTON (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"A good Western drama." "Poor production." "Good picture if Hart had played title role." "Average picture."
LES MISERABLES	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Easily Farnum's greatest; fine direction, sure box-office." "Great story, great production."
LIGHT WITHIN, THE (Mme. Petrova—First National)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Can't see this one (no pun intended); not kind of story for Petrova" (N.).
LIMOUSINE LIFE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Appeals to the ladies—but not so much to men" (N.).
LOADED DICE (Frank Keenan—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.			"Keenan's work great; not popular type story. However, ought to have done better; comments good."
MADAME JEALOUSY (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"People didn't know what to think of this; expected something quite different. Why don't they give Frederick a real play?" (E.). "Frederick fine, picture disappointed" (N.). "More like this and 'Nay, nay, Pauline'" (S.). "My people do not like allegory" (W.).
MADAM WHO? (Bessie Barriscale—Paralta)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture, well liked—just a little too long" (N.). "Very good Barriscale" (E.). "Good production; Paraltas could cut subjects to advantage; five reels enough" (S.). "Fine picture, good story, fine photography—but war pictures not wanted" (N.).
MAN ABOVE THE LAW (Jack Richardson—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, pleased—50-50 on comments."
MAN'S MAN, A (Warren Kerrigan—Paralta)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Our patrons said this was the best picture we ever had in the house" (S.). "Very fine production" (W.). "Went over very big" (N.). "Kerrigan's best production." "Well liked, better second day" (N.). "Excellent picture." "Pleased, but did not have box-office drawing power; his next one will" (E.). "Best Kerrigan has ever had" (S.).
MARIONETTES, THE (C. K. Young—Sel.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very wonderful." "Good picture." "Fair business, nothing extra."
MENACE, THE (C. Griffith, E. Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—both are going to make stars." "Fair production" (N.). "Excellent picture, but no pull" (W.).
MOTHER'S SIN, A (Earle Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard, but star got it over."
MRS. DANE'S DEFENSE (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good." "Excellent picture, but hardly a show for the tired business man." "Good production; story did not register." "Very good picture, but expected more from Pauline." "Unsatisfactory ending—leading man not popular here." Frederick needs something more suited to her former stunning work." "Very good."
MY LITTLE BOY (Ella Hall—Blue.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Fine Christmas picture, pleased everyone." "One of the best Bluebird has made." "Everyone satisfied, splendid cast, went over big in high class locality." "Fine feature." "Beautiful, very well liked."
MY UNMARRIED WIFE (Carmel Myers—Blue.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Equal to any $150.00 picture I ever played—just great" (N.). "Good program picture—big business" (E.). "Good, clean drama with nice touches of comedy running all the way through it" (W.). "Fine" (N.). "Excellent, pleased everybody" (E.).
NAN OF MUSIC MOUNTAIN (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good." "In a dress suit would make a bigger hit." "Very good." "Exciting Western with very pleasing effects." "Great picture." "Extra good show" (W.). "Star and play both good." "Good Western, Reid well liked." "Not a good story for Reid."
NEW YORK LUCK (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "This star always pleases." "Very good." "Clever stuff, well done."
OTHER MAN, THE (Harry Morey—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, Morey popular" (E.).
OTHER WOMAN, THE (Peggy Hyland—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"They liked this" (N.). "Excellent picture" (N.). "Very attractive picture and star" (E.). "Fair, that's all" (N.).
OUR LITTLE WIFE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Ave.	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Snappy comedy, Madge the whole show. Nice picture, clever little star" (E.). "This star is becoming popular" (S.). "Poor story, Madge Kennedy the whole show. Star unknown here" (E.). "Poor business; this style of show does not get the money for us" (N.).
PETTICOAT PILOT, A (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Star becoming popular." "Martin is gaining; a few more like this, please." "Kind of story this star should have." "Very pleasing" (S.). "Scored heavily" (W.). "Excellent" (W.).
PRICE OF A GOOD TIME (Jewell Production)	Big	Extra	Extra	Big	"Very excellent" (W.). "Pleased everybody, but not easy to get them in" (W.). "Fine production, title makes some people stay away, gets others in" (E.). "Classy; wonderful production." "One of the best pictures of the season, full of heart interest, with a good moral."
PRIDE OF NEW YORK, THE (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"This is a dandy." "Great favorite here." "Ran close second to Fairbanks 'Reaching for Moon.'" "Fast gaining in popularity in all our houses." "Great show." "Star always pleases." "Picture full of punch." "Fine picture, lots of 'kick'." "Very good picture." "Geo. Walsh is Fox's best star." "Walsh at his best, good as any Fairbanks."
RAFFLES (John Barrymore—State Rights)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Great picture, one of the best of its kind ever seen here" (E.). "First class; big; better than expected even" (N.).
RED, WHITE AND BLUE BLOOD (Bushman-Bayne—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bushman and Bayne are coming back strong." "Very good picture." "Good—good business getter." "Classy picture, mighty good entertainment." "Bushman's best." "Good picture, well liked, stars are drawing better" (W.). "Very good picture."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
RIMROCK JONES (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Rest of the show saved the day for this one." "Ordinary." "They liked Reid." "Good star, fair picture." "This star is new at this theatre, better second day than first."
ROSE OF THE WORLD (Elsie Ferguson—Art.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Her best picture so far, my people say." "Good star, poor story." "Too much art, too little behind it; does not hang together to hold interest, somehow." "Away above average. A1 product" (N.). "Photography good, picture poor" (W.). "Beautiful production, well acted, star always satisfies" (E.).
SON OF DEMOCRACY (Chapin—Para)	Big	Big	.....	Big	"Good patriotic feature for variety program; first chapter went big" (N.). "Bringing many new faces into my house—good stuff for high class house" (W.).
SONG OF SONGS (Elsie Ferguson—Para.)	Big	Big	.....	.....	"This star coming; big advertising possibilities in this one, though far from a knockout."
SPIRIT OF '17 (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing, big business" (S.). "Mawkish and obvious" (W.). "Tom Sawyer helped this star, good business" (W.). "Very fair." "Jack a comer, not much picture, but timely." "Fair picture—fair biz."
SQUARE DECEIVER, THE (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Lockwood always draws." "Much better than average." "Good picture." "Very pleasing picture." "Production good, star a good card." "Lockwood at his best." "Very good." "Well liked." "Good picture, didn't draw." "Excellent, like Lockwood in this kind." "Good picture." "All enjoyed this play." "Excellent comedy drama, good second day business." "Very good picture." "Kind that brings 'em back."
STELLA MARIS (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Pickford proves herself to be an actress" (E.). "Wonderful picture, almost too much dependent on fine acting, however, not a story people can get excited over" (S.). "Too morbid for my people" (W.). "Certainly great work for this star, some contrast with last one." "Splendid picture, best Mary has ever done from an artistic standpoint—as a box-office attraction did not come anywhere near 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.'" "Mary will never do better, story peculiar; surely this one will help star's drawing power for next picture." "One of her best." "Splendid picture, but not strong enough for two weeks' run." "Mary has never equalled this one." "Double exposure stuff marvellous." "Thought it great, but our Pickford biz is slipping" (W.).
STOLEN HONOR (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good story, poor photography." "Average picture." "Only fair picture—good star wasted." "Very ordinary picture." "Good picture but terrible photography, impossible to read titles." "Attractive cast, big business, ordinary picture."
STRONG WAY, THE (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Interest well sustained."
THAIS (Mary Garden—Gold.)	Extra	Extra	Extra	Extra	"Record for the house—wonderful production, remarkable achievement even for Goldwyn" (S.). "Big business, but not as good second day" (W.). "Well liked, big business at advanced prices." "Wonderful—went over some of their heads" (E.). "A knockout" (S.). "Pleased some, others thought it rotten; costume stuff don't please here—extraordinary business" (N.). "Weather awful—business great" (S.). "Story not liked" (S.). "Did not please but drew tremendous business." "Excellent." "Big business, but did not please average fan." "Not liked by our audience." "A very good picture." "Went over big on name, many adverse comments." "Sure got the money."
TOM SAWYER (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Bully picture, had us guessing to handle the crowds." "Excellent—pleased greatly." "The kind we need more of—play it." "Everybody liked this picture." "Great—a winner." "Intend to repeat this one, when weather gets warmer, and believe will set record." "Great picture." "His best—pleased greatly." "Very fine; this kind of subject will put Jack Pickford on the top." "One of the best we have had recently, very fine."
UNDER SUSPICION (Bushman-Bayne—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Fair picture."
UNEASY MONEY (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"High class comedy, our patrons enjoyed it." "Seems to strike a popular chor —good picture." "Very good picture."
UNTIL THEY GET ME (Pauline Hart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Unknown star hurt the picture." "Good picture, but didn t draw." "Good." "Pleased—star not known."
UP OR DOWN (Geo. Hernandez—Tri.)					"Very poor picture" (N.). "Fair, that's all" (N.). "Fair production" (W.) "Rotten" (W.). "Entertaining comedy drama" (W.).
VOLUNTEER, THE (Madge Evans—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fine picture." "Not real big drawing card, but one of the most pleasing to date." "Not attractive for downtown house; kiddie picture." "Great picture for houses running World—Madge Evans not liked here."
WIDOW'S MIGHT, THE (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Clean, excellent novelty." "Fine, one of his best." "Eltinge best in this so far." "Better business than last one, Eltinge improving as draw." "Stories of this star too much alike" (E.).
WILD STRAIN, THE (Shipman, Whitman—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A fine picture, no star to draw." "Slow at beginning—as a whole fine." "Excellent production."
WINDING TRAIL, THE (Viola Dana—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big.	"Star growing more popular with each release" (S.). "Not liked" (E.). "Very pretty picture" (W.). "Good business this" (S.). "Fair—did not make hit with our audience" (N.). "Very unusual picture, peculiar ending. Good" (W.). "Very fine, excellent plot, Dana's work great." "Good Western setting picture." "Better than the average Metro."
WOLVES OF THE RAIL (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Would have broken record but for blizzard" (W.). "Good as Hart has done lately, railroad stuff splendid." "Hart 'fans' seemed to like this one." "Hart as the bandit—'nuf sed." "Very good Hart subject." "Excellent." "Fire chief camped on our trail during entire showing—enough said."
WOMAN AND WIFE (Alice Brady—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Star a good favorite" (S.). "Enough, to say—'Up to Select standard'" (S.). "A very good picture" (N.).
WORLD FOR SALE, THE (Blackton—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"A very funny picture to make out, poor drawing card" (E.). "Not much picture for Blackton" (S.).

FLASHBACKS

These "Did Their Bit" Above Average Last Week

Auction Block (Goldwyn Rex Beach Special)—"Great."

Broadway Arizona (Olive Thomas—Triangle)—"Satisfaction to record 3 shows Sunday, held up three days—she is clever."

Car of Chance (Franklyn Farnum—Bluebird)—"Many liked him better in this than Fairbanks."

Come Through (Jewel Special Production)—"Best ever, will repeat." "Drew well—liked—Rawlinson popular." "Fine suspense drama." "Best ever shown here."

For Liberty (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)—"Went over big, drew big business."

Garden of Allah (State Rights)—"Got the crowd all right, some not satisfied, others thought fine. Outside of the sandstorm subject drags."

Gift o' Gab (Jack Gardner—Perfection)—"Extra good."

Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady—Select)—"Good—extra big business, week run."

Idle Wives (Universal Special Production)—"Wonderful for high-class audiences."

Italian Battle Front (State Rights)—"Wonderful production."

Little Patriot (Marie Osborne—Pathe)—"A real show for any high-class house."

Modern Musketeer (Fairbanks—Artcraft)—"Best thing Fairbanks has done with Artcraft."

One Hour (Foursquare)—"Wonderfully good."

Pay Me (Jewell Special Production)—"Gripping and plenty of action."

Redemption (Evelyn Nesbit—State Rights)—"Good drawing attraction and patrons all pleased."

Son of His Father (Charles Ray—Paramount)—"Made a hit."

The Whip (State Rights)—"Big biz." "Best yet." "One of the best of its kind I ever had in my house—big drawing card—many thrills and exciting situations."

Zeppelin's Last Raid (U. S. Exh. B. Corp.)—"Fine picture, extra big business."

Exhibitor Service Bureau

How Omaha Boosts Pictures

Sunday Issues Show Evidence of Seeking to Give Interesting News as Well as "Readers"

WITH the number that marked the inauguration of the Exhibitors Service Bureau we discussed in these pages the methods of arousing the advance interest in pictures. One of the conclusions that we reached was that the greatest way that this could be done was through the co-operation of the newspapers. We are opposed to the plan of actually advertising a picture far in advance for the reason that we believe it kills your current attraction and that, as we have said to you many times in these columns, you should sell your today show first.

But if you and the other theatres of your community are patronizing your newspapers as you should, and your papers are intelligently co-operating with you this is comparatively easy. These days with the thousands of motion picture fans a great percentage of the readers of newspapers are interested in motion picture NEWS. They want to read little stories about the stars, to hear of their activities, to hear in advance of the pictures that they are working on, in other words to have the gossip from the other side of the celluloid.

Last week we spoke of the fact that a great many exhibitors did not think that they were getting helpful publicity unless each little paragraph mentioned the name of their particular theatre. That is the sorriest mistake that was ever made. Every time the star that regularly plays at your house is mentioned in the newspapers of your home town it helps you, and the paper that regularly prints news of this sort is doing more real good for you than if, in a couple of columns, of short items about plays and players your theatre's name were repeated a hundred times. In one case the people will read the matter with interest. In the other they will see that it is rank free advertising and ignore it.

There are lots of exhibitors who will laugh at this statement, but let us tell you that the more you encourage the papers of your town to run real photoplay departments, to print the news of the picture world without regard to the immediate benefit on any particular picture that you may have, the more you are insuring your future and the more you are building up your business day after day. We called attention last week to the fact that the average exhibitor was satisfied if his newspaper gave him a gradiose reading notice about his production and let it go at that. He believes that the newspaper has done its full duty by him and, presumably, by the public. We do not think so and conversely we do think that the average newspaper, even in this time of the high cost of print paper, is willing to do its full duty if the exhibitors will get together and intelligently point out what they want and evidence their financial support by their advertising.

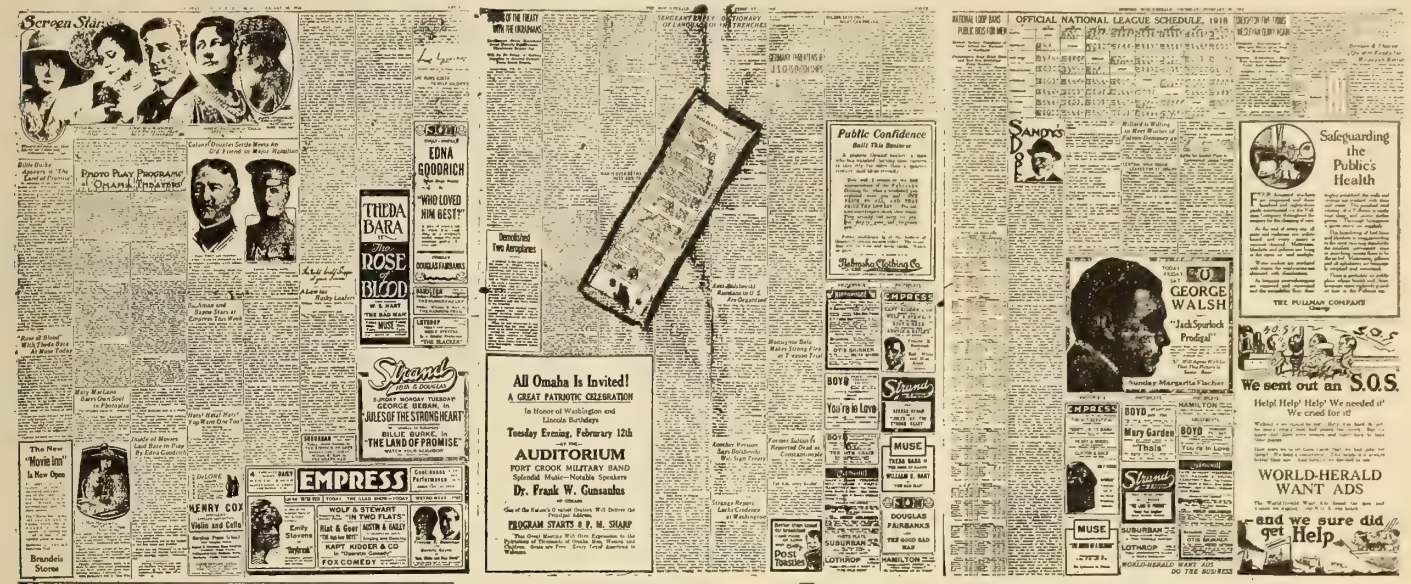
One purpose of this series of articles is to encourage the newspapers to get out better photoplay departments, and at the same time to urge the exhibitors to encourage the papers that are trying to do this, by liberal advertising, not alone for the value of the display itself, but for the business building news matter that the newspaper will carry.

Consider this point. Suppose you picked up your paper day after day and read glorifying articles about Bill Jones and that you knew that this matter was being printed merely because Bill was spending a certain amount of money with the paper each day. You'd pretty soon stop wasting your time reading about Mr. Jones. And suppose, to carry it further, that you knew a certain page of the newspaper was devoted to this sort of stuff. You'd be pretty apt to skip the page. Now this may be a rather far-fetched comparison with the motion picture department that carries only reading matter for the advertiser and carries it in any old shape that the exhibitor sends it in. Of course there is a certain percentage of the people who are enough interested in pictures to wade through it, but you are not beginning to reach the number that you could bring into your theatre and certainly you are not arousing any new interest.

So when this week we turn to study newspaper and advertising conditions in Omaha we are pleased to find evidence that the papers there, to a greater or less degree, are making an effort to co-operate with the exhibitors by printing matter of real interest, business building news and that the larger theatres are supporting the papers with advertising.

There is one thing that the average exhibitor rarely takes into consideration. After all the only thing that a newspaper has to sell is advertising, and circulation is income making just in the ratio that it increases the advertising rates. Therefore in making its plans a newspaper cannot figure on occasional or spasmodic displays, but must count on an average general expenditure. Therefore it is important that the motion picture theatres shall be regular in their advertising before they can expect the newspapers to regularly devote a department to them. We ourselves feel that most papers are not giving the attention to motion pictures that the public interest merits, but after all the business element has to enter into the consideration here as in everything else.

Now let us look at the situation in Omaha. In 1910 it had a census population of 124,096. It is in a prosperous section with considerable territory for its appeal. When we take the newspaper situation there we find a state of affairs that exists in few cities. There are three newspapers, the Bee, the News and the World-Herald. Both the Bee and the World-Herald get out both morning and afternoon editions, but they are not really separate papers, for though the first page is always changed a considerable portion of the body of the morning paper is carried through the afternoon edition. That applies to the motion picture news matter and the motion picture advertising. We have illustrated this on the opposite pages. The two right hand reproductions in the center row are from the morning and evening editions of the Bee, for the same day. It will be noted that both the motion picture advertising, the motion picture reading notices, the cartoon and some of the news matter is the same in both editions. Therefore to all intents the two editions of the Bee and the World-Herald can be regarded as single papers. The News is exclusively an afternoon paper on week days. All three issue Sunday editions.



There are now twenty-seven motion picture houses in Omaha. Of these 15 advertise regularly on Sunday in one or more of the papers, and four use space now and then, while seven feel that they can get along without advertising at all. Nine of them use display matter, that is in the regular news part of the paper, on weekdays while seven others advertise in the classified section more popularly known as "want ads." And let us say here that while advertising in the classified section appeals to some theatres because it is cheaper and does some good, twice as much spent in running a small ad together with the other theatres would do four times as much good. Yet, in contradiction of that, we'll admit that in the days when we conducted a motion picture department there was one exhibitor who had managed to get a contract with the classified page and refused to leave there to join the other theatres on the ground that he was satisfied where he was.

In the first place let us say that in the city the size of Omaha we do not believe that there is a theatre that could not afford to advertise regularly every day even if they used only five agate lines, just enough to give the name of the house, the title of the picture and the name of the star. No matter whether your house is a neighborhood affair or not, there are lots and lots of people

(Continued on page 1571)

Putting the "CO" in Newspaper Co-operation in Omaha

What the three dailies of this city do for motion picture theatres. At top Sunday and two daily pages from the Times-Herald. In the center and at the lower left Sunday page and three daily pages from The Bee, and the Sunday and daily advertising of the News. See story opposite for analysis.

Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel

SUNDAY was some busy day for the writer of these articles, and if it was busy for us what must it have been for Rothapfel. We told you that he had shown new wonders when he decided to operate the Rivoli in addition to the Rialto, but his work was lightened a little bit by the fact that the Rialto opened on Sundays and the Rivoli on Mondays. But late last week it was decided to yield to the general demand of New York audiences that new bills start on Sunday and open both houses on the same day.

So the first gala performance started at the Rialto at 2.15 and at 3 Mr. Rothapfel jumped over to the Rivoli to start things going there. Of course the show at the Rialto was just well started at that time, and one might expect the rest of it would not run smoothly without the master hand. But it did, for the simple reason that the wonderful example that Rothapfel has set and the splendid organization that he has built up is able to carry through his ideas. If nothing else is pointed out by this week's article, the point of organization is one to be considered — it means everything with the Rialto and the Rivoli, for the work that was done at the two houses could not have been accomplished without perfect esprit de corps, in all that the expression means.

And it could have been accomplished by no one without that almost inexhaustible energy of Rothapfel. This double opening means that he has to have his meals served in his office on Sundays and that he has to keep going back and forth between the two houses whenever some defect arises so that he may adjust it. And through the telephone he keeps close watch on both houses, always wide awake, almost — looking for trouble, we started to say. The exhibitor who is content to put his show on and let it run could learn a great many reasons for his lack of success by watching Rothapfel at work without even seeing the presentations that resulted.

Because news of the change of opening date of the Rivoli was received after this department had been laid out, and because last week's show at the Rivoli is reviewed on page 1576, we have to compress the two openings this week into the space usually occupied by the Rialto.

The feature at the Rialto this week is George Beban in "One More American," and it got more applause than almost any other five-reeler that we have seen put on there, largely because of the setting that the whole bill gave it. For the musical numbers through the presentation are purely Italian. That gave the bill the atmosphere, the motif, of which we have so often spoken. It simply surrounds the picture, a remarkably human filled with the whole spirit of Italian life and brings the appreciation of the finer points closer home.

"Capriccio Italien," by Tschaikowsky, is the overture, and though Dr. Riesenfeld also had to attend to leading the chief numbers at the opening of both houses, he was in fine form and the interpretation brought great applause. The dome is in blue and the proscenium arch in gold for this number, with the orchestra flooded with red light. Carrying out the effect still further, the side panels show scenes in Venice.

For the second installment of pictures of Yellowstone Park, two numbers of the Woodland suite are played, and this is followed by Annie Rosmer singing the bird song from "I Pagliacci."

Rialto Animated, as well as that at the Rivoli, opens with an editorial requesting the audience not to talk, especially during the presentation, especially the musical numbers, and at both houses it got an appreciative hand. This and the pictures of opening the Hog Island shipyard are shown with "Guard of Honor" march and are followed by pictures of rolling mills turning out shipbuilding material, for which a one-step was played. This is followed by a clever animated cartoon on keeping temperature at 68 degrees to save coal, and "What Kind of an American Are You?" accompanied it. A light ballet is played with pictures of the Denishawn dancers. Then come two little inserts that were cleverly put together, pictures of the dog show, and then one of the "Animal Friends" series, pictures of a group of performing dogs at work. Fairbanks's rodeo and a new mail-catching device for trains are shown with "Wild and Woolly," and then comes a clever Hi Mayer cartoon, "At Palm Beach," with "By the Sea." Clay modeling pictures of Mother's Liberty Loan were most effective. First the figure of the mother is shown, which works into a baby, that of a young boy, then a young man, and finally a soldier. It got great applause. Recruits at Camp Logan going about their strenuous training are displayed to "This is the Life," and the Animated closes with an effective cartoon showing democracy crushing out the Kaiser in the form of a dragon trying to take the whole world in his grasp.

Just before the feature M. Desire La Salle effectively sang the prologue from "I Pagliacci," while the effective lighting with the center of the dome in dark red, with blue around it, and the proscenium arch in red. After the feature the Rialto chorus made a big hit with "Funiculi—Funnicala," another Italian composition.

Happiness is the motif of the bill at the Rivoli this week. The feature, Jack Pickford and Robert Gordon in "Huck and Tom," radiates with humor, and the same can be said of almost every other number on the bill.

Rivoli's overture is "Southern Rhapsody," and for the first time since we have been writing these articles the overture is played with the full white-lighting effect. "Making of a Plotless Picture" is a clever Robert Bruce-Educational with many beautiful shots and it is shown with the third number of Schubert's Symphony.

Then follows Miss Helena Morrill singing "Kiss Me Again," from "Mlle. Modiste," which is artistically rendered in the garden scene.

Rivoli's first Animated picture is demonstration of the Browning gun shown to "Guard of Honor" march, followed by New York's eighty-four-mile gale, for which a one-step is used. Studies in astronomy prove most interesting, and Herbert's "Air de Ballet" is used and pictures of naval aviators followed with "Jack Tar" march. "Birds of Prey," including eagles and owls, brought many laughs, and for it "Spirit of the Ogres" is used and then pictures of General Garibaldi, shown to "Garibaldi March" for a big hand. The Animated closes with a big burst of enthusiasm with Pathe silhouette pictures of King Albert reviewing the Belgian troops. The first bar of "Brabissone" is used, and then "March Lorraine."

This patriotic setting follows quite perfectly into Greek Evans and the Rivoli male chorus singing "Over There," while the setting is New York Harbor and the Statue of Liberty. One may imagine how much applause it gets, especially after the pictures of the heroic Belgians. Following the feature, which delights the audience, "Three Little Maids from School" is sung most effectively. The three singers are in costume and a Japanese setting is used. A Metro Drew comedy winds up this exceedingly happy bill.

This Week at the Strand

THERE is a genuine treat of old time music arranged by Managing Director Harold Edel at the Strand this week. One novelty is appearance of the Strand ladies' quartette, which sings "My Old Kentucky Home," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginy" and "Old Folks at Home." With this the set showing a river and a Greek temple is used. John Finnegan sings "Come Back to Erin" and for good measure adds "I'm Falling in Love With Some One," from "Naughty Marietta."

"Carmen of the Klondike," this week's feature, is a very strong drama and is made particularly effective by the snow-storm effects which were used on the side panels just as the rain effects were employed last week.

After the overture, "Die Meistersinger," the Strand Topical opens with Paramount-Bray pictures of the motorcycle in the war, the Kiladea volcano and an interesting picture showing the torpedo in action. The remainder of the weekly is Hearst-Pathe. These are the tests of the Browning gun, naval aeronauts and then the powerful tribute to King Albert mentioned under the Rialto.

Except for the volcano pictures in the Topical there is no scenic this week and the comedy is "The Matinee Girl," one of the James Montgomery Flagg series.

Striking lobby effects used by the Star theatre, Everett, Wash., on the showing of "The Honor System." Note the way in which the lobby was turned into a prison corridor. This theatre is using painted sets similar to this on all productions and the management finds it most profitable.

How Omaha Newspapers Are Showing Their Co-operation With Exhibitors

(Continued from page 1568)

who, if they know that one of the papers carries a real directory of the picture theatres, will look there for the attractions daily, and a lot of people will go to the neighborhood house who won't walk around to find what is there or who won't preserve a program for that purpose. And a permanent motion picture directory so carried is a good circulation builder and circulation holder for any paper.

The directory style of advertising is valuable to the smaller theatre and the neighborhood house. For the larger downtown house we believe that the best advertising is the sort that while it has an individuality of its own different from day to day, we except that in such cases as New York and Boston and other cities where there are a large number of papers to be used and where the rate is high, preventing the theatres from using more than a few lines of space.

One thing that we like about the advertising of the larger theatres of Omaha and that is, especially in the Sunday papers, they use different styles of advertising in the different papers. This is true of the Strand and the Sun, particularly. Another thing that we like about these two theatres is that they do not confine their adverising to a Sunday splurge, but that they break out during the week with large space when they have a new picture which they believe is worth going too strong. For instance, in the upper right hand of the reproduced pages from the World-Herald there is a large ad of the Sun theatre which appears in the Sunday issue announcing George Walsh in "Jack Spurlock, Prodigal." Similarly in the two pages from the morning and evening editions of the Bee, the Tuesday of the same week, there is one of the big advertisements of the Sun on Douglas Fairbanks in "The Good Bad Man." Strand theatre follows the same policy, evidently using the largest copy during the week as is shown by one of the pages from the Bee reproduced at the left of the lower row. Here almost two full columns are used. Most of the Strand theatre advertising is unique and many of the specimens have been reproduced from time to time under "Your Idea and Ours."

Now let's take a look at what the theatres are doing and what the papers are doing in the way of co-operation. At the top of the jage of reproductions are three pages from the World-Herald, the one at the left being the Sunday motion picture page. Let us interrupt to say that the Omaha papers overcome one criticism that we had to make in the case of Salt Lake City. They carry regular layouts on the attractions for the week. There is nothing that looks more sloppy than a bunch of individual cuts, especially if they carry the lettered brand names or emblems that so many of the producers are insistent upou putting on their matter and which no paper that really tries to be of the best will print. They are bad enough for the small daily and the country weekly, but still some of the producers seem to think there is no reason why they should not be allowed to smear their trademark all through the news section of a motion picture department because they can get away with it in some few instances.

Headed "Screen Stars" and carrying a layout of players who will be seen at the local theatres during the week, the World-Herald starts out to supply a motion picture page, but falls down by including extraneous matters and cuts that have no reference to pictures. This may be an exceptional case, but any department of any paper that starts out to be something and then stops before it gets there is not getting the best results. This paper devotes a separate head to the attractions at the local houses and then prints quite a few little stories about plays and players, the sort of reading matter that is constructive. Six regular motion picture houses and one that shows both pictures and vaudeville are presented in the advertising. During the week it carries display ads from five regular picture houses and the combination house. The reading matter given in the daily paper consists of short paragraphs for each house printed in agate, and, in the editions before us, buried at the bottom of the page.

The News, the Sunday page of which is shown in the center of the lower row has an attractive layout to the eye. Only three large theatres and one neighborhood house use the News, yet three use larger space here than in the other Sunday papers. The main portion of the Sunday page is devoted to the attractions for the week and the remainder to short stories about the players. During the week, so far as we can see the News devotes no matter to the pictures. The portion of the column we have indicated in the page at the lower right-hand corner is devoted to the legitimate houses. Four picture theatres and the combination house use this paper regularly, although the Sun is not represented in the issue reproduced.

The Bee seems to have the bulge on the advertising, and certainly it makes far the best showing in the way of co-operation with the exhibitor. The Sunday page which is shown at the left of the center row is a real page and something that ought to interest the fans and yet it is the sort of page that any newspaper can give its readers if it will and the exhibitors will encourage it to do so. Twelve motion picture houses and the combination house use space in the Sunday issue reproduced. Both the Sun and the Strand use smaller space in this paper and in the World-Herald on Sunday than they do in the News, preferring to use larger space in these two papers through the week.

The Bee starts its page off with a layout on the stars and then leads the page with a news story and follows this with reading notices for the local houses. Under the heading, "Exposures," a considerable part of the page is devoted to little news items about the stars and about coming productions, without mentioning the names of the theatres at which they will be seen. This is interesting fan food.

(Continued on page 1577)

Your Idea---and Ours

ESPECIALLY in cities where the newspapers insist on jamming all of the advertising on one page, it is very difficult to attract attention to a particular display. However, the Park theatre, Boston, solves this problem intelligently. All of the displays for this theatre are especially designed, and the same design is not used in more than two newspapers.

In the first place, they are so designed that there will be a white space entirely around the display, thus setting it off. Again, the name of the theatre is always displayed stronger than anything else, and then there is a word from Manager Soriero concerning the bill, little sentences that are looked forward to with interest by the discriminating patrons of Boston.

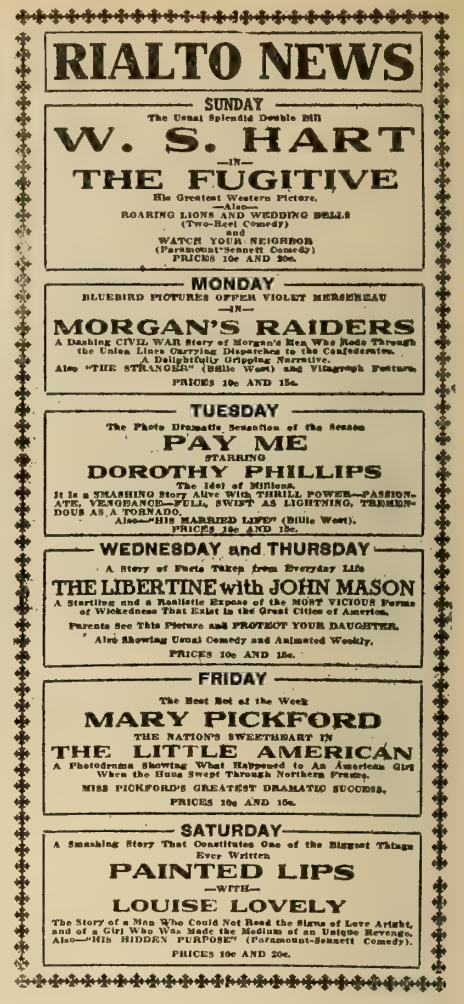
Double bills are largely the custom in Boston, which explains two pictures being displayed with almost equal prominence. This is a splendid style to adopt for advertising in cities where there are many newspapers, where space is expensive and where individuality is necessary. The display is two columns wide and four and one-half inches deep.

Nothing daunts the exhibitor who has the glint of confidence in his eye.

IF you think that you have a good deal to say about a picture and that you ought to say it, here's the way to do it. The display is that of the Valentine theatre, Toledo, O.

The ad. as reproduced doesn't tell the story unless first you know that the space used was six columns wide by fourteen inches deep, which, of course, made it the dominating thing on the page. Note further that the designer has used two sets to rules to emphasize the white space and that he has made the main announcement of the star and the title in such big type that it strikes one in the eye immediately.

Now we have commented adversely on box effects, but in this case they are used as they should be used—to cut off separate ideas. They at once give notice that they do not refer to the main feature, that they are separate announcements.



Remember that the circus may get away with the florid style of advertising, for the reason that the circus comes but once a year, but you've got to be in business at the same old stand every day in the year.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, is one of the homes of good newspaper advertising. We are constantly printing reproductions of displays of some of the houses there The one this week is that of the Metropolitan, which always used the distinctive border with the letter "M" in the corners.

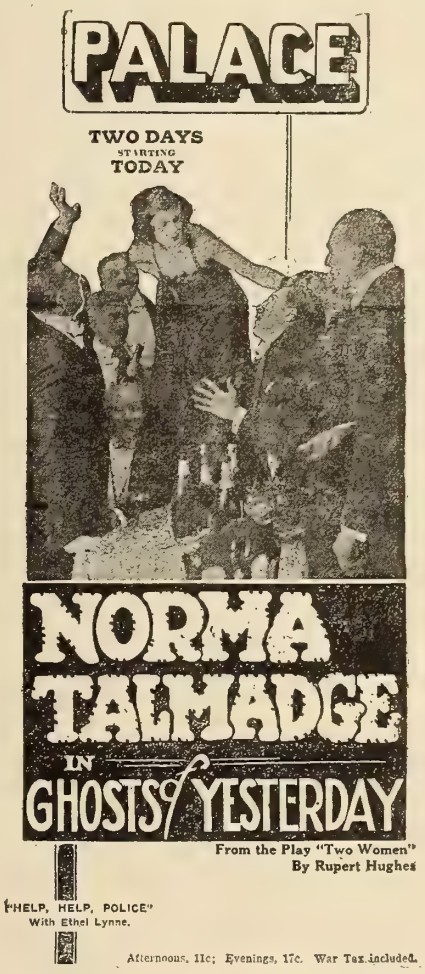
Here there is an excellent employment of the Ben Day background effect and a half tone. The star is properly brought out and the comedy is given the relatively proper prominence. There is one thing especially to which we would call your attention and that is the artistic lettering that is used in reference to the orchestra. It has a classy effect and it gimes the reader immediately the impression that there is tone to the theatre itself. A lot of managers do not appreciate that in the minds of a considerable part of the public the character of a house is determined by its advertising. And it is just as proper that should be the case as that the clothes a man wears should leave an impression of the man's character.

WITH the question, "What do you think of this?" the advertisement reproduced below is sent to us. We feel sure that it was not sent by the man who designed it. Briefly, what we think is, that it is a very bad piece of work from every angle and that the only slightly redeeming thing about it is that the designer has given a few lines more space to the Sunday announcement than to any of the others. This display would have made a fair house program. It is the sort of advertising that has no place in a newspaper, with the possible exception of the case where the only organ available is a weekly.

We have many inquiries from exhibitors who are changing daily wanting to know how they can extend their runs and how they can get the people to their theatres oftener. Not only does the Rialto, Jacksonville, Fla., give the whole program for the week, inviting the people to take their pick as to WHICH show they will see, but it advertises the Friday show as "the best bet of the week." It is almost equivalent to telling folk to stay away the rest of the time. Such advertising is more like a fruit stand display than intelligent exploitation.

Keep going ahead. A possible collision will take care of itself.

HERE is one of the best advertisements that we have seen in many a day, and it is from the Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore. The main portion of the display is in hand work with a cut out of Charles Ray made from one of the newspaper stills. The heavy lines representing the fence bring new attention to the figure of Ray. We are just a little doubtful if the design wouldn't have been even more striking if the drawing of the calf had been left out.



Of course, the main announcement is left to the pictures, together with the name of the star and the title. But for those who want to know a little more about what the picture is about there is a catchy line below the cut that appeals. "In cahoots with a good time" is a phrase that will bring a smile and that will be convincing, but like other things it doesn't want to be overworked.

Anybody can smile in fair weather, but the guy who can wade through the mud and rain and still grin is the fellow who is likely to get there first.

AN excellent combination of cut and type is represented in the display of the Palace theatre, Wichita, Kan., on "Ghosts of Yesterday." There has been a fine sense of values evidenced in this layout.

The main part of the advertisement is formed from a striking scene from the picture, which tells more to arouse the curiosity of the public than all the high-flown descriptive matter that the manager could dig out of the press books. First, the cut attracts the eye and that centers the reader's attention on the display and the name of the star and the title, which through the black and white effect are brought out so prominently that they come in with the first sweep of the eye. Then the fact that the play is from the Rupert Hughes book is dropped in as a minor statement, with the announcement of the comedy broken into the border in a way that guarantees it being seen.

And how much better is the small type announcement of the prices than something like "Positively No Raise in Prices," the old familiar legend that no longer convinces anyone.

Convince yourself that you are "IT" by making yourself "IT."

WHEN we got through looking at this display we hunted for the announcement of the first, second and third prizes for the reader who would guess what it was all about. It is the work of the Colonial theatre, Albany, N. Y.

Not only does it violate all good advertising rules about selling today's show first, but it is so confusing that one would have to have an intimate acquaintance with the stars to know what picture referred to what announcement. While you and we, because the motion picture industry is our business, may know, which feature do you suppose that the ordinary reader would suppose the upper center cut illustrated? There is not a single one of the cuts used that display that could not refer to at least two of the features. Even the Mary Pickford cut at the bottom might be taken in connection with the Pauline Frederick announcement.

Good advertising is the sort that convinces the reader that what you are offering him today is what he ought to have. When you make too many announcements you confuse him, but when you convert the whole thing into a puzzle you have gone the limit in bewilderment.

A theatre is known by the patronage that it KEEPS.

WE have had several occasions to comment on the advertising of the Butterfly theatre, Milwaukee, because the designer of these displays undertakes to try to say too much. Of course, liberal space is used—six inches across seven columns, and at the top of the page, a commanding position—but still mere space does not give any excuse for the crowded effect.

But for one thing, here is a good advertisement. The thing that keeps it from being a hundred per cent creation is the repetition of the fact that "Woman and Wife" is taken from the story of "Jane Eyre." Why not say a thing just once, but say it so convincingly that it wins its way home. This display would have been improved if the space under the cut of Alice Brady had been devoted to telling something about her. The box at the right of the display is good and will aid in bringing business.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

XLV—I understand that conditions in New York and conditions in a town like this, a lumber milling center of 12,000, are very different. I am changing my bill every night, and of course the main object is to get as many different people into my house as often as possible each week. Don't you think that I would be making a mistake by giving too long a show? And wouldn't the ideal bill for me be a feature and a comedy or a news reel or a serial, making not over seven reels at the outside? People go to bed early here, and after ten o'clock my place is deserted so I cannot put two two-hour shows into the evening. What would you suggest as the ideal bill for me, and how can I so vary this bill as to seem to be giving the people something different.—CYPRESS.

YOUR condition is one fraught with difficulties and I am going to give you advice which may prove dangerous. You must use your own head in accepting it. It is dangerous to tell anyone to rush a picture, but 12½ or 13 minutes per reel may give better results than 15. This is true in most cases, but of course there are exceptions.

If you use serials, try a good scenic, a topical, and either one or two reel features. Small stuff is popular. But you MUST give two shows, and give them attractively. One show, unless your house is very large, cannot be profitable. Remember that shows lasting longer than two hours rarely prove a success.

XLVI—We have a population of about 5,000 and no competition. Our house seats 240 and is pretty well filled most of the time. The music is furnished by an automatic instrument, and I have been thinking of putting in instead a small orchestra of three or four musicians. Do you think the music would be superior to the piano and would you advise me to make the change? If so, what instrument would you suggest?—NORTH CAROLINA.

I AM glad you are trying to improve your music. A small orchestra is decidedly to be preferred over an automatic piano. A violin, piano and an organ is the best combination of three instruments. A violin, piano and 'cello is very good. For a very small house with lots of comedy pictures, a violin, piano and drum will prove effective. I certainly do advise you to make the change. But of course you must let everybody know you are going to do so. Advertise that business is so good that you have decided to hire three musicians to furnish music during the pictures. I am glad indeed that you are trying to make your show better. Keep trying. That's the way to get ahead.

XLVII—What would you do if you were in my place? Six months ago I bought this theatre which consists of an old store room made over into an alleged theatre. There is no foyer or any place for display or advertising. There is only a medium-sized corner door, a large plate glass window filled in with the back of the office and booth. There is a small office and projection room above it, a side exit door and plain alabastine walls. The floor is level and I have only 200 chairs. The machine is old but in good order and the screen very poor. The player piano and two hundred records are beyond words.

Power for making the light is generated by a gas engine and dynamo across the street from the show. The theatre was opened about eight years ago, when all you had to do was to open the door and let them in and open the door and let them out. But since that time the people have gotten wise and demand more. This is a small, genteel town with nothing to draw from but a normal school and the resident population. I am trying to give the people a high grade show for 10 and 15 cents. The business had run down until the last night the owners showed to an audience of five. I bought it knowing how bad a fix it was in and what a hard job it would be to bring it up to a standard show house.

We are eleven miles from a railroad and have to pay for film delivery. The school has a lyceum course, private theatricals, literary folk games and athletics, all free, so it makes it hard to get a pay crowd when there is something free at the school.

I have been trying to run a daily change program. My trade is beginning to come back, but the people have to use economy, and since all the daily papers have been yelling economy it seems that our people take it too

I simply cannot bear the idea of being thought a quitter. I cannot afford to do heavy advertising through posters, heralds, etc., and there is only a weekly paper. I seem to have plenty of friends and no competition except the free shows at the school. But the town is so small and there is no pay roll for public works or factories and I am rather discouraged. I really would like to be able to make a high class show house that would entertain and instruct. Any help that you may give me will be appreciated.—F. S. J.

FIRST of all, change the name of the theatre, and let it be generally known that it is entirely under new management. Change the appearance of the exterior as much as you can, so that the new enterprise will lose the associations of the old.

Now you simply have to advertise. It doesn't make much difference how you do it, as long as you do let people know that you are offering a good entertainment. From a financial point of view the best show in the world is as poor as the worst if nobody knows it is being given. If you can't afford much printed publicity in the shape of posters, hand-bills, newspaper notices, etc., get your friends to talk your show up among the people.

It doesn't cost much to buy a pot of paint and some large sheets of paper, and to get some one with a little artistic ability to make very neat and attractive posters containing a brief message from you and announcing your program and ideas. Put them in the windows of every town store. Tack them up in the post-office, and outside the bank, and in the railroad station—even if it is eleven miles away. Get the whole vicinity talking about you and your show. Don't be afraid. You say you're not a quitter in your letter. Prove it.

But you must have some valid foundation for your advertising. Get features that will appeal to the people in the neighborhood. Don't go above the heads of your people, and certainly don't go below them. As a general thing, avoid the grewsome, the sensational, the melodramatic, the very serious, and choose the light, the clean, the whimsical, the human, for your features. I see you have a normal school. Get into touch with the faculty. If you can, ask some of the most influential teachers to help you in the selection of your programs, saying that their experience makes them qualified to judge what is good. If you are the least bit diplomatic you may still have your own way while appearing to let them have their finger in the pie. As for your program, make it full of life and snap. Educational subjects will probably go good. Show a feature, a weekly, a scenic (I will say something of music a little further on) and a comedy. Get some interesting animal studies. People like them. Use your judgment. Of course the people have learned "to demand more."

Improve your projection. If your screen is as you say, "very poor," you must contrive or get a better one. Really all you have to do is to give a flat wall two coats of plaster and top it with a coat of alabastine, bordering the rectangle with red or blue cloth, or, if possible, get a good screen preparation. Why not buy a screen? There are several good ones on the market which you might purchase on the installment plan. There is no excuse for poor projection. You might even get a projection machine on the installment plan.

Even if the daily papers are "yelling economy," I don't see how they can prevent your success if you only put the right stuff across and advertise it. Why not see the editors of the near-by papers and talk things over in a very diplomatic way and ask for a little publicity. Be ready to favor them in any way possible. I don't believe the papers are specifically urging economy in the direction of amusement activities. It's pretty general propaganda, and it ought not to trouble you.

As for that player-piano and records which are "beyond words," as you put it, I would advise you to sell it and get a piano and a pianist, one who has a knack for improvisation and who knows all the familiar melodies and can adapt his music to the pictures. If you can't get a piano and a pianist, have no music at all. Make your surroundings so refined, quiet and in good taste that music is not necessary. I did it at one time, and was very successful.

Improve the appearance of your theatre. Add some home touches. Think hard. Isn't there some way in which you can make your theatre look more homelike, more comfortable, more attractive? You are a woman. Pretend the theatre is your own parlor or sitting room. Don't make it too ornate, but simple and comfortable. Be sure you light it. Have lamps—if no power use kerosene lamps with pretty shades—something different. Try some incense—joss sticks or perfume—to prevent the air from becoming thick.

And then when you've done all this, or rather when you are about to do it, ADVERTISE. I've discussed advertising in my first paragraph above. I now repeat for emphasis, LET THE PEOPLE KNOW THE IMPROVEMENTS YOU HAVE MADE. Let the knowledge of your shows cover the neighborhood like the dew in summer time. Now go to it.

Getting Patronage Through Bargains

This is the ninth of our series of articles, "The Diary of a Successful Exhibitor," by an exhibitor who tells each week what he is doing to develop his house, the lessons that he learns and the errors that he discovers. It is a frank discussion of the pleasures and evils of exhibition in a town of 15,000, and the tips contained here will probably be of value to managers in all sections.

By a Successful Exhibitor

SHORTLY after this first competitor of mine had been killed off the managers of the other two houses began to wake up to themselves and start efforts to get back some of the business that they had lost. One of the first evidences that made its appearance was the free pass, or the half-priced ticket. Almost every week the people would be flooded with tickets that admitted them to see the pictures for five cents. At first these other theatres got the crowds and my business felt the falling off, but I was not worried. I had not come to the point of losing money, and I knew that every time my rivals put on stunts of this sort they were losing.

It had been the custom in my town before my advent to show the first episode of every serial practically to every one who wanted to come in. It has been their theory, and I know that the practice is even recommended by some of the producers, that the thing the manager wants to do is to get the public to see the first episode and that all who saw it will flock back to the theatre to see the remainder. I believe that with serials as with any other class of pictures that this is a mistaken idea and that the showman who works on any other principle than convincing his patrons that the show he is giving is worth the price he is charging is making a mistake.

As I said, this reduced rate business hurt me some for the first few weeks that it was tried, and some of my patrons asked why the other theatres were able to give the reduced price and that I could not do the same thing on occasions. In every instance I replied that I tried to see to it that my show was worth the price that I charged and that I could not afford to lower prices. When they asked how the other fellows could afford this, I did not enter into an argument about the comparative merits of the three theatres or knock the other fellows. I simply replied that I supposed that they needed the business. In the opening of these articles I told you how I made the showings on my first day absolutely free, but by invitation. That was a real "occasion"; there was something to celebrate. It is a thing that a house can do once, and only once. At later times I occasionally invited members of a certain society or organization to see a special picture, but when I did this I always arranged to show this picture to them outside my usual hours for showing. Of course, on account of the way the railroad schedule was arranged, it often resulted in my having to pay additional rental to get the film in time for these special showings, but the way I look at things of this sort is that it is not a question of a decline in the profit on that day, but the effect on the policy of your house.

I have often heard the argument made that a motion picture theatre is a business just the same as a store. That is true to an extent. There are reasons for bargain sales in stores. They are usually held for the purpose of cleaning up old stock or over-orders or for the purpose of raising money. The motion picture theatre has no old stock to sell, only the present offering. And the motion picture theatre that tries to raise money by bargain offers today is just as surely killing business for tomorrow. The theatre that is getting people into its house on the theory that the patrons are getting something for nothing is going to have a harder time each week getting them, even if the same ruinous policies are kept up. I believe that these statements apply everywhere, but I know that they did apply in my town most strikingly. So when the other theatres began this reduced price plan I wasn't in the slightest worried about how it would turn out in the end, but still I wasn't collecting any huge profits on my business and the most of the money I took in was going back into the theatre, but I was interested in watching the present day developments and so kept a close eye on the business of the two houses. Within a couple of weeks I could see that the public itself waited for the nights when there would be reduced admissions to attend those theatres. Of course, there is a considerable element of the population that is satisfied with attending the theatre once a week, and when the other house got them, even though I knew they were not making money on the proposition, it did hurt me to some extent.

Now one of the first things I was interested in was the way this was going to affect my Saturday afternoon custom, the people I was getting from the country through the sort of advertising that I have told you about. The first Saturday showed a falling off of a dollar on the matinee business and the second Saturday matinee my business was above normal. Not only did my competitors fail to hurt my business out-of-town, but they were losing more money than they took in, because Saturdays during school season was the time that you had to count on getting the custom of the children and when all the theatres were well patronized by them. When you cut the price in two for all the regular patronage you hurt.

I knew that the reason this cut rate business had not hurt my out-of-town patronage was because through my advertising the people had made up their mind that they wanted to see the pictures that I had announced for that day and that they came with the intention of seeing those pictures, and no mere cheaper admission would swerve an appreciable number from that purpose. So, if that sort of advertising applied to the country folk, there was no reason why it would not apply to my house. So I put just a little more emphasis on my advertising and used a little more space in advance of the days that I knew my competitors would cut their prices. You can see the logic of this immediately. The cut price fellows could not afford to have it known all week that they would cut the prices Friday and thereby invite the public to wait until Friday, but, without detracting much from the desire to see my current show, I could attract attention to a special picture that would be seen Friday. I agree with the advice of the advertising expert of the NEWS, that it is a bad thing to detract from the interest in your current show by advertising some future one but where you have to meet a certain peculiar state of affairs on some certain day I have found it advisable.

Three weeks after the fourth theatre had closed one of the others began to advertise. The owner of the newspaper called my attention to the fact, and added confidentially, "But I am seeing that he doesn't get too far on the credit side of the books." This theatre used about the same space that I did, but you could see all through his advertising that he was doing this with the idea of killing me off. Every picture that he had was "stupendous" or "amazing" or "the greatest picture ever made." I was very much pleased with this advertising. I knew that it would fool a lot of people at first, and fool them good and hard. A couple of months of this sort of advertising and the manager made up his mind that it did not pay to advertise.

And then he did the next thing that he

(Continued on page 1577)

MADE HIS BETTER

That's the Way That Successful Exhibitor Met Competition

IN this article Successful Exhibitor tells how he met the opposition in his town. In the last issue he told you how he took over the first of the houses to go by the board and closed it up.

Now he tells you about the ruinous competition that his surviving competitors undertook. He sat still in the boat, though his receipts were being cut, and devoted his attention to giving the best show possible. Finally one of the houses went out of business and the other took it over.

Then Successful Exhibitor started out to see how he could better his show. His story has a lot of meaning to every showman.

Here is a splendid display made by the Schade theatre, Sandusky, O., when there were shown the pictures of Gen. Glenn's five months old army in training. The construction of part of one of the buildings at Camp Sherman where the pictures were made attracted unusual attention. It was a clever idea of Manager George J. Schade and splendidly executed.

Rivoli Shows How Scenic Can Make Broadway Sit Up and Take Notice

THREE months and a half ago "Seeing the Rialto with Rothapfel" told how he had put on a scenic showing Niagara Falls and how he had played with it Elder's "Pomp and Circumstance" march, rearranged to suit the picture and the wonderful effect it has on the audience. It takes the perfection of exhibition to show a similar picture with the same music and make it appear so different that it strikes real students of exhibition as something distinctly new. Yet he did this at the new Rivoli when he showed different pictures of the great falls, "Niagara in Winter and Summer" and used the same music, though differently arranged and with a number of effects added. And he did it so splendidly that all Broadway has been talking about it for the week.

Most exhibitors would have done one or two things. They would have followed exactly the same plan that they used in the showing of the first Niagara picture or else they wouldn't have dared to repeat something that appeared so similar. Not only rearrangement of the music, but the water effects that were shown in the side panels, the sound of rushing water and falling volumes made this short film stand out as a picture that will cause more talk than two-thirds of the features presented in the ordinary way. And that is the reason why the exhibitor who does things the ordinary way and wonders why he cannot get results out of pictures needs to think hard all the time and do things differently.

Rivoli is adding new wonders as it "gets broken into harness" and if every exhibitor in the country could see this house it would be worth wonders to him. One exhibitor wrote to ask us "Would it be worth while to come to New York to see the Rivoli and the Rialto?" He lives only a few hundred miles away, and we wrote him, "Yes." If he lived around the globe he would write him "Yes" just as emphatically. It will pay in the new vision it will give, in the ideas that it will stir in every brain.

"Les Huguenots" is the overture and with the lights in the ceiling red and gold in the proscenium arch over the orchestra, the introduction to this is played before the full Rivoli chorus is revealed singing "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," Luther reformation hymn. This was a note of grandeur and it was carried through the scenic that followed, especially with the organ effects and the rolling drums. Following these two majestic touches came a light and pleasing dance by four young girls, "Toreador et Andalouse" with a Spanish village setting and the lights fittingly in red.

Attractive new animated titles mark all the introductions included in the Rivoli Animated, which opens with the Camp Upton boys' parade. Now pictures of this parade were also used at the Rialto, but here they were given a different treatment. First the music of a uar of trumpets and drums, with the bugle calls echoing now and then, and first were shown pictures of the boys as they started to camp and then came the parade as it appeared on Washington's birthday. The music was first "Somewhere in France" and after the repeated trumpet calls it turned into "Over There." These were Universal and were followed by a cartoon showing the Administration and the Critic, represented by Wilson and a small goat. Finally nature pictures of fowl colonies in Oregon followed, shown to an original characteristic caprice and then another patriotic touch was added with dynamiting ice to launch ships for which the accompaniment was "Good Old U. S. A." which continued through a cartoon pledging its aid, "We Must, We Can, and We Will." The audience was again stirred with pictures of the dreadnought presented to England by New Zealand, shown with whistle effects and "Admirals All" march. Then came Pathe pictures of the Castle funeral, with all lights out and the organ playing, the drums rolling and bells tolling. "Nevaire Raise" was the music for the wonderful Universal pictures of liquid fire, and then the Animated passed into preparation for the next number with pictures of African tribesmen starting to battle for France, shown to "In the Soudan."

What can be done with a feature was evidenced with the presentation of "The Sign Invisible," for which a special score had been prepared. We regret there is not space for a full description, but there are some splendid storm effects achieved, and there is one point where a girl is playing "Abide with Me" that the singer's voice is introduced with wonderfully impressive effect.

After the feature, which is intensely dramatic, comes a light effect in "The Glow Worm," sung by four young women members of the Rivoli chorus. These were shown seated in the rose arbor while the glow-worm effect was carried out by electric flashes they held in their hands, and by the glow-worms whose lights appeared in trelises.

Two patriotic settings used at Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo. The one at the right was employed on Washington's Birthday and that on the left on Lincoln's

Franklin Sets Mark in Patriotic Settings for His Stage

ART of instilling patriotism in motion picture theatre audiences has seemingly been mastered by Manager Harold B. Franklin of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo. During the past several months Mr. Franklin's scenic artists have centered their efforts on stage settings of a patriotic nature, these secenes showing thrilling events in American history "over here" and "over there."

February had the birthdays of the two great Americans, Lincoln and Washington. These dates gave Manager Franklin an opportunity to set up two excellent scenes, one depicting Lincoln in a heroic pose and the other showing the familiar episode of the Father of his Country crossing the Delaware.

Both of these settings drew forth unbounded applause whenever the curtains were drawn disclosing the scenes, which is usually at the climax of some patriotic overture. "The American Patrol" was played during the first part of Lincoln week and Victor Herbert's "American Fantasie" accompanied the Washington setting.

In connection with the Washington setting Manager Franklin "pulled" a publicity stunt in the Buffalo Evening News, where he linked a photograph of the setting up with the W. S. S. campaign. A three-column cut of the scene cut of the scene was published with the following story under it:

"'Washington Crossing the Delaware,' a picture familiar throughout the length and breadth of the land, is greeted with tremendous applause at every performance this week in Shea's Hippodrome. The picture is made in silhouette, splendidly colored and occupies the entire space of the picture sheet with the inscription:

"'Washington stopped at nothing to achieve victory.

"'War Savings Stamps mean victory and prosperity.'

"The Government needs unlimited capital to supply the needs of her fighters; and it is up to her stay-at-homes to lend their quarters to help out. War Savings Stamps are miniature Government bonds. Buy! Buy! Buy!

"Manager Franklin announced today that through the courtesy of Michael Shea every employee of Shea's Hippodrome was to be presented with a thrift-book and stamps to encourage saving."

Diary of Successful Exhibitor

(Continued from page 1575)

had left to do—cut his price of admission. This was the beginning of the end. He was finally able to get some reduction in his film rental, but you can generally figure that when an exchange reduces your rental on a poverty plea, or rather on a disguised plea of poor showmanship, it is going to conclude that most anything will do you and that you are likely to see the results of it in the service that you get. The most of the stories about exchanges trying to build up the rundown theatre; but, so far as I have been concerned, the most of this appears pleasing fiction. The final result of this man's effort was a sheriff's sale, and my remaining competitor took over the house. This was the interesting experiment that I wanted to see tried.

The first effect this announcement had on me was to arrange to spend a week in the exchange city and to see all the best pictures of services that were not being booked in my town. I wanted to see whether there was any way in which I could better my program. I didn't try to get any of my competitor's services from him, but I had scarcely dropped into the office of the manager of one of the exchanges that furnished me with pictures when I was told that my competitor had made a bid for these pictures. "Why don't you let him have them?" I suggested.

How Omaha Newspapers Show Cooperation with Exhibitors

(Continued from page 1571)

There is something here to hold the reader's attention. We would be glad to see what this motion picture editor could do with two pages, yet the Bee has gone beyond the ordinary rule and has devoted more than half the page to reading matter.

During the week the Bee carries the display ads of nine motion picture houses and the combination house, and this paper devotes liberal space to reading notices every day running the legitimate matter first and then the motion picture matter. This matter is confined to reading notices.

Managers everywhere would do well to call the attention of their newspapers to the situation in Omaha and show what the papers are doing, show that all the papers are doing on Sunday more than give mere advance notices and printing this short, interesting matter that is worth while to the reader and to the theatre. He might point out further that the paper that is doing the most is getting the most in return. He could point out that the man interested in motion picture matter would certainly buy the Bee in preference, because it contains not only more news matter, but more advertising.

Incidentally, we understand that the Bee is the only one of the papers that employs a man to give his sole attention to amusements and motion pictures, and that this man prepares the copy and even the reading notices for the smaller houses, going to the exchanges to get their bookings and taking care of all their troubles and that from time to time he brings many ideas from other papers to the attention of the larger houses. This is the sort of co-operation between a newspaper and theatres that is worth while and beneficial to all concerned.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

Franklyn Farnum Has Dual Role in "The Rough Lover"

(Bluebird Five-Reel Production)

Franklyn Farnum, the smiling comedian of Bluebird Photoplays, comes to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— in "The Rough Lover." In this newest of Bluebirds Farnum has a dual role and gets away with it as only a star as versatile as Farnum could. Juanita Hansen, who has been appearing as Farnum's leading lady in his recent productions, is again seen as the sweetheart heroine, and radiates her striking beauty to the great delight of her audiences. Other members of the cast who contribute to the successful presentation of this rollicking comedy are Catherine Henry, Fred Montague and Martha Mattox. In the story Richard Bolton is deeply in love with Helen, a worthy descendant of the famed beauty of ancient Troy. But as a lover Richard is a first class mathematician. He figures that the winning of Helen lies in the mere solution of the algebraic equation: R plus H equals One. But if Richard's love is not returned by Helen, he is after all the object of the unsolicited affections of the Countess. Indeed, so persistent is the Countess and so demonstrative that one day, when Richard is attired in his bathing suit, he is obliged to swim under water for a considerable distance to avoid her. He reaches an island where "Breeze" Bolton, heavyweight champion, is training. Now "Breeze," oddly enough, is Richard's perfect double. Richard persuades him to swim over and make love to the Countess—a dangerous thing for him to do, for "Breeze" promptly transfers his attentions to the more attractive Helen, who thinks he is Richard. "Breeze" finally runs off with Helen, who soon discovers that he is not Richard and starts screaming with all her might. The real Richard rushes to the fray and so hard put to it is "Breeze" that he has to jump off a cliff and swim for his life.

"The Rough Lover," with Franklyn Farnum, at the ——— on ———.

Alice Brady Seen as Society Butterfly in "Spurs of Sybil"

(World Film Five-Reel Production)

The charming and popular star, Alice Brady, will be seen in a new World-Picture Brady-Made, "The Spurs of Sybil," on ——— at the ——— theatre. In this picture the young actress appears in a totally different role from any in which she has recently been seen. The story is that of a girl who goes forth into the cold, cold world to win her spurs by earning her own living for an entire year. It is jammed full of surprises and thrills, running the whole gamut of human emotions. Louise Winter is the author and Travers Vale directed the production. John Bowers, John Davidson, Iseth Munro, Justine Cutting, Eugenie Woodward, Herbert Barrington and Richard Clarke are included in the cast. Sybil Drew has been brought up as a "poor relation" by her wealthy aunt. The latter feels that the life Sybil has been leading has made her unhappy and discontented, so she sends her out into the world with $125 and instructions to earn her own living for a year. Sybil's pride is aroused and she is determined to make good. The first thing she does is to take an apartment at the Plaza Hotel! Rather an unusual thing for one who has only $125 to last a whole year, but Sybil does it through sheer ignorance of the ways of the world. But, her money running low, she is soon forced to leave the Plaza and seek less expensive quarters. Adventure follows adventure in quick succession. She is seen by Dr. Ross Alger, an enterprising, good-looking young physician, and he is immediately attracted to her. But he sees her several times in compromising situations, which lead him to think she is a crook. However, Sybil weathers all the perils that beset her and wins her spurs, but not all in the manner one would expect. Young ladies, especially, not only those who have to earn their own living, but those who do not, should make it a point to see this picture.

Alice Brady in "The Spurs of Sybil" on ——— at the ———.

Clara Kimball Young Wears Prison Garb in "The House of Glass"

(Select Five-Reel Production)

"The House of Glass," Clara Kimball Young's latest and, critics say, her greatest starring vehicle, is announced for presentation at the ——— theatre on ——— In this sensational film drama, based upon the famous play of the same name by Max Marcin, Miss Young rises to dramatic heights hitherto unattained even by this brilliant star among stars. As Margaret Case Miss Young plays the role of a stenographer who, although entirely innocent of complicity in the crime, is arrested as the accomplice of Burke, whom she is about to marry and who has stolen, without her knowledge, some seventy thousand dollars' worth of jewelry. After a year and a half in prison she is paroled, but breaks the parole and goes West. There she meets and marries a prominent railroad man named Lake and for ten years they live together without his learning of her past. Promotion finally brings Lake to New York where, shortly afterward, a young employee is arrested and convicted for stealing from the railroad company. A detective, coming to the house to confer with Lake on the case, recognizes Margaret. She, likewise, recognizes the officer and knowing that the old charge will be raked up tells the story of her hidden past to her husband. Lake tries to call the detective off and while the latter is at Lake's house the butler announces the Governor of the State. Lake, without disclosing Margaret's identity, asks the Executive for her pardon. This the Governor agrees to grant when Lake himself agrees not to press the charge against the young clerk, in whom the Governor is interested. The cast supporting Miss Young is a notable one, including Corliss Giles, who was leading man in "Shirley Kaye" and "The Marionettes"; Edward Kimball, the star's own father, whose work in "Magda" won him high praise; Norman Selby, better remembered as "Kid McCoy," a former pugilistic idol; Pell Trenton, James T. Laffey, Josie Sadler, William Waltham, Peggy Burke and Doris Field. The direction of the production reflects the highest art of Emile Chautard.

Clara Kimball Young in "The House of Glass" at the ——— theatre on ———

Wallace Reid and Kathlyn Williams Co-Stars in "The Thing We Love"

(Paramount-Lasky—Five Reels)

A story of war without war's horrors is "The Thing We Love," in which Wallace Reid and Kathlyn Williams will appear on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— An actual plot, inaugurated by German agents in this country, is said to have provided H. B. and M. G. Daniels with the theme for the story, which tells how a strong young man and his sweetheart were able to thwart the plans of the plotters. The production is a notable one in every respect. Both Mr. Reid and Miss Williams are recognized stars of the screen, the former being particularly remembered for his notable work as leading man with Geraldine Farrar in "Joan the Woman." The picture was directed by Lou-Tellegen, famed as the director of Madame Sarah Bernhardt in her first photoplay, and also as her leading man on the stage. The cast includes such sterling artists as Tully Marshall, Mayme Kelso, Charles Ogle and Billy Elmer. Harvey Thew wrote the scenario. Margaret Kenwood, daughter of the president of the Kenwood Manufacturing Company, is engaged to Rodney Sheridan, the young vice-president of the company. Both are avowed pacifists. At the outbreak of the European war Kenwood pledges his factory to the manufacture of munitions. Rodney refuses to assist, resigns his position and plunges into anti-war propaganda. Kenwood, enraged, frames a charge of embezzlement against Rodney, and has him sent to Sing Sing. With his life practically ruined he blames the Government for his plight. Through it all Margaret remains his staunch and trusting friend. Released from prison he is drawn into a plot of German agents, directed by Kenwood, to blow up a munition plant. However, he is diverted just in time by the eloquent words of a loyal American citizen of German parentage. Kenwood's part in the plot is revealed and his corruption so affects both Rodney and Margaret that they are converted from their pacifism and as he marches away under the Stars and Stripes she is seen, tearful, but bravely applauding his patriotism.

"The Thing We Love" is announced for ——— at the———.

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

March 9, 1918.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCER
"Wild Women" -	Universal	5 reels
"Powers That Prey"	Mutual	5 reels
"The Floor Below"	Goldwyn	6 reels
"Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers"	Vitagraph	5 reels
"The Great Adventure"	Pathe	5 reels
"Little Red Decides"	Triangle	5 reels
"Six-Shooter Andy"	Fox	5 reels
"The Cast Off"	Foursquare	7 reels
"Morgan's Raiders"	Universal	5 reels
"Daddy's Girl"	Pathe	5 reels
"A Madison Square Arabian Night"	General	2 reels
"Heiress For a Day"	Triangle	5 reels
"The Shoes That Danced"	Triangle	5 reels
"The Shuttle"	Select	5 reels

Beautiful Kitty Gordon Seen in Effective Role in "The Wasp"

(World Five-Reel Production)

Willard Mack, author of many Broadway stage successes, penned a screen masterpiece when he wrote "The Wasp," which is the attraction on ——— at the ——— theatre. Kitty Gordon, the internationally famous beauty, is seen in the leading role of Grace Culver, a part said to be particularly suited to her splendid talents and good looks. The action of the story rushes along at a high rate of speed. It tells of the efforts made by a German spy to put out of commission the big munitions factory owned and operated by John Culver. By a peculiar train of circumstances Grace Culver, daughter of the owner of the factory, who, because of the stinging nature of her remarks about her friends and things in general, is called "The Wasp," is caught in the spy's plot. A new chauffeur has appeared at her house, informing her that her regular driver is sick and has sent him to take his place. Grace bids him take her for a long ride and on the way he becomes rather "fresh"—so much so, in fact, that she informs him that he is discharged the moment they return to New York. On the return trip, as they are passing the Culver factory, they are held up by a mob who have been incited to a strike by Wagner, the German agent. The chauffeur is imprisoned in a cellar and Grace and her maid are locked in an upper room of the same building. The women overhear a conversation of the plotters who talk of a secret tunnel. Making escape she goes to the cellar where the chauffeur is imprisoned and informs him of the tunnel and the conspiracy to blow up the plant. Together they crawl into the tunnel where they soon are imprisoned by a terrific explosion. Face to face with probable death they find that they are in love with each other. Strange, indeed, but nevertheless true. Moreover, after Fate extricates them from their predicament, they marry. The "chauffeur" in reality is—well, why not let the screen tell the rest of the story? It's unique. Lionel Belmore directed the production, and an excellent cast is seen in support of the star.

At the ——— on ———, "The Wasp," with Kitty Gordon.

"The Trimmed Lamp," Another of O. Henry's Wonderful Stories

(General Film Two Reel Production)

"The Trimmed Lamp," another of the Broadway Star Feature series of O. Henry short story masterpieces translated to the screen, will be shown at the ——— theatre on ———. By many "The Trimmed Lamp" is considered O. Henry's best story. The element of suspense predominates, working up to a smashing climax which carries a tremendous moral lesson. Nancy and Lou are chums—came to New York together from the same town and live in the same rooming house. Lou works long hours every day in a laundry, but has become the object of the ardent and honest devotion of Dan Owens, an electrician. Nancy, at less pay, works in a Fifth avenue millinery shop, and dreams of marrying a millionaire. Her dreams seem likely to be realized when she is invited by Mrs. Van Alstyne Disher to a dinner party at a glittering cafe and there she meets Reggie Van Skittles. But when he proposes a nice little apartment uptown she refuses him. In the meantime Dan proposes to Lou but she puts him off with an evasive answer. Now it so happens that Fate—and Reggie—lead Lou along the primrose path and Dan leads Nancy to the altar. An odd turnabout, but told in O. Henrys inimitable and masterly manner. Mildred Manning, Alice Terry and Elmer Peterson are included in the splendid cast, which interprets the story under the direction of George Ridgwell.

"The Trimmed Lamp," an O. Henry story, at the ——— theatre on ———.

AD TALKS vbgkqj etaoin scshrdlu

"Marrying Off Dad," One of the Judge Brown "Kid" Stories

(General Film Two-Reel Production)

Another of those delightful "kid" stories by Judge Willis Brown, "Marrying Off Dad," is announced for ——— at the ——— theatre. Everybody loves a bad boy, so long as his heart isn't bad, and that's the reason the stories of boy life, written by the Chicago municipal judge, have such a human appeal. They are true to life, for he seems to get the boy's angle as few writers of stories about boys have been able to do. "Marrying Off Dad" is a story about Sam and Frank Grant, two motherless youngsters, who are caught playing hookey and are taken to court by the truant officer. The judge, after soundly lecturing the father for allowing the boys to do the housework, orders the boys to get a housekeeper. After viewing a number of applicants at an employment agency they find an attractive Swedish girl who consents to take the place. She immediately begins to boss things about the house and arouses the ire of the father. The boys, fearing that they will lose her, consult a friend, Flora Walker, and with her help they outline a campaign whereby they may be able to save her to the family. Their scheme is successful, so much so that their father falls in love with her, eventually marrying her and settling the housekeeper problem indefinitely.

"Marrying Off Dad," one of Judge Willis Brown's boy stories, will be told on the screen of the ——— theatre on ———.

Belle Bennett in "A Soul in Trust," Appealing Love Story of South

Triangle's latest production, presenting Darrell Foss, Belle Bennett, Lillian West, Grover Franke, J. Barney Sherry, Lee Hill, Lizzie Davis and William Dyer, is "A Soul in Trust." Catherine Carr wrote the story. G. P. Hamilton directed. Dabney Carter, last of a famous old Virginia family, and Courtney Maitland, society belle of the South, are married. A few months later Carter leaves his bride to join some friends who are hunting in the mountains. Returning to his lodge he enters a room occupied by Nan Barker, an untamed girl, who receives him with open arms. In the morning Carter realizes what he has done and returns to his bride. He is elated when told that an heir is expected but his joy is marred when he learns that Nan Barker will soon be a mother. He leaves for the mountains with the intention of repairing as far as possible the wrong he has done the girl, but on his way he falls from his horse and receives injuries that cause his death. Carter's widow is doubly bereaved when her infant son dies. She learns then of Nan's plight and pays her well for the right to adopt her son and bring him up as Dabney Carter, Jr. Nan Barker becomes a woman of the world and soon is able to match her wits with men of wide experience. She is hired by a land grabbing syndicate to cause the downfall of United States Senator Franklin, who is blocking a crooked deal. She goes to Washington and there meets the Senator's secretary. He is a tool in her hands and does her bidding. Their criminal deeds are revealed and the youth turns on her as the instigator of the crimes. The woman's identity is disclosed when Mrs. Carter, calling on her adopted son, recognizes the woman as Nan Barker, the mother of the youthful secretary. Nan Barker, to save her son further humiliation, drops out of sight, and Mrs. Carter becomes the wife of Senator Franklin as a result of the meeting under tragic circumstances, in his office.

"A Soul in Trust," with Belle Bennett in the featured role, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Noted Russian Artists Seen in Russian Drama, "The Beggar Woman"

I. I. Mozukin, the noted Russian actor, and Mme. N. A. Lesienko, of equal fame on the Russian stage, are seen in Pathe's late release, "The Beggar Woman," a Russian Art Film production. The story begins with the triumph of Mary Mar, a beautiful prima donna, whose marvelous voice charms all Petrograd. Among the ardent admirers of the wonderful singer is Sergius, a poet and literary lion of Russia. Sergius worships at the shrine of the popular goddess from afar. But one evening he is persuaded to invade the mysterious region behind the footlights. From the moment Sergius and Mary Mar are introduced the world becomes brighter. Sergius is invited to join a select gathering at the prima donna's home after the opera. Soon he tells her of his love. But he refuses to be numbered among her mere admirers. All of the other suitors are told to stay away from the singer's home. Only Sergius is welcome. The superficial glitter and tinsel of the opera lose their flavor. Mary Mar announces that she is to become the wife of the poet. Magnificent entertainments are given in honor of the favorites of Petrograd. Inspired by the love of Sergius, Mary Mar becomes even more attentive to the needy, the sick and the unfortunate. She visits the sick child of a former member of her chorus. In the poverty-stircken hovel she contracts the dreadful disease of smallpox. Sergius calls at her home and, defying the terrible risk, demands to be permitted to see her. But he is not admitted. He awaits her recovery in miserable seclusion. A month passes. The singer is on the road to recovery. The attending physician orders every mirror removed. He forces her to wear a veil "to shield her eyes." She must not suffer any shock.

A new operatic star is in the ascendancy. Rumors that Mary Mar will not return to the stage bring hosts of creditors. Her most intimate possessions are sold at auction. Everything is kept secret from Sergius until the announcement of the auction sale is published. He hurries to the home of his financee. Sergius crushed the veiled woman in eager arms. Then she lifts the veil.

JUST PICTURES?

Or Do You Know About Them Before You Show Them?

EVERY exhibitor ought to see every picture before he shows it. That would be the ideal arrangement, but of course in the majority of cases that is impossible. If he could see them he would be in a much better position to tell his patrons about them, to exploit them intelligently and therefore get better box office results.

But if he cannot do this he should follow the MOTION PICTURE NEWS reviews and reports carefully and he should use these Ad Talks not alone as reading matter in the newspaper but as pre-showing information. We wonder how many people simply admit that they are good things and then pass them by, and how many systematically clip them and file them away or index them for reference.

What does Sergius see? What does he do? "The Beggar Woman," with I. I. Mozukin and Mme. N. A. Lesienko in the featured roles will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter," Screen Version of Popular Play

(Paramount Five-Reel Production)

Billie Burke returns to the screen of the ——— theatre on ———, to the joy of ——— patrons. Miss Burke's starring vehicle this time is "Eve's Daughter," the play by Alicia Ramsey which Grace George appeared in recently on Broadway and which has been adapted to the screen by Margaret Turnbull. The story deals with the adventures of a girl who has been strictly brought up and, following the death of her father, decides to have her "fling" with the meager fortune he leaves her. The supporting cast could well be called all-star. Lionel Atwill appears in the part of the scheming villain, which he created in the stage production. Thomas Meighan, as usual, is leading man and others in the cast are William Riley Hatch, Florence Flynn, Harriet Ross, Lucille Carney, Mary Navaro and Henry Lee. The picture was produced under the direction of James Kirkwood. Cut off with a paltry fifteen thousand when she has expected a million, Irene Simpson-Bates breaks right out at his death, determined to spend all the money as quickly as possible. She naturally acquires a number of expensive friends, among whom is Courtenay Urquhart, who after a brief courtship persuades her to elope with him. John Norton, a young lawyer formerly employed by Irene's father, learns of the elopement and knowing the unscrupulous character of Urquhart determines to save the girl whom he has long loved from herself and the designs of her wicked suitor. By means of a faked cablegram to Urquhart, stating that his rich uncle has died and that he must sail for England at once. Norton succeeds in thwarting the contemplated marriage, and just as Urquhart is leaving after vainly pleading with Irene to accompany him, Norton enters, tells Irene it is all a ruse, and holding out his arms calls her "home." She goes.

Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter" is the attraction at the ——— theatre on ———.

"Nobody's Wife," with Louise Lovely, Story of Mounted Police Chase

Hart Hoxie, Alfred Allen, Betty Schade, Louise Lovely, A. G. Kenyon and Grace McLean have the principal roles in Universal's late production, "Nobody's Wife." Find the woman, is the first rule in every police headquarters in every part of the globe when a criminal is wanted. Alec Young was wanted. He had committed murder six years before. The police had no picture of Alec, but they did know that dancing Pete was his girl and that she had been seen around Nugget. Jack Darling was the handsomest man on the force and was given the assignment to get Young. Not knowing just exactly where Dancing Pete lived, Jack blundered into a cabin where a remarkably pretty girl seemed to be living alone and proceeded to make violent love to her. By the time he found out his mistake, the lovemaking had made great progress and Hope Ross had consented to help Jack out by permitting him to say he was her husband when he went to the saloon to ask for milk for Hope's baby. It really was her sister's baby, but fear of Jack had impelled Hope to claim it as her own. Jack found Dancing Pete all right and made a date with her. When he kept it, as he thought seceretly, two persons were watching: Hope, with jealous heart, and Sheriff Carew, whom Jack had met in the saloon. From cover, as he supposed, the sheriff shot and wounded Jack on the arm. Hope had seen it all. Failing to force Dancing Pete to confess, Jack lets her go and ransacks her trunk. Here he finds a photo which convinces him that the sheriff and Alec Young are the same. To trap him in the locality, where he was such a power, was another matter and he decided to make the sheriff betray himself. Jack plans to hold up and rob the safe with the sheriff's connivance. The plan works. The sheriff is discredited, but escapes, and to save himself and to get revenge, rushes to Hope's cabin and makes her act as his shield from the posse's bullets. Eventually he is forced to surrender and then, to the surprise of all, it comes out that Hope is nobody's wife.

Charles Ray in Something Different— "The Family Skeleton"

Charles Ray leaves the "boob" behind in his latest Paramount production, "The Family Skeleton," written by Bert Lennon and produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, by Victor Schertzinger for the Paramount program. The story is a humorous account of the struggle of a young millionaire against an imaginary inherited craving for drink. He is cured by a chorus-girl sweetheart through a trumped-up kidnapping episode. In the supporting cast are seen Sylvia Bremer, Andrew Arbuckle, Billy Elmer, Otto Hoffman and Jack Dyer. Mr. Ray has the role of young Billy Bates, heir to the Bates millions. He believes that he has inherited his father's tendency for drink. He proceeds to test his theory. His friends predict his ruin and Billy does his best to have their prophecy come true. Poppy Drayton, a pretty chorus-girl, comes to the rescue and plots with "Spider" Doyle, a local prize-fighter, to bring Billy to his senses. "Spider" abducts Poppy, as per contract, and the fight is on. Billy succeeds, after sobering up, to rescue Poppy and takes her to his home. He sits by the table and watches her, waiting for "Spider" and his gang to come. He spies the whisky decanter and is about to indulge for the first time in several days, when he hears Poppy calling his name and he wakes to the realization that there is something worth living for besides drink. From that time on, Billy takes the "cure." "Spider" turns up later, and in a fight that follows "Spider" gets the beating of his life. The plot is explained afterwards and they both laugh good-naturedly at the joke, but "Spider" admits that he did not expect any such treatment when he entered the scheme to reform Billy.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Charles Ray in "The Family Skeleton."

Alice Joyce in Strong Drama "The Song of the Soul"

"The Song of the Soul," Vitagraph's late production featuring Alice Joyce, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. "The Song of the Soul" was written by Shannon Fife, who is responsible for some of the screen's biggest successes, and was produced by Vitagraph under the direction of Tom Terriss. In the supporting cast are seen Percy Standing, Walter McGrail, Bernard Siegel, Barry Randall, Edith Reeves and Stephen Carr. Miss Joyce has the role of Ann Fenton, wife of a presumably prosperous and respected business man. Detectives visit her home and inform her that her husband is charged with bigamy. Then she learns that her husband is a gambler. The husband, fearing the law, leaves Ann with her little son. Seven years pass. Ann's boy has been adopted by a farmer and she is driven from the town as a bad woman. She goes to the city and becomes assistant to a noted surgeon. The doctor loves her and she accepts his proposal of marriage. In the meantime she pays visits to her son and seeks to free him from his adopted parents. She does not want her husband, the doctor, to know that she has been married and has a child. She gets permission to bring the child to her new home. Her first husband appears and attempts to bribe Ann, threatening to expose her if she does not intercede for him. Dr. Evans, Ann's husband, is the owner of a building in which Ann's former husband runs a gambling resort. Ann's former maid is held in bondage by her former husband's partner in the gambling resort. She resents the actions of her lover and is killed by him. Before she dies she calls Dr. Evans and tells him the story of Ann's life and convinces him that she is not at fault. Ann's former husband comes to her home to demand her assistance and while he is there Dr. Evans enters. Ann confesses to him and is forgiven by him.

Live News from the Producers

Goldwyn Surmounts Difficulty

Shortage of Electricity Threatened at One Time to Upset Production Schedule, But Goldwyn Resourcefulness Won Out

THROUGHOUT the months of December and January and most of February the Goldwyn studios at Fort Lee, N. J., the shortage of electricity, due to the coal famine, threatened seriously to retard the productions then under way, if not altogether to discontinue them. However, the obstacle was surmounted and the difficulty is now a thing of the past.

There was but one thing to do, Goldwyn executives concluded. If in co-operation with the Government not enough electricity could be had at the Fort Lee studios, then studios must be had in sufficient number to make possible every company's work being done on time. Accordingly, two other studios, completely equipped, were rented. The Norman Talmadge studio in West Forty-eighth street and the West End studio in One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street were chosen.

With three modern studios at its disposal, Goldwyn distributed its companies in a way to accomplish the greatest amount of work in the shortest space of time, one star leaving a studio to make way for another; the settings best suited to one studio being built there until the star could be accommodated elsewhere.

In this manner Madge Kennedy could act intimate scenes at the One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street studio while a large set was being built at Fort Lee for the Italian restaurant which plays a prominent part in "The Danger Game." Mabel Normand, at the Fort Lee Studios, occupied herself with the charity bazaar in "The Floor Below" while other work was being planned for her at the Norma Talmadge studio. The mulberry-colored drawing room, built for the Mae Marsh play at Fort Lee, would be abandoned for the day in order that Miss Marsh might do some snow scenes in the neighborhood while Mabel Normand and Madge Kennedy had the benefit of the lights.

Thus did the foresight and resourcefulness of Goldwyn bridge the lapses made necessary by unusual conditions.

Looks Like Another Quarrel! Mabel Normand and Tom Moore in Goldwyn's "The Floor Below"

Ella Hall Tops Universal List

"BEAUTY IN CHAINS," an Ella Hall Production, heads the Universal list for the week of March 11. Featured along with the star in this production, the story of which is based upon a Spanish novel, "Dona Perfecta," written by B. Perez Galdos, are Emory Johnson, Ruby Lafayette and Gretchen Lederer. The cast also includes Winter Hall, Harry Holden, Maxfield Stanley and George McDaniel. The production was directed by Elsie Jane Wilson from a scenario by E. J. Clawson.

The Nestor comedy for the week is entitled "I'll Fix It," and introduces a former Universal star in a new role. The star is King Baggot, and in spite of the fact that he played for more than five years with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, this is the first time that he has ever been released in the Nestor brand. The film was made in an uptown apartment house, and so realistically, it is said, was a dummy dropped out of a window, that a woman across the courtyard telephoned for the police and an ambulance.

The week's L-KO release is the third of Mack (Ambrose) Swain's series of two-reel comedies, titled "Ambrose and His Widow." W. K. Fredericks had the direction under the supervision of J. G. Blystone.

The news reels for the week are Animated Weekly, No. 15, Current Events, No. 44 and No. 62 of the Screen Magazine. This issue of the magazine contains the first installment of a series on "The Making of a Newspaper," and shows the manufacture of print paper from the time the trees are felled in the forest to the time the huge rolls of paper are brought into the newspaper offices on trucks.

Pauley Again Associated with Hodkinson

Raymond W. Pauley, who was treasurer of the Paramount Pictures Corporation during the time that W. W. Hodkinson was the president of that corporation, is again actively connected with Mr. Hodkinson as the treasurer of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation. Mr. Pauley is one of the early pioneers of the motion picture industry. Before the forming of Paramount he distributed the productions of Famous Players in the Pennsylvania and southern New Jersey territory. When Mr. Hodkinson founded the Paramount Pictures Corporation Mr. Pauley was made treasurer and held that office until Mr. Hodkinson tendered his resignation, when he went with Mr. Hodkinson to Triangle.

Mr. Pauley is one of the best-known figures in the industry and his connection with the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation brings together once more two men who are known from coast to coast as advocates of the square deal.

Metro and Hopkins in New Agreement

A co-operative program, it is announced by Metro, has been arranged between Arthur Hopkins, the theatrical manager, and Metro Pictures Corporation in regard to the plans of the Russian star, Mme. Nazimova, in the way that Metro has already co-operated with the Charles Frohman estate in regard to Ethel Barrymore, and with the firm of Oliver Morosco in regard to the yearly program of Emily Stevens.

When Mme. Nazimova opens at the Plymouth theatre March 11 in Ibsen's "The Wild Duck," three Metro stars will be playing Broadway engagements simultaneously.

Bessie Love, Winsome and Shy, Makes Her Pathe Debut March 10

Vitagraph Jumps Into Serial Action

William Duncan Begins Chapter Play to Follow "The Woman in the Web"—Several Weeks to Be Spent in Bear Valley —Two Serial Companies Working

VITAGRAPH during the past week put its foot against the serial accelerator and gave the pedal a lusty push, with the result that things in the serial line, as far as Vitagraph is concerned, will pick up considerably.

William Duncan, star and director of "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman," two Vitagraph serials, has begun work on another chapter play which is scheduled to follow "The Woman in the Web." Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph, announced that Duncan and his company have gone to Bear Valley in California, where they will stay for several weeks to get exteriors for the fifteen episodes of the new production.

Released in July

The title of the new picture and the cast which will appear with Duncan have not been announced, but a statement is expected shortly. It is planned to release the new Duncan serial about the middle of July, its run starting immediately upon the completion of that of "The Woman in the Web."

With Duncan at work on this new serial, Vitagraph now has two serial companies producing simultaneously, and this probably will be made a permanent policy of the company, in view of the fact that Mr. Smith has already announced that Vitagraph would provide exhibitors with a serial episode for each week of the year. Mr. Duncan only recently put the finishing touches on "Vengeance—and the Woman," having produced thirty serial episodes in less than a year.

William Duncan, Vitagraph cites, has come to be recognized as being at the very front in the ranks of serial stars, his work in "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman" stamping him as one of the most daring men on the screen. Because of his feats, he has been called "The Sandow of the Screen."

Although Duncan's fame on the screen rests largely on his work in the two Vitagraph serials, he had previously established a reputation as one of the favorite leading men by his performance in such Blue Ribbon features as "Aladdin from Broadway," "Money Magic," "Through the Wall," "The Last Man" and in the special Vitagraph features, "The Badge of Courage" and "God's Country and the Woman." It was after he finished playing in "Aladdin from Broadway" that Duncan was selected by Albert E. Smith to play the hero role in "The Fighting Trail."

Handled Big "Mobs"

At times he had under his direction, Vitagraph says, as many as one thousand persons and some of the stunts called for by the script were the most difficult imaginable. Such things as dynamiting a mountain, wrecking railroad trains, climbing up and down the face of a cliff, etc., were almost everyday occurrences with Duncan. But despite the magnitude of his dual task as actor and director, he finished the serial seven days in advance of the date scheduled for its completion.

William Duncan, Making a Vitagraph Serial

After a brief rest, Duncan and his company began production of Blue Ribbon features, written from the Wolfville tales of Alfred Henry Lewis. Within a short time, Duncan produced two five-reel subjects, "Dead Shot Baker" and "The Tenderfoot," starring and directing as he had done in "The Fighting Trail."

With these performances to his credit, Duncan produced "Vengeance—and the Woman" in record time, and he now has begun the production of a third serial in less than a year. Duncan's output, which is among the most excellent in photoplay production, is a splendid tribute to the man's capacity for work, he having played and produced an average of more than a reel a week for a year.

One of Duncan's greatest assets is his ability to labor without wearying, some of his performances being truly remarkable. During the making of "The Fighting Trail" it was recorded that Duncan worked twenty-four hours without stopping. He was anxious to complete an episode of the serial and he worked three companies of players in shifts of eight hours each, but he did not let up except to snatch a bite to eat.

Works Night and Day

Starting in at daylight one morning, he was still at it the next morning and it was exactly thirty hours from the time he left the studio until he returned. In this connection, a story is told of Duncan by his studio associates. One morning during the making of "Vengeance—and the Woman," a caller at the Vitagraph studio in Hollywood asked W. S. Smith, studio manager, if he knew where Duncan was at the time. Mr. Smith replied: "No, I don't. He hasn't been here for two days and there's no telling where he is at the moment, but wherever he is, he is working."

This capacity for work has been characteristic of Duncan ever since he joined the Vitagraph Company more than three years ago, and the man's courage has been the marvel of those who have observed him in action. No risk has ever been too great for him to take when he saw an opportunity for a good dramatic effect and he has essayed the most hazardous feats without a qualm. His success in portraying these feats of daring is due, in no small measure, to his wonderful physical equipment. He is an all-round athlete, possessing wonderful strength, and he keeps himself in perfect condition at all times by his boxing, wrestling and gymnastic work. In addition, he is a fine horseman, a skilled rope climber and an expert shot.

Inspires Fellow Workers

He also has a wonderful capacity for inspiring others and it is said of him that the cowboys and others associated with him in the Vitagraph serials register so well in their stunts because they are willing to follow anywhere that Duncan leads them.

In connection with his announcement that Duncan had started work on his third serial, President Smith of Vitagraph said that he had every confidence that this serial would be even more thrilling than the others which have gone before and he also expressed the belief that it would give Vitagraph four of the strongest serials ever produced for the screen.

"Our serial department," he said, "has now come to be one of the most important branches of our production. We are planning to have two serial companies at work at all times in order to assure exhibitors a continuous service in this division of photoplay entertainment. The success which we have had with "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman" has been extraordinary, and we are convinced that we have found the secret of serial-making.

Alice Brady Completes Russian Feature

Alice Brady is completing, Select announced last week, "The Bride's Revenge," a story of Russian love, adventure and intrigue, which will be distributed by Select Pictures Corporation. Miss Brady's leading man in the picture is Frank Morgan, who also appeared in "The Knife." Charles Miller is directing the feature, this being his first time at the megaphone with Miss Brady.

The next picture in which the star will be presented will be under way, it is said, within a few days, under the tentative title of "The Phantom Feud." The director and supporting cast have not been chosen.

Gladys Brockwell, Center, is Starred in "The Devil's Wheel," an Exciting Moment of Which is Shown on the Left. On the Right is a Ball Room "shot" of "Rough and Ready," With William Farnum. Both Are William Fox Productions

William Fox Names Three New Pictures

THREE new photoplays were titled last week by William Fox. One is the divorce propaganda picture which is tentatively set for release as a Standard production April 7, and the others are special features.

"The Blindness of Divorce" is the title decided on for the divorce propaganda picture. This picture was made in Hollywood, Cal., by Director Frank Lloyd. In the cast Bertha Mann plays the part of the neglected wife of a rich man. She is divorced by him and becomes Claire, the proprietor of a fashionable gambling resort. The part of John Langdon, her husband, is played by Charles Clary. The part of the couple's daughter, Florence, who has been raised in the belief that her mother is dead, is played by Rhea Mitchell. Bertram Grassby plays the unnamed co-respondent in the divorce proceedings.

The new picture Gladys Brockwell has made has been titled "The Devil's Wheel." This picture is the special feature release for the week of March 17. The title is based on the story of a system devised by a French Marquis to beat the roulette wheel. The scenes are laid in France and the love of Gladys Brockwell for the leader of Apaches figures prominently.

"A Camouflage Kiss" is the title selected for the new picture June Caprice is making and which is scheduled for release as a special feature April 7. "Hooverisms" and "food barons" figure in this new play and the plot hinges on a kiss in the dark, or, as it has been called, "A Camouflage Kiss."

Morrison Termed Screen Antithesis

James Morrison, who plays the role of the coward in one of the episodes of "Over the Top," the Greater Vitagraph production of Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey's war book, is considered by Vitagraph the antithesis of the screen character in real life. Morrison is down at Camp Wheeler, outside Macon, Ga., engaged in making trench scenes with Sergeant Empey, Lois Meredith and other members of the company, and consequently, he was not in New York in time to join the military class at the West Side Y. M. C. A., which was started a week ago. However, a place has been reserved for him, a telegram from the young actor having been read at the meeting last Monday night asking that he be enrolled.

Pathe Forces Active on the West Coast

THE PATHE forces at Los Angeles have been augmented by the arrival of Fannie Ward and George Fitzmaurice who went West for the production of Sir William Young's play, "A Japanese Nightingale." Mr. Fitzmaurice directed Miss Ward in her first Pathe play, "Innocent."

Frank Keenan is at work under the direction of Ernest C. Warde, in Gilson Willets' adaptation of Sir Henry Irving's greatest success, "The Bells." The leading role of Mr. Keenan's first Pathe Play, "Loaded Dice," has been greeted as the best part he has ever had, but Pathe expects that the famous character of Mathias in "The Bells" will prove an even greater role.

Bessie Love has started on the production of a story by William Addison Lathrop, the working title of which is "A Little Sister of Everybody." George Fisher, who for some time past has been leading man for Bessie Barriscale, has been chosen as leading man for Miss Love in this picture.

Bryant Washburn is now engaged on another feature, having just started work with director William Worthington on a mystery story of the Southwest. Rhea Mitchell, leading woman with William S. Hart, in the days when Mr. Hart was coming to his fame in western drama, and later starred in a number of vehicles, has been engaged as the leading woman in this picture. George Fields has been engaged for the "heavy" role.

Proctor Joins World

George Du Bois Proctor, widely well-known newspaper man and scenarioist, has joined the scenario staff of the World Film Corporation and will begin work at once on stories for World stars. Mr. Proctor is one of the best known men in the business and comes to World Films with a long line of successes to his credit.

"Amarilly of Clothes-line Alley" Is Mary Pickford's Newest Artcraft Feature

Elsie Ferguson at Work on Ibsen Play

At the Famous Players-Lasky studios at Fort Lee, N. J., Elsie Ferguson has begun the production of Ibsen's "A Doll's House" for Artcraft Release. Maurice Tourneur is directing it, and according to reports recently received most satisfactory progress is being made.

Henry King Directs William Russell

Henry King, who has been directing Mary Miles Minter features for American-Mutual, will in the future pilot the productions in which William Russell will appear at the head of his own company. The features will be released through Mutual.

Metro Player Expects to Be U. S. Aviator

An actor who expects to fly in France has virtually been loaned to Metro by the War Department in the person of Eugene Pallette, says a Metro announcement. After Mr. Pallette had been cast for a part in the forthcoming Metro production, "The Night Riders," in support of Viola Dana, he notified B. A. Rolfe, chief of productions of Metro's western studios, that he had enlisted in the United States aviation corps and expected to be called at any moment to begin schooling in the art of flying. He was not called for three weeks, however, so was able to work in the production.

Cecil DeMille to Produce "Old Wives for New"

The next Cecil B. DeMille special production for Artcraft will be an adaptation by Jeanie Macpherson of "Old Wives for New," a story by David Graham Phillips in which the noted writer dealt with the divorce question.

Mr. DeMille is now giving his personal attention to the assembling of the negative of "The Whispering Chorus," the special Artcraft picture produced by him. A private showing will be given at the Iris Theatre, Hollywood, Cal., to permit the members of the company and their guests to see the picture.

A system has been inaugurated whereby Miss Macpherson and Wm. C. DeMille will alternate in writing scenarios for these special productions, which will be produced under the personal direction of Cecil B. DeMille, Director General of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

Bessie Barriscale Finishes New Paralta

"Maid o' the Storm" was completed last week at the Paralta studios in California, where it was staged under the direction of Raymond B. West. Both the play and the screen version of the story are from the pens of J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton, who collaborated in writing it.

In the "Maid o' the Storm" Miss Barriscale is said to undergo a complete and striking transformation in costume and character.

Hedda Nova, Vitagraph Beauty, in "The Woman and the Web," a Serial

Frank Currier and Stella Hammerstein Have Been Cast in Support of May Allison, Whose Curly Head and Cheery Smile Will Occupy the Star Position Throughout Metro's All-Star Production Called "Social Hypocrites"

Hodkinson Cites Coincidents

Calls Attention to Descent Upon Industry of Four Co-operative Plans at Once—Business Awakens to Exhibitor

"IT is a rather peculiar coincidence," said an announcement from the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation this week, "that four different co-operative plans for the distribution of pictures are being offered to the exhibitors at just this time when W. W. Hodkinson is re-entering the industry as a distributor of film productions. Since the industry was in its infancy Mr. Hodkinson has been known as the foremost factor in advancing the interest of the exhibitor, but prior to this time he has been working under the handicap of being associated with interests that held a controlling stock in the organization with which he has been associated. He now has a free rein, and it is of unusual interest to watch the unfolding of a plan which Mr. Hodkinson has been developing in his own mind for a number of years.

"For the first time in seventeen years the manufacturers and distributors have come to the realization that the exhibitor is of supreme importance and that any proposition not including him is foredoomed to failure. The various elements now seem to recognize this and are devising ways and means to reach the exhibitor on a co-operative basis. The Hodkinson policy of co-partnership has been studied by many of the foremost exhibitors of the country, all of whom consider it bullet-proof and claim that it will revolutionize the method of distributing pictures.

"One of the basic principles in Mr. Hodkinson's plan is the dividing of the larger portion of distribution profits with the exhibitors with whom he is doing business. He believes the exhibitor should be considered a partner in his organization, and as a partner he should participate in the profits of the co-operative organization.

"Mr. Hodkinson is now making a tour of the Western Coast, closing contracts with progressive exhibitors. He is in San Francisco at the present time and expects to leave for Dallas, Tex., the last of the week. From there he will go to New Orleans, Atlanta and then back to New York, stopping off only for a day or so in Washington."

World Organizes Its Studio On New Basis

IN continuance of its avowed policy of giving the World exhibitors the greatest possible value for their money, the World Film Corporation has organized its studio accordingly. Wastage has been cut out wherever possible, and, instead of crediting these gains to the profit side of the ledger, all the gains are being put right back into the pictures themselves, it is said. It is not for the purpose of immediately increasing its own earnings that the World is eliminating all extravagance, but for the purpose of making better and better pictures—thereby building a solid foundation for bigger and better business.

One of the first steps in the studio organization has been the establishment of a central purchasing department through which the material for all the various productions will be secured. In this way all overlapping purchases are eliminated and better prices are secured through the larger quantities bought.

An estimate bureau has also been installed whose function it is to estimate on the cost of a production and see to it that the production cost is kept within reasonable bounds of that estimate. The exhibitors will be particularly interested in this as it means that there will be no extravagance wasted on some few scenes with the result that other portions of the film have to be skimped. All the money needed will be spent where needed—no part of any film is to be skimped in the slightest degree—but all the money will be spent to the best possible advantage in bringing out the strong points of the story and in building dependable, consistent box-office pullers for the exhibitors.

All stock companies at the World studio have been dispensed with.

Madge Kennedy, Mabel Normand and Mary Garden Will Next Be Presented by Goldwyn In "The Danger Game," "The Floor Below" and "The Splendid Sinner," Respectively

World Reaps Harvest on Offer

Exhibitors Flood Home Office with Letters in Commendatory Vein—Some Look Upon It as Life-saver of Business

"THE exhibitor ain't got any heart. You can do everything in the world for him and it don't make no impression on him. He's a cold, clammy fish, and it's a waste of time and money to do anything for him."

World Film wonders how often this statement has been made about the exhibitor. How many concerns have apparently believed it and acted accordingly in their dealings with the exhibitor? And yet, how whole-heartedly, how enthusiastically the exhibitor responds when something actual and definite is really done for him.

These remarks are brought forth by the nation-wide response given by exhibitors to the "World Plan" of giving, for the duration of the war, gratis bookings each week equal in number to the bookings contracted for. Since the single announcement made by World Pictures of the epochal plan the branch offices and the home office of the concern have been simply flooded with commendatory letters from the exhibitors praising the World for this concrete evidence of its firm intention to build a firm foundation of concord and co-operation between the World and the exhibitors for all time to come.

Here are extracts from some of the letters:

World Pictures by giving this service gratis is certainly helping the exhibitors out in a big way.—Arcade theatre, Camden, N. J.

I think your offer is a Godsend and World Plan should be appreciated.—Powell Theatre Company, Ponca City, Okla.

It seems too good to be true. I never heard of such a thing. May you be the first into Heaven.—Thompson Amusement Enterprises, Mexico, Mo.

I sure appreciate this new lease of life.—Olympic theatre, Lebanon, Ind.

A wonderful step. It sure will be a life-saver to me. I wish to extend my thanks and appreciation.—Bijou and Iroquois theatres, Bridgeport, Ill.

We are glad to be a customer of the ONE exchange that is doing its utmost to help the exhibitors at a time when it is needed most.—Colonial theatre, Taylor, Tex.

Better than any other film company has done.—Fox theatre, Buhl, Idaho.

By this noble act you have welded together a warmer feeling between the World Film Corporation and its many customers, and on this act your customers will stand by you to the last.—Family theatre, Ionia, Mich.

Lasky Gives "Wild Youth" High Praise

Shortly after Jesse L. Lasky arrived in California, recently, he witnessed a showing of J. Stuart Blackton's "Wild Youth," which had just been completed at the Hollywood Studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, and which will be released March 18. Mr. Lasky is loud in his praise of Mr. Blackton and the cast appearing in this photoplay which is the third of the productions to be taken by Mr. Blackton from the works of Sir Gilbert Parker.

"Mr. Blackton has been very fortunate in securing a story of this calibre," said Mr. Lasky. "Translated into screen terms, by Beulah Marie Dix, who has had a long string of successes to her credit, the play presents a vivid picture of the conflict between youth and age, youth being typified in the story by the characters played by Louise Huff and Jack Mulhall, and age represented by the role created by Theodore Roberts. At the same time a beautiful allegory is carried through the play, in which youth and age are presented by a series of strikingly beautiful dances."

Big Houses Book "Price of Folly" Series

Following the booking of Pathe's "The Price of Folly" series of eight two-reel dramas, starring Ruth Roland with Frank Mayo, by the Loew theatres in New York, a number of other houses have arranged to present this picture, among the latest being the Park theatre in Boston.

A recent program of the Park included Baby Marie Osborne in "The Little Patriot," Toto in a two-reel comedy, Hearst-Pathe News and "The Price of Folly."

Among the players appearing in the various dramas of "The Price of Folly" series, in addition to Ruth Roland and Frank Mayo, are Neil Hardin, Ruth Lackaye, Mollie McConnell, Daniel Gilfether, Philo McCullough, Frank Erlanger, Lillian West, Gloria Payton and Charles Dudley.

Miss Minter's Next Subject Selected

Mary Miles Minter's next starring subject, which will be directed by Edward Sloman, is from a story by Jeanne Judson and will be started under the working title of "The Church Window Angel." It is the first of a new line of stories to be selected by Will M. Richey, scenario editor of the American Film Company, who is endeavoring to secure the very best stories from well-known writers for future Minter vehicles.

Miss Minter has completed the seventh production of her present series, entitled "A Bit of Jade," under the direction of Edward Sloman, who is said to have secured many beautiful bits of scenery for this picture at the lake at Hope Ranch, heretofore unavailable for picture-making.

George Walsh Recovers

Announcement is made from the Fox offices that George Walsh is recovering from the accident which befel him after he had finished "Jack Spurlock—Prodigal." Walsh broke three ribs in a cross-country run and has been in the care of a trained nurse for some time. He soon will begin work on a new Fox picture.

Blackton Leases His Brooklyn Studio

J. Stuart Blackton, it was announced last week by Famous Players-Lasky, has leased his studio in Brooklyn to another organization, and will confine his activities to California in making pictures for Paramount release.

When Commodore Blackton signed a contract to produce a series of personally supervised features for Paramount, he constructed a large studio in Brooklyn, and it was there that the interior scenes for "The Judgment House" and "The World for Sale" were made.

The next picture was "Wild Youth," demanding summer scenes in the big outdoors, and New York was in the icy grip of what turned out to be a severe winter. The Commodore decided to move the company to the western coast, and availed himself of the use of the Lasky studio at Hollywood, Cal., which was proffered by Jesse L. Lasky.

Childhood Story to Rescue of Goldwyn Director

According to Goldwyn, Frank Powell, director of Rex Beach's newest motion picture, "Heart of the Sunset," can thank Jane Miller, who in private life is Mrs. Powell, and Frances Hodgson Burnett for the safe return to American soil, after a brief sojourn in troublous Mexico, of himself and a company of eighteen players. Mr. Powell is much obliged to Mrs. Burnett for writing the little sugar-and-honey classic of girlhood called "Jewel," and to Jane Miller for unearthing a copy of it from her trunk at a moment when it was very much needed.

It seems that the Mexican State president became suspicious of the actions of the company and after they had returned to their hotel on this side of the Rio Grande telephoned to Director Powell for a copy of the story being filmed. Here Mrs. Powell and Mrs. Burnett came to the rescue. From the bottom of a trunk the director's wife resurrected a copy of Mrs. Burnett's "Jewel," which was sent at once by special messenger to His Excellency. Powell would like mightily to know what the Senor said when his interpreter told him what "Jewel" was all about.

Canada's Censor Approves Jaxon Serial

The official stamp of approval of two governments has now been given "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon serial, reports General Film Company. A few weeks ago the United States Censor's office witnessed a run-off of the first few episodes of the serial and passed it with the department's approval.

The Canadian chief press censor, Col. Ernest J. Chambers of Ottawa, has gone a step farther and broken an office record by issuing a letter highly recommending the General's spy serial. This is said to be the first picture ever to receive an indorsement from the Canadian government, and Canadian exhibitors are elated as the result of the official stamp of approval.

Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter," a Paramount Picture, Nearly Falls Under the Cunning Wiles of Lionel Atwill, the "Heavy"

Miss Clark in Dramatic Role

"Rich Man, Poor Man," is Title of New Picture Started—Pauline Frederick Finishes New Production

ACTIVITIES within the walls of the Famous Players-Lasky studio in Fifty-sixth street, New York, have been very pronounced recently, and at the present time three feminine stars are there on productions for forthcoming release. These players are Marguerite Clark, Pauline Frederick and Billie Burke. Miss Frederick's feature was completed last week.

"Rich Man, Poor Man," is the title of the play on which Marguerite Clark has begun production at the Fifty-sixth street studio, and in which she has a strictly dramatic role. If publicity counts for anything this Paramount picture will make its appearance in the picture houses of the country under auspicious conditions, for in addition to the popularity of the star, "Rich Man, Poor Man" should be well known throughout the United States, it is promised. The story was written by Maximilian Foster and published as a serial by the Saturday Evening Post. It was then issued in book form, and a large number of editions have been printed.

J. Searle Dawley, who produced the Bab series, is directing "Rich Man, Poor Man." Mr. Dawley's last picture was "The Lie," for Artcraft release, starring Elsie Ferguson.

Pauline Frederick finished the final scenes of "The Resurrection" last week, which were taken in the settings of the big prison yard as the condemned prisoners are on the eve of their departure for Siberia. The handling of this production for Paramount release is said to reflect great credit upon Director Edward Jose and his assistant, Daniel Pennell, for notwithstanding the magnitude of the work, the big ensembles of people, the inclement weather and the countless unusual details that arise in the making of a spectacular subject of this character, the work has progressed smoothly and in record time.

Billie Burke is still working on the interiors of her new Paramount picture, "Let's Get a Divorce," the photoplay written for her by Anita Loos and John Emerson, and expects to finish this week. Backgrounds were secured in Florida for the exterior scenes, and these are being matched with interiors. Miss Burke has personally assisted in the selection of the settings and furniture, and as the young bride in the story, with a trousseau of extraordinarily pretty clothes, the general ensemble of the picture will no doubt, be beautiful and artistic. Director Charles Giblyn, who has charge of the production, predicts that Miss Burke's work in this photoplay will cause favorable comment, as the story is a comedy-drama.

M. J. Sullivan Is Mutual's New N. Y. Manager

M. J. Sullivan, formerly of the National Biscuit Company, has been appointed manager of the New York office of the Mutual Film Corporation and assumed the duties of the position February 18. Since last March Mr. Sullivan has visited all of the Mutual branch offices in the United States and Canada as a special salesman.

Texas Guinan Comes East Once More

Texas Guinan, Triangle player, was last week reported on her way East from the Triangle Culver City studios, this being her third trip since she joined the Triangle forces a few months ago.

Her most recent picture is "Another Foolish Virgin," which was directed by E. Mason Hopper.

Chaplin Picture Soon Ready

Several New Faces to Be Seen in Comedian's Initial Production for First National Exhibitors' Circuit

CHARLEY CHAPLIN is now in the home-stretch of the production of "A Dog's Life," his initial First National Exhibitors' Circuit picture, working day and night on what he claims will be the greatest comedy he ever turned out.

Although the comedian is carrying out the same policy with his present contributions to the film world as he has in the past, that of not making public in the slightest degree the nature of his story until the subject is well on its way to the exhibitors, it may be said that it is quite different from anything he has heretofore attempted. Not alone will it contain his usual comedy antics, but he is said to have also added touches of pathos very much similar to those evidenced in "Easy Street" and "The Vagabond."

Several new faces will be seen in the forthcoming Chaplin picture, as well as the well-known features of Edna Purviance. Fred Starr shoulders the character that usually fell to the late Eric Campbell and Zasu Pitts, who portrayed the sympathetic slave in Mary Pickford's "Little Princess," will be new to Chaplin followers.

Close to one hundred people have been used in the making of the picture, and the greater part of the action takes place in interior "sets," affording the star plenty of scope for unique comedy situations.

Following the first release, it is planned to issue a Chaplin subject on an average of about every six weeks until the eight comedies, as contracted for, shall have been released.

Hayakawa Forms Own Producing Company

SESSUE HAYAKAWA, according to advices from the West Coast this week, is to head his own company of photoplayers in productions which he will himself stage. Manner of release has not been decided upon, according to announcements.

Mr. Hayakawa's most recent pictures have been released by Paramount, and the star has a large following throughout the country.

It is claimed that unlimited capital has been placed at Mr. Hayakawa's disposal, and studio arrangements have already been made which are sure to furnish every facility for the perfect production of the class of photodramas which are to be filmed. Eight features a year will be made, it is said, and the stories will be the best obtainable.

In the matter of players, nothing has been made known thus far with the exception that the feminine lead will be a player well known in emotional and dramatic screen work. The cast will be good in proportion, it is claimed.

Mr. Hayakawa, in connection with his decision to make his own features, said: "I am proud, indeed, to head my own company, and I am going to do my best to go over the top in making productions that will appeal to the patrons of the houses where the great photoplay art is displayed. I want to make pictures that all the people will enjoy and make them so well that they will be of a lasting character. Wait for results. These I am confident will be perfectly satisfactory."

Sessue Hayakawa's organization has been formed under the name of the Haworth Pictures Corporation and its headquarters are in the H. W. Hellman Building, Los Angeles.

Paralta Companies on New Productions

ACTIVITIES on the Western Coast, according to a Paralta announcement last week, are keeping the Paralta studios as busy as the proverbial gopher on the tin roof. Robert Brunton, director of productions, has outlined the forthcoming program of features which are now being made, or are to be started in the immedi-

According to the statement Bessie Barriscale, Louise Glaum and Henry B. Walthall will be working at the same time with Louise Glaum will make her debut as a Paralta star in "Intelligence," which was written by Monte M. Katterjohn, and which deals with a theme of international relations, intimate glimpses of the modern war and of the little known military caste. After this, Miss Glaum will appear in "Snapdragon," from the pen of Horace Hazeltine, which appeared in story form in a magazine. The third picture in which she will appear was especially written for her by the Paralta staff author, Julian Louis Lamothe. She will be directed by Wallace Worsley.

Bessie Barriscale is now working in "Maid o' the Storm," written by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton. This production will be finished within a few days, when she will start upon another, which is now ready.

"With Hoops of Steel," in which Henry B. Walthall is working at present, will be finished shortly. The story is of the western type and presents Mr. Walthall in a characterization far different than any in which he has appeared heretofore, it is said. Upon the completion of this production, he will start on one that has been prepared for him by Jack Gilbert and Denison Clift, and which will be directed by Eliot Howe.

Excavations for the foundation of some of the remaining buildings yet to be constructed at the Paralta studios are under way.

Alice Brady, Select Star, Is Bringing Another Russian Drama to the Screen

Select's Business Good, Says Derham

J. A. Derham, Comptroller for Select Pictures Corporation, returned this week after a visit to several of the branches of that company and reports a very satisfactory financial system in operation throughout. "Business is picking up all along the line," says Mr. Derham, "and Select's exchange managers are seeing to it that we get our full share, and a little bit more."

Shirley Mason to Visit Greater N. Y. Houses

Arrangements are being made for personal appearances by Miss Shirley Mason, the Edison star, at first runs in the Greater New York district when the new Japanese feature, tentatively called "Aliens," is released by Perfection Pictures.

At the personal showings the star will wear Japanese costumes, appearing often in character where dressing-room facilities are available. The exquisite colorings of her trousseau in the role of a Japanese bride have never been seen outside the Edison studio, the fourteen fabrics and costumes having been specially designed for her by Oriental artists, it is said.

Seelig with Triangle

H. Seelig, former newspaper man and magazine writer, has been added to the Triangle scenario staff. He is specializing on two-reel comedies.

William A. Brady Promises That the Atlantic City Mystery Surrounding His Big Captive Balloon Used in "Stolen Orders," Will Shortly Be Solved. Montagu Love as an Aviator is Shown in the center. June Elvidge and Mr. Brady Are in the Group on the Left, and Miss Elvidge is surrounded by an "Army" on the Right

U. S. War Officials to Review "Over the Top"

Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey and the members of the Vitagraph Company who are appearing with him in "Over the Top" returned to New York Thursday after two weeks spent at Camp Wheeler, near Macon, Ga., taking scenes for the production.

Under an agreement entered into between President Smith and representatives of the War Department, the Vitagraph Company is to screen the trench scenes for the benefit of officials just as soon as the print can be made and before the action is incorporated in the finished production. It also was arranged that the completed picture should be shown to the officials of the War Department for review before it is released for public exhibition.

President Smith says that "Over the Top" is now in its final stages and the picture will be finished within a very short time.

Blackwell Renews Contract with World

Carlyle Blackwell, after recovering from his recent indisposition, has renewed has contract with the World Film Corporation for an extended period of time and will shortly be co-starred with Evelyn Greeley in a new production, of which Dell Henderson is the director. This will signalize the coming to World Films of Mr. Henderson, who will direct Miss Greeley and Mr. Blackwell in a series of features.

Belle Bennett Adopts Submarine Base

Miss Belle Bennett, Triangle player, has officially adopted the San Pedro submarine base, and will hereafter be the godmother of the organization, looking after the interests and comforts of the boys. The formal adoption was filmed at the submarine base.

The first scene in the adoption reel showed Ensign Cook presenting Miss Bennett to Captain Poundstone, commander at the base.

Brady Filming "Stolen Orders"

Huge War Balloon and Hydroaeroplane Figure in Screen Version of Drury Lane Spectacle Now in Production

RECENT visitors to Atlantic City who ventured to the farther end of Longport, a desolate point jutting out into the ocean from the extreme end of the island, found it fenced off and numerous "No Admittance" signs in evidence. All they could see was a big building, inside of which was a huge balloon into which was being forced some 25,000 feet of hydrogen gas.

What the onlookers outside the fence didn't know was this balloon is to play a prominent part in the filming of "Stolen Orders," the big feature based on the Drury Lane melodrama "Sealed Orders," which William A. Brady is making with a cast that includes Kitty Gordon, Carlyle Blackwell, Montagu Love, June Elvidge, Madge Evans, George McQuarrie and numerous others. "Stolen Orders" will be the first of Mr. Brady's feature productions recently announced. As "Sealed Orders," when produced at Drury Lane and later here at the Manhattan Opera House, was replete with action and possessed unusual pictorial values, the screen version is said to promise many unique and highly interesting features.

Mr. Brady has been at Atlantic City supervising the production of "Stolen Orders" and giving to its every detail his personal attention. With him have been Harley Knoles, Montagu Love, June Elvidge and many others.

Another incident in "Stolen Orders" which is expected to reach a high water mark in public interest is that in which a hydroaeroplane figures in a most thrilling rescue.

Production Activities at Lasky Studios

RECENT activities at the Lasky Studios in Hollywood evidence the fact that there has never been a time when production work there was at a greater height, or when pictures of more representative character have been under way.

Jack Pickford and Louise Huff are at work upon "Sandy," their newest Paramount subject under George Melford's direction, but before this reaches the screen there will be two other Pickford-Huff photoplays—"His Majesty, Bunker Bean" and "Mile-a-Minute Kendall." Sessue Hayakawa, supported by Florence Vidor and Jack Holt, is doing a new picture which will follow "The Honor of His House." James Young is directing.

The title of Wallace Reid's new film, "Marcel Levignet," has been changed to "The House of Silence." Reid, with Ann Little as his leading woman, is working under Donald Crisp's direction in this photoplay which will be his starring vehicle from Paramount following "The Thing We Love," featuring Reid and Kathlyn Williams. It is a detective story, taken from Elwyn Barr's "Marcel Levignet."

J. Stuart Blackton begins work shortly on "Missing," his second California-made picture. Meantime, "Wild Youth," recently completed, was shown at the studio projection room and given the highest praise. It has been declared a masterful production by Jesse L. Lasky. The featured players include Louise Huff, Theodore Roberts, Jack Mulhall, Adele Farrington, James Cruze, and others.

Over at the Morosco Studios, Vivian Martin is finishing up her new Paramount film, "Unclaimed Goods," with Rolin Sturgeon directing.

Griffith Picture Shown to Pomona

D. W. Griffith's latest film spectacle, which is said to make "The Birth of a Nation" look like "a split reel," to use the words of the publicity expert, was given a first showing before a Pomona, Cal. audience recently. The feature was received well, according to reports.

William Desmond, Triangle's Dashing Hero, Holds Back the Pirate Crew at Point of Sword in "The Sea Panther"—and Eventually Wins the Girl

Laemmle Would Coax Them In

Universal Head Plans Series of Special Subjects to Interest Chronic Stayaways—Films to Be Free to Exhibitors

IN the hope of attracting to motion picture theatres those people who are not in the habit of attending photoplay houses and eventually making them regular patrons, Carl Laemmle, president and director general of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, is now giving his attention to the filming of special subjects calculated to interest the stayaways.

The first drive will be directed toward the automobilists. Since the majority of car owners are people in moderate circumstances—that is, people who cannot afford chauffeurs and are therefore compelled to run and care for their own automobiles—suggestions that will help them save money are sure to be eagerly welcomed.

It is Mr. Laemmle's idea to have experts in the automobile and automobile accessory field tell car owners, via the moving picture screen, how this may be brought about. Since tires form one of the largest items of expense in connection with running a car, they have been made the subject of the first of these special releases, the title being "Over the Roads to War." Recently completed, it portrays the causes back of the wonderful mileage which our army and the armies of our allies are obtaining out of their tires.

Owing to the assistance given to Universal by the entire automobile industry, the cost of producing "Over the Roads to War" has practically amounted to nothing. For this reason the exhibitor is to be given the benefit of the saving effected to the extent of receiving the film rent free. Application to the nearest exchange controlled by this film organization will bring the subject to the theatre, together with advertising helps.

Pathe Serial Shown 'Round the World

Through arrangements concluded by the export and trading department of the Pathe organization, "The Hidden Hand" serial, starring Doris Kenyon, Sheldon Lewis, Arline Pretty and Mahlon Hamilton, will be shown throughout the world.

Contracts have been closed for the presentation of this picture throughout the Far East, China, Singapore, Straits Settlements, India, Philippines, East Indies, Japan, Australasia, Mexico, West Indies, Brazil, Argentina, Uraguay, Paraguay, Chile, Peru, Bolivia and the other South American Republics, England and its colonies, France, Italy, Spain, the Scandinavian countries: Sweden, Denmark and Norway.

"The Hidden Hand" is a serial in fifteen episodes, written by Arthur B. Reeve, author of the "Craig Kennedy" stories, and Charles A. Logue.

Wanda Petit Changes Name for Fairbanks

Wanda Petit, well-known feminine lead, has changed her name to Wanda Hawley at the request of Douglas Fairbanks, it was announced last week by Famous Players-Lasky. Miss Hawley has been cast opposite Fairbanks in his next Artcraft picture to follow "Headin' South," released February 25. The new story has not been named.

Allan Dwan is both author and director of the new picture.

"In the Spring" Secured by Triangle

Following the release of "The Shoes That Danced," a new drama by the same author has been secured by Triangle. "In the Spring" appeared in Collier's Magazine, and is a mystery story of the New York police force, showing life in the Italian underworld.

Joe King is cast as a police inspector, who falls in love with Margery Wilson, whom he believes is a reformed crook. Under the direction of Raymond Wells, this play is well under way, and includes in the supporting cast Francis McDonald and Aaron Edwards.

American to Make All Russell Pictures

Samuel S. Hutchinson announces that all pictures to be made by the new William Russell Productions will be done at the American Film Company Studios, at Santa Barbara. The technical work will be done at the laboratories of the American Film Company, at Chicago.

William Farnum Completes Fox Feature

According to announcements from the office of William Fox this week, William Farnum has completed "Rough and Ready," his newest de luxe production for the Fox program, and is preparing to return to California.

Mr. Farnum's most recent film, "Rough and Ready," was directed by Richard Stanton in the Fox studios and at Port Henry, N. Y., in the Adirondacks. The story is one of the East and West and is interpreted by a large supporting company. Mr. Farnum appears in the role of a man who seeks the solace of the snowy trail to escape thoughts of the past.

During his stay in New York—Mr. Farnum has been here almost a year—he has made three photoplays, "The Heart of a Lion," "Les Miserables" and "Rough and Ready," in the order named. It was in December, 1915, that William Fox sent his first company of photoplayers to the Pacific Coast. William Farnum headed that group. He remained in California until April, 1917, and made a dozen productions during that period.

William Farnum as He Appears in "Rough and Ready," a William Fox Standard Picture

Advance Offerings of the Programs

Four Chapin Features in March

First Called "My First Jury," Followed by "Tender Memories," "A President's Answer" and "My Native State"

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION last week announced that four features of the Benjamin Chapin series, "The Son of Democracy," released under the Paramount trademark, will be offered during the month of March. As it took Mr. Chapin five years to produce the ten two-reel features which constitute the series, or an average of six months for each one, the releases during March will give to exhibitors two years of production work condensed in eight reels.

The publicity campaign conducted by the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation covering this series included national magazines and daily newspapers. The novelization, by Alfred Payson Terhune, published in a large syndicate of papers headed by the New York World, has acquainted millions of readers with "The Son of Democracy."

"My First Jury," released March 4, is described as a comedy-drama, showing Abraham Lincoln, the boy, defending a funny little pickaninny accused of stealing a white rooster. After a swift chase, Jim, the colored boy, is captured with the fowl under his arm, and he is about to be roughly handled by the angry youths when Abe intervenes and suggests that the trembling captive be given a fair trial by jury.

"Tender Memories," released March 11, is built around early incidents in the Civil War. A soldier lying in an unmarked grave recalls to Lincoln the pathetic story of how his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln, was buried in the wilderness without a funeral ceremony, and Lincoln tells of his efforts to get a minister who finally performs the rites.

"A President's Answer" is released March 18, and offers a war story. A Southern soldier is made prisoner, kills his brutal Northern guard and is sentenced to death. The boy's parents appeal to the President, and a typical Lincoln answer saves the boy. The difficulties under which the President labored during the conduct of the war and the hostility of Secretary of War Stanton to the merciful policies of Lincoln are clearly illustrated.

"My Native State" is the story of Abraham Lincoln's grandfather, and is released March 25. There are Indian fights and stirring adventures, in which Abe's grandfather is killed by the redskins. An Indian girl saves the lives of two children, one of whom later became the father of Abraham Lincoln.

Doris Lee Is the Winning Girl Who Has Appeared with Charles Ray in Two of His Most Recent Ince-Paramount Features

Two Toto Comedies a Month from Pathe

Vice-President and General Manager J. A. Berst announces that beginning April 14 Pathe will release two Toto comedies a month instead of one, as heretofore.

Paul Tessier, manager of Pathe's branch at Albany, received an unsolicited letter from John J. Walker, manager of the Lincoln theatre, Schenectady, praising Toto in "The Movie Dummy," asking for information as to the next Toto released and also requesting the best prices on repeat days of all Toto comedies.

William Desmond Plays a Dual Role

In "The Marriage Bubble," forthcoming Triangle picture, William Desmond portrays a dual role, being cast as Marty Conrad, a Montana millionaire, and Peter Trenholm, dissipated son of an aristocratic but financially embarrassed family. This society-comedy has been adapted from the story by W. Carey Wonderley, and was directed by Walter Edwards under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince. Anna Luther, Maude George and Florence Dagmar have important roles.

Protest at Drews' Plans for Stage

Metro announced this week that the intention of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew to retire from the screen and devote their time to the spoken drama has called forth a storm of protest. One of these came from S. L. Rothapfel, of the Rialto and Rivoli, New York, who wrote, in part, to Metro as follows: "In writing you this letter, I grant you permission to give it all the publicity you think it deserves. It concerns the Drews in their well-known characters of Henry and his spouse Polly. I hope their intention to presently retire from the screen will never materialize. I have run these comedies at the Rialto and the Rivoli each and every week for the past six months, and I am in a better position to judge their merits than any other exhibitor in America."

Jack Holt Appears with Dorothy Dalton

In "Love Me," her Paramount picture, following "'Flare-Up' Sal," to be released next month, Dorothy Dalton is said to be supported by a strong cast of players, with Jack Holt, who has appeared with success in so many important Paramount pictures, playing opposite her in the role of Gordon Appleby.

Change Made in Vitagraph Schedule

Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, makes the announcement that it has been necessary to postpone production of George Barr McCutcheon's story, "The Man From Brodneys," which had been chosen for Earle Williams, and instead the players, under direction of Tom Mills, will be seen in "Sealed Lips." The corrected list of Blue Ribbon features as given out is as follows:

April 1, "Little Miss No-Account," featuring Gladys Leslie. Director, William P. S. Earle.

April 8, "The Business of Life," featuring Alice Joyce, under direction of Tom Terriss.

April 15, "The Girl From Beyond," featuring Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman. Directed by William Wolbert.

April 22, "A Bachelor's Children," featuring Harry Morey with Florence Deshon. Directed by Paul Scardon.

April 29, "Sealed Lips," featuring Earle Williams with Grace Darmond. Director, Tom Mills.

The Vitagraph statement relative to the change in the list states that the company tried in vain to get a yacht such as was needed for "The Man from Brodney's."

Harold Lockwood Has Completed "The Landloper" for Metro, While Viola Dana Contributes "Breakers Ahead" to the Program. Edith Storey Stars in "The Claim"

Fox Schedules Five Specials

Jewel Carmen Leads Off March List in "Girl with Champagne Eyes"—Peggy Hyland New Feature on March 10

FIVE special features are scheduled for release by William Fox during the month of March, according to an announcement this week. The stars included are Jewel Carmen, who heads the list; Peggy Hyland, Gladys Brockwell, Virginia Pearson and George Walsh.

On the 3rd the release is Jewel Carmen in "The Girl with the Champagne Eyes." In this production Miss Carmen takes the part of a girl pickpocket. She sends an innocent man to jail, repents, earns his forgiveness and finally reforms and marries him.

March 10 the release is Peggy Hyland in "The Debt of Honor." This is the first picture Miss Hyland has made for Fox. It has a spy interest and a war plot, says the announcement from the Fox offices.

Supporting Miss Hyland are Irving Cummings, Frank Goldsmith, Hazel Adams and Eric Mayne. The story is by Eve Unsell, the direction by O. A. C. Lund and the photography by Joe Ruttenberg. Many of the scenes in "The Debt of Honor" were taken at New Orleans.

"I am sure that exhibitors will welcome Peggy Hyland to the list of our stars," said the announcement from the Fox offices. "She has been on the stage in England and began her motion picture career there. She made so big a hit that an American producer sent for her to do some particularly special film work here. She got a big welcome on this side of the water. Mr. Fox watched her for a long time and was so well pleased with her that he signed her as soon as her old contract was up."

March 17 the release is Gladys Brockwell in "The Devil's Wheel." Many of the scenes in this production are laid in Paris and the story revolves around a system evolved by a Marquis to beat the roulette wheel. The daughter of the Marquis is played by Miss Brockwell, who is made the heroine of a band of Paris Apaches.

Virginia Pearson in "A Daughter of France" is the release for March 24. As the title would indicate it is a war play. The scenes are laid along the battle front and Miss Pearson plays the part of a beautiful French girl who is attacked by invading soldiers.

The release for March 31 is George Walsh in "The Kid is Clever." This, it is said, will be one of the best pictures George Walsh has made. Announcement from the Fox offices is to the effect that it is full of sparkling comedy and surprise situations.

Russian Art Film Heads Pathe's List

A FIVE-REEL Russian Art Film, starring Ivan Mozukin and Mme. Lesienko, heads Pathe's program for the week of March 17. The same week witnesses the release of the second episode of the new Pearl White serial, "The House of Hate," and another Toto comedy.

The title of the feature is "The Beggar Woman," and it is said to be one of the most remarkable dramas yet released on the Russian Art Drama program and features Mme. Lesienko as a songbird, whose golden notes chime over Petrograd. The literary lion of Russia, who writes in verse of youth and love, is played by Ivan Mozukin.

Gripping scenes and a tense situation, where Lesienko goes to a former chorus girl's home to comfort her after the death of her child. For the moment she forgets that time is flying. Little does she realize that a huge audience is waiting at the Opera House to hear her sing. Suddenly it dawns upon her. She rushes madly to her car and instructs the chauffeur to drive like mad. Then comes the accident. Then the announcement that the operatic star is unable to appear on account of sudden illness spreads in the immediate neighborhood. The news of the singer's malady is quickly circulated, and the next day friends gather at her bedside. "Madame can never sing again," is the doctor's edict.

"The Tiger's Eye" is the title of the second episode of "The House of Hate," in which Pearl White is starred with Antonio Moreno as leading man.

Toto's two-reel Rolin comedy is titled "Fare, Please," and in it the little comedian plays the part of a street car conductor. Harold Lloyd appears in "Here Come the Girls," a one-reel comedy.

A split-reel travel and educational is made up of Picturesque France (The Cauterets), Pathe colored, and "Children's Dances," also Pathe colored and made with the famous ultra-rapid camera. An International Cartoon, an Educational split-reel and Hearst-Pathe News, No. 24 and 25, are also on this program.

Alice Brady Film is Again Titled

Another change of name has been decided on in regard to Alice Brady's latest Select production, which has been going forward under the working title of "Ruthless Russia." The new title will be "At the Mercy of Men," and has been embodied in all orders on lithographs, cards and folders advertising the picture.

"At the Mercy of Men" was arranged for the screen by Paul West and was directed by Charles Miller.

"Revelation" Booked for Loew Theatres

"Revelation," the Metro production with Nazimova, which has been running at the Lyric in New York, is booked for sixty days' showing on the Loew Circuit of theatres after its run at the Lyric.

Mary Miles Minter Is Said To Be Her Charming Self in "Powers That Prey," an American-Mutual Feature

Five New Jaxon Comedies Now Ready

The release of the sixth series of Jaxon Comedies has now been completed with "Which Was Lucky," a one-reel subject dealing with the weird adventures of two trouble finders. General Film now releases a new series of Jaxon Comedies consisting of five subjects: "The Official Maneuver," "What Occurred on the Beach," "An All Fools' Day Affair," "Beating Him to It" and "Forced Into Matrimony."

No Rest for Winsome Ann Pennington

The production of "Sunshine Nan" is said to have proved a trying experience for Ann Pennington, who plays the title role in the Paramount picture to be released March 11. The strenuosity of the part and the cold weather prevailing while the exteriors were being filmed convinced the star that the path of the motion picture actress is not strewn with roses. So she hied herself to Palm Beach for a rest, but no sooner had she arrived there than she was joyfully hailed as a new recruit for Red Cross work by a prominent society leader of New York.

Many Order Vitagraph-Drew Reissues

Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, received reports from the company's branches last week which showed that bookings on the Vitagraph Drew comedies already have started coming in in large volume. Announcement that the company was preparing to reissue these subjects was made last week, and Mr. Irwin says that this was followed immediately by the signing up of contract which places these one-reeers in the programs of theatres all over the country.

The Vitagraph library contains scores of these comedies, which are to be re-edited, retitled and reprinted. The first release is scheduled for March 11, the title of the picture being "Their First Quarrel."

"Life Mask" Promises Mystery to Last

WHAT Petrova Picture Company announces as a novel procedure adopted by executives of the company in connection with the third release starring Madame Petrova, should give exhibitors an opportunity to exploit the picture in an original manner. "The Life Mask," which is the title of the feature, is by an unknown author.

In producing the picture, which was directed by Frank Crane, it was decided to so film the various scenes as to leave the spectator thoroughly in doubt regarding the outcome of the story until the word "finis" was written at the end of the play. Further developing this idea the discovery was made that it was possible to so produce the Petrova production as to make it an out and out mystery story or to film it as a straight melodrama of considerable suspense. In order not to sacrifice the natural strength of the story told in "The Life Mask" the executives of the Petrova organization have decided to leave it optional with the exhibitors as to whether this picture shall be either one of the above named types.

To this end a prologue, entailing the use of a little less than a hundred feet of film has been made, in which the various leading characters are introduced and the finger of suspicion cleverly pointed at all by a few well-worded sub-titles. Following this preface, the story proper begins, running unbroken to the close of the picture. Thus by the simple expedient of eliminating the prologue when presenting "The Life Mask," exhibitors may show their patrons a highly interesting society melodrama minus the element of mystery. If, however, they desire to attract the attention of their audience by leaving to them the probable solution of the story, the introductory phases of the picture may be run in conjunction with the play proper, thereby appealing to the patron's mind to work out the intricacies of the plot.

It is believed by Petrova to be the first time on record that this procedure has been adopted to furnish exhibitors with a novel source of exploitation. In furtherance of the scheme special aids will be prepared by the newly established Service Department of the Petrova Picture Company to enable the showman to take full advantage of the plan.

"The Desired Woman" Listed for March 11

AS the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature for the week of March 11 President Albert E. Smith has scheduled "The Desired Woman," featuring Harry Morey and Florence Deshon. In addition to these stars the cast includes Eulalie Jensen, Julia Swayne Gordon, Jean Paige and little Aida Horton. The production was made under the direction of Paul Scardon and is pronounced by Mr. Smith one of the most finished features the company has offered to exhibitors this season.

"The Desired Woman," described as "straight drama," was made from the novel of the same name by Will N. Harben, writer of Southern stories and a member of the National Institute of Arts and Letters. Many of its scenes were made in the hills near Atlanta, Ga., the original locale of the story, and others were filmed at Jacksonville, Fla., where Director Scardon and his company were busy for several weeks.

In point of story, direction, setting and cast, Mr. Smith says that "The Desired Woman" will take rank with the best photoplays on the market today. The story was especially selected for Mr. Morey and Miss Deshon, and the role portrayed by Morey is declared to be one of the best that he has ever had.

An outstanding feature of the picture is said to be a chase of moonshiners by U. S. Revenue agents and a battle between the two forces. Another striking feature, according to the outline of the story supplied by the Vitagraph offices, is the unusual finish. The story has a happy ending but is said to be handled in an entirely original manner.

Goldwyn Sets Mary Garden Picture Ahead

MARY GARDEN'S second Goldwyn production, "The Splendid Sinner," will be released throughout North America on March 24, instead of on April 7, as was first announced.

This sudden change of plan by the Goldwyn organization is due to Samuel Goldfish's desire to increase exhibitor prosperity instantly in all parts of the country, the Goldwyn statement says.

Miss Garden in "The Splendid Sinner" follows the Mabel Normand picture on March 24, and then two weeks later comes what Goldwyn says is the most unusual production in which Madge Kennedy has appeared since she made her screen debut. The title of this new picture is "The Danger Game," and one will probably infer from the title that the story is melodramatic. It is being directed by Harry Pollard, who joined the Goldwyn organization when Director Edward Dillion met with an accident through a fall on the ice. Goldwyn thinks it safe to predict that there was never before as fascinating a cinema burglar as Madge Kennedy, and that her following will delight in seeing her in a departure from the bridal veil productions.

To satisfy the curiosity manifested over the theme of Mary Garden's second picture, Goldwyn states that it is "the story of a woman who sacrificed her honor but won a dramatic and sensational redemption, with martyrdom and the affection of a nation as her final reward." The guess has been made that this is a vampire production with Miss Garden in the role of a vampire such as has never before been seen on the screen, but this is said to be not an accurate guess even though the public has had some basis for its suspicion.

Desmond in Triangle Feature

March 10 Program Headed by Seventeenth Century Romance of the Caribbean—"The Hard Rock Breed" Also Released

A STORY by Kenneth B. Clarke called "The Sea Panther," which appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, has been adapted for the screen by Triangle and is scheduled for release March 10. In this seventeenth century costume play, which depicts the adventurous days of Captain Kidd, William Desmond is featured in the title role as the Beau Brummel of a bloody pirate crew, who dices and duels for the life and favor of Molly Tarplay, a daughter of the Carolinas. Mary Warren as Molly supports Mr. Desmond in her initial role as leading woman.

The story follows the adventures of Paul Le Marsan, gentlemanly freebooter, known as "The Sea Panther." With a band of merciless cut-throat pirates, he falls on the British ship Lady Devon, aboard which is Molly Tarplay, en route to join her uncle, Proprietary Governor of the Carolinas. The demand of the crew for the captive maiden is met by the flashing blade of their captain. In the Bahamas, where the prisoners are taken, Molly is forced to share Le Marsan's home, and is overwhelmed by the barbaric splendor of her surroundings. She begins to love her captor, who protects her from Braga, fellow pirate, in a duel to the death. Le Marsan realizes that an outlaw cannot win a niece of the Governor of the Carolinas, and risks all to take her to her destination. When all are ready to embark the captive crew smuggle themselves on board the ship and overcome the pirates. But in his hour of need Molly proves her loyalty and saves Le Marsan from an unkind fate.

"The Hard Rock Breed," also scheduled for the week of the 10th, deals with the lives of the men who tunnel through huge mountains in their efforts to advance civilization. Realism in every detail was demanded by Director Wells in the production of this picture, and the huge quarries of the Colton Company were secured by Triangle for the location work. Jack Curtis and J. Barney Sherry are the two typical "hard rock" men, who started life on a par, Sherry rising to the presidency of the company and Curtis, through drink, remaining where he started. Margery Wilson, last seen in "Flames of Chance," is Shiela Dolan, who helps Livingston make good. Aaron Edwards has a prominent role as Shea. The cast also includes Marion Skinner, Lee Phelps, George Chase, Louis Durham and Thornton Edwards.

The Keystone Comedy for the week is "Did She Go Wrong?" and features Harry Gribbon and Claire Anderson. An industrious criminal plays his game so crookedly that he "double crosses" himself.

"She Didn't Do It" and "Wives and Worries" are the one-reel Triangle Komedies which complete the week's program.

To Release "Broncho Billy's" Weekly

IN response, it is claimed, to an ever-increasing demand, George K. Spoor announces the immediate weekly release of the Essanay "Broncho Billy" pictures of the hills and plains. Thus will come back to the screen one of its so-called idols of other days.

Mr. Spoor is now engaged in selecting the best of the series of Broncho Billy one-reelers and announces the titles of the first ten. They are: "Broncho Billy's Leap," "Broncho Billy and the Rattler," "Broncho Billy's Close Call," "Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter," "Broncho Billy's Indian Romance," "Broncho Billy, a Friend in Need," "Broncho Billy's Wild Ride," "Broncho Billy's First Arrest," "Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child," and "Broncho Billy's Last Deed." A great demand has been anticipated and plenty of new prints have been prepared to meet it, it is stated. The pictures have been re-edited and equipped with new sub-titles. Not only is the film itself to be all new but so also are the paper and accessory advertising matter.

Exhibitors may book the Broncho Billy films through the George Kleine System and are invited to inspect each picture at any Kleine office.

Coincident with the foregoing announcement comes another to the effect that Essanay will also put out new prints of their "Snakeville Comedies" which ran in harness with the Broncho Billy films. They are one-reelers and will be released one a week through the General Film Company.

Universal Serial Reaches Japanese Theatres

"The Voice on the Wire," Universal's Ben Wilson-Neva Gerber serial, produced by Stuart Paton, has reached Japan, where it is said to have scored an instantaneous success and promises to be shown in all the leading motion picture theatres of the Land of the Rising Sun.

Victor Moore Is a Knowing Professor in "Some Professor," a Klever Komedy

Paramount Names March Short Releases

The Paramount short releases for March include four installments of the Benjamin Chapin series, "The Son of Democracy," entitled "My First Jury;" "Tender Memories," "A President's Answer" and "Native State." Each of these pictures is a chapter of America in the making, in two reels.

Among the comedies are two of Mack Sennett's, "Sheriff Nell's Tussle," released March 11, and "Those Athletic Girls," released March 25. Arbuckle contributes "The Bell Boy," on March 18.

The Burton Holmes Travelogues take the audiences from China to Alaska with "On the Way to the Front with the Chinese Labor Corps," March 4; "The Alaska Cruise," March 11; "A Summer Day in Skaguay," March 18, and "Over the White Pass," March 25.

Fifteen separate subjects are shown in the four releases of the Paramount-Bray They include "In the Moonshine Country," "Stage Women's War Relief," "Magic for Home Use" and a cartoon, "Pinkerton's Pup's Portrait," released March 4. The release of March 11 includes "War and the Motorcycle," "Hawaii and Her Natives" and a cartoon by Wallace Carlson. In the March 18 release is presented "Rose Culture," "Uncle Sam's Coin Factory," "Physical Culture Terpischore" and a cartoon, "Hornets of the Sea," showing the workings of a submarine and its torpedoes, by J. F. Leventhal.

On March 25 the subjects are "Lumbering for Wartime," "Hawaiians and Their Strange Customs," "Women in the World of Work" (showing unique interior decorating), and a cartoon, "Bobby Bumps," by Earl Hurd.

Thrills Promised in Pickford Film

Jack Pickford's next appearance in "Huck and Tom," or "The Further Adventures of Tom Sawyer," which was arranged for him from Mark Twain's story by Julia Crawford Ivers, will disclose the young player in one of his most thrilling subjects, Famous Players-Lasky declares.

One of the outstanding features of this picture is said to be its remarkable lighting effects and the general manner in which the photoplay was staged under the direction of William D. Taylor, who also staged "Tom Sawyer." Homer Scott is responsible for the photography.

The picture was set for release March 4.

"Some Professor" Stars Victor Moore

Klever Pictures, Inc., released on February 25 Victor Moore in his latest Klever Komedy, "Some Professor," written by Robert James and directed by Harry Jackson.

The scenes of this comedy are all laid in a seminary grounds, with a bevy of pretty seminary girls which adds lots of "pep" to the fast comedy action. Moore is supported by D. L. Don, Emma Littlefield, Charlotte Gray and Harry Foy.

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

Forest Fires and Newsprint

Universal Screen Magazine No. 62 is an excellent example of the reel which while conveying news and information of importance is nevertheless so full of "pep" that it will add life to any program. Most startling are pictures of a forest fire, showing how it is started by the carelessly thrown match, how it gains headway despite the quick work of the Forest Ranger in telephoning news of the smoke on the horizon and the efforts of the fighters who pile up dirt and dynamite trees in its path. A fire-gutted town and hundreds of homeless people point the needed lesson.

The first number of the Screen Magazine's serial, "The Making of a Newspaper," shows logs on the way to the pulp mill and the conversion of the pulp into sheets of newsprint. The process is an interesting one and is well described in the short, clear titles.

Of timely interest is the work of the rookie aviator at a private training at Wilmington, Delaware, from his "reception" to the time when he "scrapes the clouds in search of imaginary Boches."

For the children are the trained dogs who jump through barrels and dance graceful fox trots.

Universal Screen Magazine.
Universal Film Mfg. Co.: March 15.

Relics of a Vanished Race

We are not sticklers for information. We fight shy of it, as a matter of fact. And especially do we deplore the long and obscurely worded "explanation" sometimes found on the so-called educational film. But when we are presented with anything as curiosity-provoking as the Cliff Dwellings of the Mesa Verde Park, and are not told where the Park is and, much less, anything at all about the vanished race that built the impressive palace and fortress tower shown in the pictures, we wish that a little of the effort and money presumably expended in procuring the film had been spent in its editing for the screen. The title man, not having the information at hand to supply the needed background, has sought to make up for the deficiency by a certain facetiousness which is not only not funny but in questionable taste. Such fine photographic material deserves much more intelligent treatment.

The above occupies the second part of the current Pathe split-reel scenic. The first half has to do with the ascent of a glacier in Mt. Rainier Park by a party of men and plucky young women. The amusing experiences of the climbers and the views of the beautiful Park, with snowclad Rainier as the climax, form a pleasing and entertaining subject.

"Rainier National Park" and "Mesa Verde Park."
Pathe Exchange, Inc.: March 10.

Down the Ages

Every now and then, in one of his inteersting studies of animals, Mr. Ditmars shows some creature that, as he hints, is a lineal descendant of a stone age monster.

Taking this as his text, Mr. Ditmars, in his latest issue of "The Living Book of Nature," traces life in its development from early plant and strange animal forms, many of which survive with some modification today, to the crude beginning of civilization in the art of the cave man. First an imaginary portrait of the diplodocus, a lizard ninety feet in length, is shown, and then his actual skeleton. The hyrax, which looks like a rat but is actually an ancestor of the hippopotamus, and the anthropoid apes, our own reputed progenitors, bring the story down to the present age. The reel, which opens with a spouting volcano and boiling mud, characteristic of our world in the making, closes with the emblem of our hard-won civilization.

"Evolution."
Educational Films Corp.: March.

Making Newspaper in Screen Magazine

Universal's Screen Magazine, No. 62, released March 15, shows as its principal feature the first installment of "The Making of a Newspaper," which will be presented in the magazine as a serial in three installments. The first chapter takes up the manufacture of the raw paper from the logs, through the different processes, until it reaches the storage room of the newspaper office.

Other subjects are "Making an Aviator," "Animal Friends—Darwin Was Wrong!" and "What a Careless Hunter in the Woods Can Do."

What the News Weeklies Offer

"Valets, Inventors, Clerks, Teachers, Occulists, Reporters—all Yankees," as Universal Current Events No. 42 has it, they marched off last September to the training camp at Upton. Now, on Washington's Birthday, we see them in this reel and in Hearst-Pathe News No. 18, a splendid body of uniformed men, stalwart and trim, marching through the snow before the throngs of friends and well-wishers that turned out in New York to greet them.

These two weeklies also give cheering pictures of our American soldier boys playing Santa to the little orphan children of France, to whom the toys and goodies are like gifts from heaven.

One of the most spectacular pictures shown for some time in a weekly forms the climax of Universal Current Events No. 42, released February 23. It pictures how the French, driven by necessity to retaliation, employ the deadly "liquid fire" on its inventors. There is a moment of dramatic suspense as the gas tanks are lifted from the truck and set on the ground facing the enemy lines. Then the venomous jet of flame shoots forth, instantly swelling to black, whirling masses of smoke. With the exception of some striking views of a volcanic eruption in New Zealand and the customary newspaper cartoons, this issue of Current Events is entirely devoted to subjects taken in France, including those noted above and pictures at the graves of the first American soldiers to fall on foreign soil.

Universal Animated Weekly No. 13, released February 27, contains matters of interest to Americans in pictures of the muscle-building games and exercises enjoyed by our boys in training at Camp Logan, views and close-ups of the oil wells that are to supply in many ways our shortage of coal, a flag-raising at Hog Island shipyard, recently the subject of much newspaper comment, and pictures of the brave women who are soon to put their training and skill as nurses to the test in the war hospitals of France.

Hearst-Pathe News No. 17, released February 23, pays tribute to Vernon Castle in scenes at the famous "Little Church Around the Corner," where the funeral was held, and in a picture of Captain Castle himself taken at the aviation field in Texas where he lost his lite. The efficient machinery employed in making the billions of cigarettes that are going "over there," poilus enjoying a holiday frolic in the snow, and the greedy habits of the live stock kept for the Marine Commissary at Paris Island, S. C., are other features of this interesting reel.

Mutual Weekly No. 9, released February 24, gives due footage to the unusual work being done by women in these war times. In California the practical ones build, paint and paper the houses being used by the local Red Cross, while their daring sisters drive automobiles at a racing clip around the track at Ascot Park. The Rodeo in San Francisco, stage-managed by Douglas Fairbanks, affords views of the popular star and his famous smile, and fine shots of bucking bronchos who find not even a whirlwind finish too much for their riders. Boxing and wrestling matches by the marines at Mare Island form a pleasant interlude, and the reel ends with an interesting picture of a bridge developed by French engineers that can be easily swung into place by one man.

Moonshiners

The 110th release of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph contains material of an unusually interesting character, with a very funny cartoon for a good laugh at the end.

Continuing its studies of the Southern mountaineers, the Pictograph camera man here gives us glimpses of the "moonshiners" that seem to persist despite the efforts of the law. Here, in the crudest sort of distilleries, "one thousand miles from anywhere," they are seen engaged in their illicit trade. And still defying orders, they drag the muddy streams with seine nets for fish. Yet nothing but pity is aroused for the poor creatures in their backwater of civilization.

The women of the screen and stage are giving as much time as their busy lives permit in doing war work. Here are pictures taken at the headquarters of the Stage Women's War Relief, where women known throughout the land for their charm and talent buckle down to the practical business of making helmets and vests for our aviators from discarded kid gloves.

The cartoon is the contribution of C. T. Anderson and shows what happened when "Pinkerton Pup" sat for his portrait.

Paramount-Bray Pictograph No. 110.
Paramount Pictures Corp.: March 9.

Fairy Dances

Pathe's scenic release for the week of March — is a split reel in color the first half showing scenes about the town of Cauterats, in the French Pyrenees, the second being pictures taken by the ultra-rapid camera of children dancing the tarantella and jig.

The beautiful mountainous country of southern France affords picturesque views of rushing mountain streams bridged by arches that date back to Roman towns. Cauterets itself is famous for its hot sulphur spings to which come twenty thousand visitors each season to test its curative powers. The bath houses and casino are handsome edifices of stone, in contrast to the shoddy buildings that mar American watering places.

The little girls who dance before Pathe's magic camera seem to float in the air like sprites. If the owners of this marvellous device would only take the hint and give us a real fairy picture made by its means!

The Splendor of Niagara

The power and majesty of Niagara, whether pouring its thundering torrents over the sheer rock or sliding silently under icy fetters, is again given screen presentation in "The Thunderer of the Waters," released by the Reiben Films Corporation. Decorative titles, bearing quotations from the many writers who have paid eloquent tribute to this marvel, introduce identical views of the river and falls in summer and winter. The Cave of the Winds, the mounting clouds of spray from a point just to the side of the cataract, the rapids and whirlpool, form a series of splendidly impressive shots. Presented at the Rivoli theatre to the accompaniment of majestic music and a rolling of drums, the spectacle was of satisfying splendor.

"The Thunderer of the Waters."
Reiben Films Corporation: March 4.

Wild Creatures at Play

Opening with a superb waterfall that drops in three cascades of exquisite beauty, "Where Rolls the Oregon," Commissioner Finley's latest release, pictures wild life in the forests of the Northwest in a manner that is novel and distinctly pleasing. One group of pictures shows the lone fisherman and the speckled beauties that lurk in tantalizing numbers in the stream at his feet. The camera has caught them as they swim with mocking laziness beneath the water, and snapped one fellow as he slipped from the hand that was detaching him from the hook and made his escape to freedom.

Deer browze peacefully in the forest till startled into flight by the click of the camera, bear cubs chase each other up a tree, and an impudent and greedy squirrel uses his bulging cheeks to defy the laws against food hoarding. Last on the screen are a pair of bald eagles on their lofty nest.

Nazimova, the Metro Star, is Presented in "Revelation"

An invitation to—

H. A. Aitken, of Triangle
J. A. Berst, of Pathe
Wm. A. Brady, President of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry
William Fox
Ricord Gradwell, of the World Film
Samuel Goldfish, of the Goldwyn
D. W. Griffith
S. S. Hutchinson, of the American
Tom Ince
Lee Ochs, President of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of America
Richard A. Rowland, of the Metro
W. N. Selig
Mack Sennett
Albert E. Smith, of the Greater Vitagraph
George K. Spoor, of Essanay and last but not least
Adolph Zukor

The Universal Film Manufacturing Company invites all of the producers named above (as well as other producers too numerous to mention) to CLOSE THEIR STUDIOS AND MAKE ALL OF THEIR PICTURES AT UNIVERSAL CITY, CALIFORNIA.

. . . .

This we regard as the most practical step toward eliminating waste and duplication and thus bringing down the cost (and therefore the renting price) of all moving pictures produced in this country.

. . . .

Universal City is acknowledged to be not only the largest but the best equipped studio in the world. It can easily be made to accommodate ALL OF THE PRODUCING COMPANIES IN THE UNITED STATES.

. . . .

Its equipment is the finest that can be had. . It represents the investment of vast fortunes in cash as well as years of study, experimenting and improving—all with a view to making the best possible pictures at the slightest possible cost.

. . . .

It is ready for you to use immediately. Simply close your own studios, send your producing staff to Universal City and START MAKING PICTURES WITHOUT THE LOSS OF AN HOUR OF TIME; and without having to divert your mind from producing to the worries attendant upon running the mechanical end of the studio business.

. . . .

Several suggestions have been made by various men in the trade as to the best method of effecting needed economies in picture making. Some have suggested mergers, but there are so many obstacles in the way of satisfactory mergers that much time will be lost before any merging can be done on such a scale as to help the whole trade.

. . . .

Under our plan, as suggested above, the economies can be made effective IMMEDIATELY. The closing of the large and small studios represented by the above list of names would so reduce the cost of picture producing that all producers taking part in the movement could IMMEDIATELY turn part of their savings over to the exhibitors in the form of lower rental prices.

Universal City contains EVERYTHING you can possibly need to make the finest pictures in the history of the trade. It is complete. It is convenient. It is far too large for the needs of any single concern. If, by chance, it should need more artificial lighting equipment than it has at present, we could remove the lights from your own closed studios and transfer them to your stages at Universal City. The same idea could be applied to props, scenery, electrical equipment and so on, although the equipment already on hand is vast.

. . . .

We invite every producer to give this the most serious thought. We ask each and every one to realize what a boon such a move would be to the whole trade, provided enough of you take advantage of the offer.

. . . .

We invite Mr. William A. Brady, as president of the National Association of the Moving Picture Industry, to use his good offices to bring about this tremendous good for the whole industry.

. . . .

We invite Mr. Lee Ochs, as president of the Moving Picture Exhibitors' League of America, to use his good offices to help accomplish this almost limitless economy by which THE EXHIBITORS WOULD BENEFIT DIRECTLY. In no other practical manner that we know of can he do so much to HELP THE EXHIBITORS AT A CRITICAL TIME IN THEIR AFFAIRS.

. . . .

We are ready to arrange the most reasonable rates for the rental of space and facilities at Universal City—and naturally the more producing companies the more reasonable the rates.

. . . .

War conditions have caused all producers to give more serious thought to their producing costs than they have ever done in past years. A year ago we do not believe such an invitation as this would have met with favor; but now WE BELIEVE IT TO BE THE MOST LOGICAL, THE MOST NATURAL AND THE MOST PRACTICAL SOLUTION OF THE BIG PROBLEM THAT CONFRONTS THE WHOLE TRADE.

. . . .

If we have seemed selfishly to reserve the great benefits of Universal City to ourselves in the past, it was only because we have never felt that the time for real co-operation was ripe until now.

. . . .

Those of you who have suffered from annoying restrictions placed upon studios, either in New Jersey, New York or the city of Hollywood, California, may be pleased to know that there are no such restrictions in Universal City where we are virtually "a law unto ourselves."

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING COMPANY
Carl Laemmle, Pesident, 1600 Broadway, New York
"The largest film manufacturing concern in the universe"

—close your studios and make all your pictures in Universal City

The "NEWS" advertisers believe YOU worth while; justify them.

Coming with a Roar!
"The LION'S

Coming with a Roar.—The biggest thriller of the year. COMING

—the Universal serial that will stand the public on end. COMING—the serial with the biggest serial drawing Star in pictures—MARIE WALCAMP—reckless, dashing, daring, utterly fearless MARIE WALCAMP—brilliant Star of "THE RED ACE" and "LIBERTY" that packed thousands of theatres all over the world. The Serial of timeliness. The serial with "the wallop"—the serial that will set the pace and that will establish new records in thousands of theatres. WATCH and WAIT for the big new Advertising and Publicity Campaign book. You'll get your copy shortly. It tells everything. Wire now for reservation. A word to the wise is sufficient.

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MN'FG CO., Largest Film Mn'fg Co. in the Universe, CARL LAEMMLE, President, 1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Profit by Englands Lesson

Great Britain has learned by a very severe lesson that the people must have something to take their minds off the gruesomeness of war. Great Britain's answer to her people has been film comedies as well as plenty of musical shows, etc. Let America learn from England's experience and LET US PROFIT BY THAT EXPERIENCE. We must keep our people amused.

In this necessity, call on L-KO comedies. L-KO comedies are funny enough to make even a mummy laugh. Without plot or semblance of plot, without continuity or story,—but with side splitting situations and punch; high pressure comedians, with gobs of pretty girls and oceans of "pep" L-KO comedies are your best bet. Play all the comedies you can and let L-KO head the list every week. BEGIN NOW.

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

Largest Film Mn'fg Co. in the Universe

CARL LAEMMLE, PRESIDENT

1600 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

Talented Children in "The Blue Bird"

Tula Belle and Robin Macdougall Are the Youthful Stars of "The Blue Bird," an Artcraft Spectacle

NEVER was the Belgian poet Maeterlinch's message of happiness more appropriate than during the present war period, according to an Artcraft announcement, and for that reason Artcraft's production of "The Blue Bird," under the direction of Maurice Tourneur, is considered especially timely. Tula Belle, aged eight, and Robin Macdougall, ten years old, are intrusted with the chief parts in the screen version of this masterpiece of literature, and that the selections were well made will readily be conceded, it is said, by everyone who sees the production, which will be released on Easter Day.

Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in charge of productions, in bringing out the importance of these children in conveying Maeterlinck's ideals in "The Blue Bird," said: "Tula Belle and Robin Macdougall, under Mr. Tourneur's expert direction, make the famous poet's great thoughts clear to those of their own age as well as older people. With them the audience will journey through scene after scene of symbolical magnificence. Through the magic of the Fairy Berylune they will witness the soul of all things become visible. The cat and the dog, gifted with speech; milk, transformed to a beautiful feminine figure; sugar, in grotesque shape, and light, personified by a lovely girl radiantly costumed. These and many others are made more realistic through the work of the youngsters, as directed by Mr. Tourneur.

"In addition to being a renowned poet and dramatist, Maurice Maeterlinck is conceded to be the greatest philosopher of modern times and the most convincing exponent of the immortality of the soul. It is a significant fact that since the world war the greatest newspapers and magazines have published articles on grave subjects by the noted author.

"The great attractiveness of the Maeterlinck play lies in the fact that it is in reality a cheerful drama of life, pointing the way to true happiness. In searching for the Bluebird—meaning happiness—the children view life from every angle and eventually find that true happiness lies in the humble home from which they started their journey."

General Releases "Shame" Seven-Reeler

THE distribution of "Shame," John W. Noble's seven-reel production, has been taken over by General Film Company, the deal including the rights in the entire United States, with the exception of New York City. An energetic sales campaign is to be launched immediately by General, which predicts that it will be one of the notable money makers in the feature class this year.

The story of "Shame" treats of the world's unjust condemnation of a girl whose motives are of the best, the theme involving the attitude of society toward the innocent children of no name. Zena Keefe is the star and Niles Welch her leading man.

"Shame" is claimed to be the masterpiece of Director Noble, who produced "Romeo and Juliet," "The High Road" and "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie." More than four months were spent in producing the film, editing and preparing it for presentation.

Miss Keefe plays the part of an innocent victim of circumstances in the prologue. Then, as she reappears as a girl of another generation, the picture unfolds a strikingly effective train of adventures, mirroring faithfully a graphic ordeal full of tears and smiles, ending with justice done the heroine.

A wide range of advertising aids, including 1, 3, 6 and 24-sheet posters, ten 8 x 10, eight 11 x 14 and two 22 x 28 lobby photos, and three styles each of one and two column cuts is available for exhibitors, besides other material.

Dorothy Dalton Stars in "Unfaithful"

"The Unfaithful," two-reel picture, scheduled by Triangle for March 31 release, features Dorothy Dalton, and was directed by Charles Miller under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince. The play, written by Lambert Hillyer, is dramatic in incident and plot. Included in the supporting cast are Charles Gunn and Charlotte Vermont.

"The Cross Bearer" Held for Easter Week

The release date of Montagu Love's newest World Picture, "The Cross Bearer," has been changed from March 24 to April 1 because of the fact that Cardinal Mercier is the central character and a large number of Catholic organizations prevailed upon World Pictures to make it a post-Lenten release. This picture is said to have the endorsement of King Albert of Belgium.

Well-known Players in Bessie Love Picture

Several well-known players who have appeared in previous Pathe pictures are seen in the cast surrounding Bessie Love in her first Pathe Play, "The Great Adventure." Among them are Flora Finch, who was in many Vitagraph comedies several years ago and who has had prominent parts in several Pathe features lately; Chester Barnett, who is Miss Love's leading man, was seen recently in "Over the Hill," and Donald Hall, who was Mollie King's leading man in "The On-the-Square Girl," plays the "heavy."

"The Great Adventure" is built around Miss Love's personality. It is a story of a little country girl who was sure that if she got her chance she could become a great theatrical star.

New Human Emotions Are Scheduled

It is said that something new in the way of emotion, a human sentiment which has never before been appreciated from the standpoint of dramatic value, will be introduced to the inarticulate drama in the Paralta play, "Within the Cup," starring Bessie Barriscale, which will be released shortly through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

Bluebird for March 11 Is "Hungry Eyes"

The Bluebird release for the week of March 11 is "Hungry Eyes," in which Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury are featured. This picture was originally known as "His Wife from Arizona."

"Hungry Eyes" is a typical Julian production in that this Bluebird director has turned out a feature which has for its locale the West of former days. In addition to Julian, Salisbury and Miss Clifford, the cast of "Hungry Eyes" contains Gretchen Lederer, W. H. Bainbridge, A. H. Barros, Arthur Tavares, George McDaniel and Rita Pickering.

Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford Appear in "Hungry Eyes," for Bluebird

In the Independent Field

Sherrill Speaks on Direct Plan

William L. Sherrill, Recently Elected President of Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated, Comments on Plans of New Organization

WILLIAM L. SHERRILL, president of the Frohman Amusement Corporation and recently elected president of the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated, in speaking of the plan of this new organization said in a recent interview:

"The plans which we eight independent producers have drawn up after careful deliberation and much forethought, have been adopted in an earnest and sincere effort to bridge the gap which ever seems to be growing bigger, between producer and exhibitor.

"The Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated, we have termed our direct booking plan—affiliated—because we are working together, we are aiming toward the same goal, that of better and finer pictures, and we are sharing the profits. It is the first time that the exhibitor has been given an opportunity to share more of the gains of a production. Hitherto he has been obliged to pay a set price for his films, and to get his profits as best he can.

"By our plan all revenue derived from distribution in excess of the minimum quota in each state shall be divided between the manufacturer making the particular picture and the exhibitors in each individual state using that picture. Already we feel that the success of the project is assured. Exhibitors throughout the country have hailed the plan as the ultimate solution of their difficulties.

"I have just completed a trip to the Middle West. The attitude of exhibitors wherever I went was most gratifying. Their interest manifested their co-operation assured. We are forging ahead rapidly. We are making great progress in rounding up the territories in every section of the country and we feel confident that before long our direct booking plan will be in splendid running order. The exhibitor is willing to do his share. We are anxious to do ours. We promise them a fair deal, hearty co-operation and productions of a high order, made by men whose position in the moving picture field is unquestioned."

The independent producers who have banded together to reduce the high cost of films are: Herbert Brenon, William L. Sherrill, L. Lawrence Weber, Harry Rapf, Lester Park, I. E. Chadwick, Joseph A. Golden and Shubert, Hammerstein and Ince.

Spanuth Pleased with Success on Tour

Tingling with a big idea, which he says will prove to be something absolutely new in picture production, H. A. Spanuth, president of the Commonwealth Pictures Corporation, returned to the Chicago headquarters of his concern last week after an extended tour of the country in the interests of "The Frozen Warning" featuring Charlotte, the ice queen.

In speaking of the new project Mr. Spanuth said that he had sold the rights to his picture to representatives of the First National Exhibitors Circuit for nearly the whole United States. He said on his return to Chicago:

"You know," he said, in speaking to a representative of Motion Picture News, "my trip has been a success from any angle you look at it. I sold the rights to my Charlotte picture to every man I had decided would be the agent I should most prefer to handle it for me in his respective territory, and I conceived an idea that is going to be a winner.

"We are going to begin our production work again next week, and instead of big features, we are going to make two-reelers. But not ordinary two-reelers. They are going to be most extraordinary—and that's the secret. They will be as different from the two-reelers we know as day is from night. These productions are to be called Spanuth's Original—but the mystery will not be explained nor details given, not even in the ads, until the pictures are ready for screening. This new innovation we plan to put out at the rate of two a month and the exhibitor will find it a splendid service, I am sure, to use with his regular features in rounding out a first class bill."

Anna Case to Start First Picture Soon

Miss Anna Case, operatic star, is enjoying a restful week at Atlantic City after a successful concert tour of the larger cities in the South and West. She is scheduled to appear in Chicago, Milwaukee, Boston and Philadelphia and will return to New York during the month of March to begin work on her first feature picture under the personal direction of Julius Steger. A story entitled "The Golden Hope," which combines the atmosphere of the West with the modern social life of New York, has been secured by Joseph M. Schenck for the screen debut of Miss Case.

Bernarr Macfadden Produced "Zongar" to Show the Need of Physical Preparedness in American Youth

Nine Changes Ordered in "Zongar"

Nine changes have been ordered in Bernarr Macfadden's physical culture picture, "Zongar," by the Pennsylvania State Board of Censors. Mr. Macfadden, as head of the Physical Culture Photo Plays, has filed a protest with the Board. In his letter of protest to the censors he says:

"'Zongar' is a physical preparedness drama. It stands side by side with every effort which is now being made to win the war. In the beginning of this war four-fifths of our men were rejected as defective by the army physician. You cannot view 'Zongar' without squaring your shoulders, without drawing in a deep breath. It teaches a lesson of splendid manhood, strong capable womanhood. The National Board of Censors passed this play in New York not only without criticism, but we were congratulated because of the splendid character of the play throughout."

Hyde with Superfilm, Washington

Wallace Hyde, formerly connected with Perfection Pictures of the George Kleine system, has become Baltimore representative of Superfilm Attractions, for Sidney B. Lust of Washington, D. C. The Superfilm Attractions are handling the Hoffman Four Square pictures, Billy West and the Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge reissues.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
"Race Suicide" (Joe Farnum)	Fred B. Murphy, United Film Service, Inc., Boston	New England Territory.
"Parentage" (Frank Seng)	Fred B. Murphy, United Film Service, Inc., Boston	New York State.
"The Birth of Democracy". "Mother" "Loyalty" "The Modern Lorelei" "Peg o' the Sea" "Who Knows" "The Public Defender" (Modern Feature Photoplays, New York)	Fred B. Murphy, United Film Service, Inc., Boston	New England Territory.
"The Cold Deck" "Today" "The Mad Lover" "Wrath of the Gods"	Keystone Distributing Corporation, Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey.

New Organization Launched

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., Formed—Lee Ochs, Charles and Milton Rosenthal Executives—Co-Operative Plan

LEE A. OCHS heads the newly organized United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., as president. Offices have been established in the Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway. Louis F. Blumenthal is treasurer, Charles M. Rosenthal, secretary, and Milton M. Goldsmith, general counsel. C. R. Seelye, formerly connected with the sales and managerial departments of Pathe, Vitagraph and World Film is identified with the new organization. The organization plans to interest the exhibitors throughout the country in co-operative buying.

Mr. Seelye will leave New York March 6 on a nation-wide tour in the course of which he will organize the distributing branches of the co-operative agency. Three days later President Ochs will begin his visits to the more important cities where he will address the exhibitors in public meetings now being arranged.

Already a considerable number of the more influential managers of picture circuits in the East have declared their adherence to the plan, it is said. Messrs. Harry Crandall of Washington and Frank A. Keeney of New York have already voiced their approval of the movement.

The plan of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., is to divide the cost of film negative pro rata among as large a proportion of the exhibitor forces of the United States as it may be possible to align in an organization identified with exhibitor personnel and exhibitor sentiment. Exhibitors are to be graded into five classes, according to first and second runs, etc., money earning capacity and the like. The first grade will pay one-tenth of 1 per cent of the cost of the negative. Each lower grade will pay proportionately less till a unit in the last grade pays only one one-hundredth of 1 per cent of negative cost. If any profit on these transactions remains to the United Picture Theatres, it is paid back to the individual picture theatre proprietors who are stockholders in the general enterprise. The organization pledges itself not to start business until 2,000 booking days are secured.

Southwest Exhibitor Likes Ivan Product

Arthur Glare, manager of Hippodrome theatre, Dallas, Texas, wrote the following letter to the True Film Co., Dallas, which speaks well for the success of Ivan features in the Southwest territory:

"This house closed the most satisfactory engagement of the present season with your picture, 'Babbling Tongues,' which I can recommend as one of the best plays ever presented at this house."

Belgium Woman Praises "The Belgian"

Sister Mary Ignatius O'Kavanaugh, prominent church woman of Belgium and a special representative of Cardinal Mercier, engaged in relief work in this country, was the guest of honor at a special presentation of Sidney Olcott's production, "The Belgian," given for charitable purposes in Cleveland under the joint auspices of Mr. Olcott and Frank G. Hall, of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, by which the picture is being distributed.

Sister Mary was stationed in a little border town in Belgium when the Germans invaded the kingdom and she lived through the bombardment of Liege.

She sent Mr. Olcott the following letter:

"I want to tell you how keenly I enjoyed the privilege of seeing a private screening of your photoplay, 'The Belgian.' It certainly is a wonderful presentation of many things I witnessed in that unfortunate country during the first four months of the war.

"(Signed)

"Sister M. Ignatius O'Kavanaugh,
"Louvain."

Sawyer and Lubin Close for Territory

A deal was closed last week between General Enterprises, Inc., and the Federal Film Company of Boston, which gives to the latter concern the entire New England rights to "The Liar." This is a six-part society melodrama, starring Jane Gail and Stanley Walpole, directed by William H. Haddock. Following this sale Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin closed negotiations for the disposition of their feature, "Mother" to the Regal Films, Limited, of Toronto, Canada. This organization, which also controls the entire Canadian territory for the General Enterprises, Inc., picture, "The Warrior," will exploit the George Loane Tucker film in the eastern and western parts of the Dominion. Various buyers of "The Warrior," starring Maciste, the hero of "Cabiria," have found it necessary to order additional prints of the Italian war spectacle in order to take care of requests from exhibitors for repeat bookings. The Westcott Film Corporation of Minneapolis have requested a third print of "The Warrior" for this purpose as has the Jordan-Brewster Film Corporation of Seattle, Washington.

Reginald Barker Has Had Successful Career

Reginald Barker, director of "Carmen of the Klondike," the Selexart production, which will be the initial release of the State-Rights Distributors is responsible for the first William S. Hart pictures, "On the Night Stage" and "The Bargain."

He has directed Sessue Hayakawa in "The Typhoon" which was perhaps one of the Japanese actor's first great success. His first work was for Thomas H. Ince. Four weeks after he arrived at Inceville he was on the pay roll, and almost immediately began turning out the successes which had so much to do with the reputation built up by that studio.

Sterling Launches Big Drive

H. R. Ebenstein, General Manager, Sterling Pictures Corporation, to Visit All Exchange Centers —Big Drive On

H. R. Ebenstein, manager of sales for the Sterling Pictures Corporation, of which Arthur F. Beck is president, has left for a ten-weeks' trip covering all exchange centres. He expects to place with exchange men throughout the country, the productions handled by the Sterling Pictures Corporation. Mr. Ebenstein left with a trunk full of sample prints of the different features controlled by Sterling.

Mr. Ebenstein said before leaving: "The 'Sterling System' combines a certain arrangement between the manufacturer and Sterling Pictures Corporation, and the independent exchange. It does not mean the sale of feature rights—neither does it mean the direct percentage arrangement under which some features have been released. Realizing that the manufacturer needs cash in order to continue manufacturing productions, and likewise realizing that the independent exchange cannot continue laying out cash covering high production cost and big profit to the manufacturer, the Sterling Pictures Corporation has stepped in as a middle factor whereby a happy medium is struck, and both the manufacturer and local distributor are able to operate successfully.

"It is not the intention of the Sterling Pictures Corporation to confine their operations to the distributing of features only upon the 'Sterling System.' They will handle other features on the basis of an outright territory sale. At the present we have found a very big demand for releases under the 'Star Series' plan. In addition to the Alma Hanlon series and the Jean Sothern series, consisting of six productions each, they have added to our list a series of three features, each starring Anna Q. Nilsson, and a series of four feature productions, each starring Catherin Calvert. We have likewise taken over the George Loane Tucker production, 'I Believe,' and acquired from the France Films, Incorporated, 'The Natural Law,' featuring Marguerite Courtot. We are closing this week for another big production.

"It will be the policy of the Sterling Pictures Corporation to offer their exchanges not only a consistent output, but the nature of their organization demands that they continue to supply their affiliated exchanges at periodical intervals. This will practically eliminate the necessity of their exchanges going into the open and competitive market for features."

Gerard's Picture to Open on Broadway

"MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY," produced under the direction of William Nigh from Charles A. Logue's screen version of former Ambassador James W. Gerard's story of the same name, will open at the Knickerbocker theatre, Broadway, New York, Sunday, March 10th. It is announced that the run will approximate ten reels. Special musical score has been arranged by Hugo Riesenfeld, musical director of the Rivoli and Rialto theatres. If Mr. Gerard's condition permits he will be present at the opening and give a short introductory address. He is at present recovering from an illness. Persons prominent in naval, military and civil life are scheduled to be present.

Millions of copies of Mr. Gerard's book have reached the hands of readers. An illustrated souvenir volume has been issued, containing still photographs from the important scenes of the picture and a foreward by the author. A portrait of Mr. Gerard is contained. Mr. Gerard's latest work, "Face to Face With Kaiserism," sequel to "My Four Years in Germany," is now running in many of the principal dailies of the country. There is a large variety of paper from twenty-four sheets down; heralds, lantern slides, advertising cuts and publicity readers.

Pierre Key Comments on "The Cast Off"

Pierre V. R. Key, Foursquare Pictures, comments upon the Foursquare release featuring Bessie Barriscale, "The Cast Off," in the following interview:

"The human-interest element of the Thomas H. Ince picture, and its admirable simplicity were responsible for the purchase of this picture by Mr. George Backer, and in securing it for distribution our organization has a subject in every way worthy of the ideals of the Foursquare corporation.

"No photoplay I have seen in a long time so perfectly illustrates the type which is certain to increase in number, as the industry becomes older. The story is direct, clearly set forth and without any disagreeable moments. C. Gardner Sullivan, a master of his craft, has builded naturally and simply, and Miss Barriscale and her colleagues, under Raymond West's direction, seem to have performed their tasks with intelligent appreciation of the things Mr. Sullivan sought.

"It is not that 'The Cast Off' is a Foursquare picture which prompts this commendation; for such procedure, often, is in questionable taste. But it represents so completely those excellences for which the ablest men in the profession are striving that it is gratifying to observe that the exhibitors are a unit in their endorsement of the picture."

Twede Dan's Third Comedy Liked

A private screening of the third of the Jester Comedies releases, "All 'Fur' Her," was given recently and those present proclaimed it on a par with the first two, "The Recruit" and "His Golden Romance," it is announced.

Sybil Carmen and Edwin Forsberg "Cabareting" in the Frank A. Keeney Feature, "A Romance of the Underworld"

Keeney Leases Pathe Studio

Frank A. Keeney Distributing Company announces that it has leased the Pathe studio, at Park avenue and 144th street, one of the best and most modern equipped studios in the East. The first production of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation, "The Romance of the Underworld," starring Catherine Calvert, was commenced in the Biograph studios. Last week, the company was taken to the new quarters to complete the production. The Frank A. Keeney Distributing Company was formed to exploit the product of the Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation.

The Pathe studio was built originally for a dance hall. It was later remodeled by Eugene Sanger for a studio. Pathe acquired it later. The Edison company installed recently an entire new lighting system in this studio at a cost of $15,000, it is said.

"A Romance of the Underworld," Keeney's first production is complete so far as the camera work and the taking of scenes is concerned. Director Kirkwood is now assembling it. It will be released in six reels. Mr. Kirkwood will on the completion of this picture commence work on the second production which will be a screen version of Guy Bolton's photoplay, "Marriage." Mr. Bolton is co-author of the stage successes, "Oh! Boy," and "Oh! Lady, Lady."

Anne Luther Has Successful Career

Anne Luther, who has the role of Beatrice Covington in Graphic Film Corporation's late production, "Moral Suicide," commenced her career before the camera under the direction of D. W. Griffith. Miss Luther mounted the ladder of success in the screen drama in a short time and became a recognized star.

In "Moral Suicide" Miss Luther plays the part of Beatrice Covington, the daughter of an old California millionaire, who, losing his moral sense, sinks into the depths of degradation from which he is rescued by her.

W. H. Announces First Barriscale Release

W. H. Productions Company announces that the first Bessie Barriscale superfeature, to be distributed on the state rights market, will be entitled, "Satan's Pawn." The story is based upon Francis Molnar's play, and was produced by Thomas H. Ince. Bessie Barriscale, it is said, does some of the best work of her career in this production.

Co-starring with Miss Barriscale in "Satan's Pawn" is Edward Connelly, known as one of the most able artists of the speaking stage. His interpretations of difficult roles in dramatic successes of two continents have earned for him the approval of critic and public alike. His success in "Marse Covington," known as the only serious thing George Ade ever did, was big. His most recent stage triumphs were scored in "Every Woman" and "A Good Little Devil." His recent character depicture of Rasputin in "The Fall of the Romanoffs," created a great deal of favorable comment. Mr. Connelly's impersonation of the devil in modern clothes, in "Satan's Pawn," is said to be one of the most powerful character drawings ever seen on the screen.

Clara Williams has a strong part in this production. Her latest work was in "The Bargain," "The Italian," and recently in "Carmen of the Klondike." Rhea Mitchell is seen also in this production.

"Mother" to Play Loew Circuit.

Following the announcement made last week by Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin that the New York City and state rights to their production, "Mother," had been acquired by the Modern Feature Film Company, Charles H. Striemer announces that the picture has been booked by the Marcus Loew Circuit.

Mr. Striemer, manager of the Modern Feature Film Company, with offices in the Godfrey Building, states that arrangements have been made whereby "Mother" will open on the Loew time on Thursday, March 14. The initial presentation in New York of the General Enterprises, Inc., feature will occur at the New York theatre.

"Mother," features Elisabeth Risdon, at present appearing in the leading role of the Broadway success, "Seven Days' Leave." It was picturized by George Loane Tucker from the novel of the same name by Eden Philpots. It is in seven reels.

Netter Buys Two Selig Productions

Leon D. Netter, Masterpiece Film Attractions, of Cleveland, Ohio, returned last week to the Cleveland office after a five-day visit to New York. He brought with him prints of Wm. N. Selig's latest productions, "The City of Purple Dreams" and "Who Shall Take My Life," which he will exploit in Ohio and Kentucky through his Cleveland and Cincinnati exchanges.

Lillian Walker Forms Own Producing Co.

Lillian Walker, the Original Dimpled Comedienne, Heads Her Own Company for Release Through Producers and Exhibitors, Affiliated

Lillian Walker has formed her own company, which will be known as the Lillian Walker Productions, it is announced. Her pictures will be released through the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated. Her first picture, the title of which has not yet been decided upon will be finished in about four weeks.

Miss Walker will produce straight comedy and comedy-dramas.

Miss Walker said: "All my pictures will have pleasant endings and mothers need not warn their daughters to keep away from the theatres at which they are being shown. Neither sex-problems nor the trials and tribulations of the underworld will play any part in them, but the plots will be clean, wholesome and pleasant. I feel my pictures ought to appeal to every sort of person, from the tired business man down to the little child."

Miss Walker is doing "her bit" for the government in two ways. First, she has just completed a patriotic picture which will be called "Miss Camouflage." This picture is intended for war propaganda and will be shown at all the camps on both this side and abroad. In it Miss Walker plays the part of a soldier's wife. The scenes were taken with the entire company including the officers of the 308th regiment and give a realistic portrayal of camp life.

The scene of Miss Walker's second patriotic venture is her farm in Saratoga, N. Y. called "Sunnybrook." There she is carrying out Hoover's instructions to the *n*th degree. She has her own cows, chickens, pigs and horses on her 252 acres.

Bee-Hive Active with West Comedies

THE March 15 release of the King-Bee Films Corp. starring Billy West is entitled "The Scholar." On April 1 King-Bee will release a Billy West comedy entitled "The Messenger." It is now in the making at the Hollywood Studio of the King-Bee Films Corp.

Julius Singer in charge of the booking of the Bee-Hive Exchange, selling Billy West King-Bee Comedies in greater New York, announces the bookings of the Billy West two-reelers in all the theatres of the Consolidated Amusement Enterprises, which includes the "Tiffany," "Penn," "Village," "York," "Drury Lane" and the Seventy-second street "Playhouse." All these theatres are in greater New York, and will show all the releases of Billy West King-Bee Comedies.

The Marcy theatre, one of Brooklyn's leading photoplay houses, starts a big "drive" on Billy West King-Bee Comedies next week. The first offering will be "His Day Out." The management are distributing throughout Williamsburg two hundred 1 sheets, announcing the coming of each King-Bee Comedy. They have booked Billy West in all future releases and will feature him every two weeks.

"The Messenger," is the name of the next Billy West comedy now in the making. It is an original idea; and Director Gillstrom thinks it will land as many laughs as can be jammed in a two-reel comedy.

Starting with the clever Billy West King-Bee Comedy "His Day Out," Feb. 25, 26, 27, Fox's Auditorium will feature this clever comedian in all the King-Bee comedies to be released in the future.

Julius Singer, sales manager of the Bee-Hive Exchange handling these comedies, says that "His Day Out" has brought in an increase of thirty per cent on the previous month's business, and that when they release "The Stranger," "The Rogue" and "The Orderly" they will have to move into larger quarters to accommodate the "rush" for these "profit-makers," as he terms the Billy West Releases.

The Terminal theatre, Newark, managed by Wm. Fox, will play Billy West in "His Day Out" for a week's run, and has contracted to use two of the King-Bee releases a month.

Magnet Film Gets More W. H. Releases

The Magnet Film Exchange, which acquired recently the New York rights to W. H. Productions Company's feature, "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," have also secured the rights to William S. Hart's "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hound of Alaska," and the Twenty-eight Mack Sennett Keystone Comedies.

The series of Keystone Comedies will be released shortly, the first of which is entitled, "A Small Town Bully," starring Mabel Normand, Mack Sennett, Roscoe Arbuckle and Owen Moore.

Jacob Wildberg, Treasurer of Foursquare

The latest newcomer into the field of motion picture activity is Jacob Wildberg, capitalist and manufacturer, who still retains his interests in his own concerns, but who will be actively identified with Foursquare Pictures as treasurer of that independent organization, as well as a large stockholder.

Mr. Wildberg becomes associated with Foursquare Pictures through George Backer, a friend and business colleague of many years' standing.

"Mickey" Praised by Theatrical Man

Alfred E. Aarons, general manager of Klaw & Erlanger's theatres, attended a private review of Mabel Normand in "Mickey" recently and wrote Western Import Co. the following letter, commending the production:

"'Mickey' is the greatest commercial proposition I have ever seen in the amusement field. It will be a sure fire hit. Very rarely, I believe, can a man make a statement of this nature before a production has been tested out by the public, but this picture breathes success, and the ultimate result can be seen beforehand. I make this statement freely—and you can go as far as you like with it.

"Outside of its commercial value, it is a wonderful, artistic and interesting picture. It possesses every quality that could be put in a photoplay, and its preparation shows infinite care and study. It is the product of a master. It truly depicts human life and accentuates every situation to its real possibilities.

"Mabel Normand as 'Mickey' clearly shows her versatility and supremacy as an actress. She portrays the many characters which the part calls for to the highest degree of artistry."

Daniels & Wilson, Inc., music publishers, are putting out a composition entitled "Mickey," dedicated to Miss Normand, it is announced. The song is based on the Mack Sennett $300,000 photoplay, which will be released shortly by Western Import.

Here's "Mickey," Smile and All, as Mabel Normand, Appeared in the Picture Which Western Import is Handling

"My Four Years in Germany" Is Slated to Begin a Run at the Knickerbocker Theatre in New York March 10

"Tarzan" to Run in Sixty-Five Cities

HARRY REICHENBACH reports that the First National Exhibitors Circuit will on April 2 inaugurate "Tarzan Week," during which time sixty-five prints of "Tarzan of the Apes," the National Film Corporation of America's production which will be distributed through the First National Exchanges, will play first-run houses in sixty-five principal cities of the United States.

"Tarzan" continues its successful run at the Broadway theatre, it is said, with constantly increasing business and with capacity audiences even on off nights as Monday and Friday. Mattinee business is beyond even the expectation of the producers and the engagement has been extended for another two weeks to bring the run up to the release date.

The National Film Corporation in conjunction with First National Exhibitors, have arranged for a huge talking sign at Broadway and 47th street and each first run house in the country is getting a number of flashes. The releasing company arranged for five thousand flashes which read:

"Tarzan of the Apes" at Bridgeport April 2. "Tarzan of the Apes" at Philadelphia April 2, and so on taking in turn each house that has booked the picture thus far. Harry Reichenbach of National arranged this because of the hundreds of letteers pouring into the Broadway theatre from throughout the country asking what date the picture will come to their cities.

The business manager of the Terre Haute Post wrote:

"We ran 'Tarzan of the Apes' in story form three years ago and it got us more circulation than anything we have ever printed. We had people coming to our office trying to beg, borrow or steal the advance chapters. We believe we can say for you that any theatre in Terre Haute will not have capacity enough to accommodate the crowds which will want to see 'Tarzan.' We regard Tarzan as one picture which we will want to father.

"(Signed) R. H. Gore,
"Business Manager."

Through A. L. Burt and Company, publishers of the re-issued books, arrangements have been completed for the decoration of over ten thousand drug stores, book store and stationery store windows while over five thousand papers have arranged to republish one of the Tarzan stories previous to the release date.

Independent Concern for Baltimore

The Variety Pictures Corporation has been incorporated under the Maryland laws with an authorized capital of $25,000. It is the purpose of this concern to handle state rights pictures and comedies for the Baltimore exhibitors, and as a side line will also handle mounted posters. Offices are located at 210 N. Calvert street, Baltimore. Milton Caplon is president and general manager and J. Louis Rome, manager of the Broadway theatre, is the counsel.

News Notes from Canada

New Brunswick May Remove Censors

It is reported that the Premier of New Brunswick is considering the removing of three out of four of the provincial censors, and allowing all films to be passed upon by one man, as is done in Nova Scotia. This would mean that pictures already passed by the Ontario and Quebec Boards would be free of further cutting, for it would not be considered necessary to re-examine these. The Woman's Council have long been agitating for women on the Censorship Board, and it is thought that the action of the Premier may have been decided upon as one way out of the difficulty.

The film men are said to be hoping that there is a basis of truth in the rumor.

Draft Takes Musicians from Theatres

The recent draft under the Military Service Act of the Dominion is playing havoc in musical circles. It is extremely hard to secure really capable musicians familiar with the motion picture work. Just a few days ago the draft caught a number of musicians from the St. Denis theatre orchestra in Montreal. The Regent and the Allen theatres in Toronto have also felt the draft.

Alberta Exhibitors Miss Point of Joke

The exhibitors of the province of Alberta are said to be real peeved over somebody's action a few days ago. Some association signing themselves as the Committee of Motion Picture, Vaudeville and Legitimate and Film Exchanges, sent telegrams to Alberta exhibitors advising them of the rumor to close all theatres in Canada for three days a week. The Alberta exhibitors want to know who the parties are that are responsible for the telegram. The telegram consisted of 101 words, and was sent collect, causing the exhibitor at the other end of the wire to pay charges of $2.00.

St. John Women Seek to Close Theatres

Spurred on by a recent move of the St. John schoolboard in closing schools earlier each day to save coal, the W. C. T. U. of that city passed a resolution urging the Government to close all places of amusement for one or more days each week.

This precipitated a battle which has been raging, mostly through the press, for several days.

Manitoba Faces Near Isolation

Is Predicted That the Eighty Theatres in Province May Close When Films Are Shut Off—No Comedies Expected After March 4

THERE is a possibility, according to late advices from Winnipeg, of Manitoba being without a single motion picture theatre in the near future. The eighty houses within the province may close on account of the fact that the dozen film exchanges in Winnipeg will refuse to supply them with films.

The members of the Canadian Film Exchange Managers' Association held a meeting recently in their quarters in the Kennedy block, at which they reaffirmed their intention of refusing to bring a single comedy film into Manitoba after March 4. This includes all comedies of all brands, with the exception of the next Chaplin comedy, which is soon to be released. As to the future of the Chaplins, it is a matter of doubt; his subsequent releases will be governed by circumstances.

Furthermore, the film men made known their ultimatum, which is: A one-man provincial censor board, instead of the present board of three members, consisting of two women and one man; a board of appeal, whose services shall be voluntary, consisting of one representative from every organization in Winnipeg, such as the Y. M. C. A., the Y. W. C. A., the Knights of Columbus, the Masons, the Builders' Exchange, the Trades Assembly, the Social Service Council, the Women's Council, the Ministerial Association, etc.

Should the Department of the Provincial Treasurer, under whose wing the amusements department of Manitoba is existing, refuse to grant this ultimatum, the exchanges, acting under orders from the producers of their brands of pictures, will withdraw their offices altogether from Manitoba.

With the closing of the 80 motion picture houses in the province would come the throwing out of work of 800 house attaches, with a consequent loss of $25,000 per week in salaries. The Winnipeg City Light and Power Department would lose from $1,000 to $1,200 weekly in electric light bills from this source.

The present status of the motion picture business in the province has been brought about through the feeling among the exchange men that the provincial censor board has been for a long time acting in an unfair and unreasonable manner as regards the films which have been brought in for showings; especially is this so as regards the comedies. The film men assert that the majority of the comedies submitted to the censors have been rejected in their entirety and that always the reason given on the rejection slip was "vulgar and suggestive." They hold that the pictures are neither vulgar nor suggestive, at least, in the majority of cases where they have been condemned.

Apparently, judging from the ultimatum which was decided upon at Thursday's meeting, the exchange men have come to the conclusion that the situation as regards the censoring has not improved.

It was pointed out at this meeting that the theatre ticket tax, which goes into operation the first of April, will prove decidedly unsuccessful in the event that there are no motion picture houses in Manitoba to provide the most of the expected revenue from patrons.

Monday Closing Settles Into Its Stride

The first heatless Monday for the theatres of Central Canada passed off with the usual quietness that was anticipated, on Monday, February 18. The business on Tuesday, following the general shutdown the day before, proved to be splendid in the various cities. In Toronto the Tuesday, February 19, business was exceptional, and the various downtown houses played to capacity business. Loew's Yonge street house had 'em lined out in front for nearly a block.

There has been trouble brewing between the various exchanges and the exhibitors of Central Canada due to the Monday closing order, but the latest reports from both sides indicate that negotiations satisfactory to both sides are being arranged. In brief, the exchanges are demanding payment for films on a two-day basis, while the exhibitors say it is unfair that they should be compelled to pay for two days, Mondays and Tuesdays when they are closed up tight on Mondays by the Canadian Government order-in-council.

CAMERA MEN!
AVOID SCENE MIX-UPS

Keep accurate record of exposures by using the book we will send, postage prepaid, if you will send us 15 cents in stamps

Rothacker Film Mfg. Co.
1339 Diversey Parkway CHICAGO

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Fox Studio Doings

Harvey F. Thew, who for the past year and a half served the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation as scenario writer at their west coast studios, has been engaged by the William Fox Corporation's western studios to serve in the same capacity.

Production work has been started at the William Fox western studios on the forthcoming Theda Bara spectacle, "Salome," after several weeks of preparation under the direction of J. Gordon Edwards. Some of the big scenes for this film will include replicas of the streets of old Jerusalem, the world-famous Jaffa Gate and the great palace of Herod. No expense is being spared in the filming of this feature, and it is planned it shall be even more gorgeous and spectacular than "Cleopatro," Miss Bara's most recently released Fox production. It is stated the costumes which will be seen in this production will outrival and cause more comment than did those seen in "Cleopatra." The entire supporting cast for this Bara production has not as yet been selected.

Gladys Brockwell has begun work under the direction of E. J. LeSaint, in a new picture for Fox in which she will be seen in two separate and distinct roles, which present Miss Brockwell with opportunities not afforded her heretofore. The two roles cannot be termed as dual ones, inasmuch as the star must appear as two distinct persons who in no way resemble each other. No title has as yet been made known. The story was written by George Scarborough, and Charles Kenyon prepared the screen version. William Scott and Williard Louis have been selected to support Miss Brockwell.

Members of the Tom Mix Fox Company, under the direction of Lynn Reynolds, are practically "living in the saddle" this week, they being away on locations which will represent the great plains of Arizona, New Mexico and near Los Angeles.

Paralta Paragraphs

Several hundred members of the California National Guard participated in scenes made Sunday at the Paralta Studios in Hollywood for the forthcoming Louise Glaum production, "The Iron Beast," which was previously titled "Intelligence." The soldiers were used for scenes of American soldiers marching through the streets of France on their way to the battle front. Besides the soldiers, the Paralta Company was fortunate in securing the services of the Military Band from Fort McArthur, near San Pedro, California. The entire board of directors, including Carl Anderson, John E. DeWolf, Herman Katz, Fernando M. Guinzberg, Nat I. Brown and Frank Kane, who arrived on the Coast last week, together with Robert Brunton, manager of productions, were interested onlookers during the filming of the scenes, and also appeared in several of the scenes made, playing the part of American tourists in France.

Monte M. Katterjohn, staff author at the Paralta Studios, and author of the initial starring production for Louise Glaum titled "The Iron Beast," this week received notice of Class A-1 classification in the second draft, and it is probable he will be called for service shortly.

Director Raymond B. West will soon have in production a story written by Robert Kidd and Jane Holly of the Paralta scenario staff, which will have Bessie Barriscale as the star. Julian Lamothe prepared the screen adaptation.

The F. P.-Lasky Studio

The Mary Pickford Artcraft Company has just finished "M'liss," under the direction of Marshall Neilan. At the present time it is not definitely known what story she will be starred in next.

Jack Pickford and Louise Huff will next co-star in a picture adapted for the screen from the Alice Eagan Rice book, "Sandy." George Melford will be in charge of the direction, and the principals of the supporting cast will be Raymond Hatton, James Neill and Edith Chapman.

William D. Taylor has just finished the filming of "Up the Road with Sally," which stars Constance Talmadge. A new story for Miss Talmadge is now in preparation, but as yet no director has been assigned for her next work.

Wallace Reid and Ann Little, under the direction of Donald Crisp, have just finished "The House of Silence," which was begun at the New York Famous Players-Lasky studio, and on account of the stormy weather there, was completed at the Hollywood studios. These two players will shortly begin work on a new subject now in preparation.

"The Honor of His House," starring Sessue Hayakawa, has been finished under the direction of William De Mille for the Paramount Program. This is an original story by Marion Fairfax. Mr. Hayakawa will do three more pictures for the Lasky Company, and so it is probable he will be working at the Hollywood studios for at least two more months. Florence Vidor was leading woman for Mr. Hayakawa in "The Honor of His House," and Miss Vidor and Jack Holt have been selected to appear in support of Hayakawa in his three future Lasky pictures.

Live Triangle Items

Despite the rainy weather of the past week, the producing organizations of the Triangle Film Corporation's Culver City studios, have continued with their work without any loss of time, under the five large glass-enclosed studios. Four dramatic subjects and one comedy have been completed during the past week, while eight feature companies and one comedy unit are working full blast, and three directors are awaiting new productions.

The subjects now in the cutting room are "The Law of the Great Northwest," directed by Raymond Wells, with a cast which included Margery Wilson, William V. Mong, Eugene Corey, Louis Durham, Will Jeffries and William Dyer; "Another Foolish Virgin," with Alma Rubens, Texas Guinan, Joseph Bennett and Lee Hill in the principal roles, and directed by E. Mason Hopper; "The Vortex," the Gilbert P. Hamilton directed subject, with Joe King, Mary Warren, Wilbur Higby, Eugene Burr, George Hernandez and others in the cast; the western subject, "Boss of the Lazy Y," starring Roy Stewart, directed by Cliff Smith, from the story by Charles Alden Seltzer's well-known novel; and the one-reel comedy titled "Many Happy Returns," which has Jack Livingston, Jack Richardson, Lillian West, Mae Walters and Ruth Langston as the principals, directed by H. Edwards.

"In the Spring," adapted from the magazine story by John Moroso, author of the Triangle release, "Shoes that Danced," has been put in production under the direction of Raymond Wells. The New York police force, and the life of the Italian underworld furnished the material for the story, which will have Joe King, in the part of a patrolman, and later promoted to the position of inspector.

Vitagraph News Bits

At the Vitagraph studio, Director William Wolbert is nearing the completion of "A Texan Romance," and making preparations for his next picture which is an adaptation from the James Oliver Curwood story, "A Son of Kazan." Mr. Wolbert is endeavoring to retain the same atmosphere of this great dog story for the screen, as did Mr. Curwood in his novel, by having as much action as possible center about the dog instead of the leading players. If Director Wolbert is successful in this, something very new and unusual will be seen on the screen.

George Sergent, well known director of the West Coast film colony, who produced "The Secret of the Submarine" serial and feature films starring Richard Bennett for the American Film Company at Santa Barbara, has been engaged to make some special scenes for "Enemies Within," which is being produced in New York at the Vitagraph plant, at their western studios in Hollywood. Following the completion of these special scenes Director Sargent will produce two-reel pictures from stories by Henry Lewis, which will be released as the "Wolfeville Series."

Filming of "The Man from Brodney's," in which Earle Williams was to be the star, has been postponed by the Vitagraph Company, owing to their inability to obtain small boats and yachts, on account of the new Government ruling. Instead the Williams company have begun work on "Blind Eyes," adapted for the screen from a story by William Addison Lathrop of the same title. The story is said to be particularly well adapted to Mr. Williams' style. Tom Mills is in charge of the direction. Grace Darmond has the feminine lead opposite Mr. Williams, and Kathleen Kirkham, Ruth Garden, Pat Moore, and Kate Price, well-known for her work in Vitagraph comedies, and who has just returned to this company, make up the supporting cast.

With Pathe Players

W. A. S. Douglas, president of the Diando Film Corporation, located in Glendale, returned to Los Angeles last week from New York, accompanied by Louis J. Gasnier, president of Astra, who is here on business. Mr. Douglas brought back a contract for the production of a fifteen episode serial for the Pathe organization, which will be produced under the working title of "The Wolf-faced Man." Mr. Douglas is author of the serial, and the contract for the production of this serial is the outcome of a month's conference with the Pathe officials in New York. The serial will be of a Western type, laid in the early sixties and depicting life as it was in that period. The pioneer, frontier forts and settlements, together with the Indians, will be seen in the serial, and the facts concerning the above will be taken from history. Stuart Paton, who for some time past has been directing serials for the Universal, will be the director of this Pathe serial; George Larkin, known to the world as the "human fly," will be the featured leading man, but the entire supporting cast has not been selected. Preparation work for this serial has already begun at the Glendale studios, but the work of filming the same will in all probability not be started until about the middle of March.

Along with the contract for the fifteen episode serial, Mr. Douglas also brought back with him a renewal agreement for the services of Baby Helen Marie Osborne to work under the Pathe banner for another year.

The last scenes of the latest Baby Marie Osborne Pathe subject are being made at the Glendale studio under the title of "Dolly Does Her Bit." It is planned the negative shall be cut and edited in order that the subject may be completed and ready for release during the month of February.

Here and There

Robert Leonard has begun work on a new subject for the Universal which will have Mae Murray as the star. It is titled "Danger, Go Slow," a crook story, and will be filmed in five reels. The cast to support Miss Murray has not been selected.

Rupert Julian has finished "The Iconoclast" for Universal and is now busy editing the picture.

Director Harry Harvey, who was placed in charge of filming "The Lion's Claw" serial, owing to the illness of Jacques Jaccard, is working on the fourth and fifth episode, with Marie Walcamp in the leading role; and James Horne, who is directing the "Bull's Eye" serial, is now on the fifteenth episode.

The Lyons and Moran Universal Company has finished a one-reel comedy titled "The Vamp Cure," and will, within a few days, begin the making of another one-reeler for the Universal program.

After a few days' vacation spent at San Francisco following the completion of "The Bell Boy," Roscoe Arbuckle is now at work on his fourth comedy for Paramount release which is a travesty on the feuds between moonshiners and revenue officers in the Blue Ridge Mountains. Roscoe Arbuckle and Buster Keaton take the parts of revenue officers, and are said to more nearly resemble millionaire sportsmen in the matter of clothes. Al St. John takes the role of a young moonshiner, while Alice Lake appears as his sweetheart. Charles Dudley is playing the role of father, a veteran of many thrilling mountain feuds. In place of wearing the usual costume of the sweet-faced mountain maid, Miss Lake's wearing apparel will be of the most fashionable and up-to-the-minute type, all of which leads one to believe this Arbuckle comedy will show some new departures from the heretofore popular form of moonshine thrillers.

Two comedy companies are at work at the Sunshine Comedy studios under the supervision of Henry Lehrman, turning out laugh provokers for the William Fox program.

Theda Bara was given a decided ovation when she appeared on the stage at Clune's auditorium, Wednesday evening, February 20, following the showing of "Cleopatra," her most recently released subject. The actress was showered with flowers, and after the applouse died out and the audience became quiet, Miss Bara told of her work before the screen in a manner that greatly pleased her large audience.

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 16, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

Three days of rain.

Reg. Barker is now producing "One Woman."

Double W. Hodkinson was on our streets this week.

Margery Wilson has become known as the titian beauty of Triangle lot.

We hear Hob Bosworth is doing right smart with his new vaudeville act.

Tex. Guinan has enlarged the map of the lone star state, which designates the door to our dressing room.

Jesse Lasky is still with us, having come to really appreciate the wonderful California climate. Cham. of Com. please note.

Haworth is the name of an infant film company. Ha refers to Sussue Hayakawa. The Worth, we take it, refers to quality, to be.

Al Cristie is reported to have made a comedy this week that he laughed at. Al is a very sober man and so a world beater may be expected.

Al Selig reports several new discoveries concerning the ability of a certain Fox actress. Yes Al still writes publicity concerning Theda.

Monty Katterjohn has not reported an automobile accident for ten days. His cars (meaning two or ten) have all been in the garage for that period.

Bill Parsons continues to receive very gratifying reports from his monkey picture, Tarzan, and Bill is therefore wreathed in smiles continuously.

Bill Desmond has discovered he has a new smile and promises to use it in the next release. It's not necessary to tell who tipped this off to Bill.

Colin Campbell "stole the sheet" in Chicago last week and Mae Tinee gave him two columns in the Examiner. For a quite unassuming man this was going some.

Universal City was a lonely place on a Sunny day this week. The players still on the pay roll took advantage of the sunshine for an outing on Exterior locations.

Roy Stewart is, for the sake of variety, playing in a western picture. This is the steenth wild and wooly one Roy has smiled through in as many months for Triangle.

Charlie Chaplin will have his first FNEC comedy finished in a week or two, if this week's report is correct. Carl Robinson is responsible for the above.

Lynn Reynolds has become acclimated and so is making great headway with the Mix Western. Lynn is now so proficient with the Western horse that he can guide it by the reins.

H. O. Davis is more than anxious to buy two reel comedies and so has offered $500 per accepted story. A number of our well known clerks have taken to scenario writing.

J. Stuart Blackton has discovered that California has a golf course in every direction, but vacation days are almost over for the Comador, as he is to film another Gilbert Parker story.

Tom Ince complains that he has not been successful in finding enough cold weather to warrant wearing the fur-lined overcoat the several troupes at the studio gave him for Christmas.

D. W. is still working on the elimination feature of completing his western front picture. This is to be reduced from 180,000 feet to production size, but all say D. W. is some eliminator.

Now that our Wonderful South land has been favored with a copious rain fall the Lasky Yachting and Bathing Club will hold daily tournaments in the young lake now a part of the Lasky lot. No deaths are reported as the result of the flood.

Several of hookum staff believe there is lots of news at the Fox Studio these days. They think the collection of this news requires personal visits to the plant, but the office devil tips off that Theda is now doing Sapho.

George Hernandez was one of the first boys to jump from the speaking stage into the movies. The move was made years ago when Selig first made fillums. George has lived it down. Hookum got the dope on Hernandez from Charlie Thall, who manages Liberty theatre at Camp Lewis.

Gene Allen has been practising a new Wagner selection on the piano at the Hart Studio this week and so Bill and his horse Opra troupe took to the woods. Bill came in for a smoke Wednesday because of the rain making it impossible to make pictures and that evening he entertained a host of friends with his famous glass balancing act on the edge of the round table at Hoffman Cafe. As a Western actor Bill is some juggler.

Screen Examinations

"Ruggles of Red Gap"
(Essanay-Perfection—Seven Reels)
Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

IN this adaptation from the story of Harry Leon Wilson which ran serially in the Saturday Evening Post, and which was later dramatized, proving one of the most successful stage productions of its time, Taylor Holmes again has a vehicle which affords a delightful opportunity for his rare humor and clever delineation of English character. As the valet of an English nobleman who loses his servant to an American in a card game, Ruggles leaves aristocratic England for democratic America, and finds in the equal opportunity and freedom of the United States a chance to change his job as man servant for one as proprietor of a flourishing restaurant. He finds that he is no longer subject to the caste law, but is free to mingle with the best of the men. And Mr. Holmes plays the role for all there is in it.

There is, however, in this film a close second for the first comedy honors in the person of Frederick Burton, who played the part of the moth-eaten "Cousin Egbert" in the original stage presentation and who enacts the same part on the screen. And "Cousin Egbert" is certainly a card.

Lawrence Windom, who has directed all the Taylor Holmes' productions, and who is responsible for this one also, was very fortunate in having two such capable actors as Mr. Burton and Lawrence D'Orsay to support Mr. Holmes and offer suggestions based upon the legitimate stage twists of the play. Edna Phillips Holmes, wife of the star, gives a splendid characterization of "Klondike Kate," and Virginia Valli makes a charming widow.

The first two or three reels of the story do not move as rapidly might be hoped for, but this dragginess is counterbalanced by the latter half of the picture which, besides having more action, has some beautiful Grand Canyon scenes. The popularity of the story with the American public coupled with Taylor Holmes' drawing ability as a star guarantees the exhibitor a good box-office attraction.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The Hon. George (Lawrence D'Orsay), an English aristocrat, meets with some Americans and is initiated into draw poker, as a result of which he loses his valet, Marmaduke Ruggles (Taylor Holmes. Mrs. Effie (Lillian Drew), wife of Senator Floud, is delighted when Ruggles is "collected" and turns him over to her husband's cousin, "Cousin Egbert" (Frederick Burton), a big hearted westerner with no regard for clothes. The party returns to Red Gap, Arizona, where the Flouds head the elite of the western town, and bring Ruggles with them. Cousin Egbert, in introducing Ruggles to his friends, dubs him "Colonel Marmaduke Ruggles from England" and the local newspapers come out with front page stories about the distinguished visitor. Ruggles' perspective of life is changed. He gets the American idea, finds himself popular, and decides to go into business for himself. In the meantime, he falls in love with the charming widow Judson (Virginia Valli) and when he opens up his restaurant, he engages her to help him run it. He soon finds, however, that he would like to have her near him always to assist him, and the picture ends with Ruggles memorizing the Declaration of Independence, aided by his wife.

"Sheriff Nell's Tussle"
(Paramount-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

POLLY MORAN continues in her role of Sheriff Nell in this picture, a laughable burlesque with any number of original comedy touches. A slick city crook arrives in the town and succeeds in making honest Nell fall in love with him. He then suggests an entertainment with local talent, the while his confederates crack the safe and make off with the town's wealth. Nell, with her faithful but brainless lover, journeys to the city in pursuit of the loot and the looter and eventually they return victorious.

All the episodes are handled with a fine sense of burlesque. The entertainment offers excellent possibilities for comedy and all are well taken. The city episode offers some fine thrills with plenty of comedy as setting. Polly Moran's performance is a continuous laugh in itself and Ben Turpin and Billy Armstrong contribute much to the picture's success.

"The Beggar Woman"
(Russian Art-Pathe—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"THE BEGGAR WOMAN" is the latest Russian Arm Film product released by Pathe. I. I. Mozukin and Mme. N. A. Lesienko are featured. It was produced under the direction of Cheslar Sabinsky in Russia. The print shown for review was not in the best of condition, revealing a scratched surface. As a drama, this Russian product is an average example. The author has been greatly assisted by convenient coincidents in unfolding his plot. There is no extra quality exposed, unless it be the excellent work of the two principal players, which raises this offering above the average program feature. It falls far below the average in condition of print and photography. The director has given the picture a good production.

The author has aroused a certain sympathy in his creation, and Mme. N. A. Lesienko upon whom the burden is placed to arouse sympathy through dramatic interpretation, meets every desire of the author and her audiences. She expresses emotion with ability. American audiences will be disappointed in her age. I. I. Mozukin, who has been seen in the past in Pathe releases of the Russian Art Film product, always to advantage, executes his part with the grace and the assurance of an artist.

"The Beggar Woman" will not create a sensation with any audience but it will be accepted as mildly entertaining and an exposition of screen work that is worth while but not an extra effort.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Mary Mar (Mme. N. A. Lesienko), a beautiful prima donna, is the rage of Petrograd, Russia. Sergius (I. I. Mozukin), a poet, worships her. He requests an introduction from his friend. He is invited to attend a social given by the prima donna. He tells her of his love, but insists that he cannot be a mere admirer. They are married. She leaves the social whirl, and Sergius and she are content with each other's company. Mary takes an interests in the poor class, and while attending to their wants, contracts smallpox. She is quarantined, and Sergius is refused admittance to her home.

Weeks later she recovers sufficiently to be around. The doctor has removed all mirrors in the house, fearing that she shall see her disfigured face. Her household goods and her jewels are auctioned to meet her creditors demands. Sergius knows nothing of this until he visits her later. She meets him with a veil over her face. He draws her to him, lifts the veil, and draws away in disgust. She leaves him, knowing that his love for her has been killed forever.

"The House of Glass"
(Select—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE HOUSE OF GLASS" is one of the best built and strongest pictures dealing with that appealing character, the woman with the past, that has been made. It is Clara Kimball Young's triumph, if memory serves aright. In it she plays with a fine show of emotion and a rare discernment of the values comprising her character. She derives every atom of appeal from it, and as a consequence creates her Margaret Case as a realistic and sympathetic figure, one to be remembered. In this, her latest work, she had the advantage of moving in a story which was first and last capably builded. First as a play, Max Marcin was its author. He of all playwrights is known for his almost uncanny ability at putting a drama together. Whatever that drama may be, as in the case of the rather worn material of "The House of Glass," the product when completed by Marcin seems to possess the technique, the polish, necessary to send it well on its way to success. Certainly this was the case with the play and certainly his work shows in the picture, though the adapter, Charles E. Whittaker, must also receive due credit.

The picture gets away to an interesting start in the first reel, where the unfortunate circumstances that lead to the wrongful deprecation of Margaret's character are introduced. From the moment of her release from prison—on parole—until the detective succeeds in locating her, the suspense reaches heights seldom touched by the ordinary picture. Margaret, though sharing the many successes and happinesses of the man she has married, lives in the dread of the day she knows will eventually come when she will be forced to tell her husband of the miserable episode of her former life. This constant fear in which the woman lives is remarkably well brought out by Miss Young. And the suggestion of the impending tragedy steadily piles up the interest.

Subsequent to the crux of this action, the story progresses logically to a happy ending and in this comparatively small arm of the picture the suspense is also prominently maintained. In fact, from beginning to end "The House of Glass" keeps the eyes ever riveted upon the screen. It is a rare picture in every respect.

The supporting cast is of even merit. Corliss Giles as Lake, the man of business, plays with great conviction. Pell Trenton, the crook and cause of all the trouble, and Norman Selby, better known as Kid McCoy, as the detective, handle prominent roles with ability. Edward M. Kimball and James T. Laffey are seen to advantage in character parts. Emile Chautard staged the picture tastefully and Jacques Bizuel photographed it.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Margaret Case (Clara Kimball Young) accepts the proposal of marriage of James Burke (Pell Trenton) unaware of the fact that he is a crook. They are about to depart to Chicago to be married when detectives intervene. Margaret is arrested and sentenced too because stolen goods are found in her trunk. After serving half her term she is released on parole and ordered to report at headquarters every week. Finally, inflamed at the injustice of the order as applied to her case, she leaves the city. Later she is found working in the office of Harvey Lake (Corliss Giles), a railroad man in Kansas City. She becomes his private secretary and rises with him in the business world and in time he marries her. Burke, released, meets her and tells her that Detective Carroll (Norman Selby) has sworn to get her for breaking parole. So when Lake gets the general managership of the railroad and moves to New York, it is with a heavy heart that Margaret accompanies him. Eventually the inevitable happens and Carroll sees her. She throws herself on the mercy of her husband, whose contempt of law-breakers is centering on the prosecution to the full limit of a clerk in his office who altered figures. The governor intercedes in the clerk's behalf and Lake, influenced by his attorney (Edward Kimball), grants leniency in return for which favor the governor's influence is brought to bear on the pardon of Margaret "Case." And so Mrs. Lake goes free.

Josie Sadler, William Waltman, Peggy Burke and Doris Field complete the cast.

"Nobody's Wife"
(Universal—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS is an unusual Western number, though the hero be a member of the Northwest Mounted Police. He is commissioned to find a certain criminal, and it is through a woman that he seeks his information. Success is his only after considerable thrilling, melodramatic action tempered by enjoyable touches of romance and comedy. This is supplied by the girl who believes the hero a wicked marauder and by the hero himself, who believes the heroine married and possessed of a family of one. Hart Hoxie and Louise Lovely carry these two roles, the former's pleasing personality and the latter's prettiness making the many scenes in which they appear decidedly entertaining.

The five reels contain a number of forest scenes that offer an admirable setting. The usual Western touches in the way of saloon and dance hall and attendant action provide the proper atmosphere. There is a good thrill registered when the hero rides his horse into the barroom, holds up the crowd, loots the safe and then spurs the animal to a jump through the back window. Much, in fact, has been made of Hoxie's horsemanship throughout the picture. At least four times does his steed leap the same fence. But such minor padding is not for important notice in a picture of the pleasing quality of "Nobody's Wife." And pleasing it is, though no one can accuse it of being in any way highly dramatic. In essentials it is an average Western, but lifted above this class by nice presentation, comedy relief and performances that always attest sincerity.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jack Darling (Hart Hoxie), of the Northwest Mounted Police, is commissioned to arrest Alec Young, wanted for murder. He is possessed of the knowledge that Alec's girl, Dancing Pete (Betty Schade) performs in the Nugget dance hall, and proceeds to pay her various attentions with the hope of forcing Alec to betray himself through jealousy. Sheriff Carew (Alfred Allen), of Nugget, professes a strong dislike for Jack, but the policeman is unable to get sufficient evidence to prove that he is the man he seeks. In the meantime Jack has met Hope Ross (Louise Lovely), a young lady who is caring for her sister's baby until she may arrive with her husband. Jack believes the baby hers—Hope believes Jack a bandit. Her suspicions are confirmed when he arrives at her cabin begging her to hide him and to turn various money bags over to the sheriff on his arrival. Jack has looted the Nugget safe, and a posse is out for him. But Hope hides him, and gives the gold to Carew. He, however, keeps it himself. This is the opportunity that Jack has awaited, and he confronts the sheriff with an accusation. He attempts escape, but Jack overtakes him, and not until afterward do Jack and Hope learn the truth about each other.

"Headin' South"
(Artcraft—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"HEADIN' SOUTH," while it never approaches in either comedy value or melodramatic intensity "A Modern Musketeer" makes a pleasing vehicle for Douglas Fairbanks. Allan Dwan, director-in-chief of the Fairbanks forces wrote it for him and supervised its production while Arthur Rosson was director. Melodramatic in essentials as was his immediately previous release, "Headin' South" is never as gripping as the other, probably because Fairbanks has played his role altogether in light vein, never for the slightest length of time deigning to recognize the dangers with which the author has chosen to surround him. Hart in the same role would have turned out a bang-up western of the old style. Lacking to a certain extent in suspense, it can not be said that "Headin' South" contains as much comedy as one expects to see in a Fairbanks subject either. The serious nature of the plot precludes the entrance of comedy save for what Fairbanks chooses to introduce with business of his own. This indeed is funny and herein the strength of the picture lies. But whereas "A Modern Musketeer" was the perfectly balanced combination of comedy and melodrama, "Headin' South" has too much of one and too little of the other, regrettably to the detriment of each element.

Of course "Headin' South" is not to be dismissed so briefly. As pictures go it is more than good. Its action is fast and stimulating and the by-play between "Headin' South" himself and the villainous Spanish Joe, murderer and bandit, is as snappy and humorous as any witty piece of stage dialogue. The utter disregard of "Headin' South" of Joe's long record of crime which the latter confidently expects his adversary to recognize and tremble at reacts on the spectator in all its humorous contrast. There are a number of times, too, when he reveals his athletic ability and to true comical effect. He vaults to the saddle of his horse with graceful ease, scampers up the roof of a barn and scales a building with wonderful agility.

The locations of "Headin' South" are superb. The southern deserts of Arizona, with their giant cacti and deep views where land and sky become indistinguishable in the distance are a delight to the eye. The photography by Hugh McClung and Harry Thorp offsets them wonderfully well. Frank Campeau as "Spanish" Joe is a great villain, and Catherine MacDonald, making a ravishly pretty heroine, is on the opposite end of the slight love interest possessed by the picture.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

"Spanish" Joe (Frank Campeau), leader of a band of Mexican marauders is wanted for murder in Canada. Along comes Headin' South (Douglas Fairbanks), well-known horse thief, who joins Joe's band, not because of any invitation tendered him but just because he wants to. Straightway there arises animosity between the two men. Joe sees his leadership dwindling fast but Headin' South gets the better of him at every turn large or small. Joe's activities are concentrated on a rich hacienda he has just captured. He eyes the fair daughter (Catherine MacDonald) of its owner with covetous eyes. On a certain night Joe's band gets wild and insists on the women of the hacienda joining them. Headin' South suggests a horse race to determine who shall get first pick and while the marauders are dashing over the desert he gets all the women started well on the way to town. Later to carry out his scheme he leads the man in an attack on the town. Joe he manages to throw into prison and then he allies himself with the townsfolk and defends the women until promised help arrives. Just as the sheriff is about to string him up along with Joe, an agent from the next town steps forth and identifies him as Smith of the Northwest Mounted, commissioned to capture Joe. So of course he goes free—and the girl he takes back to Canada.

"The Midnight Trail"
(Mutual-American—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

THIS feature about to be released by Mutual and starring William Russell is a long way from being his best production. In fact, it falls down rather sharply from the standard he set in his recent productions, "In Bad" and "New York Luck." In "The Midnight Trail," Bill plays the part of a New York clubman, who gets a job as a detective, to be near a girl with whom he has fallen in love. There is a stolen necklace mystery in the story and many humorous touches, but the play is rather hard to follow through the first couple of reels.

After it gets started, however, it moves along first rate, and the sleep walking scenes, in which the heroine unconsciously opens the safe and hides her jewels, causing everybody, including herself, to think they are stolen, are unusual and interesting. The part where Bill's detective assistant crawls into the knight's armor, in order the better to watch the goings and comings of members of the household from his place of vantage in the hall, is especially funny. This part is played by Harvey Clark, and it is to be hoped that he has larger and more important roles in the future. He certainly shows much ability as a comedian, his facial expressions being a study in themselves.

Edward Sloman directed "The Midnight Trail," and, as usual, Francelia Billington plays opposite Mr. Russell. Others in the cast are: Sydney Deane, Jerome Sheler, Carl Stockdale, Edward Jobson, Harvey Clark, Clarence Burton, Helen Howard and Alfred Ferguson.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jack Woodford (William Russell), young millionaire clubman and auto racer, believes himself a Sherlock Holmes in embryo. When he catches a glimpse of Alice (Francelia Billington), the daughter of Rev. Moreland (Sydney Deane), at his lawyer's office and learns that the Rev. Moreland has been robbed of valuable jewels, he decides to get a job as detective. Jack secures a card of the detective, W. H. Irons, and posing as a sleuth, contrives to introduce himself and his faithful valet, Stride (Harvey Clark), into the rector's home, assuming the disguise of theological students.

After suspicions have been wrongly placed a dozen times, Jack one night sees Alice open the safe and take out her jewels, hide them in a vase on the mantel piece and then go back to bed. As he pulls them out, Faxon (Carl Stockdale), a suitor for the rector's daughter, comes upon the scene and catches him with the goods. Faxon has him arrested and after more confusing circumstances come to light, the mystery is cleared, Jack tells of the sleep walking incidents, divulges his real name, and the story ends with Alice in his arms.

"The Woman Eternal"

(Shubert-Hammerstein—Eight Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

THERE are pictures and pictures, but this is one of the few that rightly and without any equivocation is entitled to the rank of super-picture. It would be hard to improve on direction, photography, settings, story, or acting. "The Woman Eternal" is a masterpiece—a production that is a credit to the industry.

Featuring Elaine Hammerstein in a gripping story of the feudal days in old Kentucky, this picture, said to have been produced at a cost of $25,000 by the Shubert-Hammerstein-Ince Company for release on the new "producer to exhibitor direct" plan, makes one wonder at the ridiculous and exorbitant cost prices producers have attached to mere clap-trap stuff of the past. As compared with the present story they must either have greatly exaggerated their figures or else have spent money with the deliberate intention of seeing how little they could get for it.

It is difficult to speak of this feature without running into superlatives. Although the print that was shown was eight reels, and the intention before releasing it is to cut it down to six, it is one of those rare cases where the more reels the better. The action is fast and thrilling, and the climax is one of the most wonderful scenes ever brought to the screen. It shows a rich and beautiful girl from New York throwing her respect for the law to the winds, and reverting to the primitive on the instant as the only way to save her lover from the snarling guns of the McBriars.

Love makes this little believer in the courts as the avenue of justice, grab a gun, take the law into her own hands, and shoot to kill. Elaine Hammerstein, who plays this role, does some splendid acting, and so does "Bad Anse," whose real name is W. Lawton Butt. He is the William S. Hart type of bad man, and in this production certainly makes the noted star look to his laurels. The character types in the picture could scarcely have been chosen with more skill and discretion. Violet Palmer, Cecil Chesterton, Irville Alderson, Carleton Macy, George Cooper and Josephine Morse all distinguish themselves by their clever work.

No small credit for the success of "The Woman Eternal" goes to Ralph Ince, the director, and the man who played Lincoln in the picture. The settings, for the most part, are beautiful exteriors taken in the Cumberland Mountains, and the photography is a revelation of what a camera can do.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Juanita Holland (Elaine Hammerstein), cultured and wealthy New York beauty, breaks her engagement with her clubman fiance because she feels she has a mission in life. She goes into the Cumberland mountains to teach the illiterates who have lived there for centuries untouched by the rays of civilization, and still carrying on the feuds of their forefathers. The McBriar and Havey families have been bitter enemies for generations. Juanita tries to bring peace between the warring factions, but they continue their secret slayings and midnight raids.

Finally, after the killing of one of his clan, "Bad Anse" (W. Lawton Butt), head of the Haveys, gives Juanita her wish and decides to let the law take its course in this case and see if justice can be obtained through the courts. "Bad Anse" prevails upon Jeb Havey (George Cooper), son of the victim, to refrain from killing one of the McBriars in retaliation. When the case comes up for trial the murderer is convicted and sentenced to be hanged. In the meantime Juanita and "Bad Anse" have found a good deal in common and mutual admiration has developed into love. He is positive that court justice will not work in his country and, following the sentence, a premonition tells him that the McBriars will get him the following night. He goes to see Juanita and while there the house is surrounded by his enemies. He slips out the back way and in the gun fight which ensues is severely wounded, and staggers back to the cottage. Juanita is horrified to find him covered with blood, and seizing a gun she makes a number of the McBriars bite the dust. "Bad Anse" recovers and the ending is happy.

"The Wasp"

(World Films—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

WILLARD MACK prepared a peculiar combination of melodrama and comedy in "The Wasp," which is Kitty Gordon's latest starring vehicle. Her role is that of Grace Culver, a young lady who scatters remarks regarding the slavery of marriage about the lawns of the club and who is so sarcastic when conversing with the genus homo that all of them shun her as the desired but unattainable one. But along comes a rich young fellow, who masquerades as Grace's chauffeur. And so the love interest enters. From this point on the film is altogether melodramatic, Grace and the rich young fellow foiling a plot of a German spy who seeks to destroy her father's factory. All Grace's ideas on marriage and her distrust of men are lost in the melodramatic shuffle.

This is about all that can be said regarding "The Wasp," save for the fact that it is unsuccessful in combining an "ism" theme with patriotic melodrama. The first is neglected for the second and the second is not reached in good form, nor does it perform the desired function of awakening anything like an enthusiastic response from the spectator. Probably this is because the melodrama is not handled with anything like skilled carpentry. The escape of Grace and her maid from the spies and in turn their counter-spying is palpably artificial and creates no successful illusion.

Miss Gordon is her usual self in the title role. Rockliffe Fellowes, an actor of ability and note, carries the comedy role of the chauffeur, but has few opportunities to show his real talent. The support is adequate. Lionel Belmore directed and Lewis Ostland photographed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Grace Culver (Kitty Gordon) dislikes her father's choice of a husband (Victor Kennard) and tells him so. Angered at his anger, she departs on an automobile trip, taking with her only her maid (Hazel Washburn) and the new chauffeur (Rockliffe Fellowes). The chauffeur proves rather familiar on the trip, but Grace doesn't know whether to be displeased or pleased at his attitude. On the way the car is attacked by strikers, incited by Brazos (Lionel Belmore), a German agent. They take Grace and her servants captive. Grace escapes and manages to hear that Brazo plans to blow up her father's factory. She is able to release the chauffeur and they attempt to prevent the plot while the maid goes for the militia. Instead, however, they are entrapped in an underground passage by a premature explosion of the bomb. Here in the earthen tomb the chauffeur professes his love for Grace. They are rescued by the militia. Grace learns that the chauffeur is in reality Harry Courtland, a rich young man, who was smitten with her at first sight. They are married and Grace introduces him to her father, who is quite satisfied at his daughter's choice.

Charles Gerry, Sadee Burbank, William Calhoun, Edward Roseman and Edward Burns complete the cast.

"The Triumph of Venus"

(Victory Film—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

GREEK mythology was drawn upon to furnish the substance of "The Triumph of Venus," an extra length feature offered by the Victory Film Manufacturing company. The story first tells of the love of Mars and Vulcan, two of the Gods, for Venus the Goddess of Love. Subsequently are traced the stories of Venus' love for a mortal and the romance of their offspring, Nea with Pannas, a fisher youth, which Diana, the Goddess of the Chase, does her best to blast.

With three separate and distinct episodes it may be realized that "The Triumph of Venus" contains no one thread of interest. It would benefit if the first one, the story of Venus, Vulcan and Mars, were eliminated altogether, as this is poorly staged and has no direct bearing on the other two. These others could be shortened, particularly the latter, as along about the fifth reel one begins to wonder what has happened to the ending.

The main point of interest in "The Triumph of Venus" is the bevy of girls who appear as the hand maidens of Venus and the huntresses of Diana. These young ladies clad in light draperies while on land and less while in the water are expert swimmers and divers. They do all sorts of stunts in the water and truly hold the attention while so occupied. The water-stuff is, by the way, remarkably beautiful aside from the nymphs. The backgrounds displaying sylvan settings are excellent and serve better than anything else to create the proper atmosphere for the picture.

With eliminations, these pretty scenes and the entertainment in the action will be shown to their full value. There is little plot interest in any part of the picture and that which is present is obscured by superfluous footage. This disposed of, the picture will stand a much better chance of providing staple entertainment than it does now. Just what elements of popular taste are contained in a picture of this sort it is rather difficult to judge. On the stage, even in the outdoor Greek theatre, they have proven rather ticklish and uncertain propositions to tackle.

Edwin Bower Hesser is author and producer. Too much stress cannot be laid on the beauty of the water scenes and the fearless manner in which all the principals go over falls and allow themselves to be carried along between and over sharp rocks. Mount Olympus, as represented by Mr. Hesser, looks like the corner of a quarry after the blasting has been done, which is something of a pity. Nor are the Gods very well played with the exception of Vulcan (Percy Standing). But most of the action relative to the mount and the Gods comes at first and this is a part that we would suggest be forgotten about.

Venus as played by Betty Lee is at least an impressive figure. Her mortal lover, the sculptor, is well taken by William Sherwood. Diana, in modern parlance, heavy of the story, is Phyliss Beveridge, a pretty actress who played sincerely. Nea and Pannas are respectively played by Grace Hamel and Hassan Mussalli, who do very good work.

The story traces the manner in which Venus wounded by Cupid's dart is doomed to fall in love with the first mortal she meets. This is a sculptor. Their romance terminated by Diana follows, and then the story of their offspring, Nea and Pannas, is taken up. Their love is severely menaced by Diana and material forces, but at length love triumphs over all obstacles.

"The Hard Rock Breed"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS picture, made from a story by Frederic Bechdolt, runs over pretty familiar ground, dealing as it does with the lazy son of a big business man who is placed in charge over a group of quarry-workers to find his lot far from the easy one he conceived it to be. He learns that the men of the "hard rock breed" are not to be snubbed, and he is obliged to engage in combat, largely physical, with a disgruntled and villainous saloon-keeper who once was in his father's employ. While Mr. Bechdolt's story is quite obvious at the very start, it is not without entertainment value altogether. The basic element of struggle, the single man contending against superior odds, which suggests possibilities in the mere mention of it, is always a worthy foundation for a picture. And "The Hard Rock Breed," with this at the bottom of it, develops into a picture which at least has sustaining interest sufficient to carry it through to its finish without a disturbing number of dull moments.

Director Raymond Wells, always one to procure the proper atmosphere for his productions, sought a real quarry in which to lay the exteriors, the majority of the scenes in the picture. As a consequence, its realism is a strong point. Nor should the fine array of types introduced as quarry hands and bosses be forgotten. Jack Curtis, one of the most dependable character men in the business, does superlative work as Dolan, and Aaron Edwards, Lee Phelps and Thornton Edwards are all well cast. Margery Wilson as heroine and Jack Livingston as hero are mentioned first in the cast. Miss Wilson, however, has a very small part, while Mr. Livingston is quite obviously acting in his every scene.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Don Naughton (Jack Livingston), idling son of old Bill Naughton (J. Barney Sherry), a man who has fought his way up in the world by sheer push, is sent to take charge of quarry work at McCarthyville, where the men have grown restless. This is because Mike Carney (Louis Durham), the boss, has a half-interest in the Gem saloon, where he forces all his men to cash their pay checks. Carney is discharged, and Dolan (Jack Curtis) an old friend of Naughton's, whose advancement has only been retarded because of his love of drink, placed in charge until Don arrives. Dolan's daughter, Shiela (Margery Wilson) does her best to keep her father on the right path. The new hands which Don brings with him are soon scared out of town by Carney's roughnecks. A new lot is sent for, and these prove to be agitators in the power of Carney. He urges a strike. Don finds his way difficult, indeed, but soon learns how to treat the men and incidentally finds some time to give to Shiela. But the strike breaks. Don and his loyal followers present themselves at Carney's quarters, and command the men to return. They refuse. Then follows a fight in which Don triumphs. The men return to work, Don has made good as of the "hard rock breed," and has won for himself a wife.

"Eve's Daughter"

(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"EVE'S DAUGHTER," having been reared by a narrow-minded father who held that one couldn't speak above a whisper on Sundays, wanted a fling at New York life. So she took her small inheritance and took her fling, got all tangled up with a male vampire and only then permitted her persevering old sweetheart from the country to come to her assistance. So travels Billie Burke in her latest Famous Players picture. It is probably the best thing she has done, for her poses are not so obvious and the action is progressive at all times, not stopping aggravatingly to allow her to display her mannerisms. And as a consequence Miss Burke is very much more pleasing.

"Eve's Daughter," by Alicia Ramsey, wasn't a very successful play, but this has no bearing on the picture.

Margaret Turnbull, who made the adaptation, eliminated certain comedy relief that was present in the play, centering the entire action on Irene Simpson-Bates, the daughter of Eve. This action is never less than interesting and Miss Burke's personality makes much of it that would otherwise be dull a true delight. She succeeds in bringing out the plight of the aggressive girl from the country who found the ways of the city and its folk just a little beyond her understanding with both charm and appeal.

Lionel Atwill has the big male part as Courtenay Urquhart, the heavy. He gives a polished and adequate performance. Thomas Meighan as the hero is of pleasant appearance and the support renders what little it is called upon to do effectively. James Kirkwood directed and Lawrence Williams photographed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Irene Simpson-Bates (Billie Burke), youngest daughter of Martin (William Riley Hatch), a harsh and conservative New Englander, rebels at her father's cruelty and narrowness. When he dies she takes the small sum of money left her and goes to New York, bent on seeing some of city life. Her admirer, Norton (Thomas Meighan), a lawyer, also goes to the city and sets up a practice, the while keeping a watchful eye on Irene. Irene proves rebellious at his almost fatherly attentions and so welcomes Courtenay Urquhart (Lionel Atwill). He professes his love for Irene and urges her to elope with him to Boston. Norton gets wind of this and follows. He happens to know that Courtenay is unable to marry until his brother's death. At the hotel Courtenay presses his attentions on Irene but, in meeting an acquaintance, she learns of his past and when Norton arrives is more than eager to return home with him.

Florence Flynn, Harriet Ross, Lucile Carney, Mary Nevaro and Henry Lee complete the cast.

"The Hidden Hand"

(Pathe—Fourteenth and Fifteenth Episodes)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THERE is an amazing surprise in store for those who have believed (not without good reason) that the Hidden Hand was none other than Dr. Scarley in this episode of the serial entitled "The Unmasking." For the two villains appear on the scene together. The Hidden Hand even goes so far as to hold up Scarley and take a precious document bearing on the identity of Doris Whitney away from him. At this point the episode ends leaving it for the fifteenth and final instalment to unravel the mystery.

The opening of the two reels discloses Doris about to drop into the lion's den. She is rescued by Ramsey. Subsequently the Hidden Hand attempts to trap Doris and Ramsey but by superior cunning they succeed in getting away from him.

"THE GIRL OF THE PROPHECY," the fifteenth and final episode of Pathe's serial, "The Hidden Hand," reveals the identity of the title role, the girl of the prophecy and shows the master villain hurled to the death he had prepared for Doris. The action throughout the run of the final chapter is snappy and carried along with interest heightening with every revelation. Dr. Scarley gets possession of the will which has been discovered in the cellar of the Whitney home and escapes with it. The Hidden Hand follows the physician. Countess Sonia reveals to Doris the prophecy made by the Mad Monk of Russia. The prophecy was that a girl born in the Imperial Court on a designated day, if she live to be eighteen years of age, would be the most beautiful girl in the world. It develops that Verda Crane is the girl. "The Hidden Hand" meets death through his own plot to kill Doris.

The final episode is a fitting climax to Pathe's serial, "The Hidden Hand."

"The Girl in the Dark"
(Bluebird—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE GIRL IN THE DARK" is a mystery-melodrama by Charles Edmund Walk. Because a young lady is tattooed with peculiar Chinese characters and because she wears a ring engraved with the same letters she is constantly hounded by a secret order of the yellow race. The five reels contain more action than plot, and in this respect resemble the average serial in construction. The mystery element is introduced right at the start and considerable interest is worked up over the identity of the girl and the causes which lead the Celestials in pursuit of her. It is not until the last reel that the whole thing is cleared up. The girl's father had stolen the ring—hence the efforts of the Chinamen to regain it.

With its swift action "The Girl in the Dark" offers engaging entertainment for the greater part of its length, although there are times when one wishes for more definite developments in the story to supplant the ceaseless mystery. In its essentials the picture is rather elementary. It appears as if the author had sat down to write a mystery story and had thereupon written one, with little or no substance to build upon. The stolen ring idea hardly suffices in itself for a five-reel story, and as a result the better part of the space is filled with the mysterious action referred to, which, however, is born from no basically sound situations. It is, in fact, a trite story, its appeal directed solely to those who like the baldly sensational as offered in the serial.

Carmel Myers as the girl, Ashton Dearholt as hero, Harry Carter, Alfred Allen and an assortment of Chinamen, who act better than do the usual slant-eyed fellows of the studio, carry the principal roles. Stuart Paton directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

As Ferris (Ashton Dearholt) sits in his study on a stormy evening he hears cries without. A girl, Lois (Carmel Myers), is being pursued by Chinamen and assisting gangsters. He rescues her and discovers her to be marked with a peculiar Chinese sign, which also decorates the ring she wears. His valet, Ming (Frank Tokanaga), attempts to steal it, but is caught by Ferris and thrown from the house. A stranger (Harry Carter) presents himself at the door and asks to speak to the girl. The Chinese band again attacks the house and carries him away. The next day Lois is lured to their headquarters by a ruse. Ferris and the police captain (Alfred Allen) follow and demand the girl's release. The Chinese demand the ring. The patrol forces come to the rescue and take the band into custody. The stranger then explains that the ring belonged to an old Chinese order and that this was their reason for attempting to get possession of it.

"The Trimmed Lamp"
(General Film—Two Reels)
Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES have successfully screened another O. Henry story—this, by the way, being no mean achievement—for release through General Film. This time it is "The Trimmed Lamp," considered by many to be one of the author's masterpieces. Two girls, Nancy and Lou, chums since the day when, leaving the country town of their birth, they came to New York to earn their living, have found employment at widely different occupations. Nancy, waiting on customers in a Fifth Avenue millinery shop, dreams of marrying a millionaire. Lou, toiling long hours in a laundry, has found an ardent suitor in honest and genuine Dan Owens, an electrician. In his love she is happy until the evening when rich Reggie Van Skittles comes to the house to take Nancy to dine at the Cafe Vendome. Through the advances of Reggie, Nancy learns a valuable lesson—that personal honor is not necessarily one of the attributes of a millionaire. But Lou is envious, and when Reggie meets her on the street one day she capitulates and becomes his mistress, unbeknown to Nancy or Dan. After months of vain searching, Nancy finally meets her, arrayed in the full regalia of the type of woman she had come to be. She has chosen her way and Nancy, who once dreamed of millionaires, is the one who marries Dan.

O. Henry, in this particular tale, as in all his stories, leaves much to the reader's imagination, especially as to the events leading up to the final climax. In this instance the task of filling in the essentials has been well done. The direction is good, the photography is excellent and the work of the cast, which includes such artists of proved ability as Mildred Manning, Alice Terry and Elmer Peterson, leaves nothing to be desired. The titles, most of which are taken directly from the original story, contribute in no small measure to the spectator's enjoyment.

"The Family Skeleton"
(Paramount-Ince—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

INSTEAD of the familiar boob of Charles Ray's characterization, he is seen as a youth of great wealth in "The Family Skeleton," fighting against an imaginary craving for drink—so vivid in fact that he speedily becomes a drunkard, to be brought into the right perspective again by a trick evolved by the girl he loves. This is a new field for Mr. Ray, but all fields look alike to him. He is as realistic and as human as the foolish drunkard as he is as the gawky farmhand. His is a characterization that never fails to convince—his is a piece of interpretive acting that brings out the force of the author's argument better than mere words can tell.

But while "The Family Skeleton" is an individual triumph for its star, it is not the same triumph as pictorial entertainment. Mainly because it is largely a preachment and the author has spent considerable time planting his propaganda before he touches upon plot. If propaganda we must have let us stow it away with some subtlety in a nook of our dramatic entertainment and not flaunt it about above it until it becomes tiresome. If heredity is a fact, opines the author, the young man might just as well inherit his mother's passion for crocheting as his father's craving for drink, which would be plausible if knitting were taken internally. However, the fact that the author's central figure goes to the dogs for a while because he believes, by constant suggestion from his friends, that he will end up in the gutter or the violent ward as did his father, is well taken and brought out with some force. But the author's idea seems to have superseded his dramatic trend of thought. It is not until reel three that the plot comes out from hiding, and then it develops into rather extravagant melodrama, out of spirit with the deeper theme.

The spectator is treated to one of those surprise endings that brings to light the fact that the melodrama was no more or less than the heroine's trick to work the young man's reformation. The heroine should really have been a playwright instead of leader of the Follies chorus. But at any rate the exposing of the trick sets the spectator to thinking back and he must perforce come to the conclusion that the trick worked extraordinarily smoothly and with small regard for reality.

Sylvia Bremer appears to advantage as the heroine and Andrew Arbuckle shines in a small character part. Billy Elmer creates a humorously tough prize fighter. Bert Lennon is author, Victor Schertzinger director and Chester Lyons photographer.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Because Billy Bates (Charles Ray) is told so many times to beware of drink, he is driven to it. On the pretense of going to the mountains he hies himself to a Ninth avenue saloon and drinks much more than his fill. Poppy Drayton (Sylvia Bremer), of the Follies, who loves him, is advised by Griggs (Andrew Arbuckle) to interest Billy in herself that he may forget his own self for the time being. This she does. She visits the cafe and is accosted by Spider Doyle (Billy Elmer), ex-prize fighter, who reminds her of her past in Denver. Billy attempts to interfere, but, weakened by drink, is powerless. Later he overhears Spider's plot to kidnap Poppy. He insists on remaining in her parlor for the night. He indulges in a battle royal with his craving for drink and conquers in time to beat Spider in a hot fight when he arrives. Spider is so taken aback that he gives the whole scheme away and lets Billy know that it was all Poppy's frame-up. But Billy understands, and brought back to his right senses, takes Poppy as his wife.

"The Rebound"
(Pathe—Two Reels)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

A STRONG, heart-interest vein runs through the seventh of the series, under the general title, "The Price of Folly." "The Rebound" is characteristic of the class of drama that exposes the folly of following the gaiety incident to the night life in the city. Its exposition not alone furnishes entertainment but unfolds a lesson that all will be the better for having learned. Its theme is not new. On the contrary the story has been told and retold but it is one that will always be received with a welcome whether it be exposed between the covers of a book, in pictures on the screen or in the spoken drama on the stage.

The heroine is a young artist whose paintings have won distinction. The moral leper and the moral man come into her life and because of the weakness of the girl who sees life only as it is exposed in her immediate presence and not as it is seen in the future, she accepts the proposals of the unprincipled man and awakes to the realization of the act too late. The happy ending is written in and all ends well.

"Kalem Will Do My Laboratory Work Hereafter!"

Every day, producers for whom we have done printing, developing, etc., pay us an enthusiastic tribute like the following:—

"Am more than pleased with prints you made from my last negative. Kalem for me in the future."
H. J. BINNEY,
Florida Fun Films,
Jacksonville, Fla.

Our splendidly equipped laboratory, conducted by experts, is at your service to furnish the standard of excellence famous for TEN YEARS.

Furthermore—and equally important to you—we invariably make deliveries on the hour specified.

Let us show you what Real Laboratory Service is.

KALEM COMPANY
235 West 23rd Street New York City

"Huck and Tom"

(Lasky-Paramount—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"TOM SAWYER" in picture form dealt only in part with Mark Twain's story of the same name, and so the producers saw fit to make another feature out of the remainder of the book. So here we have "Huck and Tom," a delightful comedy of youthful experiences, adventure and fun, breathing the atmosphere of our former days and consequently full worthy to bear the name of its distinguished and popular author. Its humor is so real in its reflection of young America's life and its spirit of adventure so sustaining that the writer is inclined to pass them by—dismiss them with the single remark, "sure-fire," and dwell with emphasis on the perfect atmosphere which Director William D. Taylor has injected into his picture.

Mark Twain laid the scenes of Tom Sawyer's activities in Hannibal, Missouri, on the Mississippi River, and whether or not the picture company journeyed there to secure the desired locations, the fact remains that more suitable ones could not have been found. From the main street of the drowsy town to the home of the Sawyer children, a typical home of a family in modern circumstances, from the ghostly old grave-yard to the painted cave, from the deserted house on the outskirts of the town to the country court room, there is never a note struck that fails to resound with realism. This atmosphere, together with the costumes of the former generation, serve to transport the spectator from his theatre chair and set him down in the Hannibal of which Mark Twain wrote, in spirit at least. And while dwelling on the merits of the production a deal would be left unsaid if the fine photographic effects secured by Homer Scott were passed by without notice.

Jack Pickford's characterization of Tom Sawyer is a duplicate of his performance in the picture of that name. Above all does he succeed in bringing out the adventurous spirit of Mark Twain's hoy hero. Robert Gordon's Huck is easily on a par

(Continued on page 1614)

THEY CAME
THEY SAW
THEY BOOKED

WHICH TESTIFIES TO THE BOX OFFICE PULLING POWER OF

JESTER

(SUPER)

COMEDIES

FEATURING

TWEDE-DAN

THE INTERNATIONAL MIRTH MAKER

YES—MR. EXHIBITOR—Jester Comedies have come to stay — as Leland S. Ferguson, in the Motion Picture News, says, "Jester Comedies are sure to replenish your box office" — and he is right.

FEBRUARY
"The Recruit"

APRIL
"All 'Fur' Her"

MARCH
"His Golden Romance"

MAY
"The Wrong Flat"

ALL TWO PARTS—RELEASED MONTHLY

Booked on the "SHOW YOU" policy Through the following Exchanges:

For State of New York and Northern New Jersey—Photo Drama Co. (Ben Title, rep.), 220 West 42d St., New York City, N. Y.
For Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey—Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.
For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia—United Business Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., 224 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.
For State of Michigan—The Strand Features, 94 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
For Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin—Unity Photoplays Co., 207 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
For Minneapolis, Minn.—Standard Film Exchange.
For Omaha, Neb.—Standard Film Ex.
For St. Louis, Mo.—Standard Film Ex.
For Kansas City, Mo.—Standard Film Ex.
For Northern Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana and Alaska—John Lannon, Greater Features, Seattle, Wash.
For Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah and Southern Idaho—Swanson & Nolan Supply Co., Denver, Colo.
For California, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaiian Islands—Western F. F. Co., 180 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
For North and South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Tennessee—R. M. Savini, 63 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.
For Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., 1911½ Commerce St., Dallas, Tex.
For Louisiana and Mississippi—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., New Orleans, La.
For the New England States—R. D. Marson Attraction Co., 26 Piedmont St., Boston, Mass.

Foreign Representatives: ARROW FILM CORP. (Shallenberger & Priest), Times Building, New York

A few territories still open. Call or write for terms.

JESTER COMEDY CO.
220 W. 42nd Street, New York
Telephone: Bryant 7691

Studios For Rent

Most conveniently located Studio in New York City—

318-320-322 East 48th Street.
Floor space—80 x 100.

Room for six good sized sets.

Carpenter shops equipped with latest machinery.

2000 Amperes gives any kind of light effects.

Will contract to furnish you your sets on a 10% basis, saving you your rent in lumber alone.

People can reach your Studio in four or five minutes. Props, on a minute's notice. No waits on account of location of Studio. A big money saver.

Rent by the week or month, also yearly leases.

Address ROLAND WEST
318 East 48th Street New York City

Paramount Selected The Baltimore American

WHEN Paramount wanted to introduce to Baltimore Benjamin Chapin in The Son of Democracy it chose The American, and its evening edition, The Star. The Chapin advertising appeared in no other Baltimore paper. Why?

BECAUSE—

The American has the largest following of motion picture fans.

The American leads all other Baltimore papers in motion picture advertising.

The American best co-operates with producer and exhibitor.

The Star is the only daily paper with a mid-week motion picture department.

CO-OPERATION COUNTS

The two-day Chapin campaign was a brilliant success, as befitting a film masterpiece, worthily introduced.

And just as Paramount did, any producer can cover the whole Baltimore field with The American and The Star, in the assurance of receiving the maximum of co-operation.

with Pickford's Tom—in fact, it is the more prominent in the latter part of the five reels. Mr. Gordon—one only has to recall his performance in Hart's "Blue Blazes Rawden" to realize his versatility—has succeeded in bringing the little tramp Huck into being in all his bashfulness, his arkwardness, his friendship with Tom which leads him into all sorts of adventures for which he has little taste. Edythe Chapman, Frank Lanning and Clara Horton are next in importance.

If the exhibitor has shown "Tom Sawyer," his further adventures as set down in "Huck and Tom" should certainly be served for the further delectation of his patrons, but let it be understood that the present picture is complete in every detail in itself—an ideal entertainment with or without its companion piece.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Tom (Jack Pickford) and Huck (Robert Gordon) make a midnight journey to the graveyard, there to apply the magic of the dead cat to some bothersome warts. The boys, to their terror, are witness to a murder. Grave robbers quarrel, and Injun Joe (Frank Lanning), a half-breed, stabs the leader after Muff Porter (Tom Bates) has been knocked senseless. Revived Joe makes Muff believe he is the guilty party. Though the boys swear solemn secrecy, Tom is called as a witness, and his story releases Muff. Injun Joe makes his escape. The boys, hunting treasure again, spy on the villain, and learn that he has committed a robbery. Becky Thatcher (Clara Horton), the judge's daughter, with whom Tom imagines himself in love, gives a party for her young friends, and they picnic near the Painted Cave. After lunch they explore the recesses of the cave, and Tom and Becky are left behind when the others drive away, lost in the cave. It is not until the next day that a party goes in search of them. Tom finds another exit by the river, and also locates Injun Joe again while he is burying his treasure. After they have been rescued, the cave is sealed. Tom does not learn of this until the next week. He then tells of Joe and when the cave is entered again the murderer and thief is found dead. Huck, to whom half of the treasure belongs, has an awful time escaping adoption by various old ladies of the village, and declares riches to be bothersome. And at this point Tom Sawyer's boyhood career comes to an end.

George Hackathorne, Alice Marvin, Helen Gillmore, Antrim Short, Jane Keckley and John Burton complete the cast.

George Kleine Short Subjects

("Broncho Billy's Leap"—Essanay. "The Matinee Girl"—Edison)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"BRONCHO BILLY'S LEAP" makes one hark back and back and marvel at the advancement of picture production in general and Western subjects in particular. Not that it is not interesting. Far from it. To see G. M. Anderson once more doing the bad man and dashing across the screen on horse-back in five or six consecutive scenes, ever drawing nearer the runaway stage and finally leaping to the driver's seat and bringing the prancing animals to a halt, to be rewarded by Marguerite Clayton's kiss, which gives him the inspiration to throw away his black mask. The action is all very simple and leads up to the one thrill, and it must be confessed that the suspense runs pretty strong with all our modern improvements lacking. In our opinion these Broncho Billy reissues will be interesting if for no other reason than for comaprison's sake. Carl Stockdale and Vic Potel are also present.

"The Matinee Girl" is another one of the James Montgomery Flagg series. The girl falls in love with her matinee idol and after an interchange of letters a meeting is arranged. Just as all is going nicely with the girl's heart fluttering around one hundred and eleven she learns her darling is married. This makes good comedy. The subtitles are funny in themselves and the whole is done in a spirit of clean humor.

"The Sign Invisible"

(First National Exhibitors—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE SIGN INVISIBLE" has as its central character a prominent surgeon who, because of the failure of many of his operations, loses all faith in God. The drama pictures his degradation and his regeneration. Beginning with a force and boldness of stroke that easily grips the spectator, the interest in "The Sign Invisible" is accumulated up to the denouement, after which the doctor's regeneration is complete. But the crux of the action which the body of the picture promises will be mighty in its power fails to stir the emotions to an extent corresponding with the force of that which has gone before. In what manner the unbeliever comes to a realization of the sign invisible is not altogether clear, though if one stops to figure it out he can well get the drift of the author's idea. However, the fact re-

Features---Current and Coming

Bluebird Photoplays

Feb. 4. The Wife He Bought (Carmel Myers) 5
Feb. 11. Hands Down (Monroe Salisbury, Ruth Clifford) 5
Feb. 18. Morgan's Raiders (Violet Mersereau) 5
Feb. 25. The Rough Lover (Franklyn Farnum) 5
Feb. 25. The Grand Passion (Dorothy Phillips Super Production)..... 5
Mar. 4. The Girl in the Dark (Carmel Myers) 5
Mar. 11. Hungry Eyes (M. Salisbury)..... 5

Universal Productions

Feb. 4. Painted Lips (Louise Lovely)..... 5
Feb. 11. New Love for Old (Ella Hall, Emory Johnson) 5
Feb. 18. The Flash of Fate (Herbert Rawlinson (Sally Starr)..... 5
Feb. 25. Wild Women (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Mar. 4. Nobody's Wife (Louise Lovely)... 5
Mar. 11. Beauty in Chains (Ella Hall).....5 D
Mar. 11. Thieves' Gold (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

(Successors to Paramount Pictures Corp.)

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Feb. 4. Madame Jealousy (Pauline Frederick) 5
Feb. 4. Flare-Up Sal (Drotohy Dalton)..... 5
Feb. 11. The Keys of the Righteous (Enid Bennett) 5
Feb. 18. The Thing We Love (Wallace Reid) 5
Feb. 18. Hidden Pearl (Sessue Hayakawa.... 5
Feb. 25. One More American (George Beban) 5
Mar. 4. Eve's Daughter (Billie Burke).....
Mar. 4. Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford).....
Mar. 11. The Family Skeleton (Charles Ray).
Mar. 11. Sunshine Nan (Ann Pennington)...
Mar. 18. Prunella (Marguerite Clark).....
Mar. 18. J. Stuart Blackton's Wild Youth....
Mar. 18. Love Me (Dorothy Dalton).....
Mar. 25. LaTosca (Pauline Frederick)..... 5
Mar. 25. "Naughty, Naughty!" (Enid Bennett) 5

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Feb. 11. The Song of Songs (Elsie Ferguson) 5
Feb. 18. Blue Blazes Rawdon (Wm. S. Hart) 5
Feb. 25. Headin' South (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Mar. 11. Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Mary Pickford) .....
Mar. 25. De Mille's "The Whispering Chorus" .....
Mar. 31. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"....

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Feb. 3. The Heart of Romance (June Caprice) 5
Feb. 10. Jack Spurlock — Prodigal (George Walsh) 5
Feb. 17. The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb. 24. Six-Shooter Andy (Tom Mix)..... 5
Mar. 3. The Girl with the Champagne Eyes (Jewel Carmen)..... 5
Mar. 10. The Debt of Honor (Peggy Hyland) 5
Mar. 17. Woman and the Law (R. A. Walsh) 5
Mar. 24. A Daughter of France (Virginia Pearson) 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Jan. 20. Cheating the Public..... 7
Feb. 3. The Forbidden Path (Theda Bara).. 6
Feb. 10. Les Miserables (Wm. Farnum)..... 9
Feb. 24. American Buds (Jane and Katherine Lee) 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Jan. 14. Fields of Honor (Mae Marsh)..... 6
Jan. 28. Dodging a Million (Mabel Normand) 6
Feb. 10. Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy). 6
Feb. 24. The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh). 6
Mar. 10. The Floor Below (Mabel Normand). 6
Mar. 24. The Danger Game (Madge Kennedy) 6

GOLDWYN SPECIALS

The Manx-Man..... 7
For the Freedom of the World..... 7

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

(Paralta Plays)

Jan. 1. Madam Who? (Bessie Barriscale).. 7
Jan. 15. His Robe of Honor (Henry B. Walthall)..... 7
Feb. 15. The Turn of a Card (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Mar. 1. Within the Cup (Bessie Barriscale). 7
Mar. 15. Humdrum Brown (Henry B. Walthall) 6

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama)..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Uneasy Money (Essanay)..... 6
Brown of Harvard (Selig)..... 6
I, Mary MacLane (Essanay)..... 7
The Unbeliever (Edison)..... 7
Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay)..... 7

Metro Pictures Corporation

Feb. 4. Under Suspicion (Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne) Metro... 5
Feb. 11. Broadway Bill (Harold Lockwood) Metro-Yorke 5
Feb. 18. A Weaver of Dreams (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5
Feb. 25. Revenge (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 4. The Shell Game (Emmy Wehlen) Metro 5
Mar. 11. The Brass Check (Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne)..... 5
Mar. 18. The Claim (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 25. Breakers Ahead (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5

(METRO SPECIALS)

Blue Jeans (Voila Dana), Metro-Rolfe..... 7
The Legion of Death (Edith Storey), Metro-Rolfe 7
Revelation (Nazimova), Metro..... 7
The Slacker (Emily Stevens)..... 7
Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro)..... 7

Mutual Film Corporation

Jan. 21. In Bad (Wm. Russell), American... 5
Jan. 28. Beauty and the Rogue (Mary Miles Minter), American 5
Feb. 4. Who Loved Him Best? (Edna Goodrich) 5
Feb. 11. Jilted Janet (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Feb. 18. My Wife (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5
Feb. 25. The Midnight Trail (Wm. Russell) American 5
Mar. 4. Powers That Prey (Mary Miles Minter) American..... 5
Mar. 11. Ann's Finish (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Mar. 18. The Girl and the Judge (Olive Tell), Frohman 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Feb. 3. The Other Woman (Peggy Hyland, Milton Sills, Wm. Parke, Jr.), Astra 5
Feb. 10. Loaded Dice (Frank Keenan, Florence Hillings, Guy Coombs), Pathe 5
Feb. 17. The Inner Voice (I. I. Mozukin), Russian Art 5
Feb. 24. The Naulahka (Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Doraldina, Mary Aldin, Warner Oland) Astra..... 6
Mar. 3. Daddy's Girl (Baby Marie Osborne) Diando 5
Mar.10. The Great Adventure (Bessie Love, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Chester Barnett, Florence Short)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Beggar Woman (Mme. N. A. Lesienko, I. I. Mozukin)..... 5

Petrova Picture Company

Dec. 23. Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Light Within (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Life Mask (Mme. Petrova).... 5

Select Pictures

Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady)..... 5
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge) 6
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge) 5
Mar. —. By Right of Purchase..... 6
Mar. —. The Shuttle 5
Mar. —. The House of Glass..... 5
Mar. —. The Knife 5

SPECIAL RELEASES

Over There (Chas. Richman, Anna Q. Nilsson) 6
The Lone Wolf (Bert Lytell, Hazel Dawn)... 5
The Barrier (Rex Beach Production)..... 7
The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Feb. 3. Limousine Life (Olive Thomas)..... 5
Feb. 3. The Hopper (Wm. V. Mong)..... 5
Feb. 10. Captain of His Soul (Wm. Desmond) 5
Feb. 10. Real Folks (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Feb. 17. From Two to Six (Winifred Allen) 5
Feb. 17. Keith of the Border (Roy Stewart) 5
Feb. 24. Little Red Decides (Triangle Players) 5
Feb. 24. A Soul in Trust (Belle Bennett).... 7
Mar. 3. Heiress for a Day (Olive Thomas).. 5
Mar. 3. Shoes That Danced (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 10. The Hard Rock Breed (Margery Wilson) 5
Mar. 10. The Sea Panther (Wm. Desmond).. 5
Mar. 17. Faith Endurin' (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Answer (Alma Rubens)..... 7
Mar. 24. Nancy Comes Home (Myrtle Lind). 5
Mar. 24. Innocent's Progress (Pauline Starke) 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Feb. 4. The Other Man (Harry Morey, Grace Darmond, Florence Deshon)..... 5
Feb. 11. The Woman Between Friends (Alice Joyce, Marc MacDermott) 5
Feb. 18. The Wooing of Princess Pat (Gladys Leslie, J. Frank Glendon)..... 5
Feb. 25. Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers Neil Shipman, Alfred Whitman).. 5
Mar. 4. The Song of the Soul (Alice Joyce, Walter McGrail) 5
Mar. 11. The Desired Women (Harry Morey, Florence Deshon) 5
Mar. 18. An American Live Wire (Earle Williams, Grace Darmond)..... 5
Mar. 25 The Home Trail (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5

World Pictures

Feb. 4. Divine Sacrifice (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Feb. 11. Whims of Society (Ethel Clayton).. 5
Feb. 18. Broken Ties (June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley) 5
Feb. 25. His Royal Highness (Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Greeley)..... 5
Mar. 4. Spurs of Sybil (Alice Brady)..... 5
Mar.11. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Mar. 18. Wanted, A Mother (Madge Evans).. 5
Mar. 25. The Way Out (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge) 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

American News Weekly

One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.

May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Argosy Films, Inc.

The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arrow Film Corporation

The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary

The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions

Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

Jules Burnstein

Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation

Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies

(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)

Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S PARAMOUNT SERIES

The Son of Democracy..

Christie Film Company

Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel
Honeymooners.
Out for the Coin.
Her Awful Predicament.
Crazy by Proxy.
Green Eyes and Bullets.
Betty's Big Idea.
Local Color.
Love and Locksmiths.
Hearts and Clubs.
Almost a Bigamist.
More Haste Less Speed.
Betty Wakes Up.
Stepping Out.
Almost Divorced.
Help! Help! Police!
Their Seaside Tangle.
One Good Turn.
Thirty Days.
Nearly a Papa.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Five to Five.
Many a Slip.
The Night of His Life.
Mum's the Word.
Circumstantial Evidence.
In the Dark.
Whose Wife?
The House that Jack Built.

Cinema Distributing Corp.

The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Clune Productions

Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.

Charlotte, in The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company

The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation

LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY

Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company

Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Dixie Films

Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Ebony Film Corporation

A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.

Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.

People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Export and Import Film Co.

Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation

Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.

War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.
Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova).
Herbert Brenon's "Empty Pockets."
The Sign Invisible (Big Mitch Lewis).

Fort Pitt Corporation

The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.

(Standard Pictures)

The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Frieder Film Corporation

The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises

A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.

The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

General Enterprises, Inc.

Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays

The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features

A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company

Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features

The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith

Intolerance .....9 reels

Hanover Film Company

Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart

The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation

Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation

Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.

The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Historic Features

Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.

One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation

The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.

Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Feature Productions

One Law for Both (Rita Jolivet, Vincent Serrano, Leah Baird, Pedro De Cordoba, James Morrison).....7 reels
Babbling Tongues (Grace Valentine, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson).....7 reels
Married in Name Only (Gretchen Hartman, Milton Sills, Marie Shotwell).....6 reels
Sins of Ambition (Barbara Castleton, Wilfred Lucas, Leah Baird, James Morrison) .....7 reels
Human Clay (Mollie King).....5 reels

Jester Comedies

Feb. —. The Recruit (Twede Dan).....2 parts
Mar. —. His Golden Romance (Twede Dan) .....2 parts
April —. All "Fur" Her (Twede Dan)...2 parts
May —. The Wrong Flat (Twede Dan)..2 parts

Juvenile Film Corporation

World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

(Continued on page 1618)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 20. Son of a Gun.....2 C
Feb. 3. Hungry Lions in a Hospital.....2 C
Feb. 17. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES (O. HENRY STORIES)

The Fifth Wheel (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
Compliments of the Season (Herbert Prior, Betty Blythe, Aida Horton)...2 D
The Moment of Victory (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan) .....2 C-D
The Trimmed Lamp (Mildred Manning, Alice Terry) .....2 C-D
Schools and Schools (Jean Paige, Chas. Hutchison) .....2 D
A Madison Square Arabian Night (Duncan McRae, Patsy De Forrest).....2 D
The Rathskeller and the Rose (Adele De Garde, Evart Overton).....2 D
By Injunction (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
The Song and the Sergeant (Alice Terry, Stanley Dunn, Templar Saxe).....2 D

ESSANAY
GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

Lunch .....1 C
Nut Stuff .....1 C
He Loved Her So .....1 C
One Night .....1 C
Next .....1 C
The Soup and the Fish Ball.....1 C
A Tough Knight.....1 C
Our Little Nell.....1 C
Check Your Hat, Sir.....1 C
Wild Algy of Piccadilly.....1 C
All Stuck Up.....1 C
The Lie That Failed.....1 C
The Jazbo Sheriff.....1 C
The Lunch Grabber.....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.
Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada .....1 Sc.
Water Powers of Eastern Canada.....1 Sc.
A Romance of Rails and Power.....1 Sc.
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelley .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 C
A Woman .....2 C
The Tramp .....2 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON FILM CORP.

"A DAUGHTER OF UNCLE SAM" SERIAL (Jane Vance, Wm. Sorelle) 12 Episodes .....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Anybody's Money .....1 C
Her Fatal Shot (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Marooned .....1 C
Sherman Was Right.....1 C
What Will Happen Next?.....1 C
Which Was Lucky?.....1 C
The Unofficial Maneuver.....1 C
What Occurred on the Beach.....1 C
An All-Fools' Day Affair.....1 C
Beating Him to It.....1 C
Forced Into Matrimony.....1 C

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Bud's Recruit .....2 C-D
Chocolate of the Gang.....2 C-D
The Lost Lie.....2 C-D
Tad's Swimming Hole.....2 C-D
Marrying Off Dad.....2 C-D
The Preacher's Son.....2 C-D
Thief or Angel.....2 C-D
The Accusing Toe.....2 C-D
Black and White.....2 C-D
Rebellion .....2 C-D
A Boy Built City.....2 C-D
I'm a Man.....2 C-D

SPARKLE COMEDIES

Monkey-Maid-Man .....1 C
On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

THREE C COMEDIES

Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION (SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Candy Kid.....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Hobo .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Slave .....2 reels
Jan. 15. The Stranger .....2 reels
Feb. 1. His Day Out.....2 reels
Feb. 15. The Rogue .....2 reels

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

George Kleine System

MONTGOMERY FLAGG'S COMEDIES "GIRLS YOU KNOW"

Jan. 2. The Screen Fan.....2 C
Jan. 16. The Bride .....2 C
Jan. 30. The Superstitious Girl.....2 C
Feb. 13. The Matinee Girl.....2 C
Feb. 27. The Artist's Model.....2 C
Mar. 13. The Spoiled Girl.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Jan. 14. Why Henry Left Home.....1 C
Jan. 21. Their First Love.....1 C
Jan. 28. Under the Influence.....1 C
Feb. 4. Help Wanted.....1 C
Feb. 11. The Bright Lights Dimmed.....1 C
Feb. 18. After Henry .....1 C
Feb. 25. His Generosity .....1 C
Mar. 4. Before and After Taking.....1 C
Mar. 11. His Strength of Mind.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Jan. 15. Burglars .....1 reel
Jan. 22. Their Little Kid.....1 reel
Jan. 29. Somebody's Widow.....1 reel
Feb. 5. Her Friend Brown.....1 reel
Feb. 12. Three Times and Out.....1 reel
Feb. 19. Miss Cinderella .....1 reel
Feb. 26. Up in the Air.....1 reel
Mar. 5. Waltzing Around .....1 reel
Mar. 12. Finishing Mary .....1 reel
Mar. 19. His Quaker Girl.....1 reel
Screen Telegrams issued Sunday and Wednesday of each week

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 20. Out West .....2 reels
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C
Feb. 3. Watch Your Neighbor.....2 C
Feb. 10. Sheriff Nell's Tussle.....2 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Dec. 3. Osaka to Nagasaki.....1 Trav.
Dec. 10. Canning Time in California.....1 Trav.
Dec. 17. In Glacier Park.....1 Trav.
Dec. 24. Going to the Sun.....1 Trav.
Dec. 31. On the Farm Where the Food Comes From.....1 Trav.
Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.1 reel
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia .....1 reel
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.....1 reel
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.....1 reel
Feb. 4. Adelaide, Capital of South Australia .....1 reel

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, March 10, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 1 (The Hooded Terror) (Pearl White, Antonio Moreno, Paul Clerges, Peggy Shanor), Astra.....2 D
The Price of Folly, No. 8 (Shifting Sands), Astra .....2 D
Look Pleasant, Please (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin.....1 C
Our National Parks (Col.), Mesa Verda Parks Trav .....1 reel
Katzenjammer Kids "Spirits" (Cart.) and "Jackie's Clothes" (Ed.), International. Split reel

Wednesday, March 13, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 22.....1 top

Saturday, March 16, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 23.....1 top

Sunday, March 17, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 2 (The Tiger's Eye), Astra .....2 D
Fare, Please (Toto, Clarine Seymour, Bud Jamison), Rolin .....2 C
Here Come the Girls (Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard, Bebe Daniels), Rolin.....1 C
Picturesque France (The Cauterets) Col. (Pathe), Trav., and "Children's Dances," Educ. .....Split reel

Wednesday, March 20, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 24 .....1 top

Saturday, March 23, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 25.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES

Feb. 3. Airing Their Troubles.....1 C
Feb. 3. A Safe Disaster.....1 C
Feb. 10. His Nine Lives.....1 C
Feb. 10. A Game Gambler.....1 C
Feb. 17. Their Undercover Capers.....1 C
Feb. 17. A Full Dress Fizzle.....1 C
Feb. 24. A Coward's Courage.....1 C
Feb. 24. His Nimble Twist.....1 C
Mar. 3. A Discord in A Flat.....1 C
Mar. 3. His Hidden Shame.....1 C
Mar. 10. Wives and Worries.....1 C
Mar. 10. She Didn't Do It.....1 C
Mar. 17. A Social Shock Absorber.....1 C
Mar. 17. Caught with the Goods.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES

Feb. 3. A Sea Serpent's Desire (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims, Maude Wayne).2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong (Harry Gribbon, Myrtle Lind, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers, Carolyne Rankin).....2 C
Feb. 17. His Double Life (R. Griffith, Dorothy Hager, Claire Anderson).....2 C
Feb. 24. A Tell-Tale Shirt (Fritz Schave, Peggy Pierce, C. Roberts, Baldy Belmont).....2 C
Mar. 3. A Lady Killer's Doom (Wm. Franey, Maude Wayne, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims).....2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong? (Harry Gribbon, Claire Anderson, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers).....2 C
Mar. 17 Mud (Ray Griffith, Peggy Pearce, Max Asher, Henry Depp.....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, March 11, 1918

NESTOR—At Swords' Point (Harry Mann).1 C
Wednesday, March 13, 1918
L-KO—Ambrose and His Widow (Mack Swain).....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 15.
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 62.
Saturday, March 16, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 44 (shipping date March 9).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Forced Marriage (Eixteenth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial).....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—On the Brink (Sixth Episode of "The Bull's Eye," Serial).....2 D
SPECIAL—Finley Nature Studies, No. 9, "The Geysers of Yellowstone Park" and "Flower of the Orient".....Split reel
Monday, March 18, 1918
NESTOR—I'll Fix It (King Baggot).....1 C
Wednesday, March 20, 1918
L-KO—Cooks and Crooks (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack, Dave Morris).....2 C
UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY—Weekly No. 16.
Saturday, March 23, 1918
UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE—Issue No. 63.
UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS—Issue No. 45 (Shipping date Mar. 16).
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—The Deadly Torpedo (Seventieth Episode of "The Mystery Ship" Serial).....2 D
UNIVERSAL SPECIAL—Riding Wild (Seventh Episode of "The Bull's Eye" Serial).....2 D
SPECIAL—Finely Nature Studies No. 10 "Where Rolls the Oregon" and "Mosquito," Ed. .....Split reel

Vitagraph

BIG V COMEDIES

Feb. 4. Telephones and Troubles.
Feb. 11. Babes and Boobs.
Feb. 18. Courts and Convicts.
Feb. 25. Rooms and Rumors.
Mar. 4. Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11. Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18. Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25. Stripes and Stumbles.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES

Jan. 7. A Little Ouija Work.
Jan. 14. Seeking An Oversoul.
Jan. 21. A Four-Cornered Triangle.
Jan. 28. Their Anniversary Feast.
Feb. 4. Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11. Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18. Sweets to the Sour.
Feb. 25. Their Godson.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)

Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).
Feb. 4. The Wolf Trap (Seventh Episode).
Feb. 11. The Mountain of Devastation (Eighth Episode).
Feb. 18. Buried Alive (Ninth Episode).
Feb. 25. The Leap for Life (Tenth Episode).
Mar. 4. The Cavern of Terror (Eleventh Episode).
Mar. 11. The Desperate Chance (Twelfth Episode).
Mar. 18. Sands of Doom (Thirteenth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Feb. 4. The Pirates .....2 C
Feb. 4. The Wings of a Moth.....1 D
Feb. 11. The Sacrifice of Kathleen.....2 D
Feb. 11. Art for A Heart.....1 C
Feb. 18. The Mischief Maker.....2 D
Feb. 18. Sonny Jim in Search of a Mother..1 C
Feb. 25. Old Reliable.....2 D
Feb. 25. Stenographer Troubles.....1 C
Mar. 4. An Officer and a Gentleman.....2 D
Mar. 4. Unlucky Louis .....1 C

DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 11. Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18. A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25. His Wife Knew About It.

RELEASES IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD

(Continued from page 1616)

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").. ....

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Photoplay Magazine

Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges).

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

The Public Defender.....6 reels
Naked Hands .....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....6 reels
Souls Redeemed .....6 reels
Mother Love and the Law.....7 reels
In Treason's Grasp.....5 reels
Should She Obey?.....7 reels

Selig Special

Beware of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Sterling Pictures Corporation

Peg o' the Sea (Jean Sothern feature)....6 parts
A Mute Appeal (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy feature) .....5 parts
Her Good Name (Jean Sothern feature)..5 parts
Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana feature).....5 parts
The Cloud (Jean Sothern feature).....5 parts
The God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
A Mother's Ordeal (Jean Sothern feature) 5 parts
Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon feature)6 parts
Miss Deception (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Law that Failed (Alma Hanlon f'ture)5 parts
Great Bradley Mystery (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
The Mystic Hour (Alma Hanlon feature).6 parts
When You and I Were Young (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
The Golden God (Alma Hanlon feature)..5 parts
She Was a Dangerous Girl (Cartoon comedy) .....500 ft.
Zippy the Fireman (Cartoon comedy)....500 ft.
Zippy in a Sanatorium (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Zippy Buys a Pet Pup (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Slick and Tricky (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo (Cartoon comedy)...500 ft.
The Old Forty-Niner (Cartoon comedy)..500 ft.
Mr. Coon (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Mose Is Cured (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Insurance (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Pets (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
The Unknown (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

W. H. Productions Co.

William S. Hart as Two Gun Man in "The Bargain" .....6 reels
William S. Hart in "The Bandit and the Preacher" .....5 reels
William S. Hart in "The Hell Hound of Alaska" .....5 reels
Also Series of two-reel W. H. Hart productions.

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

EXHIBITORS' PERSONALS

ARIZONA

Miguel Garcia has severed his connections with the Consolidated Bank of Tucson, and will henceforth devote his time and energy to the management of the Gandolfo theatre at Yuma.

GEORGIA

W. K. Atkinson has succeeded R. W. Tyson as manager of the Valway and Strand theatres at Valdosta.

MASSACHUSETTS

John J. Hubbard, of Lynn, has leased for a term of years the Orpheum theatre in Danvers owned by Louis Brown.

MISSOURI

F. C. Brickey and Dr. A. C. Jacobs purchased the Lyric theatre, Boonville, from Jake Deck, Jr., recently. They took immediate possession. They intend to bring only the highest class pictures to Boonville, and may book some good road shows.

NEVADA

It is reported that the Gaiety theatre at Elko will open soon, and that Frank Grobe, of Elko, and H. R. Prouty, of Ogden, have taken a year's lease on the building.

NEW JERSEY

J. Clark Conover has been appointed manager of the Strand theatre, Red Bank, to succeed Dr. Bridge.

NEW MEXICO

W. Menheimer has assumed active management of the Majestic theatre, Deming. C. G. Salter has bought the Princess theatre, Roswell, from John Halper, and having renamed it "The Liberty," will assume its active management.

NEW YORK

George C. Starkey, of Elmira, has bought the local picture theatre from Charles Fletcher, and assumed its personal management last week.

NEBRASKA

The Commercial Club, of Haldrege, has taken over the Auditorium there, and will conduct a motion picture theatre therein.

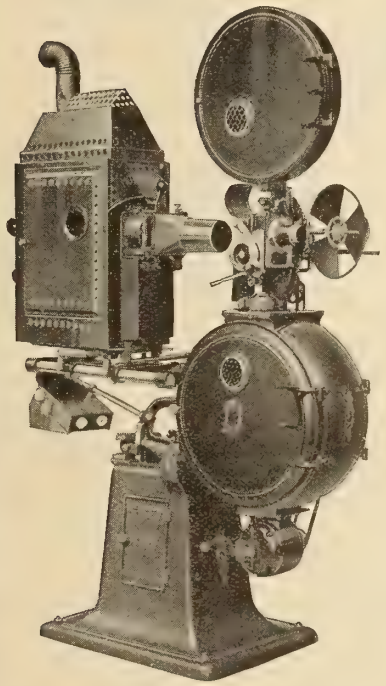
H. A. Parrish, of Aurora, has sold the Lyric theatre in Auburn to C. A. Calkins.

Weber and Dickson Bros., of Atkinson, contemplate opening a new motion picture theatre there in the near future.

W. W. Hughes has bought the Lyric theatre at David City from J. E. McGaffin.

Frank Zehrung, former manager of the Brandeis theatre in Omaha, severed his connection with the Oliver theatre, after being its manager for twenty-five years. The Oliver was purchased by Frank D. Eager, who also owns all Lincoln's other theatrical holdings. Zehrung was president of the Western Baseball League one season and also was mayor of Lincoln.

N. G. Brewer has bought the U. S. A. theatre from George F. McCreary.



Accessory News

— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

MOTIOGRAPH DE LUXE

Complete—Ready for Installation

$375.00

There are special features on lamp house, mechanism, pedestal, in fact, every part of machine has been specially adapted to guarantee perfect projection with small upkeep cost.

Write for the De Luxe catalogue.

Motiograph Non-Friction Non-slip Speed Control. Will not slip when under heavy load or exposed to oil.

Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Co.
564-572 West Randolph Street, Chicago, Illinois

WESTERN OFFICE
833 Market Street San Francisco, California

COAL CONSERVATION —the topic of the hour.

You can help to SAVE 160,000 TONS per year.

The following vital statistics were given recently to the New York Illuminating Engineering Society, being part of a valuable paper prepared by Messrs.:

J. T. CALDWELL, Engineering Department, National Lamp Works of the General Electric Co., Cleveland, Ohio.
A. R. DENNINGTON, Commercial Engineering Department, Westinghouse Lamp Company, Bloomfield, N. J.
J. A. ORANGE, Research Laboratories, General Electric Company, Schenectady, N. Y.
L. C. PORTER, Engineering Department, Edison Lamp Works of the General Electric Company, Harrison, N. J.

FUEL CONSERVATION POSSIBLE IF ALL CARBON-ARC LAMPS FOR MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION IN PICTURE THEATRES WERE REPLACED BY INCANDESCENT LAMPS

Average run of 45 hours per week, or 2,340 hours per year.
Number of theatres in the United States, 22,000.
Total theatre-hours per year, 51,000,000.

	WATTS
Average overall wattage with arc systems	3,000
Average overall wattage with incandescent systems	900
Difference	2,100

Assuming three pounds of coal consumed per K. W. hour at the theatres, this means a saving of:—

51,000,000 x 2.1 x 3 lbs. of coal per year, or 160,000 tons of coal saved per year, or 4,000 cars of 40 tons each.

THE SHECK UNIVERSAL ADAPTER MAKES IT EASY TO CHANGE from Carbon-Arcs to the use of Mazda Projector Lamps by simply attaching the Adapter to front of any style Carbon-Arc Housing, and providing suitable current-control apparatus.

Projection with Mazda Projector Lamps by means of the Sheck Adapter not only results in tremendous savings in fuel and operating costs, but it has the following added advantages over Carbon-Arc Projection:

Better illumination on the screen.
Eliminates color bands and "ghosts".
Eliminates arc "flicker"—no eye strain.
No poisonous carbon fumes and dust to injure health of operator, and wear working parts of projection machine.
People prefer Mazda Lamp Projection.
Less fire hazard—no open flame.
No noise or hum as with carbon-arcs.
No warming-up process needed at the end of each reel.
Simplicity of operation enables operator to give closest attention to projection on the screen.

BECAUSE OF THE NEW GOVERNMENT ORDERS it is of more importance than ever before that you practice every possible economy and make improvements that will secure greater patronage for your theatre. Argus equipment will do this for you as it has for hundreds of progressive exhibitors who have already adopted the idea.

DO YOUR BIT! DON'T DELAY! WRITE today for descriptive literature and name of the distributor in your territory.

The Argus Lamp & Appliance Co.

General Offices: CLEVELAND, OHIO

District Offices: PHILADELPHIA; PITTSBURGH; LOS ANGELES

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

Operators' License

Walker Bill, New York State

FOR the benefit of those operators and exhibitors throughout the country who are interested in the legislation which is taking place in New York State, we reprint below an act introduced into the State Senate by Mr. Walker to amend the general law of New York City, in relation to licenses to operate moving picture apparatus with certain recent changes. We also comment on certain parts of the law.

"Section 1. Section eighteen of chapter twenty-six of laws of nineteen hundred and nine, entitled 'An Act in relation to cities, constituting chapter twenty-one of the consolidated laws,' as added by chapter two hundred and fifty-two of the laws of nineteen hundred and eleven, and amended by chapter one hundred and eighty-four of the laws of nineteen hundred and sixteen, is hereby amended to read as follows:

"Section 18. License to operate moving picture apparatus. It shall not be lawful for any person or persons, save as excepted in section eighteen of this article, to operate any moving picture apparatus and its connections (change in law as follows) involving the use of a combustible film in or upon the premises of any public or private building or any place of public assemblage (end of change) in a city of the first class unless such person or persons so operating such apparatus is duly licensed as hereinafter provided."

COMMENT—The change here and the result desired is simple and obvious. It means that the projection machines in every private projection room must be operated by a man with a state license. The importance of this change is evident, even though the actual danger to human life is slight, providing the building and fire laws are complied with. A fire in one of these projection rooms fills the entire building with the smoke of the burning film and immediately starts talk and criticism which is most detrimental to the entire industry. Though there are exceptions, most operators engaged for work in these private projection rooms are not experienced operators and should not be allowed to operate without a license any more than should a man in a theatre.

The most important part of the clause is the forcing of the operators who are engaged in operating in places of public assemblage, whether the theatre or auditorium, to have a license. Under these conditions the requirements for obtaining the licenses cannot be made too strict.

The question of operating machines in private homes should be left entirely up to the owner who assumes all his own risks. It is not a question for legislation of this kind under any circumstances.

The bill continues: "Any persons desiring to act as such operator shall make application for a license to so act to the mayor or licensing authority designated by the mayor, unless the charter of said city so designates, which officer shall furnish to each applicant blank forms of application which the applicant shall fill out. Such officer shall make rules and regulations governing the examination of applicants and the issuance of licenses and certificates." (To be omitted from bill.) "A license shall not be granted to an applicant unless he shall have served as an apprentice under a licensed operator, for a period of not less than six months prior to the date of the application; the application must be made in writing, and contain a verified statement to that effect; it must be accompanied by the affidavit of the licensed operator to the same effect; before entering upon the period of apprenticeship the applicant must register his name and address with the officer issuing such license." (End of omission.) (Change in law as follows:) "Such application must be accompanied by the affidavit of a licensed operator to the effect that the applicant has served as an assistant to such licensed operator for a period of not less than six months prior to the date of application, except any person who has operated a moving picture projection machine and its connections for not less than six months may present his own affidavit stating that he has so operated a moving picture projection machine and its conections in an enclosure or operating room. The licensing authority may require that the affidavit be corroborated." (End of change.)

COMMENT—This we do not consider a change for the better for we have always contended that the obtaining of a license should be made more difficult. We believe that before allowing a man to act as an apprentice he should have to pass a preliminary examination. By passing this he would be allowed to act as an apprentice for the required six months. After this he could apply for an operator's license. The change is altogether too loose and contradictory—how can a man make an affidavit that he has operated a machine for six months when he is forbidden to operate a machine unless he has acted as an apprentice. This could only be done if the applicant comes from outside the jurisdiction of the law. In this case his license obtained from another part of the country might be considered as taking the place of the apprenticeship and he could at once take the examination for a New York operator's license.

The bill continues: "The applicant shall be given a practical examination under the direction of the officer required to issue such license and if found competent as to his ability to operate moving picture apparatus and its connections shall receive within six days after such examination a license as herein provided. Such license may be revoked or suspended at any time by the officer issuing the same. Every license shall continue in force for one year from the date of issue unless sooner revoked or suspended. Every license, unless revoked or suspended, as herein provided, may at the end of one year from the date of issue thereof be renewed by the officer issuing it in his discretion upon application and with or without further examination as he may direct. Every application for renewal of license must be made within the thirty days previous to the expiration of such license. With every license granted there shall be issued to every person obtaining such license a certificate, certifying that the person named therein is duly authorized to operate moving picture apparatus and its connections. Such certificate shall be displayed in a conspicuous place in the room where the person to whom it is issued operates moving picture apparatus and its connections. No person shall be eligible to procure a license unless he shall be of full age." (Change in law as follows:) "Any person eighteen years of age or over desiring to act as an assistant to the holder of a license shall register his name, age and address on a form furnished for the purpose by the licensing authority; the said licensing authority may issue a permit allowing such person to assist a licensed operator in a booth or enclosure; but such person shall not himself operate a moving picture projection machine or its connections. The permit shall be for the term of one year from the date of issue thereof, but may be renewed yearly by the licensing authority. No license shall be granted to an applicant until he shall have served as an assistant to a licensed operator for a period of not less than six months prior to the date of the application or shall have operated a motion picture projection machine and its connections in an enclosure or operating room

(Continued on page 1630)

Equipment Operating — Projection — Questions Answered

The Brightness of the D. C. Arc Crater

Mr. Alexander Weiss, Cleveland, Ohio, an intelligent student of cine projection, writes as follows:

"In reference to our old subject of crater-luminosity, I still maintain the contention set forth in my former correspondence that, at high amperage the volatilization of the carbon is forcibly quickened, giving us a higher candlepower.

"I think I am able to substantiate my claim by describing some experiments I made along this line, viz.: In going back several months, I recall that one day it struck me that with practically the same carbons burning there was a marked increase in screen-illumination at an increase of from 65 amps. to 75 or 80 amps. This in spite of the fact that some of our best men in the industry have claimed there is no advantage in using anything over 50 55 amps. (D. C. of course) as all above that would be nearly all wasted. With this I strongly disagree. But to return to our subject. This incident, as mentioned above, set me to thinking and studying. But without technical knowledge and scientific instruments I naturally could not make any headway. But a few weeks ago I put the following question up to myself: If, at very low amperage using a ½" carbon below and a ⅝" above, our crater-intensity would be abnormally low, why would it not work the opposite way? I figure that if I use very small size carbons on high current it may be a solution to our very interesting argument about carbon-intensity.

"I forthwith proceeded to secure the proper carbons which were ¼" for below and 7/16" above. And here is just where the interesting part is coming in.

"Starting at 12 amps, I naturally got very little light on an 18-ft. screen, but as I increased the current to 45 amperes (the highest I could hold a steady arc with) it may interest you to know that my screen illumination with this combination was not only equal, but better than that of a 65-amp. arc burning simultaneously in my second lamp.

"I will not attempt to claim in defiance to scientific or natural laws that my contention is correct, but it is reasonably safe to claim that the only possible answer to this phenomena is the fact that the crater of the small carbon is being forcibly heated to a higher degree at 45 amperes than that of a ⅞" crater at 65 amperes, else where does the higher screen brilliancy come in at.

"I humbly submit this little experiment to your consideration and decision, an early answer to which will be greatly appreciated.

"Am at present trying some aperture lenses for the purpose of intercepting the light beam at the cooling plate of the mechanism and instead of leaving same to converge at a point between the film and the objective, to diverge again until it enters the objective. I will endeavor to direct the light beam between these two points in as much a parallel line as will be possible. Thus, even if I do not gain illumination it will allow me to eliminate the use of large diameter objectives and gain definition by the use of smaller diameter lenses. I will be pleased to advise you later as to results of these experiments."

Comment: As the subject of the luminosity or brightness of the D. C. arc crater with various amperages has become of interest and speculation on the part of operators, a brief survey of some of the experimental work upon the subject will form the most suitable preface to our remarks.

Fortunately for all operators who are students of their profession, the literature on electricity is enriched by an important and valuable work entitled

"The Electric Arc"
By [Mrs.] Hertha Ayrton
Publisher—D. Van Nostrand Co., N. Y.
Price, $5.00

This book is a physical treatise on the D. C. arc, which is, however, written in a thoroughly comprehensible manner throughout, and any practical operator will enjoy the reading of Mrs. Ayrton's work, for in addition to bearing out many of the practical operators' deductions concerning the action of the arc, other less known facts are also established.

Concerning the brightness of the positive crater of the D. C. arc, we find on page 65 of Mrs. Ayrton's book the following paragraphs which pertain to our subject:

"Later in the same year [1892] M. Violle [a French physicist of repute] published an account of some experiments he had made in order to determine the temperature of the positive carbon and the arc.

"He cut a deep trench all around the positive carbon a little way from the end [or crater] so that a small piece was left, only connected with the rest of the carbon by a narrow neck. When most of this piece was burnt away, and the remainder was all of the same brightness, it was shaken off and fell into a little cup, after which the amount of heat given off by it was measured in the usual way. Assuming the ordinarily received value of the specific heat of carbon, M. Violle found by this method that the temperature of the crater was about 3,500 deg. C., whatever power was spent in the arc—whether 10 amperes were flowing at 50 volts, or 400 amperes at 85 volts. He concluded, therefore, that the candlepower per square centimeter of the crater was the same for all arcs with the same kind of carbons.[1]

"In 1898 M. Violle made some further experiments[2] on the temperature and brightness of the [D. C. arc] crater. The carbons were placed horizontally, and inclosed, in order to reduce the cooling effect of the surrounding air. The temperature was measured the same way as in his previous experiments, and led to the same result, namely, that the temperature of the crater was about 3,500 deg. C. He considered that the arc [flame between carbon tips] itself was at the same temperature, and that this was the temperature of boiling carbon. He laid great stress on this, as may be seen from the following quotation: 'The most important result of my researches is to establish the fact that the voltaic arc is the seat of a perfectly definite physical phenomenon, the ebullition [or boiling] of carbon.'

"To determine the amount of light given out per square millimetre of crater he employed two methods, (1) the use of the spectrophotometer, (2) photography. They both led him to the same conclusion, that the amount of light per square mm. [of crater surface] was constant and independent of the current [amperage] used."

Pursuing further Mrs. Ayrton's interesting text we encounter on page 67 the following account of the experiments and deductions of M. Blondel, likewise a physicist and photometrist of the first rank.

"In some articles published in 1893 M. Blondel[3] gave it as his experience that, although the maximum brilliancy of the crater was independent of the current flowing in the arc, yet the average brilliancy of the incandescent portions increased both with the intensity and with the density of the current, until the crater was well saturated."

Again, on page 68 (op. cit.) we find:

"In 1894 M. Violle[4] renewed his inquiries into the temperature of the arc with a still larger range of current than before, namely 10 to 1,200 amperes. He found that in all cases the temperature and intrinsic brilliancy of the positive carbon [or crater] remained constant. The arc he employed was inclosed and he found by spectroscopic methods that the brilliancy of the arc [flame] itself increased as the current increased."

Coming down to more recent times, Professor Otto Lummer, a leading physicist of the present time, conducted a series of experiments on the brightness of the D. C. arc crater and the

[1] "Comptes Rendus," Vol. 115 (1892), p. 1273.
[2] "Journal de Physique," Vol. 2 (1893), p. 545.
[3] "The Electrician" (London), Vol. 32 (1893), pp. 117, 145, 169.
[4] "Comptes Rendus," Vol. 119 (1894), p. 949.

boiling temperature of carbon, the results of which he published in 1914.[5] Lummer's book is undoubtedly the most interesting work which has yet appeared on the interesting subject of the D. C. crater, and in addition to its wealth of important data it is profusely illustrated, and contains many photographs of the appearance of the boiling arc crater. We supply the following translation of Dr. Lummer's conclusions with regard to the matter in which we are here interested.

Dr. Lummer (loc. cit. p. 37) says:

"The experiments made with various kinds of homogeneous carbons permit the conclusion that within wide limits, with respect to arc length and current strength [amperage], the surface brightness, and also the temperature of the positive crater is at least constant at the brightest spot of the crater.

"This conclusion, which was arrived at after a year's experiments, and was published in the 'Leipzig Reports,' requires a qualification nowadays, inasmuch as it is no longer strictly true that the positive crater reaches the condition of liquefaction when low amperage is employed."

The foregoing citations should serve to convey to the intelligent operator or student that it is quite definitely established physically that an increase in the intrinsic brilliancy of the D. C. arc crater cannot be expected to accompany increased amperage at the arc in the case of higher currents than the average working amperage of say 45 to 50 amperes.

It should be pointed out that no accurate opinions regarding screen brightness can be formed by merely comparing fields of light projected upon the lantern screen, because not only is the eye a comparatively poor judge of such matters, but also in looking at such bright surfaces as the illuminated projection screen the eye becomes rapidly fatigued, and the impressions which it conveys to the brain will generally be very misleading. Every photometrist and spectroscopist knows this, and no skilled worker attempts to make visual measurements without first resting the eyes, so that they will be in condition for best seeing before measurements are made.

Another factor which enters, in the case of everyday motion picture projection, is the efficiency of the projector optical system, or perhaps we should say its lack of efficiency—due to condenser aberration and also to misadjustment on the part of some operators. The fallacy in the conclusions of the present correspondent, Mr. Weiss, comes from just this cause; he has neglected to consider the behavior of the condenser system for different dimensions of the light source (or crater).

Mr. Weiss compares a 65 ampere arc with a 45 ampere arc under otherwise identical arrangements and equipment. It can therefore be pointed out immediately on optical grounds (assuming the condenser systems of the two projectors to be identical) that the 65 ampere arc will be much less efficiently focused by the condenser system than will the 45 ampere arc, and this would even remain true of a condenser system much better spherically corrected than the ones at present in use, unless it were spherically corrected over its entire aperture. In simple language, the smaller the luminous source the less will its reproduction by the condenser system suffer from aberration, so it is seen that the 45 ampere crater would be more efficiently utilized by a conventional condenser system than a 65 ampere crater would by a similar system. We presume that all will agree that 65 amperes forms a larger crater than 45 amperes does, and in view of what has just been stated above Mr. Weiss will find the condenser system answerable for the difference in screen illumination noticed under the experimental conditions he sets forth.

It is with considerable interest that we learn of Mr. Weiss' experiments with "aperture lenses," and we believe that our readers will join us in assuring Mr. Weiss that his report on the utility of such devices will prove welcome reading.

While on the subject of "aperture lenses," we wonder if any of the experimenters with these auxiliary lenses have taken into consideration the fact that the introduction of such a lens at any point in the projector optical system will cause a loss of from 8 to 10 per cent of the light incident upon such lens, i. e., 4 to 5 per cent loss of light by reflection at each glass-air surface, the amount depending upon the refractive index of the glass of which the lens is made.

[5] "The Liquefaction of Carbon and the Determination of the Sun's Temperature." Sammlung Vieweg, Nos. 9 and 10. Published by Vieweg, Brunswick, 1914.

League Member Has Neat Slide

IN a previous communication Mr. E. B. Wood of Mattoon, Ill., a member of the National Anti-Misframe League and one of our valued correspondents, advised us that he had prepared a display slide which apprised his audiences that he was a League member and stood for better projection.

Mr. Wood agreed to send us a copy of his display slide, which has just come to hand, and as we have had numerous requests from League members that they be provided with slides, we reproduce Mr. Wood's design herewith, with the suggestion that any League member may have the same copied photographically, and made into a slide, by any professional lantern-slide maker. Those who utilize the design, in the manner suggested, should of course instruct the slide-maker to substitute their own membership number in place of the one shown in the appended design.

American Carbons Sell Well Abroad

President Paul H. Cromelin, of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, tells with pride of the sales his concern has made in foreign lands with the Speer carbons, an American product. Last week witnessed a shipment of 20,000 of these carbons to Argentine, and the closing of Spain and Portugal for a minimum of 250,000 a year. South Africa received 50,000 recently; India, 32,000; Peru and Chile, 20,000; Uruguay and Paraguay, 5,000; England, 50,000, and France, 30,000.

This branch of Inter-Ocean work is in charge of E. H. Kaufman, office manager of the company. Mr. Kaufman is a moving picture pioneer, dating back to 1896, when he represented the Edison Company on the road with their moving picture machines, motors, batteries and films.

Speer carbons were unknown to the foreign market, when Mr. Kaufman took up their sale for the Inter-Ocean. In his first year of handling, 1917, over one million were exported. That the three million mark will be reached in 1918 is now the indication. This is a triumph not only for the Inter-Ocean, but for America, as American carbons were practically unknown in foreign lands prior to the last year.

I. P. A. Elects Officers

AT the annual election, held at the club's headquarters on the evening of February 25, the following officers were elected to guide the destinies of the International Projection Association throughout the ensuing year:

President, Frank S. Pircher; vice-president, Morris J. Rotker; recording secretary, Edmund McD. Benheim; secretary and treasurer, Harry Scherl; board of trustees, P. Finelley (chairman), Harry Levine and Marcus Rattiner; sergeant-at-arms, Frank Pezzello.

On February 8 Mr. Fred Baum lectured before the association, at the usual hour, on the subject of D. C. motors, while the most recent lecturer was Mr. F. S. Pircher, E.E., who addressed the members on the subject of rheostats and Ohm's law.

SPEER

the Carbon with

A REPUTATION

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS

for A.C. Work

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS

for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY

SPEER CARBON COMPANY

ST. MARYS, PA.

THE CARBON THAT CHANGES A. C. TO D. C.

Noiseless operation, pure white light and a steady burning, has made the new National White A. C. Special Moving Picture Carbon the leader in the field.

It is absolutely unnecessary for you to invest a single cent in extra equipment to obtain excellent, low cost projection on alternating current.

A TRIAL ORDER WILL CONVINCE YOU

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade

300-302 Mallers Building 5 South Wabash Avenue

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

STOP LOOK

Before you lay this aside write to us at once and ask us to send you a descriptive catalog of our Motor Equipment for Power's 6A that will save you from $28.00 to $31.00.

We guarantee the efficiency of our Motor Equipments. We have Genuine Power parts, and we are Exclusive Distributors for the Peerless Simplex Projectors and all supplies.

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Operators' Inquiries

J. Sheetz, Northampton, Pa.: "We have a Power 6A and also a Power 5. Can I get an attachment from the Power Company which will enable me to operate the two machines from one motor?"

Reply: The Power Company supplies no attachment for running two projectors from the same motor, but some operators have designed and constructed apparatus wherewith this may be accomplished. To do this in an efficient and satisfactory manner requires rather elaborate equipment, as an example of which we might mention the Walstad Projection Stand, constructed by the Walstad Machine Company of Tacoma, Washington. One of these stands would doubtless prove just what is wanted. If, for any reason, the correspondent cannot avail himself of this apparatus, he might design a device for himself and have the same constructed at a machine shop.

F. J. Steiner, Pacific Grove, Cal.: "Inasmuch as the exchanges are now charging 15c. (war tax) per reel, shouldn't there be a standard unit of measure (or length) for a reel of film? At present we mostly get 4,000 feet on five spools and are charged for 5,000 feet."

Reply: It will be found that the presentation of a multiple-reel picture is frequently much improved by ending its several parts (or reels) at suitable points with respect to the action of the subject, or story. Under these circumstances it is not always feasible to include a full 1,000 feet of film on each spool, although on the other hand, a spool (or reel) sometimes carries well in excess of 1,000 feet of film. It is clearly a fraud and an injustice, however, for an exchange to charge (and tax) the exhibitor for more footage than is actually being supplied.

No definite footage has been advocated as constituting a reel of film, largely on account of the considerations mentioned above, and for this reason it would be difficult to make the various producers and exchanges agree to a definite unit. The injustice of charging exhibitors for footage which they do not receive will probably continue until some exhibitor with the necessary means makes a test-case of the matter.

S. A. Lurvey, So. West Harbor, Me.: "What is the correct size of loop to use, large, medium or small? What is the correct position of the framing-rod, up, down or in the middle? Will framing the picture make any change in the shutter with the majority of motion picture projectors?"

Reply: When the film is in good condition a medium-sized loop will be found safest and best, although it should be borne in mind that the size of the loops will be slightly different for various projectors on account of constructional differences in the machines. If the loops are too large they will slap against the film guards, etc., making an unnecessary and annoying amount of noise, while if the loops are too small there is the danger of losing the loop when a bad join or torn place in the film passes over the sprockets. Furthermore, a short loop will under certain conditions be still further shortened when the framer is manipulated, in the case of most projecting machines, as for example when the upper loop is small and the framer is moved upward, the loop will become still smaller while the lower loop is increased in length by an equal amount. The same is inversely true of a small lower loop when the framer is moved downward, and it is easy to see that in some instances the loop may be lost entirely by manipulating the framer, necessitating the replacement of the loop in order to steady the projected picture and to avoid serious damage to the perforations of the film.

The second query is vague, because it is well known that with any standard projection machine, in proper adjustment, the projection should be satisfactory regardless of the position of the framing lever. Presuming, however, that the question relates to the proper position for the framing lever when adjusting the revolving shutter, the answer is that when adjusting the shutter the framing lever should be at the midpoint of its travel.

Provided the revolving shutter has been correctly adjusted, or "set," with the framer in the middle position, and provided, furthermore, that there is not much lost motion in the shutter actuating gears, the manipulation of the framing lever throughout its entire extent of travel will not cause the revolving shutter to get out of proper relationship with the picture aperture. It is true that the shutter travels in concert with the framing device, in the case of the Simplex machine, but the cover blade of the Simplex shutter is of sufficient extent to prevent it from failing in its function, and, in addition, the shutter of the Simplex may be adjusted, if necessary, while the machine is in operation.

W. Rogers, Sapulpa, Okla. "How is the focal length of condensers measured, and what are the proper focal lengths to use with a 7-inch lens giving a picture 8 feet 1 inch by 10 feet 10 inches at 97 feet?

Reply: The focal length of a condenser lens can be very roughly estimated by focusing the image of an infinitely distant object upon a wall, or white paper screen, and measuring the distance between the lens and the image when the latter is as sharp as it can be focused. Due to aberration the image cast by a condenser lens is never very sharp, but will be at its best (in the case of a plano-convex lens) when the convex surface is toward the object. See Mr. Arkins' article on spherical aberration in the Projection Department of February 23rd. A closer evaluation of the focal length can, however, be secured by calculation using the following formula:

$$\frac{r_1 \times r_2}{(r_1 + r_2) \times (n - 1)}$$

Expressed in simple language this formula means: Multiply the radius of curvature of the first surface of the lens by the radius of curvature of the second surface, and divide this product by the sum of the same two radii multiplied by the refractive index of the glass minus that of air. The difference in indices between crown glass and air (denoted by $n - 1$ in the formula) may be taken as 0.52 which is near enough for all condenser calculations. It is to be noted that lens curvatures are always expressed in terms of the radii, instead of the diameters, of the spheres of which the lenses represent a portion. One does not need a spherometer to measure the curvatures of condenser surfaces. Instead a number of circles of various diameters should be inscribed on separate pieces of cardboard. These are now accurately and cleanly cut out, and a portion of the remaining cardboard border makes a serviceable template or guage which can be applied to the lens surface. The radius (one half the diameter) of the circle of which each template is a segment should be marked thereon, and the radius of curvature of any condenser lens surface can then be determined by applying various templates until the one is found which exactly conforms to the curvature of the lens. In the case of a plano-convex lens only one curvature has to be measured because the flat side has an infinitely long radius, and if, for example, we found the radius of the curved surface to be 3.25 our formula would give us the focal length of the lens.

$$\frac{3.25}{0.52} = 6.25 \text{ inches,}$$

The dimensions of the picture mentioned, viz.: 8 ft. 1 in. by 10 ft. 10 in. are not what would be expected for a 7 inch objective and a 97 foot throw; the calculated dimensions under these conditions being approximately 9 ft. 4 in. by 12 ft. 6 in. However, if the objective is, as stated, of 7 in. E. F., two 7½ condensers should be used.

National Anti-Misframe League
Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Roll of Honor

William C. Widman.....Brooklyn, N. Y.
William Roraff.....La Crosse, Wis.
Irvin Givler.....Allentown, Pa.
Harry C. Johns.....Ogden, Utah
J. Marlin Chenawith.....Morgantown, W. Va.
Fred C. Shivers.....Lexington, Nebr.
Ray Greenwood.....Battle Creek, Mich.
Otis F. McAllister.....Battle Creek, Mich.
H. A. Garrett.....Parkin, Ark.
George Schroeder, Jr.....Oak Harbor, Ohio
H. C. Frahm.....Kiester, Minn.
Wm. C. Giles.....Brownsville, Pa.
Eugene Kretzinger.....Chestnut, Ill.

Members previously recorded..... 767
Members recorded this week..... 13

Total membership to date..... 780

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Member's name.....

Home address.....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but it is for those who have neglected doing so, many having merely given their names and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office to deliver the letters addressed to them.

More League Members Join Colors

WE are proud to announce that two more progressive members of the National Anti-Misframe League have "joined up" in response to their country's call.

These men are Mr. Robert S. Mix of Williamsport, Pa., and Mr. Leonard E. Boyce of Fayette, Ohio. Mr. Mix has chosen the army and is now stationed at Fort Slocum, N. Y., while Mr. Boyce has elected to serve in the navy.

We extend our congratulations and best wishes to these patriotic members of the N. A. M. L. and we are sure that their fellow members will also subscribe to our sentiments.

WHITE A. C. SPECIAL CARBONS

FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT PROJECTION

These Standard Carbons Give Pure White Light

The White A. C. Special Carbons have been used in all parts of the country by critical operators and have met the requirements so exactly that they are now considered as standard. Claims made for these carbons are absolutely true, not a bit exaggerated, they give a pure white light, the nearest approach to daylight of any screen illuminant, and a quiet arc. If you are getting poor results on alternating current, try these carbons and compare results with the old, roaring A. C. arc.

You Will Be Well Repaid

A point to be remembered is that you need not make a single change in your equipment. Simply take out the old carbons and insert the White A. C. Specials and you will have the best light at the least expense.

FOR DIRECT CURRENT PROJECTION

The National-Silvertip combination is well known to the majority of successful operators. It is the standard trim for Direct Current projection, giving a steady, flickerless light and carrying the high currents which are so necessary for projecting the modern film.

Write today for our folders describing these carbons

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, INC. Cleveland, Ohio

The Camera

Some Peculiarities of Color and Their Bearing on Photographic Work

By A. J. Bull

[This lecture, delivered before the Royal Photographic Society, London, draws attention to some characteristics of colors, which are not only of interest to color photographers, but also of importance to those who have to deal with photographic reproduction of colored objects in monochrome.—Ed. Camera Dept.]

LIGHT falling upon an object to be photographed is reflected from the surface, but we are concerned not merely with the light which is reflected at the actual surface of the object but also with the light which penetrates a little way into the substance and is reflected as it were from the inside of the material. The depth of penetration of the light may be very slight, but provided that the light penetrates the object at all and goes a little way through the substance, that light is subjected to the effect of selective absorption. If the whole of the visible light is reflected, then we say that the object is white, but it may very well happen that some of the constituents of the light are absorbed, and then we speak of the light which is sent back to the eye as colored, because it is white light less some of its colored constituents.

Colors produced in this way by selective absorption have varying properties, and I will show an experiment to demonstrate some of the differences that exist. We take a solution of potassium permanganate and place it in the path of a beam of light, and in the path of another beam we place a solution of one-tenth the strength. There is a difference in brilliancy and also in color. By stopping down the lens through which the brighter beam is passing we bring our two images roughly to the same brilliancy, and then it is seen that there is a decided difference in color: one is blue while the other is pink. Here is a case where the color of the light which has passed through an absorbing medium differs in quality with the strength of that medium.

If we now place in the path of one beam a solution of picric acid and in the path of the other beam a solution diluted ten times with water, we shall see that while the dilute solution allows more light to go through, the change in color is not so great, and if we reduce the amount of light passing through the lighter solution, we see that the difference in color produced by the effect of dilution is but slight.

If a piece of yellow film is placed half-way across the spectrum, then it will be seen that the reason why the dilution of the picric acid solution produces so little change in its color is that yellow is opaque to blue and to violet light, while it is, on the other hand, very transparent to the remaining constituents of white light. In such a case, when by selective absorption one constituent of the white light is completely removed and the remaining constituents are allowed to pass in considerable quantity, then not much change is obtained in the color, whether the solution is strong or weak.

We are aware, of course, that all ordinary colors are produced by removal of some of the constituents of white light by selective absorption; but it does not follow that this occurs very often. In a large number of cases the absorption is more or less gradual, and then the effects are more complicated.

The fact that yellow is a compound color and is produced by the abstraction of the blue-violet constituents of the white light, and that the removal of those constituents is very often complete, is a phenomenon which has many bearings on photographic work.

Safe-lights, which are used in the wet-collodion process, are a bright yellow. Wet plate work is conducted under modern conditions of process engraving in a room which is well lighted, and this is possible partly because of the efficiency of the safe-lights. It is easy to construct safe-lights which remove the whole of the blue-violet and ultra-violet light, and allow to pass all those brilliant red, yellow and green rays which give to the eye the effect of yellow. The efficiency of orthochromatic filters also is affected considerably by this point. Ordinary yellow filters for orthochromatic work are very efficient. The amount of light of longer wave-length —the red and green light—which they obstruct is very slight, but by using the dye in suitable quantities one may grade down the blue light just to the extent which is required.

I show now a photograph of some buttercups on a wet collodion plate as used by the process engraver. The brilliant yellow flowers are rendered as black, the reason being that the petals of the buttercups do not return to the camera any of the light to which that plate is sensitive, and this point is, perhaps, a little remarkable because it is only occasionally that one gets the whole of the blue and violet light so completely removed that it cannot produce any effect at all upon the ordinary photographic plate.

Now we come to a group of subjects which show this effect most markedly. These are objects which are varnished with a yellow varnish. In these cases the actual varnish lying on the top of the wood or the oil painting very often plays a most striking part in the result. The varnish is itself somewhat yellow, but the light which falls upon it is partly reflected at the topmost surface. One thus gets a considerable amount of surface reflection, much of it being regular. That light is white, it therefore contains the blue and violet constituents which affect the ordinary photographic plate, so that an object of this type, when photographed on an ordinary plate, is recorded chiefly by part of the surface-reflected light. If, however, we photograph by the longer wave-lengths, we get a record of what is under the yellow varnished screen.

I have one case in which the object can only be photographed by light which passes through it. It is a piece of old Kauri gum containing some insects. The rendering with the ordinary plate shows no sign whatever of the insects. It is the complete removal by selective absorption of all the light to which the ordinary photographic plate is sensitive which produces this result. When, however, this same object is photographed by the longer wave-lengths of red, yellow and green, then we are able to obtain a record of what is inside this substance, and the insects are plainly visible. There is always that difference between the two cases. When one is photographing an object by reflected light, then whatever kind of light is used for taking the photograph, one can always obtain some sort of result, but as in the photography of insects in amber, where the light has to penetrate through the material, if selective absorption by a yellow-colored material occurs, then it may mean that the light which is ordinarily used for photographic work is removed. Although some of these instances may seem commonplace, I emphasize them because the peculiarities of yellow are not those of many colors.

Let us now turn to the question of greens, which do not act in quite the same way as yellow. If we take any green dye and place it in the path of the light, we shall find that, while it produces its effect by selective absorption—that is to say, by the removal of some of the constituents of the white light—there is, nevertheless, the difference that it does not transmit the whole of the green light.

That is quite a common characteristic of green, more so than one might at first suppose. If the greens that occur in nature are examined it will be found that in practically every case they do not return anything like the whole of the green light which falls on them back into the air, and in many cases, especially if we were to try the experiment with such green leaves as are now (December) available, we should find that the reflection of green light only amounts to 4 or 5 per cent. In no case does the reflection of green from the green leaf amount to more than one-third. Yellow and blue make green, but the green filters for photographic work do not admit of the same efficient construction as do the yellow filters, and the reason is that we have not in the case of blues a color which acts in the same way. In the case of the blues and greens we do not have a complete absorption of any one color and an efficient transmission of the remaining colors. We are here dealing with a class of colors which are apt to change according to their strength.

I show a photograph on the screen of a landscape in which the leaves on the trees give no evidence of detail upon the exposed under surfaces, whereas the upper surfaces are only too well exposed. Here we are dealing with the effect of surface reflection. The leaves are spread out in the way that nature has provided so as to catch as much of the suns rays as possible. The solar light, falling on this leaf, is reflected to some extent at the surface, and that surface reflection, comprising as it does every kind of light which the sun has sent to the leaf, has among its components just those particular wave-lengths which affect the photographic plate, and so this is well exposed. But the light which penetrates the leaf has undergone selective absorption. If we photograph the same object again, using light which comprises green among its components, we shall be able to photograph the detail of the undersides of leaves, and in this case we no longer have the violent contrast between the surface reflection and the dark underside of the leaf, because the green light is being photographically recorded.

There are two cases of selective absorption in marked contrast. We have, on the one hand, the case where some light absorbed is absorbed very completely, and the other light is transmitted almost in its entirety. On the other hand, we have the more common case where no one constituent of the white light is completely absorbed and no one constituent completely transmitted. It is very fortunate —indeed, there is probably a great natural law behind it—that it is in some of the useful cases that there is complete absorption and high transmission. Complete absorption is only combined with high transmission in those cases in which it is the shorter wave-lengths which are absorbed and the longer wave-lengths which are transmitted. In all other cases we have nothing so definite.

Tinting Cine Film by Means of Colloidal Inorganic Salts

(From the monthly abstract bulletin of the Kodak Research Laboratory.)

CERTAIN inorganic compounds such as the ferrocyanides of iron and uranium, lead sulphide, etc., when precipitated in gelatine in the colloidal condition are highly colored and transparent, and advantage can be taken of this fact for the tinting of lantern slides and motion picture film. For a blue tint, the film is first immersed in a 1 per cent solution of potassium ferricyanide and finally washed. The depth of tint obtained varies with the concentration of the ferric alum, the time of immersion, the time of rinsing, and the temperature of the solutions, but is practically independent of the concentration of the ferricyanide. Uranium ferrocyanide (orange) and lead sulphide (brown) tints may be obtained in a similar manner. By precipitating a mixture of iron and uranium ferrocyanides in suitable proportion, tints intermediate between blue and dark orange may be obtained. Any tint may be duplicated within narrow limits, while the wearing qualities of the film are not affected by the process. The tints are stable to light, though the iron and uranium ferrocyanides are soluble in alkali.

J. I. CRABTREE.

Spots on Film Caused by Aluminium Dust

(From the Monthly Abstract Bulletin of the Kodak Research Laboratory)

DARK spots on a sample of motion picture film submitted showed a central dark nucleus surrounded by a white incrustation (visible on the surface by reflected light) which, in turn, was surrounded by a ring of fog, with or without a tail. In some cases the tail was very pronounced and was of the order of one-quarter of an inch long. From the behavior of the incrustation towards acids the presence of aluminum was suspected; and it was found possible to duplicate the spots by allowing freshly scraped aluminum filings to fall upon a piece of moistened film; after allowing this to stand for a short time, the film was developed, fixed, washed and dried in the regular way. It seemed most probable that the dust particles had access to the film in the camera, and on examining a number of motion picture cameras particles of aluminum dust were found inside them. The importance of keeping the camera free from such dust is therefore apparent.

J. I. CRABTREE.

The film that first made motion pictures practical is easily identifiable by the words

"EASTMAN"
AND "KODAK"

on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

DECIDE ON EVANS' DEVELOPING AND PRINTING SERVICE

NOW IS THE TIME

The responsibility and experience it will bring to your productions will enhance their value greatly in the eye of the critical public. Promptness is another feature that will commend our service to you when you are in a hurry.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th Street, New York City
Telephone
St. Nicholas 3443-3444

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS
A FEW REASONS

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs, Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

why "NEWMAN" METAL FRAMES have been chosen by all the big circuits and best class of theatres.

1—Because the constant exposure to all sorts of weather conditions cannot affect "NEWMAN" NON-CORROSIVE METAL FRAMES.

2—Because of their richness in beauty and design, they liven the entrance and render the lobby more inviting than any other kind of frames.

3—Because they will outlast a dozen wood frames. They are practically un-wear-out-able.

INSIST ON THE NAME "NEWMAN" WHEN BUYING FRAMES

Write for New 1918 Catalog

THE NEWMAN MFG. CO.
Established 1882
717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.

The Eyes of the World

follow nightly the swift rush of events across the motion picture screen. Are those eyes tired from gazing at blurred images? Not in your house, if you use

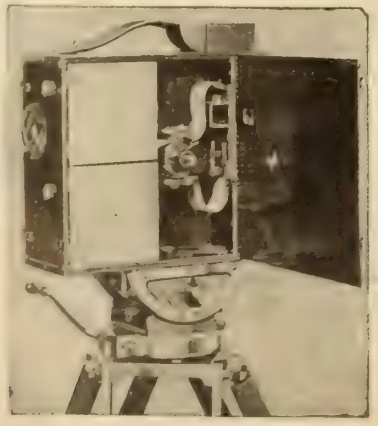
Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

They make pictures easy to watch, because they give perfect clearness, even to the edge of the screen, and make the most out of every detail of the film. As essential to good pictures as is the film itself.

Booklet on request. Let us quote on your requirements.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
569 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco

Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons), and Other High-Grade Optical Products.



BIG ADVANCE IN M. P. PHOTOGRAPHY

Six great scientific improvements make the Universal M. P. Camera the choice of expert camera men everywhere. Wonder-value at less than half standard m. p. camera prices! You want it.

UNIVERSAL MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

See how it increases your speed, improves framing, film transmission, focusing, eliminates static, etc. New automatic dissolve ready.

Write for Catalog

BURKE & JAMES Inc.
Makers of Rexo M. F. Film
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

(Continued from page 1614)

mains that this idea was not brought out to its fullest significance, a significance which would have meant a denouement of much more than ordinary strength.

In all other respects "The Sign Invisible" may be awarded the warmest praise. The acting is of a superior order and Edgar Lewis, producer and director, always to be counted upon for turning out a picture fairly teeming with the desired atmosphere, has not failed in this, his latest effort. While Mitchell Lewis, the great star of "The Barrier" and "The Bar Sinister," is featured on the bill, his part, though sympathetically molded to suit him, is not the most prominent. It is to Victor Sutherland that stellar honors should go if they are being allotted. His performance as the harassed surgeon is notable for its depth of feeling and for its emotional intensity in the bigger scenes. Mr. Lewis as the half-breed is fine, but with little opportunity. Mabel Julienne Scott makes a spirited figure of the heroine.

Anthony P. Kelly is author of the picture. Save for the final situation already referred to, his work is of the high caliber that marks all pictures of his authorship. The continuity and the development of the story were handled with care and good judgment. The photographic work is highly commendable.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Dr. Robert Winston (Victor Sutherland), a prominent surgeon, gradually loses faith in his ability as several patients die under his knife. His faith in God is completely swept away when his mother dies while he operates on her. He seeks to drown his sorrow in drink and takes himself off to the north country. Here at the trading post he meets Jeanette (Mabel Julienne Scott), daughter of the minister (William A. Williams), who when she learns of his unbelief denounces him as a sinner. Lone Deer (Mitchell Lewis), a half-breed, also at the trading post, knows and trusts Mercier and his daughter though adhering to the faith of his fathers. Gradually Winston rises in Jeanette's estimation and her interest in him serves to revive his good qualities. Lou Baribeau (Edward F. Roseman), the dishonest and oppressive factor at the post, is at length dismissed, owing to repeated complaints received by the manager. In revenge he kidnaps the girl, but Lone Deer comes to her rescue. In a fight he receives a cut in the face which deprives him of his sight and a very serious shot wound in his side. Mercier urges Winston to operate. Without faith in his success, Winston agrees to do so. He announces that Lone Deer would probably regain his sight if he lived, but that he will be unable to save him by operating. When it is finished he prays in desperate despair for Lone Deer's recovery and his prayer is answered. However, the wounded man does not regain his sight. Evidently the pronouncement of science through Winston was altered by some greater power. But Lone Deer is made happy by the return of his Indian sweetheart (Hedda Nova), thought dead, and one is left to surmise of a future happy existence of Winston and Jeanette.

"Hungry Eyes"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

WHILE beautiful exteriors and superb photography do not necessarily make the picture, they do much to make "Hungry Eyes" enjoyable and Monroe Salisbury, with his magnetic personality, and Ruth Clifford, with her prettiness and rapidly developing talent serve to make it considerably so. It is a Western and its weakest point is its story. Much of the action is played with all the intensity at the command of the performers. Mr. Salisbury in particular has a manner of flashing fire from his eyes that makes one clutch the arms of his chair at the prospect of impending danger. And yet all this action which the cast interprets so ably is derived from a half serious, half cloudy premise on which the author builds. If the cast had only something more substantial to work with, then might "Hungry Eyes" have ranked high among Westerns.

However, the five reels with their excellent backgrounds and the presence of two such capable leads are far from being void of all interest. And after all if some of the action cannot be taken as seriously as the players would have it, the effect is not so bad, for there is something of a relief in a Western keyed in lighter vein. There is plenty of comedy, too, of which Rupert Julian in an eccentric character part is the chief interpreter. Mr. Julian directed from a scenario by Eliott J. Clawson.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Dale Revenal (Monroe Salisbury) arrives at the Appleton ranch looking for work. He has a prison record as a horse thief, but is recommended so highly by John Silver, friend of old Appleton (W. H. Bainbridge), that he gets a job. Mary Jane Appleton (Ruth Clifford) falls in love with him as soon as she sees him, and all the tales of his prison record and a "wife and kids in Arizona" will not alter her opinion of him. Nelda (A. H. Barros), neighboring rancher, seeks Mary Jane's hand, and to please her father she consents to marry him. Dale sees the wickedness of Nelda, and insults him purposely. Nelda plans to "get" Dale. A woman, Bessie Dupont (Gretchen Lederer), whom Nelda has in his power, is told to betray Nelda into the proposed trap, but instead she tips him off. As a result he surprises Nelda. However, when Dale's back is turned he receives a bullet in his shoulder. In the meantime John Silver (Rupert Julian) has arrived to prove that all Dale's statements about a prison term are mere talk, and his "wife from Arizona" proves to be his sister—so Mary Jane is happy.

Music and the Picture

Compositions of Dramatic Value

THE Film Director, unfortunately, does not as a rule consider music in "assembling" his pictures; hence it is all the more necessary for the musical leaders to consider the pictures in adapting his music, on the principle that "Since the mountain did not come to Mohammed, Mohammed went to the mountain." Dramatic photoplay situations are in the most cases either psychic (emotional, without much action), or physical (in which emotion is expressed in movement). In "romantic" situations, where love, hatred, anxiety, despair, horror, ecstasy, etc., are shown by facial registration and with little or no bodily movement, dramatic maestosos, lentos, adagios or andantes are best employed; while in scenes of physical violence or agitation, bodily struggles, encounters, etc., agitatos, "hurries" and furiosos are the proper musical mediums of expression.

Music can properly interpret and emphasize practically every human emotion portrayed in the photoplay. And it is the place of the orchestra leader to immediately recognize the dramatic musical possibilities of a picture and to "augment and support them through the medium of his art."

The most important point for the orchestra leader is to acquire an appropriate musical library. We know that real Dramatic Compositions are hard to obtain, we also know that many publications are advertised as Dramatic Compositions, but turn out to be Dramatic in name only, but almost anything in character. Being aware of this fact, and as the Music Editor of this page, I consider it my duty to call your attention to a Series of Incidental Music which has recently been published and which I have personally used to great advantage. Every composition in this Series signifies its purpose through its title, and I sincerely recommend this edition to every musician who aims to interpret the Photoplay with appropriate music.

1—"The Cinema Incidental Series," published by the "Cinema Music Company," Columbia Theatre Building, Seventh Ave. and 47th St., New York City, consisting of ten numbers (with more numbers in preparation):

1.—The Vampire (a Dramatic Theme), by Sol. P. Levy
2.—Pathetic Andante.....by Paul Vely
3.—Dramatic Recitative.....by Sol. P. Levy
4.—Dramatic Agitato.....by H. Hough
5.—Heavy Misterioso.....by Sol. P. Levy
6.—Dramatic Tension.....by Sol. P. Levy
7.—Dramatic Narrative.....by Pauline Pement
8.—Sorrow Theme.....by Edouard Roberts
9.—Tragic Theme.....by Paul Vely
10.—Love Theme.....by Abbot Lee

2—G. Schirmer's "Photo Play Series," published by G. Schirmer, 3 E. 43rd St., New York City:

1.—Hurry No. 1.....Langey
2.—Furioso No. 1.....Langey
3.—Agitato No. 1.....Langey
4.—Hurry No. 2.....Langey
5.—Misterioso No. 1.....Langey
6.—Misterioso No. 2.....Minot
7.—Allegro No. 1.....Minot
8.—Misterioso No. 3.....Andino
9.—Agitato No. 2.....Andino
10.—Agitato No. 3.....Langey
11.—Furioso No. 2.....Langey
12.—Hurry No. 3.....Langey
13.—Andante Pathetique.....Langey
14.—Galop No. 1.....Gungl-Langey
15.—Allegro Vivace No. 1.....Langey
16.—Allegro No. 2.....Langey
17.—Galop No. 2.....Langey
18.—Allegro and Andante.....Langey
19.—Agitato No. 4.....Minot
20.—Hurry No. 4.....Minot

3—The Carl Fischer "Moving Picture Series," published by Carl Fischer, Cooper Square, New York City, consisting of fifty numbers.

1.—Dramatic Tension.....by E. Ascher
3.—Dramatic Maestoso.....by E. Ascher
5.—Dramatic Andante.....by E. Ascher
12.—Dramatic Love Theme.....by Loraine
13.—Dramatic Maestoso.....by Loraine
14.—Dramatic Tension.....by Reissiger
30.—Dramatic Adagio.....by Kretschmer
35.—Dramatic Adagio.....by Funk
37.—Heavy Dramatic.....by Ochmler, etc.

4—Carl Breil's Collection of "Dramatic Music," published by "Chappell & Co.," New York City, consisting of twelve numbers.

1.—Molto Agitato
2.—Allegro Agitato
3.—Agitato Misterioso
4.—Misterioso and Lamentoso
5.—Molto Agitato
6.—Andante Misterioso
7.—Misterioso Moderato
8.—Love Theme No. 1
9.—Love Theme No. 2
10.—Recitativo
11.—Utility Theme
12.—Marcia Funelere

General Comments

THE Young Music Co. of Columbus, Ohio, has opened an office at 146 West Forty-fifth street, where Fred Forster used to be. The firm is making excellent progress with its feature number, "We'll Follow Pershing Into Old Berlin," and the fact that it has been listed by the five and ten-cent stores is cogent proof that there must be many calls for it.

Meyer Cohen, now head of the Meyer Cohen Music Co., Inc., has songs by Bide Dudley, Leo. Wood and Blanche Merrill. "There's a Vacant Chair in Every Home Tonight," with which he started business, is a splendid number for patriotic photoplays.

L. Wolfe Gilbert and Anatol Friedland have just finished a brand new song that carries a brand new idea. It is the best song for boy and girl acts that has been published in years, and it is going to be a joy to moving picture musicians. Just what girls will do when they hear it played in ball-rooms has been cut by the censor.

Harry Tenney, professional manager for Jos. W. Stern & Co., has proved his worth by putting over "Send Back Dear Daddy to Me." The melody gives Irving Maslof the right to call himself a popular composer.

"When the Yanks Come Marching Home," by Seymour Furth and William Jerome, is filling the gap in sales left by the transfer of "Over There" to Leo. Feist.

The biggest phonograph seller on the market today is "It's a Long Way to Berlin," by Arthur Fields and L. Flatow, and published by Leo. Feist.

"FAUGH-A-BALLAGH," published by the F. J. A. Forster Music Co., Inc., is a big hit in the Middle West with performers and leaders. It is starting out to win success just as "Missouri Waltz" did some time ago. Fred Forster is still on the Coast, and he is perfectly satisfied with the reports relative to "Faugh-A-Ballagh," which has been mentioned in more than a dozen press dispatches coming from France.

THE SOLDIERS' AND SAILORS' SONG BOOK, published by Leo Feist, is going faster than some of the hits of other catalogues. With a copy of it in hand musicians can get a good line on many of Feist's new numbers.

NONA

THE SENSATIONAL WALTZ HIT!!

Waltz, for Piano - - -	15c
Vocal - - - - -	15c
Orchestra, 11 and Piano -	25c
Orchestra, Full and Piano -	35c

The Tune That Sticks

WHY?

IT'S DIFFERENT!

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

Operators' Licenses

(Continued from page 1621)

devoted to the projection of motion pictures." (End of change.)

COMMENT—We do not believe that any man should receive a license as a full-fledged operator under twenty-one years of age. A projection machine in improper hands is a menace, though in proper hands it is absolutely safe. Therefore, we advocate that a man be of age before he is allowed to run a projector when human lives are in the balance. Let him graduate from his boyish and playful ways before taking over a job where a man with a cool head is needed. This does not always apply, but the few exceptions must suffer for they all must be governed by the same law.

The bill continues: "Any person offending against the provisions of this section, as well as any person who employs or permits a person not licensed as herein provided to operate moving picture apparatus and its connections, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction thereof shall be punished by a fine not exceeding the sum of one hundred dollars, or imprisonment for a period not exceeding three months, or both.

"Section 2. This act shall take effect immediately."

GENERAL COMMENT—There are three important provisions which should have been included in this act:

1. Every applicant for a license should be made to pass an examination on all laws of the state and the ordinances of the city which govern the operation of motion picture apparatus, as well as the laws which actually govern the issuance of the license.

2. The theatre license and the operator's license should be issued from the same bureau. A theatre manager should be held responsible for the action of his operator. If the theatre man breaks the law his theatre license should be taken away just as it should be if his operator is found breaking the law. At the present time, with two bureaus handling the licenses, there is a continuous "passing of the buck." There should be one supreme authority over both and this authority should be exerted according to the letter of the law.

3. When a man is found breaking the law he should have his license permanently revoked, without appeal. If he has not a realization of the importance of his position he has no business acting as a motion picture machine operator. E. K. Gillett.

"STELLA MARIS"

(Artcraft Production)
(Reviewed on page 733)

Theme: "After Sunset" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato) by A. Pryor

1—"Pathetic Andante" by Paul Vely until—T: "Sir Oliver and Cady," etc.
2—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto) by Pierne until—S: Children near wall.
3—"Ringelreihn" (Children Dance) until T: "Among the women who think," etc.
4—"La Grace" (Piece Le Genre) by Bohm until—S: Woman smoking cigarette.
5—"Dramatic Recitative" by Sol. P. Levy until—S: Chop house in view.
6—"Petite Serenade" (Allegretto) by Horton until—T: "Servants were always leaving," etc.
7—Theme until—T: "Comes Spring to lay."
8—"Whispering Flowers" (Characteristic) by Blon until—S: Boys running away with basket.
9—"Dramatic Agitato" by H. Hough until—S: Newspaper clipping.
10—"Cavatine" (Dramatic Moderato) by Bohm until—T: "Six months later."
11—"Mon Plaisir" (Valse Mod.) by Lee S. Roberts until—T: "As the weeks pass by."
12—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo) by Herman until—T: "She's just a little villager."
13—Continue pp until—T: "A consultation of England's foremost."
14—Theme until—T: "Aunt Gladys Linden."
15—Humoresque (Characteristic) by Tschaikowsky until—T: "The Surgeon's prophecy," etc.
16—"Pastel Menuet" (3/4 Allegro giocoso) by Paradis until—T: "For John Riska's sake."
17—"Sparklets" (Moderato) by Miles until—T: "For the woman who is still his wife."
18—"Tragic Theme" by Paul Vely until—T: "The passing days bring their glow."
19—Theme until S: Exterior scene—Soldiers marching.
20—"Soldiers of the King" March by Pary until—T: "And yet I do not want to believe."
21—"Venetia" (Spring Song) by Tobani until—T: "Longing to see John."
22—"Heartwounds" (Pathetic Dramatic) by Grieg until—T: "Romance born in the moonlight."
23—"Lovers' Lane" (Characteristic) by A. Pryor until—T: "Why are you so unhappy?"
24—Theme until—T: "Stella Maris journeys," etc.
25—"Sorrow Theme" by Ed. Roberts until—T: "It hurts to think."
26—Continue pp until—S: Orphan girl brushing coat.

27—"Moment Musical" (Moderato) by Schubert until—T: "By early winter," etc.
28—"Dawn of Hope" (Dramatic Andante by Casella until—T: "Dusk of the following day."
29—"Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol. P. Levy until—S: Change of scene.
30—Organ Solo to action until—S: Automobile in view.
31—"Prelude" (Heavy Dramatic) by Rachmaninoff until—T: "The years of the spring," etc.
32—Theme ff until * * * * * * * * * * END.

"THE KNIFE"

(Select Pictures)
(Reviewed on page 1187)

Theme: "Love Theme" by Herzberg

1—"La Colombe" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Gounod, until—T: "Now that you are of age."
2—Continue to action, until—T: "Kate, is it possible that? etc."
Note.—Watch shots.
3—Silence, until—S: "Colored servant in view."
4—Organ imitation of "Mouth Organ," until—S: "Flashback to former scene."
Note.—Small colored boy playing a mouth organ.
5—"Wooing Hour," Serenade (2/4 Moderato grazioso), by Zamezznik, until—T: "Take my love with you."
6—Theme, until—T: "There's a dark cloud."
7—Silence—Tympany Rolls ad. lib. only, until—T: "The wonderful city."
8—"Valse Lente," by Schuett, until—T: "We believe that Dr. R. Manning."
9—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "You're a stranger here?"
10—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Levy, until—S: "Interior of hospital."
11—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia), by Bach, until—T: "It takes a lot to put her away."
12—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—T: "You're sure Kate didn't say."
13—"Romance" from "King Manfred" (3/4 Andante Sostenuto), by Reinecke, until—T: "Meredith, I am in trouble."
14—"Second Movement," Allegro, from the "Romantic Overture" by Keler-Bela, until—S: "Kate gradually waking up."
15—"Dramatic Agitato," pp, by H. Hough, until—S: "Kate sees the stranger and screams."
16—Continue ff, until—T: "Dr. Manning she may need a woman."
17—"Mysterioso No. 23," by Becker, until—S: "The fight in the dark room."
18—"Mysterioso Agitato No. 33," by Becker, until—S: "After the fight."
19—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "I am going to get the truth."
20—"Dramatic Tension" (for heavy disputes), by E. Ascher, until—T: "Kate, don't you know me?"
21—Theme, until—T: "Don't let Dr. Manning, etc."
22—Heavy Dramatic Allegro to action, until—T: "God has sent me these healthy bodies."
23—Love Theme, until—T: "The balm of oblivion."
24—"Dolce Far Niente" (9/8 Mod.), by L. Hosmer, until—T: "The haunts of memory."
25—"Serenade" (6/8 Allegretto), by Saint-Saens, until—S: "Kate enters Doctor Manning's office."
26—Theme, until—T: "Dearest, I have to talk to Mr. Scott."
27—"Dramatic Theme," by Levy, until—T: "You're framing me."
28—"Prelude" (Heavy Dramatic), by Rachmaninoff, until—T: "Go back home, Mary."
29—Theme, until * * * * * END.

"FROM TWO TO SIX"

(Triangle Production)
(Reviewed on page 1185)

Spy Theme: "Heavy Mysterioso" by Sol. P. Levy

1—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—S: "Woman enters inventor's room."
2—"Serenade" (Allegretto), by Saint Saens, until—T: "Fate plays into the hands,"
3—"Hurry No. 4," by Lake, until—T: "Maybe the police can head her off."
4—Theme, until—T: "You can catch the 3 o'clock."
5—"Canzonetta" (Mod.), by Nicode, until—T: "Margaret Worth has a mind of her own."
6—"Fifth Nocturno" (Melodious Allegretto), by Leybach, until—T: "Still thinking of him, etc."
7—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "I'm going to hide out here until the row's over."
8—Theme, until—T: "Here is the key to the, etc."
9—"Return to Me Soon" (Allegro), by Gregh, until—T: "Please connect me with room 309."
10—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia), by Bach, until—S: "Girl near door of room 310."
11—"Mysterioso Pizzicato," by Lake, until—T: "How you startled me."
12—"Dramatic Mysterioso," by Borch, until—T: "How dare you, you brute!"
13—"Mysterioso Agitato," by Becker, until—T: "I sail for Europe to-morrow."
14—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "Of course I will do anything in my power."
15—Theme, until—T: "House detective first to respond, etc."
16—"Vanity" (Allegro Caprice), by Jackson, until—T: "I've got it all fixed."
17—"Dramatic Tension No. 1," by Reissiger, until—T: "Well, here we are, etc."
18—"Love Theme," by Herzberg, until—S: "Interior of the Baron's room."
19—"Dramatic Tension," by Andino, No. 9, until—T: "After the hasty ceremony."
20—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo), by Herman, until—S: "Metropolitan tower in view."
21—Theme, until * * * * * END.

CHARLIE HUERTER

is the best man to-day writing music that fits the pictures.

HIS TEN BEST PIANO PIECES

TOLD AT TWILIGHT	.60
IN THE STARLIGHT	.60
IN SPRINGTIME	.60
INTERMEZZO	.60
MELODIE	.60
YESTERDAYS	.50
CAPRICE	.50
VALSE	.60
BERCEUSE	.60
SCENE DE BALLET	.60

HIS FAVORITE ORCHESTRATIONS

TOLD AT TWILIGHT	.75
MELODY	.75
INTERMEZZO	.75

NO FEES
for performance

Thematic catalogue sent on request

SPECIAL OFFER
to readers of the M. P. News

Ten best Piano Pieces.....$2.00 postpaid
Favorite orchestrations.....$1.00 postpaid

THE BOSTON MUSIC COMPANY ∴ 26 WEST STREET BOSTON, MASS.

IMPORTANT

Cue No. 6—Phonograph Record.
Cues No. 7, 8, 9, 10 should be carefully played with all effects as indicated on cue sheet.
Cue No. 11—To obtain the proper slide effects of the trombone, this number should be played slow.
Cue No. 12—This effect is very important.
Cue No. 13—Phonograph.
Cue No. 15—Best place for an orchestra rest.
Cue No. 18—Must be played slow.

"JACK SPURLOCK PRODIGAL"

(Fox Production)

(Reviewed on page 1183)

Theme: "Le Secret" (Intermezzo) by Gautier

1—Theme, until—T: "In a small college town."
2—"College Life" (March), by Frantzen, until—S: "Young man dancing on table."
3—"Cleopatra Had a Jazz Band" (Leo Feist Ed.), until—T: "Up with your napkins, boys."
4—Continue to action until—T: "Bring on your pink elephant."
5—"Everybody Is Doing It Now" (old song hit by Irving Berlin), until—T: "Pardon me, what do you say?"
Note.—This song is not appropriate for this cue due to the bear, who predominates the entire situation.
6—"In the Land of Wedding Bells," Fox Trot (Leo Feist Ed.), until S: "Bear stopping phonograph."
Note.—Must be produced on a phonograph.
7—Silence, produce effect of scratching a record, ff followed by 8—"Sleep, Baby, Sleep" (old popular song hit), until—S: "Bear enters bathroom."
9—Silence until—S: "Walsh enters his bathroom."
10—Silence with ad. lib. effects, imitation of bear growl, until—T: "Since meeting Jack Spurlock."
11—"Slippery Hank," Rag (Vandersloot Ed.), until—S: "Bear
Note.—Play it slow
in bathroom."
12—Silence, with effect of bear growl, until—T: "What was that disturbance?"
13—Phonograph Record (Waltz), with effect of bear growl, until—T: "Are you aware that mother, etc."
14—Stop Phonograph, then silence, until—T: "The college classroom."
15—Only possible Orchestra rest, until—T: "So Jack Spurlock, star, etc."
16—Theme, until—T: "Injudicious buying, etc."
17—"Ragged Thoughts," by von der Mehden, until—T: "Gee! Governor, did I buy onions? etc."
18—"Jazzin Around," One Step (Feist Ed.), until—T: "Long before Jack's arrival."
Note.—Play very slow.
19—"Moderate Agitato" for mob scene, until—T: "Wait, I come not to praise, etc."
20—"Herzensdieb Caprice," by Popp, until—T: "Hold those reporters off."
21—"Passaialle Intermezzo," by Gregh, until—T: "Jack arrived at his office."
22—"Sparkling Eyes Morceau," by Puerner, until—T: "Jack's only rival."
23—"Ghost Dance," by Salisbury, until—T: "So Jack now had a pull."
24—"La Toupie," by Gillet, until—T: "Why! I have got enough onions."
25—"Cricket's Serenade," by Bendix, until—T: "I'll call the cops."
26—Light Hurry to action, until—T: "We'll organize a company.
27—Theme, until * * * * * END.

"KEITH OF THE BORDER"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 1185)

Theme: "Dramatic Narrative" by Pauline Pement

1—"Menuet des Follets" (Mysterioso), by Berlioz, until—T: "Border bandits, etc."
2—"Hurry No. 4," by Lake, until—S: "Man looking at watchcase."
3—Continue pp, until—T: "Los Palos, a man made, etc."
4—"Dramatic Agitato," pp, by H. Hough, until—T: "You're wanted for killing."
5—Theme, until—T: "The loot of the prairie schooner."
6—Continue to action until—S: "Interior of saloon."
7—"Darktown Strotters Ball" (Feist Ed.), until—T: "Boys, that coyote got away."
8—"Dramatic Tension No. 1," by Ascher (heavy dispute), until—S: "Mob running out of saloon."
9—Continue ff, until—T: "After hours of riding."
10—"Reve d'Amour" (Allegretto), by Zameznik, until—T: "Lady he is bad, etc."
11—Hurry, by Becker, until—T: "Well, I am back; ain't you glad?"
12—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—S: "The fight."
13—"Heavy Agitato" or Hurry to action until—T: "Hit the trail for Willopah."
14—Good Galop to action, until—T: "Willopah typically lawless."
15—Theme, until—T: "Are you game to pretend to be Christie?"
16—"Jasmine" (Allegretto), by Kretschmer, until—T: "And black Bart loses no time."
17—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto), by Arenski, until—T: "Hope can place but one construction, etc."
18—"By the River," Romance (12/8 Animato), until—T: "By the Lord, there's the real Christie."
19—"Moderato Agitato," by Becker, until—T: "Get the posse, Black Bart, etc."
20—"Lion Chase" (Grand Galop), by Koelling, until—S: "Old man arrives in Willopah."
21—Theme, until—T: "Sure that villain is Black Bart, etc."
22—Repeat "Lion Chase" (same as Cue No. 20), until—S: "Cow puncher arrives on horseback."
23—Continue ppp and very slow, until—S: "The fight."
24—Heavy Hurry or Agitato, until—S: "After the fight."
Note.—Watch shots.
25—Continue pp, until—T: "I have found your lost sister."
26—Theme ff, until * * * * * END.

"THE GRAIN OF DUST"

(Crest Features)

(Reviewed on page 887)

Theme: "Serenade" by Widor (4/4 Dramatic Moderato)

1—Silence, until—T: "In the seething canyon."
Note.—Just produce effect of Wall Street market ticker.
2—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Mr. Galloway will have to wait for me."
3—"Dramatic Tension" (for disputes), by Reissiger, until—T: "If you insist on the half interest."
4—Repeat "Dramatic Recitative" (same as Cue No. 3), until—T: "Are you sure you can spare the time now?"
5—Continue pp, until—T: "The long purple shadows."
6—Silence, until—T: "Dorothy Hallowell, etc."
Note.—Just produce effects of working typewriter.
7—Theme, until—T: "Ursula, sister of Frederick Norman."
8—"A la Ballerina" (Melodious Valse Lente), by Braham, until—T: "Josephine Burroughs, Norman's fiancee."
9—"Pastel Minuet" (3/4 Allegro giocoso), by Paradis, until—T: "The humble home of Dorothy."
10—Continue with Trio of "Pastel Minuet" (Melodious Moderato), until—T: "In the quietness of his apartment."
11—"By the Fireside" (Song), by Schumann, until—T: "In Norman's machine like creed."
12—"Dramatic Narrative" (Melody Moderato), by Pauline Pement, until—S: "Stenographer entering Norman's office."
13—Theme, until—T: "We are to hear Caruso."
14—"Intermezzo" from the Opera "Pagliacci," by Leoncavallo, until—T: "So the grain of dust remained."
15—Theme, until—T: "The important business."
16—"Erotik" (4/8 Lento Molto), by Grieg, until—T: "As sponsor of the new corporation."
17—"Garden of Love" (Melodious Mod. Caprice), by Ascher, until—T: "And then—"
18—Theme, until—T: "Tetlow returns from Albany."
19—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic), by Favarger, until—T: "Tetlow resolves to shatter his, etc."
20—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "I want you! want you with every drop."
21—"Dramatic Agitato," by Henry Hough, until—S: "Norman's fiancee enters with her father."
Note.—Play to action pp or ff.
22—Continue ppp, until—T: "A man does not have to be, etc."
23—"Prelude to Act. 3," from "Kunihild" (Dramatic), by Kistler, until—S: "Change of scene to girl's home."
24—Sorrow Theme (a Pathetic Melody), by Edouard Roberts, until—T: "I pray God I may never see you."
25—Continue ff, until—T: "And so with a kindly hand."
26—"Berceuse" (4/4 Lento), by Karganoff, until—T: "In the desert of remorse."
27—Theme, until—T: "In Milledgeville it was gossip."
28—"Sieste" (Characteristic Lento), by Laurens, until—T: "And then came Norman's day."
29—Repeat "Dramatic Recitative" (same as Cue No. 1), until—T: "The night of the party."
30—"Country Fair" (a descriptive Fantasia), by Volpatti, until—T: "What do you mean by bringin'? etc."
31—"Dramatic Tension" (for heavy disputes), by Ascher, until—T: "Discharge her right away."
32—Continue pp, until—T: "Out of the crucible of suffering."
33—"Sweet Ponderings" (a Melodic Sentiment), by Langey, until—T: "As a grain of dust, etc."
34—"Pathetic Andante," by Paul Vely, until—T: "The world old emblem."
35—"Bond of Love" (Waltz), by A. Roth, until—S: "Girl at piano."
36—Piano Solo improvise to action, until—S: "Change of scene."
37—Piano improvise pp, until—S: "Frenchman struggling with girl."
38—"Dramatic Agitato" to action, until—S: "Norman talking to Galloway."
39—"Dramatic Adagio," by Kretschmer, until—T: "Norman sees the girl through automobile window."
40—Theme ff, until—T: "In the sheltering hands of Fate."
41—"Melody" (Moderato), by Friml, until—S: "Norman knocking at door."
42—Tragic Theme by Paul Vely, until—S: "Clouds in view."
43—"Morning" from "Peer Gynt Suite," by Grieg, until—T: "Have you everything you want?"
44—"Aragonaise" from "Le Cid" (Dramatic), by Massenet, until—T: "Slowly but surely the daily lessons, etc."
45—Theme, to action, until—T: "I have learned the lesson."
46—Continue, watching big church bell effect, until * * * END.

THE BARTOLA

Is sold direct to the purchaser, no middleman's profit to pay.

Write for catalogue

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Theatres Worth While

Two Interior Views of the Rialto Theatre, Elyria, Ohio

Elyria Proud of New Theatre

DECEMBER of last year marked the opening of the Rialto theatre in Elyria, O. It is owned by Melton Phelos and Chris. Neufer, and managed by Mr. Phelos. It is located on Second street, in the business section of the city.

Rialto is of brick and steel construction and has a seating capacity of 1,900. Indirect lighting is used, and there is a steam heating plant. The exterior design is dark gray finished with gold, and the interior is most attractive in French gray with velvet hangings. The lobby is fitted with brass frames with French gray velvet backs.

Projection is furnished by two Simplex machines which have a throw of 95 feet to a Gold King screen. The operating room is fitted with all the latest apparatus including an electric rewinder.

Special attention is being paid in the new house to music and a Baryola has been installed together with a six-piece orchestra.

One of the important features of the new theatre is the service given by the employees of whom there is a large staff. There are six girl ushers, two operators, two cashiers, maids for child and checkroom, a manager, assistant manager, advertising manager, etc. The house is a large user of newspaper space and also employs a weekly program and mailing list.

The bill is changed twice weekly, Artcraft-Paramount pictures being featured. Five shows are given each day with the admission ten, twenty and thirty cents.

The people of Elyria are proud of the new house and have evidenced this fact by their patronage. And the theatre can safely be compared with many of the best in the larger cities of the country.

Directory of New Theatres

ARKANSAS

J. N. Cobb, proprietor of the Princess theatre, Batesville, has signified his intention of opening a motion picture theatre at Lonoke.

CALIFORNIA

The permit for the Victoria theatre to be erected at No. 612 Palos Verde street, Chino, has been granted. The building will be 125 x 57 feet, and will cost about $16,525. N. O. Anderson is the owner, the Lilly-Fletcher Company, contractors. The lobby, which will face Sixth street, where the old Sadler store now stands, will be 25 x 75 feet, and will cost $3,500.

F. Joseph Ravany, of Perris, is investigating suitable locations in Corona for the establishment of a motion picture theatre. Mr. Ravany is an old exhibitor and theatre owner, having conducted a playhouse in Colton some years ago.

Eno Anderson, of San Pedro, has let the contract for the erection of a $30,000 motion picture theatre, to be erected on Sixth street, near Beacon. F. O. Adler and R. A. Pierson are the lessees. Mr. Adler has just purchased a 25 x 75 foot lot on Sixth street between Beacon and Palos Verde for $25,000, to be used as an entrance to the theatre, and will join with Eno Anderson in the construction of the building. The lease calls for a total rental of $200,000, and extends over a period of five years. The building was designed by L. A. Smith, architect, and negotiations were handled by A. E. Dishman, manager of the leasing department of Robert Marsh & Co.

Plans have been completed by Reid Brothers, architects, for the class A theatre which Samuel H. Levin will build at the southeast corner of Clement street and Ninth avenue, and operations were begun March 1. The entire building will have a steel frame and reinforced concrete walls and floors, the roof, supported by large steel trusses, being also of concrete with asbestos outer covering. It will cover an area of 75 x 150 feet, and have a seating capacity of 2,200, of which about 750 will be in the balcony. The main entrance is to be from Clement street, through an outer vestibule 30 feet wide to the foyer, from either side of which the balcony entrances will be located, starting with broad easy steps to the mezzanine foyer, and then by gradual incline to the center of the balcony from which the aisles will diverge. The exterior will be in keeping with the interior decorative treatment in an adaptation of the Gothic to modern requirements. The main entrance vestibule will be made the central feature by an illuminated marquee extending over the sidewalk. The treatment of walls and ceiling is to be simple, with a highly decorated proscenium arch and splayed sounding board, the sides of which consist of open grilles, behind which the organ will be placed. The lighting system will be complete, the auditorium to be semi-direct, combining the desirable features of the entirely indirect, but with sufficient luminosity to transmit 10 to 15 per cent. direct to room. The mezzanine floor will contain the balcony foyer, ladies' waiting and writing rooms, children's play room and nursery, men's smoking room and lounge, executive offices, and lavatories.

Work has been started on the palatial new film house for F. A. Miller on Main street, just south of Eighth, Los Angeles, announcement of which has previously appeared in the NEWS. The theatre, which is the crowning enterprise of the Miller interests in this city, will be one of the largest exclusive motion picture places in the West, having a seating capacity of about 2,500. Architectually it will be one of the most pretentious playhouses on the Coast. The theatre will be three stories high at the street front, space being provided for offices and rest rooms on the upper floors. The frontage of 90 feet will allow room for stores of generous size on either side of the entrance lobby. The structure will have a total depth of 183 feet. The facade is to be of classic design, and will be carried out in matt glazed terra cotta. There will be a handsome marquise over the entrance, which, with the lobby, will be furnished in marble. The interior will be finished and furnished in a sumptuous manner. The new film palace will stand half a block north of the present Miller theatre on Main above Ninth. Both its appointment and its arrangement will represent the result of long experience and careful study upon the part of the lessees. Harry Leonhardt, an old-time theatrical man who is associated with Mr. Miller, spent a considerable time in the East visiting the finest houses of the large cities to get ideas for the new Main street theatre.

KANSAS

A new theatre is to be erected in Parsons by Feess Bros., proprietors of the Best theatre, who, within a day or two expect to complete a sale which will transfer to their ownership the property owned by C. K. Leinbach, at the northwest corner of Washington avenue and Eighteenth street. The

Be Sure You're Right

Then go ahead, is an old motto—and a truer one never was spoken. If you travel along the lines of least resistance, you are going to end up with a bump. If you book the wrong pictures for your theatre, you are going to eat into your own pocketbook. Know your pictures—find out what is the best picture for you to show—then show it. Subscribe for

"Screen Opinions"

The Independent, Comprehensive Reviewing Service

Screen Opinions will tell you whether or not you are right. It [illegible] reviews, synopses and full information on all pictures released. Published in Weekly and Monthly form—two services in one. You can't afford to be without it.

Write In for Full Information

Cahill-Igoe Co. Chicago
117 W. Harrison St. · THE HOME OF "CICO" PRODUCTS

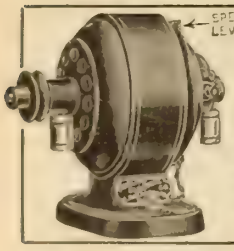
Emergol

METOL'S RIVAL

THE PERFECT FILM DEVELOPER

WRITE

Franklin Import and Export Co.
220 BROADWAY (INC.) NEW YORK



Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO. N 154

80 FIFTH AVENUE, NEW YORK Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 ASHLAND BLOCK, CHICAGO Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing Printing Typewriting

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MOTOR
$16.00
Alternating or Direct Current complete with variable speed lever. Immediate delivery.
Fidelity Electric Co
Lancaster, Pa.

Business Offerings

ARTIST: High grade man, at present with one of America's leading photoplay houses, desires change of position. Thoroughly capable of executing original and attractive Lobby Posters and high-grade Newspaper Design. The kind that draw patronage. Address Box 12, care of Motion Picture News, Inc.

property has 100 feet fronting on Washington avenue and 150 feet on Eighteenth street. Work of clearing the lots will begin immediately, and it is the plan of the new owners to hurry the work of construction on the building they purpose erecting as fast as possible, so that it will be ready for occupancy by May 15. While the plans for the building have not been definitely decided on, the theatre probably will have brick and lattice work sidewalls, a stucco front and frame roof. The seating capacity will be approximately 2,500.

LOUISIANA

Announcement has been made that Camp Beauregard is to have a new Liberty theatre, with a seating capacity of 1,000. It is stated that plans and specifications for the new building have been sent to the Camp Constructing Quartermaster, and it is expected that the new building will be ready for occupancy within ten days. As soon as it is ready, it is stated that various kinds of entertainments which have proven so popular at other camps will be put on.

Soldiers will be admitted to the shows and entertainments on the camp theatre passes, provided by smileage books, which have been sold throughout the United States, to be sent direct to the soldiers by name or to the camp commandants for distribuion. These passes will be available as soon as he new theatre has been completed. The entertainments will consist of the best talent of the Chautauqua field, and other real shows, including New York hits. The theatre will be 60 x 120 feet.

MISSOURI

Construction of Missoula's new theatre will begin just as soon as plans can be prepared, the directors of the Missoula Theatre Company decided at a meeting yesterday after hearing a report by Manager Gil J. Heytron, who has just returned from an extensive inspection of Eastern theatres. Architect Ole Bakke was instructed to begin at once on the plans, and bids will be called for as soon as the designs are ready. The company expects to begin building by April 1 at least, and to have the theatre ready by October 1. Into the plans will be incorporated many new ideas secured by Manager Heyfron on his Eastern trip. The most pleasing and most convenient features of the newest playhouses in the East will be adopted. The theatre will have a main and a mezzanine floor, and will seat between 1,350 and 1,400 persons. Rest rooms for women, smoking rooms for men, nurseries for children, and other unusual features will be used. The ventilating system will be modeled after that just put in the Rivoli, New York's newest and finest house. A nursery, where mothers can leave their babies under expert care and with lovely toys to play with, will be copied from another theatre. The house will be finished in silver gray and old rose.

MONTANA

The opening of the new Marlowe theatre at Butte has been postponed until April, due to the non-arrival of the seats which were ordered some time ago. This announcement comes from Levy and Oppenheimer, the lessees of the house.

NEW YORK

Plans have been filed by A. J. Corn, of Bayside, Long Island, for the rebuilding of his motion picture theatre on Bell avenue, which was destroyed by fire early in January. These plans provide for a much larger theatre than the former one, and include a gallery and a total seating capacity of 550. When completed, the theatre, which will be one of the most modern

PHOTOGRAPHERS and LABORATORY MEN, Submit your questions to the CAMERA DEPARTMENT.

TransVerteR
Automatically supplies only such voltage as are requires. No waste of current in ballast.
HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, US.A

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

PERSONAL ATTENTION given to all PURCHASERS of M. P. Supplies
at the
INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY COMPANY
Lowest prices
Highest quality
Room 603, 729 7th Ave., N. Y.

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

on the North Shore, will cost, with equipment, nearly $25,000. Mr. Corn expects to be able to start the work of rebuilding within the next few weeks, and to have the theare opening early in May.

PENNSYLVANIA

A new motion picture theatre, with all modern appointments, will be erected on the site of the old Fidelity Market House, 1524 to 1536 South street, Philadelphia. The announcement is made by its new purchaser, Abraham Max, of Camden, N. J., who is also proprietor of the Keystone theatre, South street, near Tenth.

Chamberlain Amusement Corporation will secure a five year lease on the Odd Fellows Building, on West Main Street, Bloomsburg, April 1, and will at once start to remodel the theatre and make it up to date in every respect.

UTAH

The Liberty theatre, on State street, Salt Lake City, is to undergo a number of improvements to make it more adaptable to playing vaudeville, according to Miss Dorothy Van, the manager.

Excavations will be made under the present stage for dressing rooms and an entire remodeling of the back of the house is planned. Paramount and Artcraft pictures will be shown during the course of reconstruction, it is announced.

WASHINGTON

C. P. Scates is preparing to erect a new motion picture theatre at Okanogan, which will be of hollow tile and one story high, with a second story at the front end of the building large enough to furnish two offices. The structure will be modern throughout and will have a seating capacity of between 350 and 400. Mr. Scates is giving the people of Okanogan the best the market affords in the picture line and has met with fine patronage since he took charge of the theatre several months ago. The business has outgrown its present quarters and finding new quarters necessary and none available Mr. Scates decided to build. Mr. Scates will begin to assemble the building material at once and will call for bids soon. He hopes to be able to move into the new building by the last of May.

Architect B. Marcus Priteca, Pantages Building, has completed plans for the 30 x 111 ft. moving picture theatre to be installed for John Danz on the east side of First avenue, between Cherry and Columbia streets, Seattle, to cost about $10,000. Bids are to be called for immediately.

Proposals are to be asked for Wednesday for the construction of two brick veneer and stucco residences to be erected on North Broadway near Eastlake to cost about $15,000.

A building permit for the erection of a $50,000 theatre building at South Ninth and Market streets, Tacoma, has been taken out by John S. Baker and H. F. Moore. The permit states that the building will be 90 x 120 with the entrance on Ninth street and the alley. Roland E. Borhek is named as the contractor and Dawson & Dahlberg as the contractors. It is estimated that the building, which was started last month, will be completed in five months.

WYOMING

Henry Brennan is having plans prepared for the erection of a modern and thoroughly up-to-date motion picture theatre at Glenrock.

STANDARDS

ADOPTED BY THE

SOCIETY OF MOTION PICTURE ENGINEERS

FIRST EDITION

MAIN OFFICE:
712 ELEVENTH STREET, N. W.
WASHINGTON, D. C.

PRICE, 10c. EACH
$1.00 A DOZEN

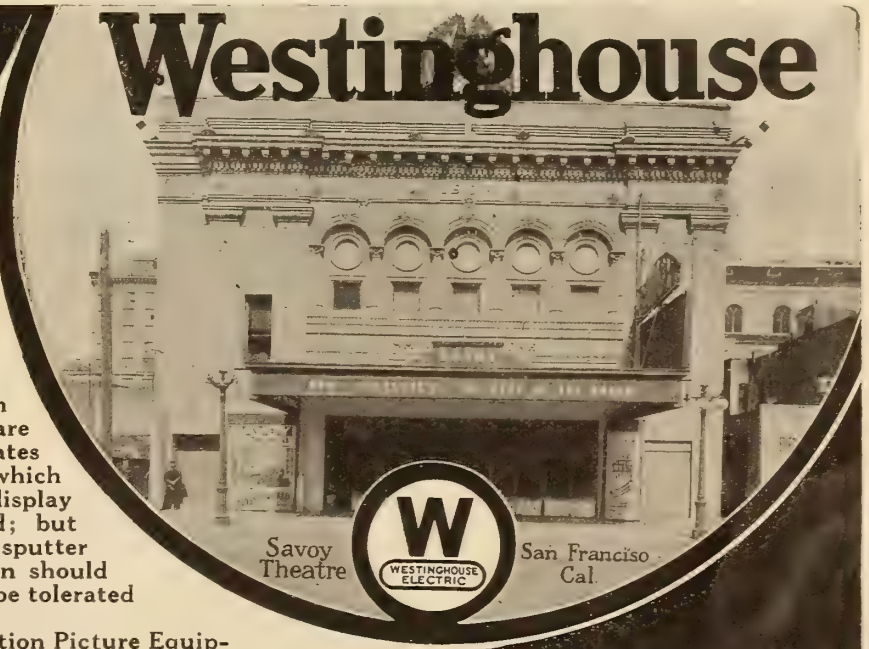
THE MOST IMPORTANT PUBLICATION



OF

1917

It should be in the hands of every individual interested in our industry. Send 10 cents today

C. F. JENKINS, Pres.,
712-11th St., N.W., Washington, D. C.

Good Westinghouse

THE community in which you are located, dictates the extent to which architectural display may be carried; but the flutter and sputter of poor projection should not, and need not be tolerated in any locality.

Westinghouse Motion Picture Equipment takes the flutter out of projection. Pictures are clear and definition perfect.

Good projection increases receipts. It is a patronage builder.

Westinghouse Electric and Mfg. Co.
East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Projection

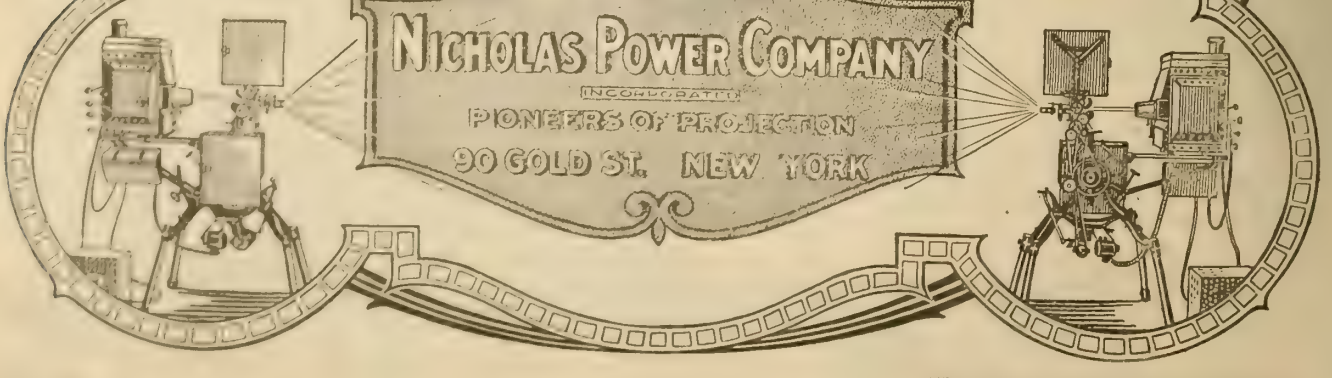
RESULTS

In the Booth

A satisfied operator equipped to "produce."

On the Screen

Clear, steady pictures; every detail sharply defined.



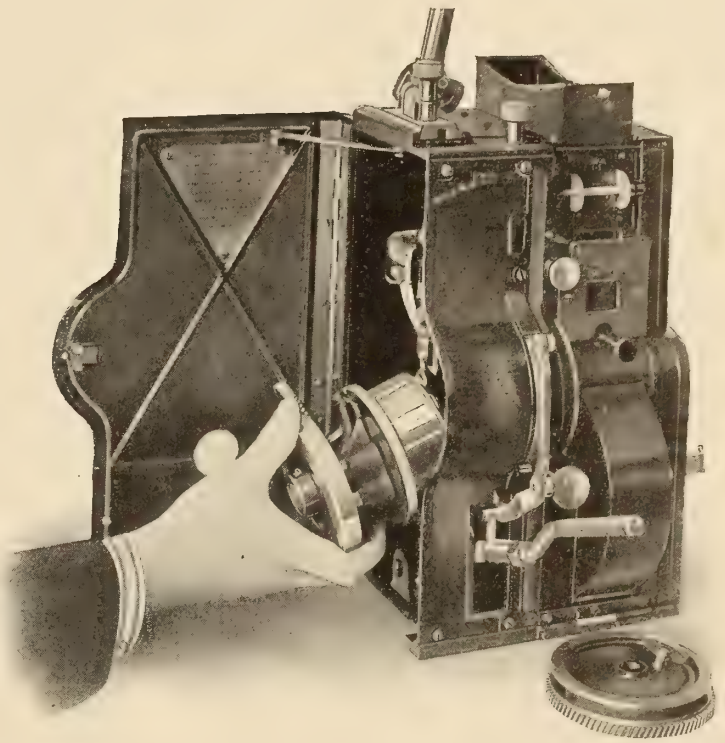
Out In Front

A delighted audience THAT COMES BACK.

In the Box Office

Substantial cash returns for every performance.

With Power's Cameragraph



THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex

Quick Accessibility

The Oil Chamber,
which contains the complete
Intermittent Movement,
and carries the Register Sprocket,
can be taken out and replaced in about one minute
with no tools except a screw-driver.

Now, we don't claim that the Simplex needs no attention, but we do claim:

(1) that it is less likely to go wrong,

(2) that although its vital parts are enclosed, away from dirt and danger of injury, they are as accessible as if they were out in the open,

(3) that this is one reason for the permanence of its perfect projection, and

(4) that those claims are substantiated by the almost universal acceptance of the Simplex, despite vigorous, and often unfair, competition.

We could only show a "still" here. Wouldn't you like a demonstration?

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

LOST! Her good name —her girlish happiness—her future and all its dreams.

Lost in all innocence and through none of her evil—yet lost beyond recovery in paying——

The PRICE of a GOOD TIME

the Now-Famous

Lois Weber Production

featuring

Mildred Harris

whose rich talent and remarkable personal appeal have won the country's heart. Book this national success for at least twice your ordinary run and book it now.

JEWEL PRODUCTIONS, INC.

1600 Broadway, New York

MARCH 23, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

DOMINATES THE FIELD

You Can Put Your Finger on the Reasons!

There's no mystery as to why exhibitors throughout the United States are making money. The reasons are—

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

(Nationally Advertised)

These pictures have brought the motion picture industry to the high plane it now occupies. They are directly responsible for the success of every prosperous exhibitor.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR, Pres. JESSE L. LASKY, Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE, Director General
NEW YORK

VOL. XVII-NO. 12 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

Bluebird
Photo Plays present

Franklyn FARNUM

with beautiful Juanita Hansen in

"Fast Company"

BOOK thru your local BLUEBIRD Exchange, or Communicate with BLUEBIRD Photo Plays Inc., 1600 B'way, New York City

Adolph Zukor presents

Maeterlinck's "THE BLUE BIRD"

Directed by Maurice Tourneur.
Scenario by Charles Maigne

An ARTCRAFT Picture

Maeterlinck's

"THE BLUE BIRD"

An ARTCRAFT Picture

A mighty spectacle of Happiness ✻ The Photoplay the whole World wants to see

Released on Easter Sunday, March 31st

Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"

is backed by nation-wide advertising.

AN ADVERTISING campaign, set so as to create at Eastertide an overwhelming demand for Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird," will guarantee capacity houses for every exhibitor that shows this Artcraft Picture.

"The Blue Bird" was a mighty success as a play. After a long run in New York City, it toured the country, hailed everywhere as a production setting a new mark in stage artistry.

Its strong appeal to men and women, as well as to children, made it a huge money-maker. The Artcraft production of "The Blue Bird" is immensely finer than the stage version, and will crowd the motion picture theatres every time it is shown, this year and for years to come.

It is worth the longest run you ever gave a picture in your theatre.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

MARY PICKFORD

in

"AMARILLY OF CLOTHESLINE ALLEY"

By Belle K. Maniates. Scenario by Frances Marion
Directed by Marshall Neilan

An ARTCRAFT Picture

THE most wonderful thing about Mary Pickford is that each of her pictures has some new element in it that makes her millions of admirers pronounce every release to be "the best that Mary Pickford ever made."

Mary Pickford's art and her drawing power are limitless. They increase with each release.

The price of her productions is so scaled that every theatre can show Mary Pickford—at a profit to the exhibitor, and to the community.

TRADE MARK Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General.
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Adolph Zukor presents

ANN PENNINGTON

in

"SUNSHINE NAN"

Adapted from "Calvary Alley" by Alice Hegan Rice
Scenario by Eve Unsell. Directed by Charles Giblyn

A Paramount Picture

ANN PENNINGTON established herself as a box office favorite in her first picture "The Antics of Ann." In "Sunshine Nan" she has a part that will delight all her old friends and make new ones for her and for YOU.

"Sunshine Nan" was written by Alice Hegan Rice, and it retains all the delightful human interest for which this author is famous.

You can show Ann Pennington's pictures at a good profit. Book them TODAY.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Thomas H. Ince presents

WILLIAM S. HART

in

"BLUE BLAZES RAWDEN"

By J. G. Hawks. Directed by William S. Hart. Photographed by Joe August. Supervision of THOMAS H. INCE

An ARTCRAFT Picture

WILLIAM S. HART is a boss-lumberjack in "Blue Blazes Rawden"—a tough customer who kills bears with his hands.

This Thomas H. Ince star is a 100 per cent. box office attraction.

William S. Hart pictures always are inspiring. They make folks breathe deeper.

You ought to show William S. Hart at your theatre. The price is right. Your profits are assured.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount-Arbuckle Comedy

Joseph M. Schenck presents

ROSCOE "Fatty" ARBUCKLE

in

"THE BELL BOY"

Produced by Comique Film Corporation

"HOW he does it without killing himself is more than I can understand," remarked one of "Fatty's" fascinated fans a few days ago.

Wait till she sees him in "The Bell Boy"!

"Picture hardened" exhibitor that you are you'll laugh at every move in this, the greatest of all Paramount-Arbuckle Comedies.

See it at your Exchange. Laugh at it yourself. Then pass the good thing along.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

READY SOON!

Frank A Keeney

WILL SHORTLY PRESENT THE

BIG BOX OFFICE ATTRACTION

The Lady Beautiful of the Screen

Catherine Calvert

AND AN ALL STAR CAST INCLUDING

EUGENE O'BRIEN, DAVID POWELL,

EDWIN FORSBERG AND SYBIL CARMEN

IN

PAUL ARMSTRONG'S

GREAT SENSATIONAL DRAMA OF NEW YORK LIFE

A ROMANCE OF THE UNDERWORLD

IN SIX PARTS

SEE { LIFE IN CHINATOWN
THE BRIDGE OF SIGHS
THE EAST SIDE DANCE HALL
THE BIG MURDER TRIAL IN THE CRIMINAL COURTS BUILDING
THE BOWERY AFTER DARK
AND OTHER BIG NEW YORK SCENES.

SUPERVISED AND DIRECTED BY

JAMES KIRKWOOD

KEENEY GENERAL OFFICES, 1493 B'WAY.

RAY C. OWENS, GEN'L MGR

ALBERT E. SMITH presents

MR. and MRS. SIDNEY DREW

in the

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES

THAT INTRODUCED POLITE HUMOR TO THE SCREEN AND SET A STANDARD OF COMEDY QUALITY THAT HAS NEVER BEEN SURPASSED IN ITS PARTICULAR FIELD

ONE REEL A WEEK EACH SUBJECT RE-EDITED

VITAGRAPH

Millions Are Waiting to See This Best Known Volume of O·HENRY Re-Produced on the Screen!

ALBERT E. SMITH

Presents

EARLE WILLIAMS

Supported by

Grace Darmond

in

"An American Live Wire"

FROM THE FAMOUS VOLUME "CABBAGES AND KINGS"

Directed by TOM MILLS

A Five Part Blue Ribbon Feature

Geddie had eaten of the lotos of the tropics. He had all but forgotten that he had lost in love, But—

He had not reckoned with one thing—Fate.

Many months before, spurned by the ambitious mother of the girl he loved, he had accepted the appointment as consul at Coralio—that typical, drowsy little sun-baked South American republic. He had injected his snappy American methods into the leisurely, carefree routine. He had all but fallen under the spell of the midnight eyes of a Spanish siren. And then—

Washed up onto the golden, tropic sands entered the bottle. And in it rested the destiny of Willard Geddie, U. S. Consul at Coralio. To tell more would be to dull the delightful surprise that awaits at the end of this world-famous work of the immortal O. Henry.

VITAGRAPH

SELECT PICTURES

ALICE BRADY

a great star in her greatest hit—

Eugene Walter's wonderful play

"THE KNIFE"

Scenario by Charles Maigne. Directed by ROBERT G. VIGNOLA

Alice Brady has made many fine pictures, but "The Knife" is her supreme achievement on the screen. It is a picture to be banked on—and one to be remembered!

Distributed by

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

SELECT SP PICTURES

"It is Clara Kimball Young's triumph!"—Motion Picture News

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

AND HER OWN COMPANY

present the renowned stage success

"THE HOUSE OF GLASS"

by MAX MARCIN

scenario by Charles E. Whittaker

directed by EMILE CHAUTARD

Distributed by

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

WORLD PICTURES BRADY-MADE WORLD - PICTURES
present
MADGE EVANS
GEORGE MACQUARRIE
IN
"Wanted, A Mother"
Directed by HARLEY KNOLES

Goldwyn Pictures

Something Still Finer for Mr. Franklin and Shea's Hippodrome.

HAROLD B. FRANKLIN, the brilliant Managing Director of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, writes Goldwyn to say

"It was our extreme pleasure to play Mabel Normand in 'Dodging A Million' at Shea's Hippodrome and I wish to tell you how pleased we were with the production.

"The combination of magnetic Mabel and the unusual story delighted our patrons. This kind of production distinctly shows how far the motion picture has advanced in the last few years. We cannot help commend the Goldwyn productions for their artistic standards and box office value."

Goldwyn takes pleasure in telling this able Manager and the highly successful Mr. Shea of a Mabel Normand picture even bigger and finer than "Dodging A Million"; more laughable, more human, more appealing and thrilling—one that will play to even bigger attendance at Shea's Hippodrome and thousands of other theatres. This next production offers

MABEL NORMAND in The Floor Below

by Elaine Sterne
Directed by Clarence Badger

A romantic melodrama of action and laughter. Released in leading theatres throughout the world March 10.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

Goldwyn Pictures

A Second Sensational Mary Garden Production —Bigger Than "Thais."

A MAGNIFICENT emotional drama of today; in the spirit of today; in the gowns of today.

A star who is daring, thrilling, stormy and volcanic.

A beautiful, wonderful woman driven to the limit of desperation. Sacrificing her honor. Stripping herself of her wealth for the man she loves. Placing herself in the grip of an enemy of all humanity.

And then—a heart-stirring redemption with the final reward of martyrdom.

Only when your audiences have seen this overwhelming drama will they realize the marvel of

MARY GARDEN in The Splendid Sinner

by Kate Jordan
Directed by Edwin Carewe

Released everywhere on March 24—to bring the public flocking into your theatres. A lavish special production released to all Goldwyn contract customers at their regular rental prices.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President
16 East 42nd Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

Here's the Box-Office Angle That No One Can Fail To See!

OUR THOUSANDS of exhibitors played Mary Garden in her Goldwyn and golden "Thais" with a profit for their houses.

Mary Garden came up to all expectations and and promises. She disappointed no one. Everybody knew her. Everybody was eager to see her. The public swamped the box-offices to gaze upon one of the world's greatest women.

House records were smashed everywhere. So tremendous is her drawing power that she conquered zero weather, snowed under all competing pictures booked against her and she wiped out the losses of Garfield Mondays by bringing turn-away patronage on other days.

Goldwyn goes publicly on record that "The Splendid Sinner" is a many times greater story and production than "Thais."

Any exhibitor can figure in a minute how wonderfully THIS Mary Garden production will help his house, thereby launching his season of Spring-time prosperity.

Wire the nearest Goldwyn office instantly about a contract.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

REX BEACH'S Screen Classic of the Great Southwest

HEART of the SUNSET

Directed by Frank Powell

Now Ready for Immediate Release

THE greatest romantic melodrama ever made in an American setting; filled to the brim with love interest, adventure and acts of heroic daring. Bigger and more thrilling than "The Spoilers," or "The Barrier," and more breath-taking than "The Auction Block."

OFFERED to exhibitors everywhere for their immediate profit under individual contract as a single attraction, and not rented in connection with any other productions. Goldwyn knows that this great seven-reel production will outdraw any previous Rex Beach Picture.

Telegraph at once for information and prices to the nearest Goldwyn office. This Rex Beach production is available only through the offices of the

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

Do You Know the Thrilling Story of HEART OF THE SUNSET

DO YOU KNOW of beautiful Alaire Austin, ranchwoman and heroine of the Border, who was loved by Dave Law of the Texas Rangers and by crafty General Longorio, the Mexican leader, and who could never forgive her own dissolute husband?

Do you remember when Texas was on tenterhooks over war with Mexico, when the bluejackets swarmed into Vera Cruz backed by the guns of Uncle Sam's fleet, when the rebel raiders "shot up" American towns along the Rio Grande?

Would you like to know what is the most terrible death in the world, as conceived by General Longorio? Do you remember the time when even the Church and its revered priests were not safe from insult and attack at the hands of the marauding Mexican bands?

Would you like to see how a vain and ambitious man decides between taking a beautiful woman or the Presidency of his country? All of these things contribute to the red-blooded, stand-your-ground-and-shoot action of "the picture of a thousand thrills." "Heart of the Sunset" is ready for immediate release.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION
16 East 42nd Street New York City

COMING!

AMERICA'S FAMOUS PROTEAN ACTOR

EDMUND BREESE

IN HIS OWN SENSATIONAL PHOTO-ENIGMA

THE

MASTER CROOK

WITH A POPULAR CAST OF 100 HEADED BY

ALMA HANLON

TERRITORIAL BUYERS:-
GET IN LINE!

HARRY RAVER
1402 BROADWAY N.Y.

OLIVE TELL in

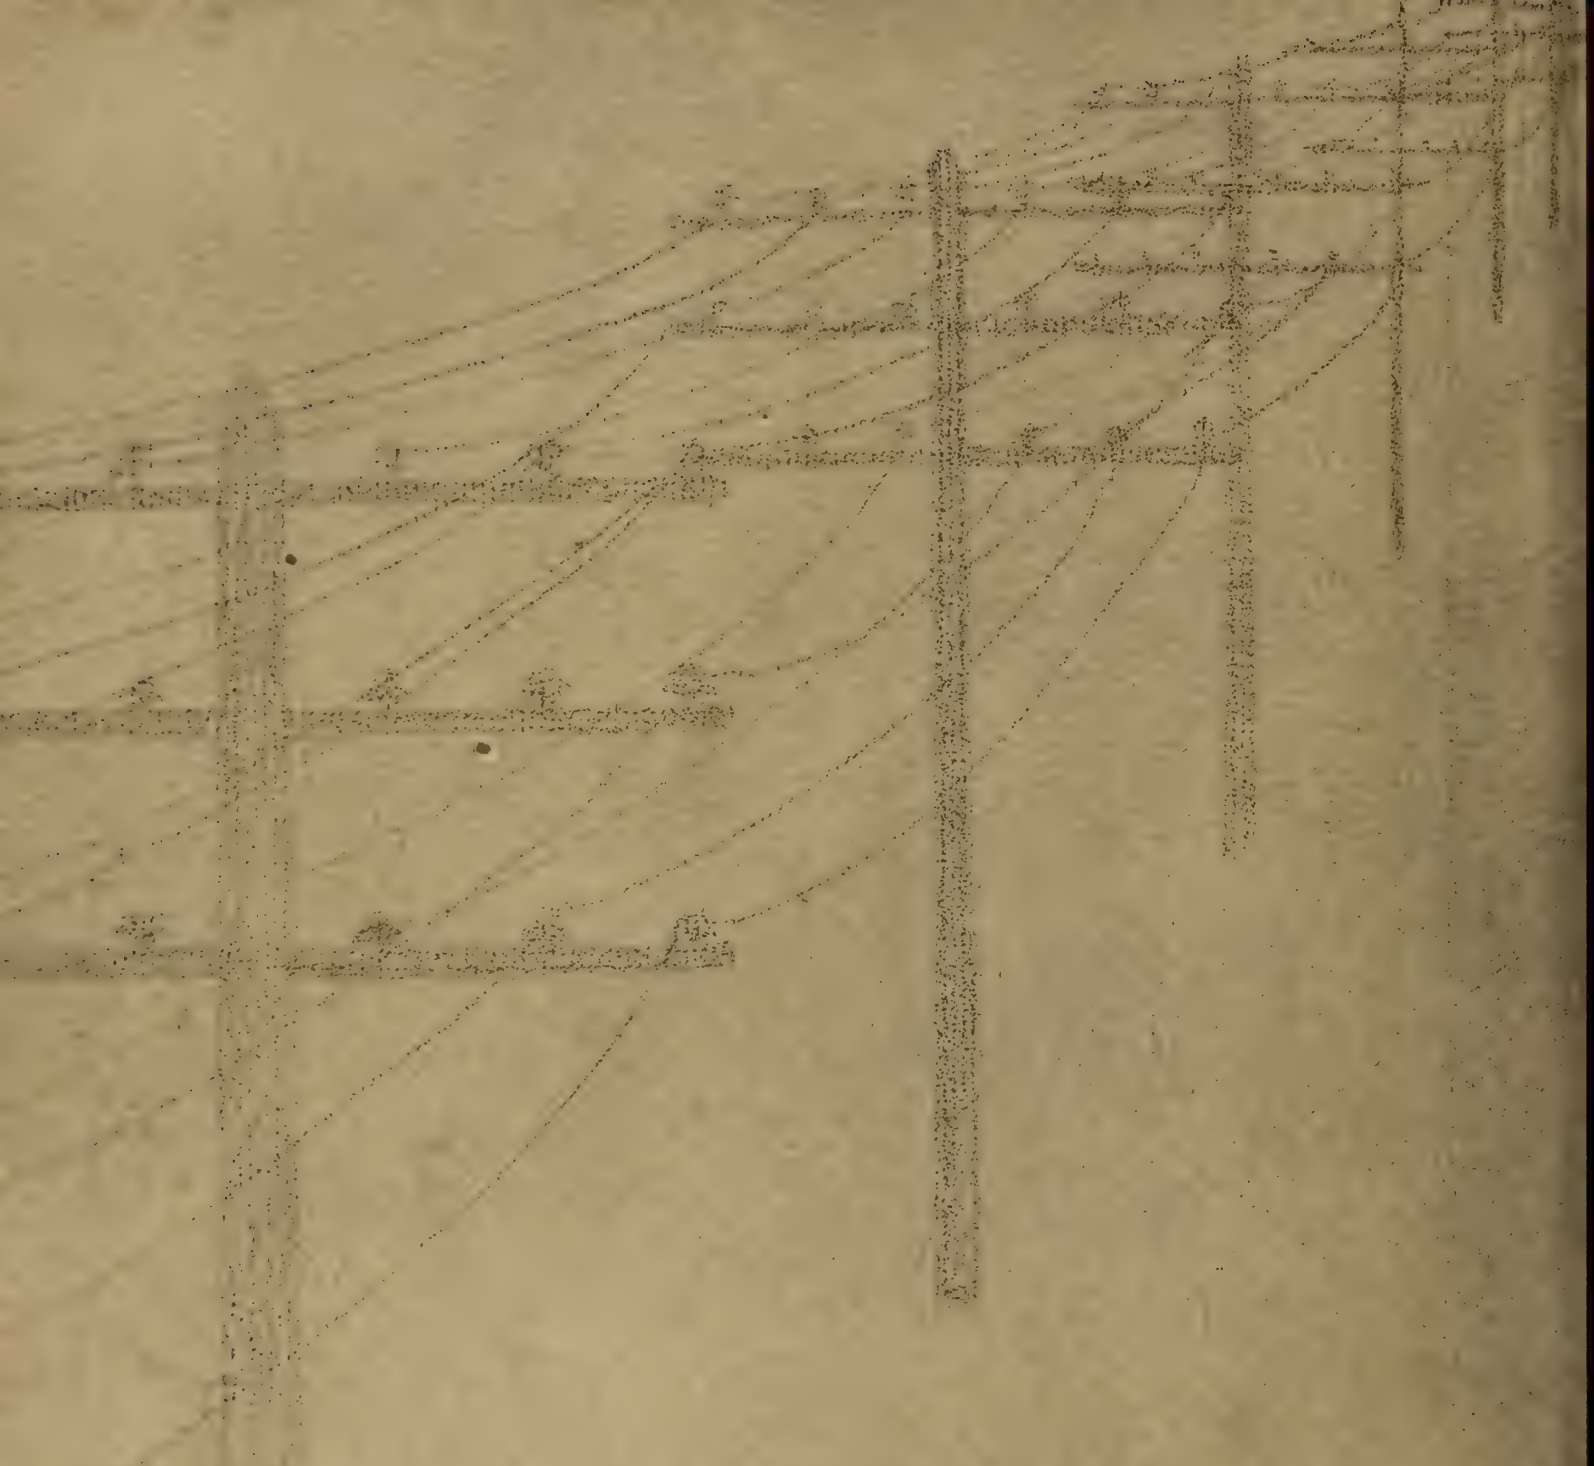
"The GIRL and the JUDGE"



Stately, gracious beauty of the Broadway stage-supported by Mr. David Powell

A FROHMAN STAR IN A FROHMAN PLAY

His sweetheart a prisoner at the bar of his court

Produced by
EMPIRE ALL STAR CORPORATION

Available March 18 at MUTUAL FILM EXCHANGES

SCREEN TELEGRAM

A twice-a-week news reel of quality —

ALL OFFICIAL FOREIGN AND WAR FILM SOURCES

Available at all Mutual Exchanges

Mutual pays the war tax

PRODUCING
"THE IRON BEAST"—By Monte M. Katterjohn
"THE SNAPDRAGON"—By Horace Hazeltine

LOUISE GLAUM PRODUCTIONS CORPORATION
PARALTA PLAYS, INC.
6 West 48th Street, New York City

IT is easy enough to criticise.
An empire can be wiped out over night
by criticism.
But of what avail is
Bolsheviki destruction?
The thing to do is to build up
a solid foundation, stone for stone, while you tear down the old useless shell.
At the same time, let us be sure that "business goes on as usual"
while the changes are being accomplished.

(signed) Wm. W. Hodkinson.

"Hodkinson Service"

PROGRESS — INTEGRITY — PERMANENCE

in the Motion Picture Industry

The First Four Paralta Plays

J. Warren Kerrigan in
"A Man's Man"

Henry B. Walthall in
"His Robe of Honor"

Bessie Barriscale in
"Madam Who?"

J. Warren Kerrigan in
"The Turn of a Card"

"HODKINSON SERVICE"
at all General Film Exchanges

These and all other Paralta Plays are not to be obtained anywhere else.

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 Fifth Avenue, New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

THE THRILL SERIAL FOR PATRIOTIC AUDIENCES

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

The Serial That Will Set Them Cheering!

JANE VANCE
as the heroine.

Wm. Sorelle
as the military hero.

A story of enemy plots exposed—the war against intrigue and conspiracy at home.

12 EPISODES
ONE-REEL EACH

Produced by
Jaxon Film Corporation
New York

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company, 25 West 44th Street, New York City

CANADA.
DEPARTMENT OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.
OFFICE OF CHIEF PRESS CENSOR.

IN YOUR REPLY, PLEASE REFER TO C. P. C.

Ottawa, Ont., February 21, 1918.

Dear Sir.-

I am much obliged to you for the privilege afforded me this morning of witnessing a screening of the first four episodes of the Motion Picture Play,"A Daughter of Uncle Sam".

I wish to statethat I see no objection whatever from a War Censorship standpoint to this feature, and on the contrary I consider that this picture is calculated to have a most useful influence. It is a reasonable presentment of a certain phase of war conditions, is well screened and calculated to convey to the public an idea of the risks which Countries at war with the German Alliance run, owing to the activities of enemy agents.

I have the honour to be
Sir,
Your obedient servant,

Ernest J. Chambers
Colonel,
Chief Press Censor for Canada.

A. L. Gorman, Esq.
General Film Co.,
43 Bleury St., Montreal, P.Q.

(The letter, copy of which is inserted in this advertisement, shows the approval given "A Daughter of Uncle Sam" in official quarters.)

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

THE STAR THAT NEVER SETS

YOUR PATRONS
NEVER TIRE OF SEEING

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

in ESSANAY-CHAPLIN
COMEDIES

Book Him in

"HIS NEW JOB"

"THE TRAMP"
"IN THE PARK"
"THE CHAMPION"
"A WOMAN"
"BY THE SEA"
"A JITNEY ELOPEMENT"
"WORK"

★ ★ ★ ★

THE FINAL WORD IN COMEDIES IS ESSANAY MADE

"THE JAZBO SHERIFF"
"ALL STUCK UP"
"THE LIE THAT FAILED"
"WILD ALGY OF PICCADILLY"

A NEW ONE EACH WEEK

Essanay

Distributed Exclusively by
General Film Company

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

"BY INJUNCTION"

An exquisitely human Western story
by O. HENRY

Imagine a bunch of wild cowboys " plumb sot " upon giving the kids of Yellowhammer a regular old-time holiday treat—with the result that they found a surprise romance.

Other Splendid O. Henry Westerns Available

The Hiding of Black Bill
A chance discovery of a whimsical bandit's retreat.

One Dollar's Worth
The tangle of three pairs of sweethearts with a counterfeit coin.

The Lonesome Road
How marriage feminized Perry Rountree and made him a whirlwind of prowess.

The Last of the Troubadours
Perhaps the most dynamically wrought piece of irony and humor of all.

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES

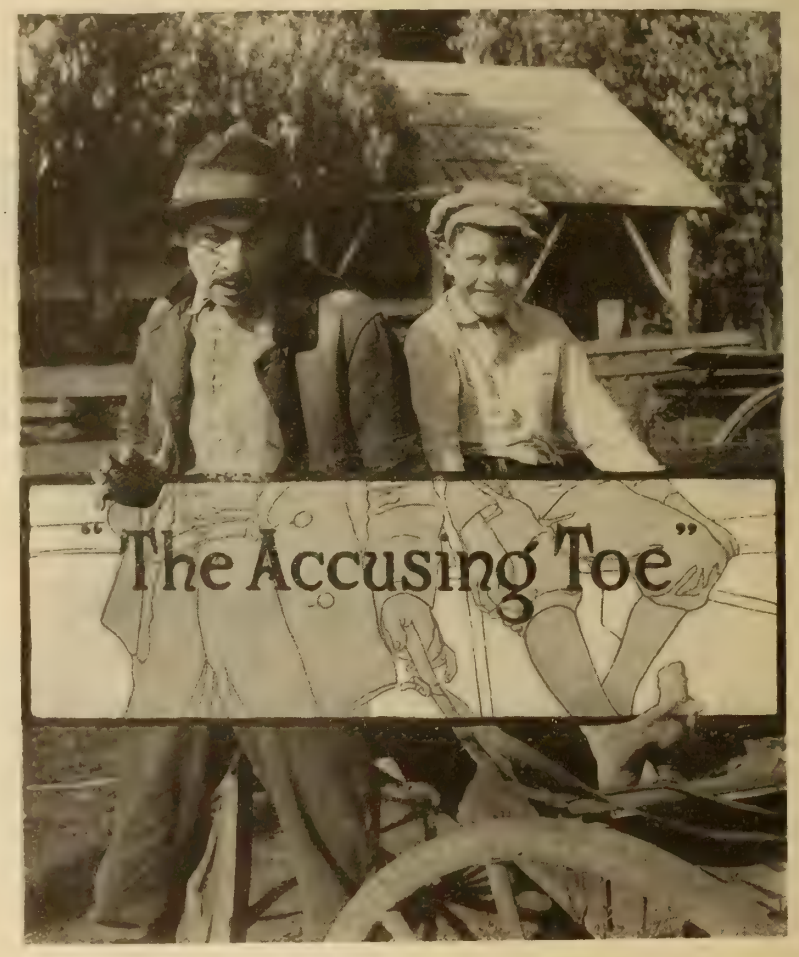
Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

If you like the " News," write our advertisers; if not, tell us.

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

Photoplays which strike your audiences right

THE JUDGE BROWN STORIES



A Refreshing Perspective of Life's Humor and Drama as Seen with the Eyes of Genuine Youth

Vastly Keen and Vastly Delightful

Pictures That Make Your Box Office Carol

Written by JUDGE WILLIS BROWN

Produced by
BOY CITY FILM CORP.
Culver City, Calif.

Wharton Jones and Master Dale Faith

Scene from "The Accusing Toe," the story of a boy whose wistful opposition to a disliked suitor for his mother's hand took the form of a "haunting" campaign.

"BUD'S RECRUIT"
"CHOCOLATE OF THE GANG"
"THE LOST LIE"
"TAD'S SWIMMING HOLE"
"THE PREACHER'S SON"
"THIEF OR ANGEL"
"THE ACCUSING TOE"
"THE REBELLION"

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company
25 West 44th Street, New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

JOHN W. NOBLE'S
Photoplay of the Hour

"SHAME"

with

ZENA KEEFE

Zena Keefe in "SHAME"

A Story of the World's Unjust Condemnation of the Innocent Children of Erring Parents

An Appealing, Sympathetic Intensely Dramatic Big Feature

With NILES WELCH, Joyce Fair, Paul Doucet, Lionel Belmore, Fred Stall, Jack Dunn and John Davidson

HERE IS A FILM THAT WILL DRAW YOUR PUBLIC
AND HOLD IT EVERY MINUTE

(A timely angle of war-time social conditions forms the prologue to this powerful production)

Produced by DUPLEX FILMS, Inc. New York

Available at exchanges of General Film Company in the United States and General Film Company, Ltd., in Canada

General Film Company does not impose the 15c charge on any of its releases

It's a Boost for Home Pride and for You to Say "I Saw Your Ad. in the Central States."

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

Coming!

"Bud" Duncan, Dot Farley and Kewpie Morgan

in

CLOVER COMEDIES

(Single-Reel Riots of Fun Instigated Weekly)

"BUD" DUNCAN: The diminutive laugh-maker, formerly of the highly successful Kalem "Ham and Bud" comedy team, originator of the sure-fire role of tabloid human punching bag.

DOT FARLEY: Magnetic star of a dozen popular comedy brands, famed for her inimitably ludricous "vamp" burlesques.

A TRIPLE "KNOCKOUT"

Get down at once on the booking sheet for the series of CLOVER COMEDIES. The first three will be

"From Caterpillar to Butterfly"
"Rip Roaring Rivals"
"The Wooing of Coffee Cake Kate"

Produced by The NATIONAL FILM CORPORATION DENVER COLO.

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

25 West 44th Street, New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

"INTER-OCEAN FORESIGHT"

(Little Talks With Foreign Buyers—No. 4)

By

IF you never knew that foresight was a vital element in Inter-Ocean's dealings with its foreign customers, let us disillusion you right now. We give satisfaction because we put ourselves in the customer's place. We picture ourselves standing in the shipping office in HIS town while the clerk takes a look at the shipments that have come in that morning, and finally announces: "Something for you, Mr. Film Man!" Is the film in perfect condition, through perfect packing by the shipping department of the American exporter? Are sufficient posters included in the shipment? Will there be invoice trouble, or has the shipper properly attended to that, too? The result is that our customers receive fine treatment and complete satisfaction and "stick to Inter-Ocean!" Another result is that the best advertising Inter-Ocean can get comes from the people who have dealt with us, and who write us in warm appreciation of our work:

COLONIAL FILM EXCHANGE
PORT-OF-SPAIN, TRINIDAD

Cable address
"Rosenthal"
Trinidad

We are highly satisfied with the film, its condition and your foresight in sending posters and the proper invoice for custom's purposes. We appreciate this all the more since it is so seldom that American film handlers ship films to foreign parts in the proper way that you do.

Yours very truly,
COLONIAL FILM EXCHANGE

G.-.Rosenthal

READY FOR THE FOREIGN BUYER

52 World Films (Brady-Made) a year; featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "Today," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules;" the surefire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION
PAUL H. CROMELIN, PRES. & GEN'L. MGR. — 220 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields

William Fox
presents
R.A.WALSH'S
drama

WOMAN AND THE LAW

Staged by
R.A.WALSH

Based on the sensational Jack De Saulles case - the most interesting domestic tragedy ever known in New York

The wife who killed her husband because the law deprived her of her child

"WOMAN AND THE LAW"

STANDARD PICTURES

Turning thousands away at the
LYRIC THEATRE
Broadway & 42 St
New York

Released to exhibitors
Sunday March 17

BOOK NOW AT ANY BRANCH

The gay Broadway manner who wrecked a home which resulted in a great American tragedy

FOX FILM CORPORATION

MUTT AND JEFF UNITE WITH FOX

BUD FISHER'S
famous animated cartoons-

First Release March 24
THE DECOY
500 feet of sure-fire fun issued weekly

CONTRACT AND DETAILS AWAIT YOU NOW at all Fox branch offices

NOW is the time to sell laughs
FOX FILM CORPORATION

Coming
William Fox
presents
VIRGINIA
PEARSON
in
A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE
FOX SPECIAL FEATURES
ONE A WEEK
52 A YEAR
WILLIAM FOX PRESENTS
GEORGE WALSH
IN
The KID IS CLEVER
Coming
William Fox
presents
JUNE
CAPRICE
in
A CAMOUFLAGE
KISS
Coming
William Fox
presents
JEWEL
CARMEN
in
THE BRIDE OF FEAR
FOX FILM CORPORATION

The Motion Picture Industry

has undergone many changes during its lifetime. But from the very first, one name has been a synonym not only of enterprise but of stability — a name known in every quarter of the globe - - - - - - - -

GAUMONT

Pictorial News Service

As necessary as the daily paper. Gaumont News Service covers the world. It is comparable only to the Associated Press dispatches of the newspapers.

A better plan of distribution soon will enable every theater to show - - - - -

The News Reel of Real News

Gaumont Co.

PARIS . FLUSHING, N. Y. LONDON

"IN RESPONSE TO THE DEMAND IT HAS BEEN DECIDED TO RELEASE: TWO TWO-REEL TOTO: COMEDIES EACH MONTH BEGINNING APRIL 14th

NOW READY "A ONE NIGHT STAND". COMING: "FARE PLEASE"

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

MR. EXHIBITOR!

We have told you the full and truthful story of the new Pathé serial

"THE HOUSE OF HATE"

We have called your attention to the extraordinary box office value of

PEARL WHITE

We have shown that the phenomenal success of her past serials should be exceeded by this, since it has a better story, written by the man who wrote "The Exploits of Elaine;" better production, with the most costly feature sets; better direction, by the man who directed "The Fatal Ring" and who wrote the scenarios of all three of her greatest serial successes; and a better leading man, for she has been given a star who is one of the most popular in the business—

ANTONIO MORENO

And we have said: All the facts demonstrate that beyond doubt this is GREATEST PEARL WHITE SERIAL!

NOW IT IS YOUR MOVE!

The mere announcement of a new and bigger Pearl White serial has been followed by a raft of bookings from exhibitors who have "cleaned up" on her in the past and KNOW that she, in a Pathé serial, is the BIGGEST of all box office attractions.

The release date, March 10th, is near at hand. If you want the best business-getter of 1918 you must act quickly. Ask the nearest Pathé exchange to screen for you the special information reel—the first episodes. ANY exhibitor who sees them will recognize the one best bet in pictures today.

"THE HOUSE OF HATE"

Produced by ASTRA
Directed by GEO. B. SEITZ
Written by ARTHUR B. REEVE and CHAS. A. LOGUE . .
Scenarios by B. MILLHAUSER

"Some Serial!"

The HIDDEN HAND

Is some serial and has gone over big with us. --It has packed them in. MRS. C.E. WOOD, WOOD THEATRE DAYTON, OHIO

The four star serial is a four-ply winner. It belongs in your theatre.

with

DORIS KENYON

SHELDON LEWIS, ARLINE PRETTY and MAHLON HAMILTON

PATHÉ

Each chapter is a two reel drama, complete in itself, full of thrills and heart interest. It's not a serial but a series with a big-box office star

RUTH ROLAND in The PRICE of FOLLY

EIGHT CHAPTERS OF TWO PARTS EACH

At the zenith of artistic and box-office value

PETROVA PICTURES

"DAUGHTER OF DESTINY"

Ask the men who have shown it

"THE LIGHT WITHIN"

Watch the box-office reports

"THE LIFE MASK"

(A·MARCH·RELEASE)

"Who killed Woodruffe Clay?"

PETROVA PICTURE COMPANY

Frederick C. Collins, Pres.

Exchanges of FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS' CIRCUIT

A Release We're Proud of and a money-maker!

FIRST NATIONAL EXHIBITORS CIRCUIT

"First National" Attraction

Lone Deer's great fight

Lone Deer Protects Jeanette

Lone Deer's life hangs by a thread

Mitchell Lewis in

"THE SIGN INVISIBLE"

An Edgar Lewis Production

Packed Rothapfel's Rivoli for a Week and delighted everyone

ANOTHER BIG MONEY-MAKER!

Herbert Brenon's Masterpiece

The Fall of the ROMANOFFS

"Tremendous subject, well handled—has unforgetable characters and incidents; holds interest throughout."—Wid's.

"Among the many excellences to be found in 'The Fall of the Romanoffs' Herbert Brenon's eight part picture novel based on the Russian revolution, one attribute stands out in bold relief—the swift onrush of events."—Edward Weitzel in Moving Picture World.

"Truth is not often so dramatic as fiction, but in this story of the most remarkable by-product of the war, all the essential historic and histrionic elements were present, awaiting only the skilled hand of a producer like Mr. Brenon to fuse them into the most impressive pictorial form."—New York Sun.

"King of the movies."—Rev. Thomas B. Gregory in New York American.

NOW a "First National" Attraction

Notice That We're Getting the Big Ones!

Good Enough for the "First National"—Good Enough for You

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

¶ Coming up from the clouds of pessimism which have shrouded the film business for months past is sweeping tornado like across the continent enveloping all in its sweep.

TARZAN OF THE APES

¶ 5,000 newspapers are publishing "TARZAN" stories or will begin publication within a few weeks.

¶ Ten thousand drug stores, eight thousand book stores, five thousand stationery stores are decorating their windows to reap the reward of the films popularity.

¶ Capacity audiences still crowd the Broadway Theatre where the prices are six times as great as at picture houses. And the engagement has again been extended.

¶ Marcus Loew, B. S. Moss, S. Z. Poli, have all booked for their entire circuit to open at the same time, within half a block of each other, on release date April 12.

¶ Magazines and periodicals are coming out with page after page of pictures and stories.

¶ Fans are writing in by the thousands inquiring for the release dates in their cities.

NO FILM CONCERN ON EARTH COULD AFFORD TO PURCHASE FIVE PER CENT OF THE PUBLICITY AND ADVERTISING "TARZAN OF THE APES" HAS HAD, WILL GET AND WILL FORCE FREE OF CHARGE.

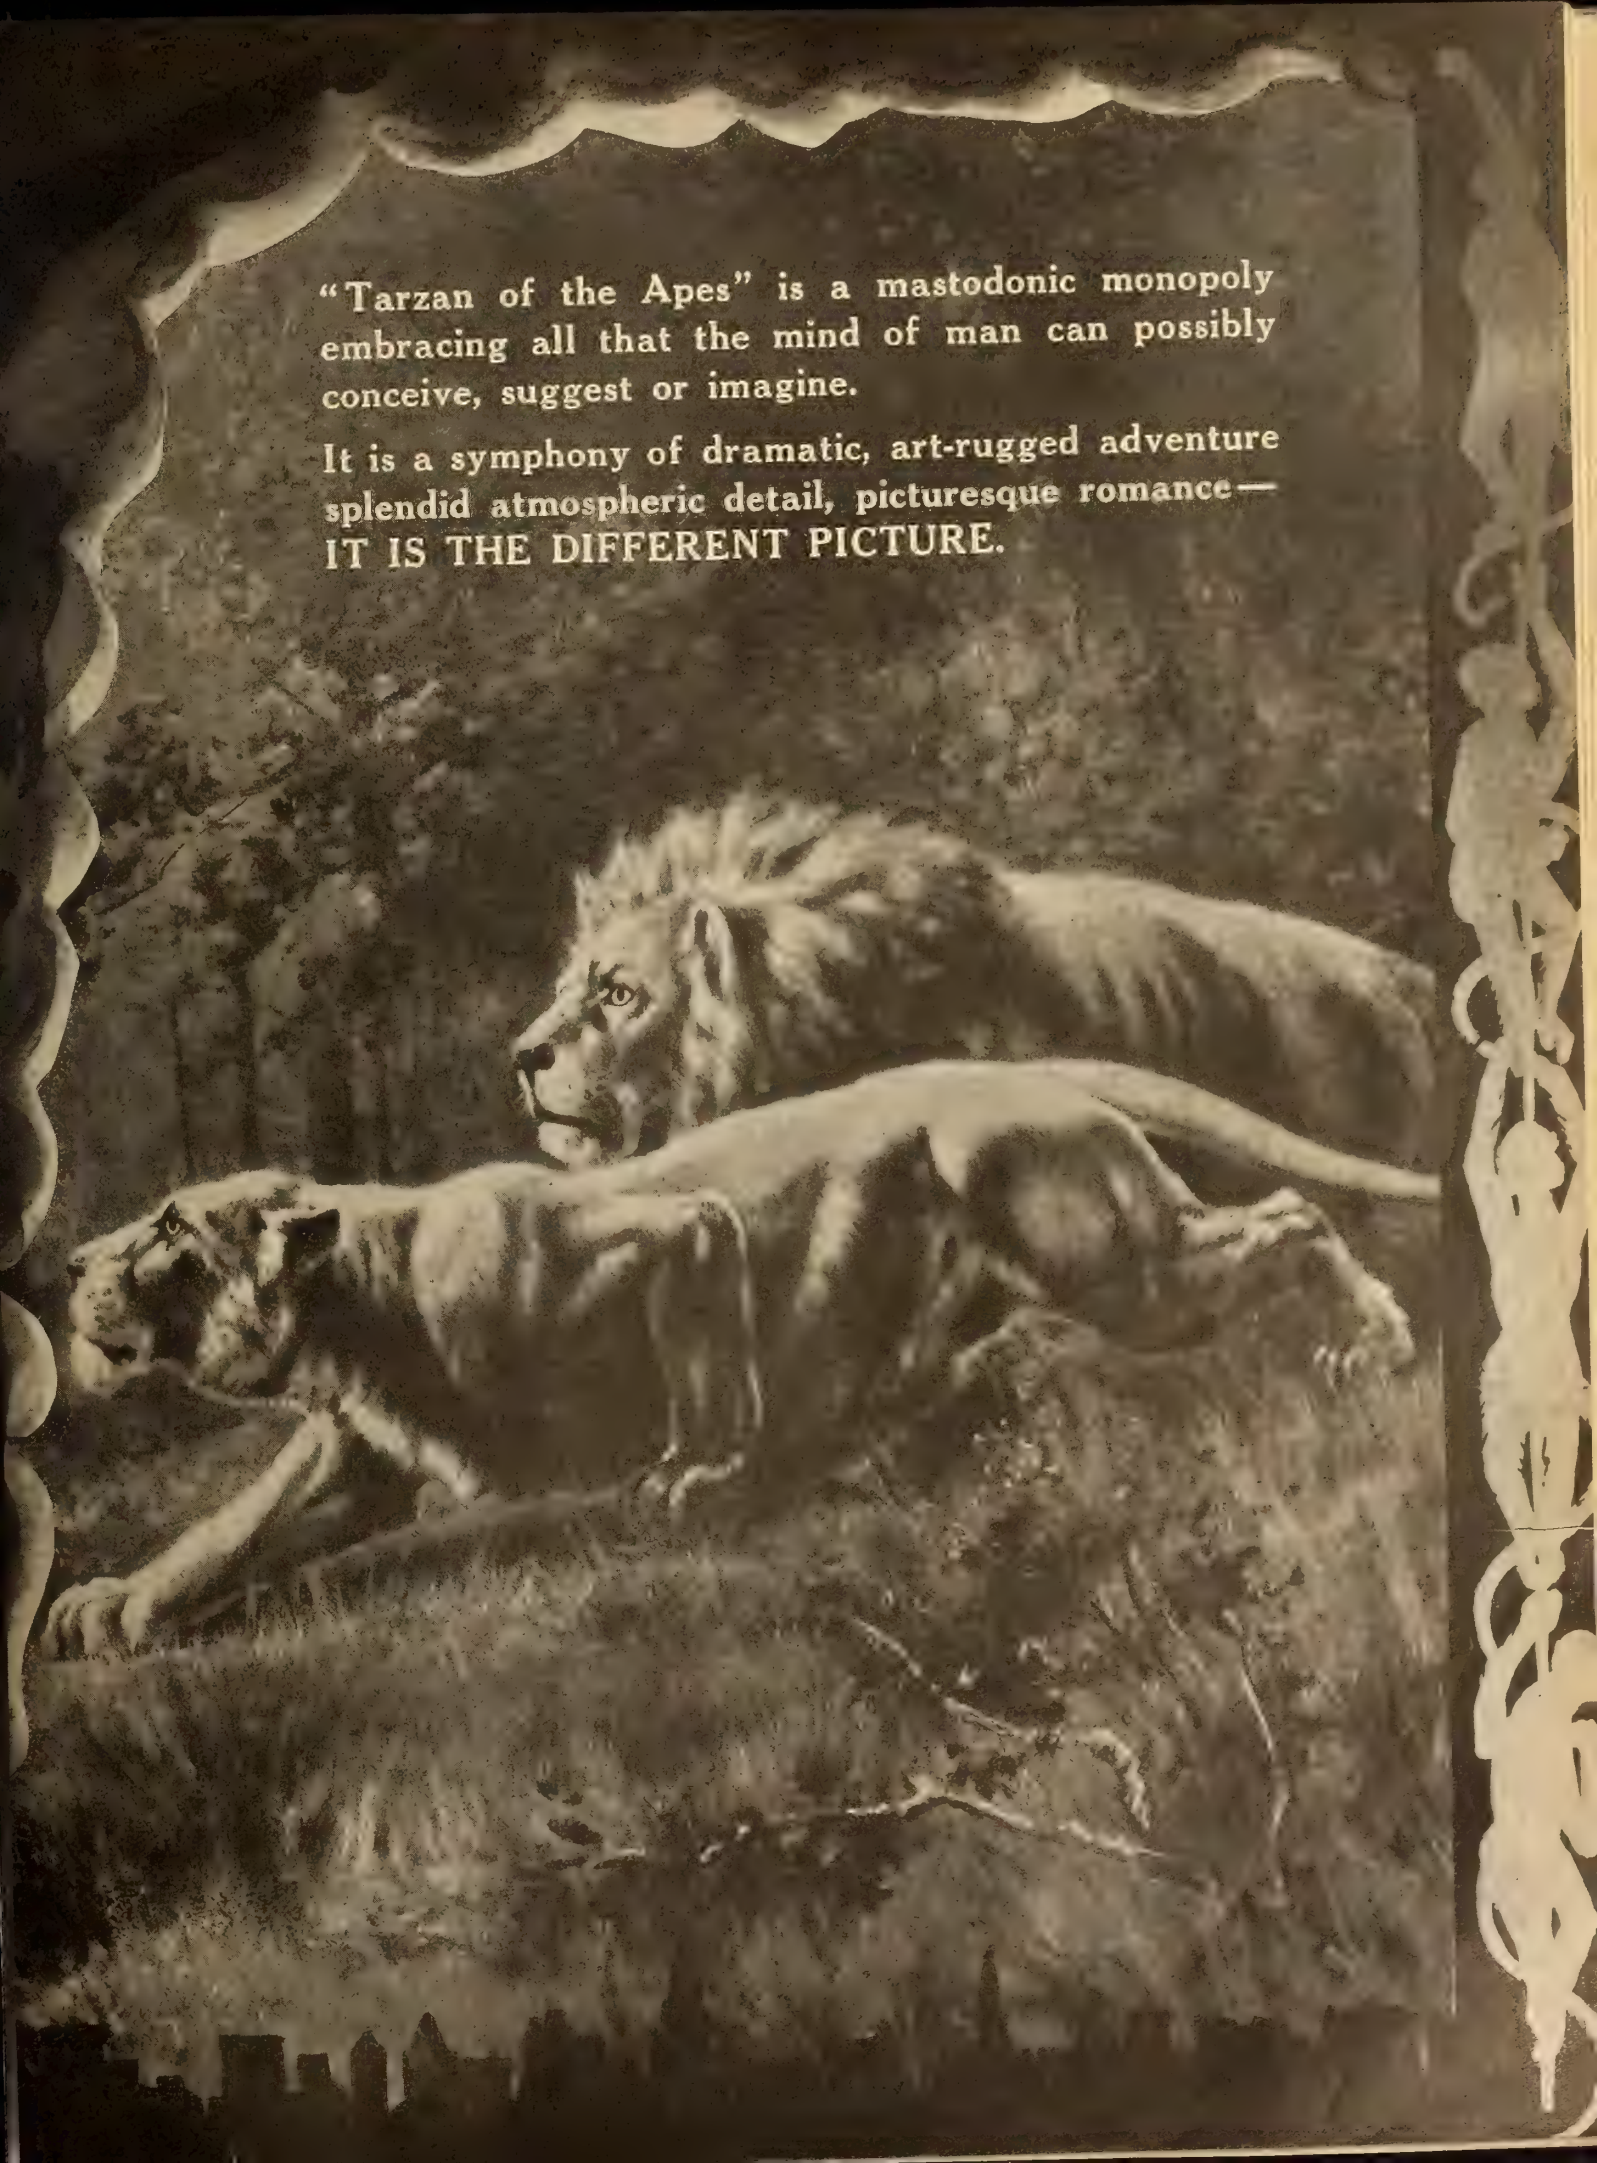
"TARZAN"

Is the outstanding event, the revivifying incident of the motion picture business. It breaks the monotony of conventional pictures and time worn stories.

And say the NEW YORK PAPERS:

"Even if all the drama were removed from 'TARZAN OF THE APES' it would still be the best picture ever thrown upon a screen."

YOU CAN BOOK NOW



ADDRESS NEAREST EXCHANGE

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

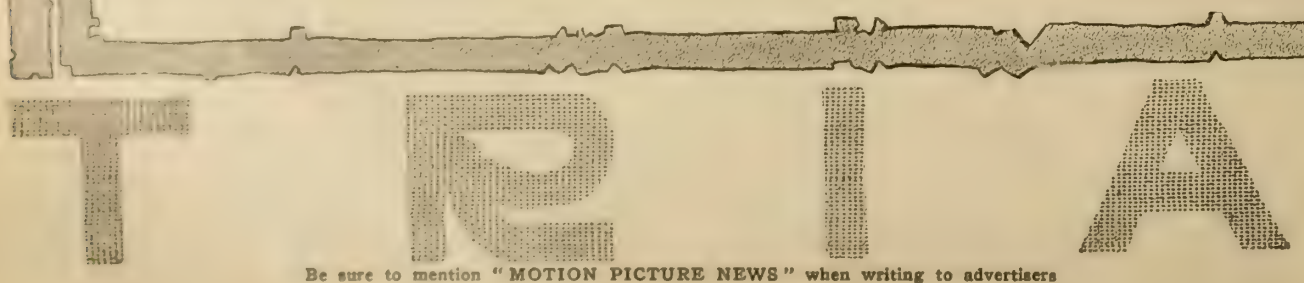
OR

National Film Corporation of AMERICA

1604 BROADWAY, NEW YORK CITY

"Tarzan of the Apes" is a mastodonic monopoly embracing all that the mind of man can possibly conceive, suggest or imagine.
It is a symphony of dramatic, art-rugged adventure splendid atmospheric detail, picturesque romance—
IT IS THE DIFFERENT PICTURE.

These are pleasant days



An air of congeniality hovers over Triangle these days.

Exhibitors come and go, talk of the Triangle pictures that have made their mark in filmdom, discuss new methods of increasing business and meet in a spirit of mutual co-operation and helpfulness which has contributed not a little to the success of the large Triangle family.

Enthusiastic letters of commendation for Triangle's policy have been coming in. Exhibitors enjoy sitting down and writing a word of satisfaction over the fact that Triangle is dealing with them on a fair and square basis; that Triangle has borne the burden of the reel tax, that the pictures are right and register so profitably at the box office.

The visits of Triangle salesmen at various theatres are pleasantly spent. The welcome of the exhibitor is a genuine one. He likes to sit down and discuss pictures and policies with the Triangle man. Business has lost its sterner side and has become mutually pleasant and profitable on both sides of the fence.

The crowning fact of it all is that Triangle pictures and Triangle policies have been proving profitable to exhibitors.

The fallacy that a picture must have a hundred thousand dollar or a five hundred thousand dollar star has been very thoroughly exploded. Too many stories have left Triangle and proven theatre fillers of the first order to permit this false theory to stand. Exhibitors have found that it isn't necessary to pay such enormous, forbidding prices for films that there is nothing left on the profit side of the ledger.

Were Triangle a company owned by Triangle exhibitors and run co-operatively by them according to their own ideas—proven practical by the box office test—it could not meet the demands of exhibitors more perfectly, more successfully or more profitably.

Triangle business is increasing every day. Exchange managers write bright, cheery letters with great regularity, filled with the spirit of optimism and usually enclosing contracts. A quiet spirit of enthusiasm runs through the whole great Triangle organization. There is not much noise, bluster or making of great claims. But "still waters run deep."

These are pleasant days.

Do you not think it might be profitable for you to become a member of the great Triangle family?

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway, New York

S. A. LYNCH
President

R. W. LYNCH
Vice-President

FRED KENT
Treasurer

Y. F. FREEMAN
General Manager

NGLE

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

Exhibitor Cooperative Buying Is Wholesale Buying

Why buy at retail when you can secure wholesale price with

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

If you have only two or three days to offer, you pay the maximum prices and are compelled to accept any terms or conditions that may be imposed. If you have a circuit of 30 or 40 days, your terms are better and the prices are lower.

BUT—

When you as a member of a national cooperative organization buy nationally, you are then part of a unit that controls 2,000, 3,000 or 4,000 booking days, and your purchasing power in the market is increased several thousand fold.

Isn't it obvious that you can cut the price of film 30 to 50 per cent, at the same time obtaining favorable terms, checking waste and extravagance, and thereby enabling the producer to make you better pictures?

That is in a nutshell the United Picture Theatres Plan. Write us for details today.

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

Cooperation Has Proved a Practical Success

Ask any person who belongs to a cooperative movement whether it has benefited him or not.

The United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

Does not offer an untried plan, but applies to films nationally the methods of cooperative societies

Local exhibitor circuits all over the United States are demonstrating that cooperation works. In Great Britain the circuit is the standard, and the lone, unattached house the exception.

Vaudeville, drama and burlesque long ago learned the lesson that in concerted action there is strength. The U. B. O. house, the Klaw & Erlanger house, the " burlesque wheel " theatre derive advantages from union that they could never attain separately.

Just as they have eliminated waste, obtained uniform excellence of production and the utmost price-economies, so can you. EXHIBITORS OF AMERICA, SAVE YOUR BUSINESS FROM DISASTER AND PLACE IT PERMANENTLY ON A PROFIT-MAKING BASIS BY UNITING IN A NATIONAL COOPERATIVE ORGANIZATION WHICH YOU YOURSELVES WILL CONTROL. Write today.

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

As "Bill" Says:—

Laugh and the world laughs with you—Weep and you weep alone.

DON'T BE A WEEPER

Join the Jester Comedy Club and send your patrons away laughing

AMONG THE FIRST RUN MEMBERS OF

JESTER SUPER COMEDIES

FEATURING

TWEDE-DAN

THE INTERNATIONAL MIRTH MAKER

Loew's Theatres, New York; Empress Theatre, Omaha, Neb.; New Grand Central, St. Louis; Arcade Theatre, Jacksonville, Fla.; Strand Theatre, San Francisco; Strand Theatre, Spartanburg, S. C.; Strand Theatre, Birmingham, Ala.; Signal Amusement Co., Tenn. and Ga.; Garden Theatre, Paterson, N. J.

If you, Mr. Exhibitor, have not booked Jester Comedies, it behooves you to get busy as time waits for no man.

Feb.—"The Recruit"
Mar.—"His Golden Romance"
Apr.—"All 'Fur' Her"
May—"The Wrong Flat"

ALL TWO PARTS—RELEASED MONTHLY

Booked on the "SHOW YOU" policy through the following Exchanges:

For State of New York and Northern New Jersey:
Photo Drama Co. (Ben Title, rep.), 220 West 42d St., New York City, N. Y.

For Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey:
Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.

For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia:
United Business Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., 224 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.

For State of Michigan:
The Strand Features, 94 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.

For Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin:
Unity Photoplays Co., 207 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.

For Minneapolis, Minn.:
Standard Film Exchange.

For Omaha, Neb:
Standard Film Exchange.

For St. Louis, Mo.:
Standard Film Exchange.

For Kansas City, Mo.:
Standard Film Exchange.

For Northern Idaho, Washington, Oregon, Montana and Alaska:
John Lannon Greater Features, Seattle, Wash.

For Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah and Southern Idaho:
Swanson & Nolan Supply Co., Denver, Colo.

For California, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaiian Islands:
Western F. F. Co., 180 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.

For N. and S. Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama and Tennessee:
R. M. Savini, 63 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.

For Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas:
Foursquare Pictures, Inc., 1911½ Commerce St., Dallas, Texas.

For Louisiana and Mississippi:
Foursquare Pictures, Inc., New Orleans, La.

For the New England States:
R. D. Marson Attraction Co., 26 Piedmont St., Boston, Mass.

Foreign Representatives: ARROW FILM CORP. (Shallenberger & Priest), Times Building, New York

A few territories still open. Call or write for terms.

JESTER COMEDY CO.

220 WEST 42d STREET, NEW YORK

TELEPHONE: BRYANT 7691

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

THE HEARST

have contracted for a series of page cartoons

RUBE GO

who will present his comic drawings in this way who already laugh over his stuff in the two hun

N. Y. Evening

This means publicity and advertising of the highest wise enough to contract for the showing of the well-known artist-humorist.

Watch for Re

MIKE A

(THEY LO

Who Will Make Their Weekly

Write for Book "Confessions of a

HARRY GROSSMAN, 729

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

NEWSPAPERS

for all of their Sunday editions to be drawn by

LDBERG

to many millions of readers in addition to those dred newspapers of the Mail Syndicate

order and money in the pockets of the exhibitors animated cartoons now being produced by the lease Date of

ND IKE

OK ALIKE)

Appearance in a One-Reel Production
Cartoonist,'' by Rube Goldberg

7th Avenue, New York City

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

WELL! WELL! WELL!

HERE'S A SPRING TONIC THAT WILL CURE THE BLUES INSTANTLY..

Billy West

KING-BEE COMEDIES

DIRECTION OF ARVID E. GILLSTROM

Served in Large Laugh-fuls Twice a Month

100% FUN

KING-BEE FILM CORPORATION

LOUIS BURSTEIN
PRES. & GENERAL MANAGER

L.L. HILLER
TREASURER

NAT. H. SPITZER
SALES MANAGER
LONGACRE BLDG. NEW YORK

SOLE FOREIGN REPRESENTATIVE,
J. FRANK BROCKLISS INC.
729 SEVENTH AVE., NEW YORK CITY.

Released at Last!!!

OHIO

FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE ITS SENSATIONAL PREMIERE AT THE RIALTO THEATRE, NEW YORK

KENTUCKY

PARENTAGE
A MESSAGE

Can now be booked in Ohio and Kentucky!!!

"PARENTAGE" is already booked at the following theatres in Ohio and Kentucky:—

CINCINNATI ....Walnut
CLEVELAND ....Standard
COLUMBUS ....Majestic
TOLEDO .....Temple
LOUISVILLE, Mary Anderson
DAYTON .....Strand
YOUNGSTOWN ...Liberty
SPRINGFIELD ..Fairbanks
AKRON .....Strand
CANTON .....Strand

The managers of the above theatres are well known for their shrewd, solid, farseeing judgment when it comes to real box office values. That's why "Parentage" goes into these houses, recognized as showing ONLY THE BEST!!

If you have not already booked "Parentage" in your town—better beat your neighbor to it!!

To Exhibitors of OHIO

"PARENTAGE" fits well into OHIO because it's a darned good feature and—

It centers its story in a typical Ohio town.

Hobart Henley, its director, comes from Cincinnati.

Martin G. Chandler, co-author, comes from Chillicothe.

William Ireland, internationally famous cartoonist of the COLUMBUS DISPATCH, declares "PARENTAGE"—"The Uncle Tom's Cabin of the Screen."

> "Parentage" is the greatest photoplay — bar none — ever produced for breaking into the family circle; family patronage is permanent trade.
>
> "Parentage" was written especially for those who do and those who do not cherish baby shoes; you have both kinds at your theatre.

"PARENTAGE" has proved a tremendous success wherever shown, because of its unusual entertainment value and the wonderful human note dominating the unfolding of this great message.

Linked with this—an unusual number of ad-helps, every one carrying seat-selling power, to help you put the picture over.

Address all communications to

PARENTAGE

Room 1211, 33 West 42nd Street, New York City

Memo—

To Mr. Johnston.

Subscription Receipts:

Week ending January 30th	$464.00
February 6th	357.00
February 13th	253.00
February 20th	244.00
TOTAL	$1,318.00

James L. Judd
Circulation Manager.

Renewals tell the story of trade journal supremacy
---- Advertisers should be interested in analyzing these subscription orders

THE FORD FILMS INC

BERLIN VIA AMERICA

BY

ELSIE VAN NAME

A STORY OF LOVE, INTRIGUE, LOYALTY AND PATRIOTISM

READY FOR RELEASE TO STATE RIGHT BUYERS ABOUT APRIL 1ST.

EDNA EMERSON

FRANCIS FORD

THE FRANCIS FORD PRODUCING CO., INC 1476 BROADWAY, N.Y.

STANDARD ENGRAVING CO. N.Y.

To Proprietors of Picture Houses

Help Starving

Little Children

The sale of Buttons and Flags in Picture Houses has proved a great means of raising huge sums of money for War Charities in Europe.

For our Appeal for Starving Belgian Children we propose to sell a special button. The likenesses of Cardinal Mercier, President Wilson, and King Albert of Belgium, with the motto they have so well justified "We Have Loved Justice" will appeal to liberty loving Americans.

Will You organize a special Button Day for this fund, set aside, if possible, a week for the sale of The Button, and by the aid of your generous Patrons, save some thousands of helpless little ones from slow starvation.

Messrs. Bastian Bros., Woolworth Building, New York, will supply you with any quantity of buttons, 5,000, 10,000, 20,000, or even smaller quantities. (Use official paper when ordering).

Proceeds of sale and donations to be sent direct to Alexander Brown & Sons, Bankers, Baltimore. No money to be sent to Messrs. Bastian Bros. for buttons. The buttons are sold from 5 cents upwards.

In this appeal to America, the land of prompt decision and hustle, it needs no apology to remind them that "He gives twice who gives quickly."

President, Cardinal Mercier.

Vice Presidents, N. Van de Werre, Princesse Albert De Ligne, Comtesse Philippe d'Oultremont, A. De Bueger, G. Van Der A. A. Boissevain.

Treasurer, Mother Mary Duggan, Holly Mount, Bury, England.

Bankers, Messrs. Alexander Brown & Sons, Baltimore, U. S. A.

A LIVE WIRE BUYER—

Herman Rifkin, of The Eastern Feature Film Co. of Boston, operating throughout New England, has bought:-

TO-DAY—Starring Florence Reed

and

THE MAD LOVER—Starring ROBERT WARWICK and ELAINE HAMMERSTEIN

to meet the

Overwhelming Demand for

BIG BOX OFFICE ATTRACTIONS

These Successful Independent Buyers Also Purchased the Two Splendid Features

NATHAN HIRSH, PIONEER FILM CORP.—New York State.

SOL LESSER, ALL-STAR FEATURES—California, Arizona, Nevada.

DOLL-VAN FILM CORP.—Illinois, Indiana, Southern Wisconsin.

HARRIS P. WOLFBERG ATTRACTIONS—Ohio, West Virginia, Western Pennsylvania.

FRANK GERSTEN—New Jersey, Eastern Pennsylvania.

EXHIBITORS FILM EXCHANGE—Delaware, Maryland, District of Columbia, Virginia, North Carolina.

ISAAC A. ROSENTHAL—Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Montana, Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico, Alaska.

COL. FRED LEVY, BIG FEATURE RIGHTS CORP.—Kentucky, Tennessee.

Only Five Groups of States Open

WIRE—WRITE or CALL

ARROW FILM CORP., Times Building, New York

Exclusive State Rights Sales Agents for

PATHE EXCHANGE, Inc.

BRONCHO BILLY

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

The Most Popular Film Hero

REVIVIFIED!

In the world famous dramas of the hills and plains. Single reels that carry a strong punch and thrilling action.

PHOTOGRAPHY—NEW PROCESS—1000% BETTER

BOOK ONE EACH WEEK

Broncho Billy's Leap
Broncho Billy and the Rattler
Broncho Billy's Close Call
Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter
Broncho Billy's Indian Romance
Broncho Billy, A Friend In Need
Broncho Billy's Wild Ride
Booncho Billy's First Arrest
Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child
Broncho Billy's Last Deed

ESSANAY

George Kleine System, Distributor

Perfection Pictures

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 12. March 23, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

EXHIBITOR TO EXHIBITOR (WM. A. JOHNSTON).1701
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY 1702
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER.....1703
PRACTICAL PLAYS FOR BUSY PRODUCERS, NO. 4, BY HAL REID.....1704
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS—SELZNICK?.....1711
DIARY OF A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR.....1729
THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER.....1757
A WORD TO THE WISE FROM THE WISE BY NAT L. ROYSTER 1755

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Box-Office Reports.....1717
Exhibitors' Service Bureau.....1722
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors.....1728
Ready-Made Ad.-Talks 1732
Short Subjects in Review.....1748
Releases—Current and Coming.....1771-72-73-74
Projector Department 1778
Music and the Picture.....1785
Theatres Worth While.....1788
Newsy Items for Your Program.....1760

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Sydney Cohen Elected by N. Y. Exhibitors.....1710
Paul Burnet Heads Pathe.....1707
Stanley Mastbaum Dies.....1713
Live News from the Producers.....1734
Advance Offerings of the Programs.....1743
In the Independent Field.....1753
In and Out of West Coast Studios.....1758
Among the Exchanges.....1770

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"Amarilly of Clothesline Alley" (Artcraft).....1762
"American Buds" (Fox).....1765
"Beauty in Chains" (Universal).....1767
"Beloved Traitor, The" (Goldwyn).....1763
"Brace Up" (Bluebird).....1764
"Cleopatra" (Kleine) 1762
"Debt of Honor, The" (Fox).....1763
"Devil's Wheel, The" (Fox).....1766
"Fare, Please!" (Pathe).....1766
"Floor Below, The" (Goldwyn).....1764
"House of Hate, The" (Pathe).....1764
"Kaiser, The" (Renowned Pictures).....1767
"Let's Go" (Pathe).....1766
"Miss Cinderella" (Mutual-Strand).....1763
"My Four Years in Germany".....1768
"Powers That Pray" (Mutual-American).....1765
"Shifting Sands" (Pathe).....1765
"Song of the Soul, The" (Vitagraph).....1762
"Sunshine Nan" (Famous Players-Paramount).....1763
"Wanted—A Mother" (World Film).....1766
"Woman and the Law" (Fox).....1764

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Franklyn Farnum and Juanita Hansen in "Fast Company."1640
More About "The Blue Bird".....1641-42
Mary Pickford Turns to Comedy Again in Her "Amarilly"1643
"Sunshine Nan" Offers Ann Pennington's Big Opportunity 1644
Regarding Hart in "Blue Blazes Rawden".....1645
Fatty Arbuckle's Latest.....1646
"A Romance of the Underworld" Shortly Ready.....1647
Sidney Drew Reissues from Vitagraph.....1648
A Five-Part O. Henry, With Earle Williams and Grace Darmond 1649
A Great Star in Her Greatest Hit.....1650
"House of Glass" is Clara Kimball Young's Triumph....1651
"Wanted, A Mother," Madge Evans' Latest from World Film 1652
"Floor Below," With Mabel Normand, Considered Better Than Her First Goldwyn.....1653
Mary Garden's Next Release a Modern Story, "The Splendid Sinner" 1654-55
"Heart of the Sunset" Big Rex Beach-Goldwyn Feature.1656-57
Harry Raver's "Master Crook" Coming.....1658
Olive Tell, Mutual Star of the Week.....1659-60
Louise Glaum's First Paralta.....1661-62
Canadian Censor Says a Good Word for "Daughter of Uncle Sam" 1663
Eight Chaplin Comedies Obtainable from General Film..1664
Another O. Henry Western.....1665
The Judge Brown Stories.....1666
General Film Releasing "Shame".....1667
Clover Comedies from General.....1668
Another Talk from Inter-Ocean.....1669
Fox's Sensational Feature, "The Woman and the Law."1670-71
Fox Announces Acquisition of Mutt and Jeff Cartoons....1672
George Walsh's Latest is "The Kid is Clever".....1673
Gaumont Stands for Stability.....1674
The Toto Comedies.....1675
"The House of Hate," Pathe's Latest and Best Serial..1676-77
"The Price of Folly" and "The Hidden Hand".....1678
First National Offerings.....1679-80
One of First National's Big Ones.....1681
"Tarzan of the Apes".....1682-83
Message from Triangle.....1684-85
"United Picture Theatres".....1686-87
Jester Comedies 1688
"Mickey" 1689
Rube Goldberg's "Mike and Ike".....1690-91
Billy West Prescribes.....1692
"Parentage" in Ohio and Kentucky.....1693
New Company Ready With Patriot Number.....1695
Arrow Film's States Right Productions.....1697
Broncho Billy Reissues.....1698
Another Popular Play Completed With Taylor Holmes as Star 1700
Universal's Studio Offer Already Taken Up by Three Companies 1849
"The Doctor and the Woman".....1850
Official War Pictures Have Prominent Place in Universal News Reels 1851
Eddie Polo in "The Bull's Eye".....1852

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas.

Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1918, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

GEORGE K. SPOOR
presents
A GREAT PICTURE
ASK WHEN TAYLOR HOLMES in
A PAIR OF SIXES
DISTRIBUTED BY THE GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM .
George K. Spoor Says:
This is the greatest picture in which the famous comedian, Taylor Holmes, has appeared. He is supported by an all star cast, including Maude Eburne and Alice Mann. I am convinced it is the best farce comedy yet screened. It's a show. If you are a showman you will please your patrons by booking this picture. Arrange your dates NOW!
Essanay
Perfection Pictures

MAR 14 1918
©CLB410197

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 12 March 23, 1918

"Exhibitor to Exhibitor"

"EXHIBITOR to Exhibitor" reviews are announced in this issue.

And we consider them of such importance to the exhibitor and producer that we are telling on this page why we have inaugurated them.

Last week we announced a big step forward.

An advisory board of editors, composed of about twenty prominent exhibitors—men who have enthusiastically greeted the new idea and who will work.

Plus the advertising and presentation aid that will be given their fellow showmen the purpose back of this board is, broadly speaking—better pictures.

These exhibitor editors will form the necessary connecting link between the men who make pictures and the public which sees them.

These exhibitors will interpret the public wants and communicate them to the producer—through the columns of this paper and just as directly as though they conferred in person with the producer each week.

* * *

BETTER pictures is also the idea back of "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" reviews.

We have employed a man to look at pictures through exhibitor eyes. That, ostensibly, is the purpose of all trade paper reviews, but in the present case the man is an exhibitor himself—a successful one. He has made an intensive study—for years, of box-office values and objectives.

He will give, tersely and with utter frankness, a definite box-office appraisal and classification. He will also give the picture's selling points and make practical suggestions on "putting it over."

We looked a long time before we found the right man and we can recommend him fully. Turn now to page 1714 and see if we are right. The service, by the way, is just starting. It will be amplified and made more scientific.

Such an exhibitor-reviewing service will, we believe, make for better box-office pictures. It will indicate definitely the kind of pictures wanted and the elements in them which are not wanted.

We offer, furthermore, to all producers—and we are glad to say that the invitation has already been generally accepted—the advice and co-operation of this reviewer in the editing and assembling of pictures.

AN "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" service could naturally not pass by the necessity of presenting—when the picture demands it—a suggestion as to advertising methods.

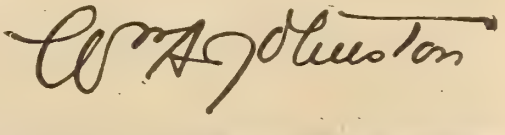
Such suggestions will be a part of these new reviews, when—we repeat—the pictures made them of value.

But no attempt will be made to drag "clever" advertising ideas in by the heels when the picture does not warrant nor deserve special advertising treatment.

The exhibitor, for example, owning a three-hundred seat house, will not be told to advertise "The Man Higher Up" by engaging an aviator to fly about over his village for a week before his showing; or to hire the local ministers' association to parade the streets with sandwich banners, or to expend fifty dollars on costumes for his ushers and tickets takers when his one-day showing of a picture holds out a possible profit of one-fifth that.

Suggestions almost as ridiculous—and not infrequently more so—appear to be quite the acme of brilliance to the bright young men now breaking into print in some quarters with advertising "assistance."

But an "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" review service will have little room for the far-fetched, the clownish and the suicidal.



* * *

WE have made mention of the fact that this week the "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" service is just starting, that it will be amplified and made more scientific.

Our aim in this regard is a definite one—our plans are being molded carefully and will be evidenced in a week to week gradation until that aim is reached.

We will not rest content until the pages of the "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" reviews reach the form that will render them—alone—a complete index of all the information that the exhibitor can desire on any picture.

The nucleus on which we will build is presented this week. But even in that start—since it has been made with a definite knowledge of the demands of exhibitors as shown by their letters to us—we feel certain that they will find the answer to their desires—a review service that tells briefly, in plain language, the quality of a picture, the class of audience that it will satisfy, the methods of handling that it demands.

Speaking Editorially:

Hats Off to Virginia

AS we go to press the good news is wired from Richmond, Va., that the projected state censorship died a natural death, March 10, with the adjournment of the state legislature.

"Good news" scarcely expresses it.

What Virginia has done with censorship will react directly and effectively upon the entire South and to a lesser degree upon the entire Union.

Our sincere congratulations to Mr. Jake Wells, and the loyal, hard-working State League of Virginia exhibitors.

The industry owes them a big debt of gratitude. They did their own fighting, neither asking nor getting the industry's support save in a few personal instances.

Moreover, in addition to their signal victory over censorship, they succeeded in their fight for a reasonable license law, securing the adoption of a bill that will save Virginia exhibitors many thousands of dollars.

With the burial of Virginia censorship let us also put in the grave the silly charge that Jake Wells wanted state censorship.

Mr. Wells merely made the same statement to the exhibitors of Virginia that William A. Brady gave to the National League in Chicago two years ago, namely, "Censor yourselves!"

That is all he asked for. He warned the state exhibitors against the wild cat picture, the occasional picture made intentionally sensational and disgracefully exploited by the irresponsible few, the real enemies of the industry and of the legitimate exhibitor. He asked the exhibitors, themselves, to censor such a picture and its promoters out of the business—as they can and should do.

It seems unnecessary to defend Mr. Wells. He, himself, has never deigned to reply to the baseless charge. The conclusion of events in Virginia is probably the answer he contemplated.

Laugh or Cry?

SHOULD the audience leave laughing or crying?

The old-fashioned idea is to send the people out with a laugh. Hence the comedy at the end of the show.

An experienced showman writes us that the schedule should be reversed. When people leave with a laugh they forget; when they leave thoughtful or sad they remember the play and continue to talk about it, which gives the theatre much word-of-mouth advertising.

What do you think?

Lift Them Out of Themselves

THE same showman also refers interestingly to a recent editorial in which we suggested that light dramas and especially novelties were strongly in line now because they took people's minds off war.

"Very good," he says; "but any kind of a strong play will have the same effect. What is needed—now more than ever—is something that will 'lift people out of themselves.'

"You can do that with many types of plays. Make them think, feel, hate! Don't depress them—that's all."

Why Do They Do It?

A TEXAS exhibitor writes an interesting letter on conditions in his section and incidentally goes on to ask:

"Why, when I have all I can do to make one theatre pay in this town, do newcomers persist in breaking in every time I reach that point? They will come along with lower prices and long shows for a few months, then reach the end of their rope and silently close up and leave town. Meanwhile, I have been standing a loss—merely because the theatre is a side issue with me—and then I practically have to begin all over again."

Why do they do it?

We can't answer. When exhibitors find newcomers always willing to sink shoestring bankrolls in attempt after attempt to make two theatres grow where one is sufficient, we always think——

Of the producer who enters blissfully into an overcrowded field, drops a comparatively bigger bankroll, finds that he has an unmarketable product in a market that is no market—and then quietly passes away.

Why do they do it?

Advertising on the Screen

IS there a place on the screen for advertising? Assuredly there is, but when is screen advertising in its place?

We are in receipt of a complaint from an exhibitor regarding the practise of spreading advertising gospel by means of the topical weekly.

The exhibitor wants to know why he should pay the manufacturer for something for which the latter has received payment as advertising.

The producer's standpoint is that advertising has its place providing it is presented in a manner that makes it real entertainment.

Much can be said on either side.

Wish we knew what the patron would say.

Page Mr. "Uncle Sam"

OUT in Seattle they are planning a motion picture ball and exposition which the sponsors hope to see grow into a national event.

The idea is to turn the revenue over to war relief purposes.

Which isn't a bad idea. We have never known just where all the thousands spent on picture shows went so if the shekels must be spent why not give them to Uncle Sam?

The Man in the Sticks

HE'S in again. Who? The Man in the Sticks, of course. This time he wants to know——

"Why do the picture makers quote the glowing opinions of New York daily papers in advertising their pictures when New York means nothing to me out here in Oskaloosa even if the opinions were unbiased—and in addition I know that the advertising department isn't any further distant from the editorial room in New York than it is out here in this burg."

The Man in the Sticks is a cantankerous cuss, isn't he?

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

STANLEY MASTBAUM has left us. A sturdy and valiant skipper has been swept from the deck of his ship in the midst of a storm.

That's the only picture we can think of in the loss of Stanley Mastbaum. The picture of a skipper who had been with his ship from the laying of the keel through many a voyage of calm and storm—a man who would hold to the deck and fast to the wheel to the last—who would find equal glory in weathering the storm or the joy of life in combat and struggle with the storm.

Snatched away by Fate.

* * * *

THE editorial page stops to tell you all about our new "Exhibitor to Exhibitor" review service this week—which leaves us little to say further than to advise a close following of the department from week to week.

It starts off well—but still brighter are the plans we have in view. So watch it from week to week—through various changes until within a few weeks you see the full results of plans that are engaging the entire attention of our MOTION PICTURE NEWS organization.

We told you we would have another new department this week. It will be found on page 1760. The purpose is two-fold—the one a covering of the studios at first hand with intimate little bits of news and gossip, the second a service to exhibitors in presenting them with material ideas for use in theatre programs and for their local newspaper editors.

Preserve these pages from week to week. Then you will always have on hand clipping material that will arouse interest in coming productions.

* * * *

PAUL BRUNET is to direct Pathe activities in America.

We wish we could give you a personal view of the new "man behind the rooster."

But we can't.

This Brunet seems to have been too efficiently busy through his long association with the Pathe organization to have had time to bask in the trade paper limelight. Our only mental picture of him is a good-natured, likable character as seen at Pathe's own social affairs.

So all we can do is to tell you the things that others have said about him since the news of his elevation broke on Friday.

And we can't do that, either. For it would take more than this page, all of superlatives, to record all the expressions we have heard in the past few days regarding the business genius and personal qualities of Paul Brunet.

Page 1707

* * * *

THERE'S another story in this week's issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS that we would like to start talking about on this page—but have to refrain for the same reason. There wouldn't be room for anything else.

"What Kind of a Fellow Is—Selznick?" asks Wm. A. Johnston on page 1711. And then he answers the question in bang-up fashion.

But a page isn't enough to give you an intimate view of Lewis J. Selznick. For, in all around, picturesque, humanness Lewis J. has no rival in this great and glorious picture industry.

It would have been the same in any other field that the Select head might have chosen.

As an evangelist he would have out-Sundayed Billy Sunday in human interest, as a politician he would have out-Teddied Roosevelt in front news page value, as an auto manufacturer he would have crowded Ford back to the blueprints.

* * * *

WE don't know when an exhibitor organization election has been held that caused us as much gratification as the choice of Sydney Cohen to head the New York State League.

Clean-cut, intelligent, and a pioneer in cooperative moves for the benefit of all exhibitors, Mr. Cohen gives every promise of being a leader who will take firm hold of the reins and secure for New York exhibitors a strong organization and the results that strong organization is certain to attain.

Some things we can assure you. Sydney Cohen will not deal in proclamations, resolutions, and long-winded letters that arrive nowhere. He is a business man, and if there is a business solution to an exhibitor problem he will secure it in a business way.

The successful manner in which his own exhibiting affairs have been conducted, and those of the New York Exhibitors Board of Trade are sufficient proof of these promises.

* * * *

WE wish that words could only impart to you some of the enthusiasm over the new Exhibitors' Advisory Board felt by the prominent members. Already two, Messrs. McCormick and Newman, have been visitors at MOTION PICTURE NEWS' office to confer on the plans—visitors from far off Indianapolis and Kansas City.

And Rothapfel, in New York, he's a regular brass band for enthusiasm.

Something of the plans of the board and a few of the additions to its membership are told in this issue on page 1720. Follow this advisory board of exhibitor-editors closely. We will have more to say next week regarding the plans and pretty soon the board will be going hot and heavy.

* * * *

THERE are other things of interest to you in this week's NEWS. For example:

We offer the fourth in our series of "Practical Plays for Busy Producer with His Honor Mr. 'Props'" as the subject for Hal Reid's ammunition this week. Be sure to read it.

Then there's the first trade paper review on "My Four Years in Germany," the film version of Ambassador Gerard's book. Missed the showing ourselves, but we are sure that it is some picture from the way Peter Milne enthuses. And Peter doesn't enthuse very easily, either.

By the way, we haven't heard any press agent yarns about the sale at fabulous prices of the German and Austrian rights to "My Four Years in Germany," "The Kaiser," "The Eagle's Eye," or "Lest We Forget."

Wonder if the "two bits" in our pocket will buy that batch?

Practical Plays For Busy Producers; No. 4

Director—"What? Me look over his accounts? Say, what do you think I am-a bookkeeper?"

The Property Man

By Hal Reid

CAST OF CHARACTERS

SLAM BANG—THE PROPERTY MAN
WOTT TA' 'ELL—HIS ASSISTANT
TEMPERMENTALIO—THE DIRECTOR
TAKEITEASY—TECHNICAL DIRECTOR
[illegible]—STAGE DIRECTOR
[illegible]—A NEW HAND
[illegible]—THE ELOPER-VICTIM
CARPENTERS, STAGE HANDS, ETC.
SCENE: STUDIO STAGE
TIME: [illegible]

DISCOVERED

Slam Bang, Property Man, and Wott Ta' 'Ell, His Assistant.

Slam

[illegible] of dat nut director, he wants me ta git him a flock of live sheep fer a studio scene.

Wott

Aw! He's crazy.

Slam

Sure he is, 'er he couldn't be no direckter, anyways de bosses won't hire 'em lessn dey acks nutty—a direckter witout temperment, sixty plunks a week; one wit it, six hundred en' fifty.

Wott

Well, dis guy is kink of dem all.

Slam

Let him rave! Let him rave! I'll git 'im de sheep all rite, all rite, 'en when Ezemon de boss gits de swindle sheet expense account, he'l trow seven kinds of fits.

Wott

Dat guy is usta dat. Say, you know dem solid mahog'ny doors we rentid?

Slam

Sure; what about dem?

Wott

Dey's all broke—busted!

Slam

Broke?

Wott

Yes, de hand carved panels is all smashed to smithereens.

Slam

Well, wot duh yuh tink of dat, broke, 'en me rentin dem fer twenty-fife per cent off de price of dem, seven hunderd 'en eighty dollars, en' de agreement was dat eff dey got broke de boss hasta pay full price fer dem—ain't et awful?

Wott

Ain't it?

Slam

(Looking about to make sure they are alone.) When did youse break dem?

Wott

Las' nite when de bunch was all gone, I shoved dem offer en' dey fell rite on the stage en' broke demselfs.

Slam

En' now de boss 'ull haff ta pay de seven hundred en' eighty, en' de guy what owns dc doors wont do a ting but hand me a hunderd en' fifty fer mine en' yores fer breakin' 'em. He didn't want 'em, he tole me he has bin tryin' ta' git rid of dem fer de last four years.

Wott

Dat guy is all to de merry, he is.

Slam

Is he? Well, you said it!! We has bin doin' business fer effer sence I was wit de Graphivite Company. Why, say, he has paid me more money dan I gits in me pay envelope.

Wott

Is dat 'shofe on de taxi payin' up O. K. now?

Slam

Well, I guess yes, twenty-fife per cent on all he gits from de company. I tole him I'd fire him if he didn't.

Wott

Who broke dat golden white set of firniture we rentid?

Slam

It was an accident. I waz walkin' by dat bunch of stuff, en' bumped me shoulder aginst some scenery leanin' against de wall en' it fell on de furniture en' "blooey," it waz all smashed.

Wott

En' de boss 'ull haff to pay dat guy.

Slam

Four hundert en' sixty plunks, en' we cash in sefenty-fife. (He yawns.) Say, what's de matter wit de "eats?"

Wott

De "eats" iss all waitin' in the property room.

Slam

Wot we got today?

Wott

Tenderline steaks, mushrooms, celery, pickle walnuts, cheese, lemon pie, club san'wiches, chickin san'wiches, sardines, pound cake, hard boiled eggs, strawberries en' cream, en' two bottles of champane.

Slam

(Disgustedly.) Iss DAT ALL?

Wott

If yuh want anyting else I kin git et en' charge et to "Props" fer de bankit scene in dis rotten picter dat phoney direckter is tryin' ta make, like you tole me to do wit de stuff we already got.

Slam

Oh! I guess it u'll do fer today. (Yawns.) Some class—hey kid—dese pickters with banquet scenes in 'em. I jest starf ta deth, when his Nibs is ravin' troo one of dem, don't I?

Wott

Our sherry wine iss most all gone.

Slam

Git two bottil more en' charge dem to "Props."

Wott

You said it!

(Enter suddenly Tempermentalio, the director.)

Tem

(Calling.) Props! Props!

Slam

Dats me.

Tem

What became of that fifty yards of blue silk velvet I ordered for the draperies for this scene?

Slam

Search me, I toined it over to yore teck-nick director.

Tem

He says he sent it back to you to keep until the set is ready.

Slam

Aw, where does he git dat stuff? Nutting doin' on dat puttin' it up ta me. I give et to him, en' dat's all dey is ta it.

Tem

Well, I've got to have it. I'll see him and ask him again.

(Tempermentalio exits.)

Slam

(Lays back and laughs.) Oh, me! Oh, my! Where does weez go from here?

Wott

What's de laff?

Slam

Aw, nuttin'. But ef youse'll keep your lamps open next Sunday youse'll see Mame, me rag, en' her mudder, wearin' silk velvet dresses fit fer empresses.

(Enter Putitoff, stage director, with Forsye Wallie.)

Stage Director

(To Slam.) Slam, this is Forsye Wallie, a friend of mine. He is going to work here, second assistant props. Break him in.

Slam

All right. (To Forsye.) Git busy en' clean up dat set offer dere. Put de furniture en' rugs over in de corner dere.

Forsye

All right. (Forsye turns and hurries to the other set. Gets really busy. Works hard and fast, cleaning out the set.)

Slam

(To stage director.) How dey comin', pal?

Stage Director

All right, Slam. I've got no complaint to make.

Slam

(Looking at Forsye. Pointing at him.) Gawd's sake! Look at dat cyclone over dere. He's near got dat set cleant out already. (Yelling.) Hey, youse, come here.

Forsye

(Stops working and comes to Slam.)

Slam

Wot ta 'ell you doin'?

Props: —"Gwan! The boss says we got to 'conomze so I'm carvin' the boat for the shipwreck scene wit' me penknife! Har! Har! 'Conomy!"

Forsye

Doing what you told me, cleaning out that set.

Slam

(Almost tearfully to stage director.) Lissen to him. Lissen to him! (To Forsye.) Does youse want ta ruin all of us?

Forsye

I—I—I don't understand.

Stage Director

Let me tell him, Slam.

Forsye

(Anxiously.) Have I done anything wrong? I was working as fast as I could.

Slam

(Wails.) Lissen to him! Lissen to him! He'll be de death of me. Woikin' as hard as he could.

Stage Director

(Patting Slam on shoulder.) Take it easy, pal. He's new. I'll fix it. (To Forsye.) Listen, Forsye. If you want to hold this job down, never be seen working fast, never rush, never hurry. It is against the rules of the men working here. Never do anything quickly. If you do, the boss may see you and expect us to do the same. Kill time and then kill more time. Nobody never hurries in motion pictures. Never do anything during the day but "stall." Put it off until evening. Then do it after regular hours. Then you'l get "double time." Double pay for overtime. See? Pretend to be busy, but don't be. Get me?

(Continued on page 1714)

Cohen Is N. Y. State President

Exhibitors' League in Convention Chooses New York Man to Head Organization—Vote to Assist Liberty Loan Drive

THE annual convention of the Motion Picture Exhibitors League of the State of New York was held at the Hotel Astor, in New York City, Tuesday and Wednesday, March 5 and 6. There was a large attendance of delegates from Greater New York and as far north and west as Cohoes and Schenectady. Sydney Cohen, of New York, was elected president. The annual per capita tax was increased to $4.00 and it was voted to assess a special tax of $5.00 on each theatre as a fund for organization expenses for the coming year. It was also decided to set aside one day of each week for the purpose of aiding the next Liberty Loan drive. The following is an official report of the proceedings:

TUESDAY, MARCH 5

Meeting started at 11:45 with President A. Buettner in the chair. The roll call was answered by delegates from Manhattan, Brooklyn, Bronx, Albany, Schenectady, Poughkeepsie, Yonkers, Troy, Cohoes and Binghamton. Mr. Buettner opened the convention with an address referring to the progress and conditions of the motion picture industry.

After the reports of the officers were made and the financial statement of the treasurer read, a vote of thanks was offered to the Tri-City League for the spirit in which they responded to the call for $10.00 to aid the State in carrying out its work.

Secretary Howard made his report, and at its conclusion donated to the State organization the sum of $933.80 due him.

Mr. Roberts, president of the Schenectady local, moved that the convention go on record extending a vote of thanks to Mr. Howard for his generosity and good will, which was duly seconded by Chas. Steiner, of the Sunshine theatre, New York City, and the motion was carried.

The president then appointed the following committees:

Credentials:—Thomas Howard, chairman; Messrs. Vindegrad of Bronx, Hollander of Brooklyn, Elliott of Albany, and Wolff of Manhattan.

Law and Legislative:—J. Manheimer, chairman; Messrs. Chas. O'Reilly, Gerson, Zeizer, Cole, Sanders, George Cohen of Poughkeepsie, and McCarthy.

Grievance Committee:—John Whitman, chairman; Messrs. Chas. Steiner, Rothman, Rich and Silverman of Schenectady.

By-Laws:—Henry Cole, chairman, and all the secretaries of the various locals of the State; Messrs. Berman, Ascher, Apple and Muller.

Resolutions:—Sydney Cohen, chairman; Messrs. I. Hartstall, Gerson, Chas. Haring and Grossman.

After appointment of the committees the convention took a recess until 11 a. m. Wednesday.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 6

Mr. Howard, chairman of the Credentials Committee, reported the various delegates in good standing, except Queens, which were given a few days' grace in which to pay their per capita tax. The delegates representing Manhattan were: Messrs. Gerson, O'Reilly, Chas. Haring, Manheimer, Edelstein; I. Hartstall, Thomas Howard.

The chairman of the Resolutions Committee reported out a resolution, that motion picture theatres set aside one day of each week to aid the Liberty Loan drive; that the time and place of the next convention be held subject to the call of the Executive Committee. The balance of the resolutions can be obtained at the headquarters, 218 West Forty-second Street.

Charles Steiner, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, reports a resolution that the per capita tax be increased to $4.00 per annum and that a special tax of $5.00 be charged to each theatre as a fund for organization expenses for the current year. This was duly carried.

The convention took a recess at 1:30 and adjourned for a luncheon served to the delegates present and to the principals, exchangemen and film magnets. An invitation was also extended to Miss Rose Nerenstone and Miss I. Berman, assistant to the State secretary and local secretary, respectively, to attend. After the luncheon was served nominations were in order, and without opposition Sydney Cohen was elected president; Mr. Zucno of Albany, 1st vice-president; W. A. Zeizer, of Troy, 2nd vice-president; Rudi Sanders of Brooklyn, 3rd vice-president, and L. A. Buettner, the retiring president, 4th vice-president. John Whitman was elected treasurer. The office of secretary was contested. Mr. Elliott nominated Thomas Howard, present secretary, which nomination was seconded by Mr. Zeizer. Rudi Sanders nominated Mr. Berman. Mr. Howard then got up and stated that he had been secretary long enough and that they should give an opportunity for somebody else to get in, and for the further reason that a new broom always sweeps clean, declined the nomination. So Mr. Berman had no opposition and he was duly elected. Mr. Hilkeimeier was re-elected for sergeant-at-arms. The convention then elected delegates to the National convention, which will be held in Boston next July. The following delegates were elected: Thomas Howard, Chas. Haring, J. Manheimer, Ike Hartstall, Edelstein, Vindegrad, Cole, Roberts, Elliott, Sanders, Grossman, Lederer, Stockhammer, Gerson, L. Levine, Buettner, Whitman. Alternates: Gus Koeingswald, D. Weinstock, B. Lyons, Chas. Steiner, Wm. Hilkeimeier, A. Zuckman, M. Soloman, McCarthy, Powers, H. Haring, Bigall, Goodman, Marress, Hollander, Shapiro, Silverman, Mrs. Eitmeyer.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Indiana League Directors Meet

A meeting of the board of directors of the Indiana Motion Picture Exhibitors' League was held in Indianapolis March 5 to discuss the details incident to arranging for the state meeting of the league, which is to be held in Indianapolis the latter part of the month. The league is attempting to obtain closer co-operation among its members through the organization of a booking agency for Indiana with headquarters in Indianapolis. The directors include A. C. Zaring, Fred Mack and B. V. Barton, of Indianapolis; Frank Rembusch, of Shelbyville; Ray Andrews, of Muncie; Hugh O'Donnell, of Washington; Hugh Kornblum, of Evansville; L. A. Keating, of Terre Haute; H. H. Johnson, of Lafayette; C. Quinby, of Fort Wayne; W. J. Wold, of Gary, and C. Allart, of La Porte.

Seelye Goes West in Interest of United

C. R. Seelye, vice president and general manager of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., announced Monday before starting West for a tour of the principal exchange centers of the country that by the end of the week one hundred of the highest grade exchange men in the United States would be enlisted under the United banner.

A. S. Abeles, formerly New York exchange manager for Pathe and more recently special representative, is now in charge of the New York United office, with Aaron Korn assisting. Mr. Korn leaves Paramount after two years of successful service.

F.I.L.M. Club Elects

The F. I. L. M. Club of New York held its annual election of officers at a recent meeting and the following officers were elected: I. Chadwick, Metro, president; William E. Raynor, Pathe, vice-president; J. A. Hammell, General, second vice-president; Miles A. Gibbons, K. E. S. E., treasurer; Samuel Zeiler, Universal, sergeant-at-arms; C. B. Hoy, secretary.

It was decided to hold three business meetings a month and one social session. The first social session is announced as a dinner for the members and their gentlemen friends to be held at Healy's on March 20. It was decided that the F. I. L. M. Club make these social sessions functions of importance and of variation.

Carey Wilson, of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, was elected to membership.

Johnny Hines Signs Contract with World

Johnny Hines, the young comedian who appeared with Marie Dressler in "Tillie Wakes Up," has signed a long-term contract with World Pictures and shortly will be co-starred with Madge Evans.

World Pictures also announces that Evelyn Greeley, who recently appeared as a star with Carlyle Blackwell in "His Royal Highness," has been induced to renew her contract.

Paul Brunet Takes Pathe Management

Now Holds Title of Vice-President and General Manager of That Organization—Has Been with Company Over Three Years—Names No Plans

PAUL BRUNET, who for the past two years has been comptroller, assistant treasurer and a director of Pathe, was elected vice-president and general manager of the organization at a meeting of the Board of Directors on March 7.

Mr. Brunet's association with the Pathe Exchange, Inc., dates back for three and a half years, to the time the old Eclectic Film Company was distributing the Pathe product. During all that time he has been in close touch with the financial and exchange ends of the business, and his system of exchange control has been responsible for a marked increase in efficiency, Pathe declares.

Well Organized Department

Mr. Brunet's department at the Pathe Exchange administrative offices has admittedly been the best organized and directed of all the various departments. This, Pathe says, is due to his efforts and ability, which have made the Pathe system of accounting among the best in the business.

For the past two years, in addition to his duties as comptroller, Mr. Brunet has been assistant treasurer and a director in the company.

At this time Mr. Brunet has no statement to make regarding the policies which he will pursue. He declares, however, that Pathe Exchange, Inc., will be in closer touch with the world organization of Pathe.

Berst Withdraws from Pathe Organization

J. A. Berst, at the meeting of the Board of Directors of Pathe Exchange, Inc., on March 7, resigned as vice president and general manager of the organization. He had contemplated this action for some time, it is said.

In speaking of Mr. Berst, an announcement this week said: "Mr. Berst is generally recognized as one of the biggest and ablest men in the industry. His long experience in the business in this country, dating back to 1904, combined with executive ability and foresight, has given him complete mastery of the problems of all of the phases of the business, including manufacturing, producing, distributing and administrative.

"A fair deal to all, has been Mr. Berst's policy, and there is no man more respected by his employes and business associates.

"Mr. Berst was born in Paris, France, and began his business career as a boy with Charles Pathe, then just starting in the business with which his name is identified all over the world. In this, Mr. Berst's first position, he was called upon to do everything from manufacturing to selling, for up to 1896 he was Pathe's only employe.

In 1904 he was sent by Charles Pathe to the United States to develop the market here for Pathe films. The stock of films he brought with him was small, and some of them were only about fifteen feet in length. He rented offices on Twenty-third street, New York, and sold his stock himself. His infant business prospered—so much so that he engaged a cashier and an office boy. His efforts brought such results that in 1908 it was decided to install a factory equipment at Bound Brook, N. J., where the main Pathe American factory has ever since been located. The year following the big studio in Jersey City was built, and production of American pictures on a large scale begun.

In December of 1913 Mr. Berst resigned and became treasurer of the General Film Co. Early in 1915 he accepted the vice-presidency and general managership of the Selig Company. Then he became the president of the General Film, which office he resigned early in 1916 to become vice-president and general manager of Pathe.

Select's N. Y. Exchange Gets More Territory

A readjustment has just been made of the territory served by Select's Boston and New York exchanges. Under the new arrangement the western Connecticut territory, embracing the district lying west of the Connecticut river, will be served from the New York exchange.

In taking over the new district, Branch Manager Henry Siegel made such arrangements that there will be no interruption whatever in service to the exhibitors affected. L. W. Adler, office manager of the New York exchange, spent several days in Boston going over records and making arrangements necessary to the transfer.

Lease Plimpton Studio for Doris Kenyon

THEODORE C. DEITRICH, president of De Luxe Pictures, Inc., has leased the Plimpton Studio at Yonkers, where "The Street of Seven Stars" will be made by Doris Kenyon at the head of her own company. The studio is one of the best in Westchester County and has recently been completely outfitted by Horace G. Plimpton, with every requisite for the making of high-class motion pictures.

Miss Kenyon has just returned from a vacation spent at Palm Beach and it is expected that actual work on "The Street of Seven Stars" will commence this week. Together with her director, John B. O'Brien, her leading man, Hugh Thompson and ten other members of the cast, the star has gone to Lake Placid where the week will be spent making exteriors. Other exteriors will be made later on in the South, probably in New Orleans. Work in the studio will start on March 18.

Mr. Deitrich has engaged Lloyd Lonergan, formerly vice-president of the Thanhouser Company and for many years associated with that organization, as studio manager. E. C. McCarthy, recently of the Pathe forces, will be his assistant.

Film to Teach Morality Lesson to Soldiers

A film calculated to carry to the soldiers and sailors in Uncle Sam's service a striking lesson on the perils of immorality was recently completed at the Metro studios in New York. The picture was produced through the co-operation of the Surgeon General of the United States Army and the Commission on Training Camp Activities and will be shown at training camps, on shipboard and at all the United States naval and military stations here and abroad. The production consists of two parts, a single reel of clinical pictures showing the ravages of the various diseases caused by immorality, being followed by a three-reel play titled "Fit to Fight," which was written and ably directed by Edward H. Griffith, of the War Department Commission on Training Camp Activities.

The Surgeon General and the commission are indebted to the Metro Pictures Corporation for the free use of their studio and properties, to the Edison Company, which loaned Raymond McKee, the star of "Fit to Fight," and to Mr. McKee, Harry Gripp, Paul Kelly, William Wadsworth, Jessie Stevens, Corporal Robert Hamilton and Private Samuel Burbank, who gave of their time and best efforts as members of the cast; also to the American Social Hygiene Association and the Goldwyn Pictures Corporation, which co-operated in producing the clinical film prefacing the play.

The film is not for sale and will not be shown except as above stated.

"Parentage" Released in Ohio and Kentucky

"Parentage," Hobart Henley's production, is announced for release in Ohio and Kentucky territory. Among the theatres in those territories which have booked the feature are: Walnut, Cincinnati; Standard, Cleveland; Majestic, Columbus; Temple, Toledo; Mary Anderson, Louville; Strand, Dayton; Liberty, Youngstown; Fairbanks, Springfield; Strand, Akron, and the Strand, Canton.

This is the first opportunity that the exhibitors of Kentucky and Ohio have had of booking "Parentage" since its New York premiere at the Rialto theatre, several months ago. The theme deals with the influence environment has upon the character of children.

Campaign for Sunday Opening

Allied Committee Organized to Push Bill About to Be Introduced in New York State Legislature

THE allied interests of the motion picture industry have launched a vigorous campaign to amend the State penal laws of New York to permit the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday, and to that end a bill is about to be introduced in the State Legislature.

An Allied Motion Picture Committee of the State of New York was organized at the offices of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry on Thursday, March 7. This committee is already pushing a strenuous campaign throughout the State to gain the passage of the measure.

Following are the committee members: John Manheimer, chairman; Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, secretary; W. A. Zeisler and Charles L. O'Reilly, assistant secretaries; Max Spiegel, secretary; Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, owners of the Strand circuit of theatres in the State, treasurer. Mr. Manheimer is president of the Motion Pictures Exhibitors' League of New York State, Local No. 1, and Mr. O'Reilly is first vice-president of the same organization.

The committee is lining up every one of the 1,200 exhibitors of the State behind the bill. At the Hotel Ten Eyck, in Albany, probably on Thursday, March 14, an important get-together meeting will be held. At this time the complete organization of the State campaign will be mapped out.

Already an active newspaper campaign has been started and the allied committee is making a systematic effort to put every important newspaper in the State behind the bill to amend the laws regarding Sunday motion picture exhibitions.

The allied committee makes it clear that the bill, as proposed, presents the opening of Sunday motion picture theatres as a matter of local option. Specifying 2 p. m. as the opening Sunday hour, any possible confliction with religious services is eliminated. The bill, as now proposed, is substantially the same as the bill introduced last year in the State Legislature by Assemblyman Clarence J. Welsh, of Albany. This bill had the emphatic approval of the State conference of mayors.

Harry Davis Opens Grand in Pittsburgh

The Grand theatre, Pittsburgh's new million-dollar motion picture palace, was opened March 8 by Harry Davis in a manner befitting the beauty and magnificence of the house.

The new Grand seats 3,000 people, and there were five persons for each of these seats on the opening day, meaning a paid admission from more than 15,000 people.

Marguerite Clark, Famous Players-Lasky star, was present in person at the opening, accompanied by Adolph Zukor, president of Famous Players-Lasky. Miss Clark made a speech of dedication via the screen while she sat in the audience. Later she spoke a few words. Mayor Babcock of Pittsburgh also addressed the audience.

The Douglas Fairbanks-Artcraft feature, "Headin' South," was the attraction at the opening, and this was surrounded by a fitting program of music and shorter subjects.

It is said the Grand will book Paramount and Artcraft pictures, as features, exclusively.

Bradley Engaged to Direct Beverly Bruce

Beverly Bruce, who announced last week that she would enter the producing field, announces this week that she has engaged Willard Bradley whose story, "Letitia-for-Happiness," has been accepted for Miss Bruce's first production, to direct her. She announces that a studio has been engaged.

Mr. Bradley is the author of many successful photoplays and has written a book on the motion picture scenario, "The Shadow Shop." He is now engaged in writing the continuity for "Letitia-for-Happiness."

Bill Gives N. Y. State Sunday Shows

Sunday motion picture shows will be legalized and can only be prevented by ordinances adopted by local municipalities by a bill just introduced in the New York legislature and which is said to have good chances of passage.

The measure, which is backed by 1,200 theatre owners, film producers and allied interests, gives the locality the right to determine whether Sunday shows shall be allowed and where no action against them is taken they may operate.

About 600 of the 1,200 motion picture houses in the State are not allowed to operate on Sundays. As a result the loss to the Government, in war taxes, it is pointed out, is $500,000 a year.

The proposal, which limits the time of opening to the period after 2 p. m., so that there shall be no conflict with religious services, has been indorsed by the State Conference of Mayors.

Red Cross Film Has Been Completed

The company of players who went South with Jack Eaton to produce the special Red Cross film has returned to New York after completing its exteriors at New Orleans and at Camp Shelby, Mississippi. The scenario by James Montgomery Flagg called for scenes in a French city, so the French quarter of New Orleans was chosen. The party included Ray McKee who plays the part of Sam Prescott, an American private in France; Peggy Adams, who plays the American Red Cross nurse; Saul Harrison, director; George Lane, cameraman, and Harry Grippe, assistant to Harrison.

New Corporations

THE following new corporations within the industry were included in the records of the Corporation Trust Company, of Jersey City, for the week ending March 9:

NEW YORK

KENNEDY THEATRES, INC., Manhattan.—Motion pictures and vaudeville. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: Aubrey M. Kennedy, Thos. Healy and Chas. Cole.

NORTH STAR PARK CORPORATION, Manhattan.—Moving pictures. Capital, $20,000. Incorporators: Ferdinand Wildermann, Hermann Schaaf and William H. Heyne.

NEW YORK MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION, Manhattan.—To operate motion picture film exchanges. Capital, $50,000. Incorporators: John G. Turnbull, Louis O. Bergh and John E. McIntyre.

KORENO THEATRE CORPORATION, New York City.—Theatres and moving pictures. Capital, $5,000. Incorporators: Frank Koren, Raffaela Acierno and Maria A. Acierno.

MANHATTAN BRIDGE AMUSEMENT COMPANY, INC., Manhattan.—Motion pictures. Capital, $3,000. Incorporators Max Levinthal, Ella Levinthal and Ray L. Cohen.

H. W. VISCHER, INC., Phoenix, N. Y.—Operate moving picture theatres. Capital, $5,000. Incorporators: Howard W. Vischer, Bennett Cornell and Peter Eckel.

DELAWARE

SUCCESS-BOUND FILM CORPORATION, Wilmington.—Production of motion pictures, etc. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: Frank B. Coigne, Herman Ross and A. M. Halloran.

ALLIED BOOKING ASSOCIATION, Dover.—Manufacture and renting of motion picture films. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: S. S. Hutchinson, J. P. Grier and N. D. Cross.

ILLINOIS

HENDERSON FILMS, Chicago.—To produce moving picture films. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators: T. S. Henderson, W. R. Hyde and W. J. Cummings.

NEW JERSEY—FOREIGN

THE ART FILM STUDIOS COMPANY (Ohio), Trenton.—To deal in moving picture films, etc. Capital, $100,000. Incorporators: C. W. Stambaugh, H. H. Stambaugh and C. E. Kerney.

Oakland Claims a Record in News Filming

Oakland, Cal., appears oftener in the weekly news pictorials than any other city in the United States, according to H. M. Smith, Pacific Coast manager of the International Film Service, and that record has recently been increased by the filming in one week of ten subjects. This is said to be unprecedented. Eugene Castle, cameraman for the Mutual Weekly, and L. E. Hutt for the Hearst-Pathe, are the authorities for this statement.

Hutt and Castle work through the publicity bureau of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, depending wholly on Eugene Bowles, the publicity man, to keep them posted on events of importance and for the arrangement of the details of "shooting" them. Bowles provides the necessary "extra people," if they can be so called in a news weekly; rehearses them and then cooperates in directing the pictures.

Triangle Finishing "Servant in House"

The Triangle Film Corporation announce that they are now completing, at Culver City, their first big special production entitled "The Servant in the House."

It is adapted from the stage play of the same name. Further details as to method of exploitation will be given out within a few days.

L-Ko President Back from the Coast

Julius Stern, president of the L-Ko Komedy Kompany, has just returned to New York after a stay of six months at the West Coast studios of that organization.

Mr. Stern's return has brought to light a radical change in the policy of his company, in so far as the type of comedies which are to be released in the future is concerned. The new L-Ko releases will feature girls—lots of them—rather than just one or two players.

The results of a questionnaire recently sent out to representative exhibitors located in various sections of the country are said to be responsible for the change in the style of the L-Ko output. The answers sent in by these exhibitors state that the effect of the revival in popularity of the "girl" shows now being presented to the public is being reflected in the growing demand for screen comedies in which feminine pulchritude figures importantly.

Paralta Settled in New Offices

Paralta Plays, Inc., is now comfortably settled in its new offices on the twelfth floor of the building at 6-8 West Forty-eighth street. In its new home, Paralta has the entire twelfth floor as well as a projection room, scenario department and film vaults which have been erected on the roof.

The offices of the Mastercraft Photoplay Corporation are also on the same floor with Paralta in the new building and in a few months the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, through which Paralta Plays are being released, will move into the same building and occupy the eleventh floor.

Till Manager of Select's New Orleans Branch

Select Pictures Corporation has appointed H. G. Till manager of its newly established New Orleans branch, the appointment to take effect immediately. Mr. Till, who is one of the youngest managers in the business, has also had one of the most remarkable rises to this important position in the history of the industry. As a salesman attached to the staff of C. C. Ezell, manager of Select's Dallas exchange, his success on the road led to his promotion in the Dallas branch, and finally to his selection for the important position of branch manager in New Orleans

Denver Exhibitor Raises Price to 15 Cents

On February 16 the Paris theatre in Denver, situated in the vicinity of several other thriving motion picture houses, raised its evening admission price from ten to fifteen cents. At the same time it was announced that the Paris would run Triangle pictures exclusively

For years the standard admission charge in Denver was five cents and only a few years ago was raised to ten cents, long after ten cents had been adopted by nearly all cities and towns in the country

SPOTTING THAT ELUSIVE WASTE

Another Proposed Remedy to Stop the Leaks that Destroy the Profits

"IT is there," said an exhibitor with a knowing look as he pointed toward a producer's expensively-operated plant. He was speaking of the Will-o-the-Wisp Waste that flies away with the profits, and which strange bird makes more trips than even a non-union stork.

"Say not so!" exclaimed the producer in reply. "It is yonder, in the theatres of the country, where the exhibitors offer no co-operation." And he turned to have a look at the expense sheet of his organization.

Along comes John R. Freuler, of Mutual, and draws a distinct line between producer and exhibitor. He even infers that co-operation between them is not so necessary as strict attention to their individual businesses. In other words he intimates that each should go about eliminating the waste "on his own hook," and co-operation will naturally follow.

"But," said Mr. Freuler, "the biggest waste and the most serious one in the industry is in the motion picture theatre itself. The exhibitor can run his own business, quite regardless of how much money the picture-makers waste.

"It is a simple matter of merchandising efficiency. If the exhibitor will buy his show wisely and sell it well he will automatically remedy a great many of the complained conditions back at the exchanges and studios."

Can it be that the exhibitor has been so busy watching the producer, and vice versa, that neither has had time to pluck the beam from his own discerning eye?

Germany Seeks Film Control

Plans Going Forward for Checking French, American and Italian Productions After War—Tried Once Before

A GREAT movement is on foot in Germany, it was learned last week through reliable sources from France, to put made-in-Germany products in the film line in a dominating position after the war.

To bring about this proposed achievement a powerful motion picture enterprise, Universal-Film Aktiensllschaft, or U. F. A., has been formed in Berlin under the direction of Schwartz, Goldschmitt & Company, banking house, and Carl Indstrom, A. G.

It is understood this society, as it is known, commences business with a capital stock of 25,000,000 marks, which is expected to be increased shortly. This is furnished by the German banks. La Gazette de Voos, of Paris, in commenting on the news remarks, among other things, that this enterprise will serve to keep the French, American and Italian firms in check upon the conclusion of hostilities. A year ago a preliminary effort was made by the manufacturing companies, the Nordisk Films Co., the Messter Films Gesellschaft and the Union A. G.

In Switzerland, it is understood, the society is represented by a Mr. Franzos, who does not confine himself exclusively to the booking of films, but secures the control of theatres as well. At present the Nordisk Film Co. has the three principal picture theatres in Zurich, two in Basle, one at Lucerne and one at St. Gall, in German Switzerland. In addition to the companies named above as being represented in the society, Oliver Konzern and Projektions A. G. Union are included in the line-up. Over forty theatres are now at the disposal of the new combination.

Funds for carrying on the work of organization are advanced by the banks of Germany, and it is said this is the first time that banks have been interested in affairs of this kind. Banks represented on the board of directers of the U. F. A. include: Deutsche Bank (Reichsbank) and Dresdner Bank. Other German societies said to be represented are Allgemeine Electrizitas Gesellschaft, Hamburg America Linie and Norddeutsche Lloyd.

Selznick Resumes Visits to Exchanges

Lewis J. Selznick has resumed his series of short trips to various cities in which exchanges are maintained by the Select Pictures Corporation, of which he is president. Several of these trips were made by Mr. Selznick prior to his recent vacation in Florida. Now the president of the Select Company is picking up his swing around the circle at the point where he dropped it.

Ames New Manager of Pathe Phila. Office

George T. Ames, one of the best known exchange managers in the business, has been appointed to the Pathe Philadelphia office, H. M. Osborne, the former manager, having been placed in charge of the Pathe Washington office. Mr. Ames comes to Pathe from the Goldwyn, for which company he has been Philadelphia manager during the past year. He assumed charge of his new office on March 1.

In and Out of Town

R. V. Anderson, branch manager, Pathe Exchange, Inc., Atlanta, Ga., visited the home office in New York last week.

Frank L. Newman, president and general manager, Regent and Royal theatres, Kansas City, Mo., was in New York for a few days last week. Mr. Newman is one of the most prominent exhibitors and theatre owners in the Middle West. He returned to Kansas City Friday.

Harold Binney, Florida Funny Films, arrived from Jacksonville in New York this week with the first three comedy productions of this company. Mr. Binney is a pioneer in the industry and has been working at the Klutho Studios in Florida. He will be in New York for a week or more and will be glad to see his old friends.

J. E. Dunne, Grandun Film Company, Boston, was in New York last week looking at the current productions offered on the independent market.

Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, exploitation and sales managers, General Enterprises, Inc., and William Atkinson, business manager, Metro Pictures Corporation, left New York last week for a rest at Atlantic City. Mr. Atkinson is recovering from a recent illness. Following a rest at Atlantic City, Messrs. Lubin and Sawyer will leave for a trip through the South in the interest of General Enterprises' independent productions.

V. C. Hodupp, V. C. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind., left New York last week after contracting for several independent productions to be distributed by him in his territory. Mr. Hodupp is one of the prominent independent buyers and distributors in the Middle West.

Ben Grimm, formerly of the editorial staff, Moving Picture World, now in the aviation branch of the U. S. Signal Corps, pursuing a course of study at the Aviation School, Cornell University, was in New York last week shaking hands with his many friends along Broadway.

Watterson R. Rothacker, president of the Rothacker Film Manufacturing Company, Chicago, was in New York last week conferring with officials of the First National Exhibitors Circuit regarding prints for "Tarzan of the Apes," which will be distributed through the First National Exchanges throughout the United States.

Louis Burnstein, King-Bee Film Corporation, left New York last Wednesday on the "Twentieth Century Limited," bound for Los Angeles. Mr. Burnstein is expected back in New York the latter part of March with prints of Billy West's latest comedies, "The Scholar" and "The Messenger."

Herman Rifkin, Eastern Features Film Company, Boston, returned to Boston last week, after looking at the current features offered on the independent market by the New York producers.

Universal's Offer Is Accepted

Three Producing Organizations Have Already Availed Themselves of Laemmle's Tender of Use of Studios at Universal City

THREE producers have already accepted Universal's invitation to all producing organizations to close down their studios and move into the Universal City plant, in order to cut down on their present enormous overhead. They are the Astra company, the George Beban company and one unnamed organiaztion, according to a statement issued by Carl Laemmle. Astra already has one company at work there and plans to have three units working by the end of the month. The other two organizations will also be operating at full blast within the next thirty days.

It is also stated that negotiations are now proceeding which will, in all probability, result in the closing of other large producing plants on the West Coast. The names of the companies affected by this deal will, in all likelihood, be made public within the next few weeks.

Letters that have been received by Mr. Laemmle from both producers and exhibitors during the last week have congratulated Universal upon its initiative in proposing the one practical solution to the producing overhead problem. As far as the exhibitors are concerned, it is evident they are evincing a keen interest in the manner in which producers generally greet Universal's invitation.

In a letter which that organization has addressed to the various manufacturers is pointed out the fact that utilizing the Universal City resources is the first step towards cutting the cost of producing pictures. Producers are urged to put aside all pride of studio ownership and to look at the Universal offer from the cold-blooded, business standpoint of saving the dollars that are now wasted in heavy individual overhead.

Commenting upon this letter Mr. Laemmle said: "We are urging other producers to follow the examples set by Astra, George Beban and the third company and to forget their pride in studio ownership. Mere studio ownership means lessened profits. Even if the average producer cannot rent his studio to some one else for other purpose than studio work, it will pay him to close it tighter than a drum, pay the rent, or taxes and insurance and move into Universal City. The saving our plant will enable him to effect will more than offset whatever expense he may entail as the result of closing up his own studio."

J. J. Sameth, sales representative, Physical Culture Photo Plays, returned to New York last week after an extended trip through the South in the interest of Bernarr MacFadden's physical culture picture, "Zongar." Mr. Sameth reports a successful trip.

Carl Anderson, Paralta Pictures, is expected to arrive in New York this week from Los Angeles, where he has been for several weeks in the interests of that company.

Rupert Julian, actor-director-producer, arrived in New York last week to witness the opening of his first independent production, "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," which opened at the Broadway theatre Saturday night.

New Indiana Corporation

The Empire Theatre Amusement Company of Milan, Ind., has filed articles of incorporation, giving its capitalization as $5,000. Its purpose will be the construction and operation of a house at Milan, and its directors include Thomas H. Thompson, John R. Pate, John H. Bergdoll, William H. Wilson and Ivor Fuller.

Under Ohio Board's Ban

The Ohio Board of Censorship has barred "The Song of Songs" from exhibition in that state. No reason was given for this action. This film and "Men Who Have Made Love to Me" are the principal ones barred this year by the Ohio Board. "The Ten of Diamonds" was held up for some time, but finally was passed.

Exhibitors Prepare "Tarzan" Campaigns

During the past week A. H. Blank, of Des Moines, and N. H. Gordon, of Boston, two of the prominent franchise holders in the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, spent several days in New York looking over the film market and giving special attention to "Tarzan of the Apes," to prepare for special exploitation of the big Broadway attraction in their own territories. Robert Lieber, of Indianapolis, was also represented by his brother, Herman Lieber, and S. Barret McCormick, managing director of the Circle theatre, the big Lieber house of that city.

Brenon Enrolls Under British Flag

Herbert Brenon, it was announced last week in New York, has laid plans to leave immediately for England, where he is to take up some important war work for the British Government. He will be active, it is expected, both in England and at the battle front.

Indianapolis Theatre Manager Resigns

Edwin Booth has resigned as manager of the Alhambra theatre in Indianapolis to go into the fruit and vegetable commission business with his father. The Alhambra is a Barton & Olson property and one of the most productive houses in the city. No successor has as yet been chosen for Mr. Booth.

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Selznick?

Being a Glance at the Real Human Side of the Big Men of the Picture Game Caught in Action

By William A. Johnston

WELL, well! Look who's here!

Lewis J. Selznick, as I live.

Probably, gentle reader, you have been wondering why Mr. Selznick didn't come along earlier in the series.

So has Mr. Selznick.

Which makes it fifty-fifty.

You see we had to hold some of the best subjects back—to keep the series up. (How's that, Mr. Selznick?)

Well, anyway, when we 'phoned Mr. Selznick this morning he said immediately: "Yes sir, certainly, come right up."

There's no persiflage about Mr. Selznick. Whether he compliments you, makes an appointment, calls you a liar, or says he's going to sue you—he's always exceedingly direct. He's quite as direct as a club. He often hits you that way.

You wouldn't call him democratic. He's simply too business-like to be *un*democratic; he's too practical to pose—that's all. He certainly puts all the cards—face-up, on the table.

And he certainly is interesting. We'd rather interview Mr. Selznick than play poker; the rules of both games, in fact, are quite similar. Once we tried to bluff Mr. Selznick, by the way, and it didn't go.

"Now look here," opened Mr. Selznick in his charmingly frank manner, "I don't like your interviews. They're too darn funny. I've got no time for foolishness. I want to make a business statement to the exhibitor."

"Yes, Mr. Selznick," we countered, "but the exhibitor wouldn't read it."

Mr. Selznick looked obstinate. "I don't talk bunk like these other fellows."

"True, Mr. Selznick; you don't; but you see you're the innocent victim of a pernicious practice. The exhibitor has got so he won't read any business statements any more. We warn the exhibitor in our headlines that Mr. So-and-so is making a business statement; whereupon the exhibitor passes it up."

Mr. Selznick looked surprised; but he went right ahead and talked business. "I'm going to, anyway," he asserted.

It would appear from what he said that Mr. Selznick believes in three things.

1. The all-star system.
2. Select Pictures.
3. Himself.

Therefore himself is going out on a trip to the present and prospective customers of Select Pictures to talk about the all-star system.

And, in our opinion, he'll get away with it.

We cheerfully extend some advice to the exhibitors Mr. Selznick will meet.

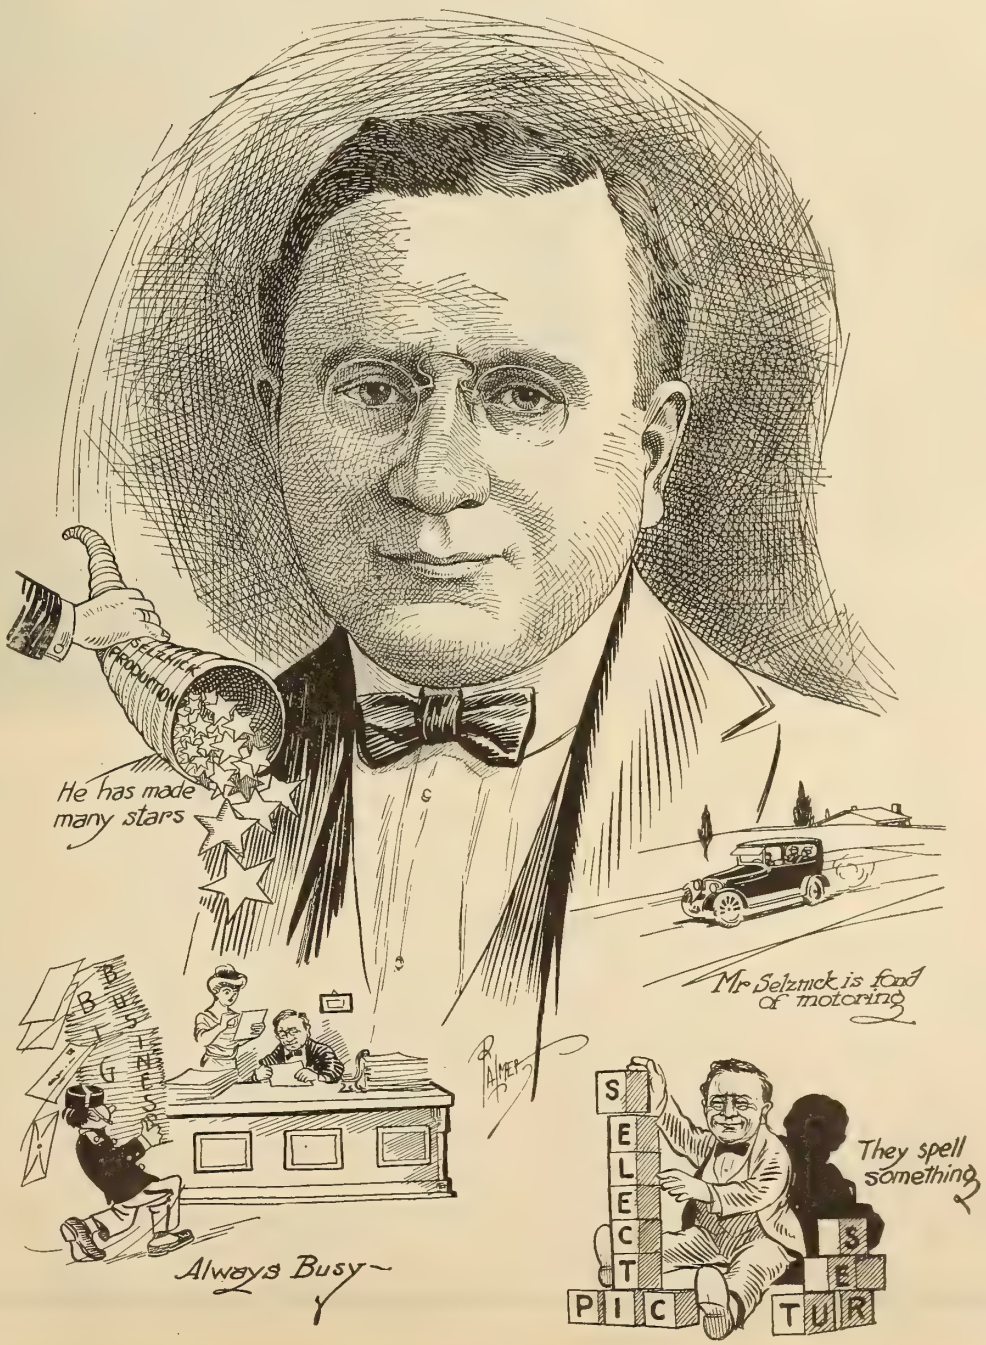
Don't try to bluff him unless you've got the goods.

If the goods are on you, own up right away. He'll find it out, anyway.

Take his word. He's more apt to keep it than most any film man we know of.

Don't try to put any jokers in your contract with him. He'll slip in two for your one. If you don't try it, he won't.

Tell him he's getting thinner. That will get him on your side at the start.



Tell him your troubles — honestly; and ask his help. That will tickle him to death. He'll take off his coat and go to work for you. You see, he thrives on trouble. He gets unhappy when things move happily. That's why he's going out on the road.

Talk quickly to him—and be frank. He's got one of the quickest and shrewdest minds we ever met. He is intolerant of either stupidity or equivocation.

Don't try to slip anything over him. He'll beat you to it, if you do. If you don't, and if you make him feel that you're leaving it all to him, he'll give you the best of it.

In other words, it's best—for you—to work with

(Continued on page 1714)

Stanley V. Mastbaum — By Wm. A. Johnston

WITH the passing of Stanley V. Mastbaum the motion picture industry loses one of its most unique personalities and most forceful figures.

The news of his death came as a distinct shock to the New York film community. He was young, of unusually sturdy physique and so far as was generally known here right abreast of his active and arduous duties.

There have been many expressions of real sorrow. Mr. Mastbaum's dominant personality and business principles made enemies for him just as they created ardent friends and followers. That was inevitable. But it is a real tribute to the man that those who opposed his plans most bitterly were the most outspoken in praise of the man himself—his ability and integrity.

The writer can give only an impression of Mr. Mastbaum, having met him but once and then recently here in New York.

The impression was a vivid one however.

It was that of a man of strength, broadness and reliability. We fancy that herein was comprised the solid foundation of his business success and leadership. He knew and believed in the broad true laws of economy, in business power based upon business laws, in the strict principles of the counting house.

He came to the picture industry far better equipped than most men.

He had an expert's knowledge of real estate values—very valuable to a theatre man. He had a keen knowledge of art values, gained through education, travel and business experience in the buying and selling of rugs and art objects. And his previous connection with department store enterprise had given him full knowledge of the ways and advantages of co-operative buying and selling.

The Stanley Booking Corporation, a concern which dominated the Philadelphia picture theatre field and made its influence felt throughout the industry, was but the natural outgrowth of this experience and the man's own strength, courage and energy.

He was a tireless worker. He gave liberally—too liberally—of his energies, as such men will, for his strength was undoubtedly sapped before his illness and he added to this by returning too soon to his work.

Briefly, his public career is as follows: Law student at the University of Pennsylvania; buyer of Oriental rugs for Gimbel Brothers; member of the real estate firm of Mastbaum Brothers & Fleisher; head of the Stanley Company owning and operating the Stanley, Globe, Arcadia, Rialto, Broadway, and Alhambra theatres in Philadelphia and the Stanley in New York City; head and founder of the Stanley Booking Corporation embracing seventy-odd theatres in Philadelphia, Bethlehem, Easton, Harrisburg, Reading and other Pennsylvania cities and in Atlantic City, Camden and Cape May in New Jersey.

The Stanley Booking Corporation has been one of the storm centres of the industry. There have been those outspoken against it as a monopoly. On the other hand the institution has had firm supporters even among those who were in no way concerned with its business operations.

Mr. Mastbaum believed in his institution as a business principle, an ordering and successful regulation of waste and inefficiency that was repugnant to his business mind and training.

If he did any business harm he also did much business good. Certainly he helped many and he has helped advance this industry. His employees were with him to a man, every ounce of their loyalty and energy. That speaks highly of him.

A power passes away with this man.

STANLEY MASTBAUM

"A Dominating Porsonality—That Created Friends—Admirers —With the Same Qualities That Made Opponents."

Advisory Board "Up on Its Toes"

FROM all parts of the country, even in the short time that has intervened since the first announcement of part of the personnel of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors' Service Board have come congratulations on the new step forward taken in behalf of the great body of showmen of the nation. These have come from exhibitors, from the far-seeing of the manufacturers and from the liver newspapers. We are not printing these "advance endorsements." We are sure that with the assistance and advice of the Advisory Board the Exhibitors' Service Bureau will be able to show the way, and that by its accomplishments it will merit all the brilliant forecasts that its friends have given it.

This week some additional names are announced. Demoralization of the mails has prevented our making the final announcements again this week, but there are only a few names to be added, though the board will always be kept alive and up to date, representing the best interests of the exhibitor, and the exhibitor alone.

AMONG the names that appear this week is that of the only woman member of the board, Mrs. Joseph Grossman, wife of the manager of the Standard Theatre, Cleveland, O., and his chief assistant. We believe that women, either as advisors of their husbands or as full managers of theatres, are going to play a very great part in the future of motion picture exhibitions, and we have urged Mrs. Grossman to serve especially for the aid that she can give, and is willing to give to other women in the industry. And this is in addition to the splendid talents that she has shown as designer of the advertising of the Standard.

This is a reminder that there are many important fields that have been barely covered. It is our belief that the Advisory Board is going to direct the thought of the industry, and that it will be responsible for a greater degree of activity on the part of showmen and on the part of every branch of the industry than has ever been known before—real constructive effort of the fearless sort that does not care whose heels it steps on so long as it makes for progress.

WE told you in our initial announcement that this board would have the right always to criticize statements that appear in the Exhibitors' Service Bureau, but that they will be responsible for nothing that appears unless it is over their own signature. But all of these men have volunteered to do everything they can, and in the weeks to follow there will be an array of thought, a wealth of ideas, a group of accomplishments represented such as the industry has never seen.

It is human that the MOTION PICTURE NEWS would rather be called right than wrong, but when we are wrong we want to know it. But far greater than criticizing what has appeared, these men are going to perform a great service for you all in suggesting what does appear, though their credit for this great work may not appear on the surface.

ANOTHER of the departures will be to conduct symposiums on important problems that are always before us or on crises that suddenly appear. We are fortunate in having the advice of these leading showmen at our call, and if, with benefit of their advice, the industry fails to meet the problems of the future something will be radically wrong with the world in general.

First as to individual questions: Mr. Rothapfel will continue to conduct the general department of answers to exhibitors, work which he is so unselfishly doing; but exhibitors anywhere can now have their questions answered by any one of this board they select. There may be reasons, because of local conditions, because of similar experiences, that answers from certain men are desired. All the exhibitor has to do is to request this, and we will see that the answer is forwarded and that it appears in these columns. The only conditions we make is that these must not call for opinions on individual films or film services, and that all must be sent to the Exhibitors' Service Bureau addressed to the man whom you wish to answer your inquiry.

WE want to wade into the big problems right at the start. Recently in conversation with the director of this bureau, Mr. Rothapfel criticized the music cues that were furnished by producers and those appearing in trade journals, as in many instances being impossible. A few days later Mr. Frank L. Newman, director of the Royal and Regent Theatres, Kansas City, and also a member of the board, came into the office and in discussing music cues referred to the fact that he and his musical director had visited another house in a different city and before they knew the title of the picture the musical director had named it from the music that was being used—the same that had been used with the same picture at one of the Newman houses. Mr. Newman himself emphasized the poor quality of some of the music cues. We would be glad to hear from those who find these bad, whether they appear in the NEWS, or from whatever source they originate. Music is one of the big features of pictures today, and if the discussion and criticism by members of this bureau can raise the quality something really worth while has been done.

THIS Advisory Board is here and ready to help. It wants to hear from the exhibitor who is seeking aid and advice. It does not desire to conduct an elemental school in fundamental principles, but it is anxious to get at what is wrong and to help you in the problems that confront you.

With the new names added here is the board as it stands today:

Samuel L. Rothapfel, Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York.

Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatre, Lowell.

Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.

Edw. L. Hyman, Victoria theatre, Buffalo.

E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mrs. Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, Cleveland, O.

S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.

Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.

M. W. McGee, Majestic theatre, Detroit.

E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.

Ernst Boehringer, Liberty theatre, New Orleans.

F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.

[illegible], Strand theatre, Omaha.

(Continued on next page)

P. E. Noble, American theatre, Butte, Montana.

George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.

Sam W. B. Cohn, Liberty theatre, Spokane, Wash.

G. F. Fullerton, Advertising Manager, Greater Theates Co., Seattle, Wash.

E. J. Myrick, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.
Ralph Ruffner, Columbia theatre, Portland, Ore.
Sidney Grauman, Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles.

MRS. JOSEPH GROSSMAN, whose husband is manager of the Standard, Cleveland, O., is going to do a great deal not only for the women who are interested in the operation of motion picture theatres, but for the men as well, for she is one of the most successful designers of advertising in the country. She writes:

"You certainly flatter me when you ask me to serve on your board with such men as Mr. Rothapfel, Mr. Roth, Mr. McCormick, Mr. Franklin and Mr. Soriero. Although the work is entirely new to me, I will be more than pleased to act in such a capacity for the MOTION PICTURE NEWS. If you will send me an outline of the work, I will place my best efforts so that they will be of the greatest possible assistance to the industry."

That is the spirit that inspires every member of the board; it means that big things are going to be done.

ALMOST immediately after we printed an insert telling of the splendors of the new Rivoli theatre, we followed with another one from the other edge of the continent telling of the magnificent temple of the silent art in Los Angeles—Grauman's million-dollar theatre.

Mr. Rothapfel is a member of the Advisory Board, of course, and he has long been doing a great deal for exhibitors through the country by his answers to inquiries and through furnishing material for "Seeing the Rialto." And so this week we are announcing the addition of Sidney Grauman, who is in charge of the destinies of the magnificent Los Angeles house. Mr. Grauman's letter has been delayed in the general mix up of the mails, but he tells us that the thinks the board is a great idea and that it is going to accomplish a great deal.

RALPH RUFFNER, manager of the Columbia theatre, Portland, Ore., is the second man to be selected from that city. New Orleans, Buffalo, and Cleveland are the other cities that have two members each, for, while efforts have been made to cover the whole country, the members of the board have been selected because of their accomplishments and if some cities have two who deserve membership—well, those cities are lucky.

"I am glad to be a member of the Advisory Board of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS," writes Mr. Ruffner. "Whatever my duties are I hope to serve as a unit creditable to the board and to the paper."

You have all heard of Mr. Ruffner, who is known wherever motion pictures are known. He was manager of the Liberty, Spokane, Wash., until last November, when he went to Portland.

EDWARD L. HYMAN, manager of the Victoria theatre, Buffalo, one of the finest neighborhood houses in the country, is also one of the youngest of the big managers, but he is full of progress and ideas. He writes us in accepting the post:

"The MOTION PICTURE NEWS through its Exhibitors Service Bureau has proved to all of us in the industry that there lives no man who is sufficient unto himself, and in so doing has brought home to us that constructive criticism and suggestion of the other fellow may be the tonic that we need for our own business ills.

"I believe that the creation of an Advisory Board is a vast extension of the service idea, and it is with mingled pleasure and satisfaction at knowing that there at last has risen a leader to point the way, that I gratefully identify myself with this body.

"The invitation to become a member is as much an honor, I believe, as it is a mission. The war has brought us to a realization that a colossal industry such as is that of the motion picture, must be based upon a foundation of stability that only can come through the co-operation of the exhibitor with the other phases of the craft."

LAST week we printed the letter of acceptance of George E. Carpenter, manager of the Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake City, but the same mixed up conditions of the mails that have been responsible for the delay in receipt of other matter kept Mr. Carpenter's picture from getting to us in time for the original announcement last week, so here it is.

Mr. Carpenter is one of the sort of live wires that believes in doing things just a little differently, and a little better than they have been done before, and there may be expected from him some suggestions that will make the industry think and then act for best results.

LAST week we printed the telegraphic acceptance of Eugene H. Roth, director of the California theatre, San Francisco. Since then we have received his letter and it has such important points for every exhibitor in the country that we are printing it here. It's mighty well worth reading and thinking a long time over:

"There is no question in my mind that such a movement on your part is a big step forward, and in the right direction, and will be the means of standardizing your Service Department. We have arrived to a point in the moving picture industry where the honesty of purpose is the all essential. Each branch of the industry must help the other in every way possible. It is up to the larger exhibitor to make his demands of the producers, as well as to give said producers his honest and sincere support. They need the encouragement that we, in turn, need from the public. The smaller exhibitor naturally looks to the bigger ones, and, therefore, this Advisory Board must reflect the best in its members for the benefit of all who seek its advantages. Each district in the United States is peculiar to itself, and by having secured an Advisory Board, composed of the best exhibitors in the extreme East, West, North and South, this Board should be in a position to honestly and truly serve its thousands of exhibitors through your Exhibitors' Service Bureau.

"You are to be congratulated on this forward movement, and I assure you of my hearty support at any time, and in any manner."

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

LAST MINUTE BOX OFFICE REPORTS

The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh-Goldwyn)—"Story dragged in parts." (Average business.)

From Two Till Six (Winifred Allen-Triangle)—"Very poor for this company." (Poor business.) "Good, but title doesn't draw." (Average business).

The Forbidden Path (Theda Bara-Fox Standard)—"One of the biggest money makers made by Fox—just the kind that this star shines in. We will repeat this." (Extra big business.)

The Flash of Fate (Herbert Rawlinson-Uni.)—"Fair business for two days; picture mediocre."

Headin' South (Fairbanks-Art.)—"Best he has done." (Extra big business.)

Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford-Para.)—"Dandy picture." (Big business.)

Hands Down (Salisbury-Clifford-Bluebird)—"Broke all Bluebird box-office receipts."

Keith of the Border (Roy Stewart-Tri.)—"Big favorite, getting better." (Big business.)

The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell-Fox)—"Poor photography; subject will not please." (Average business.)

Turn of a Card (Warren Kerrigan-Paralta)—"This star very much liked, and unusually clever story—picture a bit too long." (Big business.)

The Rough Lover (Franklyn Farnum-Blue.)—"A drawing card." (Extra big business.)

Six-Shooter Andy (Tom Mix-Fox)—"Very fair picture." (Average business.)

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
BEAUTIFUL MRS. REYNOLDS, THE (Elvidge-Blackwell—World)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very ordinary." "Not up to usual standard of this pair."
BLUE BLAZES RAWDON (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Type not suitable for Hart—too rough." "Best acting Hart has done; my audiences prefer him on horseback." "Business fell off, not Hart's best." "Hart a sure bet." "Pleased immensely."
BLUE JEANS (Viola Dana—Metro)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Viola Dana at her best, great—good picture but didn't get any money with it" (N.). "One of their best pictures, great drawing card" (W.). "Dana always good" (S.). "Will go over if advertised big—the picture is there" (E.). "Booked for week, closed Wed. night" (W.). "Big business" (N.). "Did not hold up" (S.).
BROADWAY LOVE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Dorothy Phillips is gaining friends fast here" (S.).
BROWN OF HARVARD (Tom Moore—K.E.S.E.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Good picture—well liked" (S.). "Very acceptable subject, a little different" (E.). "First class picture" (N.). "Great! Opened on a Wednesday and held over for a full week run" (N.). "Very satisfactory." "Extraordinary—very popular picture."
CLEOPATRA (Theda Bara—Fox)	.....	Big	.....	.....	"Advanced prices on this—50c., 95c. and $1.00—week run" (N.).
CONVICT 993 (Mrs. Castle—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Picture good for a convict story, and photography fine."
CUPID'S ROUND-UP (Tom Mix—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Some swell picture—Tom Mix great." "Dandy title, clever work of star, too. Nice picture." "Very good program picture." "Customers ate it up."
DAUGHTER OF DESTINY (Madame Petrova—First Nat.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good, though too little action, no punch,—however, is the best she has ever appeared in" (W.). "Simply terrible" (E.). "'Petrova's best,' was the comment of my audience" (W.). "Fair drawing card" (E.). "Scenery and costumes unexcelled" (E.). "Did not appeal to all, but decidedly better than recent Petrovas." "Money wasted." "Some good points, but on whole disappointing; supporting cast and production good." "Drawing power due to popularity of star" (S.). "Settings, photography, etc., excellent, story poor" (W.).
DAYBREAK (Emily Stevens—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, story well carried with a good climax." "Very good, star liked." "Good—the song a gem." "Star not popular here." "Good story, strong cast, good photography." "Good picture." "Good, but padded too much." "Not even interesting."
DODGING A MILLION (Mabel Normand—Gold.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Ave.	"Something different, and they liked it." "Another feather in Goldwyn's cap." "Only an average picture." "Normand fits role well, fine story." "Should make more of this kind." "Very pleasing picture, star has 'come back,' elaborately produced" (N.). "Very good" (N.). "Can't understand why they wouldn't come in, but pleased few that saw it" (W.). "The kind they all like; Mabel sure a beauty" (N.). "Did not draw; good picture, strong opposition" (W.). "Excellent; new story" (N.). "Star better in comedies" (S.). "Very good" (N.). "Very good, but expected better business."
EMPTY POCKETS (Brenon Production—First Nat'l.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"A mystery play without a mystery." "Most unusual story, strong appeal." "Very good picture, but far from being a 'special.' Too complicated plot for general public—good buy at program prices" (N.).
EYES OF MYSTERY, THE (Edith Storey—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good picture" (S.). "Very good, lots of punch" (W.). "Dandy star, some of her best work in this" (N.). "Just an ordinary picture, will get by on a Sat" (N.).
FACE VALUE (Mae Murray—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good, Mae Murray well liked" (W.). "Very good" (N.). "Only fair" (N.). "As a 'lemon' it's a 'peach'" (N.).
FIELDS OF HONOR (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Morbid, uninteresting" (S.). "Fine, very well liked by '400' class" (E.). "A disappointment here" (E.). "Not popular subject" (E.). "Star good, but story poor" (W.). "Very good picture, but star not popular here" (E.).
FIGHTING GRIN, THE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"Below Bluebird-Farnum standard." "Poor picture for Bluebird."
FLAMES OF CHANCE (Margery Wilson—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—pleased." "Great. A timely story—top notch picture."
FLARE-UP SAL (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Big feature, big business" (N.). "Dalton fine in this; Ince style direction shows to advantage" (E.). "A bit rough for Paramount" (S.). "Star liked; Miss Dalton will make good in any theatre." "Ordinary" (E.). "Not up to standard" (S.).
GERMAN CURSE IN RUSSIA (Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good of its kind." "Fair." "Timely, went over very well."
GHOSTS OF YESTERDAY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star well liked." "Star better than ever—corking good production." "Another pleasing Talmadge production." "Fine picture; Norma Talmadge not yet very well known here" (W.). "Excellent production, fine business all week" (W.). "Very fair picture." "Great."
HEADIN' SOUTH (Douglas Fairbanks—Art.)	Big	Big	Extra	.....	"Full of Fairbanks' 'pep.'" "Great."
HEART OF ROMANCE, THE (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very poor picture, far from being up to Fox standard." "Very ordinary." "Nothing to this one." "Failed to draw any business." "Only a fair picture; the star not wanted here" (S.).
HEART'S REVENGE, A (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor draw." "Poor production." "Some liked it, only fair business." "Just an ordinary picture." "Poor title but good picture and story."
HER AMERICAN HUSBAND (Darrell Foss—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Picture pleased—didn't draw" (S.).

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
HER BOY (Welch-Shannon—Mat.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"People don't want this kind" (N.). "Good business-getter" (N.). "Divided opinion on this" (N.). "Good picture" (W.).
HIDDEN PEARLS (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good picture." "Another feather in the Jap's cap." "Star not as good as usual." "Drew exceptionally well, star very popular here; large Japanese population" (W.).
HIRED MAN, THE (Chas. Ray—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good picture" (N.). "Great—very good" (E.). "Kind that will bring 'em again" (S.). "Excellent" (W.). "Well liked Ray picture" (S.). "Shows Ray up as one of screen's really great stars" (N.). "Ray got there in this picture" (S.).
HIS ROBE OF HONOR (H. B. Walthall—Paralta)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too heavy" (W.). "Walthall's acting wonderful—nobody like him, I think; more like this and he will surely make good, but title too much like costume play" (S.). "Too much court and parlor stuff—give Walthall a real part like 'The Little Colonel'" (N.). "Fair picture" (W.). "Unwieldy story" (N.).
HONEYMOON, THE (Const. Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing picture, clever direction." "Not as good as Scandal." "Good picture." "Story very pleasing—didn't draw, but her next picture will" (W.). "Good picture—pleasing" (W.). "Select pictures (so far) can be relied upon to produce good business. Picture a pretty little trifle and Constance Talmadge winning and sweet" (S.). "Very good—well liked, but no knockout. 'Scandal' was bigger yet" (N.).
HOPPER, THE (Wm. V. Mong—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor title."
HUCK AND TOM (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	.....	.....	"Excellent picture." "Liked this immensely."
I LOVE YOU (Alma Reubens—Tri.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Picture was extra good" (S.). "Fine picture" (W.). "Some picture—best yet" (N.). "Good, but too much padding, goes big with the women."
IMPOSTOR, THE (Ann Murdock—Mut.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Very poor production" (E.). "Despite adverse critics, went well with us" (N.).
IN BAD (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not as good as some of his others" (E.). "Very good, big business; can always count on Russell" (E.). "Fair picture" (W.).
INNOCENT (Fannie Ward—Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Started off with a bang, should have run it a week, best Pathe we ever had—photography too dark, everything else o.k." (E.). "Fannie looks ten years younger than other pictures; clean, nice picture—patrons liked it." "Excellent, a real picture." "Ward is there, with the right stuff." "This in my estimation is all that has been claimed for it" (W.).
INTOLERANCE (Griffith Sp. Prod.)	Extra	Extra	Big	Extra	"Best ever made" (W.). "Had to keep open till 1.30 A.M. opening night to accommodate the large crowd." "Greatest of all motion picture spectacles" (N.). "Sure went over big here" (E.). "Impressed, but over heads here; didn't get the money" (S.).
JACK SPURLOCK, PRODIGAL (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star makes this go big; Sat. Post story not so great, but brought in many new faces." "Not a typical Walsh subject; star big drawing card."
JULES OF THE STRONG HEART (Geo. Beban—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Beban's best." "A fine picture but he does not draw here" (S.). "Extra good" (N.). "Pleased—one of his best." "Excellent." "Very pleasing picture." "A very fine outdoor picture."
KEYS OF THE RIGHTEOUS (Enid Bennett—Para.)	.....	.....	.....	.....	"Title killed it." "This type of story not wanted."
KINGDOM OF LOVE, THE (Jewel Carmen—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good attraction" (S.). "Does not draw" (E.). "No drawing card" (W.). "Fair business, good picture." "Poor title, stereotyped dance-hall-girl-parson story." "Seemed to please everyone" (W.). "Picture and star enjoyed by our patrons" (E.). "Same old dance hall" (N.). "Fair picture; did big business under substituted Klondyke title" (W.).
LEARNIN' OF JIM BENTON (Roy Stewart—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	"A good Western drama." "Poor production." "Good picture if Hart had played title role." "Average picture."
LES MISERABLES	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Easily Farnum's greatest; fine direction, sure box-office." "Great story, great production."
LIGHT WITHIN, THE (Mme. Petrova—First National)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Can't see this one (no pun intended); not kind of story for Petrova" (N.).
LIMOUSINE LIFE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Appeals to the ladies—but not so much to men" (N.).
LOADED DICE (Frank Keenan—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Keenan's work great; not popular type story. However, ought to have done better; comments good."
MADAME JEALOUSY (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Ave.	"People didn't know what to think of this; expected something quite different. Why don't they give Frederick a real play?" (E.). "Frederick fine, picture disappointed" (N.). "More like this and 'Nay, nay, Pauline'" (S.). "My people do not like allegory" (W.). "Very poor" (S.). "More complaints about this feature than any we have played in the last six months" (N.).
MADAM WHO? (Bessie Barriscale—Paralta)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture, well liked—just a little too long" (N.). "Very good Barriscale" (E.). "Good production; Paraltas could cut subjects to advantage; five reels enough" (S.). "Fine picture, good story, fine photography—but war pictures not wanted" (N.).
MAN'S MAN, A (Warren Kerrigan—Paralta)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Our patrons said this was the best picture we ever had in the house" (S.). "Very fine production" (W.). "Went over very big" (N.). "Kerrigan's best production." "Well liked, better second day" (N.). "Excellent picture." "Pleased, but did not have box-office drawing power; his next one will" (E.). "Best Kerrigan has ever had" (S.). "One of best pictures ever shown in the house" (N.).
MARIONETTES, THE (Clara Kimball Young—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid; a few more subjects like this and C. K. Y. will come back." "Very wonderful." "Good picture." "Fair business, that's all."
MENACE, THE (C. Griffith, E. Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—both are going to make stars." "Fair production" (N.). "Excellent picture, but no pull" (W.). "Poor picture" (N.).
MORAL LAW, THE (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Poor photography, subject will not please."
MOTHER'S SIN, A (Earle Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard, but star got it over." "Below average." "Just a picture."
OTHER MAN, THE (Harry Morey—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, Morey popular" (E.).
OTHER WOMAN, THE (Peggy Hyland—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"They liked this" (N.). "Excellent picture" (N.). "Very attractive picture and star" (E.). "Fair, that's all" (N.).
OUR LITTLE WIFE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Poor	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Snappy comedy, Madge the whole show. Nice picture, clever little star" (E.). "This star is becoming popular" (S.). "Poor story, Madge Kennedy the whole show. Star unknown here" (E.). "Poor business; this style of show does not get the money for us" (N.). "Pleasing" (W.). "Not up to standard as a whole." "About two or three good comedy situations with about 2000 feet of padding in between. Star pleased, support fair, photography o.k., BUT 6-reel farce comedies NOT in demand here" (E.). "Comedy-drama—good—but public will not support them. Star very good, but does not draw."
PETTICOAT PILOT, A (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Star becoming popular." "Martin is gaining; a few more like this, please." "Kind of story this star should have." "Very pleasing" (S.). "Scored heavily" (W.). "Excellent" (W.).
PRIDE OF NEW YORK, THE (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"This is a dandy." "Great favorite here." "Ran close second to Fairbanks 'Reaching for Moon.'" "Fast gaining in popularity in all our houses." "Great show." "Star always pleases." "Picture full of punch." "Fine picture, lots of 'kick'." "Very good picture." "Geo. Walsh is Fox's best star." "Walsh at his best, good as any Fairbanks."
RIMROCK JONES (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Rest of the show saved the day for this one." "Ordinary." "They liked Reid." "Good star, fair picture." "This star is new at this theatre, better second day than first." "Excellent, big business" (N.).
ROSE OF THE WORLD (Elsie Ferguson—Art.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Her best picture so far, my people say." "Good star, poor story." "Too much art, too little behind it; does not hang together to hold interest, somehow." "Away above average. A1 product" (N.). "Photography good, picture poor" (W.). "Beautiful production, well acted, star always satisfies" (E.). "Patrons tell me this star is great—believe she will be very popular soon."
SON OF DEMOCRACY (Chapin—Para)	Big	Big	.....	Big	"Good patriotic feature for variety program; first chapter went big" (N.). "Bringing many new faces into my house—good stuff for high class house" (W.). "Wonderful; average business first day, but expect to go big with future chapters" (N.).
SONG OF SONGS (Elsie Ferguson—Para.)	Big	Big	.....	.....	"This star coming; big advertising possibilities in this one, though far from a knockout."
SPIRIT OF '17 (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing, big business" (S.). "Mawkish and obvious" (W.). "Tom Sawyer helped this star, good business" (W.). "Very fair." "Jack a comer, not much picture, but timely." "Fair picture—fair biz."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
STELLA MARIS (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Pickford proves herself to be an actress" (E.). "Wonderful picture, almost too much dependent on fine acting, however, not a story people can get excited over" (S.). "Too morbid for my people" (W.). "Certainly great work for this star, some contrast with last one." "Splendid picture, best Mary has ever done from an artistic standpoint—as a box-office attraction did not come anywhere near 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.'" "Mary will never do better, story peculiar; surely this one will help star's drawing power for next picture." "One of her best." "Splendid picture, but not strong enough for two weeks' run." "Mary has never equalled this one." "Double exposure stuff marvellous." "Thought it great, but our Pickford biz is slipping" (W.). "Excellent."
STOLEN HONOR (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good story, poor photography." "Average picture." "Only fair picture—good star wasted." "Very ordinary picture." "Good picture but terrible photography, impossible to read titles." "Attractive cast, big business, ordinary picture."
STRONG WAY, THE (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Interest well sustained."
STUDIO GIRL, THE (Constance Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good light comedy drama; went over big." "Good picture." "Very satisfactory."
THING WE LOVE, THE (Reid-Williams—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Cheap and obvious; two-thirds conversation and one-third cut-backs" (W.). "Not his best" (S.).
UNDER SUSPICION (Bushman-Bayne—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Very good picture."
UNEASY MONEY (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"High class comedy, our patrons enjoyed it." "Seems to strike a popular chord—good picture." "Very good picture." "Clean, good comedy, fair business."
WEAVER OF DREAMS, A (Viola Dana—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Star popular, picture good." "Nice picture—pleasing."
WHIMS OF SOCIETY (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture."
WIDOW'S MIGHT, THE (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Clean, excellent novelty." "Fine, one of his best." "Eltinge best in this so far." "Better business than last one, Eltinge improving as draw." "Stories of this star too much alike" (E.).
WIFE HE BOUGHT, THE (Carmel Myers—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Business slightly above average; Bluebird offerings are uniformly good, but star not known here" (S.). "Very good picture, good title" (N.). "Fair picture" (W.).
WILD STRAIN, THE (Shipman, Whitman—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A fine picture, no star to draw." "Slow at beginning—as a whole fine." "Excellent production."
WINDING TRAIL, THE (Viola Dana—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big.	"Star growing more popular with each release" (S.). "Not liked" (E.). "Very pretty picture" (W.). "Good business this" (S.). "Fair—did not make hit with our audience" (N.). "Very unusual picture, peculiar ending. Good" (W.). "Very fine, excellent plot, Dana's work great." "Good Western setting picture." "Better than the average." "Very pleasing." (N.). "Did not please generally" (W.). "A very good picture, star a good drawing card" (W.).
WOLVES OF THE RAIL (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Would have broken record but for blizzard" (W.). "Good as Hart has done lately, railroad stuff splendid." "Hart 'fans' seemed to like this one." "Hart as the bandit—'nuf sed." "Very good Hart subject." "Excellent." "Fire chief camped on our trail during entire showing—enough said." "Full of action" (S.).
WORLD FOR SALE, THE (Blackton—Para.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very funny picture to make out, poor drawing card" (E.). "Not much picture for Blackton" (S.). "Mediocre. Lacks realism; too artificial; lacks punch—photography and scenery perfect" (N.).

FLASHBACKS

These "Did Their Bit" Above Average Last Week

Antics of Ann (Pennington-Para)—"Few better program pictures."

Alimony (First Nat'l)—"A 'different' picture, sure to please and get business."

Between Men (Triangle Re-issue-Hart)—"Any exhibitors whose box-office shows signs of hook-worm recommend W. S. Hart."

Barrier (State Rights), "Extraordinary."

Bucking Broadway (Carey-Uni.)—"Very good picture."

Birth of a Nation (State Rights)—"Attendance records broken every day but Monday, which generally is a light day. To comment on this would be to attempt to 'paint the lily or gild the rose.'"

Cold Deck (Hart-State Rights)—"One of best Harts."

Co-respondent (Jewell)—"Another Jewel of decided merit."

Conqueror (Wm. Farnum-Fox)—"Gave general satisfaction."

Damaged Goods (Mutual)—"Third repeat—ten weeks in all."

Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro-Metro)—"A wonderful production."

Fair Barbarian (Vivian Martin-Para.)—"Is better than many of same company's higher priced stars."

Fighting Trail (Vita. Serial)—"Best of its kind." "Excellent." "Does the 'biz.'"

Fireman (Chaplin repeat)—"Charlie ALWAYS goes big."

For the Freedom of the World (Goldwyn Sp.)—"All pleased."

Garden of Allah (State Rights)—"Too long and slow, but a truly 'big' production and very big business."

Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey-State Rights)—"Did not have patronage it deserved because star not known here—superb scenes, good direction, fine star; a picture far above average."

His Mother's Son (Ray-Para)—"Went over fine—they all think Chas. Ray worth seeing."

Honor System (Fox Special)—"A knockout."

Idle Wives (Universal)—"Good moral—went over big."

Joan the Woman (Card)—"Four hundred and fifty-five dollars the first day—house seats 290."

Man Without a Country (Jewel)—"Liked very much." "A very inspiring picture—big business." "Patriotic appeal, and student interest, extra big."

My Little Boy (Ella Hall-Blue.)—"Wonderful big business; good title and good picture."

My Unmarried Wife (Carmel Myers-Blue.)—"Big business in spite of cold—patrons liked it."

Modern Musketeer (Fairbanks-Art)—"One of the best pictures Fairbanks ever made." "One of his best." "Best he ever made." "Sure cure for blues, excellent tonic for tired business man."

Pendleton Roundup (Pathe Special)—"A wonderful picture."

Polly of the Circus (Mae Marsh-Gold)—"Great." "Extra good. Star favorite here."

Price of a Good Time (Jewel)—"One of best played lately."

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm (Art.)—"One great picture." "Probably Mary's best."

Redemption (Evelyn Nesbit-St. R.)—"Extra big business."

Reggie Mixes In (Fairbanks Tri., Re-issue)—"Very good picture."

Red, White and Blue Blood (Bushman-Bayne-Met)—"Above the average."

Scarlet Car (Franklyn Farnum-Blue.)—"Very good picture, good title."

Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge-Select)—"As good as 'Tess of the Storm Country.' Business fine for four days. Norma Talmadge has it all over 'Little Mary' in this sequel to 'Tess'; she is one of the coming 'big stars'—hope they stop working the poor thing so hard and let her take on a little flesh." "Very good." "Excellent."

Silent Man (Hart-Art.)—"Extra big business."

Should She Obey? (Hoffman Special)—"Held up for three weeks." (Downtown feature house).

Tillie's Punctured Romance (Chaplin-Dressler, State Rights)—"Still they enjoy Charlie."

Those Who Pay (Barriscale-U. S. Exh.)—"Three weeks to extra big business."—Downtown feature house.

Thais (Mary Garden-Gold.)—"Almost record, with heavy opposition." "Big, held up three days." "Star drew."

Tom Sawyer (Jack Pickford-Para.)—"Repeat booking—bigger than last week." "Jack's best." "Great." "Typical Jack Pickford story, well done."

Troublemakers (Jane and K. Lee-Fox)—"A clean-up—great."

When a Man Sees Red (Wm. Farnum-Fox Standard)—"Very good business." "Great show."

Wild and Woolly (Fairbanks-Art)—"Good as usual; extra big business."

Yankee Way (Geo. Walsh-Fox)—"Great."

Zeppelin's Last Raid (Ince-U. S. Exh.)—"A good box-office picture."

EXHIBITOR TO EXHIBITOR REVIEW SERVICE

[ED. NOTE.—As announced last week, these reviews are conducted by Mr. P. S. Harrison, for ten years active in exchange and exhibiting circles. Mr. Harrison is looking at pictures for you—backed by his own experience as an exhibitor on the Pacific Coast and the Northwest since 1907.]

"Within the Cup"

A Real Big Picture That Must Be Handled in a Big Way

(Paralta-Hodkinson—March 1st)

A BIG offering in every sense of the word, dramatic qualities of which will hold audience nailed to the end and create lasting impression. Miss Barriscale attains the height of success, especially in scene denouncing the man who refused her love.

Story of the risque type becomes subdued as it progresses, ends happily. Star appears in X-Ray gown few times in the beginning, but in artistic way free from vulgarity. However, she attracts and retains the sympathy all the way through.

Miss Aggie Herring as "Tea-Cup Ann" is very realistic. George Fisher handles his part with rare skill. Entire cast good.

Direction, photography, lightings, good.

Title catchy and should prove a drawing card.

SUGGESTIONS: If you cater to very best family trade and want to play this picture, let your patrons know the type of story it is. The harm, in all instances, comes when people don't know the kind of picture they are going to see.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

Thisbe Lorraine	Bessie Barriscale
Le Saint Hammond	George Fisher
"Tea-Cup Ann"	Aggie Herring
Ernst Faber	Edward Coxen
Director	Raymond B. West
Author	Monte M. Katterjohn

THE STORY

Thisbe Lorraine, clinging tenaciously to the purer ideals of her youth, made her living by writing about the Bohemian life about her, until she met Ernst Faber of Germanic royal blood.

She loved him, but because of the difference in their stations in life could only become his morganatic wife. She was happy until she overheard him deceiving another little fool and then realized that she sacrificed her pure ideals in vain.

Several years later New York's Greenwich Village claimed Thisbe as the most popular novelist and playwright of the day. Le Saint Hammond, artist, was experiencing much difficulty in finding a suitable model for his "Psyche"—The Soul of Love. He meets Thisbe at a gorgeous bal masque, dressed in the costume of his ideal model, and at first sight Hammond realizes she was his "Psyche." He interests her—and later at a garden fete, Thisbe, who is now very much in love with him, seeks an introduction. Attracted by her beauty, Hammond asks her to become his model.

At a sitting, she tells him she was the "Psyche" model at the bal masque. Hammond having dreamed of her as a real model of purity is horrified and orders her away. Heartbroken, he turns to a life of dissipation until Thisbe meets him later in time to save him from moral ruin. Their two souls are again united.

"The Desired Woman"

An Excellent Picture—Spoiled by the Death of a Little Child

(Vitagraph—March 11th)

THERE is a corking good picture which has been hurt through the desire of the scenario writer to give it an original ending. We refer to the unnecessary death of the little five-year-old boy, the result being that the exhibitor who has the contract for this service will be compelled to show to his audience something they don't want to see, and that will send them from the theatre downcast.

There is a way to save the situation. Cut out the death scene entirely, and let the people form their own conclusions. It may [illegible] them to wonder but it will not spoil the picture.

The story starts with a promising career and continues in a consistent way, now and then bringing a lump into your throat, until you suddenly feel as if something has hit you on the head—the death of a little, lovable child—and then the whole structure [illegible]

The acting is good all the way through. Direction, fine; photography, most distinct and beautiful; lightings, good; interior scenes, extraordinarily good. There are some beautiful outdoor shots, too, and people like them.

This picture, if shown as it was originally intended, would leave a very bad taste.

NOTE: Immediately after the review of this picture, the management of Motion Picture News, in a broad spirit, called up Mr. Goff of the Vitagraph and brought his attention to the above mentioned detrimental point. Unfortunately, the prints had already been shipped to the different offices, being too late for alteration by inserting a certain title and eliminating the death scene. In justice to Vitagraph, Inc., however, it must be stated herewith that a spirit of co-operation was shown and a letter dictated to the producers calling their attention to the objection of any further incorporating in pictures such touching and heartbreaking scenes as the death of a child.

THE CAST

Richard Mostyn	Harry Morey
Irene Mitchell	Florence Deshon
Dolly Drake	Jean Paige
Little Dick Mostyn	Aida Horton
Mrs. Moors	Julia Swayne Gordon
Director	Paul Scardon
Author	Will N. Harben

THE STORY

Richard Mostyn, broker, goes to the country to recuperate and there meets Dolly Drake, who awakens in him the first love he ever felt. He wins her, returns to the city determined to close out his business and go back to Dolly.

Mostyn's resolutions are short lived, as his sister opposes the marriage. In the end he marries Irene Mitchell and tries to forget Dolly.

This marriage proved an unhappy one, as seven years later his wife runs away with another man on the very day his child dies under an operation.

Broken in spirit and body, Mostyn goes with his partner back to the country. He meets Dolly, who tells him she had found her ideal in his partner.

"The Doctor and the Woman"

A Fine Offering—Very Pleasing—With a Happy Ending

(Released by Jewel Productions)

THIS is a clean picture, based on an original and pleasing story, possessing considerable heart interest, last two reels of which will bring tears to your eyes, without leaving any bad taste, as it ends happily.

The play is based on the story "K" by Mary Roberts Rinehart which ran in McClure's Magazine. Mrs. Rinehart is well known to the public through this and other stories, especially the "Sub-Deb," that ran in the Saturday Evening Post, three of which have been adapted to the screen for Marguerite Clark. We suggest you should use her name in your advertising campaign.

The acting of Miss Harris is of the best, and, as she possesses beauty and grace, will make a sure hit with the picture-goers.

Supporting cast also good.

Directing fine, but camera work bad in spots.

Title very catchy, end should prove a drawing card.

Subtitles deserve special mention. They have been inserted in scene itself, eliminating the abrupt change, thus lessening the eyestrain. The same method possibly could be used where a change of scene takes place, by blending.

THE CAST

"K"	True Boardman
Sidney Page	Mildred Harris
Dr. Max Wilson	Albert Roscoe
Carlotta	Zella Caull
Joe Drummond	Carl Miller
Director	Lois Weber

THE STORY

"K" slips into a certain town, works for a small salary at a gas company and falls in love with Sidney Page. Sidney discourages her boyish admirer, Joe Drummond, and becomes a nurse in a hospital, where Dr. Max Wilson pays her marked attention, thus exciting the jealousy of Carlotta Harrison, who causes her rival to administer the wrong medicine. "K" saves the patient's life.

Learning of Sidney's engagement to Max, Carlotta seeks to compromise him by luring him to a roadhouse. Joe Drummond follows and shoots the doctor, mistaking Carlotta for Sidney. The wound is serious. Carlotta reveals that "K" is an expert surgeon, and he is induced to perform the difficult "Edwardes" operation, which saves the life of Max.

Carlotta discloses "K's" real name and confesses her complicity in his undoing in another hospital. Entirely vindicated, "K" resumes his practice, and Sidney, cured of her infatuation for Max, now realizes that it is "K" whom she had loved all along.

CLEAR, CRISP BOX OFFICE APPRAISALS

"Fast Company"

A Light and Pleasing Comedy Drama

(Bluebird—April 1st)

THIS is a light, clean, comedy drama, possessing considerable heart interest that will please any audience. Story holds together well, and ends happily.

The star retains the sympathy throughout, and though a little miscast, his followers like to see him in plays of this nature.

Supporting cast good, excepting Lon Chaney, who overacts.

Direction consistent, photography and lightings, good.

Title misleading. Also not catchy enough for a drawing card.

THE CAST

Director ..... Lynn Reynolds
Laurence Percival ..... Franklyn Farnum
Peter Van Huyler ..... Fred Montague
Mrs. Van Huyler ..... Katherine Griffith
Alicia ..... Juanita Hansen
Dan McCarthy, Jr. ..... Lon Chaney

THE STORY

Laurence Percival Van Huyler was a mollycoddle and the butt of every practical joke in college. He was engaged to Alicia Vanderveldt, who later fell in love with Richard Barnaby, an eloquent lecturer. In excavating an old building of Van Huyler, Percival came upon a confession of the honored ancestor, stating that his real name was Patrick O'Malley of Ireland. I am Irish! yelled Percival. Realizing that as an Irisman he could not be a mollycoddle, he started after Barnaby, exposed him as a faker and won back his girl.

"One More American"

A Great Picture—But Start Your Boosting Now

(Paramount—February 25th)

IT is useless to waste time and valuable space for the purpose of reviewing a George Beban picture. Shut your eyes and book it—then boost it to the sky-limit. You can't say too much about it, and if you do you can't go wrong!

I have yet to see a Beban picture that isn't worth, the praise that I am heaping on this one, especially when such artists as Raymond Hatton, Jack Holt, Helen Jerome Eddy and Horace Carpenter, compose the supporting cast, and when the picture is directed by such a man as William De Mille.

I reviewed this picture at the Rialto, taking a seat where I could watch the audience and overhear their remarks. It would do one good to watch the happy grin on their faces. At the introduction and close of the picture it received much applause.

SUGGESTIONS: In advertising this picture there are two good points offered. One is the marionette show, which is very clever and amusing—it will bring the children. The other is a peculiar one of interest to the grown-ups. It is based on the subtitle, "How Much You Got?" when Bump Rundle (Raymond Hatton) proposes to Lucia. Very few people are aware of the fact that marriage in Italy—and for that matter in the biggest part of Europe among the poorer classes—is less a love affair and much more money and the social position of the groom. The more money he possesses, or the better his station in life, the nicer looking bride he gets or the more wealthy. This is exactly the idea conveyed in that subtitle.

Now then, go to it and use this point in your advertising campaign if you think it will help you. It is rather novel and of interest to the American public. Get away, for once, from the regular press sheet.

Use both the marionette show and the marriage idea if you want to—but at any rate boost the picture, talk about it, talk until you are blue in the face. It will add health to your program and class to your house.

Be careful not to refer to Mr. Beban as the "Italian Character Actor." He is an American actor. I think more harm has been done by this sort of advertising of Mr. Beban's pictures than good. The use of that phrase is rather misleading and the average American picturegoer immediately imagines he is going to see an Italian—dressed in his native costume, with about a dozen stilettos hanging about him, ready to stick them in anyone who might cross his path.

Say that he is a fine exponent of fatherly love and his acting will bring out the finest emotions, no matter how deeply they are buried. And by all means back this picture up with decent music—get the right kind—and don't butcher it.

THE CAST

Luigi Riccardo ..... George Beban
Maria, his wife ..... Camille Ankewich
Tessa, his daughter ..... May Giracci
Lucia, working for him ..... Helen Jerome Eddy
Bump Rundle, her admirer ..... Raymond Hatton
Sam Potts, a reporter ..... Jack Holt
Boss Regan, a politician ..... H. B. Carpenter

THE STORY

Luigi Riccardo owns a marionette theatre in Little Italy and has worked and saved faithfully against the coming to America of his wife and little girl. He is assisted by his young cousins Lucia and George Vigianni. Lucia is courted by Bump Rundle.

Riccardo has antagonized Regan, the ward politician, by refusing to pay graft and asserting his honest convictions. Riccardo receives a letter telling him his wife is to arrive next day from Italy.

Regan, throught his tool, Dr. Ross, for whom he has secured a position on Ellis Island, pronounces little Tessa, Riccardo's little daughter, unfit, and orders mother and child back. However, through the intervention of Bump and Sam Potts, a reporter, Regan is trapped and arrested.

Dr. Ross, haunted by remorse, confesses the wrong he has done and the little family are happily reunited.

"The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin"

A Picture to Make Your Blood Boil—Not an Actual War Subject—Every American Exhibitor Should Book It

(Rupert Julian Special)

IF you have read every piece of literature that has been published, as to why we are in the war, and are still doubtful, see this picture. Never yet has a document been written, not even President Wilson's forceful address to Congress in which he declared war on Germany, thereby stirring the whole world, that will drive home this fact more convincingly.

Judging from the title one will readily understand that it is an Anti-Kaiser picture through and through, chosen for the purpose of making this fact very clear. You will know how justified is our cause when you see how this picture depicts him and his military clique.

This picture grips you from beginning to end, causing you to sit on the edge of your seat and arousing an earnest desire to leave immediately for the trenches—crippled or over the limit.

It opens with a prologue, showing the peaceful Belgian people going about their work, never dreaming what "ME and God" had in store for them. Then the story follows.

The episode of the Prussian officer striking the Kaiser with his fist, knocking him unconscious on the floor, is very realistic and is based on authentic documents. The impersonation of Captain Von Hanck, Commander of the submarine that sank the Lusitania, by Harry Von Meter, is nothing short of marvelous, particularly when he goes mad with remorse. The incident occurring at the reception tendered Ambassador Gerard by the Kaiser when he utters the famous threat, "After the war we shall not stand any nonsense from America" precedes the declaration of war by the United States.

But above all, Rupert Julian's impersonation of the Kaiser dominates!

This picture is a masterpiece.

SUGGESTIONS: Get the Home Defense Society, Recruiting Officers, Draft Boards, and in fact all organizations back of this picture. Tell them what it is and I am sure they will be glad to back you to the limit. If you can arrange a private exhibition for them, invite the mayor, ministers, and every city official. Don't be afraid of inviting too many. It is a picture they will talk about. And that is the best advertising you can get.

If you are running a high-class house get some window cards worded as follows: "Do you know what the end of the Kaiser will be? See 'Kaiser—the Beast of Berlin' at ——— theatre on ———. Then you will know." Or "The end of the Hohenzollerns," "The collapse of the dreams of the man who had planned the conquest of the world." Have some folders printed with the following: "What you will see in the picture 'The Kaiser, etc.'—The exact reproduction of the palace at Berlin; the daily life of the Kaiser; the palace guard; the incident of the insult of the Prussian officer, knocking him unconscious on the floor; the war council preceding the declaration of war; the tearing, as a scrap of paper, of the Treaty of Belgium; the reception tendered Ambassador Gerard by the Kaiser preceding the declaration of war by the United States. All these being based on authentic documents. And, last of all, the end of Kaiser Wilhelm."

THE CAST

The Kaiser ..... Rupert Julian
Captain von Wohlbold ..... Allan Sears
Marshal von Hindenburg ..... Jay Smith
Captain von Hancke ..... Harry von Meter
Marcas, the blacksmith ..... Elmo Lincoln
Louis Lomenie ..... Robert Gordon
King Albert ..... Jack MacDonald
Little Jean ..... Georgie Hupp
Gabrielle ..... Ruth Clifford
Grandmother Marcas ..... Ruby Lafayette
Director ..... Rupert Julian

(See page 1768 for the synopsis of the picture)

Exhibitor Service Bureau

Portland Puts The Pep In Leading Exhibitors and Some Papers Blaze the Way—Smaller Ones Miss Chance.

ONE good friend of ours and a constant reader of these pages recently complained that we too often pointed out the far West as offering examples of splendid advertising for motion pictures. We reply that we have pointed these out because there are so many theatres in this Northwest section who stand out as almost blazing the way in motion picture exploitation. Mark you, we do not compare one theatre in any one of these cities with as equally intelligent and liberal advertisers in other cities (and there are plenty of them), but the point that we have made is that the advertising spirit there appears to have been more contagious.

For instance, take the case of Portland, Ore. Portland, through its leading theatres, is literally putting the pep into advertising, but after all, when we come down to the bed rock of it, we do not believe that all of the theatres there are doing their full duty. We examine the newspapers and find the neighborhood houses missing, and some of the downtown houses failing to pursue the policy of properly supporting the newspapers that are giving the greatest, and really praiseworthy cooperation.

But in this city the live wires stand out, and they show what they are willing to do to meet a newspaper that does cooperate, though when we speak of conditions generally we reach one result, and when we examine more closely into what the different theatres and the various newspapers are concerned, we have to modify these. But the situation in Portland in the cases that we shall point out more specifically do show how it pays both the theatres and the newspapers to cooperate earnestly and intelligently.

We are dividing the discussion of Portland conditions into two articles, because it is unfair for us to reach our general conclusions unless we have studied what the papers are doing in their Sunday (or Saturday evening) editions, and what they are doing day after day. And in the case of at least two of its papers there is where Portland stands out. So far as we know, Seattle, Wash., has been the only city that has surpassed Portland in the volume of local motion picture advertising, and certainly the situation in Portland proves what can be done when the newspaper realizes the amount of business that may be gotten by cooperation and when the really live wires of the city themselves realize the value of the use of space and big space.

Most of these theatres do not confine their displays to use of big displays on Sunday and then fall into the bad habit of carrying the same card system of advertising all through the week, regardless of the advertising requirements of the particular pictures, the changes in the bill that are made during the week or the scores of things that enter into the best in exploitation. In this article we are considering mainly the advertising in the Sunday issues and in the Saturday issues of the papers that do not publish Sundays.

According to the last census Portland had 260,000 people, but has grown considerably since that time. Certainly it can set the pace so far as motion picture advertising on the part of some of its theatres for any of the other cities of the country. There are four daily newspapers:

Journal, evening, daily and Sunday morning.
News, evening, weekdays only.
Oregonian, morning, daily and Sunday.
Telegram, evening, weekdays only.

Now, we started out by referring to cooperation in Portland newspapers as a whole, but when we get down to a study of that cooperation we find that there is certainly a difference so far as the theatres using the various papers are concerned. We feel that it is no province of these articles to discuss the newspapers as a whole, for that is a matter for the local advertiser to decide, and we are merely intending to draw lessons from the cities that we study for the benefit of the exhibitors of the rest of the country. But let us say here, that unless a paper is prominent in the field—most of them claim it, but there are few that really achieve that distinction—that it is a mistake for the larger exhibitor who can afford it to confine his advertising to one paper, especially when both morning and afternoon editions are printed in his city. Nor are we going to enter into the bitter newspaper dispute of the relative merits of morning and afternoon papers, but certainly using both gets 'em going and coming.

However, without entering into the merits of the time of publication the Oregonian unquestionably occupies a dominating position, because it is the only morning paper in the field during the week, while the evening patronage is split between three papers and has only the opposition of the Journal on Sunday. For nearly three years the Oregonian has been doing really big things for motion pictures, for in that year it inaugurated a daily film department. And we are going to point out the great value of this to an exhibitor in the second of these articles on Portland conditions. Several months ago the Journal adopted a more liberal daily policy.

Now. we are not saying this to compare the newspapers, but to bring out a point that we have made before—that the newspaper that gets the jump on the others in the intelligent cooperation of the exhibitors is going to occupy a predominant position in the field unless it afterwards makes some radical mistakes in policy. And we believe that the situation in Portland proves that when one theatre does start to blaze the way the other papers have got to follow or suffer in circulation from it.

So we say to exhibitors everywhere: When one of your newspapers starts out to give you a regular motion picture department, shows it sincere desire to put the news of the plays and players before the public, jump into the band wagon and help this paper out. Even if there are little differences between your politics and those of the paper, even if you think that it is a little yellow, or you are sore on it because it once roasted your uncle, don't let these things prevent you from giving help and encouragement to the publication that is seeking to do something. Undoubtedly the Oregonian did show the way to its competitors, as it has shown the way to many other cities that have yet to follow.

What is the theatre situation in Portland? There are four exclusively first run houses: The Liberty (seating 2,000), Majestic (1,000), Peoples (1000) and Columbia (800). The Star (800) uses practically all first run. The Sunset (500) is second run, while the Strand (1500) mixes vaudeville and pictures, and the Hippodrome (1800) features vaudeville, although it often shows five-reel pictures. Smaller downtown houses are the Burnside, Casino, American, New Grand, Circle, Novelty, Globe, Rex and Princess. Altogether there are 35 houses, with a total seating capacity of 17,500. The suburban houses have an average seating capacity of about 300.

Now, let's look at the Sunday issues and the Saturday afternoon issues of those that do not publish Sundays. The Oregonian had an excellently edited page, including a seven-column layout with pictures of attractions at the leading houses. The first part of the reading matter, a total of about a column and a half, in the issue we have before us, is devoted to highly interesting gossip about plays and players, real news of the industry which we spoke of in our last article, a matter well worth while. Yet, as you will see next week, the greater part of this news matter is saved for the daily issues of the paper. You will soon have our opinion of the reason there is not more of this in the Sunday issue of the Oregonian. Following this are accounts of the attractions at the local houses, and this matter is continued over to the next page.

Now, note this rather unusual situation: Only two theatres, the Sunset and the Globe, use space on the regular motion picture

(Continued on page 1731)

Giving the News and Getting the Advertising in Portland Newspapers

At the top at the left is the Sunday photoplay page in the Oregonian and then two other pages on that row and two more on the second row showing the display advertising. In the center row at the right is the Sunday page from the Journal. At the lower left is the Saturday page of the Telegram, and to the right two Saturday pages from the News.

Seeing the Rialto and the Rivoli with Rothapfel

YOU get a good idea of the importance with which Mr. Rothapfel regards music when you know that in the single reel Drew comedy being shown at the Rivoli this week not less than seven different selections are used and all of these so timed that they interpret every feature of the picture. It is a clever little sketch, "When a Man's Married," and tells of a husband who takes his first trip to the club since his honeymoon and how he fails to enjoy himself because his wife, over the 'phone, tells him to stay as long as he wishes.

The seven numbers used are "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow," "Only One Girl," "Sympathy," "I Hear You Calling Me," "Everybody Is Doing It Now," "Just a Wearyin' for You" and "Girls When You Get Married." In nine cases out of ten after you had given your audience what you considered the most satisfactory show since your new house had opened, nine-tenths of you probably wouldn't worry much about the music with the one-reel comedy at the end. But Rothapfel is never satisfied unless the "little things" are given his attention, and that is the reason that a good part of the audience hummed the music through the comedy and then went away whistling first one and then another of the selections.

There is another thing that brings in the importance of music. It's quite a busy Sunday for the writer of these articles in seeing the Rialto and Rivoli and Strand and in trying to see all three of these shows with the full musical numbers. And so hustle all we may, sometimes it is impossible to get the full effect. And so when we discussed with Mr. Rothapfel the comparative merit of the Animated Pictorials at his two houses, we told him that we liked the one at the Rialto the better. "Then," he came back quick, "you didn't see it with the orchestra." Which was quite true, so we made it a full ten-hour day of pictures and picture discussion by coming back to see the Rivoli pictorial again, and now we agree with him.

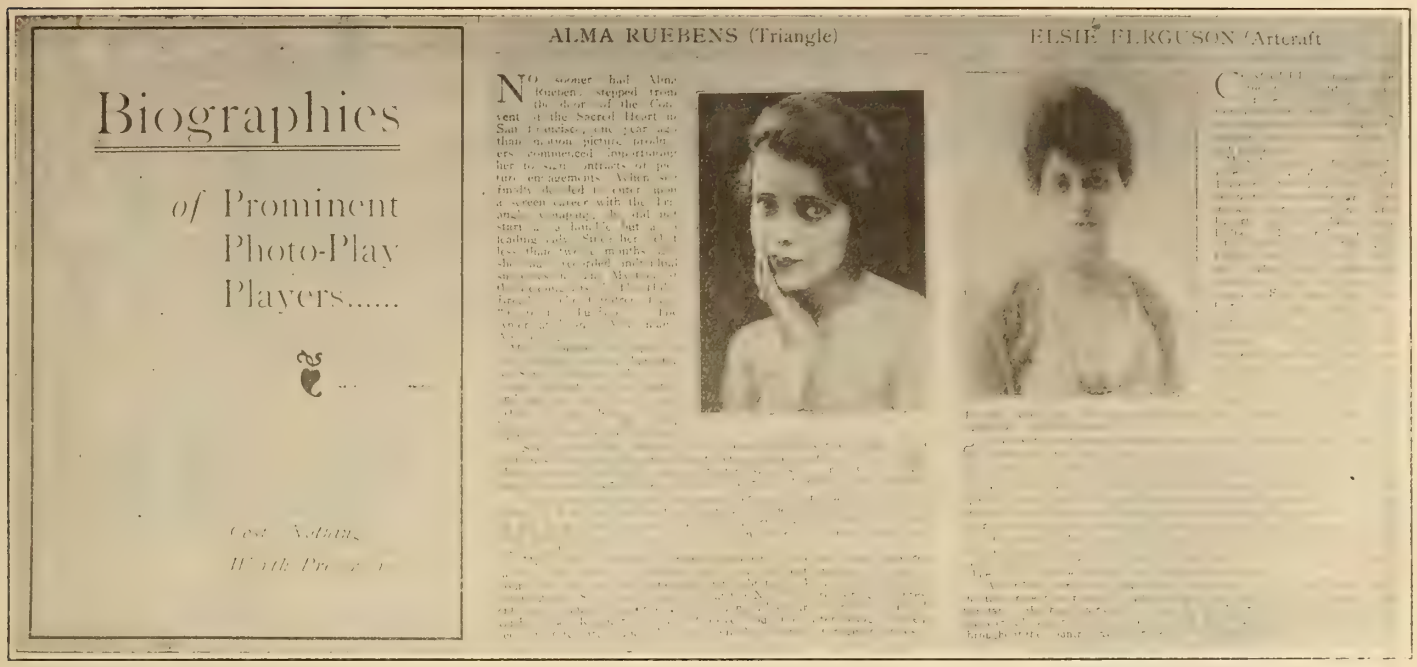
We will admit that when we first heard that Mr. Rothapfel was to conduct the Rivoli in addition to the Rialto we figured that the Animated magazine would be the chief thing to suffer. We reached this conclusion because we knew that he was getting the pick of everything except the Hearst-Pathe weekly at the Rialto, and we couldn't see how the addition of this, which has been added, could make the material sufficient for still the most careful selections. But Mr. Rothapfel has gone [illegible] mature subjects, little, intimate, sketchy things.

[illegible] without work, for it has added hours and hours to his duties, hours and hours spent on the Animated alone. He considers it worth while to worry about these little [illegible] them. We pride ourselves that we can get in to see the master of presentation when a lot of mighty well-known people fail, but these Sundays with the two shows opening the same day we have often to talk to him while he is eating his dinner in his office, not even enough time to get away from the telephone lest some little thing goes wrong at one of the houses. Of course any man who has his hand so tightly on the pulse of the two houses is bound to make a big hit with them—he would make a hit without the genius of Rothapfel—but when brains and work are combined the ideal is reached. Rothapfel is a genius, but there is nothing of the dreamy sort about it, he puts it into action and sees that it keeps working.

Taylor Holmes is appearing in person this week in connection with his latest picture, "Ruggles of Red Gap," a screamingly funny affair that had the theatre in an uproar almost throughout the picture and then to cap the climax came the appearance of the star himself. Now note the way the Rothapfel method of doing things takes you by surprise. Barely had the feature ended when a man in citizens clothes walked out of the orchestra on to the stage. At first the audience supposed that he was one of the singers, but as soon as they got a full face view the applause was terrific. That is the unexpected way of doing things and it made a big hit.

"Carnival of Paris" is the overture and this is played with brilliant lighting effects, the dome being blue at the start and fading into a deep red which lengthened and then darkened again. The last instalment of "Yellowstone Park" is then shown. There was little of interest in the picture ,when we saw it shown are but the music carried it over, there being no applause at the end of the picture, but when the music, which lasted a few beats longer ended there was a big hand. The music is Massinet's "Scenes Picturesque," the first three numbers being used.

Miss Gladys Rice sings "Coming Through the Rye," in a most effective manner though this was a last minute change in the program. Red, pink and green are the color effects to set off this number.



After the editorial on talking during the musical numbers the Rialto Animated opens with a remarkable Ford picture, "Making of a Man o' War's Man," which contained some of the most effective drill scenes ever screened. Sousa's band is shown and his "Jack Tar" march is appropriately used as the music. Universal pictures show the launching of the "War Mystery," the biggest wooden vessel ever built and got an angle that the other weeklies missed in the fact that the ship in her hurry to carry supplies to whip the kaiser slid off the ways before the christening party was prepared. "La Rondeau" No. 1 is the music, which follows through into the cartoon. "Hang on to the Rope," which called for work at home through Liberty Bonds, War Saving Stamps, the Red Cross, etc. Volunteers for the Jewish army to serve in Palestine gets a big hand and "Jewish Melody" is used to set it off. The Canadian national anthem is played with pictures of Premier Borden and "Under the Walnut Tree" with Universal pictures of "Stratford on Avon." "Pagoda of Flowers" is used with Pathe pictures of "Butterflies and Bees" in colors and then comes the final big smashing picture of Franco-British artillery in action on the Flanders front and for this "Robespierre" was used with splendid effect.

With special settings in the display panels, one showing waterfalls and the other a mountain scene, Carlos Mejia sings "Spirito Gentil" from "La Gioconda," the display panels lighting up toward the end of the selection. After the feature the Rialto full chorus renders the "Waltz Chorus" from "Faust." There being continuous comedy through the feature Mr. Rothapfel broke his almost invariable rule of closing his bills with a comedy by substituting an interesting educational picture, "The Window Glass Industry."

"Espana," the overture at the Rivoli, is so brilliantly rendered that it gets an unusual hand even for that house and then it is followed by "Glimpses of Hawaii," the first of the Newman travel pictures to be released by Educational. It contains some of the most remarkable shots that have ever been seen and is a thing of beauty and interest throughout. For this a specially prepared musical score of Hawaiian music is being used. Following right in the spirit of this picture the curtain parts and reveals Miss Helena Morrill, costumed as a Hawaiian girl and the Rivoli chorus singing "Aloha-Oe." The whole lighting effects for this number are blue with the orchestra flooded in blue.

Rivoli Animated opens with Hearst-Pathe pictures of the Tuscania survivors, for which a special march by Dr. Reisenfeld is used, and then come games at the Great Lakes training school (Screen Telegram), for which "Time for Every Boy to Be a Soldier" is used. Hearst-Pathe supplies winter sports in the Cascades and then clever Educational pictures of bears, lions, tigers, etc., are shown to "Dance of Serpents." A novel Universal picture expositing mediums, is given with "Dance Fantasy." Two things are linked together with Hearst-Pathe pictures of wood cutting in Maine and Screen Telegram views of the launching of the "War Mystery" and for both of these "Hero of the Isthmus" march is used, as well as in the Liberty Loan cartoon that shows the money raised by Uncle Sam crushing the kaiser. Striking Pathe pictures of "Nomads of the North," the reindeer, unquestionably one of the most remarkable nature pictures ever made, and for this the music

(Continued on page 1725)

Cover and two specimen pages of booklet issued by New Theatre, Fort Smith, Ark., giving biographies of players at that house

This Week at the Strand

FIRST of the series of the most remarkable fish pictures that we have ever seen are being shown at the Strand this week. These are the work of Raymond L. Ditmars, and besides portraying the strange animate matter of the ocean's depths they furnish a thrill with a battle between two giant devil fish and then an encounter of a devil fish and an octopus and finally the capture of a huge sea turtle by the devil fish.

"Rienzi" is the overture at Strand, and following this comes the Topical Review which opens with Screen Telegram pictures of the winter sports carnival in Colorado. Hearst Pathe pictures of the one-man tank get a laugh and then follow Chicago women of the stage engaged in raising war funds. Paramount-Bray furnishes some interesting pictures of coining money, and then great applause greets 1,500 prisoners taken by the French in Italy (Hearst-Pathe). Gee Fayonne, the commander of the troops gets a big hand, but this only prepares for the pictures of the American troops in the first-line trenches. Then come Hearst-Pathe pictures of timber cutting in Maine, which is followed by the Screen Telegram pictures of the "War Mystery" being launched in Texas.

Managing Director Harold Edel built up the Hearst-Pathe pictures of the survivors of the Tuscania, and after these pictures are shown there come pictures of destroyers such as are carrying war on the U-boats and then come pictures of submarines and finally some shots of battleships with the big guns firing from the decks. These pictures were taken on board the ship itself and the effects with this made it particularly effective. It comes to an end with a picture of a battleship in the distance, with its big guns firing and an American flag in the foreground fluttering from a mast.

"The Swallows," a piccolo duet, that follows gets a reminiscence in the course of the feature when one of the characters announces that "All you need is a piccolo to have a Jazz band." Mary Pickford supplies one of the most enjoyable of comedies in "Amarilly of Clothes Line Alley," a picture which also lends itself very easily to musical effects. "Wearing of the Green" and "Sall in Our Alley" are two of the selections that are used and there are a number of other melodies that add to the delight of the audiences.

Rosa Lind, soprano, sings a double number, "Spring Song" and "Connais-tu le Pays" from "Mignon," and then follow the "Depths of the Sea" pictures, and another comedy element is added in a Jeff and Mutt cartoon, "The Decoy."

Rialto and Rivoli

(Continued from page 1724)

is "Norwegian Dance." Universal pictures of a review at Camp Upton are given with "My Dough Boy," and then comes a Hy Mayer cartoon showing the immigrant coming here and learning the meaning of the flag of freedom and now he is to carry it to Europe. First "Sidewalks of New York" is played, turning into "Stars and Stripes" as Universal pictures of Americans on the battle line in France are shown to thunderous applause.

Effective numbers before and after the feature are Miguel Vidal singing "Lolita" with the male chorus before a Spanish setting and a clever Japanese dance executed in a setting by Yussu Katayama. It is a delightful novelty.

New Theatre Uses Booklet to Popularize Stars Among Patrons

SOME months ago we told you that one of the livest exhibitors in this country was C. A. Lick, manager of the New theatre, Fort Smith, Ark. and we gave you some reasons. A little later we printed the "New Theatre Service Code," adapted from the Statler Hotel idea, and a booklet that has been imitated by many others.

Now Mr. Lick comes to the front with an entirely new idea, a booklet giving pictures and biographies of the stars that are regularly seen at his theatre.

This booklet is twenty-four pages, 4⅞ by 6⅝ inches and printed on light buff paper of good stock. The cover, as it speaks for itself, is neat in design. The typography of the inside pages is good, the cuts clear and well selected and the text of the matter interestingly written. As the cover says, "It is worth preserving." It is the sort of a booklet that fans will ask for long after the issue is exhausted. Triangle and Paramount-Artcraft stars are included and the last five pages are devoted to the "Service Code."

We cannot conceive of a better constructive effort than this, for the booklet is published not alone to give the data about the stars that are already well known, but to introduce others that have not yet achieved equal prominence. Here they are presented together and the psychological effect upon the reader is to array these great stars of the country and to create a desire to see them in picture after picture. Among other things to achieve the same result that are being done by the New theatre are the use of slides showing the portraits of stars and giving the names of pictures in which they have appeared in the past and also the use of cuts in front of the theatre displayed in connection with contests to name their identities.

Your Idea---and Ours

ZELDA THEATRE shows in the display reproduced here what can be done by the use of ordinary material and thought. "It sure is some strenuous job writing and devising new ads all the time," says the designer of the Zelda work in his letter to us. Yes, we certainly agree with him, but the fellow who makes it real work and goes to it on that basis is the fellow who succeeds, and the fellow who simply tries to fill space will never get any further along.

This display is only two columns wide by five inches deep, but the unique use of the border effect and the ample white space that has been given makes it stand out. Note that the theatre has used one of the one-column advertising cuts supplied by Paramount and then has used a heavy border around the bottom and left side and then breaks the border around the name of the theatre and the cut. It certainly is a case of centering the reader's eye right on what you want to say to him. It is one of the few cases where excellent results have been secured in very small space and without the use of large type for the name of the star or the title of the picture. It's good once-in-a-while advertising.

Keep every door open for enter-prize.

WE are going to reach Providence, R. I., before long in the course of our examinations of advertising and newspaper co-operation in various cities, and we will be very glad, for the theatres of that city are progressive advertisers. Here, for instance, is a splendid piece of work that is being done by Fay's theatre, a combination house. The display is nearly nine inches deep across seven columns. The thing to which we wish to call particular attention is the manner in which practically the whole space has been given over to the Mae Marsh picture. The upper left corner of the ad is given to announcement of the vaudeville numbers and two pictures of Miss Marsh and one scene from the production; the three, connected with fishing nets, occupy the main portion of the space, and then in the lower right corner there is told something about the picture. This was an especially designed display, being hand lettered, but it is well worth the trouble and expense. We call this constructive advertising.

Take a chance of having the safety valve go off rather than allow the fires of energy get too low.

GEORGE E. CARPENTER, manager of the Paramount-Empress, Salt Lake City, believes in taking advantage of all the little things that come up, and that is why he is a real live wire. During the showing of the Douglas Fairbanks picture, "Headin' South" the crowds were so large that the

Open Letter to Chief Bywater
(With Apologies to O. Harvey.)

DEAR CHIEF:
THANK YOU
FOR SENDING two STALWART LADDIES
TO THE Paramount-Empress
YESTERDAY.
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS himself
COULD NOT have handled
THE CROWDS better
THE WHOLE town
WANTED TO see
"HEADIN' SOUTH"
AND THEY got OUR GOAT and EVERYTHING.
IT WAS fierce
FOR THEY walked all
OVER US and spoiled our SUNDAY SHINES (we mean
THE CROWDS, not THE FIREMEN)
AND OUR collars
WERE ALL wilted
AND OUR ladylile
CASHIER HAS corns
ON HER digits
SUPERINDUCED BY handling
A TON of change
AND A bushel of WAR TAX pennies.
THE FIREMEN had no
TIME TO see the GREAT SHOW because THEY WERE sworn in
AS HEAD ushers
AND TRAFFIC cops!
DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS
DRAWS LIKE a MUSTARD PLASTER.
"HEADIN' SOUTH" is SURE SOME hot show
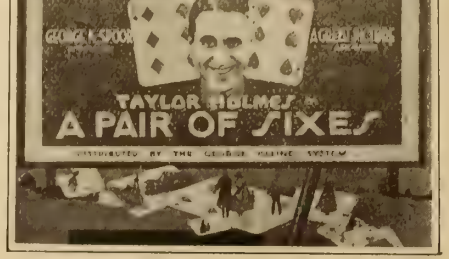
STUNTS!
THRILLS!
SUSPENSE!
GUNPLAYS AND scenery
200 COWBOYS!
W-H-O-O-P-E-E-!
300 MEXICANS and
VILLAINOUS CAMPEAU.
COME OVER and see
THE SHOW yourself
CHIEF
AND BRING the family
AS OUR guests
BECAUSE WE did
APPRECIATE YOUR help.
SAME SHOW goes
TONIGHT, TOMORROW AND WEDNESDAY
WE THANK you.
PARAMOUNT-EMPRESS.

fire chief sent a couple of his men around to take care of the crowds and to see that the municipal laws were not violated.

Now O. Harvey runs in one of the Salt Lake papers a column modelled somewhat along the lines of that by "K. C. B." in the New York American. So Carpenter followed that style in this particular advertisement, and addressed it to the fire chief and invited him to come over and see the show and bring his family with him. Of course, that was a mere incident of the display, to give it a personal tone, but this advertisement undoubtedly resulted in making people talk about the attraction.



WE have been very fond of impressing on advertising writers the desirability of employing plenty of white space in their displays. We have had the engraver outline the edges of the space used by Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles, to show the effectiveness of white space. The display occupies a space five columns wide by sixteen inches deep and therefore would dominate the page in any newspaper.

A novelty was introduced during this presentation by having the original cast appear in the flash and enact one of the dance hall scenes. This, of course, is something that could not be done except in theatres that are located in producing centers, but it certainly is original and is bound to attract attention to any theatre, especially to such a handsome one as Grauman's.

Don't count on fooling the public when you know at the start that you are fooling only yourself.

ONE of the things about which exhibitors have very justly complained is the lack of judgment used by manufacturers in making the paper. They point out that some of the producers seem to think that any old scene will do and that the one-sheets with one show scene, the three-sheet another and the six-sheet still another. Only a few of the men who are selecting the paper seem to have learned that in all sorts of exploitation work there should be one central idea of the picture and that this should be exploited.

What Live Wires Are Doing

Here is reproduced one of the 24-sheets designed by Essanay on "A Pair of Sixes," and the same idea is being carried out in all the trade paper advertising, slides, window cards and other accessories.

It's a good thing to have the public believe you're the man that puts the "I" in motion picture ideas.

FRANKLIN THEATRE, Saginaw, Mich., sends us a copy of one of its displays for criticism. In a way the display is well designed, but, after all, it comes back to the old point of trying to advertise two different shows at once—or rather, three in this case, for the Kerrigan attraction is mentioned down in the left hand corner.

We are very free to admit that "Daughter of the Gods" is an unusually big picture and that it deserves some attention in the Sunday papers, where the ad in question appears, but in this case we would have done two things. We would have based the big display on the Gladys Brockwell picture and at the same time we would have gone to the advertising manager of the paper and explained that we would do big advertising Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of the Annette Kellerman picture and have asked him to give you a special story in the Sunday issue based on that advertising. If necessary we would have used a separate advertisement on "Daughter of the Gods."

Are you trying to get the most out of your theatre, or trying to put the most into it?

T remains for some small cities to "show up" the larger ones, as this page from the Owensboro Messenger proves. In this city the Empress, Queen and Grand theatres, all owned by the same man, and we do not know what arrangements he had with the newspaper, but at any rate George A. Bleich has appreciated the necessity of getting the co-operation of his daily paper, and he has done so with splendid results. One thing that we distinctly do not like about this display is the advertising running across the top of the page. Owensboro is not so far from Cincinnati, and it may be influenced in this style of advertising by Cincinnati. We recently reproduced a page from one of the Cincinnati Sunday papers as an example of the worst in advertising. Another thing that we do not like is displaying the Tuesday show over the Monday one, but still under the circumstances this could be pardoned.

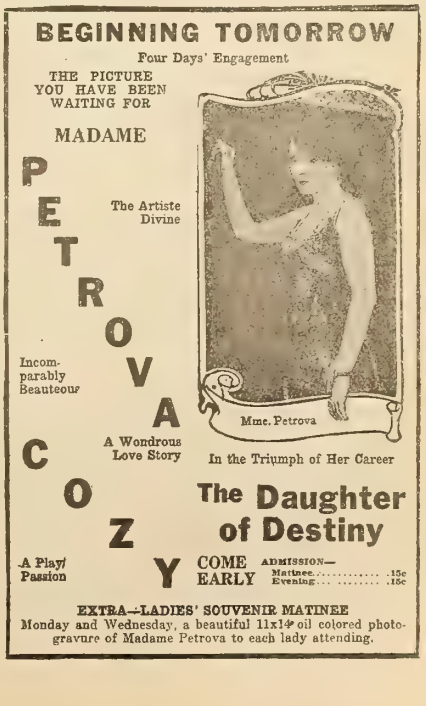
By using cuts furnished by producers there is an attractive layout secured, marred only by the fact that some of the makers of films try to get their trademarks all over the cuts, thereby making them less attractive and more convincing. Reading notices about each of the pictures is included. Another Sunday we notice that there is a column headed, "Coming to the Empress," giving interesting paragraphs about productions soon to be seen. Owensboro has the right idea, and we're pleased to see such progress in one of the smaller cities.

"All hands on deck" shouldn't be a storm warning for you, but the regular thing, so far as the crews of ideas, energy and courtesy are concerned.

HERE is an advertisement that violates most of the rules of good advertising, yet in a way is effective for the very reason that it is different. The Cozy theatre, Topeka, Kan., has used a space two columns wide by 6¾ inches deep and has employed one of the stock cuts of Mme. Petrova such as are furnished by the exchanges. The stepped arrangement of the name of the theatre and of the star make them attract the eye at once and the title of the picture by being dropped below the cut also stands out. The advertisement is hurt by the use of the various phrases around the stepped arrangement. Any plan that

YOU ARE WELCOME

We'll Write You Our Criticism if You So Desire



READERS will realize that in the case of programs which are so much alike that their reproduction in smaller size in the columns of the NEWS would show little difference, that the reading matter would be tiresome if we continually devoted our space to the same sort of things. We try to make the comment on the programs reproduced and on the advertising shown worth something not only to the man who sends in the specimen but to every other exhibitor.

We are going to continue to reproduce these things and want you to get the full benefit of it. But we cannot reproduce them all so if you will ask, we will comment on them by mail. In case you want the comment to certainly be in private, please also so indicate for we use those that offer us the best example to point out some feature.

The fact that it takes time and makes the advertising expert work nights need not worry you. We are here to give you SERVICE. We have set a new mark in giving you free REAL SERVICE.

makes it appear that you are hunting for little phrases to fill particular portions of white space is a bad one. And, as we say to you very often, white space is one of the most important things to get into your advertising.

We do not care for this style of advertising and certainly would not recommend it as a general proposition, but we must admit that in this case it is effective for the very reason that it is different.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

XLVIII—This question may not come under the limits of your advice, for I am not an exhibitor, but have seen your helpful answers in a copy of the NEWS that is taken by a friend who is a manager in a larger city. I am in a town of about 8,000, which has no theatre. There have been several operated here, but for one cause or another they have gone out of business. Personally I enjoy pictures, and when I go to the city I spend every evening at the picture shows. I am in business here and think that I am a pretty good business man. I also believe that there is a splendid opening here for a show and have a younger brother who could take charge. But I am uncertain whether a man should enter any business when he cannot give it his whole attention. I have thought over the plan of building up a business on the strength of good pictures and personal popularity. Do you think that it can be done?—MERCHANT.

MY honest advice to you is to stay out of the business because today's conditions are different from five years ago. The enterprise is fraught with hazard and uncertainty, and the return is not as great as it used to be. Unless you have good ideas and experience in the show business, and can devote all your time to it, I advise you to steer clear.

XLIX—I have read a great deal about giving audiences what they want. In some mistaken moment I announced that I would be glad to get the pictures that people wanted if they would only make their wants known, but of course I did not know the trouble that I was getting into at the time. Within the first two weeks I had enough conflicting requests to fill my bookings for a year, and I change every night. I have a neighborhood house and make it a point to book the pictures that have made a big hit at the downtown houses. This being an exchange city, I have the opportunity of waiting to see the results at the downtown houses, though I rarely see the pictures myself, but take the general public's view. Do you think that it would pay me to give up a job which I have in day time and which pays me $5 a day to give this time over to actually seeing the pictures. I doubt whether I myself am as good a judge as general patronage.

How far would you go in letting the public book your pictures? In other words, to what extent would you yield to various requests? Lots of times I believe that these requests are built largely on supposition. Do you think I would be wiser to follow these requests or devote my time to knowing for myself what the pictures are and relying on my judgment to get the best of the features?—A. N.

YOU have made one of the worst mistakes anyone can make in the exhibiting business. If you let your patrons choose your films they will do so, but you will get gray hairs and will soon be fit for an insane asylum.

The old adage is true: Familiarity breeds contempt. It has always been my opinion that the old slogan of the showman of giving the public what they want is erroneous and can't be done.

The only way out is to ignore requests unless they are in cohesive form and all tend in the direction of the same thing, and then go about as your judgment dictates in view of this unanimity of opinion. As a general thing, please yourself first, and then the public. In this way you will get that individuality which is the keynote of success in any enterprise.

You are the best judge of whether you ought to give up your $5 a day job or not. You must certainly do better than $5 a day if you have any business that is worth while. Don't let the public book your pictures. The public doesn't know what it wants. Please yourself and rely on your judgment, and if it is good judgment you will always get along.

L—I read your interesting answers every week and I must say that your optimism is very inspiring indeed. Ours is a little town of 1,800, and we occupy the opera house, with a seating capacity of about 450. The theatre is upstairs. Our patronage now is very poor. We show the best pictures that we can afford, but our music—a piano—is only fair. I have tried every way of advertising that I can get hold of, but still they hang back. I cannot understand it. I have no opposition here or any sign of any. Kindly tell me what you would do in this case.—DELAWARIAN.

I AM afraid that perhaps you are not paying proper attention to your business. I don't like to receive questions on business letter heads. This is one of the conditions under which I answer these questions—as I don't want to be influenced. But if you have some other enterprise besides your picture theatre the latter is apparently suffering through lack of proper attention.

A MOVING PICTURE THEATRE CANNOT BE EXPECTED TO RUN ITSELF.

You say you are running the best pictures you can afford. You can't afford any but the best made. You say your music is furnished by a piano and that it is only fair. Improve it. Improve your advertising, too. Make your presentation better. Add a Personal touch to the theatre. Use your head. Work hard. You can do great things if you only will think.

I am glad to know I am optimistic. IT IS THE ONLY WAY TO SUCCESS. Fairly breathe optimism. Get your help imbued with it. Show it in your advertising. Camouflage your troubles. Smile. Don't let people know you are doing poor business, even if you are doing it. No one loves trouble. People steer clear of calamity howlers. Let the sunshine in your theatre—psychological sunshine, which consists of cheerfulness, optimism, smiles.

Try hard and improve your show. Merely as an illustration—if you are climbing a hill in an automobile and you find it laboring, what do you do? You shift to a lower gear, give it more gas—added power, and—if the machine is any good—you gain momentum steadily. When you get to the top of the hill you are running smoothly. Then you go coasting down the hill on the other side, shutting off the power, and speeding along on the road of success with the hill behind you. Do you get me?

You have no excuse with no competition and a seating capacity of 450 for not doing good business. You ought to have the public eating out of the palm of your hand. It is no one's fault but your own if you don't.

I hope this will wake you up to the extent that in six months I will receive a letter from you telling me how grateful you are.

LI—Your sound advice is persuading me to ask you a question that is possibly outside the ordinary run of inquiries, and is this: "How far should a manager go in making himself familiar to his patrons?" Of course, I do not mean to inquire whether he should keep busy about the house and know what is going on in his theatre. But should he go to any extent in keeping in personal touch with the patrons? Now this is one of the twenty largest cities in the country. In the case of one theatre operated by a man and his wife this pair are constantly in the open lobby before the house. I have heard the expression more than once, "The Joneses seem to be watching for the dimes to come in." And they do leave that impression, and I know that theatre is not making money. I believe, too, that one reason why a certain element is staying away from motion picture houses is because the public has been made familiar with all the tricks of picture producing and that the film creations have lost the mystery angle to them. Don't you believe that the proper thing for a manager to do is to keep a close eye on what is going on, to be courteous and prompt in investigating complaints, etc.? I ask this because I have a partner who is not active in the management who thinks that I ought to be "out in front" most of the time. I work on the theory of what the people want is a finished performance and not to greet the manager of the house every time they come to the theatre.—T. R. T.

THE best way is to treat everyone as you do your most intimate personal friends to call them by name, usher them down the aisle to their seat, sit with them awhile and discuss the performance with them. Meet people in the lobby. Present a good appearance, dressing neatly in a black suit, with a black tie, and be nicely groomed. Don't make your attitude objectionable like Jones.

It is good to have an eye on the box office, but don't let people see you watching. Have a cashier cheerful, calling people by name and giving them the time of the day.

I don't believe your deduction is correct that people stay away because they are familiar with the tricks of picture producing. They are not. The motion picture people themselves don't know a one-hundredth part of the tricks possible; otherwise they might make better pictures.

Do the best with what you get, and get the best. Let your personality influence your theatre and its patrons. Mix with your patrons, but don't do it to the extent that the adage "Familiarity breeds contempt" begins to apply.

Your partner is right. You should be out in front. People want a finished performance—true. But that is only part of your work. Courtesy, comfort, service and personality are also important in giving your patrons the maximum of pleasure in your theatre.

Finding Out Where the Fault Is

This is the tenth of our series of articles, "The Diary of a Successful Exhibitor," by an exhibitor who tells each week what he is doing to develop his house, the lessons that he learns and the errors that he discovers. It is a frank discussion of the pleasures and evils of exhibition in a town of 15,000, and the tips contained here will probably be of value to managers in all sections.

By a Successful Exhibitor

LAST week I ended my article with the question that I had asked the exchange man when he had told me that the owner of the two other houses in my town had made a bid for this one of the services that I was using. "Why don't you let him have them?" I had asked.

"Well," he replied, "we've been getting our totals right along and we guess you'll last a few weeks longer." And then he laughed. It is a mighty good feeling when you know men in the industry are sure YOU ARE THERE.

I left that inquiry up in the air last week, not to give the sort of "continued in our next" spirit which the fiction writers strive for, but in the hope that some of the exhibitors would think what the answer to my question would be. Now, I am not defending the exchange men, for I have gotten raw deals from some of them. But I do think that some of the exhibitors who are always kicking and always complaining deserve about the treatment they say that they are getting, because of the fact that they try to make the exchange man bear the brunt not only of his own mistakes, but the showman's errors and his lack of his attention to building up his business.

It seems to me that every showman ought to try to establish himself, not only with his own people, but with the industry as a whole, by the things that he accomplishes. It takes some determination to do that. You will recall that at the beginning of my experience there were exchange men who wanted to tell me all about how to run my business, and to particularly dictate what I should do. If they can get away with that and load their product on you you cannot blame them. Of course, the ideal exchange man should always be looking to the exhibitors' good, but if he sees that the exhibitor doesn't pay attention to his own good he cannot be expected to help much.

With my opposition now centred in two houses under one ownership, I realized, of course, that he would be buying more films than I, and that probably for that reason some of the salesmen who didn't figure into the future would be appealing for his business, probably at the expense of mine. And so that was the reason that I had made this trip to the exchange city. I wanted to see whether I was getting the best that I could get, and whether I was pretty sure of retaining what I had if I wanted to keep it.

My first trouble came with the second exchange that I visited. I had been showing comedies from this company, and they were very well liked by patrons, but I had not shown any of the features because they were not of the type that would draw from my people. So when I started talking to this man he told me that my competitor had made an offer for the entire service and that I would have to do the same or give up the comedies. Naturally he did not say how much my competitor had offered for the entire service, but I figured that if it was much more than I was giving for the comedies alone he was wasting his money, for he was getting features that would not draw the amount he would pay for them, no matter at which house he showed them. "I hate to do it," said the exchange man, "but it is a rule of the house that I must sell the comedies to the man who takes the feaures, if he wants them, and if I refused his offer I would get a call from New York."

I appreciated his position. He was a good friend of mine and he had faith in me. And so I replied: "I realize that it is not your fault, old fellow. And in cases where the service was originally for sale I can see where the man who takes the features ought to have an option on the comedies. But your feaures were not used in my town and I took the comedies and made them popular. It looks pretty raw to me to have them taken away now, and you can write to your New York office the way I feel; you can add that I expect to be in business just as long as my competitors, and that if these comedies are taken from me, never again will any picture that bears your trademark ever be shown at any of the houses I may own." I didn't have the reputation of being a four-flusher, and he declared that he was going to write headquarters, explain the circumstances and recommend that I be allowed to keep the comedies. He did; he was turned down and shortly afterwards had an opportunity to leave that company and did so.

Three months after my competitor had played this service he found how unsuitable that brand of features were to his audiences, and that they had dragged down the comedies in public opinion, and he canceled the entire service. Then the new exchange manager looked up his file and came back at me with request that I take the comedies. I did not. But even if I was one of the smaller fellows my original protest now attracted some attention, and I had a long letter from the home office explaining how fair it had been in offering me the whole service and that when the other fellow bought the features he thereby got an option on the comedies, etc. I answered courteously that I had built up his comedies in my town and that since then I had built up others, and that I preferred to retain the ones I now had.

One of the first things that I learned when I started into the business was not to change services unless you are forced to do so by the poor quality of the pictures. Hunt around and see what is the matter with your own salesmanship first. Perhaps you are not boosting the popularity of some of the stars, possibly you have gotten into the rut and your theatre is simply running itself, or possibly there are some little defects in the pictures that you can cure. My policy has always been to see what I could do myself before I put the blame on the other fellow.

So with the exception of the necessary change in the comedies, which came a little later, I retained the services that I had, but I found one brand of films that was releasing a feature every two weeks, and I booked that in addition. I did not cancel any of the pictures that I had, though I realize that I would have to shelve one every fortnight, but I believed the new pictures were good enough to warrant this added expense. I had not thought of the idea at the time, but it gave me one excellent opportunity and I seized it. There was one of the stars who had been appearing on my main feature service in a remarkably poor line of features, but she was at the same time very poular, and I believed that the bad pictures were not her fault and that she would soon "come back" as a big drawing card. So even if I could have canceled her pictures alone I would not have done that. Instead, I arranged my bookings so that I would have hers and those of the weakest star on the other program come to me at the same time, and when necessary I could make a last minute shift in the program and present the best of the two pictures.

I went back home with one idea strong in my mind. I had established myself in the film world outside of my town and the exchange men had the fullest confidence in me. And I knew I stood well in my own town, but at the same time I realized that I was not getting all the people that it was possible to bring to my theatre and that was to be my problem hereafter.

WIDER APPEAL

Successful Exhibitor Tells Conclusion He Reached

AFTER recounting some interesting experiences that he had with his services after the two other houses in his town had come under the same management, Successful Exhibitor tells in this article of reaching the conclusion that his theatre should have a wider appeal and that the way to be successful was to create new business.

That is a very important point right now. Many exhibitors in writing us have made the point that so many of their young men have gone away to the war and that they have not been able to create new patrons in their stead. Lots of theatres have created them and we'd like to hear the means they have used.

Circle Puts Real Atmosphere in Week's Advertising Campaign and Scores Hit

HERE is one of the very best exploitations of a really big picture that we have ever seen. It is the work of S. Barret McCormick, managing director of the Circle Theatre, Indianapolis, and a member of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors' Service Bureau. Here was an unusual attraction and something unusual was done with it, and the result was one of the most successful weeks in the history of the Circle, we are told.

At the very start of this exploitation campaign an atmosphere of individuality was sought, and this advertising offset any explanation as to why the prices were increased. The interest in and the effectiveness of the matter used in the newspapers took full care of that. We regret that we are unable to illustrate the entire campaign for the week and the preceding days, but the specimens reproduced certainly show how strikingly different it all was and how perfectly in harmony.

We have reproduced one of the displays that was used on Sunday. The large figure of Cleopatra and Antony gave the atmosphere in the first place, and the reading matter is notable because it gets the very spirit of the picture. On Saturday and Sunday before the opening four and five full column displays and quarter page spaces were used to arouse the advance interest. These were all plates, half-tones. They were striking in every way. Now one thing important is to note the impressionistic verse that was used in the description. This was carried through the advertising most of the week.

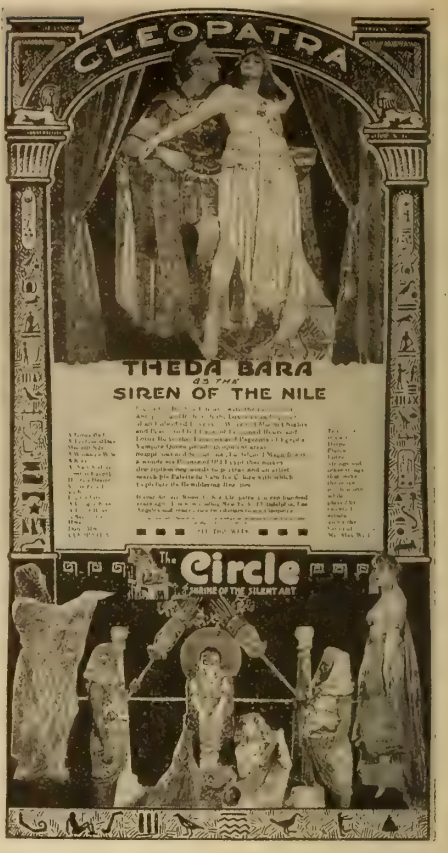
During the week line cuts were used and a distinctive border was employed. This campaign of the Circle has proved everything that this department has impressed upon you about the use of such material. All of the illustrations carry out the Egyptian effect. A considerable portion of the advertising during the week consisted in words that were put into Cleopatra's mouth by Mr. McCormick. On the Monday after the opening he used an imperial command from her telling the people that she regretted that on Sunday "they couldn't get within a Pyramid's length of the Temple" and inviting them for the other days of the week. Here is one of the clever ways that the price announcement was made:

"She was, however, surprised to learn that while Antony gave up Rome, Cæsar a Throne and Pharon the Family Jewels to see her, that Indianapolis only had to give up 15c. or 25c. in the mornings and afternoons, or 15c., 25c. or 35c. at night."

But in the course of this presentation there came an incident that was not a part of Manager McCormick's program, but one to which he did not object because of the effect that it had on his business. On Monday some of the ministers of the city started an agitation against the picture and called upon Mayor Jewett to stop its showing. The mayor went to see the pictures and ordered four scenes cut out and then let the production run. Although it was not planned it was the best advertising that could be obtained. The newspapers ran first page stories and they all entered into the spirit of it, quoting in their stories extracts from Manager McCormick's advertising like "a woman's wile, a kiss, a wait awhile, veins filled with liquid fire, a longer kiss, a little bliss."

And did the Circle take full advantage of this? The next morning there appeared an advertisement in the same distinctive style, with the only cut the slender head of snake and the words "Theda Bara, Cleopatra," and then this occupying about one-half of the space:

"Well," remarked Cleopatra this morning as she emerged from under the anesthetic of her operation and glanced at the Pink Teddy Bear that had just been delivered in a Ford by a grinning Ethiopian,



"Human nature hasn't changed very much in the two thousand years that I've been dead. Back there in the days when Lotus Buds bloomed in my back yard, in the spot where some bespectacled Egyptologist is now digging around looking for the true history of my life,

A green-eyed Jane got sore just because of my perfect 36 and knocked me.

And ever since I've had a bad reputation and been accused of playing the leading role in the great domestic drama, 'Why Men Leave Home.'

"Now," she continued, giving the string of her new R & G a jerk, "take that little incident where I camouflaged Cæsar. To me that was the most brilliant coup in my entire femi-military career. 'Ouch!' she grimaced in pain as the scissors fell on the Antony episode. Now I can fully realize what Shakespeare meant when he said 'That was the most unkindest cut of all.'"

One of the Sunday Ads. of the Circle Theatre

If any one had missed the article on the first page about the Mayor having censored the picture, this certainly brought it to their attention. Naturally the affair created something of a sensation, but there was fun and good humor over it because of the way that the incident was handled.

Manager McCormick certainly achieved the atmosphere right at the start of this exploitation, and he let nothing prevent his keeping that same atmosphere right through his publicity. We wonder how many exhibitors would have resisted the temptation to refer directly to the incident of the mayor in his display matter? Mighty few and certainly still fewer would have carried the exploitation through as cleverly as he did.

It was an immense campaign on a picture, but it shows that it pays to go to things in a big way.

Photograph at the right shows the early morning crowds at the Schade theatre, Sandusky, O., waiting to see "The Remaking of the Nation." At the left is a detail of boy scouts on duty at the evening performance.

How Leading Portland Theatres and Newspapers Put the Pep In Pictures

(Continued from page 1722)

page, as is evidenced by the right-hand corner of the page reproduction. Opposite, and not reproduced, are the ads of the Strand and Hippodrome, vaudeville and pictures. The reason for this, from the viewpoint of the leading Portland exhibitors is shown in four other pages from the same Sunday issue, the two pages to the left and the top and the two to the left in the center row. These are pages from the main news section, or the first section of the paper. On the seventh page the Columbia uses a space three columns wide and 12 inches deep and on the eighth Peoples occupies five columns 10 inches deep, while on the ninth the Liberty uses four full columns, and on the tenth the Majestis is well represented with 14 inches four columns wide. So far as our survey is concerned these are the only theatres that advertise in the Sunday Oregonian, a poor representation so far as the number of theatres in the city are concerned, but splendid work on the part of those that do realize the value of such advertising.

Evidently these four theatres that use the first section believe that they attract more attention by occupying this position and that they get the reader both ways by attracting his attention with the display in the news section, and then get the reading matter in the photoplay page. Waiving local conditions in Portland, we do not believe that this is the best method of advertising. Certainly, in a way, it is an intimation that the motion picture news matter is not worth reading, though, of course, the theory is that everyone is reached here. But we feel quite sure that if this matter were carried in the regular photoplay section that the newspapers would give much more reading matter, and that the theatre would get the more benefit thereby. From our long newspaper experience and knowing how newspapers regard the balance between advertising and reading matter, we would say that were these four large displays included in the photoplay department that department would contain twice as much reading matter, more illustrations and be more a big feature of the Sunday paper. Newspapers in many cities would not permit the arrangement that prevails in all of the Portland papers.

The Portland Journal's Sunday page is reproduced at the right of the center row. It is mainly very good, but the page is not confined to photoplay news and there are at least two of the main heads in this issue devoted to stage affairs, while there is even "grapevine" news matter included to fill up the holes. Any photoplay page that does not devote itself to photoplay matter leaves the impression that the editor could not get enough to fill up, and the work is only half done. But we'll have to take into consideration that there is not a motion picture advertisement on this page and that those who are using the Journal specify position in the first section.

Why, we can see in the light of our experience the photoplay editor of the Oregonian or the Journal going to the business manager and asking for more room and being met with the reply: "What for? Those that are advertising are doing so because they have to have our paper. Your page shows that they are not using space because of it."

In the Saturday Evening Telegram there is more space devoted to motion picture news matter than either of the other papers, but the only straight picture house we see represented in the advertising is the Globe, with 2 inches. The layout carries pictures on the Majestic, which uses some space during the week, and on the Sunset, from which we fail to find any advertising.

The Saturday News carries an exclusive half page from the Circle Theatre and display from the Peoples, Sunset, Globe and Star. Its department could not be called a photoplay page, for it is a mass of matter about picture and legitimate houses, indiscriminately mixed, and with a bunch of badly assorted cuts furnished by the exchanges and theatres in an attempt to form a layout.

(To be continued next week)

Striking Advertising Methods Get 11,000 out of 20,000 Citizens to Theatre

DOES earnest exploitation—getting out and doing things pay? Here is the answer.

Last week we printed a picture of the arrangement of the Schade theatre, Sandusky, Ohio, on the occasion of showing the official Camp Sherman picture of the training that the draft men have gotten in five months. We commended this as a stunt that would bring crowds. Above we have printed the pictures showing the lines that were constantly in front of the house from morning until night during the film's presentation.

Sandusky has a population of about 20,000 by the last census. The Schade theatre has a seating capacity of 700. This picture showed to 11,000 people in three days. Some record! It's worth while knowing how this was done. In the first place the performances started at 8:30 a. m. and were continuous through the day. They had to be to take care of the enormous crowds that Manager George Schade brought to the house.

Included in the program was a lecture by Lieut. Frank X. Gill, of Cleveland, on the work of the training camp and Johnny Kilbane, featherweight champion and boxing instructor at the camp also appeared at each show. Ushers were dressed as girl scouts and each evening there was a free concert in front of the theatre by Eckley's band and a drill by the Boy Scouts and St. Mary's cadets. Over three thousand tickets were sold on the streets and of these Girl Scouts sold 1,200, the prize being $5 and a bouquet from the boys of Camp Sherman.

So unique was this stunt that the Sandusky Star-Journal published pictures of the front, of Kilbane, and many other stories.

Getting 11,000 out of 20,000 people to your theatre in three days is some accomplishment.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

Mary Pickford in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley"—Best Yet

(Paramount Five Reel Production)

Mary Pickford in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley." This will be the attraction at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. The story was written by Belle K. Maniates, scenarioized by Frances Marion and produced under the direction of Marshall Neilan. In the supporting cast are seen William Scott, Norman Kerry, Ida Waterman, Margaret Landis, Kate Price, Thomas H. Wilson, Fred Goodwins, Herbert Standing, Wesley Barry, Frank Butterworth, Antrim Short, George Hackathorne and Gertrude Short. This is the most amusing picture that Mary has done. It is full of wholesome philosophy, showing that people from the environments of such places as Clothesline Alley can never mix happily with the upper classes of society. One of the scenes of the picture is that showing Chinatown, of San Francisco. Mary has the title role and lives in the tenement home with her jolly, tender-hearted mother and her small brothers who are messengers and newsboys. Amarilly is the boss of the Alley and makes the boys "toe the mark." She obtains the job of scrub-girl at a theatre and her fiance, Terry McGowan, is the pride of the alley and the bartender at the Midway saloon. Terry is temperance, however. Gordon Phillips, a wealthy young man, while on a slumming expedition, is injured in a brawl, and Amarilly takes him to her home and nurses his wounds. Terry becomes jealous. After Gordon's recovery Amarilly is given the job of caring for Gordon's studio and when her brothers are stricken with scarlet fever, she is given a permanent home with Mrs. Phillips. After the quarantine has been lifted, Amarilly's mother is received at the home of Mrs. Phillips, which visit results in humorous scenes and proves to Amarilly that the Alley gang can never mix with the upper crust.

Mary Pickford in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Ann Pennington, Pretty Ziegfeld Follies Girl in "Sunshine Nan"

(Paramount Five Reel Production)

Ann Pennington will return to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, in "Sunshine Nan," adapted from Alice Rice's "Calvary Alley." Eve Unselk, who has made the adaptations for many of Paramount's most successful productions, did the continuity. "Sunshine Nan" was produced under the direction of Charles Giblyn. In the supporting cast with Miss Pennington are seen Richard Barthelmess, John Hines, Helen Tracy and Charles Eldridge. The former star of Ziegfeld's Follies is seen at her best in her latest work before the camera. Alice Hegen Rice will be remembered for her work, "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," "Lovey Mary," and "Mr. Opp." Miss Pennington has the role of Nance Molloy who lives in Calvary Alley, back of the great cathedral, the only world that she knows. Dan Lewis, an orphan, is her only friend. Nance is always getting into trouble with the Alley "rats," as the children are called, and Dan is always getting her out of trouble. MacPherson Clark, one of the choir boys, whose father owns the Clark shoe factory, is the leading spirit. Nance detests him. Four years pass and Nance has learned stenography at school and accepts a position at the Clark factory. Dan works in the chemical department and they become engaged. Dan has discovered a chemical process of value and Mac, who has returned from college, plans to steal the process. The invention makes Dan rich and he and Nance are married.

Ann Pennington in "Sunshine Nan" at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

Taylor Holmes in His Funniest Comedy Drama, "A Pair of Sixes"

(Essanay Five Reel Production)

Sixes," adapted from Edward Peple's Broadway success of the same title, has been produced by Essanay for the Perfection program with Taylor Holmes, supported by Alice Mann in the leading feminine role, in the featured role. This is one of the famous comedian's best comedy portrayals. In the supporting cast are seen Robert Conness, Edna Phillips Holmes, Cecil Owen, Maud Eburne, C. E. Ashley, John Cossar, Byron Aldenn, Virginia Bowker, and Tommy Carey, with Miss Mann in the principal feminine role. Miss Mann will be remembered for her work opposite "Fatty" Arbuckle in some of his most recent comedies. The production was made under the direction of L. C. Windom. Mr. Holmes has the role of T. Boggs Johns, one of the proprietors of the Digestive Pill Manufacturing Company. His partner is George Nettleton, and they cannot agree and they decide upon an unique method of solving the trouble. They play a hand of poker, the loser to become the servant to the winner for the period of one year, and the winner shall have full control of the business for the same period. If either member reveals the circumstances of the pact, he shall pay a fine of $5,000. The hand is played, Boggs loses, and he is delegated to serve as butler in the Nettleton home. Coddles, a house maid of antique vintage, makes love to him. Bogg's sweetheart comes to the Nettleton home as a guest. She tries to learn what has brought about the change in Boggs, but he cannot tell, under penalty of $5,000. Then the fun starts.

Come to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, and learn how Boggs and his partner and his sweetheart decide when to call it "quits." "A Pair of Sixes" will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week.

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

March 16, 1918.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS
"The Rough Lover"	Bluebird	5 reels
"The Spurs of Sybil"	World	5 reels
"The House of Glass"	Select	5 reels
"The Thing We Love"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Wasp"	World	5 reels
"The Trimmed Lamp"	General (O. Henry)	2 reels
"Marrying Off Dad"	General	2 reels
"A Soul In Trust"	Triangle	5 reels
"The Beggar Woman"	Pathe	5 reels
"Eve's Daughter"	Paramount	5 reels
"Nobody's Wife"	Universal	5 reels
"The Family Skeleton"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Song of the Soul"	Vitagraph	5 reels

Emmy Wehlen in "The Shell Game," Rippling Comedy-Drama

(Metro Five Reel Production)

Emmy Wehlen, the clever little English comedienne who has been seen in several Metro productions, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, in the screen version of Kenneth L. Roberts' Saturday Evening Post story, "Good Will and Almond Shells," appearing on the screen under the title, "The Shell Game." The production was made under the direction of George D. Baker. In the supporting cast are seen such popular Metro artists as Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour, Fanny Cogan, Ricca Allen, Hugh Jeffrey, Richard Thorton Clarence Hermitage and Donald McBride. A set theory of "Silk" Wilkins, a confidence man, is that all mortals get sentimental around Christmas time, and that their pocket-books can be easily reached. "Silk" saunters in one of New York's fashionable hotels and sees Lawrence Grey, a wealthy real-estate man, counting his bank-roll. "Silk" makes himself acquainted and the two adjourn to the dining room. The subject of conversation changes to Christmas tidings and "Silk" learns that his friend has lost, several years before, his wife and child in an accident. He was not sure whether they were killed or had disappeared. "Silk" promises that if his friend's daughter were alive, he would find her. In a cheap boarding house where "Silk" held forth, lived Alice Sheldon, from the Middle West, who had been fleeced of all the money her father had left her, by an unscrupulous music teacher. She became despondent and decided that the only way out was to turn on the gas. "Silk" sees in her a good substitute for Grey's daughter. She consents to be a party to the plan, the scheme works. Alice gets everything that money can buy from her "father" and "Silk" decides that it is time to make a killing. He demands $10,000. Alice refuses to accede to his demands and confesses everything to Grey. But Grey knows all about the scheme, for he had "Silk" watched. He was perfectly willing to be a father to Alice and he gives "Silk" $10,000 for finding his future wife.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, Emmy Wehlen in "The Shell Game."

Smiles and Thrills in "The Floor Below," a Mabel Normand Picture

(Goldwyn Six Reel Production)

Mabel Normand, whose recent appearance in "Dodging a Million" has set motion picture fans the country over singing her praises, comes to the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— in "The Floor Below," a Goldwyn production. The story is by Elaine Sterne and it has been admirably interpreted under the direction of Clarence G. Badger. While the star is given ample opportunity to display her well-known attainments as a comedienne, there is much of the really dramatic in her role of Patricia O'Rourke, the copy girl in a newspaper office, who is assigned to unravel a mystery which long has baffled the police as well as the star reporters. Her errand takes her to a rescue mission conducted by Hunter Mason, a young millionaire. From this mission are believed to emanate the plots whereby several robberies of fashionable homes have been committed. Entering the place by way of the fire escape and being mistaken for a thief in sore need of reform, the girl is received by Mason and Latham, his secretary, and so appeals to the millionaire that he enlists his mother's aid in caring for her. At the Mason home she meets Louise Vane, a girl who, in spite of her love for Latham, is making a bid for the affections of Mason. There is a benefit dance given at the house for the Mason mission and everybody is asked to pay for the privilege of dancing, the money being deposited in a box in charge of Patricia. The ball room is thronged with fashionables and the contribution box contains a large sum of money. Nobody, not even Patricia, suspects that among the guests is the very person responsible for the robberies, but when one of the crooks is sweated at headquarters into making a confession, the police make for the dance. What follows furnishes the big surprise of the story. Tom Moore, as Hunter Mason, is the ideal leading man and the remainder of the cast is capable.

"The Floor Below," a comedy-drama starring Mabel Normand, at the ——— on ———.

"Huck and Tom," Another Tom Sawyer Picture, Coming

(Paramount Five Reel Production)

Another Tom Sawyer picture, this one "Huck and Tom," relating further adventures of the youth immortalized by Mark Twain, will be seen at the ——— theatre on ———. Again Jack Pickford appears as Tom Sawyer, and in this second edition of the adventures he continues with pronounced faithfulness his remarkable portrayal. Hardly less commendable is the work of Robert Gordon as Huck Finn, and the entire cast is of corresponding excellence. The producing company, bent upon making as accurate a reproduction of the author's story as possible, took its organization of players right out to Hannibal, Mo., Mark Twain's boyhood home, which is the scene of the pranks of Tom and Huck. With the aid of these settings Director William D. Taylor succeeded in injecting an atmosphere which, to the lover of Mark Twain and his heroes, will prove a revelation in picturecraft. In the story Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn sneak off to a cemetery in the dead of night, there to cure some warts by the magical dead cat treatment. To their surprise they come upon a group of body snatchers. The ghouls are quarrelling and Injun Joe, one of the party, kills the chief body snatcher. The half-breed puts the knife in the hands of Muff Porter, an aged derelict, and the old man really thinks he committed the crime. At the trial Tom's testimony acquits the old fellow, and Injun Joe jumps through the window and makes his escape. Tom, now the hero and glorying in the love of Becky Thatcher, still has time, however, to sneak off with Huck in search of further excitement. This time they enter a haunted house and there come upon Injun Joe again. This leads to a chase for the culprit which takes the boys through all sorts of exciting adventures. They even penetrate the recesses of a wonderful cave and there, strange to relate, they again find the Indian. How Injun Joe is finally killed and how Huck and Tom find his hidden treasure is all delightfully told.

"Huck and Tom," or "The Further Adventures of Tom Sawyer," at the ——— on ———.

Jack Livingston and Margery Wilson In "The Hard Rock Breed"

"The Hard Rock Breed" is the title of the Triangle feature which comes to the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week. Jack Livingston, Margery Wilson, Jack Curtis, J. Barney Sherry, Marion Skinner, Lee Phelps, George Chase, Louis Durham, Thorton Edwards and Aaron Edwards are seen in the principal roles.

It tells the story of the restless fighting spirit of men who delight in fighting their way through difficulties. The son of one of them has been brought up in wealth and luxury until he is a spoiled sob. He has inherited the spirit, but the only outlet he finds for it is in reckless deviltry. Twenty-five years before, Bill Naughton and Lynch Dolan were foremen on construction work at McCarthyville. On the same day two babies are born. Shiela Dolan and Donald Naughton. Naughton, through study and hard work becomes a wealthy engineer. Dolan, handicapped by boozing too much, is still foreman of the Hard Rock men at Snowslide, one of Naughton's contract jobs. Naughton becomes to realize that Don is on the road to ruin and should have the same chance he had—to fight his way among real men—and sends him to Snowslide to take the place of Carney, the crooked superintendent, who is also a partner in the Gem saloon and is using his position to rob the men. Don thinks he will have an easy job and despises the men as swine. They despise him equally as a "soft-handed dude." Carney and his partner, Greek Louis, plan to drive Don off the job so that Dolan can get it. They figure that they keep him drunk and handle him as they want. Shiela and Don meet and are attracted to each other at once, but she resents his attitude toward the men, especially as his own father was a Hard Rock man. Smith, an engineer, and a fine fellow, has loved her for many years. He suffers greatly as he sees Don winning her away from him, but remains Don's loyal friend and mentor. When Don's batch of twenty laborers arrive they are driven out of camp by Carney's toughs. Don sends for more and Carney secretly arranges that a bunch of anarchists and I. W. W.'s be sent instead of bona fide laborers. Don tries to get Dolan home from the saloon, for Shiela's sake and is obliged to lick him first, which adds greatly to his standing, as Dolan is the best fighter in the camp. Austrian Joe, the leader of the anarchists, attempts to blow up Don and some of the drillers. He fails, but Don and the enraged men raid whisky row. There is a terrific battle and the thugs are driven from camp. Joe is killed by a fall from a roof. The men are about to lynch Carney and Louis, but Don orders them to cut it out. They hesitate and then Jerry says, "The 'old man' says so and what he says goes."

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, "The Hard Rock Breed," with Jack Livingston and Margery Wilson.

"Beauty in Chains" Laid in a Spanish Setting

(Universal Five-Reel Production)

In "Beauty in Chains," which will be presented at the ——— theatre on ———, Ella Hall for the first time in her career plays the role of a Spanish beauty, although she has been in pictures nearly ten years. The entire play is laid in a Spanish setting. Dona Perfecta is the aged patron saint of the sleepy little town of Orbajosa. Friend of the poor, patroness of the church, the wealthiest inhabitant, she is the law. Her right hand man is the notary, Don Cayetano, who holds hopes of a union between his son, Jacinto, and Rosarita, the granddaughter of Dona Perfecta. Rosarita has been betrothed to Pepe Rey Don Jose since babyhood, but has never seen him. The announcement that Pepe is coming to visit his intended, therefore, creates intense excitement for everybody in the household. The two fall in love at once, but the town regards him as a fop and a scoffer; he is reported to be an atheist and a revolutionist; he loses his position; Rosarita is kept away from him and finally he is involved in a trumped-up scandal with three girls in the village. But every fresh attack makes him the more determined to win Rosarita. Finally he suspects Dona Perfecta, and she ultimately proves the arch villain, even going so far as to plot against the young man's life. But Pepe effects a daring elopement with Rosarita and emerges triumphant. The role of the arch-villianess, scheming against her own granddaughter and plotting to kill the young hero, is played by Ruby Lafayette, who was seen as the featured player in "Mother o' Mine." Emory Johnson, husband of Ella Hall, plays Pepe, and the balance of the cast includes such well-known players as Gretchen Lederer, Winter Hall, Harry Holden and Maxfield Stanley.

At the ——— on ———, Ella Hall in "Beauty in Chains."

"Baby Grand" Stars Are Seen in "American Buds," a Comedy-Drama

(Fox Six-Reel Production)

Those wonderful Fox kiddies, Jane and Katherine Lee, who already have acquired a grown-up reputation as the "Baby Grands," are coming to delight the patrons of the ——— theatre on ———. The play in which they will be seen is a comedy-drama, entitled "American Buds." The inimitable youngsters, who have previously been seen performing their irresistible pranks in "Two Little Imps" and "Troublemakers," appear in "American Buds" as orphans, the scenes being laid in an orphanage and subsequently in an army camp. In both places the children devote themselves principally to stirring up trouble. Their parentage is shrouded in mystery and the story largely revolves around efforts to identify them. After having driven the matron of the orphanage and her assistants almost to distraction, they bounce unexpectedly in upon an army post and spend the balance of the time making matters interesting for the officers and soldiers. Incidentally, and quite unintentionally, they cause the breaking of an engagement between the colonel's daughter and a captain, it appearing at the time that they really are the bachelor captain's offspring. A spy figures in the story as the captain's rival for the hand of the colonel's daughter. Matters run very smoothly for him until one midnight Jane goes downstairs to get her doll and discovers him in the act of trying to steal some important papers from the colonel's desk. While attempting to put Jane out of the way the spy is shot, and, knowing that the end is near, he makes a confession that the children are his and that their mother was a daughter of the colonel, who ran away from home several years previously. Among the amusing scenes is one in which Jane is caught by one of the ropes of a big balloon as it rises into the air. By baffling trick photography she is made to appear to dangle from the rope high in the air, finally descending in a parachute from a height of at least 2,000 feet.

The Fox "Baby Grands" will be seen in "American Buds" at the ——— on ———.

WHERE THEY DON'T

You Can Get Bright Notes from the Newspapers from These Pages

YOU should be following the articles on newspaper co-operation with motion picture theatres which is being printed in this department week after week. If you haven't started turn to the first page of this week's Exhibitors Service Bureau and read it. And don't say that these statements apply only to the large cities.

Even if the newspaper in your town does not employ a motion picture editor, and its facilities are limited, it will probably be willing to print newly little items about productions that are coming to your theatre. You can get the material here. Take your pen, or better your typewriter, in hand and try what you can do and see if this matter will not find its way into your paper—which is probably willing to co-operate all it can.

Doug Fairbanks Coming in "Headin' South," a Tale of Two Borders

(Artcraft Five Reel Production)

Douglas Fairbanks, the incomparable acrobatic comedian of motion pictures, comes to the ——— theatre on ——— in his latest Artcraft picture, "Headin' South." This story is characterized as a tale of two borders—Mexican and Canadian—and deals with the capture of a notorious band of Mexicans who defy all laws and governmental warnings. Fairbanks, as millions of movie fans know, is an expert horseman and his riding scenes in "Headin' South," at the head of two hundred cowboys, are intended to thrill the most blase theatre patrons. Catherine MacDonald, the attractive little Pittsburgh girl, who was seen in Charles Ray's last picture, makes her first appearance as Fairbanks' leading woman. Miss MacDonald is especially fitted for work in a Fairbanks film, being very fond of outdoor life, and having participated in several athletic tournaments. The bold, bad part is again taken by Frank Campeau, the famous "heavy" of the screen and stage, who created the part of Trampus in "The Virginian." "Headin' South" is not only the title of the play, but it is the name of the character which Fairbanks assumes. "Spanish Joe," a Mexican bandit, is wanted for a murder committed in Canada. "Headin' South," of the Northwest Mounted Police, is a born diplomat, and having trailed the murderer from Canada to the Mexican border, succeeds in persuading "Spanish Joe" to enroll him as a member of his band. Animosity springs up between the two, and so well does "Headin' South" carry out his part that he is almost strung up by the sheriff. How he is rescued in the nick of time furnishes but one of the many exciting incidents of this remarkably interesting story.

Mystery Abounds in "The Girl in the Dark," a Bluebird Photoplay

(Bluebird Five Reel Production)

A girl is branded with the mark "A. Y." on her shoulder. She doesn't know the meaning of it, but it bears a magic significance to any Chinaman who sees it. This is the central idea of "The Girl in the Dark," the Bluebird photoplay starring Carmel Myers, which will be the attraction at the ——— theatre on ———. Miss Myers has come rapidly to the front lately in motion pictures and it is because, in addition to her beauty, she possesses real ability as an actress. She is the daughter of a Los Angeles rabbi whom D. W. Griffith "discovered." She first sprang into public notice as one of the featured players in the Jewel Production, "Sirens of the Sea." Her present starring vehicle, "The Girl in the Dark," was adapted from Charles Edmond Walk's well-known mystery novel, "The Green Seal," and is nothing if not exciting. Bruce Ferris, seated at his desk on a stormy night, is started by a woman's shriek. Rushing out he is just in time to rescue a beautiful girl from a group of Chinamen, one of whose number he wounds. In reviving her he discovers a Chinese idiograph, which resembles the letters "A. Y." tattooed on her shoulder. His Chinese valet, seeing it, becomes greatly excited and when Ferris turns his back slips a ring which bears the same green sign from her finger. He takes the ring away from the servant and throws him out of the house. Before the girl can tell him anything of her story a man calls to see her. As they approach the room where Ferris has left the girl a scream indicates another struggle. The door is locked and while the stranger attempts to force it Ferris enters through a window. In the room he finds the dismissed valet lying on the floor, slain, with the mysterious mark on his forehead. The girl is again unconscious. When he opens the door his visitor has strangely disappeared. These are the early events in a story replete with thrills. A fine cast which includes Ashton Dearholt, Frank Tokanaga and Frank Deshon, of comic opera fame, has been provided.

"The Girl in the Dark" is announced for ——— at the ——— theatre.

Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford in "Hungry Eyes"

(Bluebird Five Reel Production)

The attraction at the ——— theatre on ——— is announced as "Hungry Eyes," in which Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford are presented as co-stars. No more charming young woman is known to the picture world than Miss Clifford, her demure beauty having attracted thousands of admirers daily since her first appearance as a star of Bluebird photoplays a year or so ago. Monroe Salisbury, also, is enjoying a popularity which is growing by leaps and bounds. The excellent supporting cast includes Rupert Julian, to whom also is due the credit of directing the production; Gretchen Lederer, W. H. Bainbridge, A. H. Barros, Arthur Tavares, George McDaniel and Rita Pickering. Strikingly beautiful outdoor photography is a pronounced feature of the production, the scenes being laid in the Far West. Salisbury has the part of Dale Revenal, of Louisiana, who comes to the ranch of Dudley Appleton ticketed as a horse thief, but highly recommended by Appleton's old friend, John Silver. The handsome Southerner commands the instant love of Mary Jane Appleton, who is sought in marriage by Jack Nelda, owner of an adjoining ranch. Revenal, realizing his unworthiness, allows Mary Jane to believe that he has a wife and two children living in Arizona. Nevertheless Nelda, jealous, plans to kill Revenal and summons him to a nearby camp. At this point Silver appears on the scene and when Mary Jane tells him of Revenal's admission to her he sets out after him with both guns. He runs afoul of the Nelda party waiting for Revenal, there is a general shooting bee and Nelda is killed and Revenal wounded. Just as Silver is replacing his shooting irons a radiantly beautiful woman steps from a stage coach. Silver conducts her gallantly to the doctor's office where Revenal is just regaining consciousness under Mary Jane's ministering hand. The newcomer rushes toward him, but Revenal weakly holds her back, and turning to those present he introduces her as "my wife from Arizona." "Nonsense," says the puzzled woman, "I am his sister." It is assumed that there is a wedding soon.

"Hungry Eyes" will be seen on ——— at the ———.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Live News from the Producers

Fox Completes New Features

Both the Eastern and West Coast Studios Have Been Producing Features at a Rapid Rate Recently

AT the Eastern studios of William Fox five new photoplays have been completed recently and a sixth is rapidly approaching the finished state.

The pictures finished are: R. A. Walsh's drama, "Woman and the Law," which began an engagement at the Lyric theatre on March 3; William Farnum's de luxe production, "Rough and Ready"; "The Debt of Honor," in which Peggy Hyland makes her debut as a William Fox star; "A Camouflage Kiss," June Caprice's comedy, and "A Daughter of France," a drama in which Virginia Pearson has stellar honors.

The film which will soon be ready for the cutting room is one in which Jane and Katherine Lee are starred. The company, under the direction of Kenean Buel, returned last week from a three weeks' stay in Georgia.

Peggy Hyland's initial production as a Fox star, "The Debt of Honor," is released as a Special Feature for March 10. O. A. C. Lund, who directed Miss Hyland in this film, will have charge of her second subject and expects to begin it this week.

"Rough and Ready," William Farnum's production, is the Standard Picture for March 24. Richard Stanton, who made "The Spy" and "Cheating the Public," staged this drama of the East and West. The Fox offices say that the story gives the distinguished actor the virile, rugged type of role in which he has already won considerable fame.

Meatless days, next to Miss Caprice herself, have the chief part in "A Camouflage Kiss," a rollicking comedy of the lighter side of wartime. Bernard Thornton, Pell Trenton, George Bunny and Lola May help Miss Caprice in its interpretation. Harry Millarde directed the picture. Of an entirely different character is "A Daughter of France," a vigorous drama whose action is laid chiefly in an old French chateau. Miss Pearson appears as the young woman who serves the tri-color.

Virginia Pearson, Fox Star, in a Tense Moment in "A Daughter of France"

George Walsh has begun on a new production. The athletic Fox star has been convalescing for several weeks after returning home from Polyclinic Hospital, where it was necessary to take him for treatment of broken ribs. Walsh says he is feeling excellently now.

The Fox West Coast studios have been no less active. Jewel Carmen, after finishing "The Bride of Fear," has started work on a new production under the direction of Edward J. Le Saint. Tom Mix has finished a new play which has to do with a cowboy in a dress suit and is said to afford him opportunity for one of his best characterizations. Since he has been starred by William Fox, Mix has made "Cupid's Round Up" and "Six-Shooter Andy."

Gladys Brockwell, after finishing "The Devil's Wheel" left for a hunting trip in the mountains. It is claimed that "The Devil's Wheel" is one of the best pictures Miss Brockwell has made.

New Chaplin Press Book to Be Unique

Special press material and exhibitors' aids are being prepared by the publicity and supply departments of the First National Exhibitors' Circuit for the exploitation of the first of the new series of Charlie Chaplin comedies, "A Dog's Life," which will probably be ready for release soon after Easter.

In making a compilation of the facts and fictions regarding Chaplin's career for use in putting over his forthcoming production, it has been discovered that the $1,000,000 slapstick genius ranks third among those personalities that have received mention in the public press during the past two years. The Kaiser and President Wilson both lead him in actual amount of space, according to the estimation of the manager of a well known clipping bureau, but the film star's face is undoubtedly known to more people in various parts of the globe.

Larry Semon Directs It

"Whistles and Windows" is the title of the Vitagraph comedy under production on the West Coast by Larry Semon.

Hugh Thompson Joins De Luxe Forces

Doris Kenyon's leading man in "The Street of Seven Stars," it was announced last week, will be Hugh Thompson, who has been placed under contract by De Luxe. Mr. Thompson's most recent work is with Virginia Pearson, the Fox star, as leading man. He has also appeared with Theda Bara, Annette Kellermann, Edna Goodrich and others.

"The Street of the Seven Stars" will be the initial offering of De Luxe Pictures, Inc.

"Thief or Angel" Late Judge Brown Release

"Thief or Angel," a juvenile comedy-drama with a touch of heart interest, is the current Judge Brown story on the General Film program. This is an intimate story of young people in a city neighborhood. Ruth Hampton plays the heroine, and Judge Brown has gathered a capable cast for her support. Ernest Butterworth plays the leading boy role.

Judge Brown has announced a slight change in the order of the March and April releases. Following "Thief or Angel" the Judge Brown Stories will be in the following order: "The Accusing Toe," "Rebellion," "A Boy Built City," and "I'm a Man." The latter subject is an intensely patriotic story which, it is promised, will excel even "Bud's Recruit," the initial release, in entertainment value.

"The Preacher's Son" Is a New Judge Brown Story Released by General Film

House Organ Aids "The Eagle's Eye"

Booklet Will Be Devoted Entirely to the Twenty Episodes—Newsdealers Also Join in Big Campaign— Foursquare Exchanges Distribute It

AS a part of the special campaign which has been prepared as an aid to the exhibitor who has booked "The Eagle's Eye," a house organ to be devoted entirely to this twenty-episode serial story of the Imperial German Government's plots and spies in America, by Wm. J. Flynn, will make its appearance this week, it is expected.

Another stroke in favor of the exploitation of the picture was made in the arrangements whereby a photoplay magazine, read by screen patrons, will publish the story concurrent with the episodes as released. This, it is said, will bring thousands of newsdealers into the scheme of exploitation.

Boon to Exhibitors

The house organ is the culmination of a conference held by M. H. Hoffman, head of the Foursquare Exchanges, which are distributing the picture, and the publicity department of The Whartons, who are producing it.

Early showings are said to have proven that exhibitors have seized upon the picture as a means of advertising their houses as being the place where photodramas of unusual interest may be seen. In doing this the exhibitors have used many unique ways of calling the attention of the public to the fact that Chief Flynn's expose of the activities of the Imperial German Government may be seen in their house. The managers of the branches of the Foursquare Exchanges realize that other exhibitors who have booked the picture, but who have not yet shown the first episode, would appreciate the experience their fellow exhibitors have had with it. They write Mr. Hoffman deploring the fact that there was no medium by which every exhibitor in the country could know what other exhibitors were doing with "The Eagle's Eye."

The house organ followed as a matter of course. Staff correspondents of various trade journals and other allied interests connected with the motion picture industry have been secured as reporters and contributors to the new magazine. Each number will contain accounts of what exhibitors are doing in various parts of the country with "The Eagle's Eye," and also suggestions from the publicity department of The Whartons and the various branch managers of the Foursquare Exchanges.

Newsdealers Do Their Bit

Forty thousand newsdealers throughout the United States are expected to become on April 1 an active part of the organization engaged in helping exhibitors to sell "The Eagle's Eye."

They have been enrolled through an agreement completed between The Whartons, the producers of "The Eagle's Eye," and J. R. Quirk, publisher of Photoplay Magazine. This agreement gives Photoplay Magazine the rights of magazine publication to the novelization, by Courtney Ryley Cooper, of the story of "The Eagle's Eye."

Another feature of the arrangement is the claim that it will be the first time that any serial has been published, concurrent with the showing of the different episodes, the novelization of the story of each episode so scheduled that theatre patrons can read the story and see the picture, or visit the theatre and then read the story.

Marguerite Snow, with King Baggot in "The Eagle's Eye"

The merchandising value in the arrangement between The Whartons and Photoplay Magazine is that there will not be a theatre in the country that will not have the active co-operation of one or more local news dealers in advertising the serial and helping to give it strong local publicity.

The novelization of four episodes will be published each month in Photoplay. The story of the first four releases will appear in the May number, to be on sale throughout the United States on April 1. Prior to this, and as a part of its own merchandising campaign on the novelization, Photoplay will display half-sheet cards, announcing the forthcoming publication, on practically all newsstands.

Conservation Picture Next

The Whartons have made arrangements for producing a special picture for the State Conservation Committee in which will appear all the members of the company now working in "The Eagle's Eye."

The Conservation Committee has not prepared the scenario, but will leave it to The Whartons and members of "The Eagle's Eye" company to put over the idea they have in mind. King Baggot and Marguerite Snow, who are featured in "The Eagle's Eye," will have the leading parts in the Conservation picture. King Baggot, Jr., for whom there was no part in "The Eagle's Eye," will appear in the feature.

Both Miss Snow and Mr. Baggot have taken an active part in preparing the script. Members of the State Conservation Committee told The Whartons that they wanted anything that would show the public, especially the farmers of upper New York State, the necessity of saving coal, or any other fuel, in compact form. The suggestion is made that the public use wood in place of coal, or oil at any time heat is necessary.

The Whartons have planned about one thousand feet of film. Special attention has been given to scenes showing essential industries which have been closed down on account of lack of coal during the last shortage. Scenes of ships and locomotives receiving their supply of coal will be used to emphasize the great demand the war has made for fuel.

Several scenes showing the pleasure and enjoyment that can be gotten out of log fires will have prominent places in the picture. A romantic story has been prepared by the principals of "The Eagle's Eye" company, to make the Conservation picture interesting as well as instructive.

Metro Stars Leave for California

Harold Lockwood and Bert Lytell, with their entire companies, have gone to the Metro West Coast studio, where they will start work immediately on new pictures under the supervision of George D. Baker, manager of productions. The title of the Lockwood play is "Pals First," while Lytell's first under the Metro standard will be "The Trail of Yesterday."

"Treasure," the subject which Edith Storey will use following "The Claim," has already been placed in production at the Hollywood studio, while "The Night Riders," with Viola Dana as star, is nearing completion.

The working floor space at the studio has been augmented by 1,400 feet and a number of mammoth diffusers have been added to the lighting equipment. Joseph W. Engel, Metro's treasurer, is now in the West superintending the new arrangements.

Mary Miles Minter Busy on New Subject

"The Church Window Angel" is the title of the new Minter subject on which Mary Miles Minter is now at work. Jeanne Judson wrote the story and Karl Coolidge arranged it for the screen. Edward Sloman is directing.

Miss Minter plays the role of a girl raised in ignorance of the fact that she is an heiress. Alan Forrest and George Periolat will have important roles.

Merriment and Fear, as Characterized by Constance Talmadge and Alice Brady in Their Newest Productions for Select Pictures

Select Official Is Optimistic

S. E. Abel, Just Back from Long Trip, Reports General Conditions Improving—Finds Select Drive in Showing Results

SIDNEY E. ABEL, executive office representative for Select Pictures Corporation, has just wound up a three months' tour of the principal branches of the company and reports that general conditions in the motion picture field are not only assuming a normal state, but in many localities are even better than they have been for some months.

"Those exhibitors," he says, "who have anticipated for the future and are conducting their theatres on a scale proportionate with the great growth of the film industry are not complaining or crying poverty. They are sawing wood and taking advantage of every opportunity. They show the best pictures purchasable and charge an admission price commensurate with the value and quality of such productions.

"At every point, the biggest and best theatres are Select subscribers; for example, the Bijou Dream theatre and the Ascher Brothers' chain in Chicago, the Twelfth Street theatre in Kansas City, the American in Salt Lake City, the Coliseum and Liberty in Seattle, the Clemmer and the Liberty in Spokane, the Liberty and the Majestic in Portland, Oregon; the California in San Francisco, Tally's Broadway theatre in Los Angeles, and the Olympic in Pittsburg. These representative amusement-house proprietors establish at once the enterprise of Select exhibitors in these cities, and the superior quality of Select Pictures.

"In the many cities which I visited, scattered throughout the entire country, it was very evident to me that the policy previously announced by General Manager Arthur S. Kane, 'STARS TO SELL STARS,' is working admirably. The forty-two centimetre efforts put forth by the entire Select organization are reaping their rewards, and foretell a positive and lasting future, crowned with success."

"The Yellow Ticket" Has High Class Cast

WHAT Pathe maintains is one of the most distinguished casts ever seen in a motion picture production surrounds Fannie Ward in the forthcoming Pathe play, "The Yellow Ticket," adapted from the A. H. Woods stage success of the same name. In addition to Miss Ward are Milton Sills, Warner Oland, Armand Kalisz (who played Doucet in "Innocent"), J. H. Gilmour, Leon Bary, Helene Chadwick, Anna Lehr, Nicholas Dunaew, Edward Elkus, Charlie Jackson and Richard Thornton. Nearly all of these players have been starred in previous motion pictures. William Parke directed the production for Astra. The release date will be announced shortly.

As a stage play, "The Yellow Ticket" had a run of over a year at the Eltinge Theatre, in New York, and six months at the Powers Theatre, Chicago. It also played in nearly every city of the United States, a fact that greatly increases the box office value of the motion picture production. The play was written by Michael Morton and at the time of its presentation was described as "a drastic, dramatic indictment of deplorable conditions existing today, fearless in its inception, ruthless in its realism and universal in its appeal."

Illustrative of the way in which the new Pathe Plays are making good is the word just received from California that the Turner & Dahnken circuit have booked them for their entire ten houses. This is one of the biggest circuits of high class houses on the Pacific Coast. It includes houses in San Francisco, Oakland, Sacramento, San Jose, Stockton, Alameda, Berkeley and Watsonville.

Twelfth Chapter of Jaxon Serial Completed

The entire gamut of German spy activities in the United States is said to be run in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," the Jaxon patriotic serial. Each of the twelve episodes presents one or more phases of the attempts of enemy agents to hamper America's participation in the war. The innovation of condensing the action usually found in a two-reel episode into a single-reel chapter is proving popular, according to reports from exhibitors to General Film Company. The twelfth episode, which has just been completed, ends the story with a climax showing the complete breakdown of the Hun spy system in the United States.

Miss Young Stickler for Elaborateness

The Clara Kimball Young studio in New Rochelle has been housing one of the most elaborate dwelling interiors ever shown in Pictures, according to Select Pictures' publicity department. It will furnish the background for a number of scenes in Miss Young's new Select production, "The Reason Why," which is now in the process of making, and in careful attention to detail, lavish disregard of expense and a fine sense of harmony values, is said to be a splendid example of what may be accomplished in high-grade motion picture production.

Billie Rhodes Under Strand Contract

The Southern California Producing Company of Los Angeles, which makes the Strand-Mutual comedies, declared this week that the recent announcement to the effect that Billie Rhodes would be leading woman for William Parsons in his comedies for Goldwyn release was premature. Scott Sidney of the Southern California Company informs MOTION PICTURE NEWS that Miss Rhodes is under contract to appear in Strand-Mutual comedies, and therefore cannot appear with Parsons.

It is understood Miss Rhodes was in two Parsons pictures before she signed the Strand-Mutual contract.

Vitagraph Names Big Vs to May

The following list of Big V Comedy releases for the months of March and April is given out by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company: March 4, "Jumping Jacks and Jailbirds;" March 11, "Meddlers and Moonshiners;" March 18, "Tramps and Traitors;" March 25, "Stripes and Stumbles;" April 1, "Sleuths and Slickers;" April 8, "Rummies and Razors;" April 15, "Counts and No Counts;" April 22, "Whistles and Windows;" April 29, "Flirts and Fakers."

Montgomery and Rock are featured in the first picture listed, while Lawrence Semon is the star of the second. The two companies, one of which is directed by Semon and the other by J. A. Howe, alternate on the list.

Triangle Begins Work on "Heritage"

E. Mason Hopper, Triangle director, has begun work on a screen drama written by Lillian Ducey, the working title of which is "Heritage." In the cast are Jack Richardson, Irene Hunt, Darrell Foss, Wilbur Higbee, Walter Whitman, Walter Perry, twelve-year-old Burwell Hamrick and little Frankie Lee, who appeared for the first time with Roy Stewart in "Boss of the Lazy Y."

"Heritage" is said to be a transcontinental drama, whose action starts in the reconstruction period, when many scions of proud old Southern families found themselves without resources. Then the action jumps to California in the days of the gold rush, and depicts the struggles of the hero as a prospector.

Jack Richardson and Irene Hunt are both required to play dual roles, first as lovers who are separated by circumstances and later as the son and daughter of those sweethearts.

Biograph Studio Hums with Fox Activity

William Fox activities in the Biograph studios, New York City, have given that picture-making building the busiest appearance in its history, onlookers report. R. A. Walsh's drama, "Woman and the Law," with sets which have been constructed lately for the prison scenes, the lavish sets which Director Stanton had put up for scenes in the William Farnum de luxe production, "Rough and Ready," and several sets which have been prepared to facilitate the completion of the as yet unnamed vehicle of the Fox "Baby Grands," Jane and Katherine Lee, have crowded the studio to its capacity.

Director Richard Stanton has installed a profusion of fountains and plants to lend reality to his conservatory and ballroom interiors.

Ora Carew to Appear in Pathe Serial

Ora Carew, who has been appearing in Keystone and Mack Sennett comedies, has been engaged by the Diando Film Company to appear in a fifteen-episode serial which will be released by Pathe.

Three Plays Completed by Ned Finley

Ned Finley, now at the head of his own producing company, has returned to New York from the South following the completion of his first three releases. These are two-part dramas of the outdoors and fighting type, like those in which he appeared during his Vitagraph days. The subjects are "The Return of O'Garry," in which Finley plays again his Northwest Mounted Police role; "The Raiders of Sunset Gap," a mountain thriller, and "Mountain Law," a moonshiner story. After a short rest in New York Mr. Finley and his company expect to return to Bat Cave, N. C., to make additional pictures for release by General Film Company.

"Spectacle Day Past"—Laemmle

Universal Head Endorses Recent Statement of Wm. A. Brady on Big Salaries and Urges Further Economy

IN a statement just made public by Carl Laemmle, head of the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, William A. Brady is heartily congratulated for the stand he has taken on studio waste and high salaried stars, as expressed in the interview which the retiring president of the World Film Corporation recently gave to MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

"It was with intense interest that I read Mr. Brady's statement in the February 16 issue of MOTION PICTURE NEWS," said Mr. Laemmle. "Every one who has the welfare of this great old industry at heart owes him a vote of thanks.

"At the same time, I am surprised to find that Mr. Brady did not touch upon the equally important problems of waste in production costs and in business organization. It may be that he had the latter in mind at the time he gave out his interview, but it seems clear to me that he has not yet grasped the importance of conservation in production costs, since he mentions, in the advertising section of the same issue which contained his views, the fact that he is shortly to market independently a picture that has already cost him more than $100,000. This, although one more reel of the production still remains to be completed!

"Now, waste, to me," said the Universal official, "is represented just as surely by the needlessly costly production as by the needlessly costly star. Both burn money up. In my recent statement in MOTION PICTURE NEWS I emphatically pointed out that the day of the spectacle is waning—at least, it will not be profitable for the manufacturer to produce them for the next few years. I say again, and with increased emphasis, that the exhibitor cannot afford to book pictures which represent a terrific outlay. The reason is that the rentals asked for these features are absolutely prohibitive. Those few showmen who, by a superior brand of salesmanship, are induced to pay the rentals demanded are absolutely oversold in nine cases out of ten. Sooner or later, film producers will have to get away from the idea that the prices obtained for first-run showings on Broadway, New York, represent the prices that can be obtained from first-run accounts the country over.

"Our organization was the laughing stock of the trade when, two years ago, Bluebird came out with its policy, 'The Play's the Thing.' If you look through the trade papers of that time you will find that practically every film head promptly issued announcements that such a policy was merely the subterfuge of a company that lacked stars or that was too blamed stingy to pay them the salaries demanded. You will also find that announcements of million and half-million dollar productions were almost common, while pictures costing as little as one hundred thousand dollars were mentioned apologetically. Soothing as the Balm of Gilead to me today is the manner in which the film magnates are now chiming in with their 'You bet it is!' when 'The Play's the Thing' is mentioned.

Mutual Takes Old Prints Off the Market

Following out President John R. Freuler's announced policy of "perfect prints," the Mutual Film Corporation has taken off the market and withdrawn from branch circulation all old subjects beyond a decidedly recent date. This is a move for the elimination of film which does not present the highest and most modern entertainment values to the public.

Make That Donkey Look Pleasant! The "still" Cameraman Wants to Catch a Family Group of the Ned Finley Company on Location, Making "The Return of O'Garry," for Release Through General Film

Goldwyn Reaches Scandinavia

Contracts Also Signed for Part of South America—Teutonic Countries and Russia Will Soon Be Only Open Spots

ARRANGEMENTS for the distribution of Goldwyn Pictures in all of the world's habitable corners go on apace. During the week distribution contracts have been signed with John Olsen & Company, one of the greatest cinema firms in Scanninavia, for the releasing of Goldwyn Pictures in Sweden, Norway and Denmark. The Olsen organization has its headquarters in Copenhagen, dominating the Northern European lands.

Similar contracts are about to be signed with other large organizations for the distribution of Goldwyn Pictures in Italy, Spain and France. In its present state, Russia's disorganization has brought the film industry to a standstill in that country. Until the end of the war Goldwyn's only open spots will be the lands of the Teutonic Allies and Russia.

Distribution contracts were also signed last week by Goldwyn with the Co-operative Film Corporation of New York for the releasing of its productions in Chile, Bolivia, Peru and Ecuador. This organization controls a number of the largest theatres in those four South American countries. These contracts were signed through Arthur Ziehm of Goldwyn's export department.

That Goldwyn is becoming increasingly active in reaching out for the world markets, as well as for the expansion of its

At Last! A Close-up of Madge Kennedy's Wonderful Eyes. She Uses Them in Goldwyn's "The Danger Game"

North American business, is indicated by the fact that within three weeks it has announced the consummation of plans for releasing its productions in Australia through J. C. Williamson Films, Ltd.; in New Zealand and Tasmania through the New Zealand Picture Supplies, Ltd.; in South Africa through the all-important South African Film Trust, which absolutely controls all African territory south of the Equator; for India and Burmah through K. D. & Brothers; for Argentine Republic and Uruguay through Messrs. Saenz & Gonzales; for Porto Rico and San Domingo through Agencia General Cinematografica.

Hodkinson Plan Begins to Blossom Out

W. W. HODKINSON announced this week through his home office, 527 Fifth avenue, New York, that the first solid foundation stones of his new structure, the Hodkinson plan, are now appearing above the surface.

The announcement followed the statement that Eugene Roth, of San Francisco, has become one of the co-partners in the Hodkinson plan, which, it is expected by its originator, will eventually circle the United States in a distributing system controlled by the exhibitor.

Exhibitor Roth's allegiance to the Hodkinson plan comes close upon the heels of the acquisition to the idea of Greves and Ellison, of Denver, whose activities will be centred mainly in the territory included in Colorado, Utah, Wyoming and New Mexico. By virtue of this arrangement Hodkinson service will be installed, it is said, in the best houses of Denver and surrounding territory. The Salt Lake section of the West, it is also announced, has been likewise "tied in," but Mr. Hodkinson has not disclosed his completed arrangements.

The same conditions are said to prevail in Indiana, which is lined up and waiting upon Mr. Hodkinson's return from the West.

Through Mr. Roth's connection with the plan, the California Theatre in San Francisco will be the home of presentations of Hodkinson Service on the coast. Exhibitor Roth's sphere of influence, as far as the plan is concerned, will centre about northern California, it is shown.

The home office reported this week that the first section of Hodkinson Service, consisting of Paralta Plays, is meeting with favor throughout the country.

Liquid Fire is Shown in U. Current Events

What Universal claims as probably the greatest news scoop since the showing of the arrival abroad of our first foreign contingent, is contained in the liquid fire films presented in Universal Current Events No. 42. These pictures are claimed to be exclusive with this news reel and show, for the first time, the use of this invention as a weapon of war. The picture was made by the military cameramen under the supervision of the United States Government and although issued as an official U. S. war film by the Committee on Public Information through the American Red Cross, it will be shown only in Universal Current Events No. 42.

Views of the parade of the 10,000 boys from the training camp at Yaphank, L. I., are shown in this issue of Current Events. The pictures were filmed while the lads were marching down Fifth avenue in the face of a driving snowstorm.

Harold MacGrath Story for Williams-Darmond

One of Harold MacGrath's best known stories, "The Girl in His House," will be the next Blue Ribbon feature for Earle Williams and Grace Darmond, according to an announcement made by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company. Williams and Miss Darmond are now engaged, under the direction of Tom Mills, in the production of "Sealed Lips," and are expected to complete it shortly. Plans are already made for them to start on "The Girl in His House," which, when finished, will be the third picture made by them since they went to the Hollywood studio of Vitagraph.

First National's New Exchange Opened

Work has just been completed upon the offices of the First National Exchange, Inc., at 509 Fifth avenue, New York, and the entire force, from R. H. Clark, treasurer, and Carey Wilson, manager, down to the assistant office boy, is now located in permanent quarters, where the product of the First National can be handled to the best advantage.

Ince Stars Keep Cameras Busy

The Thomas H. Ince stars, presented in Paramount pictures, are making the life of the cameramen one continual round of turning the crank.

Enid Bennett has completed "The Greatest Show On Earth," to follow "Naughty, Naughty!" The newest picture is woven about that magnetic institution, the circus. Jerome Storm directed, under Mr. Ince's supervision.

Charles Ray is making a feature requiring snow scenes, and a "location" jaunt was taken to Missoula, Mont., for the proper atmosphere. Irvin Willat is directing and Doris Lee has the feminine lead.

Dorothy Dalton, whose most recent picture, "Love Me," was released March 11, has completed "Tyrant Fear," and is ready for her next scenario. As recreation between "films" she went to San Francisco.

Dorothy Dalton, Ince-Paramount Star

Vitagraph Starts Five Productions

Five feature companies have started work for Vitagraph on new productions, the most of which probably will be listed on the May schedule of Blue Ribbon releases. Two of the companies are at work at the studio at Hollywood, Cal., and the other three are producing at the Vitagraph plant in Brooklyn.

Earle Williams and Grace Darmond, under the direction of Tom Mills, are working in the West on a drama, the title of which is "Sealed Lips."

Alice Joyce, who recently completed "The Song of the Soul," started work under direction of Tom Terriss in "The Business of Life," a screen version of the Robert W. Chambers book of the same name.

Harry Morey and Florence Deshon are engaged in the making of a feature to be titled "The Square Deal," under direction of Paul Scardon.

Corinne Griffith, who was engaged for two months with Webster Campbell and Marc MacDermott in making "New York, or Danger Within," the official picture which is to show how Governor Whitman and his aides have shielded New York from spies and plotters, have started work in "The Clutch of Circumstances," under direction of John Robertson.

Gladys Leslie and Edward Earle, recently featured in Vitagraph comedies, have been teamed by President Smith, and are working under direction of William P. S. Earle in "Ann Acushla," an Irish romance. President Albert E. Smith states that the Leslie-Earle starring combination will be continued permanently.

Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman are working at the Western studio under the direction of William Wolbert in "The Girl From Beyond," and are shortly to start on "The Son of Kazan," a story by Oliver Curwood which appeared in The Red Book.

Grace Darmond, Vitagraph Player

Smart Looks Back on Old Days

Compares Them with the Present and Recent Reorganization of World Production Department—Cites Near Perfection

"The Cross Bearer," with Montagu Love and Jeanne Eagels, is a World Picture for April

"My recent meeting with Lee Dougherty, film editor par excellence," said William Smart, technical director of World Pictures, "who has again become an associate of mine, recalls my former days with D. W. Griffith at the old Biograph studio on Fourteenth street. When I consider for a moment the amount of lost motion expended in those days and compare the present organized studio of World Pictures, I wonder how we ever succeeded in producing a picture. The labor that was expended and the useless and aimless efforts lavished, for instance, upon 'Judith of Bethulia,' today seem almost criminal.

"From my experience of nine years with the Biograph previous to my joining the World Corporation, I became strongly imbued with the belief that the manufacture of the motion picture could be standardized as every other commercial product has been. This, of course, is heresy, but the admission by several large film corporations of the precarious condition existent is striking confirmation of my statement.

"The technical department of the World studio has been re-organized on the principle of producing the most effective pictures with the smallest outlay and in the shortest time compatible with our ideals of box-office winners. From the time that the O. K. has been placed upon a scenario by the editor and handed to the technical director, the technical department is in entire charge of preparing the sets for the director of the picture. This novel division of responsibility permits the director to concentrate upon the story, continuity, acting and any special effects which he wishes to incorporate. Not only does it enable both of us to accomplish more, but saves the interminable hair-pulling by an over-worked man. The various heads of the departments, such as the costumer, sculptor, electrician, scene painter, interior decorator, confer with me upon the requirements of their respective branches. A date is named for the shooting of each scene, and these several heads are empowered with the responsibility of having their respective assignments prepared on time. In other words, there is not any diffusion of authority, but each one is acquainted with his work.

"As a result of this system we have practically eliminated any waste of time by highly paid stars and directors because the sets of their pictures have not been completed by the property men and carpenters. No longer is the shooting of a picture set for nine o'clock and actual work commenced at eleven."

Linder Expected Here in April or May

MAX LINDER, the French comedian, whose Essanay contract in this country was terminated by illness, and whose recovery since his withdrawal from the States has been announced, is expected to return to the United States in April or May, it was announced this week by T. E. Letendre.

The announcement carries the news that the comedian intends to make a new series of pictures, for which he will engage the support of a capable company. In all probability, the stories will be prepared by Tom Bret, the scenario and title writer.

At the time M. Linder was signed by George K. Spoor of Essanay, to make a series of twelve comedies for that company, much publicity was given his coming here. His first production was "Max Comes Across." This picture was made in Chicago.

Satisfied that he has now so fully recovered his health and strength as to permit him to resume active studio work, M. Linder has retained the services of Thaddee E. Letendre, Times building, New York, as his American representative, and has signified his intention of returning here in a month or two. It is not yet decided whether he will appear under the auspices of a producing organization or make his own productions for distributior through a large releasing syndicate.

Chinese Labor Corp. in Travel Film

The 108th release of the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travel Pictures on March 4 contains incidents of Burton Holmes' travels, experienced in China last Summer, when that country sent her first 100,000 men to the front. The Chinese Labor Corps is a splendid body of men, the pick of the young manhood of Northern China, uniformed and drilled by British officers, and have been sent to build and dig in France and Flanders.

Metro Filming Roberts Story

Bushman and Bayne Starred in "Breaking Into Eden," from Author's Story, "With Neatness and Dispatch"

METRO has begun the production of "Breaking Into Eden," an All-Star series picture in which Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne will be starred, under the direction of Will S. Davis. It will be recalled that Mr. Davis guided these same stars in "Under Suspicion," a recent release, and "The Brass Check," just completed.

"Breaking Into Eden" is a screen version of "With Neatness and Dispatch," a story by Kenneth L. Roberts, published in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post. June Mathis and Luther Reed, of the Metro Eastern scenario staff, prepared the continuity from Roberts' original story. This is the second of this author's stories to be picturized by Metro, the first being "Good Will and Almond Shells," which will be released under the title "The Shell Game," with Emmy Wehlen as the star.

Francis X. Bushman plays Paul Donaldson, nephew of Police Commissioner Burgess, a virile American who is mistaken by a girl for "Slim" Keegan, a crook. Beverly Bayne has the role of Geraldine Ames the girl who mistakes Paul for the crook. The story is characterized as a stirring romance replete with mystery, surprise and adventure.

An all-star cast will support Bushman and Bayne in "Breaking Into Eden." Among those who have been engaged are Frank Currier as Police Commissioner Burgess, Hugh Jeffrey as Inspector Corcoran and Ricca Allen as Aunt Felicia Judson. Sylvia Arnold, the Newark society girl, who made her screen debut with Bushman and Bayne in "Red, White and Blue Blood," is cast as Mary Ames, a sister of Geraldine (played by Miss Bayne). James J. Dunne has returned to Director Davis' staff as his assistant in the production of Metro All-Star Series pictures.

Francis X. Bushman Is One-Half of the Starring Duo of Metro's "The Brass Check"

Triangle Production Work Sets Good Pace

RECENT rainstorms in Southern California did not, apparently, impede progress at Culver City for, with most of the exteriors of current productions "shot," the companies continued their work without interruption in the glass studios.

During the past week four feature pictures have been completed, and as many new stories put under production with carefully selected casts. There are now eight companies engaged with their respective features and comedies, while Directors Harry Edwards, William Beaudine and Gilbert P. Hamilton are awaiting new subjects.

A romance of the Canadian northwest, a "western thriller," two society dramas and a one-reel comedy comprise the pictures now in the editing department. "The Law of the Great Northwest," by Ralph Westfall, former member of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police, who recently signed with the Triangle scenario staff features Margery Wilson, who played the title role in another Triangle northwestern drama, "Wild Sumac." William V. Mong, Eugene Corey, Louis Durham, Will Jeffries and William Dyer are also cast in this production, which Raymond Wells directed.

Roy Stewart's latest vehicle is "Boss of the Lazy Y," a screen adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of the same title, which was made under the direction of Cliff Smith. Josie Sedgwick, Walt Whitman, William Ellingford, Aaron Edwards, Graham Pette and five-year-old Frankie Lee are included in the supporting cast.

"Another Foolish Virgin," from W. Carey Wonderley's story of the same name, a drama of life in Greenwich Village featuring Alma Rubens as an unsophisticated song writer of the Bohemian set, was directed by E. Mason Hopper. Texas Guinan, Joe Bennett and Lee Hill have leading roles.

"The Vortex," new society drama, combines romance and mystery, and numbers in the supporting cast Joe King, last seen with Olive Thomas in "Heiress for a Day;" Mary Warren, who was featured in "The Sea Panther" with William Desmond; Wilbur Higbee, Eugene Burr, George Hernandez, Myrtle Rishell, and R. P. Thomson. Gilbert P. Hamilton is credited with the direction.

Jack Livingston, Jack Richardson, Lillian West, Mae Walters and Ruth Langston appear in the one-reel comedy, "Many Happy Returns," which H. Edwards directed.

Eugenie Forde in Mutual-Strand Comedies

Eugenie Ford is supporting Billie Rhodes in the series of one-reel Mutual-Strand comedies. Miss Forde's first appearance will be in "Finishing Mary," the release of March 12.

Pathe West Coast Plant Hums

Reports from Pathe's West Coast plant disclose important developments at the studio where scenes for Fannie Ward's "A Japanese Nightingale" are progressing rapidly under direction of George Fitzmaurice; Bryant Washburn having finished George Randolph Chester's story, "Twenty-One," is already well under way on a new Pathe play; Frank Keenan is working in Sir Henry Irving's "The Bells," and Robert Thornby is directing Bessie Love in "A Little Sister of Everybody," by William Addison Lathrop.

In "Twenty-One" Bryant Washburn plays the dual part of a small-town prize-fighter and the "sweet boy" of a sheltered home who has ambitions to get away from the firmly tied apron-strings of a domineering aunt.

Frank Keenan is going to try a new role in the story which he will do following "The Bells." It is a comedy, but not a comedy of comedians. Mr. Keenan, whose name has been largely linked with serious drama, believes that a new note can be struck in pictures by playing this part just as he believes such a story should be presented on the screen. It will, no doubt, be an interesting thing to see a comedy in which not a single character is a comedian in the accepted sense of the term.

The Rose Endicott book on which Bessie Love will start, when "A Little Sister of Everybody" is completed, is the story of a little girl who preaches the doctrine of "look up." There is a forest fire and a terrific storm.

William S. Hart Begins New Story

The negative of "The Tiger Man," a Thomas H. Ince production for Artcraft, starring William S. Hart, which has just been completed, is being cut and titled, and this photoplay will be released after "Blue Blazes Rawden." Hart is now at work on a new Artcraft picture in which he will be presented by Thomas H. Ince in the role of a complete egotist.

The scenario was written by J. G. Hawks, and the production was directed by Hart, under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince. Jane Novak plays the leading feminine role.

Claire Anderson, Now in Triangle Dramas

Productions in Making at Lasky Studios

At the 56th street studios of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation Pauline Frederick has begun the production of a screen version of "Fedora," another Bernhardt role, to follow "The Resurrection." Victorien Sardou wrote "Fedora," one of the best known plays in the history of the drama, which the interpretations by Bernhardt and Fanny Davenport immortalized.

Marguerite Clark is working on interiors for "Rich Man, Poor Man," from the George Broadhurst play, which was adapted from the novel by Maximilian Foster. It is a very human play, as Broadhurst productions usually are, and Director J. Searle Dawley is making the photoplay a dramatic offering, though there are many natural situations that will call forth smiles, it is said. The humble boarding house, with its ever changing human derelicts on the sea of life, the scenes of which are being taken this week, are calculated to arouse pathos as well as laughter.

Billie Burke has finished "Let's Get a Divorce," under the direction of Charles Giblyn, from the story of Anita Loos and John Emerson. The general ensemble of this production is expected to arouse admiration by reason of the Florida exteriors, the costumes and appointments. This is the first of the series of special stories to be written for Paramount stars by Anita Loos and John Emerson.

Over at the Fort Lee, N. J., sudios Director Maurice Tourneur is still working on the interiors for "A Doll's House," the new Elsie Ferguson production for Artcraft release. The cast supporting Miss Ferguson includes H. E. Herbert, Alex. K. Shannon, Ethel G. Terry, William Warren Cook, Zelda Crosby, S. A. Anderson and the four children, Tula Belle, Ivy Ward, Douglas Redmond and Charles Crompton.

"Cleopatra" Draws Big Money

The Fox Film Corporation points to figures in substantiation of its claims for "Cleopatra," the Theda Bara Super Production, as a money winner. Some of the reports received are: Belasco, Washington, D. C., $17,709 in one week; Teck, Buffalo, N. Y., $17,328 in one week; Washington, Detroit, Mich., $31,063.75 in three weeks; Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles, Cal., $28,224.50 in three weeks; Grand, Columbus, O., $12,991.75 in twelve days; Van Curler, Schenectady, N. Y., $1,910 in two days; Richardson, Oswego, N. Y., $1,835.25 in two days; Lyric, Allentown, Pa., $1,166.75 in one day.

Title of Glaum-Paralta Play Changed Again

Yet another change has been made in the title of Louise Glaum's first Paralta play. Originally called "Intelligence," the name was changed to "The Iron Beast." This did not please the Paralta executives and the title "An Alien Enemy" has now been decided upon.

"An Alien Enemy" is by Monte M. Katterjohn and the production is being staged under the direction of Wallace Worsley.

Ralph Ince Directs Petrova New Picture

Ralph Ince, Directing One Petrova Picture, Will Also Direct Another

ANNOUNCEMENT was made this week of the consummation of a contract whereby the screen rights to Gertrude Atherton's novel, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times," have been secured by the Petrova Picture Company. It will supply the subject in which Madame Olga Petrova will be presented at the head of her own company following her appearance in "The Great Star," now being directed by Ralph Ince.

Director Ince, according to a later announcement from Frederick L. Collins, president of the Petrova Picture Company, will also direct the star in "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times."

Mary Murillo, who has been responsible for innumerable screen successes of the past year, has been engaged to make the adaptation of Gertrude Atherton's novel in proper scenario form and is now at work remodeling the story to fit the distinctive personality of the Polish artiste.

The notable trio of craftsmen who will enter into the production of Madame Petrova's fifth starring vehicle augurs well for the success of the film version of "Patience Sparhawk," inasmuch as Gertrude Atherton is conceded to be one of the foremost writers of the present day, Miss Murillo is one of the most brilliant scenario builders yet unearthed among the many writers for the screen, and Ralph Ince stands as a peculiarly dominant figure in the field of photoplay production.

Mr. Ince is now rapidly completing the final scenes for "The Great Star," and work will be started on "Patience Sparhawk," under his direction within the next two weeks at the Petrova studios.

Edwin Carewe Directs Lytell for Metro

EDWIN CAREWE, director of a long list of Metro's pictures, returns to the firm's directorial staff to guide Bert Lytell, the new Metro star, in his initial All-Star Series picture under the parrot trademark.

The Metro director returns "home" after producing a feature picture starring Mary Garden. Just previous to making the Garden production he directed Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne in "The Voice of Conscience," written by his brother, Finis Fox. Among his other Metro productions have been "The Barricade," "The Sunbeam," "The Dawn of Love" and "God's Half Acre," with Mabel Taliaferro; "Destiny, or the Soul of a Woman," and "The House of Tears," with Emily Stevens; "The Final Judgment" and "Her Greatest Power," with Ethel Barrymore; "The Trail of a Shadow," with Emmy Wehlen, and "Their Compact," with Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne.

Carewe obtains his screen results by means of direct methods. His slogan is "simplicity." He believes in the combined appeal of the emotions and the intelligence, and never directs a picture in which both of these elements are not to be found in almost equal proportions. His most representative work has been for Metro, although his screen debut was made with the Lubin Company.

Carewe will be assisted in the direction of Bert Lytell by Finis Fox, his brother. Fox was formerly a promoter of business interests in Louisville, Ky., and first became interested in motion pictures as a writer. He was the author of "The Jury of Fate," of which Mabel Taliaferro was the star.

"Hearts or Diamonds" Is Russell's First

THE working title of the first picture of the new William Russell Productions organization, on which William Russell, recently arrived in southern California from New York, has already started work, is "Hearts and Diamonds." It takes its name, which also is the title of the original story by William Hamilton Osborne, from that of the principal female character—a fascinating young woman half buried in diamonds, that kind hearts are more than tiaras and true love more desirable than tainted millions.

Mr. Osborne's story is said to be one of the strongest the lawyer-author-playwright ever wrote. It deals with the efforts of a pair of South African crooks, Adrian Gascoyne and his wife, to win a fortune in America out of the old and exploded crucible scheme of making diamonds. The Gascoynes have a charming daughter, Adrienne, and with her a famous New York diamond collector, Larry Hanrahan, falls in love. What happens when the scheme of the thieves to rob Hanrahan fails through his discovery that Adrienne is not the daughter of Gascoyne but scion of a distinguished family, who has been kidnapped, furnishes the climax of the story.

The play is said to be tense with strong situations, working up to a climax seldom duplicated on the screen for sensationalism.

Bluebird Changes Title of New Subject

BLUEBIRD makes the announcement that its board of judges has changed the title of the next Ruth Clifford-Monroe Salisbury subject from "Heart of the Desert" to "The Red, Red Heart." It was under the former title that the story, written by Honore Willsie, appeared in book form. The work of adapting it for the screen was entrusted to Bess Meredyth, and the direction to Wilfred Lucas.

Produced upon the great Mojave Desert, "The Red, Red Heart" is said to be one of the most picturesque and scenically beautiful features released by Bluebird in months. Aside from the fact that it affords Ruth Clifford a sympathetic role, the picture also allows Monroe Salisbury to resume his favorite role—that of an Indian. It will be remembered that Salisbury's first appearance in Bluebird pictures was in the characterization of a half-breed in "The Savage." The performance he gave to that individual elevated him to the position of co-star with Miss Clifford.

In "The Red, Red Heart," Salisbury appears as Kut-Le, the half-Apache, half-Pueblo Indian, who returns to his beloved desert after graduating with high honors at Yale. An important engineering project is entrusted to him and the Indian is on the road to success when Rhoda Tuttle, apparently a hopeless invalid, visits some friends living on the edge of the desert, in hope of recuperating. With her is her fiance, John De Witt. Rhoda meets Kut-Le and finds him fascinating. On his part, the Indian realizes that the girl is simply a victim of melancholia and plans a drastic cure. He tells Rhoda that in the desert lies her salvation and that after he has helped restore her health, he intends to marry her. The subsequent adventures are said to be exciting in the extreme.

"The Red, Red Heart" will be released April 8. The supporting cast includes Val Paul as Jack Newman; Gretchen Lederer as Mrs. Newman; Allen Sears, as John De Witt and Monte Blue as Billy Porter.

"Stolen Orders" Claims All-Star Cast

IN "Stolen Orders," William A. Brady's photoplay based upon the Drury Lane melodramatic spectacle, "Sealed Orders," a real all-star cast will be seen. For with the idea of doing full justice to a story said to be rich in dramatic action and suspense and having unusual pictorial values, Mr. Brady enlisted the services of Kitty Gordon, Montagu Love, June Elvidge, Carlyle Blackwell, Madge Evans and George McQuarrie to head a cast which contains many other well-known players, several of whom have had numerous leading roles.

"Stolen Orders" will be the first of the big feature productions sponsored by Mr. Brady and made under his personal supervision.

The scene of the story is laid in London, Paris and America—America at the outbreak of the great war. Kitty Gordon as the wife of an admiral of the American Navy has a role in which she is said to add another to her long list of remarkably successful screen personations. Playing opposite her as a sinister figure whose every action is directed and dominated by Wilhelmstrasse, is Montagu Love, and his is a character which promises much for those interested in seeing the devious ways in which the German secret agents in this country accomplish their ends. June Elvidge appears as the daughter of this arch spy, as does little Madge Evans. Carlyle Blackwell, as a young American naval officer, has a romantic role in which his admirers will like him best, and George McQuarrie is admirably cast as the American admiral.

The production is being directed by Harley Knoles and William A. Brady.

Select Gets Two Recent Stage Successes

AMONG forthcoming Select Picture productions will be seen two well known stage successes of the present season. They are "De Luxe Annie" and "Good Night, Paul," and will present as their respective stars Norma and Constance Talmadge.

"De Luxe Annie" was written by Scammon Lockwood and was published as a two-part serial in the Saturday Evening Post. Its dramatic presentation was under the auspices of Arthur Hammerstein. Miss Talmadge is said to have paid a record figure for the screen rights. In the New York production, Jane Grey was featured in the title role, and Vincent Serrano played opposite her. Miss Talmadge will of course portray Annie herself, and her lead will be [illegible]. The scenario of "De Luxe Annie" is being prepared for Norma Talmadge by [illegible].

The filming of "Good Night, Paul," in which Lewis J. Selznick will present Constance Talmadge, has already been begun at Hollywood. This is the comedy by Roland Oliver, who wrote "The Three Twins," in which Ralph Hertz appeared. The story of "Good Night, Paul," centres about the mix up in husbands, which comes when Paul Boudeaux, in financial difficulties along with his partner, Richard Landers, pretends he is married and presents his partner's wife as Mrs. Boudeaux in order to secure a gift of money from his uncle, Batiste. Instead of making the donation and leaving forthwith, the uncle decides to stay on for a month. The ensuing complications provide difficulties which are said to be highly farcical.

R. A. Walsh Takes a Rest

"Woman and the Law" having been completed, R. A. Walsh, who wrote and staged that production for William Fox, has gone away for a rest, the Fox Corporation announces.

Charlie Chaplin Played Host Recently to About Forty Sailors, at His Hollywood Studio, Where He Cut Capers for First National Distribution

George D. Baker Goes to Coast for Metro

George D. Baker has left New York for Hollywood, Cal., to take charge of Metro's West Coast studio in the capacity of manager of productions. All productions made in the West will be under Mr. Baker's supervision, as all productions made in the East are under the supervision of Maxwell Karger. Mr. Baker will exercise final judgment on the stories chosen for the stars, in addition to supervising all activities in connection with the output of the studio. He will be personally responsible for the quality of the Metro pictures made in the Hollywood studio.

With Mr. Baker goes his assistant, Charles Hunt, who has been associated with him during his entire experience with Metro. Mr. Hunt will be Mr. Baker's "general factotum" at the western plant, occupying much the same position that David Thompson, assistant to Maxwell Karger, occupies in the Eastern studio.

Metro Stars Lockwood in "Pals First"

Metro this week announced the acquisition of "Pals First," which was produced on the Broadway legitimate stage recently with Thomas Wise and William Courtenay, as a screen subject for Harold Lockwood. The picture will be a Metro All Star Series feature, it is said.

This is the second story by Francis Perry Elliott to be used as a play for Lockwood, the first being "Love Me for Myself Alone," which was released under the title "The Square Deceiver." Lee Wilson Dodd wrote the stage version of "Pals First" as a melodramatic comedy in a prologue and three acts.

Advance Offerings of the Programs

Max Linder, the Comedian, Plans Another Plunge Into Pictures, Health Permitting

"Shame" Gets Attention of Exhibitors

A keen display of interest on the part of exhibitors in all sections of the country is said to have followed General Film's recent announcement that it had undertaken national distribution of the John W. Noble feature production, "Shame," for the Duplex Films, Inc. Zena Keefe and Niles Welch are the stars of the feature which presents as its topic the unjust condemnation of innocent children for the indiscretions of their parents.

The argument which "Shame" presents for greater tolerance toward unfortunate children, General Film emphasizes, is handled in a discreet and dignified manner, although with great dramatic force, and has much commendation from exhibitors. War-time social conditions are also brought in by means of a prologue, without, however, touching upon any battle atmosphere. The rest of the story deals with strictly heart interest complications and is said to rise to melodramatic climaxes.

June Caprice Has Been Two Years with Fox

With the release on April 7 of "A Camouflage Kiss," the William Fox Super Feature directed by Harry Millarde, June Caprice will have spent just two years with Fox productions. Her first Fox picture, "Caprice of the Mountains," was released April 7, 1916, and since then she has been seen in a long list of Fox productions.

Pathe Keeps Eye on Box Office

Cites Program for March 24 as Good Example of Spring Tonic—Variety Not Lacking in the Line-up

PATHE'S program for the week of March 24 is cited by that company as one of the most effective Spring tonics known to the motion picture industry. Among the stars are Irene Castle, Pearl White and Antonio Moreno. The line-up includes a feature, a serial, a comedy, a colored educational and Hearst-Pathe News.

Irene Castle is starred in "The Hillcrest Mystery," written by Ouida Bergere, directed by George Fitzmaurice and produced by Astra, with a cast including, in addition to Mrs. Castle, J. H. Gilmour, Ralph Kellard and Wyndham Standing.

Pearl White appears in the third episode of "The House of Hate" serial, under the title of "A Woman's Perfidy," with Antonio Moreno. This chapter is said to contain more mystery and action than the two preceding ones put together. In it Pearl White is thrown from a window of a building to the roof of a porch many feet below. This does not stop her; she keeps up her pursuit of the Hooded Terror, but he cleverly evades her. The players who figure in this episode include, in addition to Miss White and Mr. Moreno, Paul Clerget and Peggy Shaynor.

"Let's Go," is a one-reel Rolin-Lloyd comedy in which Harry Pollard and Bebe Daniels are seen, in amusing roles.

A Pathe colored educational and travel split reel is made up of "The Pest of Our Fruit Trees" and Picturesque France (Arcachon).

Hearst-Pathe News No. 26 and No. 27 round up this program.

Vitagraph Plans a Double-Treat Program

ACCORDING to an announcement by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, there is a double treat in store for exhibitors and their patrons the week of March 18. Vitagraph has fixed that date for the release of "An American Live Wire," a Blue Ribbon feature made from one of O. Henry's stories, with Earle Williams as the star.

Grace Darmond is featured with Mr. Williams in the production, which was directed by Tom Mills.

"An American Live Wire" is an adaptation from "The Lotus and the Bottle," one of the stories contained in the group of short stories which make up the volume entitled "Cabbages and Kings." It is the story of an active-minded American Consul in a little joke republic of the tropics, and shows Earle Williams in a series of exciting escapades, one of which is a long swim in the Pacific Ocean. Director Mills, it is said, has produced the atmosphere of the sun-baked land with great sincerity.

The play is said to be gripping from the first, dealing with the adventures of Willard Geddie (Earle Williams), who boasts of more family than fortune. He is very much in love with Ida Payne (Grace Darmond), and she with him. But Miss Payne's mother has other ambitions for her daughter and asks Geddie to forget all about Ida, declaring that it is at the girl's request. Geddie accepts his dismissal without any verification from the girl, and takes a job as Consul in Coralio. He undergoes an infatuation for a beautiful native girl and imagines he has forgotten all about Ida.

Sorceress in Barriscale Production

What Paralta Plays terms an interesting feature concerning the production of Bessie Barriscale's second Paralta play, "Within the Cup," which will be released shortly through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation, is the historical accuracy of an uncanny character, that of a sorceress known as "Tea Cup" Ann. The story deals with Washington Square, the artist section of New York City. A few years ago there really existed on the square an old and withered woman who frequented the popular cafes and read the fortunes of their patrons from the leaves in their tea cups, and she was a much sought character.

The Checkered Table Cloth Speaks As Loudly, But Not As Enchantingly, As Wallace McDonald to Pauline Starke in "Shoes That Danced," a Triangle Picture

Again Does Mary Pickford Evolve from Poverty to Affluence, in the Manner That Has Made Her Such a Favorite. This Time It Is in "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley," an Artcraft Picture

April Brings Shower of World-Pictures

A VERITABLE shower of worthy productions, judging by a thorough reading of the schedule prepared by World-Pictures, is promised exhibitors by that company in April.

Montagu Love comes first on the list in the World production of "The Cross Bearer," in which Mr. Love impersonates the character of Cardinal Mercier of Belgium. "The Cross Bearer's" release date was advanced two weeks to bring it to Easter Monday.

On April 8 "The Witch Woman," starring Ethel Clayton, will be released. Travers Vale directed the production, in which were Frank Mayo, John Adrizoni, Jack Drumier, Louise Vale and Robert Tansey in addition to Miss Clayton.

Alice Brady is scheduled for April 15 in "The Trap," the story of a fanatical fisherman's daughter, who is cast from her home for supposed wrongdoing. The story was written by Robert F. Hill and was directed by George Archainbaud.

Kitty Gordon in "The Devil's Dice" will make her appearance April 22. George Kelson directed this.

On April 29 the final release of the month will be presented. It is "The Leap to Fame," in which Carlyle Blackwell has the star role. Evelyn Greeley has the leading feminine role. Raymond Schrock wrote the story and Blackwell directed it. Muriel Ostriche and Alec B. Francis are included in the cast which includes several others well known to the screen.

Russian Picture Pathe Feature for 17th

PATHE'S feature release for the week of March 17 is a five-reel Russian picture in which Mozukin and Mme. Lesienko appear in the principal roles. "The Beggar Woman" is the title.

The story of this picture deals with a famous singer whose golden notes charm all Petrograd, and her love for Sergius, a poet, the literary lion of Russia who writes in verse of youth and love.

Just before their marriage the prima donna visits the home of a former member of the chorus whose child is sick. She herself is stricken with a mysterious illness. It is smallpox, and though she recovers she has lost her beauty forever. Because all the mirrors in the house have been removed, she does not know the terrible fact, but her heart is broken when she attempts to sing and finds that she has lost her voice.

The lover, who is not afraid of infection or even of death itself, when he looks upon the terribly scarred face which had once been so beautiful, cannot withhold a shudder and it is then that she learns that her last hope is gone. Thus after time has passed, in the snowy streets and avenues of the great city where once she had reigned a queen, the woman asks for alms. "Who knows but in the great beyond beauty again awaits her and happiness and love?" asks the author in a closing subtitle.

Paralta Changes Title of Glaum Picture

Announcement has just been made of a change in the title of the Paralta Play in which Miss Louise Glaum will soon make her debut as a star at the head of her own company. The picture, which has been advertised as "Intelligence," will be released through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation under the new title, "The Iron Beast."

Miss Glaum is now hard at work at the Paralta studios in California on this production, which will mark her initial appearance in Paralta Plays. It will take her from the vampire character, to which her screen work has been confined, and present her for the first time in the broad and unlimited scope of a dramatic actress.

Ray Picture a Study in Mental Suggestion

Charles Ray's next Paramount picture, "The Family Skeleton," released March 11, is said to be an interesting study in mental suggestion. Ray is seen as Billy Bates, a young man who inherits a large fortune through the death of his father.

Billy falls in love with Poppy Drayton, a beautiful young actress, as well as a very level-headed little person, and she correctly diagnoses his apparent shortcomings as the result of too much time and money lying heavily on his hands, which enables him to wrestle too frequently with the Demon Rum. She proceeds to make life interesting for the young man, and the calm sea of his life becomes a raging tornado.

"The Family Skeleton" teaches, it is said, a striking lesson in will power, in harmony with the ideas of modern thinkers and writers on psychology, and demonstrates that bad habits are merely little ruts in which we travel, and if we can be shaken to another path we will forget them in the different environments. The production was directed by Victor I. Schertzinger under the personal supervision of Thomas H. Ince.

Kate Price in Williams' "Sealed Lips"

In the Earle Williams feature, "Sealed Lips," now in course of production at Hollywood, Kate Price will again appear on the Vitagraph program. Miss Price for years was a featured player in Vitagraph comedies and is known by thousands for her part in these productions. Grace Darmond will play opposite Mr. Williams, with Kathleen Kirkham, Ruth Garden, Pat Moore and other well-known names completing the supporting cast.

"Ann's Finish" at Hand

"Ann's Finish," which American Film declares is one of Margarita Fischer's best comedy-dramas, has been scheduled for release March 11 by Mutual. Jack Mower is the leading man. Others cast are David Howard, John Gough, Robert Klein and Perry Banks.

An All-Star Cast Is Announced in William Fox's "The Blindness of Divorce," Staged by Frank Lloyd

William Fox Sets Standard Film Dates

FOLLOWING the release of "Woman and the Law" as a Standard production immediately after its run in New York, which began at the Lyric theatre, March 3, four other Standard productions will shortly be released by William Fox, it was announced this week.

Scheduled for release on March 24 is the William Farnum de luxe production, "Rough and Ready." Many of the scenes for this production were "shot" in the Adirondacks during the frigid wave that gripped the country and when "coalless Mondays" were the fashion.

"The Blindness of Divorce" is the Standard production set for release April 7. This has been termed a propaganda picture and one that will no doubt be a strong preachment on the evils of the present divorce system.

"The Soul of Buddha," a Theda Bara super production, is scheduled for release April 21. This is the play Miss Bara is said to have written herself on a train coming from the West. It is based on the death of Mata Hari, the French spy.

The tentative release for "Queen of the Sea," with Annette Kellermann, has been set for May 5. In magnificence of setting beautiful photographic effects, and dramatic interest, "Queen of the Sea" is said to excel "A Daughter of the Gods." Many of the scenes were made at Bar Harbor, Me., last summer, and society people took the liveliest interest in the activities of the motion picture stars.

Triangle Defends Program Film

Admits Helpfulness of Criticism, but Contends Both Sides Should be Heard—Cites Many Advantages of Program System

"IT seems to be the practice," said an official of Triangle last week, "of those who advocate open booking to attack the program system of distributing pictures."

Triangle, in this connection, thinks it unfair to attempt to walk rough-shod over one system to boost another, but admits that criticism is helpful in any industry if it is of the constructive sort.

"But," contends Triangle, "both sides of the question should be heard, and we know there is merit in program booking or it would not be used by exhibitors."

"First of all," said Triangle, "it must be admitted that an institution which has succeeded in gaining the confidence of exhibitors the country over, and in holding that confidence against competition, must have something in its product or service which is superior to that of those endeavoring to win away its business. Exhibitors these days are wide awake to all that is on the market, read the trade papers, are open to interviews by salesmen and are certainly endeavoring to make money. When, therefore, these exhibitors continue to hold on to a service, to enroll in increasing numbers and to express their entire satisfaction, praise and optimism, it becomes evident that there must be many of the elements of success in the program booking system.

"Open booking exponents have tried to point out the shortcomings of the program. There have been programs of every kind, many of them being very poor. The intent of the program makers of the old days was to make big money without regard to the welfare of the exhibitor, and, of course, such a policy was doomed to fail. But, fundamentally, the failure of those programs was not derogatory to the "idea" of the program itself. It was simply an indication of a lack of ideals, of an indifference to a fair and square policy and of loose ideas on contributory factors to business success.

"Once the program is established on a substantial basis, such as forms the foundation of Triangle service, the exhibitor discovers to his immense satisfaction that he is assured of a regular supply of film service week in and week out at a uniform price. The program forms an insoluble and mutually advantageous link between the producer and consumer, making them co-partners, equally interested in maintaining the highest standard of quality. Scientific planning is another result, as the program enables the producer to make investments and arrangements for the future which in turn safeguard the exhibitor and the investments in his theatre."

Ince Studio Keeps Ahead of Its Schedule

THE Thomas H. Ince studio is now reported working well ahead of its Paramount release schedule of Charles Ray, Enid Bennett and Dorothy Dalton productions. Charles Ray's next Paramount release is "The Family Skeleton," staged under the direction of Victor Schertzinger, supervised by Mr. Ince. This film will be released March 11 and was completed over two months ago. The next Ray picture, "His Own Home Town," which it is expected will be released in April, is also finished, as well as the production work of still another subject, the title of which has not as yet been announced.

Enid Bennett, whose first Paramount picture, "The Keys of the Righteous," was just released, will appear in "Naughty, Naughty!" a story by C. Gardner Sullivan, directed by Jerome Storm under the supervision of Mr. Ince. This photoplay, which will be released on March 25, is also now ready, and her next film, a circus subject, will soon be finished, bringing her work several months in advance of the scheduled release dates.

Dorothy Dalton's next Paramount offering, "Love Me," to be released on March 18, was finished over a month ago, and "Tyrant Fear," her following picture, to be released in April, is also completed. Miss Dalton has just started on another film under the direction of R. William Neill, with the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, also placing her activities well ahead of the release schedule.

The Thomas H. Ince studios have been extremely active during the past few months, as evidenced by the above showing. It is Mr. Ince's policy to keep as far ahead of the release schedule as possible in order to give his productions in the making more than ample time, thus affording considerable opportunity for the introduction and carrying out of new ideas and the careful planning of production activities.

"La Tosca" Is Set for Release March 25

Pauline Frederick's next Paramount picture, "La Tosca," from the opera by Victorien Sardou, has been definitely set for release on March 25. The scenario was written by Charles E. Whittaker, who is said to have made a strict interpretation of the famous opera.

Following "La Tosca," Miss Frederick's next appearance will be as Katusha in "The Resurrection," the novel of Russian oppression by Count Leo Tolstoi, which has also been adapted by Mr. Whittaker and provides Miss Frederick with another emotional role.

Shows Fox's Nine Days

E. E. Duncan of the Colonial theatre, Lincoln, Neb., shows just six days a week, but nine out of every twelve days he shows Fox pictures, reports Manager Charles Manfre of the Fox exchange in Omaha.

Excitement Reigns More Than Once in "The Bull's Eye," Universal Serial With Eddie Polo

Pictograph Slates Wide Range of Subjects

HIDDEN from the outside world in the rugged mountains of northern Georgia and Kentucky live the American "moonshiners," whose mode of living has remained unchanged for five generations. "In the Moonshine Country," which is a part of the Paramount-Bray Pictograph, "the magazine on the screen," depicts the process by which "moonshine" whiskey is made in the stills, secreted in the caves and wooded dells on the most inaccessible peaks.

"Stage Women's War Relief" presents footlight favorites, and shows the activities of these women in war relief work. Among those who appear in the picture are Mollie Pearson, Florence Nash, Hilda Spong, Phoebe Foster, Katherine Emmet, Marjorie Wood, Minnie Dupree, Felice Morris, Mildred Morris, Rachel Crothers, Olive May, Amelia Bingham, Ernest Glendenning, Roland Young and Percival Knight.

"Magic for Home Use" continues in an expose of "the black art." The installment shown in this release was originally scheduled for the 108th Paramount-Bray Pictograph, but was deferred and will appear in the 109th. Among the tricks exposed is that of planting a seed in a flower pot and having it sprout and grow to a height of a few feet in as many seconds. This trick had its origin among East Indian fakirs, and has been the cause of endless comment, though it is very simple when the explanation is given by the Paramount-Bray Pictograph.

"Pinkerton Pup's Portrait" is an animated cartoon by C. T. Anderson, of the Bray Studios, Inc., in which the trials of "Officer Piffles" and his "Police Dog" furnish the fun. Officer Piffles aspires to be an artist and selects his faithful companion as the first victim of his brush. The dog's arch enemy, the family cat, and the critical professor enter into the plot and the mixup that ensues results in laughable rapid-fire pictures.

The Pinkerton Pup is a newcomer to the Bray Studios, Inc., but it is expected that he will be a laugh producer, and his first appearance in the Paramount-Bray Pictograph is anticipated to be the foundation of his popularity with the public.

Jewel Feature is Booking Long Runs

That the Jewel Production, "The Price of a Good Time" is meeting with the same favor on the part of exhibitors as was the case in the New York territory, is evident from the wires which have been received from the various Jewel offices by Harry M. Berman, sales manager of that company, says a Jewel announcement.

According to the message received from John McAfeer, manager of the Pittsburgh office, the Minerva theatre of that city has just contracted to show "The Price of a Good Time" for a week's run. A second run has been arranged for by the management of the Alhambra theatre, East Liberty, O.

"Landloper" Expected on Screen Soon

Harold Lockwood's next Metro starring vehicle, "The Landloper," will soon be ready, Metro announces. The Yorke-Metro organization is now in Palm Beach photographing a number of scenes for the Palm Beach episode in the story, and when this work is completed the company will return to Jacksonville to make the final scenes.

George Irving, who is now alternating with Fred J. Balshofer in the direction of the Lockwood features for the Metro, is staging the production. In the cast supporting the star appear Pauline Curley, William Clifford, Stanton Heck and Bert Starkey.

German Scenics Withdrawn from Travelogues

Al Lichtman, Famous Players-Lasky's general manager of distribution, has given orders to all exchanges to withdraw the various German and Austrian scenics from the Paramount-Burton Holmes Travelogues, in view of present conditions involving those countries.

The releases which will be taken from this series immediately are, "Imperial Berlin," "The Spreewald Near Berlin," "Munich the Magnificent," "Beautiful Bavaria," "Down the Danube to Vienna," "The Real Bohemia," "Picturesque Prague," "From Carlsbad to Moravia," "In Innsbruck, Capital of the Austrian Tyrol," "In South Tyrol, the Italian Corner of Austria," and "Climbing the Austrian Alps."

Viola Dana Completes "Breakers Ahead"

Metro's five-reel production, "Breakers Ahead," starring Viola Dana, has been completed at the western studios. This production, in which quaint New England types abound, was directed by Charles Brabin, who collaborated with H. P. Koeler in the composition of the original story.

"Breakers Ahead" is said to give Miss Dana many opportunities for characterization and the display of her girlish charm. In the cast Clifford Bruce plays opposite the star. He has the role of Eric Pixley, a rugged young mariner. Russell Simpson has a character part as Captain Scudd, and others in the cast are Eugene Pallette, Sydney Deane, Mabel Von Buren, T. H. Gowland, Lorena Foster and Helen Jerome Eddy (loaned by Lasky).

The burning of a ship at sea is one of the spectacular effects.

World Hails Madge Evans as Gold Mine

That Madge Evans is a veritable "gold mine" for the exhibitor because "her name is being built up today for tomorrow," is the assertion of a World Film official concerning the young star, who comes to the screen March 18 in a new five-part Harley Knoles' production, titled "Wanted, a Mother."

"We have never presented Madge Evans as a child star," he said. "Only her age gave rise to this erroneous placing. Her work and her personality entirely remove her from the class of widely heralded so-called 'child stars.' We have presented her and will continue to present her as an artiste possessed of the ability to entertain and instruct young and old alike."

Strong Cast in New Mary Garden Film

The cast chosen by Goldwyn to support Mary Garden in "The Splendid Sinner," released March 24, includes Hamilton Revelle, who appeared in "Thais"; Anders Randolph, Roberta Bellinger, Hassan Mussalli and Henry Pettibone.

Triangle Announces March 17 Releases

A Meaningful Moment in "The Hard Rock Breed," a Triangle Play

TRIANGLE Distributing Corporation, in arranging its program for the week of March 17, has set "Faith Endurin'" as the production to lead the list of releases for that week. A seven-part special picture and a Keystone Comedy are also included.

"Faith Endurin'," which appeared in a recent issue of the Saturday Evening Post, is the second story by Kenneth B. Clarke which Triangle has dramatized, "The Sea Panther" having been recently released.

The role of Jeff Flagg offers Roy Stewart opportunity for acting which is said to be in decided contrast to parts he has recently played in "Keith of the Border," "The Learnin' of Jim Benton" and "The Law's Outlaw." W. A. Jeffries, who appeared in "Fanatics" and "Her American Husband" is cast as Jim Lee. Fritzie Ridgeway is Helen Dryer. As Sol Durkee, the "Rockin' Chair Sheriff." Walter Perkins has a characteristic Western role. Graham Pette, Edward Brady and Joe Perkins are also included in the supporting cast. Cliff Smith is said to have secured excellent Western atmosphere for this picture.

Socialism is the theme of "The Answer," the Triangle seven-part special picture listed for the week of the 17th. This play, written by E. Magnus Ingleton, author of "Her American Husband," tells how a girl of the East Side pretends to share the ideals of a socialist whom she marries, but turns out to be a social butterfly when she comes into the possession of millions he inherits.

Love, get-rich-quick madness, perspicuity and cunning are said to run riot in the new Keystone comedy, "Mud," scheduled for March 17 release. It is a tale of two penniless, nerve-laden promoters, who step out from their palatial box car to stir up a money-sprouting village. Ray Griffith is the optimistic promoter who sees a silver lining to every cloud. Max Asher is his languid, pessimistic partner who "Gloomy Gusses" through life with a long face and a short pocketbook.

Margarita Fischer Heads Mutual's List

ANOTHER Margarita Fischer production is announced by Mutual for the week of March 11. It was produced by the American under Lloyd Ingraham's direction and is titled "Ann's Finish." The scenario was written by Elizabeth Mahoney from a story by Beatrice Van and is a comedy-drama in which are alternating elements of mystery and comedy.

The scene of the play is in the select finishing-school of Madame D'Arcy, to which Ann Anderson (Margarita Fischer) goes to be "finished." As soon as she arrives the staid school is aroused by sundry happenings of an exciting nature.

Miss Fischer's role in this comedy-drama is said to give her wide scope for her talents of mimicry. She wears some gowns made after her own designs. Jack Mower is her leading man, playing the part of a mysterious burglar. Others in the cast are Adelaide Elliott, David Howard, John Gough, Robert Klein and Perry Banks.

The second week of issues of the Screen Telegram, released March 13 and 17, will cover happenings of interest in the United States and Europe. The organization of the Screen Telegram correspondents embraces every state and territory on the continent, as well as foreign correspondents in the war zone, and its system of news-gathering is claimed to be the most comprehensive ever attempted in a news weekly.

A one-reel Strand comedy, "Finishing Mary," in which Billie Rhodes is featured, is released March 12.

General Film to Release New Comedies

General Film Company will begin releasing, shortly, a series of one-reel comedies featuring "Bud" Duncan, formerly of the Ham and Bud Comedies, and Dot Farley, one of the favorite comediennes of the screen, it is announced. These subjects will be released once a week as Clover Comedies. They are being produced by the National Film Corporation, Denver, Colo. O. D. Woodward is president. The first subject to be released will be "From Caterpillar to Butterfly," a story of domestic life. Other subjects in the series will be announced later.

The National Film Corporation will also commence the production of a series of two-reel western dramas for release every other week through the General Film exchanges.

Two New Fox Specials for Early Release

William Fox will shortly release two new special features the titles of which are "A Camouflage Kiss" and "The Devil's Wheel." June Caprice and Gladys Brockwell are the respective stars in these specials.

"By Injunction" Is O. Henry Story of the West

"By Injunction," an O. Henry story of the West, is the latest Broadway Star feature released by General Film. Patricia Palmer, Chet Ryan and W. L. Rodgers, who have appeared in many O. Henry Western pictures, are the featured players. Buck Lumsden, Price Purcell, Panchita and Trinidad Sloan, favorite O. Henry characters, are revived in this two-reel drama. "The Song and the Sergeant" is the next O. Henry release.

Free Offer Made on Christie Films

Manager Jules Rachman, of the Standard Exchange, Omaha, Neb., is reported to have notified exhibitors in the Omaha territory that they may take auy of these comedies: "Almost a Bigamist," "One Good Turn," "Nearly a Papa," "Betty Wakes Up," "A Bold, Bad Knight," or any of the others of the Christie releases as listed, and the picture will be sent gratis, express charges paid both ways, to prove the subjects are worth showing. It is said many offers of acceptance have been made, mainly from leading exhibitors.

Built for Comedy Only

Comedy holds full sway in "Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley," the next Artcraft picture in which Mary Pickford is starred, according to a current announcement. The picture is scheduled for March 11.

Anna Q Nillson Has Been Engaged by Metro to Appear Opposite Bert Lytell

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

Loew and Juvenile League Get Together

Marcus Loew wanted the children of New York to see the wonderful Chapin, Lincoln Cycle, "A Son of Democracy," Children's matinees necessitates a selected program and chaperones.

So. Mr. Loew went to the National Juvenile Motion Picture League, which stands ready to furnish both, and which, furthermore, has the privilege of announcing its chaperoned children's matinees throughout the public schools.

Result: A series of ten matinees beginning March 4 in each of nine Loew theatres in Manhattan and Brooklyn. One episode of the Lincoln Cycle will be shown each time. In addition, there will be a feature taken from the League's Lists of Films for Young People, and a News Weekly. Between the hours of three and six a section of the house will be reserved for children coming alone, and chaperones will be present to take care of the young people there.

Any reason why you can't try this? The address of the League in New York is the Hotel Belleclaire, Broadway and 77th street. Write it for information and lists of pictures.

C. DeL. B.

The Bombyx in Action

If the bombyx worm ever signed a food pledge card, he isn't living up to it. Not in the Pathe picture, "Pests of Our Fruit Trees," which forms half of the current colored educational release of the film. This ugly little worm, seen head on at close range, makes short work of the foliage, eating his way from side to side of a leaf with the deadly precision of a mechanical reaper. The subject is extremely interesting.

Arcahon a Mediterranean resort in Southern France, furnishes attractive bathing scenes, and views of villas and churches of strongly Moorish design. The coloring throughout the reel is excellent.

"Pests of Our Fruit Trees" and "Picturesque France: Arcachon."
Pathe Exchange: March 24.

Yellowstone

There are as many "angles" to Yellowstone National Park as there are footholds for the camera man and each seems more beautiful than the last. At the Rialto theatre during the weeks of February 24 and March 3 have been shown some fine pictures of Yellowstone wonders which were made by Rothacker for the Northern Pacific Railway. The close-ups are unusually satisfactory, showing the boiling mud and seething waters, and the operation of the famous "Handkerchief Pool." Some of the "shots" of the great geysers in action are of remarkable pictorial value. Added attractiveness is given the film by the varied tinting, two colors being sometimes employed simultaneously to give sunset effects.

"The Plotless Picture"

If the reviewer were as outspoken as he would like to be, he would probably say that the "plotless picture" was a common occurrence. But here is a picture whose "plotless" condition furnishes Robert C. Bruce with an excuse for lots of fun in title-writing, while giving him an opportunity of showing some of the most exquisite scenery his camera has ever filmed. Especially beautiful are studies of a squall on a mountain lake, different from anything ever shown, so far as we know, on the screen. This was the last picture to be put into shape by Mr. Bruce before he started on his present expedition into the wilds, and whets the appetite for more of his unique scenic adventures.

"The Plotless Picture."
Educational Films Corporation: March 10.

Mouthpieces of Democracy

Perhaps the pen is mightier than the sword. But both kinds of ammunition are needed against our powerful and treacherous foe, and Universal Screen Magazine, No. 63, pays deference to the modern forms of both.

Part 2 of "The Making of a Newspaper" deals with the human side of the production of a great daily. Flashes of a railroad wreck, a fire in an ammunition plant, and other momentous happenings of the day are followed by pictures of reporters and editors turning the raw material of events into copy. Attention is also paid to the electric typewriters and the busy "ad" department.

"Making Democracy's Mouthpieces" is a series of views showing large and small guns in the making. Short titles convey the information necessary to an understanding of the processes.

Treated in similar brief but interesting fashion is the making of a concrete bridge.

"Mediumship Revealed," by that expert at detecting spiritistic camouflage, Hereward Carrington, furnishes some entertaining facts and lots of fun.

"Universal Screen Magazine," No. 63.
Universal Film Mfg. Co.: March 22.

Under the Toes of the Tank

In a reel made under the personal direction of Captain G. M. Bain, of the British Army, responsible for the Ancre and Somme battle pictures, everything ever written of the exploits of the terrific tank is illustrated in a manner startling and intensely interesting. The monster, which is shown at a trial performance at Camp Dix, crashes through a barn, leaving four splintered beams supporting a roof; it lunges into a trench hole till almost on its head and in imminent danger, so it would seem, of turning turtle; then it calmly proceeds up and out. It enters a forest, and trees eight inches in diameter fall before it. Whether a battalion or merely one camera man of unusual agility did the work, the filmed result is amazing in the number and variety of the pictures, and their strikingly dramatic quality.

By special arrangement with Captain Bain, the picture was shown at the New York Strand during the week of February 25, and was the most notable feature of a carefully selected program.

A Scenic Well Handled

South America offers a particularly good field for the camera man in its unusual topography and the picturesque and foreign character of its cities. A new series designed to cover everything of interest and beauty on the continent is in course of preparation by the Lincoln-Parker Company, of Worcester, Mass., releasing through the Kleine System.

The issue of the current week covers a trip through Peru from Callao to Lima, and is notable not only for the attractive character of the pictures, but for the intelligent manner in which the material has been treated to bring out its full value. A series of dissolving titles and maps give us in brief but comprehensive form the necessary historical and geographical information, which is added to as the film progresses by pleasantly written titles in which humor and instruction are deftly combined. The reel comprises views of the harbor of Callao, of the road to Lima, and many fine scenes in Lima itself showing the handsome old Spanish residences, the cathedral and churches, and the beautiful Zoological Park, with its charming lake and interesting inhabitants.

"Peru: The Land of the Incas."
The Kleine System.

Edel Adds "Punch" to Torpedo

Remarkable as are the drawings of the mechanism of the torpedo, shown in the current Pictograph, Mr. Edel, of the New York Strand, decided that added "punch" would be given by the real thing. So after much searching about he found pictures of the crew of a destroyer loading and discharging a torpedo gun, with close-ups of some of the very pieces of mechanism shown in the drawing. Needless to say, this formed a fine climax to the picture, when it was presented at the Strand during the week of March 4.

How the Gaumont-Mutual Cameraman Caught the Recent Soldiers' Parade in New York

Good and Bad Manners at the Zoo

The savagery of the wild horse from Tibet is contrasted with the docile friendliness of elephants in the current Ditmar's picture. The visitor from Asia, a stocky animal not unlike a heavily built donkey, is given an opportunity to "show off" when a scarecrow man is placed in his cage. The horse doesn't scare for a cent. After circling the enemy several times at a rapid canter, during which he snuffs him on the fly, he makes a lunge and tears off the coat, which he bites to pieces. In a short time the poor scarecrow is nothing but a heap of tatters in the corner.

More than the "comforts of home" might be the motto of the Zoo, as far as the elephants are concerned. When hot weather comes, dust brushes and oil baths are in order. Here we see in what kindly fashion the big-eared African and the little-eared but huge Indian elephants take the treatment.

"Animal Traits."
Educational Films Corporation.

First Appearance of Screen Telegram

The Screen Telegram, the new twice-a-week News Reel put out by Mutual, made its appearance March 3.

There is a pleasing crispness both in appearance and wording of the titles, and plenty of variety in the subjects offered in the two issues of the week. If the reviewer might venture a criticism, it is that the subjects are too many in number, the first issue containing twelve, the second, ten. This, however, probably denotes nothing more than an abundance of material and will doubtless be modified as the Telegram finds its proper shape.

Current Bray Pictographs

There is not one inch of "filler" in the current issue of the Bray Pictograph. From first, which exhibits army motorcyclist in some daring feats never before shown, to last, which is a seething mass of volcanic lava, the reel fascinates the spectator with the interest of its subjects and the excellence of their presentation.

Motor cyclists have in the past shown their ability to negotiate mudholes. Here they try a new trick—dashing at full speed over a swinging, undulating bridge and crossing a trench on a board.

The elaborate machinery inside the smooth barrel of a torpedo, whose existence comes as a decided surprise, is illustrated with most gratifying clearness by E. Dean Parmelee. The gyroscope that governs the rudders, the water pressure gauge that directs it to the proper level on its flight, and the mechanism controlling the striking pin receive attention in turn.

Kilauea in action is always an impressive spectacle. The distant and close-up views of it in this number are particularly good.

Paramount-Bray Pictograph, No. 111.
Paramount Pictures Corp.: March 10.

Three Producers Have Accepted Our Invitation to Use Universal City

And There's Room Enough for All the Rest!

Since our double-page advertisement appeared last week, urging film producers to eliminate waste by closing their studios and making all their pictures in Universal City, we have arranged with three concerns to do that very thing. The Astra company starts with one producing unit this week, then adds two more later in the month. The George Beban company has also made arrangements to use the Universal City studios. And a new concern, not yet named, has also closed a deal with us for stage space and equipment.

. . . . .

This is the first step toward THE ONLY PRACTICAL SOLUTION of the great expense problem. It means an economy THAT IS BOUND TO BENEFIT THE WHOLE INDUSTRY, including everybody from the exhibitor to the producer.

. . . . .

We again urge other producers to put aside all pride of studio ownership and look at this proposition from the cold blooded, business standpoint of SAVING the dollars that are now wasted in heavy individual overhead. Even if you can't rent your studio to some one else for other purposes than studio work, it will still pay you to CLOSE IT TIGHT AS A DRUM, pay the rent or taxes and insurance and STILL SAVE A TREMENDOUS SUM OF MONEY.

. . . . .

Universal City has EVERYTHING you need; in fact you can make most of your pictures right there, without even leaving the city limits to get the kind of scenery or background you want!

. . . . .

It's ready. And we're quoting reasonable terms. The only profit we seek to make out of this plan is a reduction of our own overhead—which is just as good as profit. And in the end it will enable you to make and sell pictures for less money without sacrificing a penny's worth of quality. Communicate with:

. . . . .

(In the East)—CARL LAEMMLE, President, 1600 Broadway, N. Y.
(In the West)—WM. SISTROM, Business Manager, Universal City, Cal.

UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

—close your studios and make all your pictures in Universal City

The more YOU read these advertisements the more useful to YOU we can make the "NEWS."

If you were a man I'd wring your neck but you're only a woman, so,—get out!"

"The DOCTOR AND THE WOMAN"

The New LOIS WEBER PRODUCTION featuring MILDRED HARRIS

An Intimate Disclosure of Life as We Live It.

Taken from Mary Roberts Rinehart's "K"—The Story that had Two Million Readers ------ Publishers, Houghton, Mifflin Co.

Book thru any Jewel Exchange or Jewel Productions Inc. 1600 Broadway, New York

Official war pictures

Tremendous as popular interest in these Official War Pictures is today it will be multiplied a thousand times the day your patrons' boys in France go " over the top." Book all three of the Universal News Reels—and BOOK NOW! Remember you always get the latest news pictures first in the U. Animated Weekly—U. Current Events and U. Screen Magazine.

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO

CARL LAEMMLE President, 1600 Broadway New York

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the " News."

Eddie Polo

HERCULES OF THE FILMS

Hero of the whirlwind Universal Adventure Serial, "THE BULL'S EYE," is packing thousands of theatres with the most sensational stunts ever filmed in all the history of serial pictures. With thrilling story—huge cast—amazing punches and tremendous drawing power is out pulling all other serials on the market. No tiresome war or battle scenes. No blood and thunder, yet the biggest, pulse quickening serial before the public. Your nearest Universal exchange will forward you a copy of the BULL'S EYE ad campaign book. Get a copy free. It tells you everything. It's a mint for exhibitors. Get busy. Book immediately.

"The BULL'S EYE"

UNIVERSAL SERIAL THRILLER

Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the UNIVERSAL FILM MN'FG. CO., Largest Film Mn'fg. Co. in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, President, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

In the Independent Field

Foreign Rights Sold for Pyramid Comedies

Arthur M. Werner, president, Pyramid Comedies, Inc., announces the sale of the foreign rights, exclusive of Canada, to the Anglo Film Agencies, Ltd., London, Eng. The deal was closed by John Wild, American representative, with offices at 347 Fifth avenue. The contract extends for five years and covers the entire output of twenty-four comedies a year, Ray Hughes is the featured comedian.

"Four pictures had been completed when negotiations were opened with the Anglo Film Agencies, Limited, for the rights to England. These pictures were exhibited in London theatres and have proved popular.

"We have not yet decided our method of distribution in the United States and Canada, but will probably dispose of the output here on the basis of territorial franchises. We have leased a studio in Yonkers, where the fifth picture is now being made, entitled 'The Masked Ball.' The titles of the first four subjects are 'Beach Birds,' 'Beauties and Bombs,' 'In and Out' and 'Love and Lunch.' In all of the subjects Ray Hughes is featured in eccentric comedy, under the direction of William A. Seiter. We have scenarios ready for production for the next ten pictures, and are in the market for stories to follow."

Magnet Reports Favorably on Hart Releases

The Magnet Film Exchange, which controls the rights to W. H. Productions Company Hart features, "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher," "The Hell Hound of Alaska," also the series of 28 Mack Sennett produced comedies, report successful booking in the New York territory, which it controls.

The Moss circuit, in New York and Brooklyn, and Keeney's theatres, are showing the first feature. The second Hart feature, "The Bandit and the Preacher," with an all-star cast, including Wm. S. Hart, Gladys Brockwell, Rhea Mitchell and Herschel Mayall, is set for release in April.

The Magnet Films announce that Murray Beier has been added to the sales force.

"Life or Honor," Ivan's Late Release

Ivan Film productions announce the early release of "Life or Honor." Leah Baird, James Morrison and Violet Palmer are featured. In support are Edward Mackay, Mathilda Brundage, Harry Burkhardt and Joseph Burke. Edmund Lawrence directed.

Broadway Sees "The Kaiser"

Rupert Julian's Production Opens to Crowded House—Offered on Independent Market—Julian's Portrayal Praised

"THE KAISER, THE BEAST OF BERLIN" opened at the Broadway theatre, Saturday night, to a crowded house. Rupert Julian who has been seen in Bluebird and Universal productions, wrote, directed and acts the title role. E. J. Clawson did the scenario. The production is in seven reels. This is Mr. Julian's first independent production and he announces that the feature will be sold outright or by territorial franchise. It is said by those who were present at the opening that Mr. Julian's characterization of the Kaiser is a remarkable bit of dramatic work.

Practically every important character in the German court is presented in "The Kaiser"—Bethman-Hollweg, Admiral von Tirpitz, von Hindenburg, Admiral von Pliscott, General Falkenhayn, General von Beseler, General von der Goltz, General von Weddingen, General von Haetzendorf and General von Ruesselheim.

Famous characters of the Allied cause portrayed are President Wilson, Ambassador Gerard, General Pershing, General Haig, General Joffre, General Diaz, and King Albert of Belgium. The cast includes Allen Sears, Nigel de Brullier, Lon Chaney, Mark Fenton, Harry Carter, W. H. Bainbridge, Harry von Meter, Walter Belasco, Wadsworth Harris, Winter Hall, Elmo Lincoln, Robert Gordon, Joseph Girard, Alfred Allen, Harry Holden, George Hupp, Ruth Clifford, Betty Carpenter, Ruby Lafayette, Gretchen Lederer and Zoe Rae.

The story deals with the inhuman actions of the Emperor of Germany in his attempt to conquer the world. It tells of the various incidents which lead up to the world war—President Wilson's proclamation of war, the part America has taken with the Allies and finally the defeat of the Kaiser. The terrible devastation that has been wrought on Belgium and the Belgian people and the atrocities which have been committed by the German people—in short, every angle of the present world war has been depicted with the one reason in mind, namely, the holding up of the Kaiser as the "Beast of Berlin."

Rupert Julian as the German War Lord in "The Kaiser"

Those who saw the opening performance at the Broadway pronounced "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin" a remarkable exposition of the atrocities of the German Empire and its ruler, the Kaiser. It will run indefinitely at the Broadway.

Binney in New York with Comedies

Harold J. Binney, comedy producer, arrived in New York last week with prints of his three latest comedies, produced at the Klutho studios, Jacksonville, Fla., by Florida Funny Films, of which Mr. Binney is executive head. The three comedies which he has brought with him are titled "Fred's Ficticious Foundling," "Fabulous Fortune Fumblers" and "Freeda's Fighting Father," featuring Funny Fatty Filbert. Originality is shown in the titles. The letter "F" predominates in both the titles of the pictures and the title of the brand of comedies.

Mr. Binney was associated with Keystone for a number of years. He is the founder of the Lion Brand comedies, produced in Houston, Texas. Mr. Binney announces that he will be glad to meet his friends while in New York. He can be reached through MOTION PICTURE NEWS.

Louis Burstein Invents Auto-Hood

Louis Burstein, president of the King-Bee Films Corp., will stop off at Washington on his way back to Hollywood to apply for a patent on a new device he has invented on an automobile hood. Mr. Burstein previous to his entering the film industry was in the automobile business.

Francis Ford Has Own Company

Popular Screen Actor Enters Producing Field as Head of Francis Ford Producing Co.—First Picture Ready in April

FRANCIS FORD is now at the head of his own producing company, The Francis Ford Producing Company, recently incorporated. Mr. Ford's productions will be known as The Fordart Films. The method of distribution has not been decided. The first released will be ready for distribution about the first of April. It is titled, "Berlin via. America," written by Elsie Van Name who wrote the Universal serial, "The Mystery Ship." It will be shown in seven reels. Mr. Ford enacts the principal role and the picture is being produced under his personal direction.

Mr. Ford is one of the pioneers of the motion picture business. His part in the industry has been to entertain the public on the screen. For ten years, Mr. Ford has been seen to advantage in innumerable photoplays from the one-reeler to the feature picture. He is best known for his portrayal of master detective roles. His knowledge of the art of photoplay making is the result of long experience and he enters the producing field with the practical experience of the one who has grown up with the industry and has seen it rise from the plaything of yesterday to the seventh greatest industry in the world today.

After completing "Berlin via. America," Mr. Ford's first production, he will start "A Man of Today," his second feature production. Then he will star the first episode of a serial titled "Silent Mystery," to be shown in fifteen episodes of two reels each.

The production now under way reveals plenty of the old-time action for which the actor-director is noted. It tells of love, sacrifice, intrigue, heroism and patriotism. Supporting Mr. Ford are Edna Emerson, Lois Scott, Jack Newton, George Henry, William Canfield, Edward Drohan and Frank Feeney. The story centers around a young aviator who receives a commission from the Secret Service to ascertain the source of the leaks through which the enemy is acquiring information. It is said to reveal incidents in the life of an aviator never before releaved on the screen and which are of intensity in interest.

"The Thoroughbred," in which Frank Keenan Starred, Has Been Secured for Distribution by Hiller and Wilk for S. A. Lynch Enterprises

Sterling to Distribute "Hypocrites"

GEORGE LOANE TUCKER'S "The Hypocrites," which is to be released by the Sterling Film Corporation under the "Sterling System" on or about April 1, was shown to the National Board of Review at a private showing last week. The following criticism was made: "Entertainment value—excellent." "Educational value—good." "Photography — excellent." "Coherence of natrrative—clear." "Acting—good." "Technical details — excellent." "Atmospheric quality—excellent." "Moral effect—excellent."

"The Hypocrites" was written by Sir Henry Arthur Jones and was originally produced by Charles Frohman at the Lyceum Theatre, New York, where it ran successfully for an entire season. George Loane Tucker adopted the scenario from the play and produced it under his personal direction. Elizabeth Risdon, now featured in the current Broadway drama, "Seven Days' Leave," playing at the Park Theatre, is featured in "The Hypocrites."

Arthur Beck, president of the Sterling Film Corporation, predicts that it will be one of the most popular screen successes of the year. Mr. Ebenstein, manager of sales for Sterling, is now on a ten weeks' trip to place the various products of the Sterling Company. A trade showing of "The Hypocrites" will be held next week at the Miles projection room. The time will be announced later.

"Hart Features Stand 'Em Up"

Hart features distributed by the W. H. Productions Company are proving winners, according to letters received by this company from many prominent distributors who are handling this product. Phil L. Ryan, general manager of the Standard Film Company, of Kansas City, states:

"'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' broke all records for attendance at the Twelfth Street Theatre in Kansas City in a week's run."

B. L. Hadfield, general manager of the Wisconsin Film Corporation, who has the rights for Wisconsin, says:

"The Princess Theatre of Milwaukee opened with Wm. S. Hart in 'The Two-Gun Man' in 'The Bargain' last Sunday, Feb. 24, and did the biggest business in the history of the house in eleven years, according to Mr. Cook, manager of the theatre. The Princess Theatre, which is one of the best downtown houses, and seats approximately 1,100 people, had a steady line at the box office from one o'clock until nine thirty. Frank Cook put the picture over in the right manner. He put out fifty twenty-four sheet stands, five hundred window cards and a wonderful newspaper campaign."

New Jester Comedy Nears Completion

The fourth Jester Comedy release for May, called "The Wrong Flat," featuring Twede-Dan, is fast nearing completion, it was announced this week.

One of the important scenes will be "shot" in a complete set-up theatre, it is said, in order to carry out the real effect.

Goldberg's Caricatures for Screen

Rube Goldberg who announced recently that his caricatures of Mike and Ike (They Look Alike), now appearing in the pages of the New York Evening Mail, are to appear on the screen in animated cartoons, makes the announcement this week that he has signed with the Hearst newspapers to supply a page of cartoons dealing with the doings of Mike and Ike for the Sunday editions of all Hearst papers. This means that Mr. Goldberg's cartoons will reach thousands of homes through the medium of the New York Mail and the Hearst papers. With the appearance of Mike and Ike on the screen in animated cartoons, to be released soon, these comedy characters will be seen by the millions. Exhibitors can obtain full information on the animated cartoons, showing Mr. Goldberg's little comedians, from Harry Grossman, 729 Seventh avenue, N. Y.

"Expectations Surpassed" —Johnson

Millard Johnson, president of the Australasian Film Company, after seeing "Mickey," the Mack Sennett production distributed by the Western Import Company, said:

"I naturally expected to see a wonderful picture, in view of the great amount of advertising that has been given 'Mickey,' but I can truthfully say my expectations were surpassed. It is remarkable how the various elements of human nature have been woven together into this photoplay."

A Word To The Wise From The Wise

By Nat L. Royster, Sales Manager, Special Features, Knoxville

I have just finished reading a two-page article by Guy Leavitt in this week's NEWS, regarding the condition existing in Nebraska between exhibitor and film exchanges and their salesmen. It was very interesting reading matter, but Mr. Leavitt, bless him, does not build his house tight enough. He leaves the weather-boarding so loose that many things of size can get through. In other words, he is not fair to either party.

Some time ago I was in a little town in the South. I arrived there in the rain and it was still raining when I called up the leading exhibitor's house. Knowing that he was not due down-town and especially in a rain storm, I had rather hesitated in calling him, but knowing that I would be obliged to leave town without seeing him, I took the chance.

This exhibitor answered the phone and I asked him if there was any way that I could see him before I left town, which was within two hours' time, and at the same time apologizing for asking him to drive through the rain.

"Well, I should say so. Of course, I will be glad to come down, Nat. Just wait at the theatre and I will be down there in twenty minutes," he answered.

That exhibitor came as he said, in just about twenty minutes time, and before I left I carried with me a contract signed by him, for every feature that I had. Now, there is a point that I wish to make in this article and it is this: First of all, I have long ago found out that salesmen make a mistake when they do not confine themselves to the truth when presenting their pictures to a manager. If they will talk plain English and not jabber over how some one else's film had proven a flivver.

Number two: Regarding misrepresentations and broken promises from exchanges. I have an interest in a big feature film exchange, and I am also salesmanager for the firm, covering six southern states at the present time.

I know and fully realize that there have been and are still lots of exchanges misrepresenting and breaking promises made by themselves and their salesmen, and I also know of exchanges that have stooped to some very low-down dirty tricks in securing business. I know also that IT ISN'T THE EXHIBITOR WHO HAS MISREPRESENTED AND BROKEN HIS PROMISES. I have seen that done in the last week. I know some few exhibitors who will promise to send in dates and the contract signed, and we never hear from them until I visit them again.

Regarding lobby display promises. When we order paper and lobby display, we only order so much at a given time. We book an exhibitor and he in turn changes his dates. When he does send in a date to play the feature, possibly he wants it right away, and we are out of large photos.

Regarding film prices. Seven-tenths of the exhibitors of the country are better them. Say a given feature is worth thirty-salesmen than the men who call to sell five dollars for his town, and you ask the exhibitor that price. His first move will be to try and get it for less, or see how much you will cut from that price, hence on some few exhibitors, salesmen have boosted prices, though this is bad business.

Regarding selling a feature for two towns of the same size for the same amount of money, I know of two towns now that have exactly the same population, and very near the same pay roll, but I can get and should get ten dollars more from one town than the other. One town has a manager that is wide awake and creates "movie fans," while the other, well, he is content to just sit around and wait for them to show up at night. Hence, one man will do from fifteen to twenty-five and fifty dollars more business on my picture, than the other fellow.

Yes, there are a lot of misrepresentations and broken promises in this old game, but show me one that hasn't them.

Far back when I first started in the "game" as we are calling it, exchanges credited the exhibitors until the end of the week, or until they had their regular program booked. The honest exhibitor who knew that he was going to stick in the business sent in his check every Saturday night, or Monday morning, and got his receipt. Very soon, there was a bunch of under-handed men who set out to cheat the exchanges, and there were others who finally went out of business owing exchanges many hundreds of dollars. This caused exchanges to ask for a check in advance, or on date delivered.

Nora Bayes, Who Has Decided to Star in Motion Pictures

Soon, some exhibitors said, "Gosh, if they can't trust me, darned if I can trust them, so I ain't going to pay in advance." Then came the deposit system which proved very unpopular, as there were many thousands of dollars of exhibitors' money used to carry on business of the exchanges and manufacturer. When a storekeeper is good pay, his goods come to him on a thirty to sixty day time payment. When he fails to pay up, he is shipped C. O. D. This same thing has been applied to exhibitors. They have kicked, saying that they would not take out the "darn old film" if it came C. O. D. They won't pay in advance. They won't put up a deposit. They won't send in their checks on time, and if you ship them C. O. D. you get a notice later from the express company that your film is there and some other poor exhibitor has lost out on the day.

There may be too many film salesmen in some parts of the country. There may be and is a lot of "slick" salesmen, and both ends of the game may misrepresent and break their promises. But there is one thing certain, exhibitors live in the towns, and they own their houses or have them leased as the case may be. They are the ones who should know their patrons' wants and what goes best, so it is up to him not to buy more than he can use or let any salesman force some feature on him that he doesn't want.

Listen, exhibitors and exchangemen: There are exceptions to all rules, and this article, if it is lucky enough to be printed, is not meant to hit every one in the game, but if the shoe does pinch you, take heed.

I have said before, exhibitors know your town and patrons. Your knowledge of human nature should tell you what to buy. There are not too many salesmen in every locality, and while there may be some over-production at present, if you are a wise exhibitor, you will read every line of your trade paper. You should know beforehand, what is the best suited features for your town. You should know just about what to expect of your town. What are you doing to create new fans? Do you study human nature? Do you treat the salesmen as though they were so much clay beneath your feet? Do you curse out the film exchange?

Know what you want. Keep your dates at least three months ahead. Above all, keep your theatre clean and inviting, and if you do these to the best of your ability and "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you," there is no doubt that you will succeed in any crisis. Business is fine. Stop talking hard times. Boost for your business and for your trade papers, and back up our Government. If you can't do these things, you are not wanted in this game. Your space is worth more than your company.

"Not Going to Revolutionize"

Jacob Wildberg, New Executive of Foursquare Pictures, Frankly Admits Inexperience, But Lets Record Speak for Itself

A MAN has entered the executive branch of the motion picture industry who frankly admits that he doesn't know the finer details of the business but that he is willing to learn. This same man is one of the most successful business men of the present day, is a shining light in the manufacturing field, knows the meaning of the word executive, all its synonyms, what it stands for, and last but not least, he is an executive and will be so whether he be in the business of manufacturing chewing gum or the making and distribution of motion pictures.

This man is Jacob Wildberg, capitalist and manufacturer, who recently identified himself with the Foursquare Pictures as treasurer of that independent organization which has twenty-one exchanges operating throughout this country and Canada and which is one of the most prominent distributing organizations in the independent field.

Mr. Wildberg comes to Foursquare Pictures with the knowledge of a successful business man. He frankly admits that his knowledge of the motion picture industry is very limited. He has had no occasion to delve into its more distinctive phases. He has however, as his record will reveal, been successful as a business man. His position with Foursquare Pictures calls for executive ability and, as he puts it, "when I get acquainted with finer and distinctive details, I feel that I shall grasp the reins with all the enthusiasm of one working toward the fulfillment of a coveted ambition."

"A man's customer in the motion picture business," said Mr. Wildberg in discussing his attitude, "is entitled to the same courtesy and respect as he is in any other business and I have learned by long experience in the business world, that with a knowledge of business principles and the proper methods by which they should be applied, if this principle be adhered to, one can be successful in any business whether it be the motion picture business or some other. I do not mean by this statement, that I am going to step into this business and revolutionize it. Mr. Hoffman, of this company, and Mr. Backer whom I have known for years, are here to guide the destinies of the Foursquare Pictures and for the time being I will be a pupil, observing and doing my utmost toward learning the ropes.

"A few months before I became associated with Mr. Backer in this business I noticed that there was a decided slump in the picture business. I am pleased to say now that since entering upon my active duties with Foursquare I have noticed a great improvement in the distributing branch. Mr. Hoffman who is now on tour through Canada reports that the outlook is bright and that there is a great improvement over conditions as they existed a few months ago. The books of Foursquare Pictures show a marked advance in business.

"In my opinion the cost of the production of many of the pictures offered on the market is too much. The production cost should be cut down and in my opinion, that can be done without injuring the entertainment value of a picture. At the present I am not prepared to give an opinion of great value but later when I get the drift of things, I shall talk "from the shoulder."

Ochs Maps Out Three Months' Trip

LEE A. OCHS, president of the United Picture Theatres of America, Inc., addressed several meetings of motion picture exhibitors of New York State, Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and New England last week and now is beginning a tour of the West and South. He will return to New York in June. This week he is scheduled to visit Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago, spending four days in the last named city.

Beginning with a day in Indianapolis, Mr. Ochs will spend two days next week in Cincinnati, St. Louis and Memphis, going on for the week of March 25 to Little Rock, Dallas and New Orleans. He has arranged to give three days each to the exhibitors of Texas and Louisana before starting North the first week of April by way of Atlanta, Charlotte, N. C., and Washington. The end of that week will find him in Pittsburgh, after which he will start West again, reaching Kansas City on Monday, April 8. Oklahoma City and Hutchinson, Kan., next, and then for the week of April 14, Lincoln, Neb., Omaha, Des Moines and Minneapolis. Butte, Mont., will be the next stop, and Mr. Ochs will spend April 23 and 24 there before going to Boise, Idaho, and Spokane. The last few days of April and the first week in May he will be in Seattle and Portland.

From Monday, May 6, to Wednesday, of that week, Mr. Ochs will meet the exhibitors of San Francisco and vicinity before going to Los Angeles for the longest stay scheduled. For ten days he will meet both producers and exhibitors, explaining to them the system under which United Pictures expects to effect a saving of millions of dollars annually in the motion picture industry.

Distributing waste is the objective of the new cooperative association of exhibitors, and by its elimination Mr. Ochs is prepared to prove the producers will receive greater returns. Each exhibitor will be protected against ruinous competition under the new regime.

Traveling East from Los Angeles, Mr. Ochs will be in Salt Lake City on Monday and Tuesday, May 20 and 21. Two days in Denver will follow, and then he will start for New York by way of Chicago.

"The Warrior" Goes Well in Oregon

J. C. Stille, manager, People's theatre, Portland, Oregon, has written to Arthur H. Sawyer and Herbert Lubin, General Enterprises, Inc., commenting upon the successful run of "The Warrior" at his theatre. The letter, in part, follows:

"I don't often have the opportunity or the inclination to enthuse over film productions but the unusual success which attended the screening of your picture, 'The Warrior,' is responsible for this letter. The success of this picture at the People's theatre, a success far exceeding my expectations, proves that the producer who will give the exhibitor 'something different,' a real novelty, will reap a golden harvest."

(Signed) J. C. STILLE, Manager,
People's Theatre, Portland, Oregon.

Steiner on Second Trip for Jester

William Steiner, Jester Comedy Company, will leave shortly on his second trip throughout the country, in the interest of Jester comedies. He will present the third and the fourth releases of the Jester comedies, "All 'fur' Her" and "The Wrong Flat," to the trade.

East Side, West Side in Keeney Picture

Scenes of Chinatown, East Side dance halls, free-for-all fights in which the prizering exponents, Kid Broad and Kid Lewis participate; scenes of the Criminal Courts Building, the Bridge of Sighs, the Tombs and the Bowery after dark, are some of the revelations to be made in Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation's first production starring Catherine Calvert. The picture is a screen version of the late Paul Armstrong's stage success, "A Romance of the Underworld" and will be released shortly. The date will be announced later.

The second production by this company will be "Marriage," by Guy Bolton who is responsible for the stage success, "Oh! Boy" and "Oh! Lady, Lady." Miss Calvert will be featured, also, in this production.

Ann Luther Appears in "Moral Suicide" for the Graphic Film Corporation

Nora Bayes to Be Seen in Pictures

Nora Bayes, vaudeville and musical comedy star, will appear in pictures, according to an announcement by Ed. Rosenbaum, Jr., publicity director King-Bee Films Corporation, under whose engagement the stage comedienne is to appear. Mr. Rosenbaum will handle all matters pertaining to Miss Bays' connection with the pictures in which she is to appear.

An original story has been obtained, announces Mr. Rosenbaum, and as soon as he has closed with a producer for the making of the picture work will be commenced. Miss Bayes has received a number of offerings to appear in pictures, but owing to her theatrical engagements she has been forced to decline these. She has made arrangements to give part of her time to work before the camera and will appear in her first picture under the management of Mr. Rosenbaum.

Dunne, Not Murphy, Has "Modern Lorelei"

Through an error by the publicity department of the United Film Service, Buffalo, the announcement was made in last week's issue of the NEWS to the effect that Fred B. Murphy, president and general manager of United Film Service, had bought the New England rights to "The Modern Lorelei." "The Modern Lorelei" was purchased for New England by J. E Dunne, Grandum Film Company, Boston. Joseph F. Lee made the sale. Mr. Dunne purchased the New England rights to this production last year.

Crest Picture Wins Praise of Clevelander

David Adler, secretary and treasurer, The Strand Entertainment Company, Cleveland, O., has written Carl E. Carlton, president of Great Pictures Corporation, as follows, in praising "The Lust of the Ages," featuring Lillian Walker, directed by Harry Revier:

"We have just completed a week's run on your production "The Lust of the Ages" and think that a line of appreciation of the business done on this picture is due you.

Frankly, I did not have a great deal of confidence when booking this production, being somewhat afraid of its unusual theme, but I am now convinced that it is a picture that appeals particularly to the public and recommend it, without hesitation, to any high class theatre who desires to give its public the best the market affords. Our business on this picture reached a gross which was more than we have done in the previous eight months and the beauty of the picture is that each day's business increased over the last.

Trusting that we will be able to do business with you on all your future releases, I am,

Yours very sincerely,
The Strand Entertainment Company,
(Signed) DAVID ADLER, Secretary and Treasurer.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
"Raffles" (Hiller & Wilk, Agents)	Supreme Feature Film Co., Minneapolis	Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin.
"The Sunset Princess" (Great West Film Co.)	Big Productions Film Corporation, New York	World Rights.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	Merit Film Corporation, New York	New York, Northern New Jersey.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	Eastern Feature Film Co., Boston	New England Territory.
"Babbling Tongues" and "Sins of Ambition" (Ivan Productions)	M. P. Sales Co., London, Eng.
"Enlighten Thy Daughter" (Inter-Ocean Film Corp.)		Chili, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador, India.
"The 13th Labor of Hercules" (Inter-Ocean Film Corp.)		India.
Pyramid Comedies (Series)	Anglo Film Agencies, Ltd., London, Eng.	World's Rights.
"The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher," "The Hell Hound of Alaska" (Hart Features), Series of 28 Sennett Produced Comedies (W. H. Productions Co.)	Globe Feature Film Co., Boston	New England Territory.
Series of 28 Sennett Produced Comedies	Electric Theatre Supply Co., Philadelphia	Eastern Pennsylvania.

Schlaifer Denies Allegations

L. J. Schlaifer, Schlaifer Attractions of Seattle, Takes Exceptions to Jesse Goldberg's Statements Regarding Northwest Distributors

L. J. SCHLAIFER, L. J. Schlaifer Attractions of Seattle, Washington, a prominent independent distributor on the Coast, takes exception to the statements made by Jesse J. Goldberg in an article appearing in this publication, issue of March 2, under the title, "Present Conditions in the Independent Market," wherein Mr. Goldberg refers to conditions in Washington and Oregon as "peculiar" and continues, "there is but one real state rights or independent exchange of any consequence."

Mr. Schlaifer contends that Mr. Goldberg does "an injustice to a number of perfectly reliable firms, whose headquarters are in Seattle." "By what divine right," continues Mr. Schlaifer, "this gentleman assumes the role of distributive critic for the United States, we know not.

"In Mr. Goldberg's reference to the fact that there is but 'one real state rights or independent exchange of any consequence' he could mean any one of five concerns in this territory, all of which concerns are perfectly reliable. The L. J. Schlaifer Attractions, which handles such features as 'Parentage' and other productions usually considered excellent material, is most reliable. In justice to competitors I must refer to The First National Exhibitors, the De Luxe, Sherman and Elliot and Greater Features—all of which are exploiting many of the most worthwhile features current on the market. When Mr. Goldberg makes such assertions he displays his ignorance of conditions and reputable distributors in the Northwest section. Mr. Goldberg's opinion must be biased by his own personal experience in attempting to sell his own brand of product in the Northwest section. I can conceive of no other motive."

Agnes Martin's Varied Stage Career

Agnes Martin, who has a prominent role in "The Crucible of Life," distributed by Herbert Lubin and Arthur N. Sawyer, General Enterprises, Inc., has had a varied stage career before acting before the camera. Miss Martin was born in Brooklyn and made her first appearance on the stage with the Corse Payton stock company.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

Vitagraph News Bits

The Vitagraph Company is filming the last scenes for "A Texan Romance" in the LaBrae oil fields located near Los Angeles, and within the next week will begin work on "A Son of Kazan," a screen adaptation from the James Oliver Curwood novel of the same name. Nell Shipman is to be starred in this production. Five dogs will be used for the "Son of Kazan," showing him as a puppy, and at the various stages of his growth. This is a story of the great out of doors, and much of the heart interest is centered about the dog.

Filming of a new series of "Wolfville Stories" has been begun by Director George Sargent who was recently engaged by the Vitagraph Western studios. He is now working on a two-reel subject which is titled "Claents of Erin Green." William Lester who recently arrived from the New York studios of the Vitagraph will play the lead in Mr. Sargent's first subject, and will also be featured throughout the series.

Work on the Vitagraph serial, "The Woman and the Web" with Hedda Nova and Frank Glendon in the principal roles, is progressing rapidly, and the players are daily taking their life in their hands to enact realistic thrills for the screen. A large number of extra people including Japanese, Russians and Mexicans are being used in the present episodes, and co-Directors David Smith and Paul Hurst have their hands full in issuing orders to interpreters.

"Flirts and Fakirs" was completed this week under the direction of J. A. Howe, with Rock and Montgomery in the principal comedy-making roles. One of the stunts of this film is for the two comedians to travel hand over hand on a rope suspended between two buildings, with a bull dog holding one end of the rope.

The F. P.-Lasky Studio

William S. Hart is completing another [illegible] which is laid in the big western country. Mr. Hart's role is a "typical Bill Hart part" in which he is afforded many opportunities for melodramatic work which has made this Ince-Artcraft star so popular during the past few years. Jane Novak is leading woman in this photoplay which [illegible]

"The Mating of Marcella," the latest Ince-Paramount photoplay which stars Dorothy Dalton, has been completed. The picture has scenes laid in New York City, and Reno, Nevada. The next Ince starring vehicle for Miss Dalton is titled "The Triple Cross" from a story by Octavus R. Cohen, and adapted for the screen by J. G. Hawks. It is a story of melodramatic nature of German intrigue in America, and the daring work of a girl employed in the secret service of the United States, which will give Miss Dalton many thrilling experiences before the camera. R. Wm. Neill is in charge of the direction.

Upon the return of Enid Bennett, Ince Paramount star, from her honeymoon trip, she will begin work on a photoplay titled "Desert Mating." Thurston Hall will be leading man. J. G. Hawks is the author of the scenario.

The Ince Company, under the direction of Irvin Willat, have returned from Truckee, California, where they went to film snow stuff for a photoplay titled "The Law of The North." This subject is very near completion, and Charles Ray will next be seen in a photoplay from the pen of R. Cecil Smith which has to do with a young chap who at first does not heed the call of his country, but after hearing the President's speech, loses no time in enlisting. Victor Schertzinger, who has just returned from a vacation, will direct Charles Ray in the new subject.

Live Triangle Items

With two new subjects put in production, six others in the filming, and one feature subject completed during the week, the big 1918 production drive planned by H. O. Davis, vice-president and general manager of the Triangle studios at Culver City, is progressing very satisfactorily. The subject completed last week is titled "The Veil," which gives J. Barney Sherry the featured role, supported by Mary Mersch, Dora Rogers, Frank Bonn and others, and directed by Thomas Heffron.

"The Lonely Woman," adapted for the screen from a magazine story of the same name by John Moroso, was put in production under the direction of Thomas Heffron and will be filmed in five reels. It is a story of a woman's kindness and sacrifices for the betterment of humanity, and in the end she is rewarded with great happiness. This subject features Belle Bennett, supported by Anna Dodge, Alberta Lee, Nellie Anderson, Lee Hill and others.

The other new subject put in production is "Mr. Briggs Closes the House," a two-reel comedy written by Kate Corbaley, author of "Real Folks," the Triangle $1,000 prize story. William Beaudine is the director and has for his cast Edwin Brady, Myrtle Rishell, Anna Dodge, Fred Mack and Frank Caffrey.

"The Derelict" in which Roy Stewart will play his first dual role for the Triangle, under the direction of Cliff Smith, is well along in the filming. Stewart appears in the role of a cowboy giant and an eastern crook suffering from the "white plague." Josie Sedgwick is leading woman for Mr. Stewart, and others of the cast are five-year-old Dixie Doll, William Ellingford, Walter Perkins, William Dyer, and others.

One of the features of "The Honorable Billy," starring William Desmond under the direction of Frank Borzage, will be a fashion show.

With Pathe Players

Production of "The Bells," which will star Frank Keenan for Pathe, is going forward very successfully under the direction of E. C. Warde. This is a screen adaptation from the great stage success of Henry Irving.

Bessie Love is working on her first Western made Pathe Play under the direction of Robert Thornby. George Fisher, who has appeared in support of Bessie Barriscale in several Paralta made subjects, has been selected to play the lead opposite Miss Love.

Bryant Washburn under the direction of William Worthington, is nearing the last scenes of his latest picture which has a Western atmosphere. Rhea Mitchell is playing the lead opposite Mr. Washburn.

Cast is now being selected for the new serial to be filmed by the Diando Film Corporation for Pathe release, to be known as "The Wolf-faced Man." George Larkin, who has been chosen as leading man, will arrive in Los Angeles from the East within a few days. Camera work will be started on this serial about March 15. Stuart Paton will be in charge of the direction.

Filming of "Dolly Does Her Bit," starring Baby Marie Osborne, was completed this week under the direction of William Bertram. Baby Marie will next work in "The Soul of a Child," suggested from a story by Burton George, and which has been prepared for the screen by Clara S. Beranger.

On the recommendation of the Diando Company, Norman Manning who has been manager of the studio, has been appointed West Coast representative for Louis Gasiner of the Astra Company, who is here from the East on business. Joseph Van Meter will succeed Mr. Manning at the Diando Glendale plant. The Astra organization has leased stage space at Universal City and there the first Fanny Ward Western made subject will be filmed.

Fox Studio Doings

At the William Fox Studios, Jewel Carmen, has begun the making of a new subject under the direction of S. A. Franklin, who is also the author of the story. In this subject, it is said, Miss Carmen will have considerable opportunity to display her ability as an emotional actress. L. C. Shumway has been selected to support this Fox star.

Gladys Brockwell is hard at work on her new subject for Fox release in which she plays a dual role, each a separate and distinct part in itself. Director E. J. LeSaint is in charge of the production. Miss Brockwell is supported by William Scott and Willard Louis.

Tom Mix and his company of cowpunchers under the direction of Lynn Reynolds are still away on location making the exterior scenes of his next western subject for Fox. A large number of cowboys, Mexicans, and a big consignment of live stock accompanied the Mix Company to their outdoor locations.

Bessie Barriscale and Henry Walthall Are Winning New Laurels in Paralta Plays

Here and There

The four March releases for the Christie Film Company, which have already been completed are "Never Surprise Your Wife," which has Betty Compson and Harry Edwards as the featured players, "In and Out," with Eleanor Field, new Christie leading woman, and Bobbie Vernon playing opposite, "Betty's Adventure," with Betty Compson and Billy Mason as leads, and "By Orange Aid," with Eleanor Field and Bobbie Vernon.

"By Orange Aid," has many of its exterior scenes laid in and about the annual national orange show which was held at San Bernardino, the center of the California citrus belt. Scenes were taken in the concessions, packing houses and at the show proper. Al Christie, Eleanor Field, Bobbie Vernon and other members of the company motored to San Bernardino from Los Angeles where they were guests at a banquet given in their honor by the Entertainment Committee of the Orange Show. During the dinner Al Christie gave a short talk on the growth of the motion picture industry and many of his experiences during his seven years of directorship.

Ethel Lynne is back at the Christie studio after an engagement with the Thomas H. Ince Company where she played in support of Enid Bennett in "Miss Nobody," and is now being directed by Al Christie in a new comedy as yet unnamed.

It is very probable production work on the first Mastercraft subject to be made at the Paralta studios, will be begun this week. This subject is a screen adaptation from the Thomas Dixon novel "The One Woman," and was prepared for filming by E. Richard Schayer. Clara Williams, who is the star of the Paralta subject, "Carmen of the Klondike," and Lawson Butt, an English actor who has just come to the coast, have been selected to appear in two of the big roles. The Mastercraft Corporation, by arrangements made with the National Drama Corporation who own the rights for the Thomas Dixon novels, are planning to film several of this author's best works.

"The Triangle Ranch Studio" is the new name selected for the eighteen hundred acre tract along the beach beyond Santa Monica where Triangle Western, starring Roy Stewart, are produced. This ranch was formerly known as Inceville and more recently as Hartville.

John G. Ceurvorst, who has been assistant in the wardrobe department at the Triangle studios for some time, has been promoted and now has full charge of this important department of the studios.

Douglas Fairbanks in "Headin' South," for Artcraft, Lets Not the Tropical Sun Lessen His Well-Known Enthusiasm

Paralta Paragraphs

Bessie Barriscale has started work on her sixth feature production for the Paralta under the direction of Raymond B. West. R. B. Kidd and Jane Holly are the authors of the story which was adapted for the screen by Julian Lamothe. The scenes are laid in Scotland, and the working title of the subject is "Patriotism." Charles Gunn, well known for his work in Triangle subjects, has been engaged as leading man for Paralta Plays, and will first be seen opposite Bessie Barriscale in her present picture.

Production work is nearing completion on the first Paralta play which will have Louise Glaum as star, and known under the working title of "Intelligence." Monte M. Katterjohn is the author of the story and continuity, and Wallace Worsley is in charge of the direction.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM THE STUDIOS

[Realizing that the voluminous press agent material filling an exhibitor's mail often fails to provide the breezy little items so badly needed for program fillers and your newspaper photoplay editors, MOTION PICTURE NEWS has created this department. It will be conducted by Miss Dorothy Tarbell, and the gossipy personalities presented here will be gathered at first hand in the studios and from the players themselves. Not only the stars, but the lesser known players whose good work has often gained them popularity in different localities, will be treated in human, intimate fashion in this department.

In connection with this "clip-sheet" service for programs and newspapers, this department also offers all the facilities of the Motion Picture Studio Directory to exhibitors and players in forwarding mail, locating players, furnishing information regarding pictures in which different players have appeared, and so on.]

Those who will gasp at the marvelous snow scenes, supposedly of the Canadian Northwest, in WILLIAM FARNUM'S "ROUGH AND READY" should meet CARIBOU BILL COOPER, their deus ex machina. We have just had that pleasure and have heard about his Arctic city in reality, Port Henry, N. Y., where he can conjure into sight log cabin towns, Alaskan sledge dogs, trained horses, Yukon stage sleighs, and everything else necessary for a picture of the far North.

ANNA LUTHER, co-starring with JOHN MASON in "MORAL SUICIDE," is decidedly Billie Burkish in type. When we remarked upon it to her the other day she confessed to having an uncanny sensation that she was seeing herself when she saw Miss Burke on the screen.

"THE BUSHMAN CLUB," according to BEVERLY BAYNE, has grown out of its small beginning as a "fan" club built around the personality of her co-star, FRANCIS X. BUSHMAN into a regular organization with branches in every town. Its aim has expanded accordingly and is now directed toward co-operation with exhibitors for better, cleaner pictures.

"THE TRIUMPH OF VENUS" might well be "Nea," the daughter of Venus and the Sculptor, for she it is who expresses the poetry of motion in every step, every gesture. As Nea, Grace Hamel seems almost a rival of the one whose feet are the "lightest in all the world," Irene Castle.

HERBERT EVANS, who played opposite VIRGINIA PEARSON in "ALL FOR A HUSBAND" is again playing opposite her in "A DAUGHTER OF FRANCE." As Mr. Evans once served in the British army, his role as Major Von Meyring, a German officer, does not appeal to him as much as it might. A comparison of Mr. Evans' part as a shy, nervous woman hater in the former play with his new part as a cruel, domineering German, shows his versatility.

RUN A QUERY DEPARTMENT

A Popular Feature to Offer in Your Theatre Program

MANY exhibitors have found that one of the sure fire ways of making a weekly theatre program popular and in demand is to establish a "Question and Answer Column."

But most exhibitors, even those armed with a copy of Motion Picture Studio Directory, fear that they have not the facilities to conduct such a department satisfactorily.

This department, in collaboration with Motion Picture Studio Directory, is prepared to conduct a Question and Answer Department in your theatre program as a part of Motion Picture News Service to Exhibitors.

Merely announce that you are willing to answer in your program all questions submitted by your patrons. Gather the letters up on one day of each week, mail them to us and the answers will be returned promptly to you in shape for your printer.

You then have a service that makes your patrons look for your program regularly, that gives you an indication of the stars and pictures best liked by them and that links you, not as merchant and customer, but in an intimate, friendly fashion.

HAZEL MILLS ADAMS, the "Superstitious Girl" of James Montgomery Flagg, has stepped out of the ingenue class in "The Debt of Honor" and portrays the strong emotional role of the young wife.

PEGGY PARR, erstwhile Peggy Sweeney, but rechristened last year (in St. Augustine) by GEORGE BAKER, whose esthetic sense was hurt by the original cognomen, has a part in EMMY WEHLEN'S new picture.

"I'm beginning to realize how much work there is for a movie star outside of the studio," said BARBARA CASTLETON, upon being congratulated by us on her new World affiliation. "I am spending all my time at home being photographed in every conceivable position, reading, eating, dressing, telephoning. My apartment reeks of flash light powders. My curtains are torn. My rugs are piled up. My furniture pushed back. Pandemonium reigns supreme."

BERT LYTELL is going to disappoint the fan public which has been clamoring to see him in the sequel to "The Lone Wolf," since work on it has been discontinued for the present. We hear he is now connected with Metro.

OLIVE TELL, the charming heroine of "The Girl and the Judge," will soon be doing her bit on Sundays by appearing opposite William Courtney and Tom Wise in "General Post," before various cantonments.

MOLLY PEARSON and RICCA ALLEN, who first met each other while "seeing the Pyramids" in Egypt several years ago, recently met again as members of the cast of "The Passing of the Third Floor Back."

HELENA CHADWICK, leading lady of the "Naulakha," is now an authority on the Segal lock, "invented by a policeman" and "guaranteed unpickable." The raison d'etre is that she returned to her apartments a few days ago to find her drawers ransacked and all her lingerie missing. No, this is not a press story for we saw the shiny new locks and also the empty drawers, though they are fast being refilled.

Imagine our great surprise to have LUCILE SATTERLEE walk in our office, and discover that she was the LUCILE SATHERWAITE who was one of our boarding school chums at Sweet Briar, Va., a few years ago. She entered filmdom by way of a fan magazine beauty contest in which she won the highest honor. We shall most certainly view with keen interest her appearance in "AMERICAN BUDS" and "WOMAN AND THE LAW."

Some company of MAY ALLISON'S. Star's colored maid sits breathless on the edge of her chair watching every expression on her mistress' face. Cameraman, brother by the way, of the one who shot all Miss Allison's pictures with Harold Lockwood, grins delightedly as he cranks. Cast sits up and takes notice instead of lolling apathetically around. Director beams paternally upon his new star. Our suggestion is to watch for "SOCIAL HYPOCRITES."

NAOMI CHILDERS' mother tells us that Naomi has deserted the pictures for the present and is appearing in Chicago on the legitimate stage opposite H. B. Warner in "Among Those Present."

FOR YOUR PROGRAM AND NEWSPAPERS

ANITA SNELL, henceforth to be known as ANNE MAY, is Bobbie Connelly's lady love in the last Sidney Drew comedy, "A Youthful Affair." Her wardrobe is one to be proud of. Each gown is designed and fashioned by her clever young mother and each is a masterpiece in its way. Our advice to young ladies of ten or thereabouts is to watch for Anne May and get pointers from her for their own wardrobes.

We cannot imagine MME. PETROVA "thoroughly domesticated in private life" despite the assertions of a press agent. She may have a beautiful estate on Long Island and an eminent husband, Dr. John D. Stewart, but her spirit is miles above mere domesticity in any phase of life.

BETTY BLYTHE feels as if she had been brought up to play "Mme. Arnot" in the Empey picture, "Over the Top." When a very little girl she preferred French history to fairy tales. She was fascinated by the Revolution and used to pretend that she was one of the ill-fated ladies of the time. Later, in school, she liked French history better than any other subject. Still later, between pictures she read all the historical romances of French history. Now she feels that she has come into her own as she portrays Mme. Arnot, a French woman, beautiful, brave, true, who dies "pro patria." No wonder her portrayal is deep and convincing.

MONTE KATTERJOHN and GUY EMPEY agree on a certain matter. They may be surprised to have their names linked, but each has expressed to us within the last week the same idea, one on paper and one in person. Mr. Katterjohn deplores the prevailing tendency of the continuity writer to allow his imagination to soar so that he creates new characters and new situations to the detriment of those on which the original author laid particular stress. Mr. Empey, in the course of a conversation about pictures, forcibly expressed his disgust at those scenario writers who hopelessly distort the original works of well known authors and then demand credit for having evolved something bigger and better than the original.

PRIVATE R. H. KELLY, formerly studio manager of the Empire All Star Mutual, writes us in most glowing terms of the 144th Field Artillery at Camp Kearny, Cal. PRIVATE WHEELER OAKMAN, leading man for Edith Storey, and PRIVATE ART ACORD, lately in Fox pictures, share his tent with him. PETER B. KYNE, whose tales of the sea everyone knows, is their captain.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

Anita Snell, Bobby Connelly and Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew, a Delightful Foursome in "A Youthful Affair"

Studio Directory Fills Want

Is Hailed as a Contribution to the Industry by Film Executives, Casting Directors and Players—Moves Forward

THE MOTION PICTURE NEWS Studio Directory, 1918 edition, has barely had time to come forth spick-and-span from the bindery before causing a trail of letters and messages of commendation to find its way into MOTION PICTURE NEWS office. There remains no doubt, following the counting of the first "returns," that the directory has filled a long-felt want and has been hailed by the entire industry as a valuable contribution to the literature of the industry.

The very completeness of the volume is but one of the many points that have been spoken of highly by film people. Its attractiveness, in lay-out of advertising and biographies, is another high light that has not gone unnoticed or unpraised. In fact, the directory is the most comprehensive thing of its kind ever distributed among the studios and business offices of the industry. On the desks of all theatre managers, photoplay editors and casting directors the directory will be found, and there it is "doing its bit" as faithfully as any book of the sort ever published—even better.

But the directory does not stop at this stage of perfection, elaborateness or completeness. Plans are going forward steadily, with thorough organization, for the next edition, which will surpass in every way the present one. A staff is maintained for this work all the year, under the direction of Miss Dorothy Tarbell.

Many interesting articles are being prepared for next year's edition, which should mark a big stride forward in a work of this nature. Already a great number of those who have found past editions valuable, especially the 1918 one, are putting in their orders for copies and space for next year.

The poker players of your town should attend "CARMEN OF THE KLONDIKE" en masse if only to see the most realistic bit of poker playing that has appeared on the screen in some time. We predict they will stay to watch the flashing eye, the shining black hair and the gleaming shoulders of CLARA WILLIAMS, a most seductive Carmen.

A certain Omaha exhibitor knows the tricks of the trade. While showing "Empty Pockets" he is admitting to his theatre free of charge all girls with red hair, because the three stars, BARBARA CASTLETON, PEGGY BETTS and SUSANNE WILLA, are supposedly possessed of that same.

Screen Examinations

"Amarilly of Clothesline Alley"

(Artcraft—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

COMING after "Stella Maris," "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley," Mary Pickford's latest feature offers a striking contrast. While the adaptation from Locke's work was drama this one which springs from a novel by Bell K. Maniates, is largely if not wholly humorous. That Miss Pickford is a comedienne of the first water has long since been established, but it remained for her Amarilly and its setting to give full play to her abilities along this line. She renders a performance full of humor as the tough little specimen of humanity from Clothesline Alley, who is gradually molded into something a little more genteel but not less genuine by experiments of the august Mrs. Stuyvesant Phillips. Through the part runs a delicate undercurrent of pathos that contributes the right touch of charm to the character. It only reaches the surface in the last scenes when little Amarilly sorrows at the side of her wounded hero, Terry McGowan, and in this short space she turns the scales by a mere scene in which the observer, before in spasms of laughter, becomes as concerned of Amarilly's happiness as she is over the recovery of Terry.

The worth of "Amarilly of Clothesline Alley" is in its contrast of high and low slices of life and the realistic manner in which each is presented. It is true that Director Marshall Neilan has at times resorted to burlesque in quest of a laugh in a manner that brings Mack Sennett to mind, but surely this is not to be held against him as both these and all other efforts register most effectively. The introduction of Amarilly's mother, a product of the Emerald Isle, and her array of young sons into the home of Mrs. Phillips is uproariously funny. This sort of action has been done time and again but certainly never with such capable handling. Kate Price as the mother gets in some excellent work and has the benefit of speaking a number of comedy lines in the subtitles. The subtitles are throughout excellently chosen and placed and add a hundred per cent to the picture itself. This is perhaps just as much of a tribute to Frances Marion as the perfectly Pickford quality of her adaptation.

The reviewer cannot however begin to enumerate the various incidents, each a delight in itself, that serve to make "Amarilly" the one continuous delight it is. There is small amount of actual plot but the interesting contrasts, its abundant comedy, the few snatches of pathos and above all—Mary Pickford, make it a picture that will satisfy every patron. Mr. Neilan's production meets every exigency of the story and is finished with that artistic polish that has been consistently placing his work in that small class where "excellent" and "splendid" are words that but describe it inadequately.

William Scott makes a very human person of Terry McGowan, the bartender, and Norman Kerry is a most satisfactory scion of a rich family who discovers that Amarilly is not for him. The cast appearing in support is well chosen.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Amarilly (Mary Pickford), oldest child of Mrs. Jenkins (Kate Price) is discharged from her job at the "theatre" where she is scrub lady, and takes one selling cigarettes at a bowery cafe, where Terry McGowan (William Scott) works as bar-tender. It is here she meets the rich and handsome Gordon Phillips (Norman Kerry), who lands at the cafe drunk among a party of drunks. In a fight he is knocked around considerably and Amarilly takes him to her home for attention. In payment for her kindness he gives her a job cleaning his studio. Mrs. Stuyvesant Phillips (Ida Waterman), a charity organizer for publicity's sake decides to experiment with Amarilly and subsequently she is given a place in her home. Wealth detracts none from her genuine character, though it adds to her charm. Gordon finds himself falling in love with her, and Terry decides he's through with women. But Mrs. Phillips, anxious that Gordon marry Colette King (Margaret Landis), invites Amarilly's family to a tea to shock him from his romance. But while he still fancies himself in love with her, Amarilly realizes the wide gulf that separates them socially and returns to Terry who is only too eager to welcome her.

Thomas H. Wilson, Fred Goodwins, Herbert Standing, Wesley Barry, Frank Butterworth, Antrim Short, George Hackathorne and Gertrude Short complete the cast.

"The Song of the Soul"

(Vitagraph—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"THE SONG OF THE SOUL" presents Alice Joyce in an appealing, sympathetic role. Her characterization of the featured role is one of her best efforts before the camera. The picture presents the class of drama that always appeals because it treats of the mother instinct and reveals incidents that happen in every day life. Shannon Fife wrote the story and it was produced for the screen by Vitagraph under the direction of Tom Terris. The photography is good throughout and Director Terris has given the picture a faithful production.

Some of the main incidents of the story have been created by a stretch of the imagination—not that any incident verges onto the improbable but that the author has relied upon convenient coincidents to carry his plot along into five reels. Strictly speaking, there is no reason in the world why Ann Fenton could not have taken her little son to the city with her before his adoption by the country people. If this were done in the first or second reel, when it should have been done, there would not have been five reels of pictures. Therefore the author was obliged, if he wanted to continue his plot, to resort to a questionable legal technicality as a connecting link between the first two and the last three reels of plot material.

But the big, human quality predominates the defects in plot construction and "The Song of the Soul" is rendered by Miss Joyce and a capable supporting cast, with such a nice degree of appreciation for the human touch, that this Vitagraph offering will go over with any audience.

Percy Standing, as the unprincipled husband, is a good type and presents the role with appreciation. Walter McGrail, in a straight role, does commendable work. Barney Randall is fine in a character role. Edith Reeves does good work. Stephen Carr, a youngster, works before the camera lie a veteran. His part is presented with finesse.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ann Fenton (Alice Joyce) is happily married, as she supposes. She learns that her husband (Percy Standing) is wanted for bigamy, that he is a gambler and a worthless man. Billy, their child, is taken from his mother, when the husband leaves to evade the hand of the law. Ann goes to the city and there becomes assistant to a noted surgeon, Dr. Evans (Walter McGrail), who falls in love with her, and asks her to marry him. She marries him after seven years away from her former husband. She yearns to have her boy with her, and makes frequent visits to the country where he has been adopted by a family who treats him cruelly. She asks her husband, the doctor, if she can adopt a boy. He consents, and Billy is brought home after Ann has bought off the family who adopted him.

Her former husband turns up and demands that Ann assist him in his work of gambling. He has opened a gambling resort in a house owned by Dr. Fenton. Butch (Barney Randall) is his partner. Ann refuses to assist her former husband in his plans, and he threatens to expose her past life to her husband, the doctor. As they are talking, Dr. Evans walks in and orders Ann's former husband from the house, telling him that he has heard all about the way he treated Ann.

"Cleopatra"

(Kleine—Eight Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

GEORGE KLEINE'S "Cleopatra," like his "Quo Vadis," is a revamped and revised edition of what was one of his big successes several years ago. It has been brought forth to prove again that progress is a slow march after all, and that the high point of the cinema art today is but a short jump beyond what it was four years ago.

Like "Quo Vadis," "Cleopatra" is a big spectacular feature. It is ably presented and contains a few magnificent scenes showing soldiers marching along the seashore as far as the eye can see. The story itself is the old familiar tale of how Antony, the great Roman conqueror, overcomes the soldiers of Cleopatra and bids the queen herself come and kneel before him, only to be subjugated himself. He falls a victim to this historic vampire, and while basking in her smile forgets the mission on which imperial Rome has sent him until her stalwart and multitudinous legionaries are pounding at the palace gates. In the battle which ensues, the troops of Antony and Cleopatra are worsted, and, rather than be captured, Antony drives a dagger into his heart, leaving the siren of the Nile to apply the asp to her bosom. It is an old story, but a good one, and one that stands retelling times without number.

"The Beloved Traitor"
(Goldwyn—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE BELOVED TRAITOR" is a pretty romance, with Mae Marsh featured. Frank L. Packard is its author. He took somewhat conventional characters and situations to build upon, but agreeable treatment and Miss Marsh's appealing personality, together with the few excellent flashes of acting which she shows, make it a picture the value of which is at least a few notches above the average five-reel feature. The production, with its beautiful series of seaside scenes and its regard of the smallest details, lends a perfect atmosphere to the story. Hugo Ballin, art director, has seen to this angle of the presentation, and among other things it will be noted that the work of the hero, a sculptor, does not remind one of children's mud pies, as is so often the case.

Much was written regarding the subtitles of "A Beloved Traitor" prior to its release. These were penned by George Loane Tucker and Kenneth McGowan. So much was said in praise of them, in fact, that the writer was ready to mention even a misplaced comma, so it is pleasing to note that every one of them comes up to the praise bestowed. They are in tune with the action, nicely worded and well placed. William Worthington directed and he has presented Mr. Packard's story in good taste. He has not labored his work with innumerable and unnecessary close-ups of his star, which omission, though it serves to hold up the meagerness of Miss Marsh's part, is praiseworthy nevertheless. When she does appear at close range it is to register some emotion that definitely advances the story.

Her support is headed by E. K. Lincoln as the sculptor-hero. He is not possessed of either wavy or long hair, he doesn't pose or go into violent spasms of emtion, but plays his part with all the sincerity at his command, which in passing is considerable. Hedda Hopper in a heavy female role registers well and George Fawcett is excellent in a character part, though one misses the comedy he knows so well how to put over.

THE STORY AND THE PLAYERS

Mary Garland (Mae Marsh), a fisher lass, loves and is loved by Judd Minot (E. K. Lincoln), a fisherman with a natural talent for modeling. A sample of his work is seen by Bliss (George Fawcett), art connoisseur, with the result that Judd ultimately goes to the city and studies under his patronage. The friends of Myrna Bliss (Hedda Hopper) become his friends and as a consequence his work suffers, for it is a fast, gambling and drinking set to which he gains admittance. Though he gains fame in his art, his work lacks the spiritual quality which made Bliss single him out as a coming genius. On a night of revelry when he has been awarded a long coveted prize, Mary surprises him. While he is absent from the room his friends discover her and readily see the resemblance between her and the faces of all his modeling. He enters and takes her away from them, then and there realizing that Mary is his sole inspiration. Paul Drayton (Bradley Barker), who covets Myrna, seizes his chance to place his rival, Judd, in a bad light and makes insinuating remarks as to his relationship with Mary. A fight ensues, during the course of which the prize statue is smashed to bits, but with Mary safe in his presence, Judd realizes that he can create another greater and finer.

J. A. Furey, Louis R. Grisel and Chester Morris are others in the cast.

"Miss Cinderella"
(Mutual-Strand—One Reel)
Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

THIS interesting Strand release features the capricious Billie Rhodes in a role somewhat different from the regular run, for here she decides to meet the young man her father has selected as her life mate, but that meeting must take place on terms which she will lay down. Mary (Billie Rhodes) pictures the young man, whom she has never seen, as indolent and absolutely untrustworthy, who sees only her dollars and who doubtless would not trouble himself about her were she penniless. She, therefore, poses as a hard-working sewing girl and, "overcome by starvation and overwork," she faints right in his path. Contrary to her prediction, however, Jack carries her to her home, stocks the larder with the necessities of life and eventually learns the girl's identity, when all goes well. It is a worth while single-reeler, to which Billie Rhodes does ample justice.

"The Debt of Honor"
(Fox—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

IN "The Debt of Honor" Peggy Hyland makes her debut as a start under the banner of William Fox. Taken all in all the debut is most auspicious. She has been provided with a good supporting cast, a production not only lavish but perfect in detail, and above all a good story. So perfectly does it fit her distinctive type of beauty, her youth, her manner of acting and her every mannerism that it seems it must have been conceived and written with her in mind, and her alone, as the star. If this is the case then the more to be commended is the work of Eve Unsell, the author.

As for the star it must be said that her work is highly impressive in this picture. And this is admitted by no means grudgingly but in the lingering memory of some of her past productions in which her efforts proved the dispair of conscientious critics. Blessed with beauty in unusual measure she gave promise of becoming one of the great stars of pictures, but not until now has she seemed fully to rise to her possibilities. Here, however, she not only surpasses expectations but successfully scales the very heights of emotionalism, never once lapsing into the mechanical which so marred, at times, her previous work.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Honor (Peggy Hyland), an orphan of unknown origin, has often dreamed and as often has told of the Land of Heart's Desire. She has just finished telling the story once more to the little children of an invalid neighbor when Stanley Middleton (Eric Mayne), a wealthy U. S. Senator, who is childless, enters the house to get warm, his car being temporarily disabled. Honor immediately attracts him, and at his urgent request she goes to live at the Middleton home as their adopted daughter. Three years later, on her return from boarding school, she meets and falls in love with Chester Holbrook (Irving Cummings), the Senator's secretary. Frank Schiller (Frank Goldsmith) is a German spy, who is using Irma Middleton, the Senator's wife (Hazel Adams), to get War Department from the Senator's desk. Middleton returns home early one night, and sees on the window shade the images of two embracing lovers. They are Irma and Schiller, but Irma tells her husband the woman is Honor. Middleton accuses the girl, and rather than tell him his wife is untrue, she leaves the house in silence. The very next day she traps Schiller, and telephones Middleton to come quickly to Schiller's room. Irma, who has listened on the 'phone, gets there first. In the mixup both Schiller and Irma are killed. Honor, vindicated, marries Chester, and they "adopt" the broken-hearted Senator.

"Sunshine Nan"
(Famous Players-Paramount—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE producers have hitched their vehicle to a star in "Sunshine Nan"—the star being Ann Pennington—and she has found it somewhat difficult travelling or so it seems to the innocent bystander. Particularly is this the case over the first half of the picture. Miss Pennington's personality is not striking enough to carry scene after scene when there is no evidence of plot. Here she is seen as the tomboy-girl, playing in the streets, fighting with the rival gang, suffering big and little hurts at the hands of a slovenly step-mother, comforting her weak-willed and hen-pecked father and performing before the camera any number of times in scenes that were builded solely for her special benefit.

When at length the plot puts in an appearance it proves to be a simple, obvious bit of melodrama, evidently fashioned by the author for the express purpose of carrying the pretty and appealing word pictures of her book. It is one of Alice Hegan Rice's works and appeared between the covers of a book under the title of "Calvary Alley." But whatever merit the original work possessed has diminished considerably during the transfer to the celluloid. Mainly because of the reasons expressed above, and secondly because the characters are miscast. Leaving Miss Pennington out of the question for the moment and turning to the other two principals of the cast one is forced to remark that Johnny Hines is unfitted for the role of the serious-minded young inventor and that Richard Barthelmess typifies the heavy in nothing but actions.

Eve Unsell made the adaptation from the book and Charles Giblyn directed. The production, with its many slum scenes and settings, is satisfyingly realistic.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Nance Molloy (Ann Pennington), a child of the slums, is sent to the reformatory for attempting to stop a drunkard from beating his wife. Released after four years she obtains a job in a shoe factory, where Dan Lewis (John Hines), her girlhood sweetheart, works in the laboratory. MacPherson Clark (Richard Barthelmess), son of the owner of the factory, has not benefitted by his four years in college, and is the same good-for-nothing with whom Nan used to fight in the streets. He is in trouble with a woman, and refused money by his father plans to steal the formula for a leather dye that Dan has invented. It is through Nan that this plan is prevented. Clark seeks forgiveness, and Dan's patent is bought by the factory owner, which puts him on easy street and enables him to make Nan his wife.

"The Floor Below"

(Goldwyn—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

MABEL NORMAND makes her second appearance as a screen star under the banner of Goldwyn in "The Floor Below," a comedy-drama in six parts by Elaine Sterne. The production maintains the Goldwyn standard—which should be a sufficient endorsement to satisfy the curiosity of exhibitors. There is an abundance of humor in the piece, ranging all the way from the most delicate subtleties right up to the boundaries of refined horseplay, and through it all the little star goes rollicking along in her inimitable, irresistible way. Nor is her performance untinctured with those little heart throbs which on past occasions she has demonstrated that she is so capable of conveying to her audience.

Be it said, regretfully, that the title, "The Floor Below," means nothing, or if it does mean anything the average spectator will hardly sense it. There is an upstairs and a downstairs in the Rescue Mission building where some of the action takes place, and there is a similar arrangement in the home of Hunter Mason, but nothing necessarily suggestive of the title is revealed.

The usual Goldwyn lavishness of production and attention to detail are in evidence, the direction being that of Clarence G. Badgar. Tom Moore, in the leading male role, is at once attractive and convincing as Hunter Mason, whoee hobby it is to salvage human wrecks, and Wallace McCutcheon creditably portrays the crooked secretary. As the managing editor Willard Dashiell presents a type which fortunately is rare, else there never would be any danger of an overcrowded newspaper profession. The remainder of the cast is fully adequate.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Patricia O'Rourke (Mabel Normand) is a copy girl in a newspaper office and gets into a scrape which leads to her discharge. But she is given one more chance when the managing editor (Willard Dashiell) sends her to the Star of Hope mission, conducted by Hunter Mason (Tom Moore) to follow up a police clue concerning a series of robberies of rich homes and thereby secure a beat for the newspaper. She enters the place quite unceremoniously and is taken by Mason and his secretary, Latham (Wallace McCutcheon), to be a crook in need of reforming. She is taken to Mason's home and placed in the care of his mother. There she meets Louise Vane (Helen Dahl) who, though making a bid for Mason's affections, is secretly in love with Latham. There is a benefit dance in the Mason home for the mission and a contribution box, containing much money, is hidden in a book case for safe keeping. Latham is warned that the police are after him and late that night persuades Louise to steal the money for him before he makes his get-a-way. She is caught in the act by Patricia and tries to throw suspicion on the girl. The arrival of the police and the arrest of Latham, however, sets her right with everybody, especially Mason.

"The House of Hate"

(Pathe—Third Episode)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE action in this number entitled "A Woman's Perfidy" is entirely taken up in casting Harvey Gresham, the hero, in a light that reflects to his discredit with Pearl. Pearl's three relatives, all anxious to gain control of the Waldon works, being jealous of Harvey's favored position, plan a frameup. It is evident that he is not the poor experimenter he pretends to be. Naomi visits his town apartment knowing that Ezra and Haynes plan to bring Pearl there. She leaves her muff lying on a chair and when Pearl sees it her faith in Harvey is shattered. Later in a fight with the Hooded Terror, Harvey gets the worst of it. He is left lying unconscious with the black robe about him. Pearl finds him and is convinced that he is her father's murderer. The mystery is heightened by the constant suggestion of the author and director that either Ezra or Haynes may be the Hooded Terror.

"Brace Up"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"BRACE UP" features Herbert Rawlinson as a young man who loses his nerve until he hires several people to practice a New Thought scheme with him as the objective, and when it works he is able to clean up a whole room full of villains and save the heroine from their chief. A glance at the synopsis would indicate that Elmer Clifton originally prepared this idea in comedy form and if such was the case it was most praiseworthy. The possibilities in showing various and sundry people in the city thinking of the hero as a tower of courage at a certain hour with the consequence that he becomes such to completely vanquish a horde of adversaries and surprises all who refused to believe in him are numerous and suggest an almost unbounded supply of humor. However, Mr. Clifton in his capacity as director has failed to follow out his ideas as an author. "Brace Up" is played in serious vein, and as a consequence action that might have been funny and which is intended to be sustaining is somewhat dry and uninteresting.

The picture gets away to a lively start and promises to develop into thrilling melodrama, but the punch is lacking, largely because Mr. Rawlinson, clever actor though he is, fails to delineate his character as either a coward or a hero. It is only the subtitles that inform us that he has lost his nerve. The hazards that he undertakes indicate that he is one of the bravest of the brave. That is the main trouble with "Brace Up." It is not definite in its character and so is aggravating. And then too there is considerable padding toward the end when the action should have been speeded up.

Claire Du Brey, Alfred Allen and Sam De Grasse are the other principals.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Henry Court (Herbert Rawlinson) playing his last football game at college loses his nerve when he realizes that the members of the opposing team are dong all in their power to disable him. He is taken out. His father, Colonel Court (Alfred Allen), holding a high position in the Secret Service of his country, is quite disgruntled over this, but decides to see if his boy will make good in a more hazardous undertaking. Jim (Sam De Grasse), a smuggler, is known to have thirty thousand dollars' worth of radium concealed on his person, and Henry is commissioned to procure it. His fiancee, Ellen (Claire Du Brey), unknown to Henry, is also in the Secret Service, and is commissioned on the same job. She uses woman's wiles on Jim, and as a consequence Henry gets jealous and quits. Jim secrets the radium in the heel of one of Ellen's slippers. Later she also is forced to confess failure, though she still remains on the job. She visits a country place operated by Jim in a further effort to find it. All the time she pretends to be in love with him. Henry, realizing his fault, heeds the advice of the family doctor, and seeks out a number of men, and gives them order to think of him as exceedingly courageous at midnight. Midnight finds him prowling about Jim's house, and he enters just in time to save her from the villain who has discovered her identity. In a fight the house catches fire, and Henry carries Ellen to safety. And to prove his nerve he returns to rescue the unconscious Jim from the flames. The doctor's trick has worked. As for the radium that has been placed in the hands of the head of the department by Ellen's maid, also a member of the Service.

"Woman and the Law"

(Fox—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE De Saulles murder case and the trial of Blanca De Saulles, a gruesome slice of two lives, the tragedy of which lay in their contrast, has been made the basis of William Fox's special picture, "Woman and the Law." R. A. Walsh in making his scenario followed closely evidence brought out at the trial. That is apparent in more places than one. He has not sought to improve on a melodrama which might have been struck off for the special use of the motion picture director. And as a result "Woman and the Law" is a thrilling and sustaining picture, the climax of which, though known to the first night audience which attended the Lyric, came with a crash of power because of the craft of Walsh, the writer and director.

It is in truth a picture that will hold one absorbed throughout its length so well is it presented and acted. All through the many dismal episodes that comprise the married life of Jack "La Salle" and "Blanquetta" the premonition of impending disaster works to heighten instead of to dull the interest. Much of this is due to the excellent work contributed by the principals. Miriam Cooper in her portrayal of the harassed Blanquetta gives a performance of wonderful appeal. The writer has often before claimed that Miss Cooper has no superiors in rendering a character suffering under the strain of too long suppressed emotion. And as Blanquetta, the Chilean beauty, whose environment and teachings have molded a temperament in exact juxtaposition to that of her husband, she scores a tremendous personal success. Ramsay Wallace, whose first appearance on the screen was made in "The Grain of Dust," and whose success there immediately marked him for bigger things makes the Jack La Salle of the picture the typical rounder, the "good fellow" of Broadway which usually means the "bad fellow" of the home. For purposes of melodrama he is every inch the villain, to be despised—not to be pitied. And then there is Jack Connors as the boy, a manly little fellow, and Winnifred Allen, who plays Blanquetta at the time of her marriage. Peggy Hopkins as La Salle's mistress gives a fully adequate performance.

Frankly advertised as "based on the sensational Jack De Saulles case," the general character of "Woman and the Law" suggests itself. It is sensational, highly so. It smacks of the risque in those scenes between La Salle and his mistress, but why shouldn't it? One doesn't expect a man with such a woman to be exactly conventional. There are also some subtitles that are exceedingly pointed. Some will criticise them because they say what they mean, because what they mean is not spoken of in schools and at church teas.

Now as for the picture's moral and its manners. "Woman and the Law," concludes that there are some circumstances which permit a woman to kill—but it only comes to this conclusion because a jury of twelve men came to it. Its manners are not so polite. Jack De Saulles is dead. Better had his name been forgotten than flaunted in the faces of the living under the thin disguise of Jack La Salle. But withal "Woman and the Law" is mighty in its appeal.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jack La Salle (Ramsay Wallace), notorious Broadway character, marries Blanquetta Del Castillo (Winnifred Allen), South American heiress. He brings her to New York and after the birth of a child spends his time and her money in his old haunts. Josie Sabel (Peggy Hopkins) attracts him and she shortly becomes his mistress. Six years later Blanquetta (Miriam Cooper) suffers her husband's conduct in silence, finding happiness only with her boy (Jack Connors). But Jack's treatment of her goes from bad to worse and when finally she discovers that he has taken her son to the home of his mistress she takes action for a divorce. This is granted with the stipulation that she shall have the boy seven months of each year. One afternoon Jack sends for his son as he is stopping with his father and sister. He promises to return him at six o'clock. The hour comes and goes and little Jack does not return. Nervous to the breaking point, Blanquetta finally calls up the home of the senior De Saulles (John Laffe), Jack makes the butler tell her he is at the club. Taking a cab she goes for her boy. When she reaches the house her ex-husband taunts her with the statement that she may never have her son again. Distracted she draws a pistol and shoots him. And the jury sitting in judgment on her act turns in a verdict of "Not Guilty."

George Humbert, Agnes Nielson, Louis Drayton and Lillian Satherwaite complete the cast.

"Powers That Prey"

(Mutual-American—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

IT falls to the lot of Mary Miles Minter to play the leading role in the most delightful picture Mutual has put out during 1918, for the facts are not being stretched in the least when "Powers That Prey" is so characterized. Fairly bubbling over with fine, wholesome humor that hits your funny bone with unerring accuracy, exhibitors will find this a good production to dispel the war depression.

The story hinges on the complicated and amusing situations which arise when an editor's ambitious daughter decides to run her father's paper during his absence. She starts out by firing the dynamic young newspaper man who has been left in charge, and fixing up her office like a girl's boudoir in a boarding school. The fun starts when, in fastening a bow on the back of her desk chair, the ribbon tears, and the young lady sits down and writes a tirade against the store that sold her the ribbon. She uses an eight-column head for her story and fires the managing editor when he protests.

Henry King, the director, deserves a vote of confidence for his able handling and realistic presentation of the newspaper part of the story.

Miss Minter does her usual good work and is well supported by Harvey Clarke, Alan Forrest and Clarence Burton. Lucille Ward, Emma Kluge, Perry Banks and Robert Miller are also in the cast.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Sylvia Grant (Mary Miles Minter), whose father, Burton Grant (Harvey Clarke), is editor of the Daily News, inherits her father's journalistic talent, and is editress of the school paper where she attends. Burton Grant incurs the enmity of Jarvis McVey (Clarence Burton), the political boss, by exposing his attempt to betray the city in a railroad right-of-way deal which the latter is trying to push through the City Council. Grant is compelled to leave town to evade McVey and his gang. He goes to the school where Sylvia is finishing up her education, and asks her to go back and put Frank Summers (Alan Forrest), his young city editor, in charge. He tells her where she can find a power-of-attorney which she is to fill in with the name of Summers. Sylvia, however, fills in her own name, and begins to run the paper according to her own ideas.

She prints a number of original "scoops," and is getting in hot water all the way around when she passes a crowd of working people and hears the plot of McVey to betray the city expounded from the stump. She goes back to the office, and gets out an extra, stating that the politician ought to be tarred and feathered. Summers, who has been fired by the young editress for disagreeing with her on the value of various stories, decides to stay by the ship and help her all he can. The people become infuriated against McVey and threaten to carry out the tar and feather suggestion just as Grant returns from his trip. McVey decides to leave town, and Sylvia, concluding that her city editor is not such a bad sort after all, agrees not only to let him run the paper without her interference, but also to accept him as her husband as well.

"American Buds"

(Fox—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

JANE AND KATHERINE LEE, widely advertised as the Fox "Baby Grands," are presented in "American Buds," a six-reel production. It is a comedy-drama with a decided accent on the comedy. In fact, it is six reels of laugh—good, hearty roars. These kids have everything in the line of humor and human interest, as they demonstrated in "Two Little Imps" and "Trouble-makers," and in "American Buds" they have established themselves in the very front rank of comediennes of the screen, babies that they are. Jane has the laugh-provoking ability of a Charlie Chaplin, a Marie Dressler and a Sidney Drew all rolled into one tiny chunk of comic personality, while Katherine furnishes the pathos which makes the youthful combination absolutely irresistible.

For a considerable part of its length "American Buds" consists of two separate entities, one a comedy, the other a drama, which gradually converge in a most delightful finished production. At the beginning Jane and Katherine are seen in their poverty-stricken home. The overseer of the poor arrives on the scene and takes them to the poor farm. Arrived at the institution they proceed to turn things upside down. Jane finally runs away and brings up at an army post where she is recognized and taken back to the home. Eventually both are transferred to the post as the result of an apparently justified conclusion that they are the children of a young officer there. The latter is somewhat embarrassed owing to the fact that he is engaged to the colonel's daughter, but for the sake of some experimental work he is doing for the government falsely admits parentage rather than be dismissed in disgrace from the army, the fate with which the colonel threatened him. Now there is a spy among the officers at the post, and it is Jane who ultimately confounds him and in addition leads to the establishment of his identity as her father.

The story was written as well as skillfully directed by Kenean Buel. The photography and lighting are above the ordinary and the sub-titles are tabloid classics. Regina Quinn, Nora Cecil, Leslie Austin, Albert Gran, Maggie Weston and H. D. Southard perform acceptably in support of the tiny stars.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jane and Katherine (Jane and Katherine Lee) are orphans whose parentage is shrouded in mystery. Cecille Harding (Regina Quinn), daughter of Col. Harding (Albert Gran), is in love with Captain Bob Dutton (Leslie Austin), but also is courted by Capt. Drury (H. D. Southard), a former Austrian officer who is acting as a spy at the army post. The discovery of papers which appear to prove he is the father of Jane and Katherine upsets Bob's engagement, and, banished from the paternal hearthstone, he plunges into his experimental work on explosives for the government. The truth is not revealed until the end, when the spy is detected by Jane in an attempt to steal a report on Bob's experiments. The spy is shot and realizing that the end is near confesses that the children are his and that their mother is an older daughter of the colonel who had run away from home several years before. The children find a home with their grandfather, the colonel, who welcomes them to his heart.

"Shifting Sands"

(Pathe—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS number of "The Price of Folly" series shows the evils resulting from a hasty marriage. Elsa (Ruth Roland) weds Saranol (Frank Mayo), a rising lawyer, who neglects her for his business. She meets Bonner (Philo McCullough), a Westerner, and in time grows to love him. Saranol discovers this and grants her a divorce. Elsa returns to the West with Saranol and for a time is happy, but her second husband fails financially and takes to gambling and drinking. He mistreats Elsa and she applies for a divorce. Saranol, now a judge, is substituting in the district court. The first case on the calendar concerns his former wife. He listens to the case in chambers and manages to keep his identity from them. He grants the divorce and then attacks Bonner. With the man beaten he asks her to take him back but she refuses.

"The Devil's Wheel"
(Fox—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

CHARLES KENYON has given Gladys Brockwell a corking good story to interpret and she carries the part of the Apache queen with flying colors. "The Devil's Wheel" is told in five of the most entertaining reels of the silent drama. Edward Le Saint has directed with the eye of an artist, and no stone has been left unturned in producing an excellent photodrama. "The Devil's Wheel" ranks with the best five reelers produced by William Fox and will be received as such by motion picture audiences.

The strength and purpose of the story is perhaps the most salient feature of this offering. It is unusually strong in plot development; the action moves from introduction to climax without a hitch, excepting in the latter reels, where cutting would improve the story as presented for review. Neither the author nor the director have minced words in presenting their ideas. Both commence their work with a bang and both end with the same quantity and quality of noise. The play holds from first to last.

Gladys Brockwell works like an artist and interprets the ways and mannerisms of the Apache girl with a true artistic touch given her every action. Miss Brockwell is an excellent type for the part. There is not a moment during the run of the picture that an audience will feel that Miss Brockwell is out of place in the Apache world. And with the same finished work, she presents the role of the modest, unsophisticated daughter of the marquis. Her versatility is demonstrated in this picture and her presence is felt throughout the run.

William Scott in the role of the "Stag," a leader of the Apache, gives a performance that will elicit praise from any audience. He could have over-acted in many of the scenes, but not once does he permit his part to get the better of him. He affords excellent support to Miss Brockwell. Bertram Grassby executes the heavy villain role with appreciation. Mr. Grassby is a striking type and carries the heavy part with assurance. Lucille Young typifies the girl of the underworld. T. D. Crittendon, Pietro Buzzi and Andrew Robson are seen in supporting roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Marquis Henry de Montfort (Pietro Buzzi) has perfected a system for "beating" the roulette game. De Guise (Bertram Grassby) visits the Marquis' home and tries to induce the Marquis to let him in on the system. The Marquis demands a large sum of money for the secret. De Guise, refusing to pay the amount and desiring the secret of the game, beats the Marquis into insensibility and makes a get-away with the paper containing the secret. As he is leaving the room the Marquis' daughter, Blanche (Gladys Brockwell), sees him. She rushes to her father's side, and, seeing that he has been killed, faints. De Guise, in order to cover his tracks, takes the girl with him and flees in a waiting auto.

On the road to Paris, the "Stag" (William Scott), a leader of the Apache, stops De Guise, and, knocking him insensible, leaves him by the roadside while he jumps in the auto and goes with the unconscious girl to his den in the slums of Paris. Blanche wakes, but her mind is blank as to what had transpired. The Stag takes her to a gambling hall underneath the rooms occupied by him and introduces her to his friends. Blanche had often watched her father, the Marquis, working out the system of beating the roulette wheel. She is the only person besides De Guise who knows the secret. She places a few coins on the board and wins. It is not long before she has taken all the money in the bank. She used the system.

It is not long before she and the Stag have accumulated a fortune, and they go to Paris and enter the select gambling crowd where Blanche meets De Guise for the first time since her father's death. She quietly walks to his side and stabs him. She is arrested and brought before the Prefect of Police (Andrew Robson). A physician examines her, and says that an operation to remove a pressure from her brain will clear her memory. The operation is performed, and Blanche goes back to her old home. She longs for the Stag. He sends her a message that if she ever needs him to turn loose the dove which he had sent her. De Guise, who has recovered from the wound she inflicted, lives near her home. He meets her in the woods while hunting, and takes her back to his estate. The Stag learns of her predicament and goes to the rescue. They are united.

"Wanted—A Mother"
(World Film—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS is another Madge Evans feature which gets away from the beaten path usually followed by juvenile stories, and as a consequence may be counted upon to entertain with its originality. Not that it is in any way a strong drama. In fact, the sole moment of suspense comes in the final reel, when little Eileen (Madge Evans) goes under the knife and her father at last realizes how much she means to him. But the various joys and sorrows of Eileen, which comprise the body of the picture, will have a more than ordinary appeal with the lovers of the child picture. Little Madge is quite the most sincere of all the juvenile actresses appearing in films, and this trait, combined with her ability to sense the value of a situation, makes her work most appealing.

Helen Bearé is author of "Wanted—a Mother." The story derives its title from the child Eileen's loneliness after the death of her mother, when her father, a noted surgeon, finds little time to give her. A humorous episode is staged in the second reel when Eileen alters her father's advertisement, which he prepared, asking for a nurse, to read "Wanted—a Mother." The story of Guiseppe, the Italian, who loses his little boy, and the manner in which he brings father and daughter together again is well told and contains a touch of pathos.

George MacQuarrie is seen as Madge's father. Lionel Belmore gives an appealing characterization of the Italian, while Gerda Holmes and Rosina Henley complete the cast. Harley Knowles directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Eileen (Madge Evans) is neglected by her father, Dr. Homer (George MacQuarrie) after the death of her mother. Most of the doctor's time is spent at the hospital, where he buries himself in work in an effort to forget the tragedy of his wife's death. He fails to realize that Eileen needs his attention, believing that the servants and her governess, Marie (Rosina Henley), afford sufficient companionship for her. Guiseppe (Lionel Belmore) brings his sick boy (Tommy Evans) to the hospital, but owing to his weakened condition Dr. Homer's operation proves useless. The boy dies. Guiseppe, in a rage, attacks the doctor. Slightly hurt he is assisted home by Dr. Thelma Winter (Gerda Holmes), a brain specialist. Eileen meets Dr. Winter, and that night dreams about her as a fairy mother. She pursues this vision in her sleep, rising from her bed and walking out on the edge of a lake. She is rescued by Guiseppe, who has been hovering about aimlessly overcome with his sorrow. Guiseppe believes Eileen sent from heaven to take Tony's place, and takes her home with him. The next morning while he is out buying her breakfast she escapes to the roof. In descending the fire escape she falls, striking her head. She is taken to the hospital, and Dr. Winter operates on her brain, restoring her to consciousness. Guiseppe gets a position as Dr. Homer's gardener, and Eileen gets a new mother in Dr. Winter.

Pathe Comedies
("Fare Please" and "Let's Go")
Reviewed by Peter Milne

"FARE PLEASE" is a two-reel number produced at the Rolin Studio, by Hal Roach, featuring Toto. The early scenes of it afford the one-time Hippodrome clown a number of opportunities to show his ability as a tumbler. He is either exceedingly limber or peculiarly stiff at will. His gyrations on the dance floor and on the beach with the flock of pretty bathing girls are unusual in comedy value. Subsequently the action shifts to aboard and about a trolley car of which Toto is conductor and Bud Jamieson, motorman. Here it is fast and furious with the trolley car, its passengers, fixtures and operators serving to introduce a large assortment of new gags. Toto is constantly the central attraction and his new style is effective.

"Let's Go" presents Harold Lloyd running the soft-drink counter at a seaside resort. The bathing girls again, a wife with a naughty winking eye, aid the pretty girl at the "hot dog" counter are prominent in the action, and the rapid manner in which the tricks follow upon one another makes the reel singularly enjoyable. Lloyd may have peers in his line but as a consistent comedian he has no superiors.

Regarding "The Guilty Man"
(Paramount-Ince—Five Reels)
Reviewed by Peter Milne

IT now appears that the print of "The Guilty Man," shown for the trade press recently, and reviewed in the issue of Motion Picture News dated February 23, was one of those which had suffered from the unkind cuts of the Pennsylvania Censor Board. It was this body, instead of the editor, who quite spoiled the picture by changing its basic situation by the insertion of subtitles which were obviously out of key with the action. The whole action centres on the fact that Marie is the mistress of Claude Lescuyer. It is the breaking off of relations between them which precipitates the following dramatic moments of the play leading to the climax, when Claude is called upon to prosecute his own daughter, on trial for an attempt to save her mother from a terrible fate, really the result of the prosecutor's own cowardly actions.

But the Keystone Board took playwriting into its own hands. They introduced subtitles to the effect that Claude and Marie were married, and, as a consequence, the rest of the action was founded on nothing. Pennsylvania censors evidently cannot tolerate a mistress on the screen, even though she be used in a drama to point a scathing finger at the double standard of morals. No, indeed! They made the woman a wife and thought to preach against divorce. There is just about as much sense in this as there would be in altering the subtitles in a Mack Sennett comedy and attempting to pass the picture off as a serious melodrama. But Pennsylvania must suffer as a consequence!

With subtitles and cutouts restored, "The Guilty Man" becomes a strong, morally good picture. The criticism appearing on it in the former issue of the NEWS deals only with the Pennsylvania prints. In communities where common sense and legitimate leniency prevail among the local authorites, the exhibitor may be assured his money's worth when he books "The Guilty Man."

"Beauty in Chains"

(Universal—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

ADAPTED from a book by B. Perez Galdos, "Beauty in Chains" offers a mildly interesting romance laid in some of the prettiest scenes ever photographed. It lacks to a certain extent the snap and dash and the spirit of adventure that go hand in hand with the ideal romance, but the charming scenes it spreads before the eye makes up in a way for its lack of appeal to the other senses. The adaptation was made by E. J. Clawson and Elsie Jane Wilson directed the action.

Ella Hall and Emory Johnson interpret the leading roles, and have caught the romantic spirit necessary to make them attractive. Ruby La Fayette, as the proud old Spanish woman who does her best to prevent the happy culmination of her granddaughter's romance, gives a clever performance, but one looks for a more active leading heavy than this sweet old lady can render. The supporting cast, which includes Winter Hall and Harry Holden, does creditable work.

The locale is a sleepy town of Southern Spain and the atmosphere from the settings, scenes and the various people introduced to a more strict interpretation of the word is perfect. Excellent photogrpahy prevails throughout.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Don Jose (Emory Johnson), of Madrid, has been betrothed to Rosarito (Ella Hall) since childhood. Rosarito lives with her grandmother, Dona Perfecta (Ruby La Fayette), in the sleepy self-satisfied town of Orbajosa. Don Jose on a visit to her home finds himself truly in love with Rosarito, and she returns his affections. But when he lets drop a remark regarding the backwardness of the town, Dona Perfecta's ire is aroused. She is proud of it to the very stones in its streets, and thereafter all her energies and those of her advisor's, Don Cayetano (Winter Hall), are directed against Don Jose. He is prevented from seeing Rosarito, and nasty tales are circulated around the town about him making his lot very uncomfortable. At length, however, he discovers that it is Dona Perfecta who is the cause of all the trouble, and after giving her a piece of his mind he kidnaps Rosarito and, with little trouble, vanquishes the guard and leaves the unfriendly town behind.

Gretchen Lederer, George E. McDaniel, Maxfield Stanley and William Hakeem complete the cast.

"The Kaiser"

(Renowned Pictures—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

"THE KAISER" dramatizes patriotism more intensely than any other picture the writer has seen. It combines a wonderful characterization of the Kaiser rendered by Rupert Julian and an intimate drama of one family who suffered when the German hordes swept through Belgium. The two threads are excellently contrasted and brought together in the end by a piece of dramatic fancy that will raise the roof of the theatre. For in "The Kaiser" the war is ended and William of Hohenzollern, stripped of all his glory, is handed to the people of Belgium a prisoner after his surrender to the commanders of the Allied forces. This is, indeed, a logical ending when the contents of the picture are enumerated. And it has been staged with all the imaginative skill of the director—Mr. Julian. With a wonderful array of impersonations of the Allied heads—Generals Joffre, Diaz, Haig and Pershing and King Albert of Belgium—the scene of the war lord's surrender possesses all the impressiveness necessary to make it convincing. It is no mere piece of jingoism and hopeful flag-waving.

Interest in the picture is divided between Mr. Julian's wonderful presentation of the title role and the many and varied dramatic episodes that maintain the intensity throughout its duration. The opening episode in which the Captain of the Emperor's Guard strikes down his master because of an insult (a strong piece of drama based on historical fact) firmly plants the impossible arrogance of the Kaiser. Subsequently comes the outbreak of the war, the rape of Belgium and the decorating of the Captain of the submarine which torpedoed the Lusitania, with a special medal of honor. The intimate story of this Captain, wonderfully

Studios For Rent

Most conveniently located Studio in New York City—

318-320-322 East 48th Street.
Floor space—80 x 100.

Room for six good sized sets.

Carpenter shops equipped with latest machinery.

2000 Amperes gives any kind of light effects.

Will contract to furnish you your sets on a 10% basis, saving you your rent in lumber alone.

People can reach your Studio in four or five minutes. Props, on a minute's notice. No waits on account of location of Studio. A big money saver.

Rent by the week or month, also yearly leases.

Address ROLAND WEST
318 East 48th Street New York City

FOR RENT
KLUTHO STUDIOS

Jacksonville, Florida

22 West Ninth Street

OPEN AIR, AND COOPER-HEWITT LIGHTED, INDOOR STAGES; FULLY EQUIPPED

TWENTY-SEVEN HOURS FROM NEW YORK CITY

While the Northern Parks are under ice and snow, in Florida the flowers are blooming; the months of March, April, May, and June, are among the best for filming; then why not make your Pictures under a clear sky, in the KLUTHO STUDIOS, in the Sunny South?

played by N. de Brullier, who when he returns to his wife and children goes mad from rehearsing the consequences of his act, is gripping. Without any flashes of the sinking vessel, with no struggling women and children in the water, the immobile face of the actor in these scenes and the subtle suggestions of the directorial genius do more to create the illusion than any number of actual shots of the horrors. The Kaiser's historic meeting with Ambassador Gerard after the sinking is excellent in its suggestion of contrast between the representatives of autocracy and democracy. Joseph Girard made the part of the Ambassador stand out with realism.

The story of the Belgian family is of extreme pathos. It deals with the family of Marcas, a blacksmith of Louvain, its tragedy. His little son's brave defiance of a German officer is a bit that will bring forth cheers and his own handling of the officer when he insults his daughter is another wonderful piece of thrilling melodrama. Then comes the fervent prayer of the blacksmith and his daughter in the ruins of the church, a prayer for assistance, and with the stroke of a master, Mr. Julian has here turned to the United States and their preparation for war. Elmo Lincoln, of immense physique, plays with true feeling as Marcas—it is the best thing he has ever done. Ruth Clifford, also, shows further talents as his daughter.

And now for Mr. Julian's work as an actor. Two years ago in a program feature issued by Universal he so contorted his features without the use of makeup that we couldn't recognize him. It is this ability of his to so arrange his features after his original object without ever lapsing into his natural face that so well suits him to take the part. In some of his scenes he is so wonderful that one is torn between a desire to hiss the character or applaud the actor. It is when in anger or in fear that Mr. Julian is at his best. Without such a remarkable portrayal "The Kaiser" would easily be a big picture—with the benefit of his performance its bigness seems immeasureable.

Mr. Julian and Elliot J. Clawson collaborated on the story. Their work necessitated vast research and a knowledge of historical facts and with this foundation they have builded a drama that grows more intense with each reel. It is a mighty fine combination—this one of Julian and Clawson—a combination, which though long established will be extensively heard from in the future. The production is as everything else—excellent. The scenes in Louvain, those in the Kaiser's palace are copies. The uniforms, particularly those worn by Mr. Julian, are a marvel of correct detail.

Space forbids further enumeration of the picture's merits. We would like to mention every actor who essayed the roles of the Kaiser's advisors. They were imbued with a true sense of their parts, well made up and played with convincing reserve. But all things go to make "The Kaiser" great and its appeal to red blooded Americans is boundless.

"My Four Years in Germany"

(My Four Years in Germany, Inc.—Ten Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

AMBASSADOR JAMES W. GERARD'S widely read book, "My Four Years in Germany," relating his experiences as representative of the United States Government in the center of Prussianism makes a stirring patriotic propaganda as rendered into film form by Charles A. Logue, who prepared a scenario, and by William Nigh, who directed. Last Sunday night at the Knickerbocker theatre when the film received its premiere presentation, there was hardly a minute when the house did not ring with applause that turned into cheers. All the wily diplomacy with which the heads of the German nation sought to deceive the United States through its representative, all the atrocities witnessed by Mr. Gerard, such as the mistreatment of the English prisoners, the deportation of helpless Belgian women, perpetrated without regard for any sense of international law—these and a large assortment of views of Allied troops on the march make capital seeing for the man who goes into the theatre ready to have his emotions stirred against the common enemy.

While there is no personal story interwoven with the facts, these in themselves are fully dramatic enough to make the ten reels pass tirelessly. There is no stone left unturned to arouse the audience to a sense that the German manner of conducting war is synonymous with barbarism. One witnesses the heart rending sight of helpless prisoners shot down before German firing squads because "there will be less mouths to feed," of English and Russian soldiers placed in the same pens together so that the former contract diseases common among the latter and feeding of the prisoners as dogs. All of which Mr. Gerard was an eye witness—and more—is utilized to spread the propaganda.

The sense of humor of the director is ofttimes obvious. It was, indeed, a praiseworthy sense when it came to the production. One long line of actual horrors and of German intrigue would be rather fatiguing without some relief. This is introduced in the way of an element of burlesque on the German Emperor, the Crown Prince and the other war lords of Germany. These touches registered every time during the initial showing, and they are the kind that will be appreciated by any audience.

The scenes of real troops with which the film is crowded are well woven in to the matter picturized from Mr. Gerard's book, and usually to more rousing effect than if they had merely been shown by themselves. When the Kaiser laughs at his enemies it makes one feel pretty fine when these same enemies are shown preparing for battle with a vengeance.

Halbert Brown, a man who might be mistaken for Mr. Gerard by his best friend, impersonates him in the picture. He makes an impressive and dignified figure of the American diplomat. Mr. Gerard himself cannot complain, at least he didn't in his speech last Sunday night. Louis Dean presented a good makeup as the Kaiser and had he been imbued with some sense of the autocratic majesty of the part his characterization might have been perfect. Fred Hern and Percy Standing respectively playing Minister Von Jagow and Secretary Zimmerman succeeded in bringing out the cunning German diplomacy in realistic style. Earl Schenck as the Crown Prince, George Riddell as von Hindenburg, Frank Stone as Prince Henry, Karl Dane as Bethmann-Hollweg, and Arthur C. Duvel as von Falkenhayn generally have convincing makeups and play to good effect.

Mr. Nigh himself plays the part of a German social democrat whose excellent convictions are finally overwhelmed by inborn patriotism. His tragic story terminating with his final stand for helpless prisoners adds a valuable personal touch to the picture, though it is not very prominent. A. B. Conkwright, as his companion in the Reichstag, in whom blood lust predominates after the outbreak of the war, also contributes a valuable characterization.

"My Four Years in Germany" exposes the inner workings of the German political and military machine and lets its audience know why America is at war as clearly as did Mr. Gerard's book.

¶ Turn to page 1720 now and see our new "Exhibitor to Exhibitor Review Service" by P. S. Harrison

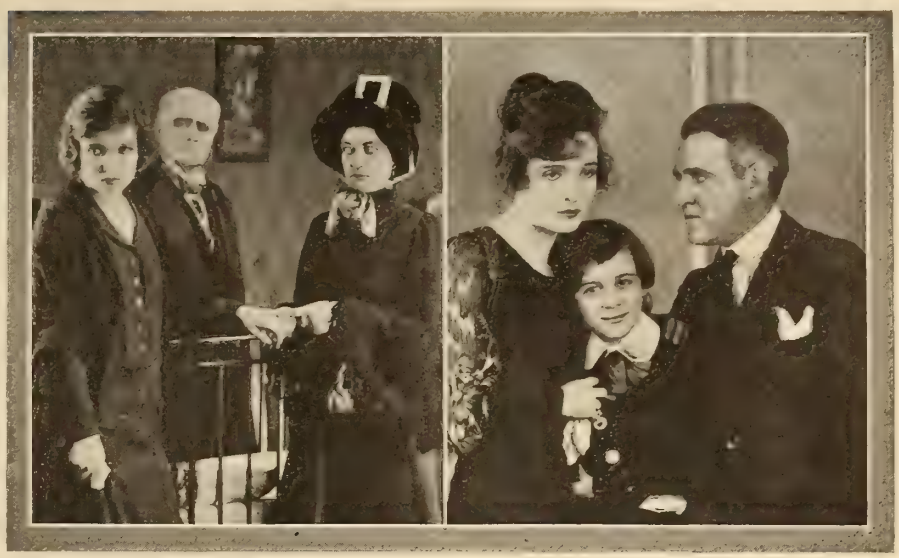
FOR RENT

Part of furnished office with film vault suitable for small exchange, 48th Street and Seventh Avenue, New York.

Address E. C. J., c/o MOTION PICTURE NEWS, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

Klutho Here to Boost Jacksonville

H. J. Klutho, owner of the Klutho Studios, Jacksonville, Florida, is in New York and says that he is going to convince the producers here that Jacksonville is the ideal place to take their companies during the winter season when sunshine and a background of foliage and "the good old summer-time" is desired for exterior shots. From all accounts of the Klutho Studios received from producers who have worked at Mr. Klutho's studios, he has an ideal place to work. On his arrival in New York Mr. Klutho said:



"I am going to impress on the producers of New York the fact that Florida is the ideal place for them to come when the summer atmosphere is wanted and they are covered with snow in the North. The very best months for exterior filming in Jacksonville are March, April and May, when the foliage is just breaking into bloom, presenting unending tints of verdure, productive of the most beautiful photographic effects.

"The Yorke-Metro-Harold Lockwood Company took most of the scenes of 'The Landloper,' Mr. Lockwood's most recent picture at the Klutho Studios and the adjoining country around Jacksonville. Harold J. Binney, Florida Funny Films Company, has recently finished his third comedy at my studio and Mr. Binney remarked that he had never found anything to surpass the Florida sunshine for photographic effects."

Mr. Klutho says that nearly twenty per cent of the cost of production can be saved by producing in Florida during the winter months.

Bashful Billy West and Ethel Gibson, King-Bee Box-Office Winners

Alice Joyce Is the Vitagraph Star In "A Song of the Soul," Released As a Blue Ribbon

Manitoba Exhibitors Elect President

At the annual meeting of the Manitoba Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association, held in Winnipeg, R. Kershaw, manager of the Wonderland theatre, was unanimously elected president of the body, vice H. S. Johnston, whose term of office expired and who has left the business. Mr. Kershaw, during the past year, has held the office of vice-president, and to that position George Graham, manager of the Avenue, was elected. Manager Ferguson of the Colonial and Manager Davis of the Star were re-elected secretary and treasurer.

St. John Gets Some Local Scenes

Manager Golding of the Imperial theatre has been showing sport pictures taken in the north of New Brunswick. Guide Allen of the New Brunswick Tourist Association has lectured at each performance, and this has attracted hundreds of sportsmen from all parts of the province.

The Nickel, the only five-cent house in St. John, is doing an enormous business. Mutual service is being shown here and is found to be all that the public requires.

At Chatham, when the city authorities ordered the motion picture houses to close on account of the smallpox scare, they were told that the managers would only be too willing to comply if compensation was made. The authorities refused, and so the theatres remained open, although the churches and schools were closed.

Exhibitor Lynn Visits Boston

Manager E. R. Lynn of the Casino, Sydney, N. S., has been in Boston for the past two weeks, and while there A. K. Mundee, manager of W. R. Harkins Players, has been keeping an eye upon the theatre for him, as well as doing the advertising. So cordial a business relation exists between these two gentlemen that advertisements for the Harkins Players are shown upon the Casino screen.

Cromlin Announces Foreign Sales

Paul H. Cromlin, president of Inter-Ocean Film Corporation, closed, last week, for the territories of Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Ecuador and India, for "Enlighten Thy Daughter," the territory of India for "The 13th Labor of Hercules." Mr. Cromlin is in receipt of a letter from an exhibitor in Porto Rico stating that "Enlighten Thy Daughter" played a small town in that island eighteen times. Buyers in Greece and Egypt have bought, recently, this production.

Gus Schlessinger, Inter-Ocean, who is placing Christie Comedies in foreign fields, last week entertained a party of fifty orphan children from the Hebrew Orphan Asylum at a special showing of Christie Comedies at the Inter-Ocean projection room.

Hodupp Returns with Several Prints

V. C. Hodupp, of V. C. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, announces that he has contracted for several Ivan productions, the Shorty Hamilton series of comedies, a number of Sterling Pictures Corporation's releases and Oro productions. Mr. Hodupp also signed for the distribution of Christie comedies and Oro Western production. Mr. Hodupp is one of the largest independent buyers in the Middle West.

Among the Exchanges

Ryan Ready for "Spring Drive"

Phil L. Ryan, General Manager, Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Tells How and Why

PHIL L. RYAN, general manager, Standard Film Corporation, Kansas City, Mo., in commenting upon the "spring drive" that will be made by this company, which is one of the largest in the Middle West, said:

"We plan and have provided for an active buying policy during this year. An indication of this can be noted in the fact that we have purchased the W. H. Productions Co.'s three great Wm. S. Hart pictures, "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell-Hound of Alaska." These productions have been booking widely. "The Bargain" broke all previous box-office records for Richards & Flynn, of Kansas City, owners and operators of the two largest down-town houses, the Twelfth Street theatre and the Wonderland.

"Our recent purchase of the Jester Comedies for all of our offices except that operated in Chicago has met with such wide approval that our greatest regret is that we did not secure distribution for these comedies in our Chicago territory. Twede-Dan, the star of these comedies, is introducing a new style of screen fun. I predict for him widespread popularity with the public.

"Another important purchase is that of the re-issued Mack Sennett-Keystone Comedies. We have made a selection of the very best with Fatty Arbuckle, Willie Collier, Sam Bernard, Mabel Normand, Charles Murray and others featured. Included in our comedy buy are several productions, such as "The Submarine Pirate" and "Fatty and Mabel Adrift" that are three and four reels lengths. We have also secured two original Charlie Chaplin productions.

"I think that we owe a great deal of our success to our consistent advertising policy. Exhibitors sometimes remark, in dropping into our offices for a chat, that they even look forward to the arrival of a circular from us. We don't believe in 'jam-it-down-his-throat' sales methods. That applies to advertising as well as to the individual efforts of our salesmen. A new circular carries out a novel advertising idea in that it effectively links up the call of the salesman with the 'call' of the circular."

The Standard Film Corporation operates five offices and has a territory larger than that controlled by any other independent film exchange. Offices are located in Kansas City, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Louis and Omaha.

Morris Chosen to Exchange Board

The presidency of the Cleveland Board of Motion Picture Exchange Managers, which is an offspring of the Chamber of Commerce, left vacant by the transfer of E. A. Eschmann to New York, was filled last week by the election of Sam Morris to the position. Morris has the Select Pictures for the Ohio, Michigan and Kentucky territory. The object of the Board is to secure, through co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce, better transportation facilities of films. A special meeting has been called by President Morris to hear the report of a committee on transportation. The committee consists of J. R. Johnson, Vitagraph exchange manager, chairman; E. J. Schmidt, manager of the Victor exchange, and C. A. Thompson, the World manager, who succeeds E. A. Eschmann

Defense Picture Progresses

Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, announces that "New York, or Danger Within," the patriotic feature which the company is making in co-operation with the New York State Defense Council, will be completed within a week

Endert Joins Paramount-Artcraft

George P. Endert, formerly local manager for Pathe, has joined the office force of the Paramount-Artcraft Seattle, Wash., exchange as sales manager. He will have charge of all the territory west of the Cascade Mountains in addition to supervising the entire sales force for the territory.

Mr. Endert is one of the best known film men on the coast and has been in the business since it was first established in the Northwest. Another addition to the Seattle office is H. W. West in the capacity of booker. Mr. West was also formerly with Pathe.

Let Parsons Win War

Goldwyn publicity department has struck on a plan whereby William "Smiling Bill" Parsons, originator and central figure in the new Capitol Comedies for release through Goldwyn, will help win the war. The story intimates that Parsons will ask his fellow bald-heads throughout the country to join him in a series of hairless holidays, and the money that would otherwise be spent for tonic can go for War Saving Stamps.

It sounds reasonable.

Omaha Exchange Observes "Pathe Week"

"Pathe Week" was observed at the exchange in Omaha, when an operator was stationed in the exhibition room all the time to show pictures to visiting exhibitors, and the salesmen were held in off the road by Manager C. E. Holah to entertain callers. The entire staff was kept busy with exhibitors from all over Iowa and Nebraska, who called in scores during the week.

The big event of the week was the showing of the Pathe release, "The German Curse in Russia," in the ball room of the Fontenelle hotel Friday evening, January 25, when a large number of Omaha's society people was present. Soldiers from the United States army balloon school and officers from Ft. Crook and Ft. Omaha were present. Many highly favorable comments on the picture were heard.

General House Organ Thrives

The fourth number of Vol. 1 of The Voice of the General, which is being published by General Film for its exchanges, made its appearance last week. It carried plenty of news that no doubt is welcome "reading" by the managers and salesmen. Illustrations included a cut of the building in Forty-fourth street, in which General is now located, on the seventeenth floor, and a likeness of Harry Harris in khaki.

Universal to Help in Next Government Drives

The Universal Film Manufacturing Co. has offered to the Committee on Public Information the services of its organization in furtherance of the forthcoming Liberty Loan and Red Cross drives and the committee, through its Division of Advertising, has accepted the offer. It is expected that an important part in the campaigns will shortly be assigned to Universal and accordingly the company has appointed Harry Levey, head of its industrial department, as special representative to confer with the Division of Advertising.

At a dinner given at the Aldine Club, New York City, by the members of the Division of Advertising, Mr. Levey, who was the only representative of the moving picture industry present, informed the advertising men of the Universal's desire to be of further service. "Although that film company is now devoting considerable footage to the furtherance of the Government's war propaganda," said Mr. Levey, "it is holding itself in readiness to carry out such orders as the Division of Advertising may issue from time to time."

Mr. Levey's remarks were enthusiastically received by the assemblage.

Features---Current and Coming

Bluebird Photoplays

Feb. 11. Hands Down (Monroe Salisbury, Ruth Clifford) 5
Feb. 18. Morgan's Raiders (Violet Mersereau) 5
Feb. 25. The Rough Lover (Franklyn Farnum) 5
Feb. 25. The Grand Passion (Dorothy Phillips Super Production)..... 5
Mar. 4. The Girl in the Dark (Carmel Myers) 5
Mar. 11. Hungry Eyes (M. Salisbury)..... 5
Mar. 18. Brace Up (Herbert Rawlinson).... 5
Mar. 25. The Wine Girl (Carmel Myers).... 5
Apr. 1. Fast Company (Franklin Farnum).. 5
Apr. 8. The Red, Red Heart (Monroe Salisbury) 5

Universal Productions

Feb. 11. New Love for Old (Ella Hall, Emory Johnson) 5
Feb. 18. The Flash of Fate (Herbert Rawlinson (Sally Starr)..... 5
Feb. 25. Wild Women (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Mar. 4. Nobody's Wife (Louise Lovely)... 5
Mar. 11. Beauty in Chains (Ella Hall).....5 D
Mar. 18. Thieves' Gold (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Mar. 25. The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit (Louise Lovely) 5
Apr. 1. The Magic Eye (Little Zoe Rae)... 5
Apr. 8. The Risky Road (Special Attraction) (Dorothy Phillips)..... 5

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

(Successors to Paramount Pictures Corp.)

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Feb. 11. The Keys of the Righteous (Enid Bennett) 5
Feb. 18. The Thing We Love (Wallace Reid) 5
Feb. 18. Hidden Pearl (Sessue Hayakawa.... 5
Feb. 25. One More American (George Beban) 5
Mar. 4. Eve's Daughter (Billie Burke).....
Mar. 4. Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford).....
Mar. 11. The Family Skeleton (Charles Ray).
Mar. 11. Sunshine Nan (Ann Pennington)...
Mar. 18. Prunella (Marguerite Clark).....
Mar. 18. J. Stuart Blackton's Wild Youth....
Mar. 18. Love Me (Dorothy Dalton).....
Mar. 25. LaTosca (Pauline Frederick)..... 5
Mar. 25. "Naughty, Naughty!" (Enid Bennett) 5

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Feb. 11. The Song of Songs (Elsie Ferguson) 5
Feb. 18. Blue Blazes Rawdon (Wm. S. Hart) 5
Feb. 25. Headin' South (Douglas Fairbanks). 5
Mar. 11. Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Mary Pickford) .....
Mar. 25. De Mille's "The Whispering Chorus" .....
Mar. 31. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"....

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Feb. 10. Jack Spurlock — Prodigal (George Walsh) 5
Feb. 17. The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb. 24. Six-Shooter Andy (Tom Mix)..... 5
Mar. 3. The Girl with the Champagne Eyes (Jewel Carmen)..... 5
Mar. 10. The Debt of Honor (Peggy Hyland) 5
Mar. 17. Woman and the Law (R. A. Walsh) 5
Mar. 24. A Daughter of France (Virginia Pearson) 5
Apr. 7. A Camouflage Kiss (June Caprice). 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Jan. 20. Cheating the Public..... 7
Feb. 3. The Forbidden Path (Theda Bara).. 6
Feb. 10. Les Miserables (Wm. Farnum)..... 9
Feb. 24. American Buds (Jane and Katherine Lee) 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Feb. 10. Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy). 6
Feb. 24. The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh). 6
Mar. 10. The Floor Below (Mabel Normand). 6
Mar. 24. The Splendid Sinner (Mary Garden) 6
Apr. 7. The Danger Game (Madge Kennedy) 6

GOLDWYN SPECIALS

The Manx-Man..... 7
For the Freedom of the World..... 7

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

(Paralta Plays)

Jan. 1. Madam Who? (Bessie Barriscale).. 7
Jan. 15. His Robe of Honor (Henry B. Walthall)..... 7
Feb. 15. The Turn of a Card (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Mar. 1. Within the Cup (Bessie Barriscale). 7
Mar. 15. Humdrum Brown (Henry B. Walthall) 6

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama)..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Uneasy Money (Essanay)..... 6
Brown of Harvard (Selig)..... 6
I, Mary MacLane (Essanay)..... 7
The Unbeliever (Edison)..... 7
Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay)..... 7

Metro Pictures Corporation

Feb. 11. Broadway Bill (Harold Lockwood) Metro-Yorke 5
Feb. 18. A Weaver of Dreams (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5
Feb. 25. Revenge (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 4. The Shell Game (Emmy Wehlen) Metro 5
Mar. 11. The Brass Check (Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne)..... 5
Mar. 18. The Claim (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 25. Breakers Ahead (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5
Apr. 1. The Landloper (Harold Lockwood) Metro-Yorke 5
Apr. 8. Social Hypocrites (May Allison)... 5

(METRO SPECIALS)

Blue Jeans (Voila Dana), Metro-Rolfe..... 7
The Legion of Death (Edith Storey), Metro-Rolfe 7
Revelation (Nazimova), Metro..... 7
The Slacker (Emily Stevens)..... 7
Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro)..... 7

Mutual Film Corporation

Feb. 11. Jilted Janet (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Feb. 18. My Wife (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5
Feb. 25. The Midnight Trail (Wm. Russell) American 5
Mar. 4. Powers That Prey (Mary Miles Minter) American..... 5
Mar. 11. Ann's Finish (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Mar. 18. The Girl and the Judge (Olive Tell), Frohman 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Feb. 10. Loaded Dice (Frank Keenan, Florence Hillings, Guy Coombs), Pathe 5
Feb. 17. The Inner Voice (I. I. Mozukin), Russian Art 5
Feb. 24. The Naulahka (Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Doraldina, Mary Aldin, Warner Oland) Astra..... 6
Mar. 3. Daddy's Girl (Baby Marie Osborne) Diando 5
Mar.10. The Great Adventure (Bessie Love, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Chester Barnett, Florence Short)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Beggar Woman (Mme. N. A. Lesienko, I. I. Mozukin)..... 5
Mar. 24. The Hillcrest Mystery (Irene Castle, Ralph Kellard, Wyndham Standing, J. H. Gilmour) Astra..... 5
Mar. 31. Mrs. Slacker (Gladys Hulette, Creighton Hale) Astra..... 5

Petrova Picture Company

Dec. 23. Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Light Within (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Life Mask (Mme. Petrova).... 5

Select Pictures

Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady)..... 5
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge) 6
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge) 5
Mar. —. By Right of Purchase..... 6
Mar. —. The Shuttle 5
Mar. —. The House of Glass..... 5
Mar. —. The Knife 5

SPECIAL RELEASES

Over There (Chas. Richman, Anna Q. Nilsson) 6
The Lone Wolf (Bert Lytell, Hazel Dawn)... 5
The Barrier (Rex Beach Production)..... 7
The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Feb. 10. Captain of His Soul (Wm. Desmond) 5
Feb. 10. Real Folks (J. Barney Sherry)..... 5
Feb. 17. From Two to Six (Winifred Allen) 5
Feb. 17. Keith of the Border (Roy Stewart) 5
Feb. 24. Little Red Decides (Triangle Players) 5
Feb. 24. A Soul in Trust (Belle Bennett).... 7
Mar. 3. Heiress for a Day (Olive Thomas).. 5
Mar. 3. Shoes That Danced (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 10. The Hard Rock Breed (Margery Wilson) 5
Mar. 10. The Sea Panther (Wm. Desmond).. 5
Mar. 17. Faith Endurin' (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Answer (Alma Rubens)..... 7
Mar. 24. Nancy Comes Home (Myrtle Lind). 5
Mar. 24. Innocent's Progress (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 31. Unfaithful (D. Dalton) 2 reels, and The Marriage Bubble (Wm. Desmond), (Split Feature)..... 3
Mar. 31. Another Foolish Virgin (Margery Wilson) 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Feb. 11. The Woman Between Friends (Alice Joyce, Marc MacDermott) 5
Feb. 18. The Wooing of Princess Pat (Gladys Leslie, J. Frank Glendon)..... 5
Feb. 25. Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers Neil Shipman, Alfred Whitman).. 5
Mar. 4. The Song of the Soul (Alice Joyce, Walter McGrail) 5
Mar. 11. The Desired Women (Harry Morey, Florence Deshon) 5
Mar. 18. An American Live Wire (Earle Williams, Grace Darmond)..... 5
Mar. 25 The Home Trail (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5
Apr. 1. Little Miss No-Account (Gladys Leslie 5
Apr. 8. The Business of Life (Alice Joyce).. 5

World Pictures

Feb. 11. Whims of Society (Ethel Clayton).. 5
Feb. 18. Broken Ties (June Elvidge, Arthur Ashley) 5
Feb. 25. His Royal Highness (Carlyle Blackwell, Evelyn Greeley)..... 5
Mar. 4. Spurs of Sybil (Alice Brady)..... 5
Mar.11. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Mar. 18. Wanted, A Mother (Madge Evans).. 5
Mar. 25. The Way Out (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge) 5
Apr. 1. The Cross Bearer (Montagu Love).. 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

American News Weekly

One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.

May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Argosy Films, Inc.

The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arrow Film Corporation

The Deemster (Derwent Hall Caine).....7 reels

Bluebird Extraordinary

The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions

Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

Jules Burnstein

Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation

Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies

(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)

Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S PARAMOUNT SERIES

The Son of Democracy..

Christie Film Company

Father's Bright Idea.....1 reel
With the Mummies' Help.....1 reel
The Magic Maid.....1 reel
The Milky Way.....1 reel
His Last Pill.....1 reel
The Fourteenth Man.....1 reel
Down by the Sea.....1 reel
Skirts .....1 reel
Won in a Cabaret.....1 reel
His Merry Mix-Up.....1 reel
A Smoky Love Affair.....1 reel
Honeymooners.
Out for the Coin.
Her Awful Predicament.
Crazy by Proxy.
Green Eyes and Bullets.
Betty's Big Idea.
Local Color.
Love and Locksmiths.
Hearts and Clubs.
Almost a Bigamist.
Move Heaven Lose Speed.
Betty Wakes Up.
Stepping Out.
Almost Married.
How's Your Pedigree?
Two Summer Tangle.
One Good Turn.
Twenty Days.
Nearly a Papa.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Five to Five.
Many a Slip.
The Night of His Life.
Mum's the Word.
Circumstantial Evidence.
In the Dark.
Whose Wife?
The House that Jack Built.

Cinema Distributing Corp.

The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Clune Productions

Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.

Charlotte, in The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company

The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation

LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company

Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Dixie Films

Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Ebony Film Corporation

A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.

Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.

People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Emerald Motion Picture Co.

The Slacker's Heart.....5 reels

Export and Import Film Co.

Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation

Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.

War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.
Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova).
Herbert Brenon's "Empty Pockets."
The Sign Invisible (Big Mitch Lewis).

Fort Pitt Corporation

The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.

(Standard Pictures)

The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Frieder Film Corporation

The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises

A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.

The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

General Enterprises, Inc.

Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays

The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features

A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company

Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features

The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith

Intolerance .....9 reels

Hanover Film Company

Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart

The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation

Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation

Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.

The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Historic Features

Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.

One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation

The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.

Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Feature Productions

One Law for Both (Rita Jolivet, Vincent Serrano, Leah Baird, Pedro De Cordoba, James Morrison).....7 reels
Babbling Tongues (Grace Valentine, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson).....7 reels
Married in Name Only (Gretchen Hartman, Milton Sills, Marie Shotwell).....6 reels
Sins of Ambition (Barbara Castleton, Wilfred Lucas, Leah Baird, James Morrison) .....7 reels
Human Clay (Mollie King).....5 reels

Jester Comedies

Feb. —. The Recruit (Twede Dan).....2 parts
Mar. —. His Golden Romance (Twede Dan) .....2 parts
April —. All "Fur" Her (Twede Dan)...2 parts
May —. The Wrong Flat (Twede Dan)..2 parts

Juvenile Film Corporation

World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

(Continued on page 1774)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Nov. 11. Roaring Lions and Wedding Bells..2 C
Nov. 18. A Milk-Fed Vamp.....2 C
Dec. 9. His Smashing Career.....2 C
Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 20. Son of a Gun.....2 C
Feb. 3. Hungry Lions in a Hospital.....2 C
Feb. 17. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

The Fifth Wheel (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
Compliments of the Season (Herbert Prior, Betty Blythe, Aida Horton)...2 D
The Moment of Victory (W. L. Rodgers, Chet Ryan) .....2 C-D
The Trimmed Lamp (Mildred Manning, Alice Terry) .....2 C-D
Schools and Schools (Jean Paige, Chas. Hutchison) .....2 D
A Madison Square Arabian Night (Duncan McRae, Patsy De Forrest).....2 D
The Rathskeller and the Rose (Adele De Garde, Evart Overton).....2 D
By Injunction (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
The Song and the Sergeant (Alice Terry, Stanley Dunn, Templar Saxe).....2 D

ESSANAY
GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

Lunch .....1 C
Nut Stuff .....1 C
He Loved Her So.....1 C
One Night .....1 C
Next .....1 C
The Soup and the Fish Ball.....1 C
A Tough Knight.....1 C
Our Little Nell.....1 C
Check Your Hat, Sir.....1 C
Wild Algy of Piccadilly.....1 C
All Stuck Up.....1 C
The Lie That Failed.....1 C
The Jazbo Sheriff.....1 C

ESSANAY SCENICS

Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.
Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada .....1 Sc.
Water Powers of Eastern Canada.....1 Sc.
A Romance of Rails and Power.....1 Sc.
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelley .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 C
A Woman .....2 C
The Tramp .....2 C
His New Job.....2 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON FILM CORP.

"A DAUGHTER OF UNCLE SAM" SERIAL (Jane Vance, Wm. Sorelle) 12 Episodes .....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

Her Fatal Shot (Finn & Haddie).....1 C
Marooned .....1 C
Sherman Was Right.....1 C
What Will Happen Next?.....1 C
Which Was Lucky?.....1 C
The Unofficial Maneuver.....1 C
What Occurred on the Beach.....1 C
An All-Fools' Day Affair.....1 C
Beating Him to It.....1 C
Forced Into Matrimony.....1 C

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Chocolate of the Gang.....2 C-D
The Lost Lie.....2 C-D
Tad's Swimming Hole.....2 C-D
Marrying Off Dad.....2 C-D
The Preacher's Son.....2 C-D
Thief or Angel.....2 C-D
The Accusing Toe.....2 C-D
Black and White.....2 C-D
Rebellion .....2 C-D
A Boy Built City.....2 C-D
I'm a Man.....2 C-D

SPARKLE COMEDIES

On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

THREE C COMEDIES

Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C

King Bee Comedies

Nov. 1. The Candy Kid.....2 reels
Nov. 15. The Hobo .....2 reels
Dec. 1. The Pest .....2 reels
Dec. 15. The Bandmaster .....2 reels
Jan. 1. The Slave .....2 reels
Jan. 15. The Stranger .....2 reels
Feb. 1. His Day Out.....2 reels
Feb. 15. The Rogue .....2 reels

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

George Kleine System

MONTGOMERY FLAGG'S COMEDIES
"GIRLS YOU KNOW"

Jan. 2. The Screen Fan.....2 C
Jan. 16. The Bride .....2 C
Jan. 30. The Superstitious Girl.....2 C
Feb. 13. The Matinee Girl.....2 C
Feb. 27. The Artist's Model.....2 C
Mar. 13. The Spoiled Girl.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 4. Before and After Taking.....1 C
Mar. 11. His Strength of Mind.....1 C
Mar. 18. Special Today.....1 C
Mar. 25. When a Man's Married.....1 C
Apr. 1. Gas Logic.....1 C
Apr. 8. A Youthful Affair.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Feb. 5. Her Friend Brown.....1 reel
Feb. 12. Three Times and Out.....1 reel
Feb. 19. Miss Cinderella .....1 reel
Feb. 26. Up in the Air.....1 reel
Mar. 5. Waltzing Around .....1 reel
Mar. 12. Finishing Mary .....1 reel
Mar. 19. His Quaker Girl.....1 reel
Mar. 26. Up She Goes.....1 reel

SCREEN TELEGRAM

Issued Sunday and Wednesday of Each Weed

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 20. Out West .....2 reels
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C
Feb. 3. Watch Your Neighbor.....2 C
Feb. 10. Sheriff Nell's Tussle.....2 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.1 reel
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia .....1 reel
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.....1 reel
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.....1 reel
Feb. 4. Adelaide, Capital of South Australia .....1 reel

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21. Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, March 17, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 2 (The Tiger's Eye), Astra .....2 D
Fare, Please (Toto, Clarine Seymour, Bud Jamison), Rolin .....2 C
Here Come the Girls (Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard, Bebe Daniels), Rolin.....1 C
Picturesque France (The Cauterets) Col. (Pathe), Trav., and "Children's Dances," Educ. .....Split reel

Wednesday, March 20, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 24 .....1 top

Saturday, March 23, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 25.....1 top

Sunday, March 24, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 3 (A Woman's Perfidy), Astra .....2 D
Let's Go (Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard, Bebe Daniels), Rolin .....1 C
"Pests of Our Fruit Trees (Col.), Educ. and Picturesque France, Arcachon, Trav. Split Reel

Wednesday, March 27, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 26.....1 top

Saturday, March 30, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 27.....1 top

Sunday, March 31, 1918

The House of Hate, No. 4 (The Man from Jaav), Astra .....2 D
On the Jump (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin.....1 C
"The Valley of the Dordogne, France." (Col.), Trav., and "The Horse in Action," Part 2 (Col.), Educ.....Split reel

Wednesday, April 3, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News No. 28.....1 top

Saturday, April 6, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News No. 29.....1 top

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES

Feb. 3. Airing Their Troubles.....1 C
Feb. 3. A Safe Disaster.....1 C
Feb. 10. His Nine Lives.....1 C
Feb. 10. A Game Gambler.....1 C
Feb. 17. Their Undercover Capers.....1 C
Feb. 17. A Full Dress Fizzle.....1 C
Feb. 24. A Coward's Courage.....1 C
Feb. 24. His Nimble Twist.....1 C
Mar. 3. A Discord in A Flat.....1 C
Mar. 3. His Hidden Shame.....1 C
Mar. 10. Wives and Worries.....1 C
Mar. 10. She Didn't Do It.....1 C
Mar. 17. A Social Shock Absorber.....1 C
Mar. 17. Caught with the Goods.....1 C
Mar. 24. Fork Over.....1 C
Mar. 24. A Janitor's Fall.....1 C
Mar. 31. A Good Elk.....1 C
Mar. 31. Her Bohemian Party.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES

Feb. 3. A Sea Serpent's Desire (Wm. Franey, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims, Maude Wayne).2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong (Harry Gribbon, Myrtle Lind, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers, Carolyne Rankin).....2 C
Feb. 17. His Double Life (R. Griffith, Dorothy Hager, Claire Anderson).....2 C
Feb. 24. A Tell-Tale Shirt (Fritz Schave, Peggy Pierce, C. Roberts, Baldy Belmont).....2 C
Mar. 3. A Lady Killer's Doom (Wm. Franey, Maude Wayne, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims).....2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong? (Harry Gribbon, Claire Anderson, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers).....2 C
Mar. 17 Mud (Ray Griffith, Peggy Pearce, Max Asher, Henry Depp.....2 C
Mar. 24. A Safe Danger (Al Edmonds, Rae Godfrey, Sylvia Ashton, Chris Richards.....2 C
Mar. 31. A Playwright's Wrong (Wm. Franey, Dora Rogers, Milt Sims, Maude Wayne).....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, March 18, 1918

NESTOR—I'll Fix It (King Baggot).....1 C

Wednesday, March 20, 1918

L-KO—Cooks and Crooks (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack, Dave Morris).....2 C

Monday, March 25, 1918

NESTOR—Nothing But Nerve (Gale Henry).1 C

Wednesday, March 27, 1918

L-KO—Sherlock Ambrose (Mack Swain)....2 C

Monday, April 1, 1918

NESTOR—Pink Pajamas (Dave Morris, Gladys Tennyson).....1 C

Wednesday, April 3, 1918

L-KO—Gowns and Girls (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack, Dave Morris).....2 C

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY

Feb. 27. Number 13.
Mar. 4. Number 14.
Mar. 11. Number 15.
Mar. 18. Number 16.
Mar. 25. Number 17.
Apr. 4. Number 18.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE

Mar. 2. Issue Number 60.
Mar. 9. Issue Number 61.
Mar. 16. Issue Number 62.
Mar. 23. Issue Number 63.
Mar. 30. Issue Number 64.
Apr. 6. Issue Number 65.

UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS

Mar. 2. Issue Number 42.
Mar. 9. Issue Number 43.
Mar. 16. Issue Number 44.
Mar. 23. Issue Number 45.
Mar. 30. Issue Number 46.
Apr. 6. Issue Number 47.

LYONS-MORAN STAR COMEDIES

Apr. 8. A Pigskin Hero.....1 reel

SERIALS

"THE MYSTERY SHIP"

Two Reels Each

(Ben Wilson, Neva Gerber)

Feb. 25. Fourteenth Episode, The Masked Riders.
Mar. 4. Fifteenth Episode, The House of Trickery.
Mar. 11. Sixteenth Episode, The Forced Marriage.
Mar. 18. Seventeenth Episode, The Deadly Torpedo.
Mar. 25. Eighteenth Episode, The Fight in Mid-Air.

"THE BULL'S EYE

Two Reels Each

(Eddie Polo)

Feb. 25. Fourth Episode, Still in the Ring.
Mar. 4. Fifth Episode, The Swing of Death.
Mar. 11. Sixth Episode, On the Brink.
Mar. 18. Seventh Episode, Riding Wild.
Mar. 25. Eighth Episode, The Flaming Crisis.
Apr. 1. Ninth Episode, Dynamite.
Apr. 8. Tenth Episode, Coyotes of the Desert.

"THE LION'S CLAWS

Two Reels Each

(Marie Walcamp)

Apr. 1. First Episode, A Woman's Honor.
Apr. 8. Second Episode, Beasts of the Jungle.

FINLEY NATURE STUDIES

Split Reel

Mar. 4. Number 8, "The Indian Fisherman" and "The Grandeur of Switzerland."
Mar. 11. Number 9, "The Geysers of Yellowstone Park" and "Flowers of the Orient."
Mar. 18. Number 10, "Where Rolls the Oregon" and "Mosquito."
Mar. 25. Number 11, "Wild Fowl Nurseries of Southern Oregon" and "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masque Ball."
Apr. 1. Number 12, "A Day at Yellowstone Park" and "Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance, England."
Apr. 8. Number 13, "Sea Birds and Animals" and "The Land of Long Ago."

Vitagraph

BIG V COMEDIES

Feb. 4. Telephones and Troubles.
Feb. 11. Babes and Boobs.
Feb. 18. Courts and Convicts.
Feb. 25. Rooms and Rumors.
Mar. 4. Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11. Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18. Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25. Stripes and Stumbles.
Apr. 1. Sleuths and Slackers.
Apr. 8. Rummies and Razors.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES

Jan. 7. A Little Ouija Work.
Jan. 14. Seeking An Oversoul.
Jan. 21. A Four-Cornered Triangle.
Jan. 28. Their Anniversary Feast.
Feb. 4. Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11. Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18. Sweets to the Sour.
Feb. 25. Their Godson.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)

Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).
Feb. 4. The Wolf Trap (Seventh Episode).
Feb. 11. The Mountain of Devastation (Eighth Episode).
Feb. 18. Buried Alive (Ninth Episode).
Feb. 25. The Leap for Life (Tenth Episode).
Mar. 4. The Cavern of Terror (Eleventh Episode).
Mar. 11. The Desperate Chance (Twelfth Episode).
Mar. 18. Sands of Doom (Thirteenth Episode).
Mar. 25. The Hand of Fate (Fourteenth Episode).
Apr. 1. The Reckoning (Fifteenth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Feb. 4. The Pirates.....2 C
Feb. 4. The Wings of a Moth.....1 D
Feb. 11. The Sacrifice of Kathleen.....2 D
Feb. 11. Art for A Heart.....1 C
Feb. 18. The Mischief Maker.....2 D
Feb. 18. Sonny Jim in Search of a Mother..1 C
Feb. 25. Old Reliable.....2 D
Feb. 25. Stenographer Troubles.....1 C
Mar. 4. An Officer and a Gentleman.....2 D
Mar. 4. Unlucky Louis.....1 C

DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 11. Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18. A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25. His Wife Knew About It.
Apr. 1. Following the Scent.....1 reel
Apr. 8. The Home Cure.....1 C

RELEASES IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD

(Continued from page 1772)

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES

Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance.....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control.....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").. ....

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip.....8 reels

Photoplay Magazine

Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges).

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption.....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

The Public Defender.....6 reels
Naked Hands.....5 reels
Weavers of Life.....6 reels
Souls Redeemed.....6 reels
Mother Love and the Law.....7 reels
In Treason's Grasp.....5 reels
Should She Obey?.....7 reels

Selig Special

Beware of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage.....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis.....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe.....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

Julius Steger

Redemption.....6 reels

Sterling Pictures Corporation

Peg o' the Sea (Jean Sothern feature)....6 parts
A Mute Appeal (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Lash of Destiny (Gertrude McCoy feature).....5 parts
Her Good Name (Jean Sothern feature)..5 parts
Rosie O'Grady (Viola Dana feature).....5 parts
The Cloud (Jean Sothern feature).....5 parts
The God of Little Children (Alma Hanlon feature).....5 parts
A Mother's Ordeal (Jean Sothern feature) 5 parts
Pride and the Devil (Alma Hanlon feature)6 parts
Miss Deception (Jean Sothern feature)...5 parts
The Law that Failed (Alma Hanlon f'ture)5 parts
Great Bradley Mystery (Alma Hanlon feature).....5 parts
The Mystic Hour (Alma Hanlon feature).6 parts
When You and I Were Young (Alma Hanlon feature).....5 parts
The Golden God (Alma Hanlon feature)..5 parts
She Was a Dangerous Girl (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy the Fireman (Cartoon comedy)....500 ft.
Zippy in a Sanatorium (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Zippy Buys a Pet Pup (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Slick and Tricky (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo (Cartoon comedy)...500 ft.
The Old Forty-Niner (Cartoon comedy)..500 ft.
Mr. Coon (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Mose Is Cured (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Insurance (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Pets (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
The Unknown (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

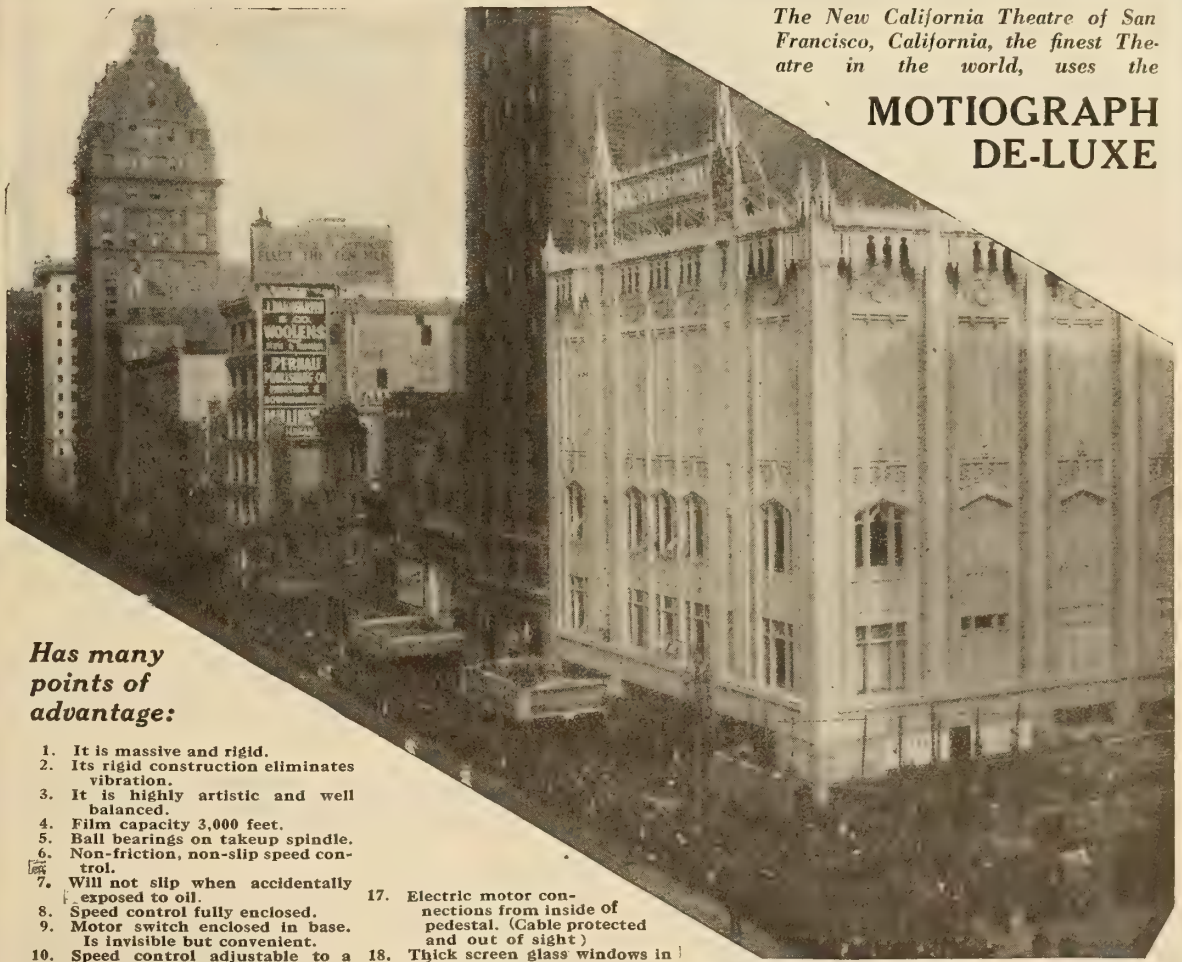
Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

W. H. Productions Co.

William S. Hart as Two Gun Man in "The Bargain".....6 reels
William S. Hart in "The Bandit and the Preacher".....5 reels
William S. Hart in "The Hell Hound of Alaska".....5 reels
Also Series of two-reel W. H. Hart productions.

Wholesome Films Corporation



The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Over Here.....5 reels

Accessory News

— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

The New California Theatre of San Francisco, California, the finest Theatre in the world, uses the

MOTIOGRAPH DE-LUXE

Has many points of advantage:

1. It is massive and rigid.
2. Its rigid construction eliminates vibration.
3. It is highly artistic and well balanced.
4. Film capacity 3,000 feet.
5. Ball bearings on takeup spindle.
6. Non-friction, non-slip speed control.
7. Will not slip when accidentally exposed to oil.
8. Speed control fully enclosed.
9. Motor switch enclosed in base. Is invisible but convenient.
10. Speed control adjustable to a fine degree.
11. Base has leveling device.
12. Extra large lamp house.
13. Lamp house top removable.
14. Opening in base of lamp house to remove carbon dust.
15. Can use 12" upper and 12" lower carbons.
16. Constant speed one-sixth H.P. Motor.
17. Electric motor connections from inside of pedestal. (Cable protected and out of sight)
18. Thick screen glass windows in magazines.
19. Improved quick change Motiograph Condenser Mount with focusing adjustment.
20. Hardened feed and take-up sprockets.
21. Hardened star.
22. Hardened cam.
23. All steel spiral cut gears. (The only projector so equipped.)

If you want the best projector made order the Motiograph DeLuxe. Price complete, $375.00.

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO.
564 W. Randolph Street Chicago, Ill.

"BERGER'S Classik" STEEL CEILINGS

Saved This Building

The fire was held in check by the ceiling until the firemen arrived, and the ceiling itself was not seriously injured. Berger's "Classik" Steel Ceilings are made in a wide variety of artistic designs. They are beautiful, safe, distinctive, permanent and fire retardant. Write for Catalog D-45.

The Wild Building, Canton, Ohio. Fire originated in the rear of Nelson's Millinery Store —read Mr. Nelson's letter below.

The Berger Mfg. Co., Canton, O.

Branches: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis, San Francisco.
Export Dept: Berger Bldg., New York City, U. S. A.

Rear section of store just after the fire. Note failure of plaster on walls.

BERGER

GEO. NELSON, PROP.

NELSON'S MILLINERY
CANTON, OHIO Jan. 25th.1918.

The Berger Manufacturing Co.,
Canton, Ohio.

Dear Sirs:

On Dec. 24 fire broke out in the rear of my millinery store in the Wild building. All of the stock and fixtures in the rear of the store were destroyed but thanks to your Steel Ceiling my entire Spring stock of Millinery on the second floor and in fact the entire building was saved.

The ceiling itself has now been refinished and looks as good as new.

Very truly yours,

Geo. Nelson

BETTER SATISFACTION

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements. The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Advertising Novelties
2. Architectural Suggestions
3. Arc Controllers
4. [illegible]
5. Building Material
6. Cameras—Camera Attachments —Camera Lenses
7. Carbons
8. Chairs
19. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing Material
14. Developing and Printing
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. [illegible]
18. [illegible]
20. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cement
24. Film Cleaners
25. Film Dyes
26. Film Stock
27. Fire Extinguishers
28. Floral Decorations
29. Gas Engines
30. Generators (See Gas Engine Card)
31. Heralds
32. Interior Lighting
33. Interior Telephones
34. Laboratory Apparatus
35. Lenses
36. Lighting Sets
37. Lithographers
38. Lobby Display
39. Lobby Novelties
40. Metal Ceilings
41. Motors
42. Mural Paintings
43. Musical Instruments
44. Paints
45. Perforating Machines
46. Printing Machines
47. Programs
48. Projection Booths
49. Projection Lenses
50. Projection Machines
51. Projection Machines (Homes)
52. Rectifiers
53. Reels
54. Rewinders
55. Rheostats
56. Safety Exit Locks
57. Screens
58. Slide Ink
59. Slides
60. Slip Covers
61. Stage Setting
62. Studio Lights
63. Tickets
64. Ticket Selling Machine
65. Ticket Taking Machine
66. Tripods
67. Uniforms
68. Vacuum Cleaners
69. Ventilating and Fans

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subects marked in the above lists.

Name.....

Theatre.....

City.....

State.....

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

Start House-Cleaning

DURING the course of a week I usually have talks with from one to five operators who drop in to discuss one thing or another informally. One week it may be a new regulation, another week something else. Last week it was the Walker bill, and each time I learn something new. Most of the men who drop in are progressive. They like their work—they are high-class operators. Sometimes I get one of the other kind—who swears at his boss, has nothing good to say about the exchange—in fact, feels as though the industry owes him a living. Why I do not know—it is his secret. He acts as though he were doing a favor to the inhabitants of the entire city, and that because they do not declare a holiday once every so often in his honor he is not being appreciated. This is the kind of fellow who usually smokes in the booth or mutilates the film when a patch breaks, or punches holes near the end of the reel, or cuts out frames for his best girl, or sits in the booth reading the latest edition of the evening paper while the picture gets out of frame or the illumination fades because of improper arc feeding. This last man is also the one who is being protected by legislation—the one who is being carried along by the others in the various organizations to the detriment of the ambitious members.

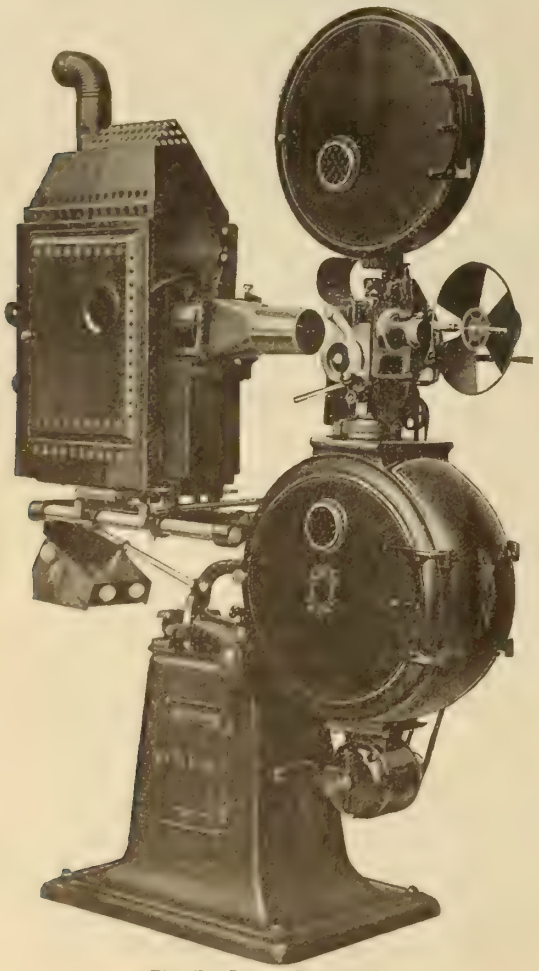
There was a man in the office the other day in whom I have considerable confidence. We discussed the problem from various angles. He admitted that my contention was true that the operators themselves were to blame for the conditions. He admitted that there are men in the union all over the country who were not worthy to hold their jobs. He also admitted that there are many members with whom he would absolutely have nothing to do outside the meeting hall. He admitted that there are good men who have nothing to do with the union and who refuse to join. He also talked at length about the smaller organizations—social as well as instructive—which have grown up and to which only those who are invited can become affiliated.

These various conditions would not exist if all was well—there would be no need of all these new laws and regulations—the operators would have the respect of the rest of the industry. As things stand now, they have not got this respect and the reason is, not that the majority are to blame, but just as the chain is only as strong as its weakest link, so the operators as a whole are judged by the few who cause the trouble.

I asked whether the members of the union know that they had men in their ranks who were causing trouble—who are to blame for exhibitor opposition and distrust. He told me they did, but that only in the most flagrant cases was it possible to throw them out of the organization. This is foolish and short-sighted. An organization of this kind is not just to the hard working, honest members, unless it has a conscientious tribunal for the purpose of trying those who break the law or otherwise run down their profession. They should be thrown out bodily and blacklisted in every theatre in the city. Then there would be no need of any outside organizations—the one central body would be all sufficient. All operators would be pulling together and those men who are worth while on the outside would be clamoring to get on the inside.

This continual fighting with the theatre men would then cease. They would have respect for the operators' organization, which at present is not the case. The operators would then get what they want within reason and without wrangling. We would see a cooperative spirit grow up instead of one of antagonism. This would be started by the progressive houses, whose example would be followed by the others, for every theatre owner wants the best operator he can get. Theatre men would then at once turn to the unions, for the mere fact that they were getting a man from that body would practically mean a guarantee that the new operator knew his business and that the union would stand back of him in every way. In fact, if a general house-cleaning were put into effect there would be no excuse for the wranglings which are at present rife.

To go further, the union should be more than a mere protective association—it should be a source of information and learning. The clubs outside of the union hold their meetings, have licenses, prepare papers, perform experiments and in every way strive to increase the knowledge of their members. These should be the functions of the locals all over the country. They should be continually striving to help their members who want help and weeding out those who are worthless to the organization and who are a drag on it as well as the industry. Those who have joined the organization merely in order to get a soft job and then hold it under the protection of those who are worth while, should not be countenanced.



The operator is too important to the industry to be ignored but as long as he does not himself realize the place which he holds he will not be recognized by others in the industry. When he has cleaned up his own organization and has the right kind of men associated with him he will be listened to, but not before. He must be progressive, he must keep improving his technical knowledge, always striving to become better posted—he must always obey the laws and see that others do, or report them—he must in every way endeavor to put a picture on the screen which will build up the patronage of the house in which he is employed, for upon the success of the house depends his future.

E. K. Gillett.

Equipment Operating Projection Questions Answered

The De Luxe Motiograph

THE new Motiograph De Luxe has been well named by its makers, the Enterprise Optical Manufacturing Company of Chicago. To see it on display or at work in the projection booth makes one think that it is the Rolls-Royce or Packard of motion picture projecting machines, so durable and perfect looking is the design of this latest model. The sincere effort that was put forth by the makers to set a standard in motion picture projectors and bring forth a really improved model is apparent from any angle of inspection given the Motiograph De Luxe, and easily bears proof to the company's claims of "one motiograph sold a day in one territory" and "unable to keep up with demand from all territories." The plans and specifications for the turning out of this new projector were gauged to make its extreme simplicity a feature, as well as its durability and perfect design. Besides the combining of several absolutely exclusive features of design in the new model, practically every part of the machine has been improved in some way over the previous models turned out. It is massive and rigid, as the illustrations show.

The De Luxe Motiograph

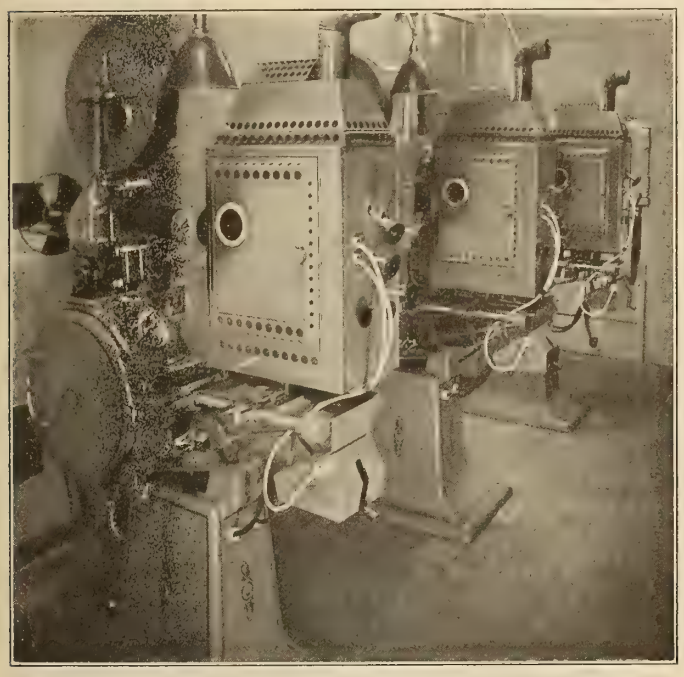
One of the salient features of the new De Luxe is the non-friction, non-slip speed control. This speed control is a departure from the speed control used on the former model, as on that model an electrical control was used, while on the De Luxe equipment a mechanical control is employed. The manufacturers have explained that they are furnishing this mechanical control with the new equipment due to the fact that a large number of users prefer such a control. There are quite a number of exhibitors who still prefer the electrical control, but between the 1917 equipment using the electrical control and the Motiograph De Luxe using the non-friction, non-slip speed control, the Enterprise Optical Company are in a position to furnish the purchaser either of the two controls which he desires.

The evil of friction and slipping caused by dripping oil, etc., has been entirely eliminated by the introduction of the non-slip control on the De Luxe Motiograph. It has been placed away from dust and out of sight by its occupancy of one-half of the lower film magazine. Its principal rotating members consist of a pair of cone pulleys so placed that the gravity of their taper on the shifting belt traveling between them gives a simple and assured speed control and allows for a straight power transmission from the motor armature to the mechanism without the usual friction-disk pressure and tension-spring losses, while it is mounted in such a manner that all liability of accidental damage and dust and dirt interference is removed. It is easily accessible, and an easily operated shift lever on the outside of the compartment enclosing the control adjusts, the speed to any desired rate.



The film magazines with their three thousand foot capacity are one of the features received with such acclaim by exhibitors since the De Luxe model was placed on the market some weeks ago. The upper magazine is made with a wire-glass window on both sides, and the reel shaft is provided with a tension device that overcomes the racing of the reel. The lower magazine also has a wire-glass window on its door. The lower take-up is equipped with ball bearings, and the tension of the take-up reel is controlled by an adjustable screw outside of the magazine, which is located directly above the motor switch and speed control dial. The dial is so arranged that the operator can mark on it the different speeds necessary to enable him to time his projecting rate.

Non-Slip Speed Control on De Luxe Motiograph

The star and cam used are made of hardened and ground tool steel to insure long life. All high-speed bearings throughout the mechanism and framing device are made of high-grade journal bronze, and all are interchangeable. The sliding disk is still retained in the De Luxe mechanism as the manufacturer has found that it gives the users long wear and entire satisfaction. The sliding disk in the Motiograph mechanism replaced the ball-arbor in July, 1915, and not a single sliding disk has been replaced from defect or wear since the change was made. By its use the act of moving the framing device up or down has absolutely no effect on the relation of the intermittent sprocket to the shutter, hence the Motiograph shutter when once set remains in proper adjustment. The lamp house and lamp of the De Duxe Motiograph are unusually large in size. The lamp accommodates a twelve-inch trim of both upper and lower carbons, and as the last word in accessibility the housing has a door on each side, a removable top with ventilating chimney, a condenser mount, dowser and throw-over slide carrier to complete its equipment.

Battery of De Luxe Motiographs in Roth's New California Theatre, San Francisco

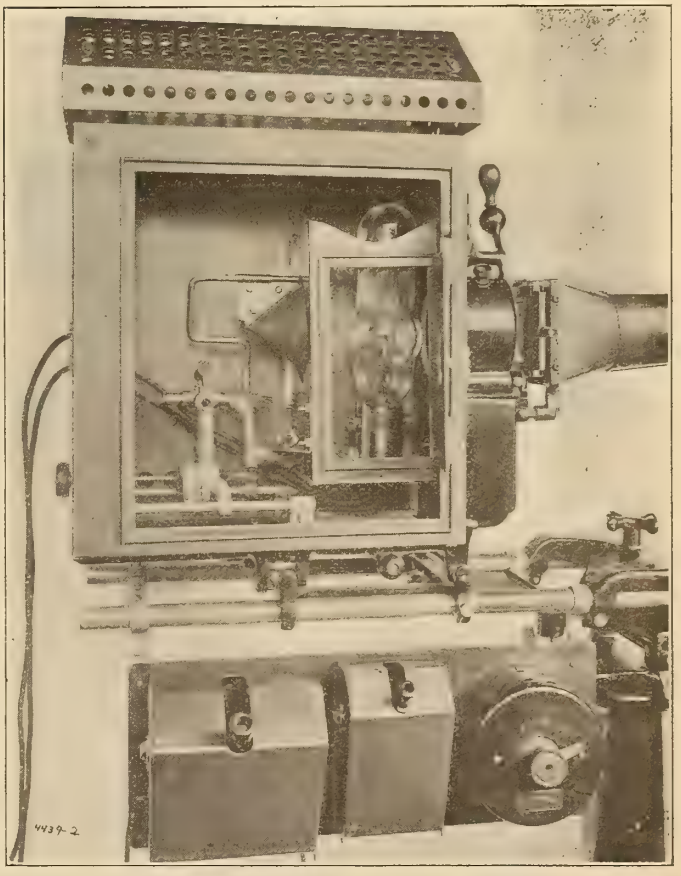
The stand probably reveals more quickly than anything else, the improvement over the other Motiograph models. It is massive in its entirety. The base is so roomy and sturdily arranged that all wiring can be brought up from the operating-room floor through its center, making a neat as well as a safe installation. The motor is of the constant speed type and of 1/6 H. P. The condenser mount has been so improved that focus is guaranteed and condensers may be quickly changed, although practically all risk of breakage of condensers has been eliminated in this machine.

The Motiograph De Luxe was made to conform to the adopted standards of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers.

Lens Polish

C. A. Hein, Decatur, Ill., writes: "Am mailing you a sample of a new lens polish which I am putting out under the name of "Blue-Bird" Lens Polish. It is for objective and condenser lenses, and I supply it in twenty-five and fifty-cent bottles. Will you try it out and say something good for it if you can?"

Comment: It has not been possible to subject the lens cleaning fluid submitted by Mr. Hein to a searching chemical analysis, but we find that it contains no acid, or at least not enough to respond to the litnus paper test, but the sample of lens fluid before us contains much solid matter, in the form of fine particles.

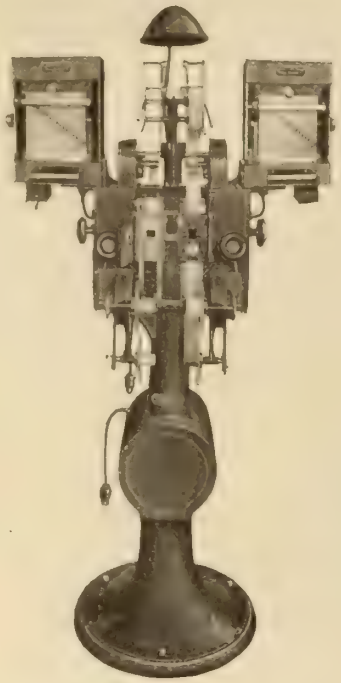


This may have become imparted to the compound in transit, as the bottle was not well sealed, but under the circumstances we refrained from trying the polisher on a projection objective. A condenser lens was brought to sparkling cleanness by the agency of Mr. Hein's lens polish, however, so that for this purpose, at least, the compound is worthy of a trial by operators. Unless Mr. Hein can prepare his polishing fluid so that it is entirely free from organic matter, or solid particles of any nature, it would be inadvisable to use the same for cleaning objectives.

The Nu-Movie-Lite

THE Nu-Movie-Lite, an incandescent projection outfit, was exhibited to exhibitors and supply men of Chicago recently. The demonstration was made at the factory and salesrooms of the Electrical Engineering Company, who are making the transformers for the equipment. For two days M. H. Livingston, inventor and designer of the Nu-Movie-Lite and head of the company, now incorporated, to make and market the apparatus at Peoria, Illinois, showed off the principal and feature points of the new product. With the subject of nitrogen lamp projection as high in universal interest and exploitation as it is at the present time, the demonstrations were well attended and brought all sorts of favorable comment from those who saw what the Nu-Movie-Lite could do.

Mr. Livingston makes the claim that it has more exclusive features than any other equipment of similar type now being made for incandescent lamp projection. First of all, it has been constructed to fit three standard makes of projection machines—the Powers, Simplex and Motiograph. This is accomplished by the use of three different and detachable brass tubular upright standards by which the lamp equipment is attached to the base of the projector lamp house in the same holder from which the former arc lamp has been removed. There is no destruction or changing of parts necessary in altering a projector from carbon illumination to incandescent.



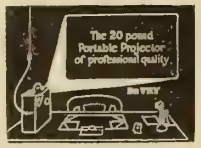
In appearance the Nu-Movie-Lite is a sort of a lamp-house within a lamp-house. The 30 ampere-750 Watt lamp bulb which furnishes the projection light is enclosed in a housing of sheet steel, protecting the lamp and the operator's eyes at all times. The nitrogen lamp employed screws into a brass Mogul socket, which has been passed by the Underwriters. A feature of this socket is its non-conductive qualities when brought into accidental or intentional contact with a screw driver or other tools in the hands of an operator. There is no danger whatsoever of a short-circuit.

Nu-Movie-Lite Installed in Motiograph Lamp-House

By means of a track and set screw arrangement a perpendicular movement is allowed for securing perfect alignment between the center of the lamp filament, the center of the mirror reflector, and the center of the condenser system. The condenser system is of

For Quality and Service—

The Duplex Automatic Step Printer



Used by all of the foremost laboratories

Duplex Machine Company, Inc.
316-318 SEVENTY-FIFTH ST. BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Motor Drive
Size 17" x 17" x 7" over all
Weighs but Twenty Pounds
Takes Standard Size Reels and Film

The De Vry Stood the Acid Test

The Ford Motor Company writes:

"We would be glad to go on record, and have any prospective customer write us at any time, when we would be glad to advise them of the very satisfactory service that the De Vry Portable M. P. Projectors are giving us.

They are successful, and we have had no trouble with them whatever.

Ford Motor Company,
M. P. Department."

Ford Uses Fifty-One De Vry's

THE DE VRY CORPORATION, 117 North Fifth Ave., Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.

UNIVERSAL
Motion Picture Camera

more speed, better results, at half the price.

Write for 6 new features

Burke & James, Inc.
240 E. Ontario St., Chicago

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 Fifth Avenue, New York
Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago
Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Multigraphing
Printing N 188 Typewriting

the usual type found on standard projection machines, instead of the special corrugated condenser.

The mirror reflector is also an important unit of the Nu-Movie-Lite. It is recommended as being absolutely impervious to heat. This reflector is set within a cone-shaped, asbestos-lined, steel casing, and is so attached that vertical, horizontal or angular movements of any necessary extent are easily possible. Its primary movement is back and forth on the U-shaped branch-bar to which it is attached. This branch-bar is also made to move at will by a set-screw arrangement. The reflector cone itself can be given a perpendicular movement of any necessary radius by means of the screw attachment to the sliding neck on the branch-bar.

The Nu-Movie-Lite after it is installed, can be regulated to produce a concentrated spot of light on the aperture plate of a machine head to equal the size of a twenty-five cent piece. This of course means brilliancy on the screen. Its adjustable parts and castings are all made of high quality brass in order to insure a tight grip when the thumb-screws or set-screws are tightened. The idea of enclosing the lamp within a small lamp house works out to aid the reflector in concentrating the light rays through the condensers, and at the same time protects the operator's eyes from glare, allowing him to work in the lamp house at all times without interfering with the lamp, and tests seem to indicate that it prolongs the life of the lamp. In stereopticon use the lamp's safety in movement is assured as it is elevated on a track and will stand considerable jarring. By means of an adjustable support with a wing-nut arrangement, the lamp opening of the Nu-Movie-Lite lamp casing can be made to fit snug against the condensing system inside the ordinary lamp-house.

Regulator for Nu-Movie-Lite

Among the other claims made for it which have been demonstrated, is the elimination of heat generation with equipment in operation. This test was made with the lamp on full 30 amperes, burning steadily for three hours, and the lamp house completely filled with tissue paper and closed up during the test. A two-thirds reduction of current consumption, its ability to negotiate a 100-foot throw with uniform illumination, minus the flicker, no handles, adjustments or noise after the outfit is once installed, are other features claimed for the Nu-Movie-Lite.

A transformer or regulator, special in design, is being made exclusively for the Nu-Movie-Lite by the Electrical Engineering Company of Chicago, and the regulator is said to be as simple and efficient in its makeup as the light appliance. It is made for A. C. and when connected to the lamp circuit takes care of voltages ranging from 90 to 125 volts, 25 or 60 cycle. It is said to operate satisfactorily with no changes in wire connection, and can be used with either a 20 or a 30 ampere lamp. It has a one-handle regulator with but two movements for operation. A salient feature claimed for the transformer is its meter-indicator, bearing markings for voltage and instructions, which, in combination with the simplicity of the regulator handle, make it fool proof. The instructions on the regulator dial clearly convey to the operator the correct method of handling a cold lamp all the way to its highest permissible degree of voltage.

A 6-volt pilot lamp illuminates the dial face at all times during the operation. The regulator is made with an all sheet steel body, compactly built. It can be set on the very packing box it is shipped in beneath the projection machine, and the dial is at all times within easy eye-range of the operator. All wire leads are securely anchored; the bushings are of an approved type, and there is no fuse or switch necessary between regulator and lamp. A 15-ampere fuse can be used on the main line to the regulator. There is no resistance, heat or waste of energy, incident to its use.

The efficiency of the Nu-Movie-Lite as a projection illuminant has been very favorably reported upon by the technical staff of the Electrical Engineering Co. of Chicago, and Mr. Livingston has also received flattering testimonials concerning its merits.

Swaab's Motor-Drive Equipment for Power 6A Projector

A MOST effective and simple motor drive attachment for Power 6A projecting machines has recently been placed on the market by Lewis M. Swaab, the well-known supply dealer of 1327 Vine street, Philadelphia, Pa.

The equipment, shown in the accompanying illustration, combines simplicity in operation with a nominal cost, and will doubtless supply a long-felt want on the part of numerous users of the Power 6A machine.

The Swaab Motor-Drive Attachment

An outstanding feature of the Swaab motor drive attachment is the ease with which it can be attached to the projecting machine. The casting, or table, upon which the motor is mounted, is made to exactly fit the stand of any 6A Power machine, and may be attached in a few minutes without drilling any holes and without filing the stand or the attachment to make it fit. The only tools necessary are a screw-driver and a pair of pliers.

Motors are supplied for either D. C. or A. C., and to accommodate either 110 or 220 volts, the price of the outfit remaining the same in all cases. The speed adjusting device is in the form of a lever attached to the motor, and a wide range of speeds is available ranging from the slowest at which the machine can be operated up to a projecting rate of seven minutes to the reel. Should the driving belt become slack at any time, it may be readily tightened by loosening two screws and moving the motor table backwards, thus permitting the necessary adjustment with the minimum of trouble.

This ingenious and useful motor drive attachment is sold for $30.00 complete, and deserves the consideration of exhibitors.

SPEER

the Carbon with

A REPUTATION

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS

for A.C. Work

AND

SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS

for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY

SPEER CARBON COMPANY

ST. MARYS, PA.

ARE YOU PROGRESSIVE?

We have a number of Rebuilt Machines as good as new, in fact could be sold as new, but we would rather sell them for what they are.

We guarantee them to be in A1 Adjustment; all worn parts have been replaced by new parts.

Send for List Today

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY

Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade

300-302 Mallers Building · 5 S. Wabash Avenue

Chicago, Illinois

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons, Minusa Screens and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALMENT PLAN

STOP LOOK

Before you lay this aside write to us at once and ask us to send you a descriptive catalog of our Motor Equipment for Power's 6A that will save you from $28.00 to $31.00.

We guarantee the efficiency of our Motor Equipments. We have Genuine Power parts, and we are Exclusive Distributors for the Peerless Simplex Projectors and all supplies.

LEWIS M. SWAAB

1327 Vine Street PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Will you send a package of home cheer to a lonely American boy in France?

HE doesn't want to come back home till his job is done—he doesn't mind the hardships and the danger—all he asks is that once in a while a "bit of cheer" be sent to him to ease his lonely vigils on the rim of "No Man's Land."

Tens of thousands of American Lads are today fighting our battles in France. Soon there will be millions. They will want letters from home—they will want "smokes" from home. Tobacco eases the shell strain. It comforts the wounded. It is a "first aid" to the surgeons and Red Cross nurses.

If you knew what comfort and pleasure and satisfaction the tobacco bought with your dollar or your five dollars (go as high as you like) gives to American boys in the trenches, you'd forget the money, or the little sacrifice, or anything else.

25c buys 45c worth of "smokes."

$1.00 buys a month's supply of tobacco

$5.00 buys enough to keep 5 men in tobacco for a month.

And remember: Every package of tobacco sent to our boys in France contains a return postcard, addressed to you, which he'll mail to you if he can possibly do so. That's a war souvenir worth having. Dig down—deep and quick!

"I wish you all possible success in your admirable effort to get our boys in France tobacco."
—THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

Endorsed by

The Secretary of War	Rabbi Wise
The Secretary of the Navy	Gertrude Atherton
Cardinal Gibbons	Theodore Roosevelt
Lyman Abbott	Alton B. Parker and the entire nation.

MAIL THE COUPON NOW

OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND

"OUR BOYS IN FRANCE TOBACCO FUND"

GENTLEMEN—I want to do my part to cheer up the American soldiers who are fighting my battle in France. If tobacco will do it—I'm for tobacco. (Check below how you desire to contribute.)

I send you herewith ..... my contribution towards the purchase of tobacco for American soldiers. This does not obligate me to contribute more.

I enclose $1.00. I will adopt a soldier and send you $1.00 a month to supply him with "smokes" for the duration of the war.

Name .....

Address .....

Boston Exchanges Reported Careless with Films

J. A. Rubanovitch, Boston, Mass., writes as follows:

"As I have noticed several articles in your paper am taking the liberty to put in my oar with a few strokes.

"The physical condition of film from almost all the exchanges in Boston, is as a general rule exceptionally bad. It seems as if the film inspectors and their bosses in the exchanges have very little knowledge of the proper care of film and film mending or repairing.

"Joins are improperly made and lined up, neither the smooth or the emulsion side of the film being scraped with a razor blade and not enough pressure applied to stick down a postage stamp. The patches are very defective from a mechanical viewpoint. Bad places such as split sprocket holes are rarely removed.

"I think they must dilute their cement with water to make it last longer. The film is wound on reels that look as if they had been through the 'Battle of the Somme.'

"As to the 'punch holes'—that is never given a thought and the film is full of them, of all sizes and shapes.

"I try to help the operator that I work with to give high-class projection.

"P. S.—When you go to the exchange managers with a complaint you never get any satisfaction."

Comment: If conditions are as reported by the correspondent the Boston exchanges and their managers should be made to realize that they are working against the best interests of the business, and the National Anti-Misframe League will promptly bring the matter to the attention of any or all Boston exchange managers when specific complaints are made by operators or managers, accompanied, of course, by suitable evidence.

What the League has done in improving film conditions in other localities could doubtless be repeated in Boston also, and when complaints against specific exchanges are received the matter can then be taken up with the parties concerned. If, therefore, any customer of the Boston exchanges has trouble with film received in unserviceable condition, and cannot secure satisfaction at the hands of the exchange manager, the N. A. M. L. will take a hand upon being apprised of the true circumstances.

Operators' Inquiries

F. Grisamore, Toledo, Ill.: "Kindly advise me as to where I can get a good book treating on motion picture operating, and also the price."

Reply: The standard treatise is "Optic Projection," by S. H. and H. P. Gage. It is published by the Comstock Publishing Company, Ithaca, N. Y., who would be pleased to forward a copy upon receipt of the published price, $3.00.

K. Wattonville, Pomeroy, Ia.: "In regard to Mr. Cheek's inquiry (this column, issue of March 9) as to the cleaning of condensers, I have found that Nitric Acid ($NaSO4$) will remove all metal as well as carbon deposits. Be careful not to get any on the hands or clothes. A small wooden paddle is used to work the acid. This will not harm the surface of the condensers."

Reply: The correspondent has gotten mixed up in his chemical formulae. $NaSO4$ is not the symbol for Nitric Acid, the constitution of which is properly given by HNO_3.

It is inadvisable to use acid in cleaning any of the lenses of the motion picture projector. While the Nitric Acid would doubtless remove many of the specks of metal and carbon which adhere to the rear condenser surface, the acid will, in time, also attack various constituents of the glass, and although the action of the acid upon the condenser surfaces may not be immediately apparent, the result in time, will be a graying of the lens surfaces, or, in other words, they will gradually lose their polish. The use of acid, or any compound containing an appreciable amount of acid, is not to be recommended for lens cleaning or polishing at any time.

C. L. Watters, Wilmington, N. C.: "How can I overcome the noise caused by brushes on our Hallberg generator set? The commutator seems even and smooth.

Reply: Without more intimate details the cause of the annoyance cannot be definitely stated. Write to the United Theatre Equipment Company, 729 Seventh avenue, New York City, who market the Hallberg sets, giving the necessary particulars, and they will be glad to advise.

V. W. BROWN, Sapulpa, Okla., "Am having trouble with the ammeter panel on my double 50 Hertner transverter, which will not release when I strike the arc. I have to release it with my hand before I can get enough amperage to light the arc. Can you advise me how to remedy this?"

REPLY: The panels furnished with the machine you mention have in them a solenoid tripping device, the winding of the solenoid being in series with the shunt field of the generator. Its function is to prevent the shunt field from getting too high a voltage in case one permits the machine to run for any length of time on an open circuit. Before one can strike the first arc, it is necessary to open one of the switches and permit the machine to operate on open circuit for a sufficient length of time to permit its voltage to build up. If it is allowed to build up to a maximum the solenoid lifts the plunger which separates a pair of carbon contacts, thus making a circuit to the shunt field through the entire resistance of the regulator, and holding the open circuit voltage down to a safe limit.

The correspondent's tripping device is either out of adjustment or was not originally adjusted just right for his machine. The makers, however, would gladly supply a properly adjusted tripping device.

The Camera

Chapters on Photographic Optics—V

AS we are now approaching the practical aspects of imagery by lenses and optical systems, we will find it a necessary convenience, both in descriptions and in diagrams, to be able to show the passage of light in the simplest and most direct manner possible, and to accomplish this it will be advisable in most cases to represent light propagation by rays instead of by the waves of our earlier articles.

In doing this, we must not, however, abandon our preliminary conceptions of optical action from the viewpoint of the wave theory, nor is it necessary that we do so, because we know that in the case of reflection or refraction rays of light are the normals to wave-fronts, and we can therefore simplify demonstrations if, when employing the term rays (or representing them by straight lines in diagrams) we always consider that in reality a train of waves is traveling along the path indicated by any given ray.

Before embarking upon the general use of rays in our demonstrations a few definitions are in order, because in optics various sorts of aggregations of rays are encountered. In geometrical optics a ray is a straight line considered in its entirety, but when considering the propagation of light it at once becomes apparent that a ray of light would have an inconceivably small section, and, as a matter of fact, Sir Isaac Newton long ago said[1]: "Light is so subtle and fine that it is probable that the smallest part of it which we can stop may yet consist of several rays."

As the least amount of light which can therefore be isolated still consists of a number of rays, it is necessary to apply a name to a number of associated rays, and such an aggregation is known as a "pencil of rays." To enable the reader to visualize a pencil of rays we supply Fig. 1, which shows a pencil of rays supposed to be representative of the spherical wave-fronts diverging from a luminous point both before and after perpendicular incidence upon a collecting lens or other positive refracting instrument. It is seen that the various rays are symmetrically situated around the axis, A A, or central ray, of the pencil, and any pencil of rays which is symmetrical about an axis, or chief ray, is known as a homocentric pencil of rays.

Fig. 1

In Fig. 1, P denotes a diverging pencil of rays (corresponding to an advancing train of convex wave-fronts) while P' represents the same pencil of rays after refraction by any positive lens (the incidence being supposed perpendicular). It is therefore apparent that the converging pencil P' corresponds to a train of concave or converging wave-fronts, and as the pencil P' is still symmetrical about its axis, or central ray, we can say, in this case, that the pencil is still homocentric after refraction.

(NOTE—The dotted lines surrounding the diverging pencil, P, represent a pencil of parallel rays corresponding to a train of plane wave-fronts.)

When a homocentric pencil of rays falls upon a lens at other than normal incidence, it is, of course, subject to the laws of oblique refraction, and upon emergence from the lens it is no longer homocentric. A pencil of rays which does not come to a focus upon its own axis, i. e., a non-homocentric pencil, is therefore said to be "astigmatic," but we shall defer the consideration of the astigmatic deformation of refracted pencils until we come to the subject of aberration.

[1] "Opticks"—1704, Page 2.

It not infrequently occurs that we have to consider the joint action of a number of associated pencils of rays, and an infinite or indefinite number of associated pencils of rays is known in optics as a bundle of rays, while a bundle of considerable dimensions is commonly spoken as a beam of light.

An important theorem relating to rays of light is the one known as Fermat's law[2] or the principle of least time, and as a knowledge of this theorem may have future bearings upon our subject it will prove instructive, as well as interesting, to dwell briefly upon it at this time.

Fermat's law may be stated as follows:

If a ray of light, undergoing any number of reflections and refractions, connects two points the time required for the light to be transmitted from one point to the other along the actual path of the ray is either a minimum or a maximum.

From this theorem of the least (or greatest) time, the expression for the "optical length" of a light ray is represented, numerically, by the sum of the products of the length of path of the ray in each medium traversed multiplied by the refractive index of the medium, which is expressed by where n is the refractive index of the medium, l is the length of the ray path in that medium and Σ is the sign of summation which has to be extended over the products of $n \times l$ for all the media traversed in any given case.

$$\Sigma\ n \times l$$

If we let d represent the difference in time required for a ray to be transmitted along another path infinitely near the first ray path considered, then we have for the reduced path of a ray the equation which is known as the principle of the shortest route, and may be stated thus:

$$d\ (\Sigma\ n \times l) = 0,$$

When light is transmitted from one point to another point, undergoing during its progress any specified series of reflections and refractions, the optical length measured along the actual path of the ray is either a minimum or a maximum.

The truth of this principle is also evident from the viewpoint of the wave theory when it is recalled that the velocity of propagation of light is inversely proportional to the refractive index (n) of the medium traversed, and the principle simply sets forth that in passing from one point to another the light follows the shortest route.

If optical action is defined in terms of the optical length of the rays considered the expression or path integral between conjugate points in the object and image, is known as the "characteristic function," and this method of investigating optical problems was introduced by Sir Wm. R. Hamilton in the year 1833.[3]

$$\Sigma\ n \times l$$

Applied to imagery by a lens, the characteristic function would require that all rays from any given point of the object must be transmitted in equal lengths of time to its conjugate point in the image, and a perfectly corrected lens would therefore be one in which the paths between an object point and its reproduction in the image were of equal time for all zones of that lens.

Another law of importance which finds occasional application in optics is the law of the reversibility of the light path, which may be stated as follows:

If a ray of light, undergoing any number of reflections and refractions, pursues a certain route from one point to another point, and if it is incident normally upon a mirror at its destination, so that it is reflected back upon itself, it will return over precisely the

[2] "Letters to P. Mersenum against Cartesian Dioptrics"—by P. Fermat, Paris, 1667.

[3] "On Some Results of a Characteristic Function in Optics." British Association Reports for 1833, Page 360.

The film that first made motion pictures practical is easily identifiable by the words

"EASTMAN"
AND "KODAK"

on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Stop Experimenting with Your Film DEVELOPING and PRINTING

Look at the quality of the work we do.
Consider whether you can afford to accept less than EVANS' SERVICE assures.

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th Street New York City
Telephone—St. Nicholas 3443

Printing, Developing, Toning, Tinting

Titles
Domestic Foreign

Empire City Film Laboratories, Inc.
345 West 40th Street New York

same route in the reverse direction and finally arrive at its starting point again.

From this it is seen that the path of the rays in any optical instrument is reversible, which can be readily demonstrated in the case of all instruments where it is possible to reflect the rays back upon themselves after they have traversed the instrument.

(To be continued)

Enlargements from Film Images

OCCASIONALLY a film producer requires, for display or publicity purposes, a photograph or enlargement of a scene in a production which has not been recorded by the still photographer, and it then becomes necessary to produce the desired picture by enlargement from an image of the cinefilm which depicts the required subject.

Enlargements may be made from either a negative or a positive cinefilm, and we long ago published in the Camera Department the complete working details of a process which we devised for making such enlargements from the images of a positive cinefilm.

Although the amount of work of this kind is probably not very extensive, the subject of making enlargements from film images comes frequently to notice, chiefly by way of announcements by inventors of "secret processes," whereby superior results are achieved in this line of work.

It is true that the average enlargement from a film image is an abomination to look at, but it should be pointed out that no secret attachments of either a mechanical or an optical nature are required in the production of the best photographic enlargement which it is possible to secure from a given image on a strip of motion picture film. In fact, it seems that conditions favor the sharp imaging, in the enlargement, of so small an original as a cinefilm picture, and the requirements as regards illuminating the tiny image in the lantern are much more moderate than in the case of larger negatives.

The limits of space prevent a detailed consideration of the many points of lantern technique which contribute to the production of good enlargements, but the fact must not be lost sight of that when enlarging from cinefilm images, the grain of the negative emulsion sets a limit upon the size to which such enlargements can be made and still retain a satisfactory appearance. Also the sharpness, gradation and other qualities of the cine image are factors in the appearance of the photographic enlargement, and the quality of a motion picture negative image is pitilessly revealed, when enlarged to even the moderate size of 4" x 5".

In so far as the sharpness in the enlargement is concerned, a good, sharp film image will yield a picture 8" x 10", or a little larger, which is quite satisfactory with respect to definition, but at such an amplification the grain of the emulsion is painfully apparent in most all instances.

When the tremendous speed of negative cinefilm is taken into consideration it must be said that the size of the silver grains has been kept down to a surprising extent, so that without sacrificing rapidity in the negative emulsion the film maker can hardly be expected to further reduce the size of grain.

As it is fair to assume that with accurate apparatus and proper photographic manipulation the sharpness and gradations of a film image may be maintained in an enlargement from that image, it appears that further improvement in this class of work must be in the nature of suppressing the appearance of grain in the enlarged results.

Attempts have already been made along this line, but in all of the experimental results which we have seen the suppression of grain has invariably been accomplished by a loss in sharpness in the enlargement. If fidelity in reproduction is to be maintained the optical arrangements cannot be tampered with, but some mechanical artifices have shown promising results in subduing the appearance of grain in enlargements from film images, and on a future occasion we will give the matter more detailed consideration.

N. C. R. Uses Simplex Projectors

THE National Cash Register Co., of Dayton, Ohio, who are noted for their elaborate projection equipment and extensive collection of lantern slides and motion picture films, have recently purchased two motor driven Simplex projectors for the use of one of their road companies.

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Compositions

1—"In a Garden of Shadows and Tears," by A. Manlowe. A very attractive melody of pathetic character. (Vandersloot Publishing Co., Williamsport, Pa.)

2—"At the Grasshopper's Hope." A characteristic Two-Step equally effective for cornet, street and moving picture work. (Leo Feist edition.)

3—"Violets Bring Memories," by Brandon. A melodious, 4/4 moderato movement—unusually delightful and most appropriate for love scenes. (Published by Stark Music Co., St. Louis, Mo.)

4—"Hail, America!" (March), "The Rookies" (March), two favorites by "Geo. Drumm." These marches have the right tingling swing. They are bound to be heard frequently at a time when out of the great abundance of patriotic march tunes a process of musical selection of the fittest assures the popularity of such numbers as these by Drumm and Gay's Sons of Liberty. (G. Schirmer edition.)

5—Fifteen Minutes of Laughter and Tears. A double number in fact and musical intent. Illustrates the two extremes in melodious temperaments. (A) Beautifully defines the lighter or frivolous. (B) Is in a relative minor illustrating the plaintive which is the most serious requirement of the Photo Play. (J. W. Stern, N. Y. C.)

6—Ten Minutes of Drama. A suite of two very long numbers. (A) Illustrates the dramatic in a neutral style. (B) Melodiously expresses the romantic or pathetic aftermath. (J. W. Stern, N. Y. C.)

7—Fifteen Minutes of Pathos. A suite of two long concert numbers that will maintain a pathetic appeal interestingly. Both numbers will permit of dramatic interpretation. (J. W. Stern, N. Y. C.)

8—"Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," by Theodore Morse. Every musician knows the famous old song hit, "We Won't Go Home Till Morning." "Hail, Hail" is better. (Leo Feist edition.)

9—"Danse Orientale," by Harriette Cady. Any pianist can play and enjoy this charming dance-fancy in Mongol style. (G. Schirmer edition.)

10—"Stock Yard Blues," by Maceo Pinkard. Another of Pinkard's incomparable Two-Steps—with all the melody, snap and dash which made this writer famous. (Leo Feist edition.)

11—"Somewhere in France is the Lily," a novelty song by Jos. E. Howard. A typical composition of tempo "Marziale," most appropriate for opening purposes of scenes of a military character. (M. Witmark edition.)

12—"Bring Back My Daddy to Me," by Geo. W. Meyer. A valse moderato movement of exceptional tonal beauty. (Leo Feist edition.)

13—"America, I Love You, My Yankee Land," by Jack Frost. A wonderful, inspiring and martial composition. (Published by the McKinley Music Co., 1501 E. 55th St., Chicago, Ill.)

14—Dolce Far Niente, Serenade by Lucius Hosmer. A charming and melodious composition. (Carl Fischer edition.)

New Compositions by Charles Huerter:

1.—Told at Twilight
2.—In Springtime
3.—Caprice
4.—Mélodie
5.—Au Bal
6.—Yesterdays
7.—Valsette, in F
8.—Longing
9.—In the Starlight
10.—Scène de Ballet
11.—Cradle Song
12.—At the Show

1, With Xylophone and Bells; 2, The Pretty Ballad Singer; 3, The Juggler Comedian; 4, The Toe Dancer; 5, On the High Trapeze; 6, Soldier Song.

13.—Berceuse, in G
14.—Dance Caprice, in A
15.—Goldilocks
16.—In the Land of Sunshine
17.—Old Friends
18.—Valse
19.—The Tease
20.—Intermezzo
21.—Forget-me-nots
22.—At the Kirmess
23.—Albumleaf
24.—Happyland
25.—At Play
26.—At the Toy Shop

1, Rocking Horse; 2, Little Jumping Jack; 3, Tin Soldiers' Guard; 4, Punch and Judy; 5, The Story Book; 6, The Clowns.

You Can't Keep Good Songs Down

"FAUGH-A-BALLAGH," the new battle song of the trenches, is another instance of a good song forging to the front in spite of handicaps. Shortly after Abe Olman wrote it he was caught in the draft and then enlisted. Following this Fred Forster, the publisher, had to go to the Coast for a rest and he closed the New York office. These sudden shifts in business upset matters a little, but they could not prevent the song from progressing. Practically the last thing that Forster did before leaving New York was to have some copies of "Faugh-A-Ballagh" sent to France. Since he closed the New York office scarcely a day passes but at least a dozen performers call and ask Pat Howley if Forster left any copies of "Faugh-A-Ballagh" around. And when they find there is none to be had they want to know where is the nearest music store that has regular copies of "Faugh-A-Ballagh" on sale. Reports coming from Chicago say that the song is a tremendous hit out there, and last Saturday the New York Evening Sun ran a picture of a band in France, with a caption saying that the band had adopted "Faugh-A-Ballagh" as the battle song.

A good song will sell a certain amount of its own accord, regardless of who put it out, and it will sell a great deal more if properly exploited. Look at what "Missouri Waltz" did. Every one but Forster thought it was a joke. Logan published it in Oskaloosa, Iowa, but that fact did not keep it down. "Long Boy" is another case of a good number forcing its way out of the timber.

"M-O-T-H-E-R" was thought to be such a joke that Morse and Johnson presented it to Phil Kornhiser with apologies. And Kornhiser shared their opinion until Eva Tanguay took a fancy to it and turned it into a hit. The song had the punch for the crowd and would in all likelihood have been a big hit whether Tanguay or some one else had used it.

According to Wolfe Gilbert, Belle Baker introduced "Waiting for the Robert E. Lee" and took it off. She tried it the second time and discarded it. Then a few others, not so big, used the song and it was a hit.

Some years ago a newspaper man and a composer framed up a job on a big publisher. The composer had a waltz that he had peddled all around and was about to tear it up in disgust when the newspaper man met him. After listening to the composer's tale of woe the newspaper man told him to give it a new title, make a new copy, and then he would run a feature story in one of the Sunday papers on it.

NONA

THE SENSATIONAL WALTZ HIT!!

Waltz, for Piano - - -	15c
Vocal - - - - -	15c
Orchestra, 11 and Piano -	25c
Orchestra, Full and Piano -	35c

The Tune That Sticks

WHY?

IT'S DIFFERENT!

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

"IF YOU'LL RETURN" WALTZ. A Real Ballad. Orch. 25c.

"Little Yokohama Lady" FOX TROT. Japanese Novelty Song. Orch. 25c.

"AMERICA, MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY"

The Latest Hit in a Patriotic Song—A Great Number for Brass Also.
BAND 25c. ONE STEP. ORCH. 25c.

"THAT'S MY GIRL"

FOX TROT. Novelty Song—A Wonderful Double. ORCH. 25c.

"JACK AND JILL"

FOX TROT. A Wonderful Instrumental Number. ORCH. 25c.

"ST. PATRICK'S DAY IN THE U. S. A."

A BRAND NEW IRISH SONG—A SURE HIT.
BAND 25c. ONE STEP. ORCH. 25c.

TIMES MUSIC PUB. CO., Inc.
"THE HOUSE OF FEATURES"
RUDOLPH E. De VIVO, Pres.
145 W. 45th Street NEW YORK

A story came out in the paper and was read by one of the big publishers at the time. The latter sent for the newspaper man and asked him if he thought the composer would sell.

"I'll see him," replied the newspaper man.

Then the newspaper man told the composer to go and see if he could get a hundred for it. The composer called on the publisher, and, after refusing $25 advance and a royalty contract, sold the waltz outright for $100. Ten minutes later he met the newspaper man and gave him $25 for engineering the deal, and the pair had several drinks and any number of laughs at the expense of the publisher. A year later the publisher quit the business, after having sold half a million copies of the waltz, and disposed of that copyright for $1,500. E. M. WICKES.

General Comments

"AMERICA, MAKE THE WORLD SAFE FOR DEMOCRACY" is going to make itself heard throughout the vaudeville and motion picture fields. It is an excellent number, for if it were not, Reine Davis would not add it to her repertoire. It is published by the Times Music Co., 145 W. 45th street, which is exploiting it with a real bank roll and modern methods. Reports coming in from salesmen on the road, as well as from performers and musicians who have used the number, convince Mr. De Vivo, the president, that the firm has a genuine hit.

Sam Mitnick, who used to get acts and cover some of the motion picture houses for Jos. W. Stern & Co., has joined the staff of Shapiro Bernstein Co., and is working on Joe Goodwin's new song, "Liberty Bell, It's Time to Ring Again."

"There'll Be a Hot Time for the Old Men When the Young Men Go to War," published by Leo Feist, is creating a great deal of talk and is being featured by many singers and musicians.

James W. Casey, president of the Echo Music Co., is on the road and sending in plenty of orders for "My Golden West" and "My Hawaii, I Hear You Calling."

"Pick a Four-Leaf Clover and Send It to Me" is a new number just issued by the F. J. A. Forster Music Co., Chicago, Ill.

"Nona," Fred Vandersloot's latest waltz, has brought in a raft of compliments from the leaders who have put it on. Plenty of grass grows in Williamsport, Pa., Fred's home town, but none gets a chance to sprout under his feet.

M. J. SAMUELS, vice-president of the American Photo Player Company, and directing head of that orzanization's headquarters in New York, has been visiting the home office, in San Francisco. Incidental to the record of war conditions and weather reports, Mr. Samuels has enfolded several orders for the Robert-Morton in New York State and two large FOTOPLAYER deals in Pennsylvania.

"A SOUL IN TRUST"

(Triangle Production)

Theme: "Lamento" (Dramatic and Pathetic) by Gabriel-Marie

1—"Melody," (Moderato), by Friml, until—T: "Off in quest of game."
2—Continue pp. until—T: "A storm."
3—"Storm Furioso," pp., until—T: "Hemmed in by the elements."
4—Continue to action until—S: Girl in bridal dress.
NOTE—With ad. lib. Tympany Rolls during Storm Scenes.
5—"Capricious Anette" (Moderato Intermezzo), by Borch, until—T: "With each succeeding day."
6—Theme, until—T: "Marse Dabney told me, etc."
7—"Erotik" (Dramatic), by Grieg, until—S: Exterior of horse stables.
8—Continue ff. until—T: "On the brink of the great divide."
9—"Heavy Dramatic," by Oehmler, until—T: "Troubled by the ever present memory."
10—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement, until—T: "Courtney legally adopts, etc."
11—Theme until—T: "From Virginia to Washington."
12—"Berceuse" (Moderato), by Grieg, until—T: "For Nan the twenty years."
13—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic), by Karganoff, until—T: "Nan's game begins."
14—Continue pp. until—T: "Once more the old, old story."
15—Theme until—T: "Each succeeding week, etc."
16—"Reception Scene" (Valse Lente), by Braham, until—S: Courtney playing piano.
17—Piano Solo, improvise to action, until—T: "You know I love you, etc."
18—"Melody" (Moderato), by Kretschmer, until—T: "Hello, mother, I've just heard the news."
19—Theme until—T: "Arrogantly confident of winning, etc."
20—"Debutante" (Melodious Waltz), by Santelman, until—T: "I must have left, etc."
21—Continue pp. until—T: "An inspiration to use the son."
22—Theme until—T: "Next morning finds Dabney, etc."

23—"Cavatine" (Dramatic Moderato), by Bohm, until—T: "I wonder what did become, etc."
24—"Heart Wounds" (Pathetic-Dramatic), by Grieg, until—T: "Franklin discerns, etc."
25—Continue to action until—T: "Any message to your mother?"
26—Piano Solo, improvise to action, until—S: Courtney leaves piano.
27—"Adieu" (Moderato Mel.), by Karganoff, until—T: "Mother, I think I have the right, etc."
28—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "If he loves you, mother."
29—Theme until—S: Interior of Senator's office.
30—"Ein Maerchen" (Dramatic Fantasia), by Bach, until—T: "I've come to you to hear."
NOTE—Opening of Cue No. 30 is "Maestoso-Mysterioso Movement.
31—"Dramatic Andante," by E. Ascher, until—T: "God sent his soul, etc."
32—Theme until—T: "Mother, I've judged all women, etc."
33—"Prelude" (Heavy Dramatic), by Rachmaninoff, until—T: "She will keep her promise."
34—Theme until * * * * * END.

"LITTLE RED DECIDES"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on page 1318)

Theme: "Dawn of Love" (Allegretto) by Bendix

1—Silence until—S: First scene of picture.
2—Organ, improvise imitation of mouth organ, until—S: Man stops playing mouth organ.
3—Silence until—T: "The home of Red Antone."
4—"Sorrow Theme," by Edw. Roberts, until—T: "The heart of Aliso Roncho."
5—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—S: Colonel looking at picture.
6—Repeat "Sorrow Theme" (same as Cue No. 4), until—S: Interior of kitchen.
7—"Intermezzo (2/4 Presto), by Aranski, until—S: Cook bathing the child.
8—"Birds of Spring" (Mazurka), by Williams, until—T: "The room long held sacred."
9—Theme until—S: Child running out of kitchen.
10—"Intermezzo (Allegretto), by Bohm, until—T: "The news of little Red's orphaning."
11—Continue to action until—T: "Perhaps not but, etc."
12—"Sieste" (Characteristic Lento), by Laurens, until—T: "During ensuing weeks, etc."
13—"Reve D'Amour" (Allegretto), by Zameznik, until—S: Colonel looking at picture.
14—Theme until—T: "Angels and celestial singing."
15—"In Lovers' Lane" (Characteristic Intermezzo), by Pryor, until—T: "Throughout the night, etc."
16—"Tragic Theme by Paul Vely, until—T: "With the advent of sickness."
17—"Cavatine" (4/4 Dramatic Moderato), by Bohm, until—T: "But a mere change, etc."
NOTE—Tympany Rolls ff during Scenes—where Doctor arrives in wagon.
18—"Good Bye," song, by Tosti, until—T: "Far into the night, etc."
19—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Moderato), by Favarger, until—T: "Mr. Gilroy, this is, etc."
20—"Le Retour" (Allegro), by Bizet, until—T: "You've got to make that wedding, etc."
21—"Vanity" (Allegro Caprice), by Jackson, until—T: "Just over the hill, etc."
22—"Louise" (Comic Waltz), by Pryor, until—T: "Wouldn't you like a new mamma?"
23—"Chinese Serenade," by Puerner, until * * * * * END.

"THE BELOVED TRAITOR"

(Goldwyn Production)

Theme: "A Deep Sea Romance" (4/4 Andante Moderato) by M. L. Lake

1—"Morning" (6/8 Allegretto-Pastorale), by Grieg, until—T: "A tale of soft living."
2—"Eldorey" (Ballet Intermezzo), by Von der Mehden, until—T: "A tale of the rescuing beacon."
3—"Pearl Fisher" Selection (Second Movement, Andante non troppo), by Bizet, until—T: "Judd Minot, Mary's Judd."
4—"Whims" (3/4 Allegro Giocoso), by Schumann, until—T: "Captain Nat's weather beaten inn."
5—Continue to action until—T: "Judd's Mutt dolls are primitive."
6—"Hurry," No. 22, by Lake, until—T: "And in the night, etc."
7—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—S: Priest praying near bed of old fisherman.
NOTE—With ad. lib. Tympany Rolls during Storm Scenes.
8—"Nearer, My God, to Thee" (hymn), until—T: "But as sure, etc."
9—Theme until—S: Man playing piano.
10—Piano improvise to action until—S: Exterior view of inn.
11—"La Grace" (4/4 Moderato), by Bohm, until—T: "And to Mary came the knowledge."
12—Continue to action until—T: "And Mary prayed only, etc."
13—Organ Solo, improvise to action (scene of prayer), until—T: "And the morning found another girl, etc."
14—"The Vampire" (a Dramatic Theme), by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "My father will make it possible for you, etc."
15—Theme until—T: "Your grand friends is comin'."
16—"Love Song" (Dramatic), by Flegier, until—T: "Henry Bliss failed utterly."
17—Continue to action until—T: "The Day of Departure."
18—Theme until—T: "Two years and money, etc."
19—"Dramatic Narrative," by Pauline Pement, until—T: "Myrna Bliss is entirely responsible."
20—"Reve D'Amour" (Melodious Allegretto), by Zameznik until—T: "Always the face of that fisher girl."
21—Theme until—T: "On the eve of the event."
22—"Pastel Minuet" (3/4 Melodious Allegro Giocoso), by Paradis, until—T: "There was a time when, etc."
23—Continue pp. until—T: "Judds, benefactor, anxious to learn, etc."
24—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Henry Bliss had realized, etc."
25—Theme until—S: Interior of Judds' studio.
26—Illusion (2/4 Moderato Intermezzo), by Bustanoby, until—T: "And so the usual crowd, etc."
27—"Valse Caprice," by Rubinstein, until—S: Young girl playing piano.
28—Piano Solo, improvise to action, until—T: "The light of the beacon."
29—Continue piano solo to action until—T: "The beacon, it is the beacon."
NOTE—FF during dancing scenes only.
30—Popular Trot until—S: Crowd enters the studio and sees the fisher girl.
NOTE—Begin pp. then to action.
31—"Three Graces" (Allegro Intermezzo), by Herman, until—T: "Get out of there, you scum!"
32—"Aragonaise," from "Le Cid" (Dramatic Allegro), by Massenet, until—T: "You're a clever boy."
33—"Heavy Agitato" (for fight) to action, until—S: After the fight.
34—Continue pp. until—T: "Borne on the surge, etc."
35—Theme until * * * * * END.

(Additional Music Charts will be found on page 1791.)

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

THE BARTOLA

Gives you unequaled tone quality combined with the best construction.

Write for catalogue

CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.

Theatres Worth While

Interior and Lobby Views of Lyric Theatre, Cadillac, Michigan

Lyric Theatre Scores a Big Success in Cadillac

IN the new Lyric Theatre built and operated by the Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company, Cadillac, has one of the most modern and beautiful motion picture theatres in Michigan, and by far the best north of Grand Rapids. The new building is located on one of the principal corners of the city and occupies a site fifty by one hundred and fifty feet. It was built under the direct supervision of E. L. Miller, vice-president of the Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company, and was opened within three months from the time the ground was first opened.

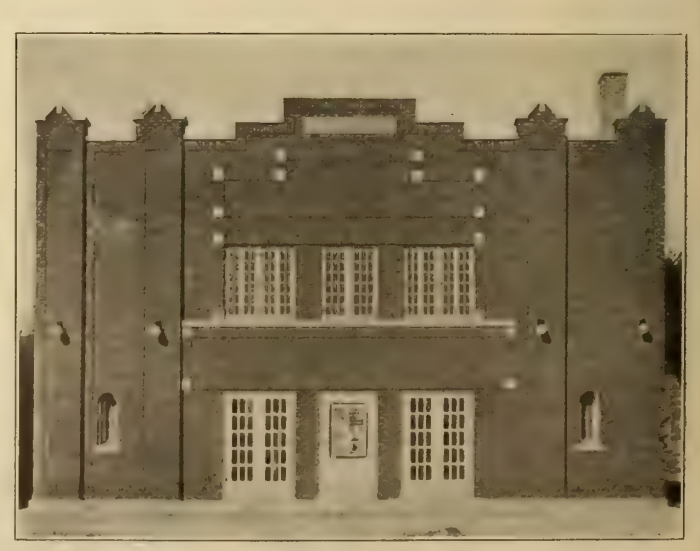
The new Lyric Theatre has a seating capacity of one thousand. A large proportion of the seats are on the main floor and the balcony is divided into twelve "automobile boxes," varying in seating arrangements from eight to sixteen chairs. These boxes are the only seats in the house that may be reserved, no higher admission being charged, the only stipulation being that the entire box be taken.

The stage is fifty by fifty feet, thus being of a size large enough to accommodate any but the most elaborate production. This stage is equipped with the full complement of scenery and props and the managers of the new house will from time to time present legitimate dramas and lighter musical shows and farce comedies.

The decorations are in buff and rose, which blend extremely well under the subdued indirect lighting from the inverted electroliers. The foyer is furnished entirely in willow and rose-patterned creton, which harmonizes nicely with the silken lamp shades and the wall tints. The balcony stairs lead from the foyer and paintings of prominent screen stars are made a part of the decorations. The lobby is very commodious, with heavy brass railings separating the entrance from the exits, thus facilitating the emptying of the theatre between performances. The lobby floor is of marbelized tiling. The ticket booth is circular and portable and is placed in the center of the lobby.

The house is equipped for a pipe organ, but it will be some weeks before the instrument can be installed. At present a six-piece orchestra furnishes the music.

The Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company puts special stress on the quality of the films it exhibits, showing only the highest class programs. Its vaudeville acts come from the Butterfield circuit and are also of the highest type.



George H. Kennedy, who has been associated with the Fitzpatrick-McElroy Company for several years, is resident manager. Mr. Kennedy is a very capable man and has had much experience in the motion field. He is ably assisted by his wife.

The entire proceeds of one of the opening days were given to the Red Cross. The show at this performance was Jack Pickford in "The Spirit of 1917."

New Colfax Theatre a Success

COLONIAL THEATRE, Colfax, Ill., is not yet quite five months old, having been opened on November 1, 1917, but in that time it has established itself as one of the foremost houses of that section. It is owned and managed by H. A. Arnold.

It is located in the business section of the city, and the construction is of brick. It seats 500 people, and is equipped with a Motiograph, which has a throw of 75 feet to a canvas screen. The interior is attractively decorated and music is supplied by two Estey pianos and an orchestra.

Colonial Theatre, Colfax, Ill.

Only one show is given each day and this consists of from five to eight reels. Paramount and Artcraft services are being used, changes of bill being made three times a week and 11 and 17 cents admission charged.

Biograph Studios, 807 East 175th Street

ONE of the most up-to-date studios in New York is the Biograph Studio at 807 East 175th Street. This studio is equipped with every possible accessory for turning out the largest productions for program companies or the state rights buyer.

On entering the studios we first find the offices of the company which are elaborately furnished and up-to-date in every respect. A stage for taking pictures covers about 80 feet wide by 160 feet deep, and the ceiling is absolutely covered with Cooper-Hewitt lights. The overhead system consists of 80 Cooper-Hewitt banks which so covers this ceiling with lights as to allow every possible foot of this stage to be used for photographing. In addition to these overheads there are 20 side banks of Cooper-Hewitts and a full equipment of Kliegl and Wohl lights.

On the top floor can be found a glass covered studio for taking sunlight pictures. There is also supplied a sufficient amount of lighting equipment to blend in taking these pictures. Thirty Cooper-Hewitt side banks and a large number of arc lamps are also used in lighting this upper floor.

In going through the studio we find that every possible convenience can be found for both the actor and actress and also extras. There are plenty of large dressing rooms with running water and heat. Also a large number of shower baths have been provided for the use of those working in the studio. Another accommodation is a large restaurant on the third floor, where a substantial meal can be obtained at any hour. There are some especially fitted rooms accessible for the directors in cutting, etc.

The building throughout is fireproof and equipped with a sprinkler system. A special arrangement of heating and ventilating apparatus are features of these studios.

On the ground floor at a distance far enough to avoid the annoyance of the players can be found a large and up-to-date carpenter shop where the necessary props, etc., are made. In addition to this carpenter shop there is also an adequate amount of props already built and can be used in the making of large features.

Another asset to these studios is the fact that film can be Handsome new Liberty Theatre, Fresno, Cal. It has a seating capacity of 2,000. Theodore Keich is the manager.

Requires No Sugar— No Wheat— Preferred By All Patriots

Hundreds and hundreds of film exhibitors delight their patrons and draw extra crowds by having a Butter-Kist Machine in the lobby of their theatres. Requires only 26 x 32 inches of floor space.

These aggressive theatre managers—in big and little cities alike—are earning from $600 to $3,120 per year from this Butter-Kist Pop Corn Machine. Runs itself. Requires no heavy stock investment. Handsomely built. Beautifies any theatre.

BUTTER-KIST
Pop Corn Machine

War-time conditions are making Pop Corn more popular than candy. And Butter-Kist—the trade-marked Pop Corn that is nationally advertised to millions—will dominate the market.

Wherever a theatre will pay—this machine will pay and pay big!

Get our offer to let you buy from your profits as thousands are doing.

Write! at once for our amazing merchandising book called "America's New Industry." Packed full of signed sales records, proof of profits, photographs and documentary evidence. Write at once. This book is free.

Holcomb & Hoke Mfg. Co.
686-700 Van Buren St., Indianapolis, Ind.

Mail This Coupon for Full Proof

HOLCOMB & HOKE MANUFACTURING COMPANY,
686-700 Van Buren Street,
Indianapolis, Indiana.

Gentlemen:
Without obligation to me send your free merchandising book, "America's New Industry," and prices and terms of Butter-Kist Pop Corn Machine.

My business is .....

Name .....

Address .....

City ..... State .....

A Good Program

means a Good Theatre. If your theatre is worth advertising it is certainly worth advertising well. Poor advertising never made a nickel for anyone. The best printed matter is the best buy—even if it costs more. You don't buy your wife's hat where they sell hats cheapest—you want to be proud of her. Why not spend a little time thinking about the dress-up of your theatre. Make it something to be proud of.

Write for Full Information

"De Luxe Four Page Programs"

Are Neat and Dressy

They bring a message of Refinement to those who receive them. They present a picture of a Fine, Well Ordered Theatre. Do you want people to think of your theatre as such? If so, ask about our Free Write-Up Service.

Cahill-Igoe Co. (117 West Harrison Street) Chicago

"PRINTERS of QUALITY"

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Read What Josiah Pearce & Sons Say About Our Goods

Gentlemen:

Now that you have completed equipment in our new theatres here in New Orleans and Houston, Texas, we want to take this means of expressing to you our appreciation of the manner in which we have done business with you, also as to the character of your goods. You have, without exception, filled our orders just as promptly as we could ever expect and probably quicker than we had anticipated, and the fact of your having supplied us with brass frames and various other equipment in our fifteen theatres is evidence that we are pleased with your goods, for they are the most attractive, durable and practical that we have as yet found.

We wish you good luck in the prosecution of your work.

Yours very truly,

JOSIAH PEARCE & SONS,

J. E. PEARCE. New Orleans, La.

The Newman Mfg. Co.

Write for our Latest Catalogue

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio

68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois

Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone. Rialto Theatre Bldg. Montreal, Canada

Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal

Established 1882

Frames, Easels, Rails, Grilles, Signs Choppers, Kick Plates, Door Bars

PHOTOPLAYLETS

Real Actors in Real Settings—Any "Copy" desired by the Individual Advertiser appears Simultaneously with the Action, making Valuable Screen Space 100 Per Cent Efficient

MAKE YOUR LOCAL MERCHANTS GLAD TO USE

SCREEN ADVERTISING

Exclusive Territory—Wonderful Sample Outfits—Helpful Cooperation—Investigate

ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO.

1339-51 Diversey Parkway

CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Business Offerings

FOR SALE—The following features in first-class condition with full line of advertising matters: Lina Rivers, 5 Reels, Beulah Poynter, $50; In the Land of the Head Hunters, 6 Reels, $60; Brothers Tyranny, 5 Reels, $55; Lily of Poverty Flat, 5 Reels, Beatriz Michelena, $50; Justice, 4 Reels, $40; Robbers, 6 Reels, Morris Morrison, $75; also 1, 2 and 3 reel subject Comedies and Dramas with full line of posters. H. & B. Film Service, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

FOR SALE: 90 reels of 3, 4 and 5-reel subjects, all in A1 condition, with a full line of advertising matter. If all taken will sell at $4.00 per reel. Act quick. N. Drapkin, 729 Seventh Ave., New York City.

WHY HESITATE

to SAVE yourselves MONEY on M. P. Supplies and Accessories.

VISIT the

INDEPENDENT MOVIE SUPPLY CO.

and receive

PERSONAL ATTENTION

Room 603 729 7th Ave., N. Y.

Unless You Have The

Automaticket System

You Are Losing Money

1733 Broadway, New York

Directory of New Theatres

ARKANSAS

C. H. McCroskey has opened a new motion picture theatre at Dermott, a town of about 1700 population.

DELAWARE

Plans are being prepared by J. J. Kennedy, architect, for a motion picture theatre for John L. Tobin, to be erected in Delaware street, New Castle. The building will seat 500 persons. It will be built with tapestry brick front, stone trimmings, and will be modern in every detail.

CALIFORNIA

Mrs. Ruth S. Cassil, who has purchased the Colonial theatre at Monrovia, is negotiating with several property owners on Myrtle avenue for the erection of a new theatre with a seating capacity of 600.

C. F. Unger has purchased three lots on High street, Selma, on which he intends to erect a modern opera house and motion picture theatre.

The Richmond district of San Francisco will soon have a modern theatre, according to A. S. Newburgh, whose clients recently purchased from the Sutro estate a plot of land 125 x 125 feet at Ninth avenue and Clement street, San Francisco.

Prospects are bright for a new motion picture theatre in South Vallejo, and Patrick Vincent Connell, proprietor of Library Hall has been approached on the subject of converting Library Hall into such a house.

ILLINOIS

The Presbyterian Church of Carlinville has purchased a motion picture machine which the pastor, Rev. C. K. Osborne, will use in connection with the delivering of his evening sermons. He believes that a picture properly shown brings home the truth more powerfully than the mere spoken word.

INDIANA

The Banzai theatre at Fowler was opened March 9, after having been dark since the first of the year. The place has been redecorated and presents a really attractive appearance. "The German Curse in Russia" was the film offering.

IOWA

Manager B. R. Beatty of the Fairfield theatre, Fairfield, is making arrangements for the remodeling and improving of his theatre.

A. C. Harris has built a new theatre at Dumont, Iowa, which will be known as "The Star." The building is 34 x 80, with a stage 16 x 34 and has a seating capacity of 350.

MASSACHUSETTS

The Fellsworth theatre at Medford was reopened last week, under the management of G. Hackett and Ramsdell Bros, an organization known as the Medford Amusement Company

MONTANA

Harlowton, the thriving and fast growing seat of Wheatland County, is to have a modern motion picture theatre. A Denver capitalist has bought the land and work has already been commenced, on the erection of a house for the silent drama, to cost $100,000. This same man has also bought a corner lot on which he intends to build an up-to-date four or five story hotel.

NEBRASKA

It is the intention of Ballenger and Son, owners of the Opera House building, York, to give same a thorough overhauling from proscenium to gallery, and to thoroughly redecorate throughout.

A $5,000 Opera House has just been completed at Juniata, of which F. O. Grass has been named as manager.

PENNSYLVANIA

The new Parkview theate at Johnstown was duly opened on schedule time recently, and its opening was marked by the turning out of record crowds. Frank Houston is the manager.

Ray C. Owens, secretary-treasurer and general manager, and Meyer Goldman, general counsel for the Frank A. Keeney Picture Corp. of New York City, have closed a deal with the Smith Printing Co. for the purchase of the old Lycoming Opera House site, on West Third street, on which Mr. Keeney will erect a $200,000 theatre. W. H. Lehman of Newark, N. J., is the architect for Mr. Keeney.

RHODE ISLAND

The H. D. Perry Co. of Bellows Falls, Vt., recently opened the Lafayette theatre at Newport. David Dow assumes the active management.

WASHINGTON

T. K. West and Son of Chehalis announce that extensive remodeling and redecorating of their Empress theatre will be commenced immediately, when the upstairs portion of the building over the theatre, now used as a rooming house, will be fitted up as a gallery. The side stairs will be taken out and a balcony put in for the theatre, with a stairway near the front of the theatre. The floor will be leveled and extended towards the front of the building, not so much space being used for entrance as now. The theatre will be redecorated and remodeled throughout. Upholstered opera chairs will be put in downstairs, and the stage will be remodeled to accommodate the smaller road shows.

The recently organized Community Center Club of Redmond has installed a motion picture machine in their edifice and will give exhibitions of the silent drama at stated intervals.

Contractor M. Hoard, 2019 24th avenue, So., was awarded the contract for installing the motion picture theatre on 1st avenue, between Cherry and Columbia streets, Seattle, by Architect B. Marcus Priteca, Pantages building.

The contract calls for an expenditure of $5,000 for the complete alterations

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.

HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.

W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A

GET YOUR RELEASES IN EARLY

exclusive of painting, wiring and metal fixtures. John Danz is the owner.

WISCONSIN

August Shocow, owner of the Bijou theatre at Wausau, contemplates the erection of a new and thoroughly modern theatre on the site of the present one, in the early spring.

The Bijou theatre, Kaukauna, which was recently destroyed by fire, is being rebuilt by Messrs. Clelland and Conkey, who purchased the building and interests from Nugent Bros.

(Continued from page 1787)

"A DAUGHTER OF THE GODS"

(Fox Standard Production)

Witch Theme: "Halloween Episode" by Lake
Anitia Theme: "Anthony's Love Song" from the "Cleopatra Suite" by Oehmler

1—"Bee Dance of the Almas" from "Queen of Sheba Ballet," by Goldmark, until—T: "Let us pretend with the children, etc."
2—"Blue Violets" (Mazurka Caprice), by Eilenberg, until T: "The witch a mischief maker."
3—Witch Theme until—T: "In her wicked travels, etc."
4—Continue to action, until—T: "The Sultan distraught leads the search, etc."
5—"To Spring," by Greig, until—T: "Gentle Mydia's heart breaks, etc."
NOTE—Begin with "Second Movement—Letter B."
6—Continue pp. until—T: "This is the prologue of our story."
7—Song of India from "Sadko," by Rimsky-Korsakow, until—T: "The realm of the mermaids."
8—Second movement, "Allegro Non Troppo," from "Undine Overture," by Lertzing, until—T: "From the sea which claimed her, etc."
9—Anitia Theme, until—T: "Knowing that Anitia will, etc."
10—Witch Theme, until—T: "Believing the witch's lie, etc."
11—"Heavy Dramatic," by Oehmler, until—T: "While Anitia breasts, etc."
12—Repeat Cue No. 8, Second Movement, from "Undine Overture," by Lortzing, until—T: "Within the Sultan's harem."
13—"Moorish Serenade," by Chapi, until—T: "Anitia's timid peace offering."
14—"Romance," by Rubens, until—T: "The call of mate to mate."
15—Anitia Theme, until—T: "The Spring Festival."
16—"Dance Arabe," from "The Nut Cracker Suite," by Tschaikowsky, until—T: "Take her to the tower to await, etc."
17—Eliyah Fantasia, by Mendelssohn (Noto from beginning), until—T: "With the morning, etc."
18—Continue Eliyah with "Allegro con fuoco" movement, Letter L. to Letter P., always repeating this movement "only," until—T: "Zarah seeks advice from her mistress."
19—Witch Theme, until—S: Fire rain in view.
20—Contine ff. with ad. lib. "Tympany Rolls," until—T: "When the spirit of good will, etc."
21—Second Movement, "Allegro Energico," from Rienzi Overture," by Wagner, until—T: "The very next day Zarah pleads, etc."
22—Prelude to "First Carmen Suite," by Bizet, until—T: "Anitia is lost to you forever."
23—"Fourteen Fathoms Deep," by Lake (effects of rough sea waves, etc.), until—T: "With grateful heart Anitia would, etc."
24—"Caguetterie" (Tempo di Valse), by Mathews, until—T: "The gnomes are the busiest people."
25—Light and Good Allegro Hurry, until—T: "Although very, very busy, etc."
NOTE—Watch for Church Bell effect.
26—Organ solo (Scene of Prayer), until—S: Witch appears amongst them.
27—Witch Theme ff. until—T: "Treat her well for as long, etc."
28—Anitia Theme, until—T: "Shadows of the Evening."
29—"Scheherazade," by Korsakow, until—T: "While the mermaids, etc."
30—Continue to action, until—T: "Of course gnomes are wise."
31—"Evening Breeze," idyl by Langey, until—T: "The Sultan's subjects rise in wrath, etc."
32—"Rienzi Selection," by Wagner. Note—from beginning to Lento movement, and keep on repeating, until—T: "In this dire extremity, etc."
33—"Credo," from the "St. Cecile Mass," by Gounod, until—T: "A mighty army approaches, etc."
NOTE—Play it "Two in a Bar."
34—"Dramatic Maestoso," by Loraine, until—T: "So the Prince takes command."
35—Fanfare Call, by two trumpets, until—S: Anitia with her army arrives.
36—Very heavy battle and fire furiosos, until—T: "The soul of Anitia, etc."
37—Anitia Theme, until—T: "The Prince does honor, etc."
38—"Solemn March," by Haendel, until—T: "Now the Sultan of a city of ruins."
39—Continue pp. until—S: Mob running to the seashore.
40—Continue ff., with ad. lib. Tympany Rolls, until—T: "It was the Prince's wish, etc."
41—Anitia Theme, until * * * * * END.

"CHEATING THE PUBLIC"

(Fox Standard Production)

(Reviewed on page 735)

IMPORTANT NOTE: CUE NO. 29 is of a very dramatic character but the continuity of the picture is not consistent. The dramatic action is often interrupted by scenes showing an automobile racing after a train. I suggest to overlook these incidents as the theme is really dramatic and to simply use ad. lib. railroad effects pp—wherever necessary.
CUES NO. 20 and 22 are the best adapted for an Orchestra Rest.

Dramatic Theme: "Love Song" by Flegier
Storm Theme: "Any Heavy and Long Storm Furioso"

1—Silence until—T: "Young soldiers bearing too early."
2—"Baby Sweetheart," by Corri, until—T: "The widowed mother whose, etc."
3—Dramatic Theme until—T: "Dowling master of Millvale."
4—"Romance," by Frommel, until—T: "Just a minute, Cutey."
5—Second Movement, "Molto Vivace," from "Frieshuetz Overture," by Weber, with ad. lib. Tympany Rolls and crashing effect of falling tin cans (watch carefully for this effect), until—T: "Good for you, I'll get you, etc."
6—Continue pp. until—T: "A surprise visit."
7—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "Thompson canned me, but, etc."
8—Theme until—T: "Who do you think you are?"
9—Continue ff. until—T: "Another charge is laid to Dowling."
10—"Parting," by Bendix, until—T: "The following month Dowling, etc."
11—"Dramatic Tension," No. 1 (mob scene), by Ascher, until—T: "As your attorney, Dowling, I tell you, etc."
12—Good "Allegro Agitato" or heavy hurry to action pp. or ff. until—T: "Bright and early next morning."
13—"Dramatic Tension," No. 44, by Borch, until—T: "At the hour when those, etc."
14—Theme until—S: Mob scene in view.
15—Continue ff. with ad. lib. Tympany Rolls, until—T: "There came a night."
16—Storm theme, with big storm effects to action, until—T: "A lady to see you, sir."
17—Another storm Furioso, or keep on repeating "Storm Theme," pp. with Tympany Rolls, during lightning scenes, until—S: The fight.
18—Continue ff. until—T: "Five minutes later."
19—Continue pp. until—T: "The State tries Mary Garvin."
20—Organ to action (court-room scene) until—S: Mary tells about the fight.
21—Storm Theme (watch shots), until—S: Full view of jury. After shots.
22—Organ to action (court-room scene) until—T: "Mary's story awakened young Dowling."
23—Dramatic Theme until—T: "This rat has been on the bum."
24—"Agitato" to action, until—T: "Midnight and down to see, etc."
25—"Heavy Dramatic," by Oehmler, until—T: "I fired the shot—hers went clean."
26—Storm Theme until—T: "Officers, you heard this murderer's confession."
27—"Erl King," by Schubert, until—T: "At the Governor's town house."
28—Continue to action until—T: "Facing the greatest adventure in life."
29—"Voice of Chimes," by Luigini, until—T: "I'm sorry, Mary, to be such a messenger."
IMPORTANT—See note on top of Cue Sheet.
30—"Elegie," by Massenet, until—S: Dowling's son stops the execution.
31.—Sudden orchestra stop, then silence, for about 30 seconds until—T: "God's wisdom is inscrutable."
32—"The End of a Perfect Day," song, until * * * * END.

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

REMEMBER

Your Public Demands Service

THEY pay for it. If YOU don't give it, the man around the corner will—and HE will get your patronage.

In picture projection there exists the keenest competition; and to hold a prominent place in this art since its creation means, MAKING GOOD.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH

has always made good. It meets all requirements of advanced knowledge and faithfully serves the best interests of Exhibitor, Operator and the Public.

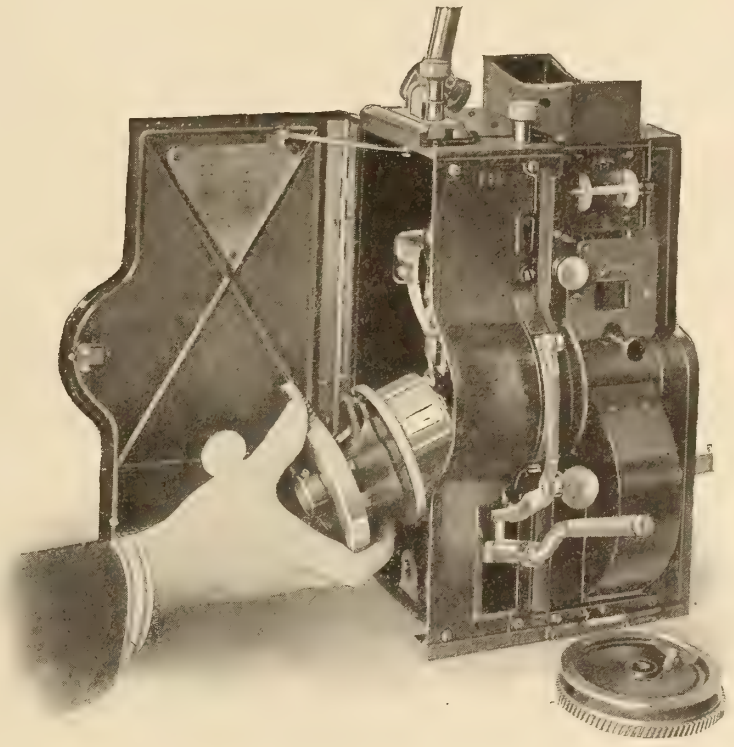
Nicholas Power Company

INCORPORATED

Pioneers of Projection

90 GOLD STREET NEW YORK, N. Y.

POWER'S CAMERAGRAPH
• ASSURES •
PEERLESS PROJECTION



Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex

Quick Accessibility

The Oil Chamber,
which contains the complete
Intermittent Movement,
and carries the Register Sprocket,
can be taken out and replaced
in about one minute
with no tools except a screw-driver.

Now, we don't claim that the Simplex needs no attention, but we do claim:

(1) that it is less likely to go wrong,

(2) that although its vital parts are enclosed, away from dirt and danger of injury, they are as accessible as if they were out in the open,

(3) that this is one reason for the permanence of its perfect projection, and

(4) that those claims are substantiated by the almost universal acceptance of the Simplex, despite vigorous, and often unfair, competition.

We could only show a "still" here. Wouldn't you like a demonstration?

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

"The Reliability of a Product Depends on the Responsibility of its Maker."

This being true, I want to call your attention to these facts:

We have been engaged in the business of manufacturing moving pictures for nearly eight years.

We have the biggest and best Laboratory-Studio in America—it's at your service.

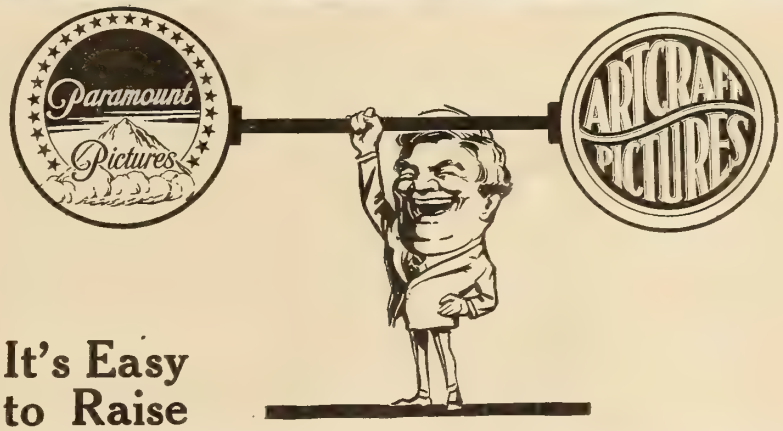
Our ability, reliability and responsibility are firmly established—you can safely entrust your negative and printing to us.

Let us know your requirements and we will explain what we can do for you. We can do much and at the right price.

Write today!

Rothacker

FILM MFG. CO. CHICAGO U.S.A.



There are reasons—
Come and see them.

MARCH 30, 1918

Motion Picture News

Reg. in U. S. Patent Office.

DOMINATES THE FIELD

It's Easy to Raise the standard of your theatre. It's no trouble at all to hold up the quality of your program. Just show

Paramount and Artcraft Pictures

(Nationally Advertised)

—All of them! Be a 100% Exhibitor. Get 100% Results.

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

VOL. XVII-NO. 13 Entered as Second Class Matter, October 13, 1913, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3rd, 1879 PRICE 10 CENTS

"The Risky Road"
Dorothy Phillips Production
A GRIPPING picturization of an innocent country girl's battle against the sins of the metropolis, portrayed in that tremendously appealing style that Dorothy Phillips
alone possesses. A drama with a powerful title that will pack any theatre in the wide world. Produced by Ida May Park from Katherine Laiser Robbin's story "Her Fling" as published in "Live Stories."
Book thru your nearest Universal Exchange or communicate with the Universal Film Mn'fg. Co., Largest Film Mn'fg Co. in the Universe, Carl Laemmle, Pres., 1600 Broadway, New York

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"That Night!"

—a lot happened
so much in fact and so fast that you couldn't tell it all in a book let alone in one page—

—suffice to say that the party was very, very inurbane, tumultuous, in fact inclement, discordant, as it were—

—but be that as it may—it will be "some night" for exhibitors —the night they show this glorious revel of mirth—

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Paramount Pictures

Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedies

"THAT NIGHT"

with

"CHARLIE MURRAY"

Wayland Trask

and

Mary Thurman

produced under the personal direction of the man the slapstick and the girl idea into a gold mine for you.

MACK SENNETT

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

IN

"HEADIN' SOUTH"

Story by Allan Dwan

Directed by Arthur Rosson under supervision of Allan Dwan. Photographed by Hugh McClung and Harry Thorp

An ARTCRAFT Picture

READ what the newspapers are saying about "Headin' South."

Salt Lake City Tribune—"'Standing room only' was the slogan at three o'clock and continued to be in order until after the last show last night started."

Chicago Herald (Kitty Kelly)—"If he ever out-Fairbanked himself it is here, when he rushes from Canada to Mexico, disturbs a whole set of bandits and starts back North with the girl."

New York Herald—"To commend a photoplay it is sufficient to say that Douglas Fairbanks is in it. The amusement-seeking public knows him and he knows his public."

There is only one way to buy that sort of advertising—SHOW DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS PRODUCTIONS

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION

ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General

NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

ADOLPH ZUKOR presents

MARGUERITE CLARK

IN

"Rich Man, Poor Man"

From the novel by Maximilian Foster. Adapted by George Broadhurst. Directed by J. Searle Dawley.

A Paramount Picture

MARGUERITE CLARK'S newest picture will be "Rich Man, Poor Man," from the Saturday Evening Post story.

In "Rich Man, Poor Man" Marguerite Clark has a play about a charming little girl of today, the sort of little girl who radiates sunshine, no matter how dark the clouds may be.

"Rich Man, Poor Man" will rank immediately as one of her most popular productions. Its dramatic appeal is strong and there's a tear for nearly every smile.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

TRADE MARK ARTCRAFT PICTURES

JESSE L. LASKY Presents

CECIL B. DE MILLE'S

PRODUCTION

"The Whispering Chorus"

By Jeanie Macpherson, from the story by Perley Poore Sheehan

An ARTCRAFT Picture

"THE WHISPERING CHORUS" is the first of Artcraft's four Cecil B. De Mille Star Series Pictures, produced personally by the Director-General of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

The story is a splendid instrument upon which Mr. De Mille's genius has played — a vital theme of unusual appeal.

"The Whispering Chorus" is made of the voices that speak to every soul, the voices that guide toward right or wrong. John Tremble heard the voice of Temptation and followed it into the depths of degradation, until the voice of Self-Sacrifice caused him to give his life that happiness might come to the woman he loved.

Paramount Pictures

FAMOUS PLAYERS-LASKY CORPORATION
ADOLPH ZUKOR Pres. JESSE L. LASKY Vice Pres. CECIL B. DE MILLE Director General
NEW YORK

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

A straight-from-the-shoulder letter from William S. Hart

To You, Mr. Exhibitor:

Certain motion pictures advertised as "Wm. S. Hart's Super Features," are being offered to State Right Buyers by a company called the "W. H. Productions Co."

It has created the impression upon the minds of some patrons that these pictures are my latest pictures, produced by a company in which I am personally interested.

I am not now nor have I ever been connected with the "W. H. Productions Co." I am not interested in their output and their pictures are not new pictures.

The fact is that some of these so-called "Wm. S. Hart Super Features" exploited by the "W. H. Productions Co." were made from two to four years ago. The old titles under which they were previously exhibited have been changed and new titles substituted. In short, they are old pictures with new labels. If your patrons, acquainted with my old pictures, are misled by new titles into a belief that these pictures are my latest productions, it will not only injure my reputation but also seriously affect the reputation of your theatre.

I have received letters from many "picture fans" protesting that they had paid admission to their local theatre expecting to see me in a new five-reel subject only to discover that what was advertised and exhibited was an old two-reel picture which had been shown years ago.

You should be fair to your public. Each exhibitor who shows under a new title an old film in which I have appeared, undoubtedly creates the impression upon those who have closely followed and seen my work upon the screen, that it is a new production, when this is not the fact; this is unfair to them and to me. The motion picture industry, of which you are a part, suffers thereby.

These are true words. You know that.

Every one of my new productions bears the "Artcraft" trade mark. All of my best productions bear the "Artcraft" trade mark. They are—

"THE NARROW TRAIL" "WOLVES OF THE RAIL"
"THE SILENT MAN" "BLUE BLAZES RAWDEN"
"THE TIGER MAN"

The public's judgment of your theatre's loyalty depends upon the business methods you employ in conducting it—upon the public's judgment depends your success or failure.

Yours sincerely,

WILLIAM S. HART

ALBERT E. SMITH Presents

NELL SHIPMAN

with Alfred Whitman

in "The Home Trail"

The Story of a Strong Man's Fight to Find the Path to Love and Honor

THERE wasn't very much law and order in that Western country where Tom and "Blackie" made their home. But they were "pards," they had nerve—and mere safety wasn't a matter that either had worried about. But Tom was a real friend, trusting, helpful, ready to fight with his back to the wall for his bunk-mate—and "Blackie's" friendship was a narrow, grudging and selfish—if such it could be called at all.

So, when a romantic girl conquered the heart of Tom, "Blackie's" jealous nature was aroused. And the girl, weak, illusioned, was a ready victim of "Blackie's" guile. They rode away one afternoon—and she was soon deserted, "Blackie" openly boastful of his easy victory.

But he had not thought of Tom, now a deputy, relentlessly trailing his false friend over the parched prairieland. And when he did find him, he could not take his revenge—he was an officer of the law, sworn to return a captured felon to the bar of justice.

And yet—retribution took another course. And it is because this story finds its happy ending through a most unusual twisting and turning that it will please the most fastidious motion picture patron. It's a box-office winner.

A FIVE PART
BLUE RIBBON FEATURE

By GEORGE H. PLYMPTON
Directed by WILLIAM WOLBERT

VITAGRAPH

"Little Talks with Foreign Buyers"—No. 5

WORLDTALK

By Paul H. Cromelin President

ITS line of World Films gives you a corking idea of how careful Inter-Ocean is in its recommendations to foreign buyers. Reports on my desk show that no brand of American film has made greater profits for showmen in all sections of the world THAN WORLD FILMS. In the last year it has been our pleasure to deliver to our foreign customers such World box-office magnets as Carlyle Blackwell and Madge Evans in "The Burglar;" "Rasputin" with an all-star cast including Montague Love, June Elvidge, Henry Hull, Arthur Ashley and Irving Cummings; Kitty Gordon in "Her Maternal Right;" Ethel Clayton in "Stolen Paradise;" Madge Evans in "The Bondage of Fear;" Robert Warwick in "All Man;" Clara Kimball Young in "Dark Silence," and Alice Brady in "Hungry Heart." Incidentally, we delivered these perfectly packed, with sufficient posters and minus all invoice trouble! (Did you read last week's "Little Talk?") We have established World Films so firmly on the foreign market that we seriously doubt if any make of American film has a larger sale. Almost every foreign buyer of World Films in 1917 renewed his contract for 1918! Doesn't it show you that Inter-Ocean believes in the best and offers buyers nothing else?

INTER-OCEAN FILM CORPORATION
PAUL H. CROMELIN PRES. & GEN'L MGR. 220 W. 42nd ST. NEW YORK CITY

"We Operate Everywhere"—Largest Distributors of Films in Foreign Fields

READY FOR WORLD SALE

52 World Films a year; featuring Ethel Clayton, Clara Kimball Young, Alice Brady, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge; 24 Paralta Plays a year, featuring Bessie Barriscale, J. Warren Kerrigan, Henry B. Walthall and Louise Glaum; the great features "Whither Thou Goest," "Today," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," "The 13th Labor of Hercules;" the surefire comedy brands, Vim, Black Diamond, Bingo, "Charley" (Mabel and Fatty) cartoons.

SELECT PICTURES

The story of the girl who hid her record

Max Marcin's great stage success

"THE HOUSE OF GLASS"

Adapted by Charles E. Whittaker
directed by Emile Chautard

Better on the screen than on the stage, says the New York Evening Mail.

"Should play S. R. O. in almost any house!"—Wid.

"It is Clara Kimball Young's triumph!"—Motion Picture News.

Presented by

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG

AND HER OWN COMPANY

This is the fourth of Miss Young's Select pictures, and follows her prior productions "MAGDA," "SHIRLEY KAYE," and "THE MARIONETTES"

Distributed by

SELECT PICTURES CORPORATION

729 Seventh Avenue, New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

Another Remarkable Success For Mabel Normand In "The Floor Below."

ANOTHER rush for the box-offices of the nation marked the release of Mabel Normand in her second Goldwyn production, "The Floor Below." Exhibitors everywhere are writing and telegraphing their delight over the record-breaking patronage brought into their theatres by this immensely popular star.

The box-office value of Mabel Normand in "The Floor Below" is indicated by these enthusiastic comments:

WID'S: "The Floor Below" is a great yarn with plenty of snappy treatment. Sure to draw heavy patronage.

PICTURE-PLAY MAGAZINE: Mabel Normand is the best comedienne on the screen and "The Floor Below" proves it.

MOTION PICTURE NEWS: Through "The Floor Below" Mabel Normand goes rollicking along in her own irresistible way. . . . It is the usual lavish Goldwyn production.

DRAMATIC MIRROR: "The Floor Below" is a lively and laughable story of love and mystery and of strong popular appeal.

EXHIBITORS TRADE REVIEW: Mabel Normand is the most vital bit of magnetism that has ever worked before a camera. Here is a picture that "has everything."

MORNING TELEGRAPH: A well-conceived and delightfully constructed crook story combining rapid-fire farce, comedy and drama. . . . A sure-fire entertainment for Goldwyn exhibitors.

Based on the reports from this production and her first Goldwyn triumph, "Dodging a Million," Goldwyn confidently announces to all exhibitors that Mabel Normand has tripled her previous popularity. She is today one of the greatest box-office stars in the screen world. Are YOU playing her pictures in your theatre? Ask the nearest Goldwyn office for prices and a contract.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

Goldwyn Pictures

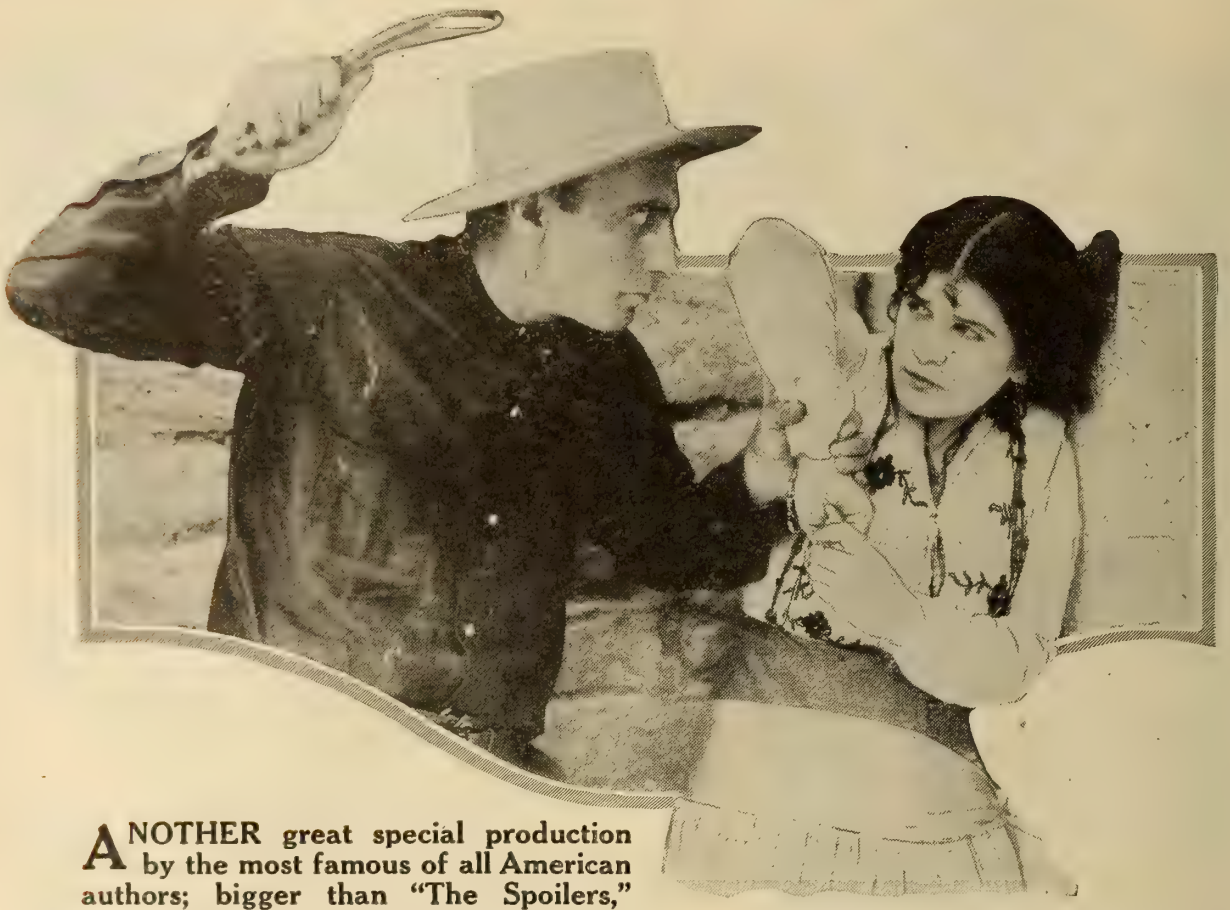
PICTURE a beautiful, daring and courageous woman defending a helpless husband as a tigress defends her cub.

Depict her facing poverty for the man she loves and spurning jewels, untold luxuries and power in the world's capitals from the hands of a man she despises.

When you have conceived in your own mind a thrilling emotional drama that sends a woman to her death for the protection of her honor, you still will not have guessed half of the second remarkable story that Goldwyn again offers you with

Mary Garden
in The SPLENDID SINNER

by Kate Jordan — Directed by Edwin Carewe.



As we have told you: It is greater than "Thais" which broke box-office records all over the nation. It is heroic, wonderful, thrilling with few parallels for production beauties. It goes to all Goldwyn contract customers at their regular rental—a remarkable special production at no advance in prices. Released everywhere March 24.

GOLDWYN PICTURES CORPORATION

SAMUEL GOLDFISH, President EDGAR SELWYN, Vice President

16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

ANOTHER great special production by the most famous of all American authors; bigger than "The Spoilers," more exciting than "The Barrier" and more thrilling than "The Auction Block." Exhibitors are urgently advised to book at once the greatest box-office success of 1918.

REX BEACH'S

Screen Classic of the Great Southwest

HEART OF THE SUNSET

Directed by Frank Powell

Now Ready for Immediate Release

Once or twice each year Rex Beach comes to the assistance of the world's exhibitors with a production that breaks all existing box-office records. This is the most powerful Rex Beach Picture ever made.

"Heart of the Sunset" is released singly as a great seven-reel production and is not linked with any other pictures. It can be booked only through the offices of

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

REX BEACH PICTURES

"The Picture of 1,000 Thrills!"

HAVE you ever seen the notorious Philippine "water cure" in a motion picture? It provides one of the powerful scenes of "Heart of the Sunset."

Have you ever thrilled with patriotic fervor as you read of the daring Texas Rangers sweeping into Mexico? You see this in "Heart of the Sunset."

Do you know the most terrible death in the world? In "Heart of the Sunset" General Longorio threatens to bury a man to his neck in an ant-hill and fill his mouth with honey. You see the terrified Mexican shiver and tremble.

Think of a brave American boy being made to watch throughout the night a band of Mexican savages digging his own grave.

These are but a few more of the unusual and dramatic scenes in "Heart of the Sunset" which the entire world will want to see. Protect yourself against your competitor by booking this production at once by telegraph.

GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

CAPITOL COMEDIES

Goldwyn announces

"SMILING BILL" PARSONS

A new and soon to be nationally-famous comedian of cleanliness and happiness. He will be seen in

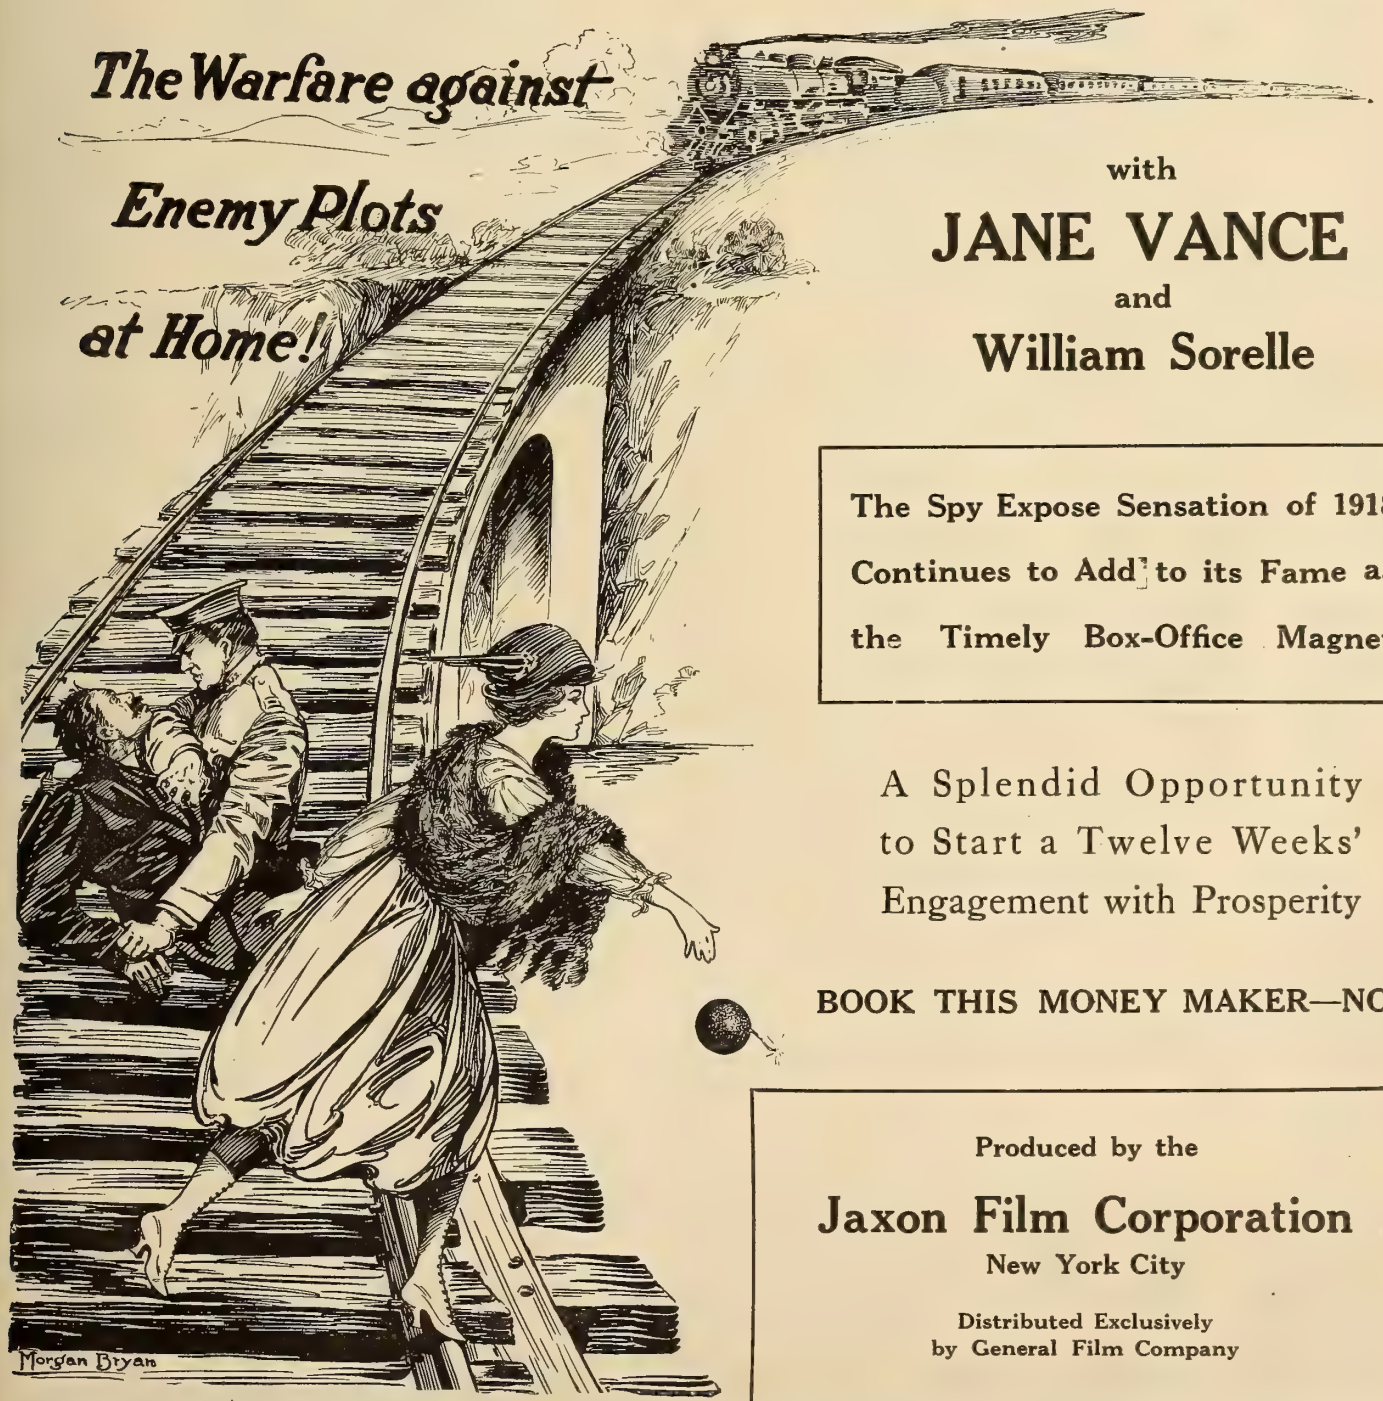
CAPITOL COMEDIES

Two joyous reels of healthy laughter to each picture. Twenty-six pictures a year. One every second Monday.

Exhibitors everywhere are begging producers for sane and cheerful comedies. Goldwyn hunted for a year without finding what it knew the public wanted.

Suddenly in "Smiling Bill" Parsons we found a new favorite with the beguiling smile of the serpent in the fable, and the radiant disposition that Nature bestows upon its beloved fat men.

These splendid successes produced for us by The National Film Corporation of America are controlled and released exclusively through the offices of



GOLDWYN DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

16 East 42nd Street New York City

GENERAL FILM COMPANY

THE THRILL SERIAL FOR PATRIOTIC AUDIENCES

A DAUGHTER of UNCLE SAM

The Warfare against Enemy Plots at Home!

with

JANE VANCE

and

William Sorelle

The Spy Expose Sensation of 1918 Continues to Add to its Fame as the Timely Box-Office Magnet

A Splendid Opportunity to Start a Twelve Weeks' Engagement with Prosperity

BOOK THIS MONEY MAKER—NOW

Produced by the

Jaxon Film Corporation

New York City

Distributed Exclusively by General Film Company

General Film Company does not impose the 15c charge on any of its releases.

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

PROGRESS—PROSPERITY—PERMANENCE

A PERSONAL MESSAGE

The first stalwarts of the coming army have entered the arena. They are Co-believers, like myself, in the principle of equitable, fair business dealings, unhampered by a strangling "producer" dominance. I am glad to announce that six men, foremost exhibitors, and tried and true to their clan, have joined my Co-partnership plan. Eugene Roth of San Francisco and Messrs. Moore, Greaves and Ellison of Denver are four. The others I will announce later. Exhibitors, the country over, will do well to watch the proving of our basic principles upon which rest their hope for a free, profitable and pleasant business future.

Wm. W. Hodkinson

NEW RELEASES

Louise Glaum in
"An Alien Enemy"
(The above picture substituted for regular Kerrigan release)

Bessie Barriscale in
"Within the Cup"

Henry B. Walthall in
"Humdrum Brown"

J. Warren Kerrigan in
"The Turn of a Card"

COMING

"Blindfolded," with Bessie Barriscale

"The Snap Dragon," with Louise Glaum

"With Hoops of Steel," with Henry B. Walthall

ALREADY RELEASED

"A Man's Man"—Kerrigan
"Madam Who?"—Barriscale
"His Robe of Honor"—Walthall

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

527 FIFTH AVENUE

"Hodkinson Service at All General Film Exchanges"

PARALTA PLAYS

PICK OF THE PICTURES

Bessie Barriscale in

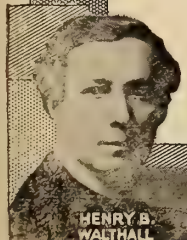
Directed by RAYMOND B. WEST

"Within the Cup"

Written by MONTE E. KATTERJOHN

ROBERT BRUNTON, Manager of Productions



"Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye make clean the outside of the cup and of the platter, but within they are full of extortion and excess."

St. Matthew, 24, 25.

Thisbe Lorraine hears, but does not understand.
To her, the sham, the brassy glitter of the artist's so-called "freedom" seem real.
She does not know there is no reality among that small band of artists who think themselves superior to the common run of men; whose "artistic temperament" makes them despise
anyone not agreeing with their peculiar "code" of morals;
who take serious the fur collars on their coats,
but never mend the threadbare linings;
who judge life by the "futurist" pictures they paint.
Therefore, Thisbe Lorraine suffers the pangs of a cruel awakening, and she seeks atonement for having torn a human heart into bleeding shreds
And then—the great arbiter, Love, gently leads her to understand HIS word,
the wisdom of HIM who sees the infinite alike an open book!

PARALTA PLAYS, Inc.

6 WEST 48th STREET
NEW YORK CITY

DISTRIBUTED THROUGH
"HODKINSON SERVICE"
AT ALL GENERAL FILM EXCHANGES

A Selexart Production

"Carmen of the Klondike"

Written by
MONTE M. KATTERJOHN

Directed by
REGINALD BARKER

The cyclopean combat between two exceptional men for the love of an enchanting woman!

".....enough thrills to average one to every ten feet of film.

.....there is a hand-to-hand battle in a rainstorm that would make Douglas Fairbank's director turn green with jealousy."

T. E. OLIPHANT, in
The Evening Mail
New York City

Featuring
CLARA WILLIAMS

! A Tremendous Sensation !

Made Good At
STRAND THEATRE, New York City
Bound to Make Good for You!

STATE RIGHT DISTRIBUTORS, Incorporated
418 Longacre Building, New York City

ANNOUNCING THE COMING OF MISS EDNA GOODRICH IN A SERIES OF SPECTACULAR SPECIAL PRODUCTIONS OF REGAL QUALITY ESPECIALLY SELECTED TO CAPITALIZE FOR THE SCREEN HER WORLD FAMED BEAUTY.

TO BE DISTRIBUTED THROUGH THE EXCHANGES OF

THE MUTUAL FILM CORPORATION

MR. WILLIAM RUSSELL'S FIRST SPECIAL VEHICLE IS "HEARTS OR DIAMONDS" A FAMOUS STORY BY THE CELEBRATED MR. WILLIAM HAMILTON OSBORNE.

MR. RUSSELL'S PICTURES WILL BE AVAILABLE AT MUTUAL EXCHANGES.

WILLIAM RUSSELL PRODUCTIONS

6611 Hollywood Blvd Los Angeles California

To Stars wishing control of their own productions:

THE great Studios of Triangle at Culver City and elsewhere have ample capacity for more than fifty companies, so that in addition to Triangle Programme, and special productions constantly in work, they are in position to undertake the making of moving pictures of the highest quality to individual order.

The organization has been so perfected that you may have at your command as much or as little as you need.

You will find continuity and scenario departments, photographic and manufacturing departments, wardrobe and property departments, developed to the last degree of completeness, under the most capable department heads and assistants.

Everyone in the Motion Picture industry recognizes the leading position of the studios themselves, their splendid equipment and the magnificent properties in which they are situated.

Each "Order Picture" will be produced precisely as desired by the owner.

It may be simple and inexpensive, or most elaborate and costly—at his will. He may select his own company, his own author, his own director, if he wishes.

Stars who wish to control their own productions—from scenario to theatre, may do it easily, and without any investment beyond cost of production plus a reasonable fee, under this arrangement.

This means that Triangle does not wish to share in the profits of the picture after its completion.

Our relationship with distributors in this country and Europe enables us to undertake marketing, if desired, on a percentage basis.

Publicity and paper—if desired

TRIANGLE FILM CORPORATION

1457 BROADWAY NEW YORK

Smash!

William Fox presents-America's most popular actor

WILLIAM

FARNUM

IN

ROUGH and READY

by Richard Stanton and Ed. Sedgwick – Directed by Richard Stanton

HIKE WITH THE HUSKIES

Ride in on the tide of FARNUM popularity!
Profit from public demand!
Wire for dates today!

F O X F I L M

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

500 feet of the finest fist-fight ever filmed

WILLIAM FARNUM in ROUGH and READY

The greatest Farnum picture ever filmed.

CORPORATION

We have secured good advertisers to talk to YOU. Listen to them!

A Million Dollars

pass your theatre every day

HOW TO GET YOUR SHARE

CONTRACT FOR BUD FISHER'S

MUTT
AND JEFF

Weekly release

FOX FILM CORPORATION

Now ready-

"THE DECOY" — "THE LEAK"
"BACK TO THE BALKANS"
"THE FREIGHT INVESTIGATION"

FOX FILM CORPORATION

A SENSATION-
FOR YOUR WOMEN PATRONS

A plucky French girl triumphs over German invaders

WILLIAM FOX PRESENTS

A VIRGINIA PEARSON in DAUGHTER of FRANCE

THE GREATEST LOVE AFFAIR OF 1918
MISS PEARSON'S GREATEST SUCCESS -
STAGED BY : EDMUND LAWRENCE

A SURE WAY TO MAKE MONEY
CONTRACT FOR
ONE A WEEK 52 A YEAR FOX SPECIAL FEATURES
START NOW WITH THESE MARCH-APRIL BREAD WINNERS

PEGGY HYLAND in THE DEBT OF HONOR
GLADYS BROCKWELL in THE DEVIL'S WHEEL
GEORGE WALSH in THE KID IS CLEVER
JUNE CAPRICE in A CAMOUFLAGE KISS

FOX FILM CORPORATION

Keep your eye

THE

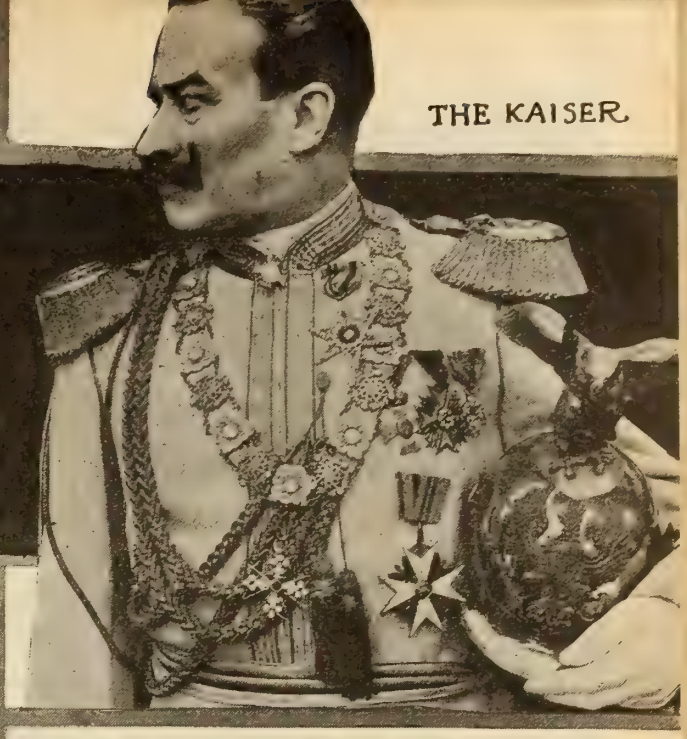
WILLIAM FOX PRESENTS

German Spy System

The U.S. Embassy

Berlin at War

CONTRACT NOW



FOX FILM

The KAISER

on the KAISER

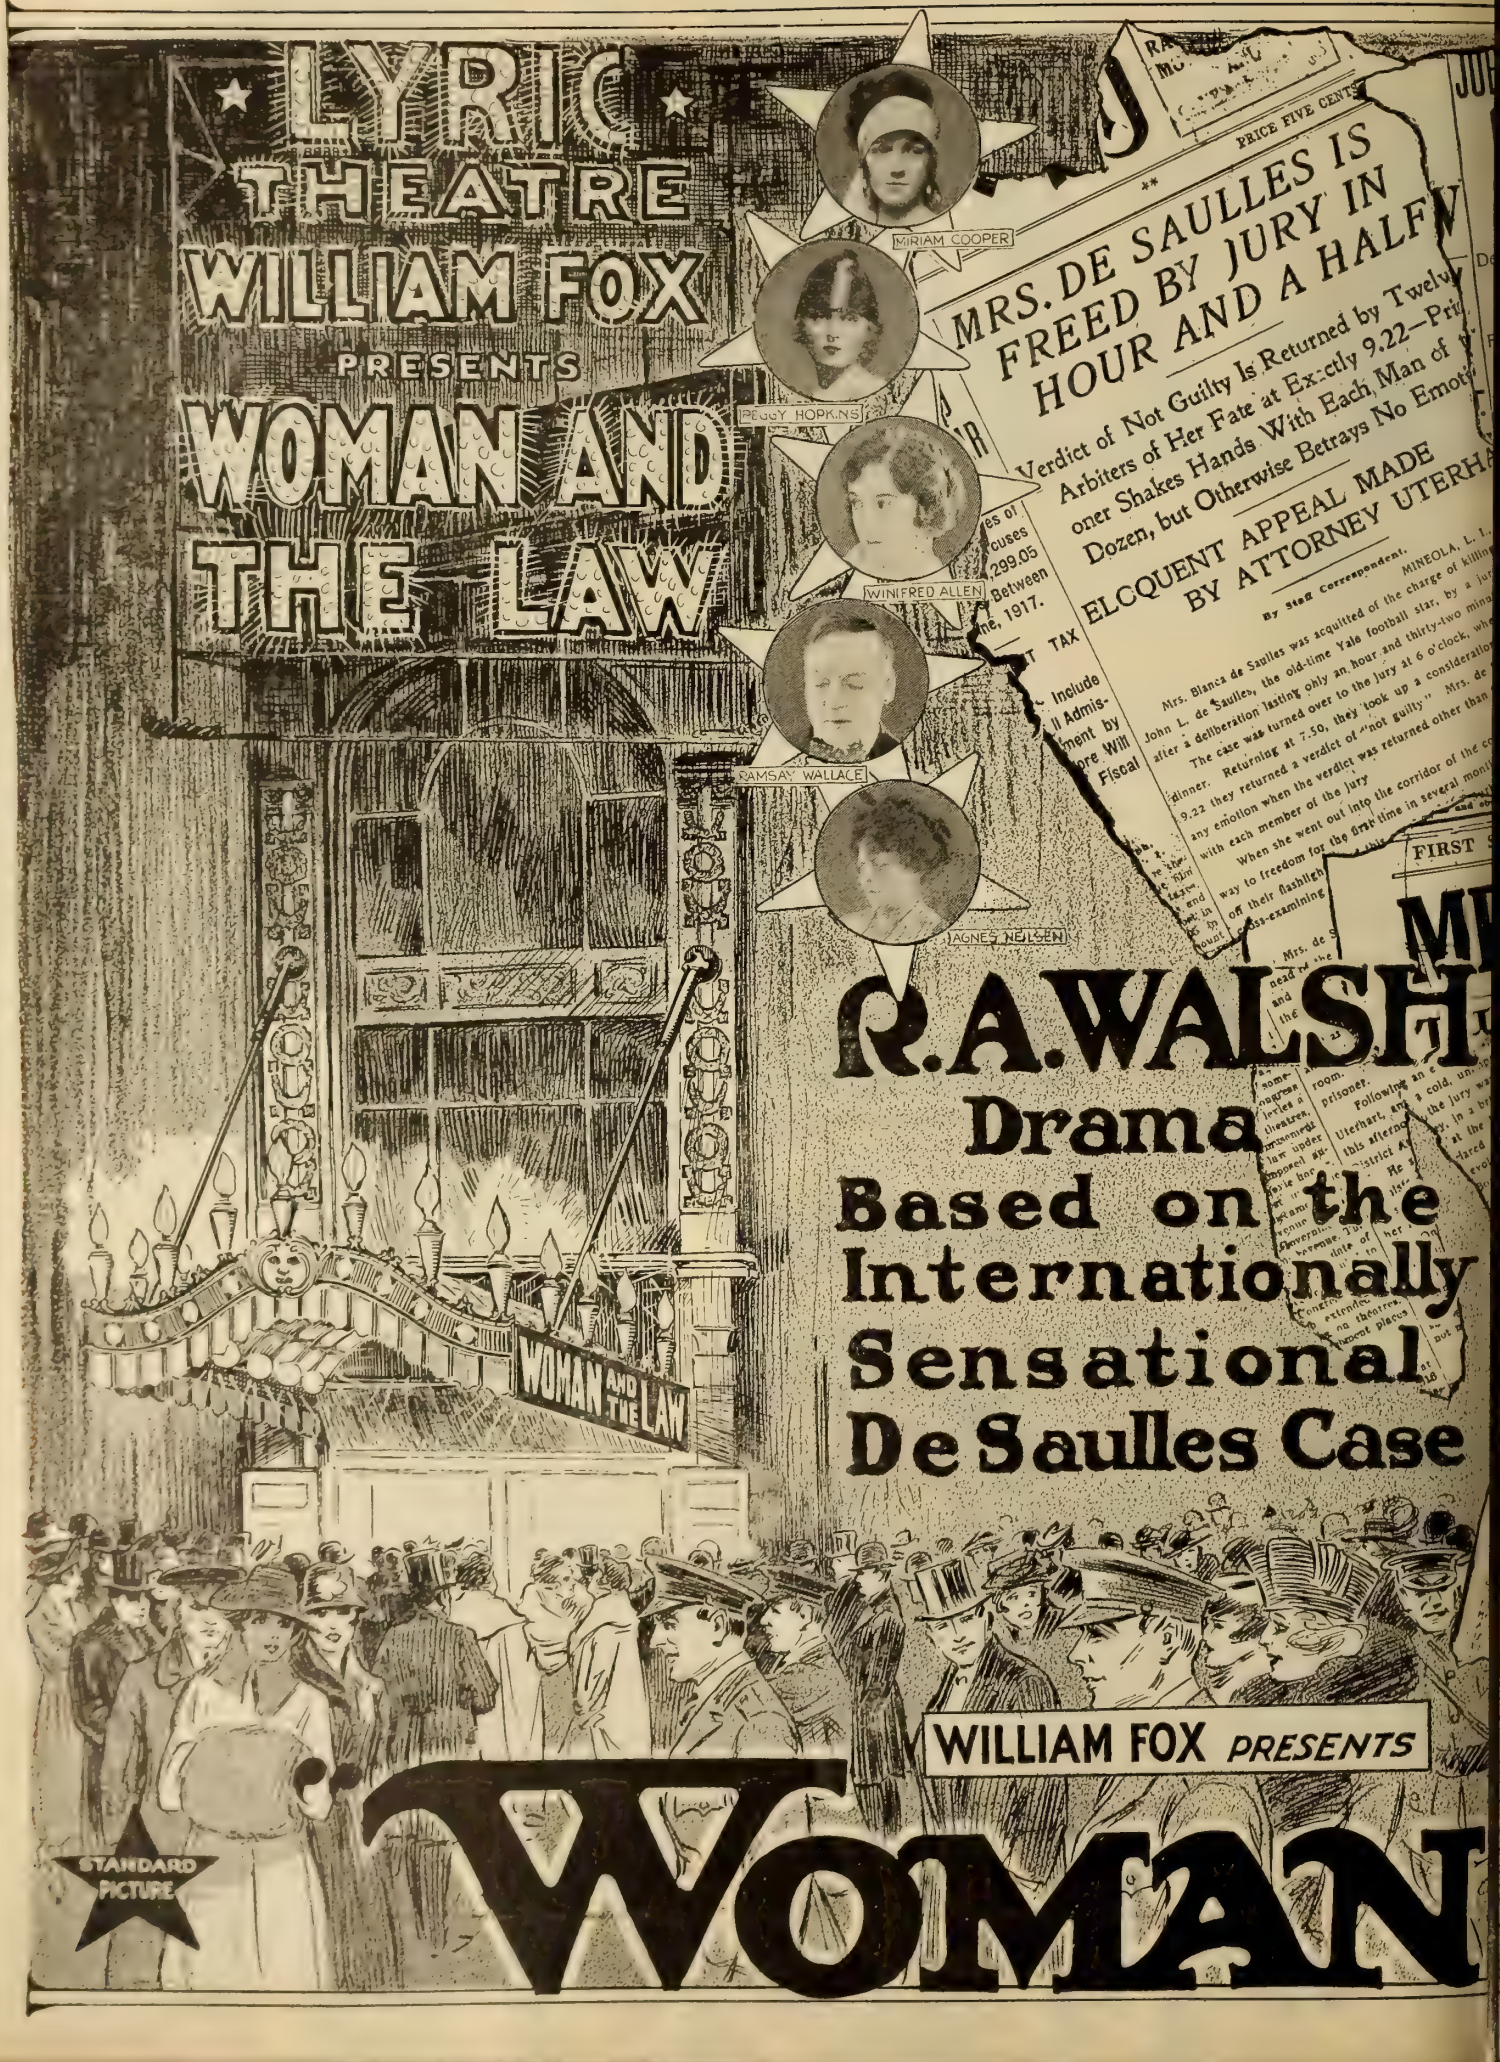
THE KAISER

SPY

A STARTLING EXPOSURE

The Kaiser's Agents

The Teuton Tortures



A Box-office Riot

NEW PRINTS READY

CORPORATION

EXPOSED!

LYRIC THEATRE
WILLIAM FOX
PRESENTS
WOMAN AND THE LAW
MIRIAM COOPER
PEGGY HOPKINS
WINIFRED ALLEN
RAMSAY WALLACE
AGNES NEILSEN
MRS. DE SAULLES IS FREED BY JURY IN HOUR AND A HALF
Verdict of Not Guilty Is Returned by Twelv
Arbiters of Her Fate at Ex-ctly 9.22—Pri oner Shakes Hands With Each Man of Dozen, but Otherwise Betrays No Emoti
ELOQUENT APPEAL MADE BY ATTORNEY UTERH
PRICE FIVE CENTS
R.A.WALSH
Drama
Based on the Internationally
Sensational
DeSaulles Case
WOMAN AND THE LAW
WILLIAM FOX PRESENTS
WOMAN
STANDARD PICTURE

"THE GREATEST WOMAN'S PICTURE EVER MADE"

MRS. DE SAULLES IS FREED; VERDICT QUICKLY FOUND; TO HAVE CUSTODY OF SON

Eleven for "Not Guilty" on First Ballot Taken, Is Report.

BOY IS LARGE FACTOR

'He Was Most in Our

MRS. DE SAULLES FOUND NOT GUILTY

(Continued from First Page)

sensational tone. Mrs De Saulles close by the end of the coun gazing up at him. She brown coat over her several large diagrams showing the interior and exterior of The Box, his place at Westbury, where the tragedy occurred

she has worn

Direct

Mr. Elsmart began speak o'clock, the court by smart

mostly

IN WOMAN'S WORLD Page of the most attractive features of the Herald Daily and Sunday.

HERALD.

PRICE FIVE CENTS IN NEW YORK CITY. SEVEN CENTS ELSEWHERE.

THE NEW YORK

NEW YORK, SUNDAY, DECEMBER 2, 1917.—BY T

RT TWO.

BLANCA DE SAULLES IS ACQUITTED

NEARLY OVERCOME, TO ARISE, BUT CANNOT.

District Attorney, in Closing Address, Asked for No First-Degree Verdict and Touched Lightly on Premeditation—Prisoner's Counsel's Plea Brought Tears to Hearers.

Mrs. Blanca Errazuriz De Saulles was acquitted last night of the murder of her divorced husband, John Longer De Saulles, whom she shot and killed Aug. 3 last.

The jurors began to deliberate o'clock and returned their

MRS. DE SAULLES FOUND NOT GUILTY; JURY IS OUT ONLY 1 HOUR 43 MINUTES

Jurymen Announce Their Verdict in Chorus, and When Prisoner, Acquitted of Ku and, Is Formally Walks U Hand

A SENSATION AT BROADWAY & 42ND ST NEW YORK CITY WILL PACK HOUSES IN ANY CITY TOWN OR ZONE

Turning thousands away at $1 Admission and the LAW"

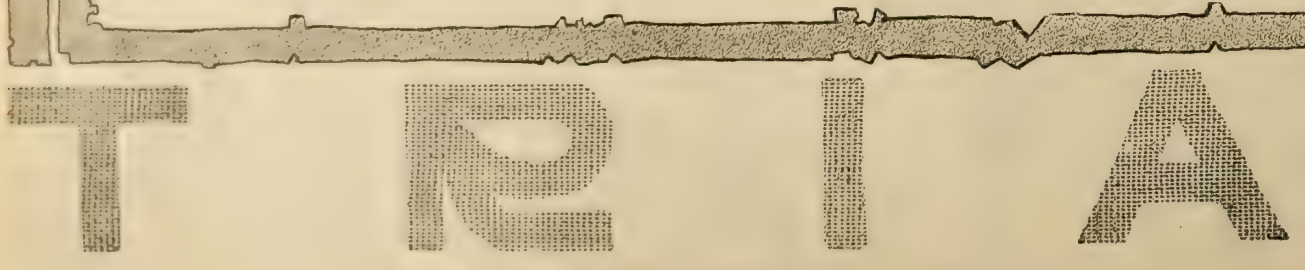
STANDARD PICTURE

Think it Over



Have you heard the latest scheme for the salvation of exhibitors? There seems to be a new plan announced every day.

Various producers are coming forward with some new form of " camouflage " and are endeavoring to show exhibitors that their particular plan is the only one that will save the day and enable exhibitors to make money. But the funny part of it all is that these producers have only recently become wise to a situation which has existed for some time and which was bound to become critical sooner or later.

Triangle decided nearly a year ago that the production and distribution of motion pictures must be made a real business—must be run on business principles, straightforward and clean; that economies must be practised and that exhibitors must be given the utmost consideration.

Here are some of the things that Triangle HAS done for exhibitors—not that it is going to do.

1—It has already materially cut the cost of producing pictures by placing its studios on a scientifically operated basis—no hundred thousand dollar stars—no money wasted or time lost. Business principles are practised by business men. No possible combination of studios would enable Triangle to make quality pictures at lower costs than at present.

2—It has paid the reel tax without transferring it to exhibitors—the only honorable solution of the problem.

3—It has reduced the cost of service to exhibitors for high quality pictures. It is not necessary for Triangle exhibitors to spend money for memberships in any association in order to procure a square deal.

4—It has cooperated with exhibitors by only charging them rental prices which would assure them of profits—reducing the cost of service and in some instances giving free service, where conditions required. Free service is nothing new with Triangle. Justice and not charity is what every exhibitor desires.

5—It has established a Traffic Department and rearranged the territories of exchanges in order to give every exhibitor the best possible service in the delivery of film. Every reel of film is carefully inspected before being sent out. Prompt and courteous service is the watchword at every exchange.

Think it over! Is there any company that has done more for exhibitors in the last year than Triangle? Do you realize that by using Triangle pictures you help to enlarge the cooperative service of an organization which has lead the way in reducing the cost of pictures to exhibitors and in establishing the policy of an absolute fair and square deal every time?

TRIANGLE DISTRIBUTING CORPORATION

1457 Broadway, New York

S. A. LYNCH
President

R. W. LYNCH
Vice-President

FRED KENT
Treasurer

Y. F. FREEMAN
General Manager

NGLE

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

Questions and Answers

Taking up and answering one by one the Moving Picture World's objections to cooperative plans and its doubt as to the organization and personnel of

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

Question. Is the United Picture Theatres of America working unselfishly for the exhibitors' interest?

Answer. It is, because it is a mutual cooperative organization, legally under the control of its exhibitor membership, designed to reduce film rentals to its members from 30 to 50 per cent and to improve quality.

Q. Will United Picture Theatres engage in the making and marketing of film?

A. It will not. The plan is to buy film, not to manufacture or peddle it.

Q. Is our plan a reversion from open bookings to programme?

A. Emphatically No! We shall book by the "star series" system, and such acceptable productions as the market affords.

Q. How do we expect to get the exhibitors to stick?

A. By making every member an actual benefiting partner. Twenty-two thousand druggists stick together. Why not a few thousand exhibitors?

Q. How can we please both producers and exhibitors?

UNITED PICTURE THEATRES OF AMERICA INC

A. The producers, by giving them cash and a guaranteed profit besides, for their negatives. The exhibitors, by giving them pictures that their membership prefers and by eliminating film waste of all kinds.

Q. Can the opposition of powerful vested interests be combated?

A. Certainly, because the combined power of the exhibitors is greater than that of all the other factors in the industry. Consolidation of offices, cuts in big salaries, elimination of useless service, direct routing, abolition of financier profiteering—these things can be accomplished in the film world by the United Exhibitors just as they are being accomplished in the railroad world today by Director McAdoo.

Q. Is United Picture Theatres promising anything it cannot perform?

A. No, because the promises are well within the reasonable expectation of what cooperative movements can do. The M. P. World cannot discover one extravagant, unwarranted statement in any of the speeches of Mr. Ochs or our published statements. Are other cooperative companies overstating? We do not know, but we feel sure exhibitors are so strong for the cooperative idea that overstatement is not necessary to secure membership.

Q. Finally, are the men behind United strong enough to put it over?

A. Messrs. Ochs. Seelye, Blumenthal, Goldsmith and the other executives of United Pictures enjoy exhibitor confidence as do no other group of men in the country. They are known to be honest, conservative, forceful and energetic, and can point with pride to their achievements in the film industry.

THE LAWYERS AND BANKERS OF PROMINENT EXHIBITORS HAVE MINUTELY EXAMINED EVERY DETAIL OF OUR PLAN, AND THEN THESE EXHIBITORS HAVE ENDORSED THE SAME BY BECOMING UNITED MEMBERS.

Write today to Dept. N,

United Picture Theatres of America, Inc.

1600 Broadway, New York City

LEST WE FORGET with RITA JOLIVET

Week runs to capacity at Fox's Terminal Newark N.J., Boston Theatre, Boston, Ziegfeld Theatre Chicago, Paris Theatre-Denver-
Booked 66 days solid by Marcus Loew for his circuit-

REVELATION with NAZIMOVA

A conceded box office success being snapped up by all the first run houses in America for runs of a week

BLUE JEANS with VIOLA DANA

A conceded box office triumph–just booked 66 days solid on Marcus Loew's circuit-

LEGION of DEATH with EDITH STOREY

Tremendous bookings–
A picture of the day and hour–growing more timely as the Russian crisis develops-

METRO

Are you in line?

THESE big fine METRO specials are piling up money for every exhibitor who lets his public know in advance the quality of the entertainment.

No matter who makes the picture you can't expect to cash in unless you advertise, advertise, advertise

These are the really great productions of the day – Book them – Exploit them roll up your profits.

METRO

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

B.A.ROLFE presents

The inimitable star

EDITH STOREY

in the supreme drama by Charles Kenyon and Frank Dare

The CLAIM

A Metro all star series production directed by Frank Reicher in 5 Acts, from the script by June Mathis and Leighton Osmun

Released on March 18. by

METRO

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

EXHIBITORS-STATE RIGHT BUYERS AND THE INDUSTRY IN GENERAL

TELEPHONE
GRAMERCY 3027-3028

CABLE ADDRESS
SIMFILMCO

W. H. PRODUCTIONS CO.
71 WEST 23RD STREET
ROOM 1702

NEW YORK March 18th, 1918.

Gentlemen:

There is a question in the minds of some as to reasons for our overwhelming success in re-issuing three of the first big Thos. H. Ince super-pictures featuring Wm. S. Hart, which were produced by the New York Motion Picture Corporation in 1914-15, viz: "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain", "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell-Hound of Alaska".

These are the three best pictures in which Wm. S. Hart ever appeared. He was not known to the picture-going public at that time. Desiring to make a reputation, and the work being new and fascinating, he therefore put his heart and soul into it - and these productions, in turn, made him the popular film idol he is today. Furthermore, the picture-going public has doubled within the past two years, so that a great majority of the new film fans never saw these features when they were first released.

W. H. Productions Company saw the possibilities in re-issuing super-features that made stars famous, and such we considered these Hart productions. Within a period of two months we have sold these re-issues to the keenest and most reliable independent exchangemen in the business, and they in turn are now successfully booking these box office features to the leading exhibitors. If further proof of the soundness of our judgement is required it is furnished by the box office results which the exhibitors are now obtaining.

Good judgement, proper exploitation, and fair prices put these excellent pictures over.

We have proven to the trade that these productions were never properly exploited until W. H. Productions Company saw their box office possibilities, and Thos.H.Ince and Wm. S. Hart should feel greatly indebted to us for the intelligent and dignified method in which the pictures that made their reputation have been handled. We do not feel surprised that Mr. Ince and Mr. Hart are chagrined in not being connected in any way, manner, shape or form with W. H. Productions Company, especially as they are not "CUTTING IN" ON THE PROFITS of these productions, and since these re-issues are breaking records for capacity business in the leading theatres throughout the country.

Pursuing this same policy we have purchased five of the finest Bessie Barriscale pictures ever made. All of them have extraordinary publicity and advertising possibilities, so much so, as to guarantee a tremendous success to the independent exchangemen and exhibitors throughout the entire country.

Yours very truly,

W. H. PRODUCTIONS COMPANY.

P.S. We beg to announce that the entire world rights have been sold on all of our present re-issues featuring Wm. S. Hart.

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

TO STATE RIGHTS BUYERS—A TEMPTING OFFER!
The FIRST of our series of Five Great
BESSIE BARRISCALE
Super-Features

The all star cast includes
BESSIE BARRISCALE
EDWARD CONNELLY
CLARA WILLIAMS
RHEA MITCHEL
ARTHUR MAUDE

"SATAN'S PAWN"
5 REELS

W·H·PRODUCTIONS CO·
71 WEST 23RD. ST ~ N·Y·
PHONE GRAMERCY 3027

Released at Last!!!

OHIO

FOR THE FIRST TIME SINCE ITS SENSATIONAL PREMIERE AT THE RIALTO THEATRE, NEW YORK

KENTUCKY

PARENTAGE
A MESSAGE

Can now be booked in Ohio and Kentucky!!!

"PARENTAGE" is already booked at the following theatres in Ohio and Kentucky:—

CINCINNATI ....Walnut
CLEVELAND ....Standard
COLUMBUS ....Majestic
TOLEDO .....Temple
LOUISVILLE, Mary Anderson
DAYTON .....Strand
YOUNGSTOWN ...Liberty
SPRINGFIELD ..Fairbanks
AKRON .....Strand
CANTON .....Strand

The managers of the above theatres are well known for their shrewd, solid, farseeing judgment when it comes to real box office values. That's why "Parentage" goes into these houses, recognized as showing ONLY THE BEST!!

If you have not already booked "Parentage" in your town—better beat your neighbor to it!!

To Exhibitors of OHIO

"PARENTAGE" fits well into OHIO because it's a darned good feature and—

It centers its story in a typical Ohio town.

Hobart Henley, its director, comes from Cincinnati.

Martin G. Chandler, co-author, comes from Chillicothe.

William Ireland, internationally famous cartoonist of the COLUMBUS DISPATCH, declares "PARENTAGE"—"The Uncle Tom's Cabin of the Screen."

"Parentage" is the greatest photoplay — bar none — ever produced for breaking into the family circle; family patronage is permanent trade.

"Parentage" was written especially for those who do and those who do not cherish baby shoes; you have both kinds at your theatre.

"PARENTAGE" has proved a tremendous success wherever shown, because of its unusual entertainment value and the wonderful human note dominating the unfolding of this great message.

Linked with this—an unusual number of ad-helps, every one carrying seat-selling power, to help you put the picture over.

Address all communications to

PARENTAGE

Room 1211, 33 West 42nd Street, New York City

THIS LETTER IS NOT FOR US

P O BOX 46 — TELEPHONE RECTOR 4901 TO 4919

LIBERTY LOAN COMMITTEE

PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT

EQUITABLE BUILDING TWENTY-FOURTH FLOOR

120 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

THE LIBERTY LOAN COMMITTEE
BENJAMIN STRONG, CHAIRMAN
JAMES S. ALEXANDER
GEORGE F. BAKER
ALLEN B. FORBES
WALTER E. FREW
GATES W. McGARRAH
J. P. MORGAN
SEWARD PROSSER
CHARLES H. SABIN
JACOB H. SCHIFF
FRANK A. VANDERLIP
MARTIN VOGEL
JAMES N. WALLACE
ALBERT H. WIGGIN
WILLIAM WOODWARD

GUY EMERSON
DIRECTOR OF PUBLICITY

JAMES I. CLARKE
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR
IN CHARGE, ADVERTISING BUREAU

JOHN PRICE JONES
ASSISTANT DIRECTOR
IN CHARGE, PRESS BUREAU

C. F. PRITCHARD
MANAGER, OFFICE BUREAU

GROSVENOR FARWELL
MANAGER, SERVICE BUREAU

March 5, 1918.

Wharton Releasing Corporation,
1476 Broadway,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

On behalf of the Liberty Loan Committee of the Second Federal Reserve District, may I express my gratification and appreciation for the very effective publicity which you give the campaign in your new serial "The Eagle's Eye". The picture itself will undoubtedly do much to bring home to all who see it the realities of the war and a conception of the task ahead of us, and Uncle Sam's specific appeal for the Liberty Loan between the reels should help greatly to crystallize emotions and feelings into action.

Sincerely yours,

Guy Emerson

Director of Publicity
2nd Fed. Reserve District.

It has been directed to us. Properly it belongs to every loyal American exhibitor. A logical and practical opportunity was presented in "THE EAGLE'S EYE" to aid the Liberty Loan. But this mark of gratitude belongs strictly to the exhibitors who are making this opportunity a benefit to the Liberty Loan Committee by showing

"THE EAG

by WILLIAM J. FLYNN Recently Retired CHI

PRODUCED BY THE WHA

KING BAGGOT and

BOOK NOW THROUGH YOUR NEAREST FOURSQ

ATLANTA, GA.,
73 Walton Street.
BOSTON, MASS.,
16 Piedmont Street.
BUFFALO, N. Y.,
47 West Swan Street.

CINCINNATI, OHIO,
301 Strand Theatre Building.
CLEVELAND, OHIO,
312 Sloan Building.
CHICAGO, ILL.,
207 South Wabash Avenue.

DALLAS, TEX.,
1911½ Commerce Street.
DENVER, COLO.,
1735 Welton Street.
DETROIT, MICH.,
304 Joseph Mack Building.

For further information address THE WHARTONS

BUT THIS ONE IS

F. A. SCHNEIDER, Pres. W. H. STEFFES, Sec. JOS. N. SCHNEIDER, Treas.

"DETROIT'S MOST BEAUTIFUL THEATRE"

The Stratford Theatre

Dix Theatre Co., Owners

DIX AND FERDINAND AVES.

E. V. McGRATH, MANAGER

HIGH CLASS PHOTO DRAMAS

Detroit, Mich March 8th 1918.

Mr. Joseph Horwitz, Manager,
Hoffman Four-Square Pictures,
Detroit, Mich.

Dear sir-

Wish to inform you that we played the first episode of "The Eagles Eye" tonight to two top heavy houses, actually turning hundreds away. The picture itself went big, more cheering and applause than ever given any picture in this theatre.

Personally, I was looking for good business with the opening episode, but it was far above my expectations. If business on the remaining episodes will continue just half what we did tonight, our directors should sing praises to Joe Horwitz and the "Eagles Eye".

Wish to thank you for the whole-souled assistance you gave me in the way of ideas, novelties, etc. to put this, the greatest serial of the age over, at a theatre where serials generally fall flat.

Yours very truly,

E. V. McGrath

EVM/GF

This "greatest of all serials" will receive just as tremendous a response from your patrons. Facts are a mighty magnet. It is the facts by Chief Flynn, stirring, gripping, startling in their conclusive evidence of the mighty secret menace in America, that are pictured with vivid realism in this twenty-episode serial supreme. It is these facts that crowded the Stratford Theatre—that are drawing thousands to theatres where exhibitors have booked

L E ' S E Y E "

EF U. S. SECRET SERVICE

RTONS

WITH THE POPULAR SCREEN STARS

MARGUERITE SNOW

UARE EXCHANGE—Branches in Principal Cities

KANSAS CITY, MO., 1120 Walnut Street.
LOS ANGELES, CAL., 514 West Eighth Street.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN., 16 North Fourth Street.
NEW YORK, N. Y., 729 Seventh Avenue.
PHILADELPHIA, PA., 1325 Vine Street.
PITTSBURGH, PA., 127 Fourth Avenue.
SEATTLE, WASH., 2014 Third Avenue.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL., 191 Golden Gate Avenue.
ST. LOUIS, MO., 301 Empress Theatre Building.

Publicity and Supply Department, 1476 Broadway, New York

NEW U. S. RELEASE

Again Wins Big Circuit Bookings

JULIUS STEGER'S STUPENDOUS PRODUCTION OF

EUGENE WALTER'S

JUST A WOMAN

Starring Charlotte Walker

Booked Immediately for 143 Days by New York's Leading Theatres

ADVERTISING STRENGTH

"Just a Woman"
An instantaneous stage hit scoring a record Broadway run at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre, New York.

Charlotte Walker
The Warrens of Virginia
The Trail of the Lonesome Pine
The Wolf
Two Virtues
Just a Wife—etc.—

Eugene Walter
Paid in Full
The Easiest Way
The Knife
The Undertow
Sergeant James—etc.—

Julius Steger
The Fifth Commandment
The Blindness of Love
The Stolen Triumph
The Master of the House
—etc.—

Selected as the best of 36 Special Productions considered for release by

U. S. EXHIBITORS' BOOKING CORPORATION

Frank G. Hall, President

TOP O' THE TIMES BUILDING, NEW YORK

BOOK NOW THROUGH

FOURSQUARE:
NEW YORK (729 7th Ave.)
BUFFALO (47 W. Swan St.)
DETROIT (304 Jos. Mack Bldg.)
CHICAGO (207 So. Wabash Ave.)
DENVER (1735 Welton St.)
SEATTLE (2014 Third Ave.)

PITTSBURGH (127 Fourth Ave.)
LOS ANGELES (514 W. 8th St.)
PHILADELPHIA (1325 Vine St.)
CINCINNATI (301 Strand Th. Bldg.)
ST. LOUIS (301 Empress Th. Bldg.)
CLEVELAND (310 Sloan Bldg.)
KANSAS CITY (1120 Walnut St.)
SAN FRANCISCO (191 Golden Gate Ave.)
MINNEAPOLIS (206 Film Exchange Bldg.)

SOUTHERN STATES FILM CO.
ATLANTA (114 Walton St.)
DALLAS (1900 Commerce St.)
GLOBE FEATURE FILM CO.
NEW ENGLAND (20 Winchester St., Boston)
FRANK GERSTEN, INC.
NEW JERSEY (220 W. 42d St., New York)
SUPER-FEATURE FILM CO.
CANADA (59 Victoria St., Toronto)

Foreign Rights to all "U. S." Productions Controlled Exclusively by ROBERTSON-COLE COMPANY, Times Bldg., New York

Gaumont News

TWICE WEEKLY

Gaumont Graphic

Released Tuesdays

Released Fridays

First release
Tuesday March 26

Wire for name of Exchange serving your Territory

Gaumont Co.

PARIS NEW YORK LONDON

STERLING PICTURES

THE STERLING PICTURES CORP.

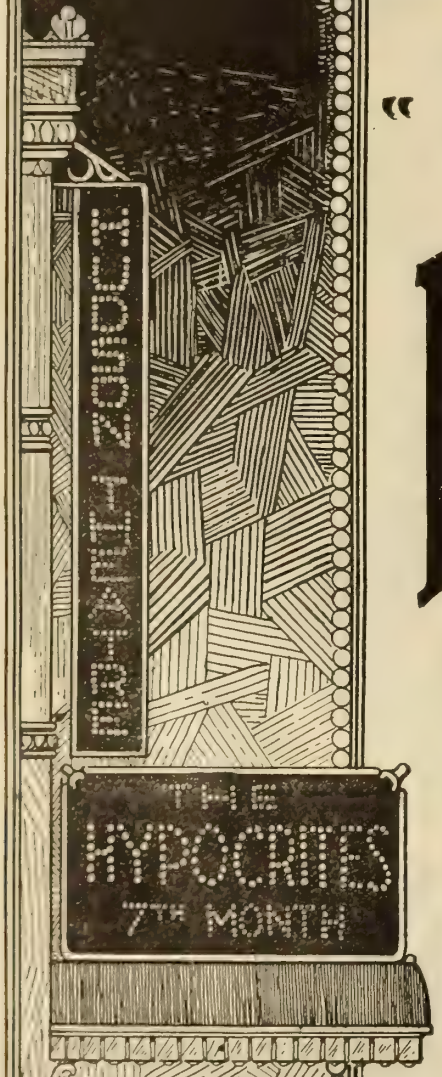
ARTHUR F. BECK—PRESIDENT

PRESENTS

STERLING PICTURES

GEO. LOANE TUCKERS GREATEST EFFORT

"THE HYPOCRITES"



by

SIR HENRY ARTHUR JONES

featuring

ELIZABETH RISDON

AND A TYPICAL TUCKER CAST.

PRODUCED UNDER THE PERSONAL DIRECTION OF GEO. LOANE TUCKER

Released Apr. 1st under the Sterling System

THE GREATEST STORY SIR HENRY ARTHUR JONES EVER WROTE

THE PLAY RAN ONE WHOLE SEASON AT THE HUDSON THEATRE, N.Y.

STERLING PICTURES CORPORATION

729 SEVENTH AVE NEW YORK CITY.

THE STERLING PICTURES CORP.

ARTHUR F. BECK—PRESIDENT

PRESENTS

SPECIAL REPORT

of

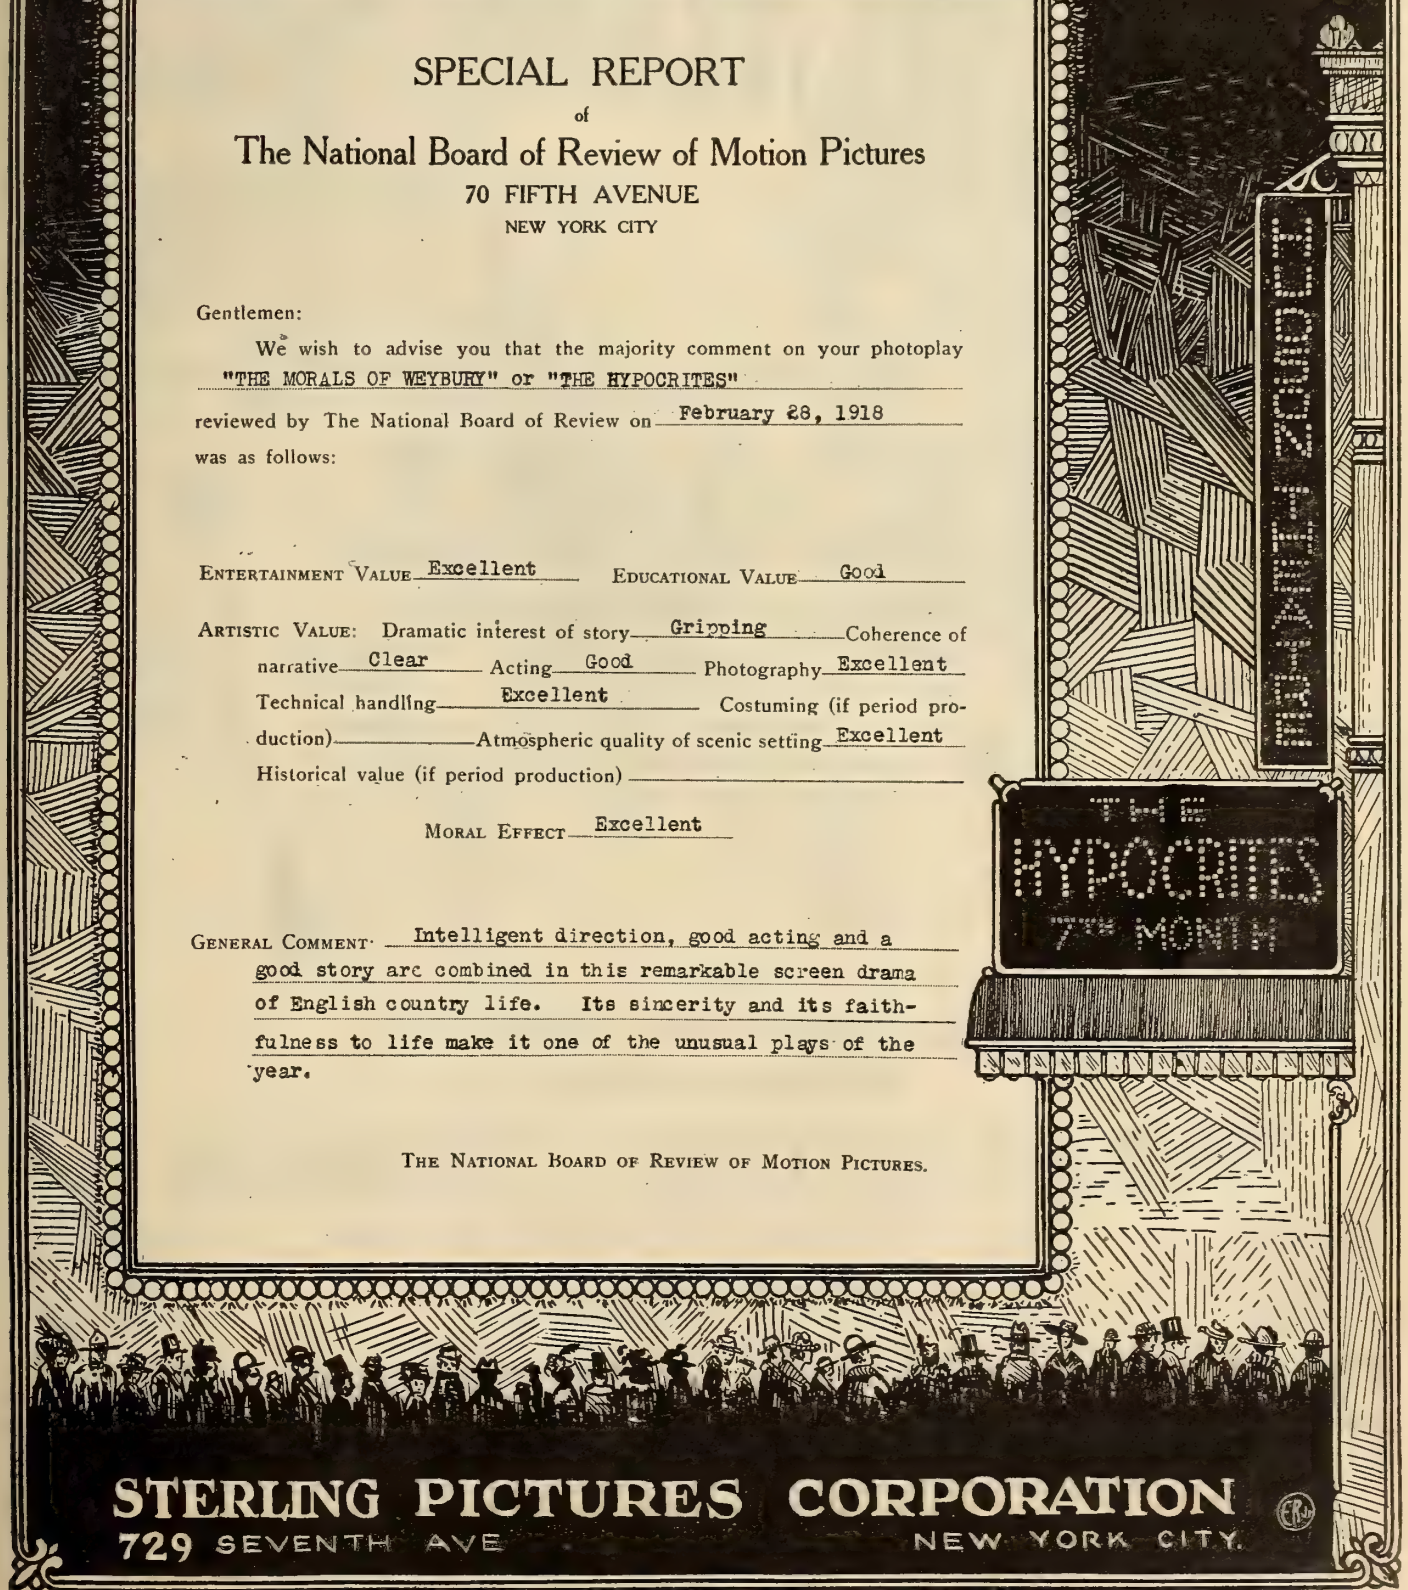
The National Board of Review of Motion Pictures

70 FIFTH AVENUE

NEW YORK CITY

Gentlemen:

We wish to advise you that the majority comment on your photoplay "THE MORALS OF WEYBURY" or "THE HYPOCRITES" reviewed by The National Board of Review on February 28, 1918 was as follows:



ENTERTAINMENT VALUE Excellent EDUCATIONAL VALUE Good

ARTISTIC VALUE: Dramatic interest of story Gripping Coherence of narrative Clear Acting Good Photography Excellent Technical handling Excellent Costuming (if period production) Atmospheric quality of scenic setting Excellent Historical value (if period production)

MORAL EFFECT Excellent

GENERAL COMMENT: Intelligent direction, good acting and a good story are combined in this remarkable screen drama of English country life. Its sincerity and its faithfulness to life make it one of the unusual plays of the year.

THE NATIONAL BOARD OF REVIEW OF MOTION PICTURES.

STERLING PICTURES CORPORATION

729 SEVENTH AVE NEW YORK CITY.

Pioneer Film Corporation

presents

The Greatest Melodrama of All Time

THE STILL ALARM

A Sure Fire
Hit-Action and Thrills
a Plenty

As played for a solid year in New York

Produced by SELIG

Featuring

THOMAS SANTSCHI and BESSIE EYTON

PIONEER ATTRACTIONS

We own the rights for the United States and Canada

State Right territories now being sold

For terms, etc., apply to

PIONEER ATTRACTIONS

PIONEER FILM CORPORATION

130 West 46Th Street

New York City

Be sure to mention "MOTION PICTURE NEWS" when writing to advertisers

Now Ready for State Rights Distribution

SIX ONE REEL COMEDIES

NOW READY—OTHERS WILL FOLLOW

Produced by

THE SCRANTONIA PHOTOPLAY CORPORATION

Featuring the Popular, Quaint

CHARLIE FANG

The Only Chinese Comedian in Captivity

CLEAN COMEDIES NOVEL CHARACTERS RIGHT PRICES

The First Six Smiling Subjects

"THE CHINESE MUSKETEER" "FATE AND FORTUNE"
"FEET AND DEFEAT" "PARSON PEPP"
"CHEERFUL LIARS" "THE RING AND THE RINGER"

Produced under the direction of C. R. De Barge at the Studios of The Scrantonia Photoplay Corp. at Scranton, Pennsylvania

DON'T WIRE OR PHONE if you don't care to JUST WRITE and if your territory is still open details will be mailed you

JESSE J. GOLDBURG

SOLE SALES AND EXPLOITATION REPRESENTATIVE

1105 TIMES BLDG. BRYANT 847 NEW YORK, N. Y.

You are wasting your opportunities if YOU ignore advertising.

EXHIBITORS EVERYWHERE

W. S. HART

THE BIG 4

DOUGLAS FAIRBANKS

NORMA TALMADGE

FRANK KEENAN

Are the stars you can depend upon in the list of Triangle features that S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., announce have been sold for the following territories:

MASSACHUSETTS, CONNECTICUT, RHODE ISLAND, MAINE, NEW HAMPSHIRE and VERMONT, to Boston Photoplay Company, 195 Pleasant Street, Boston, Mass.

EASTERN PENNSYLVANIA and SOUTHERN NEW JERSEY, to Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

WESTERN PENNSYLVANIA and WEST VIRGINIA, to Quality Film Company, 404 Ferry Street, Pittsburgh, Pa.

WASHINGTON, OREGON, IDAHO and MONTANA, to De Luxe Feature Film Company, 2014 Third Avenue, Seattle, Wash.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, MARYLAND, DELAWARE and VIRGINIA, to Superfeatures, Inc., Sidney B. Lust, 1209 E Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

MINNESOTA, NORTH and SOUTH DAKOTA and WISCONSIN, to Friedman Film Corp., Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn.

CALIFORNIA, ARIZONA and NEVADA, to Sunset Film Corporation, Julius L. Lazarus, Pres., San Francisco and Los Angeles, Calif.

ILLINOIS and INDIANA (Talmadge and Keenan Re-Issues), to Central Film Corporation, 110 South State Street, Chicago, Ill.

MISSOURI, KANSAS, IOWA, NEBRASKA, TEXAS, OKLAHOMA, ARKANSAS, GEORGIA, FLORIDA, ALABAMA, S. CAROLINA, N. CAROLINA, MISSISSIPPI, LOUISIANA and TENNESSEE, will be handled by the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., through the Triangle Exchanges, in the following cities: Atlanta, New Orleans, Dallas, St. Louis, Kansas City and Omaha.

Regarding Territories Not Closed as Yet, Apply for Detailed Information to

HILLER & WILK, Inc.

1475 Broadway, New York

Selling Agents for the S. A. LYNCH ENTERPRISES, Inc.

Rothapfel Books The Educational—Newman Travel Pictures

THIS IS THE FIRST TIME THAT THESE PICTURES HAVE EVER BEEN OFFERED SO THAT THEY MAY BE SHOWN AT POPULAR PRICES. THEY HAVE HERETOFORE BEEN SHOWN AT PRICES RANGING UP TO $2. HERE IS A NEW FIELD OPEN TO YOU AND AT A PRICE NOT GREATER THAN ORDINARY PRODUCT.

Rialto and Rivoli Theatres Are Noted for the Care That Is Taken in the Selection of the So-Called Short Subjects. Mr. Rothapfel Spends Hours in Picking the Best from the Entire Available Market.

And You Know, from Reading the Accounts of the Presentations of His Splendid Temples of the Silent Drama, That These Are Generally Educational Product When There Are Any of Our Pictures Ready for Him.

Newman Travel Pictures Shown at Rivoli

So When the First of the Celebrated Newman Travel Pictures Became Available Mr. Rothapfel Immediately Booked Them and the First Two of These Were Shown at the Rivoli Last Week.

They Were Not Used as Mere Fillers, They Were Made a Feature of the Bill Which the Managing Director Calls One of the Best That He Has Ever Given. Around These Were Arranged the Musical Score and They Were Followed by a Special Solo Number.

This Is What the MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Under the Heading of "Seeing the Rialto and Rivoli with Rothapfel," Said About These Pictures:

> The overture at the Rivoli, is followed by "Glimpses of Hawaii," the first of the Newman travel pictures to be released by Educational. It contains some of the most remarkable shots that have ever been seen and is a thing of beauty and interest throughout. For this a specially prepared musical score of Hawaiian music is being used. Following right in the spirit of this picture the curtain parts and reveals Miss Helena Morrill, costumed as a Hawaiian girl and the Rivoli chorus singing "Aloha-Oe."

THESE PICTURES WILL STAND OUT AS A REAL PICTURE OF YOUR PROGRAM.

THEY WILL BRING NEW PATRONS TO YOUR THEATRE AND WIN NEW LOVERS OF PICTURES. THEY WILL RAISE THE STANDARD OF YOUR HOUSE, THEY WILL WIDEN ITS APPEAL, THEY WILL ADD TO YOUR RECEIPTS.

FIRST OF THESE MAY BE BOOKED NOW. THE FIRST THREE NUMBERS ARE:

The Forbidden Isle Our Hawaiian Army Tidbits of Travel

EDUCATIONAL FILMS CORPORATION

OF AMERICA

729 7th AVENUE NEW YORK, N.Y.

How can an advertiser continue advertising? By giving YOU value.

The Holes in the "Blanket"

¶ "Why don't you blanket the field?" we were asked by an advertiser the other day. "You have the best publication. Why not give us complete circulation, so we can advertise in MOTION PICTURE NEWS alone?"

* * * * *

What the advertiser meant was this: There are, say, 15,000 picture houses in the country. Why don't you give us 15,000 exhibitor circulation?

* * * * *

A very beautiful theory!

It sounds like the glib preachment of an advertising solicitor who knows nothing of the making of the product he sells.

* * * * *

"Blanket" circulation is so full of holes that it can't cover anything.

* * * * *

MOTION PICTURE NEWS does not "blanket" the field; nor does it ever expect to; nor does any advertiser want it to.

* * * * *

The development of a publication must be natural. You produce a high-grade, valuable medium, and tender it to the exhibitor who wants it; the exhibitor who wants it reaches out and takes it, and pays for it. It is a fifty-fifty proposition.

There's a nice balance here—to be carefully observed—fifty-fifty!

If you don't reach out your publication—however excellent it is—your reader won't get it. That's circulation enterprise.

But—also—if you reach out too hard you force on the reader what he doesn't want—and won't use. That's "blanket" circulation.

* * * * *

"Blanketing" a field is forced-draught circulation of the most objectionable type.

You may have 15,000 free distribution or 15,000 paid subscribers; but—so far as 15,000 figures prove—you may not have one reader.

There you have—15,000 holes!

* * * * *

Secondly, you are sending or selling your publication to several thousand exhibitors who won't read it.

There are several thousand such picture houses in any 15,000 list of exhibitors. We know.

* * * * *

15,000 circulation costs lots of money. You are therefore compelled to ask your advertiser heavy rates—if you get out a paper like MOTION PICTURE NEWS—much higher than rates now asked.

Yet you are giving him several thousand utterly disinterested readers—useless to him. There are several thousand holes!

That's why the advertiser does not want a "blanket" circulation. He doesn't want to pay for—holes!

* * * * *

MOTION PICTURE NEWS has not stopped securing more exhibitor circulation. But we never intend to force the magazine upon the man who doesn't want any trade journal.

* * * * *

Mostly—we are building prestige. Devoting unlimited effort and money to it—with success! Sinking the roots—deep down.

We are making MOTION PICTURE NEWS the one paper read in every picture theatre which wants a trade journal. And we are mighty near 100% strong today.

* * * * *

We don't "blanket" the field. We dominate the trade journal avenue to it.

And because of this dominating influence and service the advertiser can and should confine his advertising—for results—to the pages of MOTION PICTURE NEWS alone.

¶ LOOK AT THESE!

Then call and verify, and analyze them. Subscription receipts week ending:

February 20—	$244
" 27—	224
March 6—	145
" 13—	402
	$1015

These are mostly renewals. That's natural growth.

THIS IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY

STATE RIGHTS

An audience which packed the house applauded and cheered.—New York Times.

Shows the villainy of the Prussian autocracy. — New York Evening Telegram.

Will make the blood of any human boil.
—Morning Telegraph.

The theatre was ringing with cheers. — New York Evening Mail.

Men and women clapped their hands until they were sore and shouted till their throats were hoarse.—New York Evening Sun.

A MARVELOUS SUCCESS

"My Four Years in Germany"

By

Ambassador James W. Gerard

Knickerbocker Theatre
New York

Indefinitely

Directed by William Nigh

Received with an outburst of applause unprecedented in such entertainments.
—New York Herald.

Audience sat literally on the edge of the chairs. — New York American.

Should prove a valuable piece of American propaganda. — New York World.

A capacity audience was thrilled.
—New York Globe.

Will do more to rouse the thoughtless to action than a million quasi-patriotic films.
—New York Tribune.

Now Receiving Bids for All World Territories

MY FOUR YEARS IN GERMANY, Inc.

220 West 42nd Street, New York

BRONCHO BILLY

(Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.)

The Most Popular Film Hero

REVIVIFIED!

In the world famous dramas of the hills and plains. Single reels that carry a strong punch and thrilling action.

PHOTOGRAPHY—NEW PROCESS—1000% BETTER

BOOK ONE EACH WEEK

Broncho Billy's Leap
Broncho Billy and the Rattler
Broncho Billy's Close Call
Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter
Broncho Billy's Indian Romance
Broncho Billy, A Friend In Need
Broncho Billy's Wild Ride
Bouncho Billy's First Arrest
Broncho Billy and the Rustler's Child
Broncho Billy's Last Deed

Essanay

George Kleine System, Distributor

Perfection Pictures

GEORGE K. SPOOR presents

I, Mary MacLane

IN

"MEN WHO HAVE MADE LOVE TO ME"

Played to full houses at the Band Box Theatre, Chicago, two weeks, and other first-class theatres everywhere. Don't miss out on this exceptional show, of a woman's six loves.

Taylor Holmes

IN

"RUGGLES OF RED GAP"

and

"UNEASY MONEY"

High-grade theatres throughout the United States have been playing these two great features to capacity houses. If you have not already played them, ask for a showing at once.

Essanay

GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

Distributors

Perfection Pictures

Motion Picture News

Vol. 17 No. 13. March 30, 1918

The Week in the Film World at a Glance

FEATURES

LET'S BE "JUST FOLKS" (WM. A. JOHNSTON)..1853
SPEAKING EDITORIALLY ..1854
SERVING IT WITH SPEED AND GINGER..1855
ONLY AN EXCHANGE MAN..1857
WHAT KIND OF A FELLOW IS—HAMMONS?..1865
THE READER HAS HIS SAY..1867
DIARY OF A SUCCESSFUL EXHIBITOR..1883
THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER..1911

OF SERVICE TO EXHIBITORS

Exhibitors' Box-Office Reports..1871
Exhibitors' Service Bureau..1876
Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors..1882
Ready-Made Ad. Talks..1886
Short Subjects in Review..1916
Releases—Current and Coming..1929
Projection Department ..1936
Music and the Picture..1944
Theatres Worth While..1948
Newsy Items for Your Program..1920

NEWS OF THE WEEK

Griffiths Latest Opens in Los Angeles..1856
Julius Steger Joins International..1861
Push Sunday Option Bill..1860
Gaumont on States Rights..1864
Live News from the Producers..1888
Advance Offerings of the Programs..1904
In the Independent Field..1906
In and Out of West Coast Studios..1918
News Notes from Canada..1917
Newsy Items from the Studios..1920

SCREEN EXAMINATIONS

"All Fur Her" (Jester Comedy)..1923
"Ann's Finish" (Mutual-American)..1923
"Answer, The" (Triangle)..1924
"Bell Boy, The" (Essanay)..1926
"Broncho Billy's Close Call" (Essanay-Broncho Billy) Reissue ..1927
"By Injunction" (General-O. Henry)..1924
"By Right of Purchase" (Select)..1923
"Curse of Iku, The" (Essanay)..1926
"Faith Endurin'" (Triangle)..1922
"Finishing Mary" (Mutual-Strand)..1923
"His Quaker Girl" (Mutual-Strand)..1925
"House of Hate, The" (Pathe)..1924
"Love Me" (Paramount-Ince)..1926
"Marriage Bubble, The" (Triangle)..1925
"Moral Law, The" (Fox)..1922
"Moral Suicide" (Graphic)..1922
"On the Jump" (Pathe-Rolin)..1925
"Rathskeller and the Rose, The" (General-O. Henry)..1924
"Sea Panther, The" (Triangle)..1926
"Song and the Sergeant, The" (General-O.Henry)..1924
"Thief or Angel" (General-Judge Brown)..1925
"Thieves' Gold" (Universal)..1925
"Those Athletic Girls" (Paramount-Mack Sennett)..1924
"Unfaithful" (Triangle)..1925
"Way Out, The" (World Film)..1924
"Wild Youth" (Paramount-Blackton)..1928
"Wine Girl, The" (Bluebird)..1927

Newsy Announcements of the Week Found in the Ad-Pages

Universal Chooses "Risky Road" as Title of Dorothy Phillips Picture ..1796
Mack Sennett's Latest Paramount..1797-98
"Headin' South," Fairbanks' Picture, Praised by Dailies..1799
"Rich Man, Poor Man" with Marguerite Clark is Saturday Evening Post Story..1800
De Mille's "Whispering Chorus" Ready..1801
An Important Letter from William S. Hart..1802
Vitagraph Presents Nell Shipman in "The Home Trail"...1803
Inter-Ocean Talks on World Films..1804
"House of Glass" Considered Miss Young's Best Effort..1805
Critics Praise Mabel Normand in "The Floor Below"....1806
"The Splendid Sinner" with Mary Garden Promises to Be Unusual ..1807
"Heart of the Sunset" as Big as Rex Beach's Biggest Stories ..1808-09
"Smiling Bill" Parsons coming Soon in Goldwyn Comedies.1810
Patriotic Melodrama in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam".....1811
Paralta's Pictures, Current and Coming..1812
Paralta Features Get Warm Praise..1813-14
Mutual ..1815-16
Triangle Offers Studio Space to Independent Stars..1817
Fox Offers "Rough and Ready"..1818-19
Mutt and Jeff to Cavort for Fox Exhibitors..1820
March and April Release from the Fox Studios..1821
"The Spy" a Timely Picture..1822-23
"Woman—and the Law"—Its Pulling Power..1824-25
Think It Over—By Triangle..1826-27
United Picture Theatres Puts Questions and Answers Them ..1828-29
Metro Box-Office Attractions..1830-31
"The Claim" an Unusual Metro Feature..1832
W. H. Productions..1833
"Satan's Pawn," W. H. Productions' Latest to State Right Buyers ..1834
Frank J. Seng on "Parentage" ..1835
Two Important Letters Anent "The Eagle's Eye"....1836-37
"Just a Woman," U. S. Exhibitors' Offering..1838
The Gaumont Graphic, Twice Weekly..1839
Sterling Pictures Has "The Hypocrites," Version of Sir Henry Arthur Jones Play, Featuring Elizabeth Risdon and Produced by George Loane Tucker..1840-41
"The Still Alarm" Makes Its Way Into Pictures at Last.1842
An Announcement of Chinese Comedies..1843
Hiller and Wilk Have Features with Big Stars..1844
Educational Films Corporation..1845
Newspapers Praises on "My Four Years in Germany"....1848
Broncho Billy Revivified!..1849
George K. Spoors' Winning Cards Include "A Pair of Sixes" ..1850-52
Universal Tells Four Pages Full About "The Kaiser", 1900-01-02-03
New Comedies from Lyons and Moran Coming on the Universal Program ..1912-13
Latest Universal Serial "The Lion's Claw's Coming Soon, 1914-15

WM. A. JOHNSTON, Pres. and Editor. HENRY F. SEWALL, Vice-Pres. E. KENDALL GILLETT, Sec. and Treas

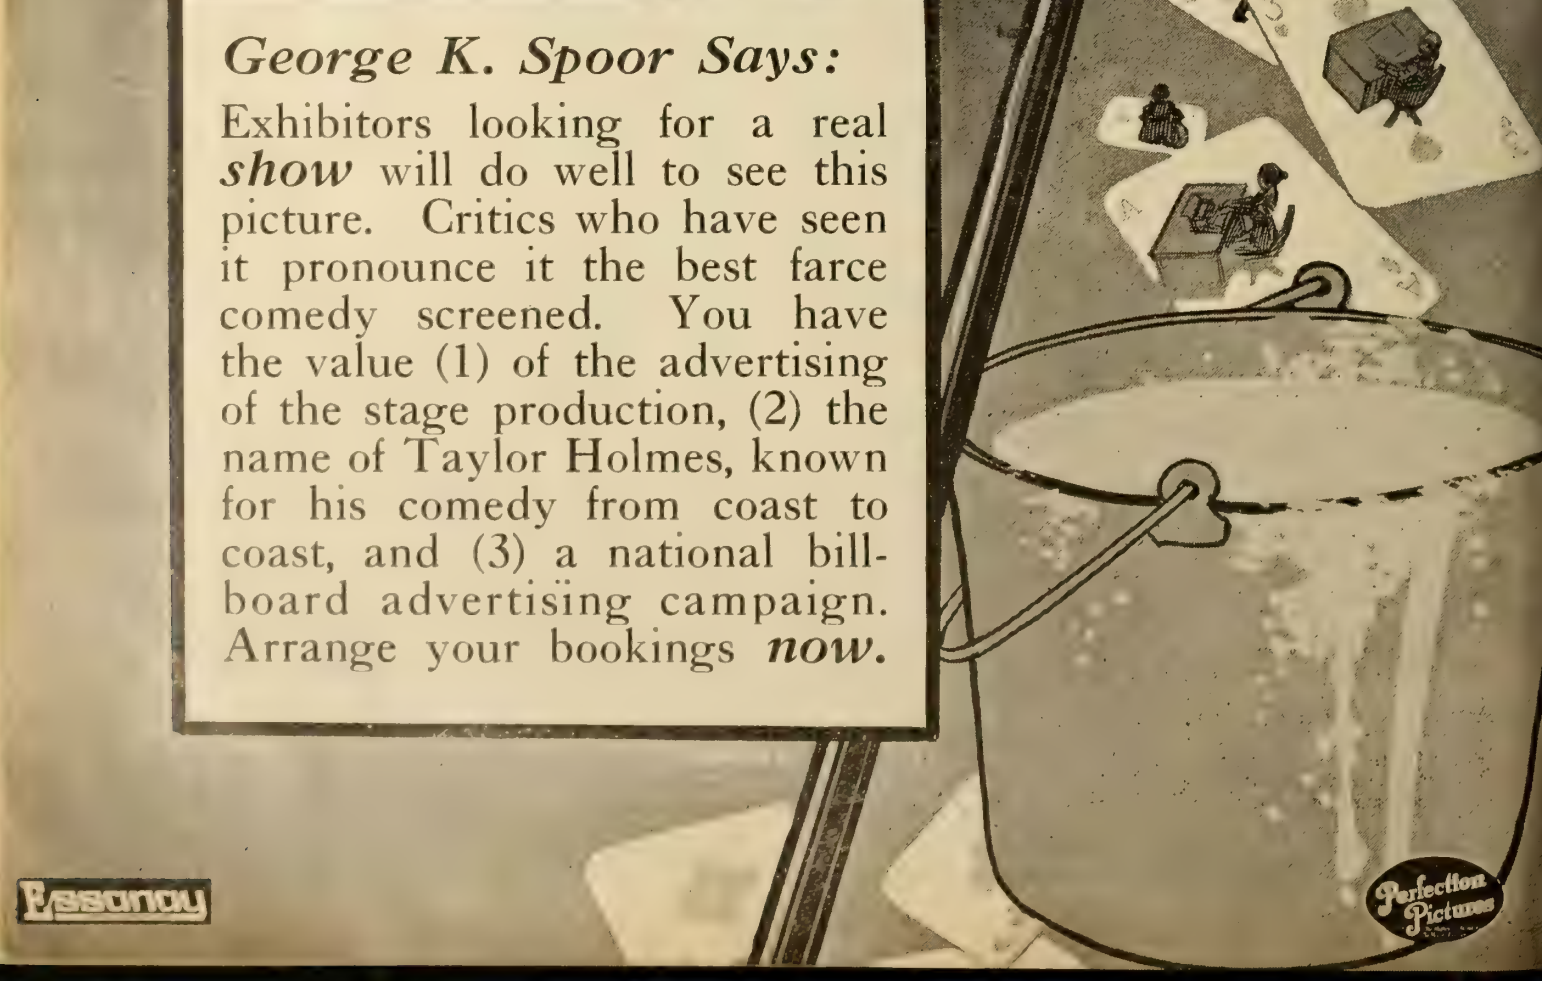
Published on Tuesday every week by MOTION PICTURE NEWS, Inc., 729 Seventh Ave., New York, N. Y. 'Phone 9360 Bryant. Chicago Offices, Mgr. Wm. J. McGrath, 110 So. Dearborn St.; 'Phone 755 Randolph. Los Angeles Offices, Mgr. J. C. Jessen, 429 South Figueroa St.; 'Phones 7140 Main, F-4661. Subscription $2 a year, postpaid, in United States, Mexico, Hawaii, Porto Rico and Philippine Islands. Canada, $3. N. B.—No agent is authorized to take subscriptions for Motion Picture News at less than these rates. Have the agent who takes your subscription show his credentials and coupon book.

Copyright, 1918, by Motion Picture News, Inc.

GEORGE K. SPOOR
presents

A GREAT PICTURE
ASK WHEN



TAYLOR HOLMES in
A PAIR OF SIXES

DISTRIBUTED BY THE GEORGE KLEINE SYSTEM

George K. Spoor Says:

Exhibitors looking for a real show will do well to see this picture. Critics who have seen it pronounce it the best farce comedy screened. You have the value (1) of the advertising of the stage production, (2) the name of Taylor Holmes, known for his comedy from coast to coast, and (3) a national billboard advertising campaign. Arrange your bookings now.

Essanay

Perfection Pictures

MAR 20 1918 ©CLB411164

"When you see it in 'The News' It's News"

Motion Picture News

HAS THE QUALITY CIRCULATION OF THE TRADE

"The Exhibitors' Medium of Communication"

Volume 17. No. 13 March 30, 1918

Let's Be "Just Folks"

A LETTER reaches our desk this morning, one sentence of which makes a new introduction to an editorial already planned.

"I fairly ache to see some good pictures—pictures with whimsy and love, and tears and laughter—and action and heart throb—and over and under and through the motions and emotions a knowledge of and love of folks."

The letter, strange to say, is not from a layman.

It is from a producer—one of future consequence, in our opinion.

It is written, evidently, on the spur of the moment, a frank confession and appeal for light amid considerable confusion.

We are pleased to give part of our answer here.

To the writer we say:

* * * *

YOU have summed up in one sentence the great highway of successful photoplay production.

It is likewise the highway of stage, book, magazine and newspaper production—and has been, since type was invented.

It is a highway-broad, straight and brilliant with simple sunlight.

The whole mass of humanity—big folk and little folk, plain folk and strange folk—travel it day by day.

They are yearning for stories of the highway they throng; stories that make them laugh and cry as they travel on; stories of their own men folk, women folk and child-folk; stories that uplift their steps and quicken their pulse beats—stories based upon a knowledge of and love of folks!

They want the stories of their own—of God's highway.

They don't want stories of the dark little byways—byways of absurd unreality, byways that lead over precipices, byways of human contortion, misadventure and mockery.

It is simple enough.

That broad highway—of folks—is plain enough.

* * * *

YET week by week the producers of photoplays—too many—see only the little byways.

Week by week we review pictures that either by title, story or execution miss altogether the broad highway of human hearts; or else having taken it, they depart inexcusably into the repulsive, unreal and silly little byways.

Decidedly we don't want to make a wholesale condemnation. And the effort of this editorial is wholly constructive.

There are many bright spots in picture production. There are real and fine production policies, backed by the utmost liberality of effort and expense. And, right along, the photoplay scores the better, often the best, of its unique possibilities.

Just the same, there are too many and inexcusable lapses, enough to give to a very large element of the photoplay's potential audience in the United States a very poor impression of the photoplay's art.

There is too broad a gap between the people—the folks—and the writer and the director of the picture.

To know human nature is to live it and feel it. We need writers and directors who know—folks; and it is highly necessary that they be in close and constant touch with—folks.

It is only by accident that a writer of immaturity and inability and a director who never looks over the little horizon of Ft. Lee, of Hollywood, will together picturize a story based upon "a knowledge of and love of folks."

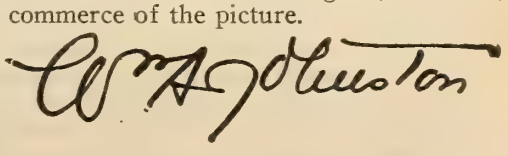
* * * *

THE best exhibitors are best because they study their audiences.

Therefore we have asked a large board of these men to tell the producer each week—through our pages—and plainly—just what highways folks like to travel and just what byways they never use, or don't want to use.

That's one bridge over the gap.

Then, we have found a man—he happens to be an exhibitor—who for years has made a sympathetic and enthusiastic study of folks and their hearts and minds. He knows the highways and the byways.



He has reduced them to simple and positive alignments.

Each week he will review pictures along these simple requirements and every month we will review his reviews and sum up editorially what we see to be the broad right way and the little wrong ways—into human hearts—through pictures and their titles.

We do this for the sake of the photoplay and in the belief that it is the biggest and best service we can ever hope to offer.

We have asked for and are mighty pleased to say we have received the almost universal support of the producers to the end. We trust it will be continued.

Feelings may be hurt, business may be hurt, temporarily here and there—we hope not. But the effort is constructive only. And in the end it will do much good, we know, for the art and commerce of the picture.

Speaking Editorially:

Play Them Up!

JUST at this writing a most remarkable list of "Specials" is offered or about to be offered the exhibitor.

Aside from the big program specials we might refer more pointedly to those which are distinctly novel in subject, treatment or appeal.

Here are some: "The Kaiser," "Tarzan of the Apes," "My Four Years in Germany," "The Eagle's Eye," "Over the Top," "Mickey," "Parentage," "Son of Democracy," "My Own United States," "The Spy."

And, though the manner of release has not been announced, we imagine the new Griffith picture, "Hearts of the World," will fall into the "Special" class.

For theatre-opening or business building purposes here is striking material.

We wish to refer pointedly, however, to this fact: that "specials" of the above character require special advertising if the exhibitors box-office receipts are to measure up to their possibilities.

We assume that the pictures go forth heavily flanked with the full quota of advertising ideas and material. They ought to.

In this connection we have before us a campaign book—on "Tarzan of the Apes"—which merits special mention.

This picture had a most successful Broadway appearance. That doesn't mean so much to the exhibitor today as the fact that he is given a campaign book outlining in full the advertising methods which played so large a part in the picture's New York success.

The book includes: Advance press notices, suggestions of special opportunities for exploitation, advertising accessories and where obtainable, cuts of daily newspaper advertising, street banners, store-window displays, newspaper "stories" and cuts, postcards for home distribution, samples of sustained suspense advertising, New York newspaper criticisms, cartoonists' drawings, etc.

The book is comprehensive and intelligently laid out.

Again we state: "Specials" need special advertising. That is no discredit to the picture. Too many exhibitors book such pictures in the belief the pictures will carry themselves. The best picture ever made will pass unnoticed through your town if it is unheralded.

New York's Option Bill

THE active interest being shown by New York City exhibitors in the fight for the Motion Picture Option Bill in New York State should be a bright omen pointing the way to State-wide harmony among picture theatre men.

New York, at present, enjoys Sunday shows without interference. It is in the up-State cities that local ordinances of various sorts have forced the picture people to remain closed. Yet the metropolitan exhibitors are putting forth unrestrained efforts in the fight.

It is a good start towards harmony—and a good start towards success in the present undertaking and any others that the future may bring. To Secretary Elliott, of the National Association, much of the credit must go, shared with the newly-elected State President, Sydney Cohen, and New York City's head, John Manheimer.

Looking for the Millenium

A MASSACHUSETTS exhibitor writes an interesting letter in the course of which he confesses:

"There is one thing that gets on my nerves as I go through the trade papers. A large number of the advertisers and also a large number of the editorials and readers are always telling about the Rivoli, Rialto and Strand. I have spoken to others about this and they don't like it either. A certain amount of it is good—your 'Rothapfel Advice', for example, or 'Seeing the Rialto With Rothapfel,' but when we read of him all through the ads from the first to the last page it gets on an exhibitor's nerves.

"It seems to be the same with these three theatres as it used to be with all picture manufacturers in comparing their pictures with 'The Birth of a Nation.' I hope the time will come when these four names will wear out."

The Great American Pastime

THE great American sport is packing a suitcase to start off on a trip selling something.

Just now the hunting is good in the picture business—everybody is doing it. Count that company or propaganda lost which hasn't an executive on the road explaining a "proposition" to exhibitors meetings.

Practically every method is cure-all that is going to save exhibitors from some dire, unnamed fate.

Or to end the war.

Or do something.

The Man in the Sticks—

NO, it isn't the Man in the Sticks this time. It's an exhibitor with something to say that will be applauded by a lot of fellow showmen, both in the sticks and in the cities.

He puts it briefly and plainly. Here it is:

"DEAR MR. JOHNSTON—Why should the thousands of dollars tied up in needless deposits lie idle when each Liberty Loan could use it?

Very truly,

Oskaloosa, Iowa. E. M. MCCRAY.

On Your Mark!

PASSING from the subject of advance deposits and the Liberty Loans they might buy—are you ready for the next Liberty Loan drive?

Have you thrown your house open to the Four Minute men, to the other local movements furthering the cause of war loans? Are you ready to use slides, to give a few lines in your programs to Liberty Loan slogans?

April 6th, the beginning of our second year in the war, is not far off—and no matter what the Fates may decree in Flanders for that day—we at home may celebrate it with a victory by giving the Third Liberty Loan a running start.

All together now, are you ready? Let's break even the glorious record that the picture industry has made in the two Liberty Loans that have already "gone over the top" to victory.

Serving It with Speed and Ginger

THERE is one producer whose new pictures always get columns of space without a word of complaint from jealous press agents of rival attractions.

David Wark Griffith is the man.

To a trade paper editor trying to sit on the lid in the midst of press agents of all sizes that seems about as big a tribute as can ever be paid to any man in this picture business.

Griffith's openings are events—epochs—and this latter is said in spite of, not because of, the name of his company. The only possible complaint that can ever be made about the space given a new Griffith production is when we can't give enough advance fact about it.

"Hearts of the World," the latest with the Griffith stamp, had its premiere last week at Clune's Los Angeles theatre—so in this issue, page 1855, tells you the story as wired by our special correspondent.

* * * *

FILM men with whom we have talked don't seem to have formed any definite opinions regarding the effect on picture theatres of the recently passed Daylight Saving Bill. The general attitude seems to be, "Oh, I haven't paid much attention to it, but I don't suppose it will make any difference."

But some effects are certain. The prospect, for example, for the airdome is far from cheerful. The shades of night won't fall quite so fast—in fact by the time it is dark enough for people to be thinking of going to an airdome it is more certain that the hands of the clock will be at an hour pointing more directly to "the hay."

Even the ordinary theatres will find this a blow at attendance, it would seem to us. Most persons don't feel like going to the theatre until it begins to grow dark, which, with Daylight Saving, means that they won't begin to think of going to the theatre until they are beginning to get tired—and then——

"Oh, let's go to bed! Got to get up early in the morning, you know."

* * * *

WE like to soft pedal on legislative matters when the outlook is bright, but we can't restrain a word regarding the workmanlike manner in which New York State's exhibitors, assisted by Secretary Elliott, of the National Association, are going about the job of securing the passage of an Option Bill bringing Sunday openings to the test of the polls.

Instead of spending hours preparing lists of long-winded speakers and drafting high sounding resolutions the Allied Committee has realized that politics begins at the bottom of the ladder and the fight is being planned to start there. From the Assembly and Senate district up—up—that's the way it goes.

That's the way Assemblies and Senates are elected.

[Page 1860]

THEDA BARA is going to appear in "Salome." Somehow or other that seems like news to us. Perhaps it is because we remember all the newspaper furor that used to be created every time a new stage or operatic Salome made her appearance.

Publicity has to fight the war bulletins now, but we shouldn't be surprised if Theda Bara's Salome captured quite a few columns of ink. [Page 1888.]

* * * *

JUST to show that there is always more than one side to any story we let an exchangeman take the feature position of this week's NEWS with the story on the following page. "Only an Exchangeman" has quite a grouch—justifiable, it would seem—against the exhibitor who gives no thought to fellow exhibitors in shipping films on after his own show.

A few of the real cases cited will give all of us something to think about. [Page 1857]

* * * *

JULIUS STEGER became production chief of International. Keep your eye on Brother Steger. He is a gentleman with a sure knowledge of the box office. He slipped "Redemption," one of the best box office winners of the year, over very quietly and without fuss. He has others up his sleeve. Watch him. [Page 1861.]

* * * *

"WHAT kind of a Fellow is—Hammons?" That's the instalment in W. A. Johnston's "Who's Who" for this week. You ought to know more about this quiet fellow Hammons who has plugged away over a hard road—but with success—at making the word "educational" mean dollars in the box office and dollars for the manufacturer. [Page 1865.]

* * * *

ARE you following the announcements from week to week regarding our Exhibitor Advisory Board?

This week's statement on Page 1871 will give you an idea of the work that the Board is going to do. It's going to be the greatest forum any industry has ever seen—close to twenty men representing an enormous capital—free to say or do just what they want. Not a string on any of them—we dare any man to try to put a string on such men.

* * * *

JUST after Virginia succeeded in giving quiet burial to its own censorship bill, up pops the local board in Portland, Oregon, with an attempt to enliven the gayety of nations. Even posters have come in for treatment. [Page 1859]

It makes a good story—you should read it for the laughs, at least.

Griffith Scores New Picture Triumph

"Hearts of the World" Opens to Cheering Audience of Three Thousand in Los Angeles—Producer Called to Stage for Speech, and Gets Ovation

D. W. GRIFFITH'S western war front spectacle, "Hearts of the World," was unanimously acclaimed his greatest cinema success at its international premiere, Tuesday evening, March 12, at Clune's Auditorium, Los Angeles. Every one of the audience, of more than three thousand people, arose and cheered and applauded until members of the house staff had time to find the producer and escort him to the stage.

The assembly was a noteworthy one, consisting as it did of practically every prominent member of the West Coast film colony, theatre men of Los Angeles, San Diego, San Francisco and Seattle, as well as some of the best known business and society people of Los Angeles

Griffith Gets Ovation

For several minutes after Mr. Griffith appeared on the stage, the riotous applauding and cheering continued. When the producer waved for quiet, and the house was still, he attempted to thank them for the ovation, but confessed he did not know what to say, other than he was glad they liked his "little play," and added he was deeply indebted to the British War Office in securing many of the scenes. He hoped that it would cause every one to have a thought for the boys in and going to the trenches, and if it did, he would feel repaid. After uttering less than fifty words, he said, "I won't bother you any longer," which brought forth demands of "Go on! Go on!" He was called back to the stage a number of times by the applause and cheering, which lasted more than ten minutes.

"Hearts of the World" is another triumph added to the Griffith list of successes, and its merits can best be guaged by the prophecy that it will prove the greatest box office attraction for the screen.

The war spectacle has the finer touches that have marked Griffith productions of the past. Through it all is depicted the despicable characteristics of the Huns, as they have become known since the beginning of the war. The story told is a very simple one. A boy and a girl are neighbors. They were parted when the boy, an American, went to serve France because he thought a flag good enough to live under was good enough to fight for. The couple are reunited after the Germans were driven away.

Story of a Village

Mr. Griffith describes the play as being "the story of a village." It opens with a showing of the quiet and satisfied condition of the villagers and their families. The peaceful condition is shattered by the bulletins announcing the declaration of war, and the call to the colors. The town is in the path of the invaders, and after numerous attacks the French are driven back, and the village becomes the headquarters of the Germans. The treatment accorded the women and children by the invaders depicts the brute-like practice of the victorious horde. But there is a day of reckoning when the French, aided by the British, recapture the town.

The climax of "Hearts of the World" is even more thrilling than that of "The Birth of a Nation." Suspense is sustained on several situations; women and daughters are to be deported to Germany to work in the ammunition factories, and an all night vigil is held; the hero, or the boy, with the girl, is entrapped by officers and guards of the enemy; and the French, British and United States troops are seen slowly retaking ground, which ultimately means the recapture of the hamlet. Every phase of the story grows more intense until the battle fought by the Allies solves all.

Glimpses of Warfare

The war picture, taken on the western front, gives intimate glimpses of modern war fare such as no other film today has shown. Big guns of the latest type are seen in action. There are bevies of airplanes and French dirigible observation balloons; miles of marching troops and panoramas of the battle fields; trenches and other fortifications; scores of tanks moving across "No Man's Land," and the capture of "pill boxes" tell what the Allies are facing and must overcome to win the war. Mr. Griffith did not overlook the praiseworthy work of the Red Cross.

Robert Harron, the Boy, and Lillian Gish, the Girl, have for this picture done the best work of their respective careers. As the daredevil American of the French troops, Robert Harron wins favor by his unostentatious bravery and Yankee pluck. He is the central figure in numerous hand-to-hand fights that for ferociousness are different from screen encounters heretofore shown.

There has been a very noticeable change in Miss Gish's style of acting, and this is by far the greatest work she has ever done. Dorothy Gish, as the little disturber, a strolling singer, was applauded almost every time she appeared on the screen, each time with more enthusiasm. Dorothy Gish has been popular heretofore, but this play will make for her a niche in stardom few actresses have been successful in attaining.

Stars All Score

As the boy's companions of the French company, Robert Anderson and George Fawcett, were easily the other favorites of the male contingent of the big cast, while Little Ben Alexander, age about four years, steps forth as an infant prodigy. Those who saw "The Clansman" remember George Siegmann's "Lynch," and will find him giving a characterization equally as despisable. His role is that of Von Strohm, the German secret service agent. Other former Griffith players seen to advantage in this most recent success are Josephine Crowell, Kate Bruce and Anna Mae Walthall.

That the premiere was a very notable event in Los Angeles is shown by the amount of space devoted to it by all of the local newspapers.

Kuhn Manager of the Stillman

In one portion of the announcement of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors' Service Bureau, E. Mandlebaum, of Cleveland, O., was called the manager of the Stillman theatre. Mr. Mandlebaum is not manager, but one of the owners as well as one of the most prominent film men in the entire country. Jack Kuhn is managing director of the Stillman.

F. P. Lasky Bureau at Work

THE Administrative Bureau of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation has announced that Hiram Abrams and B. P. Schulberg have undertaken a national tour for the purpose of meeting exhibitors of Paramount and Artcraft Pictures in all the important centres of the country, in order to devise means of closer co-operation. Messrs. Abrams and Schulberg left New York last Sunday for the first stages of the trip.

Coincident with the announcement comes the information that the Administrative Bureau has engaged S. R. Kent, one of the best known of the younger film executives, as a special representative from the home office. Mr. Kent will also take part in the tour. The country has been so divided that each one of the three will personally visit one-third of the United States before the tour is completed, all three keeping in close touch with each other so that an almost daily comparison of results can be maintained. The plan is said to be one of the most novel features ever connected with a trip of this kind, and is the idea of Mr. Abrams. The individual itineraries assign the Pacific Coast and the territory from San Francisco to Denver to Hiram Abrams, the territory from New York to Dallas to B. P. Schulberg, and the section from Denver to Chicago to S. R. Kent.

S. R. Kent graduated into the film business from many important executive points in other big industries. During his career in the film industry, he has occupied important executive position.

Are Exhibitors Sometimes to Blame?

"Only An Exchange-man"

He asks the Question at the top of this page; signs himself as above; and then goes on to register a real lusty kick.

DURING these days of continuous talk as to the "high price" of film to the exhibitor, and the many suggestions and plans to eliminate waste among the producers and exchanges, have we not a little educative work to do with the fellow who has been "hollering" rather loud about the "awful calamity?"

Is not the exhibitor himself somewhat to blame for the so-called "high prices" if such there be?

The point upon which most of the industry has agreed, as the basis of the "enormous losses," seems to be the distributing end of the business—the exchange—"with its many high-priced salesmen, its fancy-salaried manager" and the good Lord only knows how many more "evils."

The exchange of a distributing organization is given film each week and the manager is told to "get the money" to a certain amount each week or off goes his head. He lines up a bunch of business and thinks all is going fine.

Arriving at the office after a good night's rest his attention is first brought to several collect telegrams.

Take one of them, for instance: "No film here yet and I open at eleven o'clock. Where is it to come from and when will it arrive?"

Upon consulting the booking sheet, remembering, first, that it is now only 9 o'clock—we find that the film in question was to come from Bunkville, only fifty miles away—and that the exhibitor who wired was sent the regular shipping instruction blank—showing from whom he gets the picture, the date played, and where he must ship it and for the date. Upon going to the railway guide we find a local train leaving Bunkville at 1 o'clock in the morning, arriving in Bingville at 3:30 A M. Then there's another leaving Bunkville at 8:15 A. M., arriving at Bingville at 11:15 A. M.

The exchange manager is heard to say something that sounds like "L," and he instructs his stenographer to wire to find out where the dickens that film is. We might add here, that nothing further is ever heard from either exhibitor about this film—by letter, or otherwise.

Another of the telegrams reads like this:

"You blew me up yesterday and the film has just arrived. I am taking it out and holding until you settle with me. Send exchange for Eighty Dollars and advise where film to be shipped."

This wire, we might say, comes from a "good" exhibitor, Mr. P. A. Behunk, of Smithtown.

Yes, let's go over that incident and see the facts:

Yesterday, there was a wire from Smithtown saying the film had not arrived, and we wired Jonesburg, who was to ship him, asking for information—no answer, as usual—and both exhibitors had received the usual instructions—plenty of time to get the film off and to receive it before show time.

We investigated thoroughly this instance—and found that our friend-exhibitor at Jonesburg, realizing the picture was a good one, instead of playing one day and shipping on, he held it over and got a neat profit on the second day—then shipped it on to Smithtown. Our "good" exhibitor at Smithtown, though he knew it was to play Dinkleton the next day—as he was blown up, what did he care about any one else?

It's an honest fact, that during the past eight weeks, in this one exchange we have had eighty-six blowups—AND NOT ONE OF THEM WAS THE FAULT OF THE EXCHANGE, either in scheduling the bookings, notice to exhibitors, etc. And in not one instance are we able to blame the express companies or late trains. EVERY LAST ONE OF THE "ERRORS" WAS OCCASIONED BY EXHIBITORS FAILING TO SHIP FILM PROMPTLY, or (two or three instances) shipping to the exchange instead of to the exhibitor they were instructed to.

In the Southwestern section heretofore, there has not been trouble of this kind to such a degree as within the past two months. Why it should grow to such an extent is unexplainable—but it is now to alarming proportions.

We are cutting off accounts very frequently, too frequently, because of failure to ship promptly; but still it goes on. We have charged up extra day's rentals and applied deposits, but to no avail. Exhibitors who have never before had such a complaint lodged against them have been proven guilty more than once recently.

Does not trouble of this kind cut down the exchange or distribution receipts to a large amount? If there was any profit, would this not tend to show a loss? Is this the kind of exhibitor cooperation that could mean at any time in the future a cut in film prices?

Just so soon as the exhibitors realize that all exchanges and exchange men are not trying to "frisk" them, and consider their business and their neighbor-exhibitors upon a clean-cut honest business-like plane, just that soon can many of the distribution losses be eliminated to such a degree that distributing companies could lower rentals—no sooner.

Brunet Plans Four Serials

"House of Hate" First of Five Pathes to Be Released in 1918— Vice-President Paul Brunet Outlines Policies of Organization COMPREHENSIVE plans for the world-wide distribution of quality productions through the international organization of Pathe Freres are included in the Pathe policies to be followed under the administration of Paul Brunet, vice-president and general manager.

The outstanding feature of the plans for the American market is the announcement that four serials in addition to "The House of Hate," the current serial release will be issued in 1918. Under the direction of Charles Pathe, a new standard has been set for serial productions, and Pathe's continued photoplays of the future will be of a quality never before attempted. Pathe production is under the control of Ferdinand Zecca, Director-General of Productions, under the new administration.

"The policies of Pathe in America," stated Mr. Brunet, "are based upon the fact that we are part of the world-wide Pathe organization that has thrown open the markets of the civilized world to motion pictures. This fact gives us important fundamental advantages, the greatest of which is that from the complete control of our output in all of the markets of the world, we are able to realize greater returns on each picture. There is a corresponding increase in the returns to the producer encouraging him to better the quality of his pictures.

"It is our idea to have the name of Pathe associated with quality productions only. In other words, when a picture is released under the trademark of Pathe, we want the exhibitor to know it is a good picture.

"Pathe is primarily a distributing organization with a world-wide system of exchanges that keeps us in constant touch with motion picture theatres of every civilized country of the globe. We are in many ways like a book publisher who handles the works of the greatest authors finding the greatest market for their output and realizing for them the greatest returns. Instead of books, we publish films. These films like books are translated into all the languages of the civilized world.

"Charles Pathe was the first to realize the opportunities of world-wide distribution. Under his policy, the cost of the negative is divided among the exhibitors of all countries instead of being charged, through high rentals, against a proportionately few of those who show the picture. Wherever there is a motion picture theatre, a Pathe representative can be found. Pathe has agents in every important motion picture centre of the world. In the United States we have thirty exchanges. We are well organized in Canada and Mexico. Our South American activities are centred in Venezuela, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Brazil, Argentine, Uruguay and Paraguay.

"Steadily, this world-wide distributing organization has been perfected, and now Pathe is organized in Russia, Algeria, South African Republic, West Indies, Australia, New Zealand, Tasmania and the adjoining islands in the Pacific, Spain, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Bombay, Singapore, Manila, Batavia, Shanghai, Hongkong and Japan. France is the headquarters of the Pathe organization.

"This organization under one central control, enables Pathe to throw open the markets of the entire world to the producers of good pictures."

W. A. Brady Addresses New York Rotary

One of the most enthusiastic meetings ever held in the interest of "Motion Pictures as an Advertising Medium" was the monthly meetings of the Rotary Club of New York, held in the ball room of the Hotel McAlpin, Thursday evening, March 14. William A. Brady, president of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, speaking to over seven hundred members representing the various businesses of the metropolis, gave an interesting resume of the motion picture industry from the viewpoint of "just a plain, ordinary showman."

Mr. Brady was introduced by T. N. Miranda, who for several years has been his right-hand man in the motion picture industry, and is one of the big men in Rotary. Other speakers were Hy Mayer, Rufus Steele, author of "Eagle's Wings"; "Sunny Jim" Gooding, Jack W. Speare and Raymond Schindler.

A Hooverized dinner was served and at the close $130 was contributed toward the purchase of Smileage Books for the boys in the camps.

New Corporations

FOLLOWING is a list of new companies within the industry which have been incorporated, according to the records of the Corporation Trust Company of Jersey City, for the week ending March 16:

NEW YORK

OLYMPIC THEATRE OPERATING CORPORATION, Buffalo. To operate theatre or motion picture house. Capital, $75,000. Incorporators, Morris Slotkin, Hobert L. Himes, Mathew W. Weimar.

PERSONAL MOTION PICTURE CORPORATION, Manhattan. Motion pictures. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators, Lodewick Vroom, W. Herbert Adams, Geo. J. Yestner.

TRANS-RUSSIAN FILM CORPORATION, Yonkers. Motion pictures and general amusement business. Capital, $10,000. Incorporators, Samuel Krellberg, Louis Krellberg, Harry G. Kosch.

S. R. S. EXHIBITORS, INC., Manhattan. Motion pictures. Capital, $5,000. Incorporators, Isaac Marks, Anna Yarmis, Freda Freeman.

MOVIE FILM EXCHANGE, INC., Manhattan. Motion pictures. Capital, $5,000. Incorporators, Adolph Frank, Bertha Frank, David Eisenstein.

Jules Mastbaum Succeeds to Late Brother's Office

Jules E. Mastbaum, brother of the late Stanley V. Mastbaum, has been chosen president and managing director of the Stanley companies and as such will manage the various enterprises under their control.

Although it is not generally known, Jules E. Mastbaum was a pioneer motion picture man of Philadelphia. He was a partner of Harry Davis, of Pittsburgh, when the latter opened the first picture in Philadelphia, at the corner of Eighth and Market streets. Their next venture was at Ninth and Market and both houses flourished. Later they acquired the property on Chestnut between Twelfth and Thirteenth and converted the building into what was then one of the finest picture houses in the city. Soon afterward Jules Mastbaum built the Bijou Dream, Princess and Victoria and with Stanley Mastbaum and Al Boyd the Regent. He was also interested in the Globe, the Stanley and the theatre at 333 Market street.

He built the Stanley theatre in New York City and is interested in numerous theatres, other than those mentioned, in Philadelphia. He is president of the Central Market Street Amusement Company, president and general manager of the Stanley Company and is interested in the Cross Keys, Ruby, and Savoy theatres. He is also one of the owners of the beautiful Garden Pier at Atlantic City.

It was his scheme that was responsible for the creation of the Stanley Booking Company, an institution that has been responsible for a number of important innovatioins in the picture field in Philadelphia.

Sterling Gets Tucker's "Hypocrites"

Arthur F. Beck, president of Sterling Pictures Corporation, announces that Sterling has purchased the rights to George Loane Tucker's production, "Hypocrites," featuring Elizabeth Risdon. Miss Risdon will be remembered for her work in Mr. Tucker's productions, "The Manx-Man" and "Mother."

Mr. Beck said in making announcement: "During my twelve years' experience in the motion picture business I have never seen a year go by that did not bring wails of woe from people in the business that the industry is in a chaotic condition. I am thoroughly familiar with the situation throughout the entire United States at the present time, and I can safely state that the independent exchange man who has conducted his dealings along conservative lines is in very excellent spirits. Our latest acquisitions, the Chas. H. France production, "The Natural Law," and the George Loane Tucker feature, "The Hypocrites," have aroused numerous inquiries from every section of the country. The independent man wants good film, and in fact, the supply is not equal to the demand. The stumbling block to his business lies in the excessive demands of those seeking distribution, and the lack of good film at fair and equitable prices."

ADDING MORE DAYLIGHT

THE Daylight Saving bill shows signs of becoming a reality.

Without a roll call, March 16, the Senate concurred in the amendments made by the House of Representatives March 15. The House bill extended the period of daylight saving to seven months each year. The measure now goes to President Wilson for his approval.

Under the provision of the bill, as it will become a law, the clocks of the country will be set forward an hour, beginning at 2 A. M. March 31 and ending October 27.

On April 1 the clocks of the United States will be an hour ahead of sun time as standardized now.. The people accustomed to start to the theatre at 8 P. M., will find themselves starting at the same hour, as indicated by the clock, but actually they will be an hour ahead by the present standardized time.

Just what effect this will have on the theatres of the country, especially the motion picture theatres, remains to be seen.

C. M. Simmons, Officer of New Film Firm, Dies

C. M. Simmons, affectionately known as "Mel" to thousands of exhibitors throughout the country, died of pneumonia in Dayton, Ohio, March 19. Before leaving his office in New York, where he was acting in the capacity of general manger of State-Rights Exhibitors, Inc., he had been suffering for several days from a severe cold. His tour in exploitation of "Carmen of the Klondike" was brought to a sudden halt at Dayton, pneumonia having developed, and after a brief illness he passed away.

Mr. Simmons entered the amusement field in 1906 and after managing several of the largest theatres in the Middle West and on the Pacific Coast he went into the exchange business. At the forming of the General Film Company he became manager of the Seattle exchange and was later made sales manager, controlling all the exchanges on the Coast. Later he had been associated with Electric, Triangle, Goldwyn and Artcraft.

Mike and Ike, the Twins, Rehearsing

Harry Groosman announces the first of the series of Rube Goldberg's animated cartoons, featuring the famous twins, Ike and Mike (They Look Alike), whose comedy sketches are now appearing, daily, in the columns of the New York Evening Mail and the Sunday editions of the Hearst papers. The animated comedies will be presented in one reel and will be released each week.

Censorship Rife in Portland

Latest Move in Oregon Metropolis Affects Billboard Advertising—"Get a Fig Leaf and Go" Arouses Police Chief's Ire

PORTLAND, ORE., is suffering from a revisitation of censorship oppression, the latest move affecting billboard advertising.

Last week Manager E. J. Myrick of the Liberty theatre was ordered by Chief of Police Johnson to obliterate a catch-line slogan, "Get a Fig Leaf and Go," from the twenty-four-sheets advertising the coming of Billie Burke in "Eve's Daughter." His Chiefship asserted that his office had been deluged with indignant demands that the obscene phrase be removed. Myrick and Ralph Ruffner, the latter the publicity expert responsible for the "offense against public decency," were haled to the city hall and there instructed to pay more attention to aforementioned "public decency."

This new stunt of the authorities caused considerable hilarity along film row, and extracted many a grin from the public. As for Ruffner, who, on the trail of a laugh-getter, as well as a line to attract attention to the picture, framed the words to run with the Liberty slogan "Go," scoffed at the matter.

"Can you beat it?" was his characteristic comment. "There's no more connection between the fig leaf and the picture than between the fig leaf and the Civil War and the people who see obscenity in it should have a good mental bath for they're certainly unclean." While Chief Johnson and one of his men were busy with Myrick and Ruffner, incidentally ordering Myrick to remove a photo of Margery Wilson, which displays a pair of ankles, plus, from the front of the Liberty, Mrs. E. C. Colwell, secretary of the censorship board, was making a "pinch" at the Majestic theatre. She asserted that certain eliminations ordered from the Sunshine Comedy, "Her Husband's Wife," had not been made and had a policeman carry the picture to the police station. The trial of J. J. Parker, manager of the theatre, will be held within a few days.

"Much ado about nothing," was the comment of Abraham Nelson, of the Majestic Amusement Company, anent the affair. "The viewer ordered certain eliminations and House Manager Green followed instructions to the best of his ability."

Mayor Baker apparently is making a political move for popularity these days. He has gone after the pool rooms, punch boards, motorists, and is now devoting attention to his friends, the amusement folk.

At a censor board meeting recently Mrs. Colwell, who had assumed the berth of chairman of the board in the absence of J. Fred Larson, was shifted suddenly back to her secretarial office after a tilt with Gus Metzger, head of the Film Supply Company of Oregon, and one of the members of the board. Mrs. Colwell is said to have come in for much criticism lately because of her activity along lines apart from her clerical duties as secretary.

While Portland has been thus agitated, Postmaster Moses, down at Corvallis, where the Oregon Agricultural College takes care of many hundred students, is said to have made the remarkable discovery that "Arms and the Girl," the Billie Burke picture, was pro-German. He failed to impress the censors with his ideas, however, and after C. M. Hill, Progressive Motion Picture Manager, had prepared for a trip to the storm center, news came that the picture would be exhibited as scheduled.

Portland viewers of pictures for the censor board are complaining that they do not get the courteous treatment they are entitled to from film exhibitors and exchange men. They are nearly all women. It also is said that several viewers object to a roll of carpets in the basement of the Columbia theatre, where pictures are shown for them, mistaking it for the janitor's bed.

Four Great Stars Will Tour for Liberty Loan

Early in April, four of the greatest stars of filmdom, engaged in production on the West coast, will leave for various parts of the country to aid the committees of the several states in the sale of Liberty Loan Bonds of the third issue. William S. Hart, accompanied by Sam Roark as director of his trip, will tour the West coast; Mary Pickford with Al. Cohn, will visit New England cities; Charles Chaplin, and Chaplin's secretary, Tom Harrington, and Publicity Director Carlyle Robinson, will visit important points in Southern states, and Douglas Fairbanks with an organization composed of his brother John as business manager, Kenneth McGaffey and Bennie Ziedman, will tour the Middle West.

All film stars plan to be absent from three to four weeks, and production work has been so arranged that no releases will be delayed because of their absence on this patriotic mission. The services of the players were requisitioned by the treasury department at Washington.

"For Husbands Only" Shown on Coast

The Lois Weber Production for Jewel release, "For Husbands Only," was given a preview Friday evening, March 8, after the regular program at Tally's Broadway theatre. This subject, which has Mildred Harris as star; Louis Cody, leading man, is spoken of by many who witnessed the preview, as one of the best Miss Weber has made. There were more than 200 present at the showing, among them all of the prominent exhibitors of Los Angeles, many from the producing colony, and a number of out of town exhibitors, including Eugene Levy of Portland.

Push Bill for Sunday Option

Allied Committee's Conference at Albany Shows Progress—Sub-Committees Are Appointed

THE ALLIED COMMITTEE of the Motion Picture Industry made progress last week in its fight to make the Motion Picture Option Bill a law. The bill amends the State penal laws, permitting the exhibition of motion pictures on Sunday after two o'clock, except where the governing body of the community may later adopt an ordinance forbidding such exhibitions.

A meeting was held at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany on Thursday, March 14, attended by some forty representatives. John Manheimer, chairman of the allied committee of the state, which is pushing the campaign for the amendment, presided. Highly optimistic reports were received upon the work already accomplished in moulding public opinion of the state behind the proposed bill. Frederick H. Elliott, executive secretary of the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry and secretary of the allied committee, presented a detailed account of the work accomplished during the week past from the New York and Albany headquarters.

It was decided to make the divisions of the state according to the fifty-one senatorial districts the basis of the campaign and to appoint an exhibitor-captain for each district to direct the work on the amendment. Each exhibitor-captain in turn will appoint three other exhibitors of his section who will look after the assemblyman divisions of the senatorial district.

It was further decided to call a joint meeting of the exhibitor-captains and the members of the Allied Committee at the Hotel Ten Eyck in Albany, Tuesday afternoon, March 19, at 3 o'clock, at which time the state-wide work will be reviewed and further plans made.

It is predicted that the Motion Picture Option Bill will be entered in the Senate by Senator Alfred J. Gilchrist of Brooklyn and in the lower house by Assemblyman George Blakely of Yonkers.

J. Robert Rubin, secretary of the Metro Pictures Corporation, and Arthur S. Friend, treasurer of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, were present and made addresses. Max Spiegel, treasurer of the allied committee and secretary of the Mitchel H. Mark Realty Corporation, controlling the Strand chain of theatres in the state, also spoke.

The officers of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of New York were present, including Sydney S. Cohen of New York, president; Samuel Suckno of Albany, first vice-president; Walter A. Zeisor of Schenectady, second vice-president; Rudolph Sanders of Brooklyn, third vice-president; L. A. Bouttner of Cohoes, fourth vice-president; John Wittman of the Bronx, treasurer; and Sam Berman of New York, secretary. Others at the session were William Brandt, of the New Albany heatre, Brooklyn; Benjamin Apple, of the King, Troy; Louis L. Levine of Brooklyn; Henry Cole, of the Royal, the Bronx; John L. Mynerse, of the Broadway, Schenectady; George Roberts, of the Hudson, Albany; Frank X. Shay, of the Pearl, Schenectady; Morris S. Silverman, of the Happy Hour, Schenectady; Frank N. Barhydt of Troy; Walter M. Powers, of the Colonial, Albany; Charles McCarthy, of the New, Hoosic Falls; F. Frayne, of the Palace, Schenectady; F. E. Menserch, of the New Albany, Schenectady; John J. Walker, of the Lincoln, Schenectady; Allan Beckett, of the Lyric, Saratoga Springs; Charles O'Reilly, of the 68th Street Playhouse, New York; W. H. Gray, of the Rialto, Schenectady; William Fait, Jr., of the Avon, Utica; W. H. Linton, of the Hippodrome, of Little Falls, and of the Richmond, Herkimer; Fred Elliott, of the Clinton Square Theatre, Albany. John Manheimer presided.

The exhibitor-captains named for the 51 Senatorial districts follow: 1, Mrs. Jennie Reitmeyer; 2, William Bigall; 3, Rudolph Sanders; 4, William Brandt; 5, 6, William Hilkemeyer; 8, Sam Burman; 9, Louis L. Levine; 10, Samuel Lesselbaum; 11, David Weinstock; 12, Charles Steiner; 13, A. Fanchi; 14, John Manheimer; 15, Max Spiegel; 16, 17, Chas. L. O'Reilly; 18, A. J. Wolff; 19, Sydney S. Cohen; 20, Sidney Ascher; 21, John Wittman; 22, Henry Cole; 23, Chas. Moses; 24, B. L. Feinblatt; 25, George Cohen, Newburgh; 26, Frederick H. Elliott; 27, Sidney A. Huffman, Saugerties; 28, Samuel Suckno; 29, Frank Barheit; 30, Allan Beckett; 31, W. A. Zeiser and Chas. G. McDonald; 32, Ben Young, Ilion; 33, Lou Bittner; 34, A. S. Hardy, Malone; 35, Fred Gilroy, Ogdensburg; 36, W. H. Linton and Chas. Fait, Jr.; 37, ———; 38, Emmett Cornell; 39, David Cohen; 40, Edward Morgan, Morgan Theatre, Auburn; 41, William Dillon, Strand Theatre, Ithaca; 42, 43, 45, 46, W. C. Hubbard, Colonial Theatre, Rochester; 44, Arthur Smith, Hornell; 47, Chas. Hayman; 48, 49, 50,. H. B. Franklin; 51, Woods and Peterson.

Wolfberg Buys Two Clune Features

Harris P. Wolfberg of the Harris P. Wolfberg Attractions of Pittsburgh, has bought, through the Arrow Film Corporation, the western Pennsylvania and West Virginia rights to W. H. Clune's big feature productions, "The Eyes of the World" and "Ramona."

The two Clune productions have been meeting with an unusual amount of success throughout this country and Canada, according to officials of the Arrow organization.

"I have been much gratified," said W. E. Shallenberger, "at the remarkable business 'The Eyes of the World' and 'Ramona' have been doing. From every section of the country where these pictures have been shown I have received the most optimistic and favorable reports. Distributors tell me that the rebooking averages on both of them are unusually high and that the reason for this is the strong popular appeal the stories have for every type of audience coupled with the general excellence of production. In many states where the pictures are being exhibited as road show attractions with special musical, lighting and other effects performances have been repeated again and again because of the general demand to see them again."

Paralta Joins National Association

Paralta Plays is named as the latest addition to the National Association of the Motion Picture Industry, which has begun a big drive for new members. Carl Anderson, president of Paralta, has wired an acceptance from Los Angeles.

The association now includes eighty-two producing companies, representing 90 per cent of the manufacturers of the country. It is the purpose of the Association to bring the membership up to the 100 per cent mark within the next thirty days.

Hollywood May Restrict Studios to Zones

The dissension between the film companies whose studios are located in or near Hollywood, Cal., and the residents of the city and nearby towns promise to culminate in an ordinance by the City Council of Los Angeles which will segregate all film producing plants to certain fixed zones and place certain regulations upon the activities of the producer. The committee which has this matter in charge advises that an ordinance be enacted creating five general zones within which all moving picture plants hereafter erected shall be located and the creation of minor zones for the studios now in operation outside of the limits of the proposed main zones.

Of the other regulations the ones which are most important are those which recommend the places inside the studio lots to be devoted for the use of applicants for work in order to prevent crowds from gathering to the annoyance of persons in the neighborhood and another which states that any work involved in the use of explosives should be prohibited during certain hours of the night.

The Paralta studios are located in the third of the proposed zones.

Fox's Injunction Against Funkhouser Upheld

The United States Court of Appeals in Chicago, has unanimously upheld the decision in favor of William Fox for an injunction against Major Funkhouser the Chicago censor, in the case of "The Spy." The decision of the court in effect is that Major Funkhouser cannot interfere with this production. When he rejected "The Spy" Major Funkhouser declared "that the picture is too strong and makes the sweat stand out on the brow." Judge Altschuler, before whom the case was taken after the censor had barred the picture, promptly ruled that such an objection was not within the scope of censorship and granted an immediate permit for the showing of the film in its entirety.

The action of Major Funkhouser, in connection with his interference with this picture, caused nation wide comment and leading editorial writers in the big cities censured Major Funkhouser for his stand.

New Exchange Opens in Dallas

The Specialty Film Company, a new exchange for the Texas and Arkansas territory, opened for business in Dallas a few days ago. W. G. Underwood, formerly manager of Pathe's Dallas branch, and L. C. Baxley are associate partners in the new enterprise. The company is offering Hart features which it will distribute for W. H. Productions. It will also handle a number of special features and a regular once a week service of Keystone comedy reissues.

A. Jules Benedic, former Bluebird manager at New Orleans and until last week road man for Paralta, has been installed as office manager for the new company.

"Opportunities in Danish Capital

Ralph J. Kelley, attaché, American legation, Copenhagen, Denmark, writes the Motion Picture News an interesting statement concerning picture conditions, in the Danish country. Mr. Kelley said:

"Occasionally an American production is shown in the Danish capital but for the most part, the pictures are of Italian and English production. The quality of production runs below the American product and the stories enacted are a bit foreign to an American. One of the American-made films which ran recently in Copenhagen, for an extended run, turned away the crowds nightly during its stay at Copenhagen's largest theatre. It was "Carmen," with Geraldine Farrar in the featured role, produced by Famous Players-Lasky under the direction of Cecil B. De Mille.

Mr. Kelley stated in his communication that there are innumerable opportunities for "live wires" in this country and plenty of room for more theatres. "The business awaits the one who will take the chance," he stated.

Quimby Reports Business Booming in West

F. C. Quimby, sales manager of Pathe Exchange, Inc., has returned from a trip through the West in the course of which he made a survey of exhibitor and exchange conditions which has given him optimism and confidence as to the future of all elements in the business which are building solidly on a firm foundation.

Not only did "The House of Hate" open on March 10 to the biggest advance collections of any serial but the past week was the biggest in the entire history of Pathe Exchange, according to an official statement from Pathe, to which the sales manager pointed as an indication of what to expect under the new administration of Paul Brunet as vice-president and general manager.

"It is now known that while Mr. Brunet assumed this office only a short time ago, his plans have been so carefully worked out that results are already showing themselves," Mr. Quimby said.

Purdy Returns to Salt Lake City

L. D. Purdy, who was formerly manager of the General Exchange at Salt Lake City, has returned to that post to open the new branch which will handle Falcon Features, two and four-reel O. Henry stories, Chaplin re-issues, George Ade fables and the W. W. Hodkinson-Paralta pictures. Mr. Purdy is particularly well known in the Salt Lake field, and scarcely before he had the new exchange opened on Exchange Place, he had made a year's contract for Paralta's first run with Ed. Mehsy, manager of the Rialto theatre at Salt Lake. Purdy was located in Oakland as an exhibitor up until two years ago. He then entered the state rights exchange field at Denver, and a year later opened the Salt Lake branch for the General.

Steger with International Film

Becomes Producing Director of International Film Corporation—Contract Extends for Period of Years—Prominent Producer

JULIUS STEGER, actor-producer, formerly a prominent figure on the operatic stage and during the past year or more, an associate of Joseph M. Schenck in the production of feature pictures, through an agreement entered into between him and C. F. Zittel, vice-president and general manager, International Film Corporation, acting on behalf of William Randolph Hearst, head of the International, becomes producing director of that company, the contract to become effective, the first of April.

Under the terms of the contract, Mr. Steger will have exclusive supervision of all productions released by International, including the selection of stars and principals and stories to the point of completion of each picture ready for exhibition. Incidental to Mr. Steger's contracting with the International, to become its producing head, this company will exploit a series of feature productions in which Anna Case, Metropolitan Grand Opera singer, will be featured and directed under the personal supervision of Mr. Steger. The exploitation of Miss Case's pictures, involves a separate agreement between International, Mr. Steger and his associate, Joseph M. Schenck. The contract insuring Mr. Steger's services as producing director of International extends over a period of five years.

Mr. Steger, because of his knowledge of every phase of theatricals and amusements, is admirably fitted for the position he has assumed. For many years he was prominent on the legitimate stage as an actor and singer and later as one of the most successful of headliners in high-class vaudeville. He is thoroughly acquainted with every phase of the profession, which knowledge is invaluable to one assuming the responsibilities of producing director for the screen. He knows what the one working before the camera should do and should feel and he can take the initiative and command. He is a teacher as well as an exponent of all things dramatic.

He has seen the photoplay advance from the one-reeler to the multiple-reel feature and has watched the progress made, until now, when the motion picture business is one of the big businesses of the United States. His ability as an actor-director is reflected in the "The Fifth Commandant," "The Master of the House," "The Stolen Triumph" and "The Blindness of Virtue," in all four of which he was starred and which he directed. "The Libertine," with John Mason; "The Prima Donna's Husband," with Holbrook Blinn; "The Law of Compensation," with Norma Talmadge, are also Mr. Steger's creations.

Last summer, Mr. Steger announced that he had engaged Anna Case, concert singer and prima donna of the Metropolitan Opera House. Miss Case at that time was engaged for an extended concert tour. Her contract for this work will have expired within the next few weeks. After which, Mr. Steger will commence her first production for the screen. A story has been prepared especially for her, its theme dealing with the adventures of an American girl who becomes a famed singer.

Julius Steger

His last production for the screen was "Just a Woman," featuring Charlotte Walker.

In commenting upon his acceptance of the position, Mr. Steger said:

"I have always tried to know life and to know human nature, and then to give to the public that part of life and human nature which touches their better selves, appeals to their finer natures and higher aspirations.

"I am encouraged by the assurances of exhibitors from all parts of the country, that photoplays such as I have produced in the past, based upon clean but none the less gripping stories of everyday life, acted with the irresistible charm of naturalness and sincerity, have always been appreciated by their audiences. I shall strive to give to exhibitors just that kind of a picture through the International Film Service, Inc.

"In this endeavor, I am happy to say, I have the fully support and co-operation of the general manager of the International, C. F. Zittel, who is the personification of 'a live wire.'"

C. F. Zittel, vice-president and general manager of the International, who has known Mr. Steger for many years, having watched his work on the dramatic stage during the time that he, Mr. Zittel, was dramatic critic for the New York American, said:

"I have watched Mr. Steger's work both off and on the stage. When he was headlining in vaudeville, I had occasion to see him in his biggest successes. Mr. Steger is an artist. During the past years, he has given his attention to creative work for the screen and the productions he has created speak for themselves. Without exception, his work has gone over big. The International is going to broaden out in production line and Mr. Steger is the right man at the production helm. He knows the business thoroughly. I am pleased to announce his association with the International Film Corporation, as production director."

In and Out of Town

William Steiner, Jester Comedy Company, returned to New York last week after a flying trip through Syracuse, Buffalo, Cleveland, Detroit, Chicago and St. Louis, in the interest of the Jester Comedies.

M. E. Hoffman, Foursquare Pictures, acompanied by Mrs. Hoffman and little son, is scheduled to arrive in Kansas City, Mo., and Denver this week. Mr. Hoffman, who will go to the Coast, stopping off at the principal cities en route, reports favorably of his trip to the various Foursquare exchanges.

Herbert Lubin, General Enterprises, Inc., returned to New York last week from Atlantic City, called here by the death of a relative. Arthur Sawyer, Mr. Lubin's associate, will continue the tour of inspection arranged for both men.

Chandos Brenon, brother of Herbert Brenon, producer, paid a hurried visit to New York from Montreal, last week, to consult with officials of the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated in regard to marketing productions in Canada. Mr. Brenon represented his brother Herbert in the committee meeting.

H. B. Varner, prominent theatre owner of South Carolina, arrived in New York last week. Mr. Varner expects to be in the city for several days.

U. One, prominent film buyer of Tokio and London, who has been in New York for some months, left last week for Japan where he expects to be for several months. All communications should be sent in care of E. Matteson, 1007 Times Building, New York.

W. A. S. Douglas, general manager, Diando Film Corporation, which company produces the Baby Marie Osborne pictures, released on the Pathe program, left Sunday for Los Angeles. Mr. Douglas had been in New York for several days in the interest of his company.

Harold Lloyd, comedian, who has been in New York for several days, left Sunday for Los Angeles. Mr. Lloyd came to confer with officials of Pathe Exchange, Inc., through which company his comedies are released.

Chester Coren, president, Bay State Film Company, Boston, arrived in New York last week. Mr. Coren will look at the current productions offered on the independent market.

K. M. Leach, Regina, Saskatchewan, Canada, who has large theatre interests in western Canada, arrived in New York last week. He is accompanied by Mrs. Leach and expects to be in the city for a week or more. He is stopping at Hotel Claridge. Mr. Leach owns the Regent and Princess theatres, Calgary, Ottawa; Rose theatre, Regina, Saskatchewan, and the Eagle and Lyric theatres, Swift Current, Saskatchewan.

Nat N. Spitzer, vice-president and sales manager, King-Bee Films Corporation, left New York last week for Hollywood, Cal. He will make stops at the various exchanges handling Billy West comedies en route. He and Louis Burnstein, president of the company, will return to New York together.

W. F. Harris, theatre owner of Hopewell, Virginia, was in New York last week. Mr. Harris left Saturday. He stopped at Hotel McAlpin.

Charles F. Schwerin, prominent exchangeman, Pittsburgh, is in New York on business.

James Quirk, editor Photoplay Magazine, arrived in New York from Chicago last week. Mr. Quirk is in the city in the interest of his publication.

Texas Guinan, Triangle star, arrived in New York from the Coast last week. She was the guest of honor at the special St. Patrick's celebration, held atop Reisenweber's, Sunday night.

Motion Picture Experts Needed in France

A call to men in the motion picture industry who desire to do their share toward winning the war, but are not within the age limits from which the Government is selecting the draft armies, was issued last week by the National War Work Council of the Young Men's Christian Association. The special need is for men who are expert operators, film cutters and repair men.

Applications should be made to A. G. Knebel, executive secretary of the War Personnel Board of the Y. M. C. A. Only men of established character will be accepted, according to Dr. John R. Mott, who says: "Above all, they should be men who go with the dominant desire and purpose to render the maximum of service, and should believe with all their souls in the winning of the war.

Two More Stars in Lasky Service Flag

Two new stars have now been added to the Lasky service flag with the leaving of Haldale Garner and William Rose for military service. Rose, who has joined the photographic division of the army, will go to Columbia University for preliminary training before going to France. Garner, who has been connected with the Lasky laboratory department has enlisted in the aviation corps, and will report at San Francisco.

General's Exchange Co-operation Plan a Success

When a number of months ago General Film Company launched its campaign to "make the world safe for the exhibitor," its exchange facilities were thrown open to motion picture producers at large as the first step in conservation of costs. It was a radical step, but it promised immediate fruit in the way of reducing service expenses which had brought about burdensome conditions in the industry. General Film Company is just out with a statement declaring that promise to have been perfectly realized.

"General Film's policy of furnishing the maximum of service at a minimum of expense has been followed with a period of progress and prosperity which has never been equaled in the later history of the company," said a General Film official. "We are today handling successfully a greater variety of product than any other organization and constantly adding to our long list of admirable releases.

"The immediate and tremendously successful results obtained at General Film's thirty exchanges by 'Hodkinson Service' in distributing the Paralta Plays did more than any one thing to convince the industry of the resourcefulness and efficiency of the company's clearing house for product."

Plans Perfected for Pictures at Camps

At a conference between Malcolm L. McBride, of the Federal Commission on Training Camp Activities, and P. A. Powers, chairman of the War Camp Motion Picture Committee, held in New York on Wednesday, March 13, it was decided that a part of the time of the Liberty theatres in the training camps should be set aside for motion picture entertainments at which the latest films should be shown. It is not intended that these entertainments shall conflict in any way with the exhibitions of the same pictures in the communities outside the camps, as they will not be exhibited in the Liberty theatres until after the first runs in the neighboring towns. Special rates are to be made for these camp shows. It is expected that the plan will be in operation within a week.

Another Stage Hit for Constance Talmadge

Select Pictures has added another to its growing list of screen adaptations of stage successes. The latest is "A Pair of Silk Stockings," in which Constance Talmadge will be starred by Lewis J. Selznick. This comedy by Cyril Harcourt was presented in New York by Winthrop Ames at his Little theatre, after it had scored a hit in London. The story treats of the humorous mixup which arises when both parties to a sensational divorce are invited to a week-end house party. Work on the scenario is proceeding rapidly and the actual filming of the comedy will probably follow that of "Good Night, Paul," on which Miss Talmadge is now engaged at Hollywood, Cal.

Lloyd Confers with Pathe on Plans

Harold Lloyd, star of the one-reel comedies produced by the Rolin Film Company, and released by Pathe, paid a short visit to New York recently, which terminated on Sunday last, when he returned to Los Angeles to resume work. Business pertaining to future pictures brought Mr. Lloyd East. Consultations with Paul Brunet, the new head of the Pathe company, and various other executives of the organization, occupied the greater part of his time. He had not been in New York since he was a boy fourteen years of age.

On Friday the Pathe publicity department tendered him a formal luncheon, to which members of the trade press were invited, after which his latest picture, "It's a Wild Life," was shown. This concerns the star's adventures in a cabaret and is considered one of the best he has appeared in. Those present at the lunch besides Mr. Lloyd were W. A. S. Douglas, manager of the Diando Film Corporation, producers of the Baby Marie Osborne features; P. A. Parsons, Tarleton Winchester, James L. Hoff, S. R. Tupper, Edward Weitzel, Robert McElravey, C. W. Brennan and Peter Milne.

Mr. Lloyd, on his return to the Rolin studio on the west coast, is to resume production of the one-reel comedies which have proven so successful.

F.I.L.M. Club to Discuss Waste

At the monthly meeting of the F. I. L. M. Club of New York, at Healy's, Wednesday, March 20, the topic of the evening, "Is the Waste in the Film Industry Due to the Producer, Distributor or Exhibitor?"

Messrs. P. A. Powers, treasurer of the Universal Film Company, William A. Johnston, president and editor of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS; Sidney A. Cohen, president of the Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of the State of New York, and Harry A. Reichenbach, specialist of motion picture publicity, are the ones who have consented to give the benefit of their opinions to those present.

That the F. I. L. M. Club is an aid to the exhibitor and the distributor, is exemplified in the fact that out of $41,741.94 worth of claims entered $33,334.43 have been settled to the satisfaction of either exhibitor or exchange.

Niles Welch Entertains Boys at Upton

Niles Welch, who is engaged at the Yonkers Standard Studio in the filming of "Reclaimed," in which he appears opposite Mabel Julienne Scott, made a trip to Camp Upton last week where he personally entertained the soldiers who looked at Metro's "Her Boy" in which he plays the title part. Mr. Welch was accompanied to the camp by Dell Boone (Mrs. Welch), who helped him entertain the boys with jokes, songs, piano-playing and stories of their filming experiences at Camp Joseph E. Johnston last year.

Gaumont on State-Rights

Big Film Company Joins Ranks of Independents and Beginning March 26 Will Issue a Twice-a-Week News Service

AFTER giving the matter consideration for the past year, the Gaumont Company states that in future it will release its productions through independent exchanges. The announcement that this motion picture company, which has more than fifty branches throughout the world, will hereafter sell its output in the open market should prove interesting news to state right buyers.

As soon as it was learned that the news service of the Gaumont Company, with the value of its world-wide affiliations, was to be withdrawn from program booking and released semi-weekly, letters and telegrams from independent exchanges demanding service began to pour into the Flushing office, Gaumont officials state.

Beginning March 26, the Gaumont news service will be released twice a week, the Gaumont News every Tuesday, and the Gaumont Graphic every Friday. The news reels will be edited by Pell Mitchell, who made the Gaumont-Mutual Weekly so successful. Mr. Mitchell is an old newspaper man who has surrounded himself with a staff of cameramen who also served an apprenticeship on the daily papers, as he believes that to be the best training for gatherers of real live news. The entire staff of cameramen who have served the Gaumont Company for so many years in the United States and all over the world has been retained.

Independent buyers are awaiting a future announcement of other Gaumont productions.

Vitagraph Wins Court Final

"Within the Law" May Be Shown in Windy City After Months of Litigation—Is Important Decision of the Kind

WALTER W. IRWIN, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, this week announced the final victory of the company in the legal controversy connected with the showing of "Within the Law" in Chicago.

Through this Vitagraph believes the entire industry has made a distinct and important gain through the decision which permits the unrestricted showing of Vitagraph's drama. The decision, handed down by the Appellate Court in Chicago last Tuesday is said by Vitagraph to be the most important of the kind ever rendered in this or any other country, and probably will stand for all time as a precedent in litigation affecting the exhibition of motion pictures. The direct result of the decision is that "Within the Law" may be exhibited in Chicago without fear of police interference, although for several months past the leading theatres of the Windy City have exhibited the feature under protection of an injunction obtained by Vitagraph.

The victory of Vitagraph comes at the end of a contest which has lasted almost a year, the controversy having started when the company was refused a permit to exhibit "Within the Law" in Chicago last May. At that time the Chicago censor board refused to issue the permit until certain cuts were made in the picture, and these, in the judgment of Mr. Irwin, were so radical that the production would have been weakened almost to the point of worthlessness.

Mr. Irwin personally took charge of the situation and made several trips to Chicago in an effort to show the police authorities that in attempting to eliminate several of the most important features of the picture they were not only spoiling the picture as an entertainment, but also were denying the public the right to see the stage play reproduced in the same form which had made it the most sensational moneymaker the stage has ever known. Failing in his efforts to make the authorities see the logic of his contention, Mr. Irwin then agreed to let the leading citizens of Chicago sit as a jury on the picture, and a special showing of "Within the Law" was held in the Studebaker theatre, Chicago.

The audience, which numbered more than 1,000 persons, included judges of the state and Federal courts in Chicago, officials of the Chicago Police Department, various other city officials, members of the Women's City Club, Women's Trade Union League, the faculty of the Chicago University and Northwestern University, social workers, church functionaries, Salvation Army, Volunteers of America, settlement workers, Parole Law Advocates, the leading clubs of Chicago, editors of Chicago newspapers and others.

Local News Film Service in Detroit

The Detroit Free Press has made arrangements with the Metropolitan Co. of Detroit to produce in various Detroit and Michigan theatres, starting Sunday, March 17, a motion picture film which is called "Detroit Free Press Current Events," depicting local and national happenings and events of interest to the public, somewhat along the line of the various weeklies now in circulation.

"Business Unusually Good"

Royce Shallenberger who recently left New York to join forces with C. C. Hite in the distribution of pictures in the Middle West, has bought the Michigan rights to the Edward Warren production, "Souls Redeemed," and reports business unusually good. Mr. Shallenberger is the youngest brother of W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow Film Corporation.

Shallenberger Takes Management

Arrow Head Takes Active Management of Thanhouser—Hints Independent Productions— Officers Elected

AT a recent meeting of the officials of the Thanhouser Film Corporation the following officers were elected: Crawford Livingston, president; Wilbert Shallenberger, vice-president; A. E. Jones, secretary, and W. E. Shallenberger, treasurer. Felix Kahn, Crawford Livingston, Wilbert Shallenberger, A. E. Jones, Gerald Livingston, W. R. Shallenberger and Jessie Bishop compose the Board of Directors.

Following the meeting it was announced that W. E. Shallenberger, who is also president of the Arrow Film Corporation, would take over the active management of the studios at New Rochelle. At the present time the Clara Kimball Young Company is using the studios. None of the officials of the Thanhouser would state at this time who would use the studios following the departure of Clara Kimball Young Company for the West next month, but it is understood that W. E. Shallenberger will shortly begin filming some big state rights pictures there.

The Arrow Film organization recently greatly widened the scope of its activities in the distribution field and especially in South America and Europe. According to unofficial reports Mr. Shallenberger has contracted to produce a number of state rights features, the interiors of which will be made at the Thanhouser studios. It is intimated that Arrow will begin the manufacture of special pictures for export to South America and Europe.

The Thanhouser Film organization has not done any active picture making for some time. Edwin Thanhouser, who took such an active part in its affairs, recently resigned. Following the annual meeting the officials said that the corporation was in A1 financial condition. The Thanhouser studios are among the best equipped in the country.

For some time past rumors have been current that the Thanhouser studios were to be sold. One rumor had it that the United States Government had taken over the plant for manufacturing purposes, and there have been countless reports of various film organizations in the East buying the place. The latest of these was that the Clara Kimball Young organization would become the owner of the property. All of these rumors were denied by W. E. Shallenberger. While admitting that he had taken over the active management of the studios, Mr. Shallenberger said he could not make public at the present time his future plans.

Eduardo Gainsborg Speaks Optimistically

Eduardo C. Gainsborg, manager of the San Francisco exchange of the Foursquare Pictures, who was called to New York recently because of illness in his family, returned to the Coast last week. Before leaving Mr. Gainsborg had the following to say concerning present conditions in the industry:

"The motion picture public, at least in the extreme West, is beginning to be keenly discriminating. That is good for the industry because it puts upon producers and distributors a burden that will help them secure finer pictures and distribute them to the best possible advantage.

"The Coast has not suffered the recent slump as severely as some other sections, and before I took a train for New York there was every indication that by the first of March the revival would be in full swing. All organizations that have exceptional pictures are finding for them a ready market. Foursquare is getting its share, and I look for thoroughly satisfying results."

C. B. Price a Victim of a Surprise Party

The salesmen of the New York Triangle Exchange gave a surprise party in honor of C. B. Price, the sales manager, on Tuesday evening, March 12. Mr. Price was carried off to the Columbia theatre and then to a beefsteak dinner at the Campus, 104th street and Columbus avenue. Those present on Tuesday evening were A. F. Smith, O. F. Woody, R. D. Burdge, J. Vergroslich, H. Hummell, F. H. Price, E. Wells, S. Schussel, E. Roos and C. Miller.

Policy of Distribution Not Decided

Officials of My Four Years In Germany, Inc., whose picture, an adaptation from former Ambassador Gerard's book of the same name, is now running at the Knickerbocker theatre, announce that no decision has been reached as to the disposition of the picture after it leaves Broadway. The method of disposition will be announced later. The picture is drawing well.

Plan Trade Club of Southern Exhibitors

Plans are being made to organize a trade club with headquarters in Atlanta and it is their desire to make every exhibitor in the South a member, their object being to bring the exhibitors and exchanges closer together and for the betterment of conditions in general.

Fox to Re-issue "The Spy," Dustin Farnum Play

William Fox has announced a reissue of the Dustin Farnum picture, "The Spy," which was among the first of the anti-German propaganda films to expose Kaiserism in this country.

The recent decision of the U. S. Court of Appeals upholding William Fox's injunction against Major Funkhauser, the Chicago censor who attempted to bar "The Spy," not only brings the picture into the center of the screen again, but opens up a lot of interdicted territory where it has never been seen. Exhibitors from these sections were first to petition Mr. Fox for a reissue.

Pathe Officials Dine in Honor of Brunet

Paul Brunet was welcomed as vice-president and general manager of Pathe by officials of that organization at a dinner tendered him at Delmonico's Wednesday evening, March 13. The keynote of the occasion was optimism and confidence, and respect and friendship for the man in whose honor the affair was given. The entire board of directors was present with the exception of Paul Fuller, who was represented by Charles B. Samuels.

F. C. Quimby, sales manager of Pathe, acted as toastmaster and those who responded were Mr. Brunet, Ferdinand Zecca, who recently came to this country from the Paris organization and whose address was read by G. A. Smith; Harold Lloyd, E. C. Lynch, Charles B. Samuels, L. Ernest Ouimet, Louis J. Gasnier, W. A. S. Douglas, H. C. Hoagland and George B. Seitz.

Those present were: Paul Brunet, Ferdinand Zecca, E. C. Lynch, Charles B. Samuels, L. J. Gasnier, George B. Seitz, W. R. Baker, Arthur Rousseau, A. Werkmeister, G. L. Chanier, L. Ernest Ouimet, W. C. Smith, J. Humm, L. E. Franconi, G. Bardet, C. W. Allers, C. J. Fischer, F. R. Clarke, G. Smith, Frank Duffy, F. C. Quimby, Harold Lloyd, Tarleton Winchester, Jos. A. Dunn, Harry Lewis, Prince Paleologue, J. W. Kyle, Charles Van Arsdale, William Lord Wright, M. Ramirez, P. A. Parsons, H. C. Hoagland, C. Julian, Arthur Miller, A. Adatte, B. Millhauser and C. Cohen.

Business Now in Transitional Stage, Says Spoor

George K. Spoor, president of Essanay, says that the film business is now in a transitional stage and that manufacturers need only to adapt themselves to the new conditions.

"It is my belief that the successful pictures of the future will be produced more on the line of theatrical productions," says Mr. Spoor. "That is, the manufacturer will hunt for the story of exceptional merit, select capable players, not necessarily what are generally called stars, but first-class actors.

"Essanay is working on this plan. It has obtained the rights to several large productions and is now preparing them for release in the near future. The company will not attempt to adhere to a strict release date for program houses, except in its shorter subjects. Its features will be released from time to time as completed."

"Woman and the Law" Concludes Run at Lyric

"Woman and the Law," the William Fox production based on the De Saulles case, on March 16 concluded a fortnight run at the Lyric theatre, New York City. It is said that the run could profitably have been prolonged for two weeks more except for the fact that the house had been previously leased for an urgent war fund benefit which holds the board by Mr. Fox's courtesy.

What Kind of a Fellow Is—Hammons?

Being a Glance at the Real Human Side of the Big Men of the Picture Game Caught in Action

By William A. Johnston

WALKING down Broadway the other day we spied a slim young man standing tete-tete with the program board of Mr. Rothapfel's Rivoli theatre. He was teetering on his toes and jingling cash in his pocket; and evidently he was pleased with the program for he winked admiringly at it as he suddenly turned and wheeled around the corner, head up, whistling and smiling.

He walked briskly, we noticed, on the balls of his feet.

We mention this because we have a theory that you can size up a business man by his walk.

So, gentle reader, we introduce herewith a snappy young man who's always up on his toes.—

Mr. Hammons of the Educational Film Company of America.

Howdy!

Earl is his name—Earl B.—but he didn't select it and cannot be justly blamed.

Pleasant looking, isn't he?—cheerful and keen.

Looks like the kind of young man you'd like to talk business with. He wouldn't call often nor stay long. He wouldn't bore you, nor let you bore him. He'd come straight to the point—smilingly—and he'd exit smilingly whether you said yes or no; he'd walk briskly out on his toes and be going down in the elevator while you were still thinking it over.

This brisk young man has put over a successful film enterprise.

Which is why he's here—in this page.

Three years ago if you had asked any of the film-wise if an educational film concern would go, they'd have sneered. "Go get Russell Sage, or some other capitalist-philanthropist to back you."

Or: "Educationals? Why, they're only fillers. No, no. Put your money into features."

They told this to Hammons. Whereupon he smiled and said: "Well, I'll make features out of fillers."

And so he has.

What we like about him is that he didn't start in with a brass band; nor did he begin talking about educating the world's millions via the celluloid strip and get names and testimonials from university presidents, doctors of divinity, etc., etc., etc. He didn't even write pamphlets.

He had visions as every successful man has; but he didn't dream, nor speculate, nor float companies on exhibitors' capital.

He simply believed in the success of high-class pictures which would entertain so well that people would be educated incidentally—and not realize it.

And he didn't prophesy a market, nor wait for one. He took the one that was ready-made and waiting—though the film-wise couldn't see it—namely, the picture theatres themselves.

The market was there and he supplied it.

He prospered even with the handicap of the word "Educational" in his firm name. In fact, he has given the word a new meaning.

And he's prospered amazingly. If you heard the figure he's been offered for the business you'd say: "Holy Smoke!" Most feature companies would grab it.

One part of Hammons' vision was to see an "educational" feature on Broadway.

He said it would come to pass. It has been the concrete slogan of his up-hill fight.

And so it has.

Which brings us right back to where we started—with a slim young man standing right in front of the program board of the Rivoli theatre.

The program features one of his "educationals"—fillers once, but features now.

Hammons sneaks out of his office—a block away—and flirts with this program board every day. This is his recreation.

(Continued on page 1870)

"Canadian Outlook Bright"

M. H. Hoffman, Foursquare Pictures, Now on Canadian Tour, Says Business in Canada Most Encouraging

"THE Canadian market is assuming promising proportions," writes M. H. Hoffman, Foursquare Pictures, who is now in Canada visiting the Foursquare exchanges and talking it over with Canadian exhibitors. Pierre V. R. Key, of the Foursquare New York office, received a communication from Mr. Hoffman last week in which he says:

"The Canadian public is very like our own. Although not of our nationality, our friends across the border feel much as we do and like the things we like. I find this to be the case with pictures; and the American trend toward simplicity of story and perfection of casts and production is being shared by the Canadian people.

"Foursquare Pictures products have found a welcome in Canada because they represent these elements. Such features, for instance, as 'The Bar Sinister' and 'The Cast-Off' are what the Canadian and American picture-going populace desire. They want the human appeal, presented sensibly and as admirably as a fine producer can present it.

"But after the public's demand is satisfied there is the exhibitor to be taken care of. For some time there has been evident a tendency to insist on the booking of pictures in business like fashion; and thereafter, to provide a service that would assist the exhibitor to put his merchandise before the people in the most attractive manner possible. Canadian exhibitors are now very insistent upon this sort of thing. They are willing to pay the proper price for a fine picture, but they are tired of being held up for prices far beyond the true worth of a subject. In this they are again at one with their brother exhibitors in the States. Nor can the distributor expect to resell the exhibitor who hasn't had the utmost consideration in every respect.

"Business in Canada is beginning to show the most encouraging signs. Houses which have attractive pictures to offer and which have learned how to advertise their wares and properly show their pictures, find patronage a staunch quantity. Those who complain are of the less progressive sort, who are slow to see and to act.

"The spring season, which will shortly be in full swing, has every prospect of being one of profit to the exhibitor and of reasonable satisfaction to the patron of the motion picture. Just now, with the interest in the war at fever heat, Canada is eager to see the Wharton serial 'The Eagle's Eye.'"

Lichtman on Tour of Exchanges

Distribution Manager of Famous Players-Lasky Plans to Establish Warehouses and a Further Drive for Service to Exhibitors

AL LICHTMAN, General Manager of the Distribution Department of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, left New York recently to continue his tour of the exchanges, commenced several weeks ago, in behalf of better service to exhibitors. Railroad and other conditions evidenced during the past few months have brought about new situations for the film distributor to meet and overcome, necessitating the introduction of new ideas in order to give proper service to exhibitors.

In connection with his present tour and Walter E. Greene's plans to improve distribution in face of the various current handicaps, Mr. Lichtman, just before he left New York, said: "Railroad conditions brought about by the war have demanded special attention at the hands of the film distributor, if he would maintain a high-class service. It is not the intention of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation to merely maintain such a service, but, rather, to improve upon it constantly, despite any and all situations that might arise. In order to do this we must primarily enhance the service of the New York headquarters to its branch offices throughout the country, and that is the purpose of my present tour.

"Radical ideas will have to be introduced to overcome present conditions, and to that end we have already commenced work on plans that will result in establishing warehouses in central districts; also film hospitals, the activities of which will be supervised by experts. In addition to this, it is my purpose to emphasize among our exchanges more than ever the importance of even greater service to our exhibitors than has heretofore been evidenced. Every member of our organization must be thoroughly imbued with the service idea; we must go far out of our way, perhaps, to make the exhibitor succeed, to make his theatre a more high-class institution and to enhance his presentation of our product. Better presentation of our pictures means greater success for these pictures.

"With the installation of our warehouses exchange offices will no longer carry on hand a large quantity of old material, taking up floor space that should be occupied by matter for current productions arranged in a systematic and easily accessible manner. The bulk of material which they are now forced to keep on hand for occasional bookings on old film will be removed to a place where they can get it quickly, allowing ample room to facilitate the handling of new paper, accessories, etc."

Takes Montreal Globe

Joseph Block has leased and will assume the management of the Globe theatre, Main and Duluth streets, Montreal. It is announced that the policy of the house will be a change of program twice each week. The prices will be 5 and 10 cents.

Marjorie Daw Featured in "Sunset Princess"

Marjorie Daw, who has been seen opposite Douglas Fairbanks in one of the recent releases, and who has been prominently cast in Lasky-Paramount and Fox productions, is featured in the Great West Film Company's production, "The Sunset Princess," adapted from Wallace G. Colburn's story, "The Daughter of Yellowstone Pete," as published in the author's book, "Rhymes of a Round-Up Camp." It is announced that the production will be released on the independent market. The world rights have been purchased by the Big Productions Film Corporation, with offices in the Candler Building, New York.

"The Sunset Princess" was filmed in the Rocky Mountains and on the Circle C ranch, Butte, Mont. A feature of the picture are scenes of a "round up," in which more than 5,000 cattle are seen. A thrill is given in the scene showing a fight in a burning cabin.

Miss Daw is supported by C. M. Griffin, Barbara Gordon, Mae Evelynns, Madge Carson, Frank Owens, Jim Fulton and Pat Carson.

Bacon-Backer First Picture from Play

Work at the new Bacon-Backer Studio, No. 230 West Thirty-eighth street, New York, is progressing rapidly, announces Gerald F. Bacon, vice-president and treasurer. It is the intention of the Bacon-Backer Film Corporation to produce only super-features. Their first offering—now in its second week of production—will be a picturization of a recent play by H. S. Sheldon, widely known as author of "The Havoc." It is uncertain whether the picture will be released under its original stage title or not.

The direction has been entrusted to Perry Vekroff, and Mr. Backer personally is supervising the construction and oppointments of the sets.

A department has been created which will make a specialty of filming social events and happenings in society such as weddings, anniversaries, reunions and the different stages in the lives of children. Special attention will be paid to picturizing—for permanent record—the manufacturing activities of large industrial concerns.

Dell Henderson to Direct World Pictures

Dell Henderson, director, has signed a contract with World Pictures and has been assigned to direct Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley. He has already commenced work at the World studio on a picture featuring these two stars.

Henderson's advent with World will mark his celebration of a unique event, namely, the direction of his two hundredth picture. He was connected with the Biograph in the old days and took the first Biograph company to California. Since that association, which lasted five years, he has been with Triangle, Famous Players and Frohman's Empire company.

The Reader Has His Say

He Pats Us on the Back—And We Consequently Double Our Efforts to Serve

Motion Picture News.

Gentlemen: I read the NEWS from cover to cover, but I look up first the editorial of your Wm. A. Johnston, as he seems to grasp conditions of the film industry better than any other man in this country.

I have just read his editorial of February 23rd on the bettering of conditions in the larger cities and the precarious conditions of the small town theatres, and, while I know this applies to our section, I see that these conditions are general.

Talking with a traveling film salesman, he informed me that practically all the smaller houses west of San Antonio are closed, and those that are open are doing so at a loss, and as I am located in a small town of about 4,000 and conditions here are just as Mr. Johnston states, it is up to the producers to remedy this condition at once, or it will effect the entire industry, as, if no relief comes, many of the theatres now open will be closed and their revenue lost.

Our town could support one theatre, but for the last five years we have had nine trials to put this theatre out of business—at least that was their intention. Instead of working together to see if two shows would pay here, they all open with a fight, and the only reason I have survived is the theatre is a side line with me, and I can afford to run at cost or even a small loss.

I have tried to raise my prices and had to go back to the six and eleven cents, as when I raised my admission, November 1st to 5th, to five and fifteen cents the other show was closed. When a new party opened he lowered my prices to six and eleven cents, and I had to come down to his, the result being that he lasted three months, and I had a loss of several hundred dollars, and now another party has opened to make another try.

My rental, posters and express averages are about $11 per day and my general expense $16 or $17 per day. I seldom take in more than $15 a day outside of Saturday and Sundays, under normal conditions, which just about pays expense. When we have cold or rainy weather the receipts are cut down one-quarter to one-half, or we have a kiss of $20 to $60, so I cannot understand why men will come here and try to make two shows pay when there have been so many failures.

Lower rentals or longer runs are the only solution as long as we have two shows here. My pictures should not cost me, with posters and express, more than $7.50 on a six and eleven-cent admission, and not more than $15 on an eleven and twenty-three-cent admission. This would give me a chance to make expenses. I now use Triangle two days, Fox two days and Bluebird one day, change of program daily, except Fox, which I am trying now for a two-day run. I had Artcraft and Paramount during this winter and I had to cancel as I lost heavily on every star.

I have a semi-airdome, which I close in winter, can seat 500, advertise regularly in our daily paper, have my daily program in the paper, besides a space ad, use heralds and slides, and keep in close touch with our people, yet I cannot make money under present conditions.

Yours truly,
V. J. GRUNDER, Proprietor.
Dreamland Theatre, Cuero, Texas.

Denies That Services of Doctor Are Needed by Exhibitors in Small Towns

Motion Picture News:

The remarks of Mr. Soriero in your issue of the 23rd apropos of the small town exhibitor needing the services of a doctor were well taken and to the point as far as the exhibitor is concerned, but the trouble is not with the exhibitor. It is the lack of business principles and foresight of the producers and their exchanges for the distribution of their product. It is as Mr. Soriero states that as a rule exchange men are merely film men and lack all knowledge of business ethics, and this condition has existed ever since the first exchange opened its office.

The small exhibitor would not be experiencing this so-called chaotic condition of the industry today if the methods of the exchanges were those of a legitimate business proposition. But they are not, sorry to say. The average exchange man does not look forward as to how he can best serve the exhibitor to assure himself of the permanency of this exhibitors' business. Instead they figure only on today. They should worry about the future. They do not figure on being around when the future makes its appearance.

These methods will not last much longer. The exchanges will either get down to doing business in a businesslike way, or they will find themselves up against an amalgamation of exhibitors all over the country to do their own selecting and distribution of films.

Unethical business practices never produced a successful business in any line, and the motion picture industry will not be an exception to this rule.

If the producers had possessed foresight a few years ago we would not have so many producing companies in existence today. But they invited competition by the treatment accorded to the exhibitor who was willing to grasp at most any product other than they were using to get away from the methods then in vogue. And they are going to find a way to cast off the conditions that exist at the present time.

I have been connected with the industry for the past twelve years, covering this country from coast to coast. The last two of which I spent almost entirely on the coast, and from my study of the situation it is not an ordinary doctor that is needed, but a first class surgeon to operate on this resemblance to a cancerous growth that seems to infect the industry.

(Signed) WALTER W. EVANS, JR.
Hotel Radisson, Minneapolis, Minn.

SMOKE MEANS FIRE!

That's Why the Clearing Smoke of Battle Will Eventually See the Kaiser Fired

FROM mile-high Colorado, from a theatre nestling in the fiery, red-heat bosom of Pueblo's smelter district, comes a check that will add to the "smoke of battle" which will eventually fire the Kaiser.

Our Boys in France Tobacco Fund is enriched $25.92 by this progressive theatre and its all-American manager.

But read, for yourself, the letter accompanying the check, just as it was written:

Motion Picture News,
729 Seventh Avenue,
New York City.

Gentlemen:

We gave a benefit performance last Monday night for the Soldier Boys' Tobacco Fund. The enclosed check, $25.92, is the amount realized representing thirty per cent of the receipts minus war tax. The figures were attested by Geo. H. Hubbard of the Minnequa bank, Mr. Harding of the Harding Jewelry Company and Patrick Byrnes of "The Indicator."

We will be glad to receive your acknowledgment for lobby display, also the postal cards from the trenches mentioned in your magazine. Kindly have half the cards addressed Pikes Peak Theatre and half to the Speedway Girls Co., Pikes Peak Theatre. Your acknowledgment can be made to both together.

Pikes Peak Theatre Company,
418 W. Northern Ave.,
Pueblo, Colo.
(Signed) R. D. Heinbockel.

When it Comes to Optimism—Well, Akron, N. Y., Is Where it Grows

Motion Picture News.

Gentlemen: Please find enclosed check for $3.00 for your magazine for another year. Thanks for your offer as per bill.

It seems a shame to take so good a paper and pay so little, but we are in about the same boat as the Arizona exhibitor that the Universal people spoke about. It is easy to talk about raising prices, but the thing is to get the people to pay them. Anyhow our business has fallen off over one-half and we are giving them the pick of the pictures, but we lay a large share of our small attendance to the many other patriotic drains on the people, who have about all they can carry, especially with the very high cost of necessities.

We are especially interested in the Rothapfel answers to exhibitors, which are very good, but don't hit our case, as our town is too small. But what is the use of bothering you with our troubles?

Wishing you success in keeping up your good work, I am, Yours respectfully,
A. B. CUMMINGS.
Park Theatre, Akron, N. Y.

Subtitles. Now That You Speak of it, it Does Sound Reasonable

Motion Picture News.

Gentlemen: I am going to hand you a little raw material, and perhaps a bit crude, but with your generalship I know you can mould it into a shell and fire it where the bursting might be heard by the ears of improvement. I know myself, and perhaps other exhibitors know, that Pathe and Mutual make some very good productions, but nowadays when an exhibitor puts up in front of his box office "Admission 15c," and in his lobby posters stamped with a big Gold Rooster or Mutual, the old nickel days flare up like a house on fire, or in other words could you imagine anyone building a million dollar theatre and calling it the "Nickelodeon"? Even if the Nickelodeon was the mother, this is 1918, and the daughter is grown into womanhood and demands that her name be changed.

Just one more before the taps are sounded: In regard to subtitles—you remember the old Biograph days? What nice bright letters were used in their subtitles, but what a difference today, the way the patrons have to screw their eyes to decipher the colored, fancy and crowded up letters is a task, inasmuch as all publications use a standard type that can be read at a glance, but give the public some old English type and watch them slow up. The same argument can be applied better to the subtitles, as there is only a limited time to read them, and the view may be obstructed by persons passing in front of the patron. Perhaps this has been thrashed out in the trade journals before, as the writer has only been spasmodically in the exhibitors' end, and therefore not being able to read them regularly.

WALTER F. DAVIS, Manager.
Herrold Theatre, Herrold, Iowa.

Small Town Exhibitor Sees No Saving in Only One Night a Week

Motion Picture News:

Inclosed you will find a copy of our local newspaper, and a paragraph in a Proclamation for Closing Hours which I have marked for you to read. This proclamation is sent out in an effort to save coal.

The paragraph says: "Picture shows in the village (Hay Springs, Neb.) should operate on Saturdays only. The opera manager may arrange with traveling shows for any dates convenient. Dances at any one hall may be operated twice a month."

This would not look quite so bad to me if the towns east and west of here were compelled to do the same. When it comes right down to saving fuel I don't believe it will save any, as when a family is at the show they are not burning coal at home. Add all the homes together and it will make quite a little coal.

I am running two nights a week, Thursday and Saturday, with Fox Standards and Hart and Fairbanks reissues, also some Artcraft. The administrator let me operate two nights a week up to March 1, and after that he said I would only have one night a week.

L. C. STIEHL,
Hay Springs, Neb.

EXHIBITOR TO EXHIBITOR REVIEW SERVICE

[Ed. Note.—As announced last week, these reviews are conducted by Mr. P. S. Harrison, for ten years active in exchange and exhibiting circles. Mr. Harrison is looking at pictures for you—backed by his own experience as an exhibitor on the Pacific Coast and the Northwest since 1907.]

These reviews are based solely on the entertaining qualities of the picture. All other factors are considered of secondary importance.]

"Wild Youth"

Unpleasant Theme, Well Produced

(Blackton-Paramount—March 18th)

WHILE probably worthy of being labeled an artistic production, this picture will not be liked as the prevailing feature throughout is nothing but brutality.

The story is based on the marriage of a seventeen-year-old orphan to an old man, which fact will prejudice the spectator against it right from the start. The marriage of a young girl to an old man may be perfectly proper so far as the two individuals are concerned, but to show such an event on the screen is distasteful to the public.

The killing of the horse to save him from further agony, although done cleverly, showing only the shadow of the gun, will prove repulsive.

The subtitles are too artistic for this kind of a subject—ranch life—and are altogether out of place.

Some of the night scenes are very dark.

(See page 1927 for Synopsis and Cast)

Two Drew Comedies

As Usual, of the Best—Exhibitors Should Encourage Drews

"HIS GENEROSITY" is a satire on Henry's miserly habits. Polly persuades him to be more generous and tip quarters to everybody. He decides to accept her suggestion, but she eventually finds out at the end of their "Second Honeymoon" trip Henry gave away German marks which he could not get rid of otherwise.

"Before and After Taking" is extraordinarily good. It should take well with women, particularly because of the pretty dresses shown in the picture. "Old Bachelor Henry Minor," in announcing his engagement to Polly Brown, boasts to his friends that he would be boss of his house, wouldn't allow his wife to use any rouge, nor dress too stylishly, nor dance with other men. But, after the marriage his friends have the laugh on him, as Henry finds out that some one else was the boss.

By the way, rumor has it that the Drews are going to retire from the screen. Personally, I think this would be a great loss to the screen. Let us be frank with ourselves. We have not recognized their value yet. The trouble with most of us is that we have been used to slap-stick and unless we hear roaring laughter from such comedy we don't consider that it "got by." The Drew comedies are unlike any other. They make every part of you happy—make you "smile all over."

Those who have seen "The Dentist," "Her First Game," "As Others See You," "Twelve Good Hens and True," etc., will agree with me that there is more genuine entertainment in these comedies than in the best slap-stick produced.

Exhibitors should encourage these two real artists by booking their comedies. Of course we admit they are not all 100 per cent, but no matter how poor will not hurt your house, for their appearance alone on your screen will afford a certain amount of pleasure to your patrons once they get used to them.

"Love Me"

Dorothy Dalton's Best—A Clean Story That Will Make Friends

(Paramount-Ince—March 18th)

It is hard for us to determine who deserves the most credit for this picture—Mr. Sullivan, who wrote the story, or Mr. Neil, who directed it. At any event, we are sure of one thing—the former understands human nature to the *n*th degree, while the latter knows how to execute it.

I think I am not exaggerating when I tell you this is the best picture Miss Dalton ever appeared in. At any rate, it is the kind that will appeal very strongly to human nature—high and low brow alike. Miss Dalton takes the "good" part this time and attracts your sympathy like a magnet, retaining it from start to finish. This is the kind of a picture that makes new patrons. The story is based on the too friendly, but not intimate, relations of a young married woman to a single man, friend of the family, who induces her to run away with him to Egypt. Her brother's wife, Maida (Dorothy Dalton), risks her own reputation by running the danger of being misunderstood, thereby losing the love of her husband, and intervenes in time to save the young lady and the family from disgrace.

This picture has been handled very carefully by the director, and at no time approaches the danger line.

Cast, very good. Robert McKim, as the "Cynic," is unexcelled.

Photography, excellent.

As Miss Dalton has, for some time past, been appearing in pictures of the "naughty" type, the exhibitor who caters to family patronage, will have some difficulty in convincing his patrons that this picture is clean, the title augmenting that difficulty, which is misleading and not the best that could have been given this picture.

(See page 1926 for Synopsis and Cast)

"Humdrum Brown"

A Well Produced Picture of Fair Interest

(Paralta-Hodkinson—March 15th)

THIS is a fairly good offering, containing considerable human element, star retaining the sympathy to the end.

Story clean but heavy, showing a little undue misery in the first part—the suffering of Humdrum Brown's sister. However, it ends happily.

Direction and photography good.

Title rather old and should arouse curiosity.

THE CAST

Hector Brown	Henry B. Walthall
Clara Brown Danforth	Anna Mae Walthall
Winfield Tanner	Howard Crampton
Alicia Boothe	Mary Charlson
Judge Jonathan Norwalk	J. J. Dowling

THE STORY

Hector Brown lives in his sister's household in the town of Fryeburg, held a job in a bank and was nicknamed "Humdrum" because of the monotony of his life.

He was engaged to be married to Alicia Boothe. Charles Tanner, president of the bank, was a slick article, respected in the town, but in the city was in the toils of Violette, a pretty woman.

Tanner arranges with Ed Danforth, husband of Clara, Humdrum's sister, to rob the Freyburg bank, after which the bank is closed and puts Humdrum out of a job.

Humdrum goes to the city in search of a job, meets an ex-Freyburgite who is a detective and through whom he obtains a position as clerk in a hotel. Alicia has fell heir to a fortune, goes to the city, meets Tanner and asks him to invest it for her. Humdrum meets Alicia who tells him about the fortune and the steps she took with Tanner. Tanner learns that Danforth, who was his accomplice in robbing the bank, has been arrested and squealed. He proceeds to decamp. Humdrum learns of it and follows him to the boat and has him arrested.

Returning to Freyburg with Alicia, their happiness assured, Humdrum is made president of the new bank and he and Alicia are united in marriage.

"The Cross Bearer"

Cardinal Mercier Dramatized with Little Effect

(World—April 1st)

A PICTURE made up of a number of impossible situations connected very loosely. This story was conceived with the idea of showing Cardinal Mercier's sufferings since the Germans occupied Belgium. As this fact in itself would have been insufficient to make up five reels, it was necessary to give him a ward, making her the principal figure in a love affair woven between her and an officer of the Belgian army. There is also a traitor.

There are many impossible situations, among them being the case of the traitor, Gaston Van Leye, having access to the commander's residence, to the church where the Cardinal was performing the marriage ceremony, to the Cardinal's house, and almost anywhere and everywhere. Of course the German commander had to have the Cardinal's ward as his mistress, and had to employ the traitor's services to get her, but wasn't successful. The escape of Liane and Maurice would appear very amateurish to any one understanding German methods.

CLEAR, CRISP BOX OFFICE APPRAISALS

We doubt the wisdom of showing on the screen an impersonation of the Pope. I am afraid it will offend the Catholic element.

This picture will not appeal to an intelligent audience.

THE CAST

Directed by George Archainbaud

The Cardinal.....Montagu Love
Liane De Merode.....Jeanne Eagels
Lieut. Maurice Lambeaux.....Anthony Merlo
Gaston Van Leys.....George Morgan

THE STORY

The Cardinal was celebrating late mass when the advance guard of the Germans arrived and commenced their work of destruction, but the Cardinal's dominating personality prevented their destroying the altar.

That night on returning from an errand of mercy he picks up the unconscious form of Liane de Merode, his ward, and daughter of a dead life-long friend, who upon regaining consciousness, relates the barbarous conduct of the Germans in the convent where she was being educated.

Maurice Lambeaux, an officer in the Belgian army, who really loves Liane and fearing for her safety, returns in disguise. The Cardinal, to save Liane, who in turn loves Maurice, unites them by marriage and advises them to leave the land of their birth. Young Gaston de Van Leys, who was on intimate terms with the Germans and who had designs on Liane, overhearing the plans, notifies the German Commander, who orders their arrest. But, later, with the aid of the Cardinal, they escape and cross the frontier in safety.

"The Witch Woman"

A Melodrama That Is Very, Very Melodrama

(World Film—April 8th)

A FRENCH melodramatic story of the dual role type, having to its credit drinking, a violation, the death of a boy, madness, murder and a suicide. Consequently there is an unhappy feeling running through the picture, in spite of the happy ending. The story is woven around two twins, the one being good, the other bad—both parts being played by the same actor, a screen fad not popular with the public at present.

There are innumerable doubtful points in this picture, which also shows a lack of knowledge of French customs. This picture possesses no real entertaining qualities.

The word "witch" in the title will serve to keep patrons away.

Photography and camera work excellent.

NOTE FOR THE DIRECTOR: The French people do not kiss in the mouth, but on the cheek.

THE CAST

Marie Beaupre.....Ethel Clayton
Maurice La Farge } Louis La Farge } .....Frank Mayo
Dr. Cochefort.....John Ardizoni
Delaunay.....Jack Drumier
Andrea Montignac.....Louise Vale
Directed by .....Travers Vale

THE STORY

In Paris lived the La Farge twins, Maurice, a lawyer, upright and honorable, while Louis, an artist, was living a frivolous life. In a trip to the country for the purpose of painting, Louis meets Marie Beaupre and the two fall in love. Later, tired of her, Louis deserts her.

Marie, scorned by her uncle and the villagers, runs to the mountains and takes refuge in a cave. She becomes demented and is known to the villagers as "The Witch Woman."

Monsieur Delaunay and Dr. Cochefort, on one of their hunting trips come across Marie, take pity on her and bring her to Paris where she is cured.

In the home of Delaunay she meets Maurice, whom she mistakes for Louis, and plans revenge. Later, in a cafe, she meets Louis in company with Andrea. Louis does not recognize Marie, but becomes infatuated with her beauty. This arouses the jealousy of Andrea, who visits Marie and persuades her to leave Louis to her. Marie promises to help her, planning in her mind to force his marriage with Andrea. At a masque ball given by Andrea in Louis's home, Marie, disguised as an Alsatian shepherdess, troubles Louis with old memories. At the stroke of twelve the revelers unmask and Marie announces the impending marriage of Louis and Andrea. When Louis discovers her mistake in believing him to be Maurice, he laughs heartily and seizes her in his arms. Andrea, now scorned, shoots and kills Louis just as Maurice was entering the studio to persuade Louis to reform.

Marie now discovers the mistake she made in the identity of the two brothers and realizing that she really loves Maurice implores his forgiveness, which he freely gives.

"Naughty, Naughty"

Starts Off Well and Holds Up Fairly Well

(Ince-Paramount, March 25th)

THE wit in the subtitles in the first two reels of this picture will bring roars of laughter from an audience, but it slows up in the balance of the play, with an attempt to give it a dramatic "punch" in the fourth reel, in the dance hall scene, succeeding fairly well. Had the same quality been maintained throughout, this offering would be classed as a "knockout." As it is, it may please fairly well, especially if your house is full, but it will make no impression, and your patrons will forget all about it after they leave the theatre.

It is a clean picture, out of the ordinary, which will appeal to better patronage, especially to women, and will leave a good taste.

Roberta Miller.....ENID BENNETT
Matthew Sampson.....Earl Rodney
Prudence Sampson.....Marjorie Bennett
Judith Holmes.....Gloria Hope
Adam Miller.....Andrew Arbuckle
Director .....Jerome Storm

THE STORY

After a long absence to wicked New York, Roberta Miller returns to Lillyville, the town of her birth. But life now seemed too dreary, so she started to impose on the townsfolk some of her new ideas, especially dancing. She shocked them when she appeared at a church recital in a short dress and minus shoes and stockings.

In one of her secret visits with some other girl friends of the town to the next village dancing pavilion, she discovered one of the "Society Pillars" having quite a good time, and the price of silence she imposed on him was for him to vote for dancing in the church parlors. She eventually gained her point and—a husband—in the editor of the town paper.

"The Bride's Awakening"

Good Story with a Doubtful Theme

(Blue Bird—May 6th)

FROM a dramatic standpoint of view this picture is a wonder. The story, however, is based on "marital difficulties," and therein the objection lies with theatres catering to very best family trade.

Opening scene shows a man holding the other fellow's wife in his arms, although no action is indicated that will offend the censor.

Subject handled by Mr. Leonard so carefully that it has not left even a trace of vulgarity.

Star's acting excellent, but Lew Cody carries a big part of the honors away owing to superb acting. Selection of cast very successful. Photography and lightings simply marvellous.

Picture will not leave a bad taste.

THE CAST

Elaine .....Mae Murray
Richard Earle.....Lew Cody
Lucille Bennett.....Clarissa Selwynne
George Bennett.....Harry Carter
Frederick Bronson.....Joe Girard
Jimmy Newton.....Ashton Dearholt
Director .....Robert Leonard

THE STORY

Elaine, niece of Frederick Bronson, is engaged to Richard Earle, who has an eye on the Bronson millions.

Bronson finds that Earle has affairs with Lucille Bennett, a married woman, calls him to the house and orders the engagement broken. Earle tries to prevent Bronson from telephoning to Elaine, and in the struggle Bronson dies of heart failure.

Earle marries Elaine but continues to lead a dissolute life. She meets Jimmy Newton, a man just breaking into society but good at heart, who takes an interest in her. Earle disapproves the friendship between the two and orders Elaine not to see him again.

Lucille Bennett, seeing that Earle is growing colder towards her calls him to the house to find out the cause. He was afraid to tell her he now was married. At this instant Mr. Bennett enters and finds his wife in the arms of Earle. He tells her that as long as she likes Earle he is going to let him have her, and leaves the house.

Spurned by her husband, she hurries to Earle's house to persuade him not to give her up, where she finds him beating his wife. She shoots and kills him. Newton enters the room just in time to catch Elaine in his arms who, terrified at the events, fainted.

Later, when Elaine's memories of the terrible affair have dimmed, she and Newton become engaged.

Jesse L. Lasky, Chas. Chaplin and Major Ian Hay Beith, at Chaplin's Studio

Much Attention to Detail in Alice Brady's Next

"The Ordeal of Rosetta," which Alice Brady is now making for Select Pictures, is said to be marked by a number of interesting details of direction. For instance, the gorgeous mansion which is the pride of Ramsey, N. J., is used for the Long Island home of the author hero of the story. The grounds about the house were used for the water scenes, the bridge scene, the driveway and the automobile scenes, reproducing the elaborate surroundings of a palatial country estate. One of the interiors calls for a set representing a theatrical agency. As the model for this set the offices of Chamberlain Browne, a well-known New York theatrical agent, were used.

Tom-Boy Role for Ann Pennington

Paramount this week explained that those who have been accustomed to seeing Ann Pennington attired in gorgeous raiment and bedecked with jewels should find much to amuse them in the role she plays in "Sunshine Nan," in which the star is introduced as a "tom-boy" of the slums.

The story was adapted to the screen by Eve Unsell from the novel, "Calvary Alley," by Alice Hogan Rice and produced for Paramount release on March 11, by Charles Giblyn.

Title Writers Help Eddie Polo Serial

Eddie Polo in the current Universal big Western serial, "The Bull's Eye," is proving a recruiting officer for a large army of juvenile and embryo title writers who may later invade the industry.

"What Did Eddie Polo Say?" is the title of a plan conducted by the Universal Film Manufacturing Company to create interest in the serial among boys and girls sixteen years of age and under throughout the United States and Canada. It is conducted by means of advance heralds distributed in advance of the showing of the serial.

Fox Shows Mutt and Jeff to Directors

FOLLOWING a conference held this week between Bud Fisher, originator of the Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons, and William Fox, who is to release these productions to exhibitors, Mr. Fox announced his intention of having all his directors see the Mutt and Jeff pictures with a view to obtaining suggestions on methods of developing and sustaining action. It is Mr. Fox's opinion that Mr. Fisher has mastered the difficult art of getting his story started at the very jump and of eliminating everything from the film that does not contribute materially to the development of immediate interest.

"Action—action—action! That's what I preach day and night to my directors," said Mr. Fox. "While the problem of making Mutt and Jeff animated cartoons is not the same problem which confronts the director in his average production, there is a certain principle involved which applies as well to any other motion picture as to Mr. Fisher's work. It is this that I hope to have illustrated through the animated cartoons."

The first release, "The Decoy," will be ready for exhibitors March 24.

"My viewpoint was the exhibitor viewpoint, and Mr. Fisher's that of the producer. I was looking at the pictures as I look at other productions which are offered for rental in my chain of twenty-five theatres. We discussed them pro and con, reran some of them and when we had concluded I agreed that Mr. Fisher had convinced me I could not afford not to show his animated cartoons in my houses.

"The pictures are only 500 feet in length, but I am prepared to guarantee that they consist exclusively of laughs. The action starts with the very first flash of light on the screen and it keeps going to the end. That which I like best about the productions is that Mr. Fisher knows when he is through and stops right there. There is no attempt at padding—no disposition to add a few feet just to make a standard length. The average is about 500 feet, and if any of them run longer there is justification—there is more than 500 feet of fun."

Clara Kimball Young to Go to California

CLARA KIMBALL YOUNG, who is now preparing to put the finishing touches on "The Reason Why," her next Select production, is laying elaborate plans for a trip to California, where she expects to make at least two pictures.

March 24 is the date that has been set for Miss Young's departure from New York. She will be accompanied, it is said, by her entire staff and a number of friends and relatives. A place has been rented near Hollywood, where some of the scenes will be taken. The others will be "shot" in the Hollywood studio.

One of the pictures to be produced by Miss Young on the Coast is "The Claw," which has been adapted to the screen by Chas. F. Whittaker. Another is "The Savage Woman," from a French novel.

Included in Miss Young's staff on this occasion will be Robert G. Vignola, her director, and William J. Scully, his assistant; Louis J. Physioc, Mr. Vignola's camera man; Jack Voshnell, Miss Young's technical director; Teddy Butcher, studio manager, and Jack Boland, assistant studio manager.

Accompanying Miss Young will also be Milton Sills, who is playing lead opposite her in "The Reason Why," and who will be her leading man in her next production; Norma Selby, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Mortimer and Arthur Edeson.

Irwin Stamps New Serial as Excellent

FOLLOWING the home office screening of the first two episodes of "The Woman in the Web," the Vitagraph serial, which is in course of production at the company's Western plant, Walter W. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph organization, sent the following telegram to all branch offices of the company:

"Home office has just screened first two episodes of 'The Woman in the Web.' It is a totally different type of serial from its two predecessors, 'The Fighting Trail' and 'Vengeance—and the Woman,' and as such we are of the unanimous opinion that it is strong and thrilling in all respects. We also consider that it is well cast and that Hodda Nova and Frank Glendon are exceptional serial stars, in fact, box-office winners. You can get behind this serial with full confidence."

The story for "The Woman in the Web" was written by Albert E. Smith, president of the Vitagraph Company, and Cyrus Townsend Brady, who also were the authors of "Vengeance and the Woman." According to a statement by Mr. Irwin, the authors have put into this newest serial many unique touches and some thrills that are even more gripping than those which have characterized the recent Vitagraph serials. Mr. Smith is conceded to be one of the greatest devisers of stunts in picturedom, and Dr. Brady for many years has held a place among the front rank of fiction writers, so that the combination is considered ideal for motion picture construction.

In his statement regarding "The Woman in the Web" Mr. Irwin waxes enthusiastic over the performances of the two stars, Hedda Nova and J. Frank Glendon.

"What Kind of a Fellow Is —Hammons?"

(Continued from page 1865)

He admires it face to face. Sometimes he walks rapidly up and down the other side of the street to see if it smiles across at him.

Then he walks briskly back to the office—smiling happily— and digs in at the work which began with a vision.

Exhibitors Box Office Reports

LAST MINUTE BOX OFFICE REPORTS

Amarilly of Clothesline Alley (Pickford-Art.)—"Pickford at her best. Splendid production." (Big business.)

The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh-Goldwyn)—"Production fine, but construction of story poor. Star does not have many chances, and interest in plot drags because some of the main characters are brought in too late. Photography extra fine; sub-titles excellent. Not much drawing power." (Average business, week run.)

Broken Ties (June Elvidge-World)—"Will give satisfaction." (Average business.)

Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers (Shipman-Whitman-Vitagraph)—"A poor picture." (Average business.)

Morgan's Raiders (Violet Mersereau-Blue)—"A poor attraction." (Poor business.)

The Naulahka (Moreno-Chadwick-Pathe)—"A big, fine production, worthy of Kipling's book." (Big business.)

One More American (Geo. Beban-Paramount)—"Human interest story—well done." (Big business.)

Powers That Prey (Mary Miles Minter-Mutual)—"Story poor, star great in this." (Average business.)

Revenge (Edith Story-Metro)—"Good program feature." (Fair business.) "Not up to Metro standard." (Average business.) "Not a good picture." (Poor business.)

A Soul In Trust (Belle Bennett-Triangle)—"Too long drawn out." (Average business.)

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
ARGUMENT, THE (Triangle)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good; first class all the way through." "Excellent." "Fair picture."
BEAUTIFUL MRS. REYNOLDS, THE (Elvidge-Blackwell—World)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very ordinary." "Not up to usual standard of this pair."
BEAUTY AND THE ROGUE (Minter—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Pleasing picture, star popular."
BELOVED TRAITOR, THE (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Conventional subject." "Story dragged in parts." "An excellent production, did fair business."
BLUE BLAZES RAWDON (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Type not suitable for Hart—too rough." "Best acting Hart has done; my audiences prefer him on horseback." "Business fell off, not Hart's best." "Hart a sure bet. Pleased immensely." "These kind of pictures are not wanted" (E.).
BLUE JEANS (Viola Dana—Metro)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Viola Dana at her best, great—good picture but didn't get any money with it" (N.). "One of their best pictures, great drawing card" (W.). "Dana always good" (S.). "Will go over if advertised big—the picture is there" (E.). "Booked for week, closed Wed. night" (W.). "Big business" (N.). "Did not hold up" (S.). "A wonderful production; pictures like this make the business worth while" (N.).
BROADWAY BILL (Harold Lockwood—Met.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Photography fine, especially exteriors. Lockwood always good." "Good picture." "Just a fair picture."
BROADWAY LOVE (Dorothy Phillips—Blue)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A very good picture." "Dorothy Phillips is gaining friends fast here" (S.).
BROWN OF HARVARD (Tom Moore—K.E.S.E.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Good picture—well liked" (S.). "Very acceptable subject, a little different" (E.). "First class picture" (N.). "Great! Opened on a Wednesday and held over for a full week run" (N.). "Very satisfactory." "Extraordinary—very popular picture." "Very good." "Type of picture that should prove popular everywhere."
CLEOPATRA (Theda Bara—Fox)	.....	Big	.....	.....	"Advanced prices on this—50c., 75c. and $1.00." "Great." "Sure money-maker."
CUPID'S ROUND-UP (Tom Mix—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Some swell picture—Tom Mix great." "Dandy title, clever work of star, too. Nice picture." "Very good program picture." "Customers ate it up." "Picture is a pleasant surprise—pleased all."
DIVINE SACRIFICE, THE (Kitty Gordon—World)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"Awful" (S.). "Not much picture" (N.). "Not pleasing" (N.).
DODGING A MILLION (Mabel Normand—Gold.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Ave.	"Well liked, did a good business, star liked" (W.). "Good picture—Mabel Normand very good" (E.). "A charming picture that should have done more business" (W.). "Production good, but did not please" (E.). (For other comments, see March 23 issue.)
EMPTY POCKETS (Brenon Production—First Nat'l.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"A mystery play without a mystery." "Most unusual story, strong appeal." "Very good picture, but far from being a 'special.' Too complicated plot for general public—good buy at program prices" (N.).
EYES OF MYSTERY, THE (Edith Storey—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture" (S.). "Very good, lots of punch" (W.). "Dandy star, some of her best work in this" (N.). "Just an ordinary picture, will get by on a Sat" "Awful piece of junk" (W.). "Too melodramatic" (E.).
FACE VALUE (Mae Murray—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good, Mae Murray well liked" (W.). "Very good" (N.). "Only fair" (N.). "As a 'lemon' it's a 'peach'" (N.).
FIELDS OF HONOR (Mae Marsh—Gold.)	Ave.	Ave.	Poor	Poor	"Morbid, uninteresting" (S.). "Fine, very well liked by '400' class" (E.). "A disappointment here" (E.). "Not popular subject" (E.). "Star good, but story poor" (W.). "Very good picture, but star not popular here" (E.). "People don't want morbid subjects—several left crying." "Make more cheerful subjects." "A good Mae Marsh picture, but she seems to be losing favor here" (W.).
FIGHTING GRIN, THE (Franklyn Farnum—Blue.)	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Poor picture for Bluebird" (E.). "A1 comedy feature" (W.). "Farnum popular here" (S.).
FLAMES OF CHANCE (Margery Wilson—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—pleased." "Great. A timely story—top notch picture."
FLARE-UP SAL (Dorothy Dalton—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Big	"Big feature, big business" (N.). "Dalton fine in this; Ince style direction shows to advantage" (E.). "A bit rough for Paramount" (S.). "Star liked; Miss Dalton will make good in any theatre." "Ordinary" (E.). "Not up to standard" (S.).
FLASH OF FATE (Herbert Rawlinson—Uni.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair business for two days, picture mediocre." "Average picture."
GERMAN CURSE IN RUSSIA (Pathe)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Very good of its kind." "Timely, went over well." "Great stuff."
GHOSTS OF YESTERDAY (Norma Talmadge—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star well liked." "Star better than ever—corking good production." "Another pleasing Talmadge production." "Fine picture; Norma Talmadge not yet very well known here" (W.). "Excellent production, fine business all week" (W.). "Very fair picture." "Great." "Broke our record—Talmadge's best. Support of Eugene O'Brien great."
HEADIN' SOUTH (Douglas Fairbanks—Art.)	Big	Big	Extra	Extra	"Full of Fairbanks' 'pep'." "Great." "Very satisfactory feature—good box-office attraction." "Strenuosity de luxe—everybody around the house on the jump for four days."
HEART OF ROMANCE, THE (June Caprice—Fox)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very poor picture, far from being up to Fox standard." "Very ordinary." "Nothing to this one." "Failed to draw any business." "Only a fair picture; star not wanted here" (S.). "The only feature about this feature is that IT is NOT a feature" (N.).
HEART'S REVENGE, A (Sonia Markova—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor draw." "Poor production." "Some liked it, only fair business." "Just an ordinary picture." "Poor title but good picture and story."

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
HER AMERICAN HUSBAND (Darrell Foss—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Picture pleased—didn't draw" (S.).
HER BOY (Welch-Shannon—Mat.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"People don't want this kind" (N.). "Good business-getter" (N.). "Divided opinion on this" (N.). "Good picture" (W.).
HIDDEN PEARLS (Sessue Hayakawa—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Good picture." "Another feather in the Jap's cap." "Star not as good as usual." "Drew exceptionally well, star very popular here; large Japanese population" (W.).
HIRED MAN, THE (Chas. Ray—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Big	"Very good picture" (N.). "Great—very good" (E.). "Kind that will bring 'em again" (S.). "Excellent" (W.). "Well liked Ray picture" (S.). "Shows Ray up as one of screen's really great stars" (N.). "Ray got there in this picture" (S.). "Good picture, pleased all" (S.). "Ray's best yet." (W.) "Star becoming great favorite—show well done" (E.).
HIS ROBE OF HONOR (H. B. Walthall—Paralta)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Too heavy" (W.). "Walthall's acting wonderful—nobody like him, I think; more like this and he will surely make good, but title too much like costume play" (S.). "Too much court and parlor stuff—give Walthall a real part like 'The Little Colonel'" (N.). "Fair picture" (W.). "Unwieldy story" (N.). "A 7-reel picture that would have made a very good five-reeler; too much padding" (E.). "Good—pleased—a little drawn out" (W.).
HONEYMOON, THE (Const. Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing picture, clever direction." "Not as good as Scandal." "Good picture." "Story very pleasing—didn't draw, but her next picture will" (W.). "Good picture—pleasing" (W.). "Select pictures (so far) can be relied upon to produce good business. Picture a pretty little trifle and Constance Talmadge winning and sweet" (S.). "Very good—well liked, but no knockout. 'Scandal' was bigger yet" (N.).
HOPPER, THE (Wm. V. Mong—Tri.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, poor title."
HUCK AND TOM (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Excellent picture—liked this immensely." "Very good." "Good, clean stuff that brings business" (W.). "Dandy picture."
IN BAD (William Russell—Mut.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not as good as some of his others" (E.). "Very good, big business; can always count on Russell" (E.). "Fair picture" (W.). "Pleased all" (N.).
INNOCENT (Fannie Ward—Pathe)	Big	Big	Ave.	Big	"Started off with a bang, should have run it a week, best Pathe we ever had—photography too dark, everything else o.k." (E.). "Fannie looks ten years younger than other pictures; clean, nice picture—patrons liked it." "Excellent, a real picture." "Ward is there, with the right stuff." "This in my estimation, is all that has been claimed for it" (W.). "Pleased most of my patrons and drew well" (E.).
INTOLERANCE (Griffith Sp. Prod.)	Extra	Extra	Big	Extra	"Best ever made" (W.). "Had to keep open till 1.30 A.M. opening night to accommodate the large crowd." "Greatest of all motion picture spectacles" (N.). "Sure went over big here" (E.). "Impressed, but over heads here; didn't get the money" (S.).
JACK SPURLOCK, PRODIGAL (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Star makes this go big; Sat. Post story not so great, but brought in many new faces." "Not a typical Walsh subject; star big drawing card."
KEYS OF THE RIGHTEOUS (Enid Bennett—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave	"Title killed it." "This type of story not wanted." "Not a drawing card" (N.). "Just fair" (E.).
KINGDOM OF LOVE, THE (Jewel Carmen—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good attraction" (S.). "Does not draw" (E.). "No drawing card" (W.). "Fair business, good picture." "Poor title, stereotyped dance-hall-girl-parson story." "Seemed to please everyone" (W.). "Picture and star enjoyed by our patrons" (E.). "Same old dance hall" (N.). "Fair picture; did big business under substituted Klondyke title" (W.).
LES MISERABLES	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Easily Farnum's greatest; fine direction, sure box-office." "Great story, great production."
LIGHT WITHIN, THE (Mme. Petrova—First National)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Can't see this one (no pun intended); not kind of story for Petrova" (N.).
LIMOUSINE LIFE (Olive Thomas—Triangle)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Appeals to the ladies—but not so much to men" (N.).
LOADED DICE (Frank Keenan—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Keenan's work great; not popular type story. However, ought to have done better; comments good." "Good for this style of picture, average crowd does not care for them."
MADAME JEALOUSY (Pauline Frederick—Para.)	Ave.	Poor	Poor	Ave.	"People didn't know what to think of this; expected something quite different. Why don't they give Frederick a real play?" (E.). "Frederick fine, picture disappointed" (N.). "More like this and 'Nay, nay, Pauline'" (S.). "My people do not like allegory" (W.). "Very poor" (S.). "More complaints about this feature than any we have played in the last six months" (N.). "Too deep, and requires too much concentration. This the public won't do" (E.).
MADAM WHO? (Bessie Barriscale—Paralta)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture, well liked—just a little too long" (N.). "Very good Barriscale" (E.). "Good production; Paraltas could cut subjects to advantage; five reels enough" (S.). "Fine picture, good story, fine photography—but war pictures not wanted" (N.). "Good—could be cut at least one reel" (W.).
MAN'S MAN, A (Warren Kerrigan—Paralta)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Our patrons said this was the best picture we ever had in the house" (S.). "Very fine production" (W.). "Went over very big" (N.). "Kerrigan's best production." "Well liked, better second day" (N.). "Excellent picture." "Pleased, but did not have box-office drawing power; his next one will" (E.). "Best Kerrigan has ever had" (S.). "One of best pictures ever shown in the house" (N.).
MARIONETTES, THE (Clara Kimball Young—Sel.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Splendid; a few more subjects like this and C. K. Y. will come back." "Very wonderful." "Good picture." "Fair business, that's all." "Pleasing star in a pleasing production, but does not draw big."
MENACE, THE (C. Griffith, E. Overton—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture—both are going to make stars." "Fair production" (N.). "Excellent picture, but no pull" (W.). "Poor picture" (N.).
MORAL LAW, THE (Gladys Brockwell—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Poor photography, subject will not please." "Story good—well liked."
MOTHER'S SIN, A (Earle Williams—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Not up to standard, but star got it over." "Below average." "Just a picture."
OTHER MAN, THE (Harry Morey—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good picture, Morey popular" (E.).
OTHER WOMAN, THE (Peggy Hyland—Pathe)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"They liked this" (N.). "Excellent picture" (N.). "Very attractive picture and star" (E.). "Fair, that's all" (N.).
OUR LITTLE WIFE (Madge Kennedy—Gold.)	Poor	Poor	Ave.	Ave.	"Snappy comedy, Madge the whole show. Nice picture, clever little star" (E.). "This star is becoming popular" (S.). "Poor story, Madge Kennedy the whole show. Star unknown here" (E.). "Poor business; this style of show does not get the money for us" (N.). "Pleasing" (W.). "Not up to standard as a whole." "About two or three good comedy situations with about 2000 feet of padding in between. Star pleased, support fair, photography o.k., BUT 6-reel farce comedies NOT in demand here" (E.). "Comedy-drama—good—but public will not support them." "Star very good, but does not draw." "Cut to 5 reels in Pa.—fair." "Did not draw." "Forced comedy, not liked."
PETTICOAT PILOT, A (Vivian Martin—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Ave.	Ave.	"Star becoming popular." "Martin is gaining; a few more like this, please." "Kind of story this star should have." "Very pleasing" (S.). "Scored heavily" "Excellent." "Story that pleased all here." "Pleasing picture—star well liked."
PRIDE OF NEW YORK, THE (Geo. Walsh—Fox)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"This is a dandy." "Great favorite here." "Ran close second to Fairbanks 'Reaching for Moon.'" "Fast gaining in popularity in all our houses." "Great show." "Star always pleases." "Picture full of punch." "Fine picture, lots of 'kick'." "Very good picture." "Geo. Walsh is Fox's best star." "Walsh at his best, good as any Fairbanks."
RIMROCK JONES (Wallace Reid—Para.)	Ave.	Big	Big	Big	"Rest of the show saved the day for this one." "Ordinary." "They liked Reid." "Good star, fair picture." "This star is new at this theatre, better second day than first." "Excellent, big business" (N.).
ROSE OF THE WORLD (Elsie Ferguson—Art.)	Big	Ave.	Big	Ave.	"Her best picture so far, my people say." "Good star, poor story." "Too much art, too little behind it; does not hang together to hold interest, somehow." "Away above average. A1 product" (N.). "Photography good, picture poor" (W.). "Beautiful production, well acted, star always satisfies" (E.). "Patrons tell me this star is great—believe she will be very popular soon."
SIX-SHOOTER ANDY (Tom Mix—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very fair picture." "Regular program stuff—action too slow."
SON OF DEMOCRACY (Chapin—Para)	Big	Big	.....	Big	"Good patriotic feature for variety program; first chapter went big" (N.). "Bringing many new faces into my house—good stuff for high class house" (W.). "Wonderful; average business first day, but expect to go big with future chapters" (N.). "Good picture" (N.).

TITLE, STAR, AND BRAND	E.	N.	S.	W.	EXHIBITORS' OWN REPORTS OF BOX-OFFICE VALUE
SONG OF SONGS (Elsie Ferguson—Para.)	Big	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"This star coming; big advertising possibilities in this one, though far from a knockout."
SPIRIT OF '17 (Jack Pickford—Para.)	Big	Big	Big	Ave.	"Very pleasing, big business" (S.). "Mawkish and obvious" (W.). "Tom Sawyer helped this star, good business" (W.). "Very fair." "Jack a comer, not much picture, but timely." "Fair picture—fair biz."
STELLA MARIS (Mary Pickford—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Pickford proves herself to be an actress" (E.). "Wonderful picture, almost too much dependent on fine acting, however, not a story people can get excited over" (S.). "Too morbid for my people" (W.). "Certainly great work for this star, some contrast with last one." "Splendid picture, best Mary has ever done from an artistic standpoint—as a box-office attraction did not come anywhere near 'Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm.'" "Mary will never do better, story peculiar; surely this one will help star's drawing power for next picture." "One of her best." "Splendid picture, but not strong enough for two weeks' run." "Mary has never equalled this one." "Double exposure stuff marvellous." "Thought it great, but our Pickford biz is slipping" (W.). "Excellent." "Capacity." "Mary's best picture—our record run (four days); rained each day but big business" (W.). "Good picture."
STOLEN HONOR (Virginia Pearson—Fox)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good story, poor photography." "Average picture." "Only fair picture—good star wasted." "Very ordinary picture." "Good picture but terrible photography, impossible to read titles." "Attractive cast, big business, ordinary picture." "Star very popular here."
STRONG WAY, THE (June Elvidge—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Excellent." "Interest well sustained."
STUDIO GIRL, THE (Constance Talmadge—Sel.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Good light comedy drama; went over big." "Good picture." "Very satisfactory."
THING WE LOVE, THE (Reid-Williams—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Cheap and obvious; two-thirds conversation and one-third cut-backs" (W.). "Not his best" (S.).
TURN OF A CARD (Warren Kerrigan—Paralta)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"This star very much liked here, and unusually clever story—picture a bit too long" (S). "Fine picture, Kerrigan good in this" (S.). "Very good picture" (N.).
UNDER SUSPICION (Bushman-Bayne—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Fair picture." "Very good picture." "Fair picture—suits the ladies—not a picture for Saturday." "Best Bushman picture in months" (N.).
UNEASY MONEY (Taylor Holmes—K.E.S.E.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"High class comedy, our patrons enjoyed it." "Seems to strike a popular chord—good picture." "Very good picture." "Clean, good comedy, fair business." "Taylor Holmes clever, but not yet popular in our house—picture deserved better than average business."
WEAVER OF DREAMS, A (Viola Dana—Metro.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big	"Star popular, picture good." "Nice picture—pleasing."
WHIMS OF SOCIETY (Ethel Clayton—World)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Not her best picture, but Ethel Clayton will please."
WIDOW'S MIGHT, THE (Julian Eltinge—Para.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Very good picture." "Clean, excellent novelty." "Fine, one of his best." "Eltinge best in this so far." "Better business than last one, Eltinge improving as draw." "Stories of this star too much alike" (E.).
WIFE HE BOUGHT, THE (Carmel Myers—Blue.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Business slightly above average; Bluebird offerings are uniformly good, but star not known here" (S.). "Very good picture, good title" (N.). "Fair picture" (W.). "Not first class" (E.).
WILD STRAIN, THE (Shipman, Whitman—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"A fine picture, no star to draw." "Slow at beginning—as a whole fine." "Excellent production."
WINDING TRAIL, THE (Viola Dana—Met.)	Ave.	Ave.	Big	Big.	"Star growing more popular with each release" (S.). "Not liked" (E.). "Very pretty picture" (W.). "Good business this" (S.). "Fair—did not make hit with our audience" (N.). "Very unusual picture, peculiar ending. Good" (W.). "Very fine, excellent plot, Dana's work great." "Good Western setting picture." "Better than the average." "Very pleasing." (N.). "Did not please generally" (W.). "A very good picture, star a good drawing card" (W.). "Best Metro for some time." "A coming star without a doubt" (E.).
WOLVES OF THE RAIL (Wm. S. Hart—Art.)	Big	Big	Big	Big	"Would have broken record but for blizzard" (W.). "Good as Hart has done lately, railroad stuff splendid." "Hart 'fans' seemed to like this one." "Hart as the bandit—'nuf sed." "Very good Hart subject." "Excellent." "Fire chief camped on our trail during entire showing—enough said." "Full of action" (S.). "His best picture" (E.). "Strong production—pleased audience after a week's run in this vicinity" (E.).
WOMAN BETWEEN FRIENDS, THE (Joyce-McDermott—Vita.)	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	Ave.	"Strong acting made this better than average" (E.). "Ordinary" (E.).
WORLD FOR SALE, THE (Blackton—Para.)	Poor	Poor	Poor	Poor	"A very funny picture to make out, poor drawing card" (E.). "Not much picture for Blackton" (S.). "Mediocre. Lacks realism; too artificial; lacks punch—photography and scenery perfect" (N.).

FLASHBACKS

These "Did Their Bit" Above Average Last Week

Auction Block (Goldwyn Sp.)—"Great." "Return engagement, big business."

Apostle of Vengeance (Hart-Triangle-Reissue)—"Went over well."

Betty Takes a Hand (Olive Thomas-Tri.)—"The kind the public like." "Thomas best star on Triangle program with us."

Bab's Burglar (Clark-Para.)—"Good entertainment, surely pleases."

Barrier (Rex Beach)—"Wonderful acting."

Cinderella Man (Mae Marsh-Goldwyn)—"A wonderful production."

Down To Earth (Fairbanks-Art.)—"A great lesson to it—drew fine."

Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro-Metro)—"Big business—relied altogether on the flag."

For the Freedom of the World (Goldwyn Special)—"One of the best patriotic pictures ever produced—fine comments." "A big picture in many respects, but war pictures are coming too frequently."

Her Fighting Chance (Jane Gray-St. R.)—"A good picture of the Northwest done well."

Joan the Woman (Farrar-Card.)—"Drew fine—patrons satisfied—good photography, good subject."

Man Without a Country (Jewel)—"Big drawing card; went over fine."

Modern Musketeer (Fairbanks-Art.)—"A number one article." "First class." "Best Fairbanks in many months."

Narrow Trail (Wm. S. Hart-Artcraft)—"Very good Hart-Artcraft subject."

Price of a Good Time (Jewel)—"Big business for a week run—fine production."

Pride of New York (Geo. Walsh-Fox)—"Kind Walsh shines in; good for the B. O."

Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm (Pickford-Art.)—"Extra big drawing card."

Redemption (Evelyn Nesbit-St. R.)—"Gets the money."

Red, White and Blue Blood (Bushman-Metro)—"Very satisfactory—all pleased."

Sirens of the Sea—"Big business—enjoyed by some—not by others." "Big production."

Thais (Mary Garden-Goldwyn)—"An elaborate production that attracts people who are not regular moving picture fans."

Within the Law (Vitagraph Special)—"Swell subject; advise every exhibitor to book this; big box-office attraction."

When a Man Sees Red (Wm. Farnum-Fox)—"Big business; pleased."

Whip (State Right)—"Big business—return engagement."

Advisory Board Gets Big Problem

WITH each step forward that had been taken by the MOTION PICTURE NEWS in behalf of the exhibitor we have found the average exhibitor the more or less hesitant. He failed to see why action on his part would be of advantage to him; he preferred to wait to see what the "other fellow" would do and then follow in the footsteps of O. F.

But in every case the start has been made and there have appeared in the field the leaders to assume the advance. And every time the various departments of the Exhibitors' Service Bureau have gone over the top with wonderful results. There has never been in the history of any industry, we believe, the co-operation that has been given this department.

These men who have led the way, who have not been afraid to step out into the open and tell what they are doing, to show their successes and their failings, to praise and to criticize the work of others, to congratulate the NEWS on its work and to tell the NEWS where it has gone wrong—these are the men that we have picked to serve on the Advisory Board—men that we believe represent the very best thought of the exhibitors of the country.

IT has been our intention that this Advisory Board should serve as an emergency valve on mistaken policies and as an incentive to greater effort. For that reason we have hesitated to lay down any definite line of action. We have preferred rather that the exhibitors who have real problems on their hands should bring them before us, and then we have planned to call in this wonderful array of successful thought and attempt to solve the problem not alone for the individual, but for the entire industry.

We are no longer in the penny arcade business. The industry is not in "its infancy"—still. There are big and growing problems before us, and the sooner they are brought into intelligent analysis the better it is going to be for everyone. All of us are tired of the "BUNK." It is in the same class with the tin-pan piano that used to stand in front of the gaudily bedecked house that showed a mass of single reelers and "tease 'em in." Possibly some of us once felt that the proper plan was to bunk the public. We have forgotten that and we have learned that success consists in delivering the goods.

It is no longer the case of selling the public "a picture." It is a case of making and selecting and exhibiting the sort of pictures that the public wants.

ANYTHING "new" will draw crowds. It was the novelty of the motion picture that gave it its wonderful start. The public was awed by the marvel of it. People sat and gasped through the thrilling scenes and then ducked their heads when at the end of "The Great Train Robbery" the bandit appeared on the screen and leveled his six-shooter at the audience.

Newness and novelty have worn off. The public has become educated. It has been taken behind the scenes and shown the tricks of the game and artificial accomplishments. But it has not been the case of a mystery exploded and forgotten. Growing thousands of people depend almost entirely on the motion picture for their amusement, but they want to see the sort of a picture that they DO want to see.

It is very well for the theorist to talk of the advertising possibilities of selling the public something that it doesn't want, but that sort of a thing cannot last long. It's an old quotation that runs: "Any clerk can sell a customer something that he comes into the store to buy. It's a good clerk that sells him something else."

Yet that doesn't parallel. You may sell any man a picture once or twice or thrice that he doesn't like, but he hasn't known that he doesn't like it until he sat through the performance. It's going to be mighty hard to get him to come back again, and each time you hand him something that doesn't exactly suit him is going to make him harder to please.

Bad pictures are not alone bad in themselves. They make the audiences critical, make them hunt for faults even in good pictures.

WE feel very sure that there is not today an established producer who would deliberately put on the market what he considered a poor picture. He may be taking a gamble at success, but he is really striving for success. He may experiment and his guesses prove

ADVISORY BOARD PERSONNEL

Samuel L. Rothapfel, Rialto and Rivoli theatres, New York.
Thomas D. Soriero, Park theatre, Boston, and Strand theatre, Lowell.
Harold B. Franklin, Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo.
Edw. L. Hyman, Victoria theatre, Buffalo.
E. Mandlebaum, Loew's Stillman theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.
Mrs. Joseph Grossman, Standard theatre, Cleveland, Ohio.
S. Barret McCormick, Circle theatre, Indianapolis.
Theo. L. Hays, New Garrick theatre, St. Paul.
M. W. McGee, Majestic theatre, Detroit.
Chas. G. Branham, Strand theatre, Minneapolis, Minn.
E. V. Richards, Jr., General Manager, Saenger Amusement Co., New Orleans.
Ernst Boehringer, Liberty theatre, New Orleans.
F. L. Newman, Royal and Regent theatres, Kansas City, Mo.
H. M. Thomas, Strand theatre, Omaha.
P. E. Noble, American theatre, Butte, Montana.
George E. Carpenter, Paramount-Empress theatre, Salt Lake.
Sam W. B. Cohn, Liberty theatre, Spokane, Wash.
G. F. Fullerton, Advertising Manager, Greater Theatres Co., Seattle, Wash.
E. J. Myrick, Liberty theatre, Portland, Ore.
Ralph Ruffner, Columbia theatre, Portland, Ore.
Eugene H. Roth, California theatre, San Francisco.
Sidney Grauman, Grauman's theatre, Los Angeles.

very wrong. But after all, his interests, just as those of the exhibitor, depend upon scoring successes.

Producers today are striving to feel the popular pulse. Some of them are too nervous. Some of them fail to wait long enough to get the real heart beats. And again still some others are willing to spend any time and any expense to find out what the public does want.

The only way that this can be learned is through the exhibitors. And certainly if there was ever a representative body selected to interpret these preferences it is the Advisory Board.

WHAT is a picture? Let's take a look at the process. First the scenario has to be written, either as an original offering or the adaptation of some story. Without discounting the brilliant efforts of the young men of the profession, it is a fact that many of these are prepared by men who have an immature vision of life. They have not been out long enough among men and women to know the sorrows and the laughs they have, to know the emotions that govern souls and move hands to deeds.

The successful picture today must have the heart interest, and above everything else, unless it is frankly a farce or a burlesque, it must be TRUE TO LIFE. It need not be something that has happened to you or to your neighbor, but it must be something that could happen and could happen humanly.

And then there is the director. He may be living in the atmosphere of Fort Lee or Hollywood. He may be a wonderful director from the point of view of technique and past accomplishments. But at the same time he may have lost his touch with the big world spirit. He may have grown to interpret human life as he sees it from his studio surroundings.

In the same measure the actor may go through the role without sympathy of understanding, because the story is foreign to him, because he does not know the natural laugh or the natural tear that would come to the character under similar circumstances.

Is it the laugh of perfect enjoyment or the tear that is driven away by the sunshine of enveloping happiness that forms the great delight?

THERE is, of course, a great deal in the presentation. The exhibitor has his own work to do there, but for the sake of this initial Forum, we want to consider only the part of the production that rests on the manufacturers' shoulders.

WHERE ARE THEY WRONG?

There is not one of them that does not want to be told. Some of them are spending a good deal of money in an attempt to find out. The exhibitors must answer.

We are calling today on members of the Advisory Board to answer this question in the light of their experience. We are not confining the question to them. We will be glad to hear from exhibitors everywhere.

WHAT DOES THE PUBLIC WANT?

We do not ask merely whether they want comedies, or heart-throbs, or society dramas or Westerners. We want to know the spirit that they want interpreted into the pictures and the byways that they believe are being followed.

We do not expect any member of the Advisory Board to create, even in theory, the "Great American Picture," but we do believe that this consensus of thought will be able to point the way, that it will be able to draw the manufacturers from their New York offices, the scenario writers from their typewriters, the directors and the actors from their studios, all of them down into the great throbbing, breathing thing HUMANITY and send them back with, pictured on their brain, the impress of the great popular feeling.

IN the next issue we will print some of the first answers to these questions from members of the Advisory Board. We have not been able to reach a number of them in time for the next publication, but they will appear later.

We feel confident that this is going to be the greatest symposium that has ever appeared in the history of the motion picture. We are not dealing with theorists, but with men that we know.

We feel sure that the Advisory Board is going to accomplish great things. And the Advisory Board is unfettered and unafraid and it is going to jump into the biggest problem of them all first.

ONE new member is added to the Board this week and he comes in with the determination to do everything possible on behalf of his fellow exhibitor and enthusiastic in the belief that the NEWS has hit the nail on the head. He is Charles G. Branham, manager of the Strand theatre, Minneapolis. He writes:

"I consider your invitation to become a member of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors' Service Bureau of the MOTION PICTURE NEWS the highest honor paid me since I entered this industry. Please accept my heartiest thanks. I want you to feel that I am open for 'assignments' at any and all times. I assure you that I will do everything in my power to make the department most helpful. I hope to furnish you interesting facts on the exhibitors end from the standpoint of the manager of the only independent house in the Twin Cities."

WE have already printed the acceptance of Sid Grauman, manager of Grauman's million dollar theatre, Los Angeles, but we told you then that his letter had been delayed in the mails. Here is his most interesting letter to the exhibitors of the country.

"It will afford me much pleasure to serve as a member of the advisory board of the Exhibitors Service Department of your excellent publication, and you can depend upon it that I will be very glad to do my 'bit' in anything that will serve to benefit our industry.

"The gathering of ideas of the successful theatre men of the country for publication in your service department unquestionably will be of great value to everyone of us engaged in the presentation of motion pictures and such a move as this is certainly entitled to the hearty cooperation of everyone called upon.

"I thank you for the honor of this selection and trust that my services will warrant your very kind indulgence."

ANOTHER one of the letters delayed was that of E. J. Myrick, manager of the Liberty theatre, Portland, Oregon. Mr. Myrick, who is one of the livest wires of the whole industry, writes:

"I have carefully gone over your letter and in reply permit me to say that I firmly believe you have hit the source of the trouble square in the eye and you are giving the Exhibitors something that will prove exceedingly beneficial to us all.

"I believe that an Advisory Board will without question be one of the most progressive steps ever conceived to bring about the uniform standard of presentation and creation of the motion picture industry and put it where it belongs."

Exhibitor Service Bureau

Keep A-Poppin' in Portland

One of Newspaper Sets Example of What Can Be Done with Daily Department About Pictures

MANY theatre managers who have become about half way concerted to newspaper advertising believe that they have done enough when they run a display on Sunday. The sort of exploitation that we urge on the theatres that can afford it, and they all can, with the possible exception of a few of the smallest neighborhood houses, is Sunday advertising PLUS daily advertising.

In most cases the form of daily advertising followed is that of a standing "card," merely giving the name of the theatre, the star and the attraction. This is better than no advertising at all, but it lacks a great deal of being the best. Naturally the number of changes of bill made a week, the good and bad business days and other elements enter into the division of advertising, the amount of space to be used, but there is no reason why as much thought should not be given the daily displays as the Sunday, and there is no reason why they should not attract just as much attention and be just as good business builders.

Of course, the theory of advertising in the Sunday papers, even in cities where motion pictures are not permitted on that day, is that the whole family is at home then, that all have time to read the paper and that there generally follows the family discussions that more or less fix the programs for the week. That is a correct theory so far as it goes. There are lots of people who will make up their minds on Sunday as to what they will do during the week, and the intelligent exhibitor will not only try to get all of those who are in the custom of deciding their week's program on Sunday, but he will also attempt to make his display so attractive that the possible patron will pick his theatre as THE one.

So far—fine. But there are a lot of people who are not going to make up their minds on Sunday. There are a lot of others that are apt to change their minds, especially if they are persuaded away from your house by the display of some competitor in Tuesday's paper. There are hundreds of others who do not make the schedule for the day until the day arrives. There are lots and lots of them who suggest to their family or their friends, "Let's go to see a picture show" just a short time before they start, and then they turn to the daily paper to see what appeals to them most. And still another very important use of daily advertising is to reinforce the word-of-mouth advertising that your pictures are getting. The newspaper display is a reminder—it puts the action punch behind the spoken word.

Now, in the first article about newspaper and theatre cooperation in Portland, Ore., we told you that the four first-run theatres—Liberty, Columbia, Majestic and Peoples—were splendid advertisers so far as Sunday is concerned, and that at least two of the newspapers, the Sunday Oregonian and the Journal, were giving good picture pages, especially the former. But we also added that the remainder of the theatres were not advertising consistently, and that they were certainly not doing what the cooperation of the newspapers warranted them in doing. Other theatres use one or more of the Sunday papers, or the Saturday afternoon issue of the two papers which do not issue on Sunday. However, in the copies of the four papers for the week under survey, we can find only one of the others—the Globe—that uses any space during the week, and that one only a very small amount.

The News carried no motion picture advertising during the week, except Saturday, and no motion picture reading matter. The Telegram, a Wednesday page from which is reproduced at the upper left of the opposite page, carries in this issue a quarter page from the Sunset and a small one from the Globe, but, as a whole, mighty little display matter during the week. Under a two-column heading "The Silent Drama," the paper gives the theatre which advertises reading notices and adds a few items about plays and players.

The other two pages on the top row are from the Thursday issue of the Journal, which has recently become more liberal to motion pictures. Note that it carries a heading, "New Offerings on the Screen and Stage," but we find that the page is actually devoted largely to "Beauty Chat," "Fraternal Notes" and other matter that hasn't anything to do with the motion picture. However, there is generally a motion picture story with a top head reviewing one of the new pictures, and there follow some interesting notes of local attractions and of film news in general. In this issue of the Journal, which is the only one of the three afternoon papers that gives pictures real attention, the Liberty, Columbia and Majestic are represented.

All four of these theatres are intelligent advertisers, so far as the composition of their displays are concerned, and all of them believing in taking plenty of room when they have anything to say. This is especially true of the Liberty and the Columbia, two of the livest advertisers in the whole country. For instance, in this issue of the Journal the Liberty used a space three columns wide by fourteen inches deep, and you will note that this theatre runs largely to the use of big half tones and little reading matter. The same is true of the Columbia, which uses larger space than on this page on various days, as you will note from the "Huck and Tom" display on another one of the pages reproduced. Advertising for these two theatres is done by Ralph Ruffner, one of the members of the Advisory Board of the Exhibitors' Service Bureau. Majestic theatre seems to run largely to the black and white effects in advertising, as will be noted from the displays on "Parentage" and "Scandal."

Now let us turn to the newspaper that is doing the MOST, one that, so far as the daily issues are concerned, at least, is one of the leading newspapers of the world from a motion picture point of view. This is the Oregonian, and so important is the work that this paper is doing that we have reproduced six of these pages. And let us say right here that this is one of the very best examples that we know of the ideal co-operation of the newspaper and the motion picture theatre. If every leading newspaper in the country would do as much there would be an increase in the patronage of the theatres that would amaze the owners. And the only way to induce the papers to do this is by liberal advertising when they do offer to co-operate.

Now let us take the Monday issue of the Oregonian, which is shown in the center at the left. Under a two-column heading, which is always used, there is a cut giving a scene from "Parentage," and then follow intelligent and well-written reviews of the productions at the leading houses. These are not mere bunk reading notices, mind you. These are the sort of reviews that the public will come to look for, and don't you for a moment get the idea that the general public doesn't know whether they are genuine or the bunk. We know of the case of a newspaper that for a time was right in the lead of the whole country where the photoplay editor reviewed all the principal pictures and signed such as he saw with his initials, so that the public would know that he was not responsible for the unsigned ones. And they were not always favorable reviews, for he told the truth about pictures as he saw them. Neither was he the sort of a smart alec, too often found, who thinks that it is clever to pick pictures to pieces just to show how wise he is. But the point is that the time for making up the Sunday photoplay section was advanced on him so that he did not have time to review the midweek change of one of the leading houses, on Thursday, and the owner of that house threatened to stop advertising unless he got these genuine reviews. It was not a case of bluffing. He could have had just as much space prepared by his own press agent and it would have praised

(Continued on page 1885)

What Happens in Portland's Picturedom During the Week

At the top, at the left, is a Thursday page from the Telegram, and to the right two pages from the Journal. The remaining six pages illustrate how the Oregonian day after days caters to the theatre and the picture fan. See article on opposite page.

Seeing the Rialto and the Rivoli with Rothapfel

EXCEPT that they both have pictures and music and song, together with the wonderful lighting and scenic effects that mark at the presentations at the Rialto and the Rivoli this week are as different as if they had been selected by two different men. And, after all, it often happens that two different men in selecting programs for a specific week do hit on about the same lines. There might be a sameness in the sort of material used, but there would be pretty sure to be a different tone.

With the exception of the fact that the overtures of both houses pay a tribute to St. Patrick's day, from that point on the bills take different paths, but when you get down to the analysis of it you see the very good reasons why they should and why both of the bills again prove that Rothapfel has the right idea in giving his presentations a motif, in carrying them through with a perfect harmony. Recently we have had a number of inquiries as to how Mr. Rothapfel builds up his programs. A careful study of this article will answer many of these inquiries.

At the Rivoli there is a marked departure taken this week. There is no Animated Pictorial, in the sense that we view it. There is not a news item in it, and it consists of a Finley Nature Picture and one of those delightful Coronet Films, released by Educational. It makes a charming number the two of them, and there are a lot of thrills and laughs in the Coronet picture which shows first a fight between two stags and then turns to a battle between two goats with their butting each other while the orchestra carries out the effects. This double number was made all the more pleasing by the musical selections used, including "The Mill in the Forest," "Cricket Serenade" and "Dance Grotesque." There was a very good reason for dropping the news feature for this week. The first instalment of the new Official Italian War Films were shown, and these were filled with such thrilling scenes that the audience would have been given an overdose if there had been added several hundred feet of war pictures to the Animated.

"Wild Youth," the feature, is intensely dramatic, with hardly a laugh in it, but yet the animated sub-title with the Denishawn dancers brings out the spirit of youth strongly and the spirit of youth may be called the motif of the entire bill.

In our opinion Mr. Rothapfel has achieved in the overture this week the most striking arrangement that he has ever seen. True, he has violated about all of the "rules" in his arrangement, but that is just what makes his productions so pleasing—the unexpected is always happening. Selections from Victor Herbert's "Eileen," originally produced under the title of "Hearts of Erin" is the number. With the beginning of it the lights became blue, fading into green, and then the orchestra played for about half the length of the ordinary overture, and then the curtains of the stage part and two dancers appear dressed as Irish girl and youth. Then when this has been concluded the Rialto male quartette, seated in the orchestra, sings "Come Back to Erin," this bringing the overture to an end with a crash of applause.

Following the animal pictures Miss Frances Orr, 'cellist, is revealed seated in a rose colored room, and just as the curtains part she begins to play "The Swan," the curtains falling just on the last strains. For this and for the next musical number, Mr. Rothapfel is using this week some unique lighting effects, getting the colors on the singers from the sides and from back lighting. In the case of the 'cello number, the whole of the house is bathed in blue, except for the stage which has a pink effect. This splendid system of lighting results in the orchestra itself being in the blue light, and the soloist brought out in contrast with the pink effects.

Then comes the feature which holds the audience in tense interest and then follows another touch of light and life with the Rialto Quartette singing first "Little Cotton Dolly," and "There's a Long, Long Trail." The quartette is seated during the numbers and the lighting effects are first with a blue dome and the stage red, and with the second selection the house becoming all blue except for the stage, the side lighting system again being used.

Unquestionably the most vivid war scenes that we have ever seen are embraced in the first instalment of the new Italian pictures. One may see men killed before his eyes, an Italian cannon blown up by an Austrian shell, and many of the secrets of the battle line revealed. One sees the preparations, the men actually go over the top, sees them slay the foe and then win victory. The Italian Royal Commission sat in the loge Sunday evening and saw the pictures projected with the splendid musical accompaniment that has been specially arranged. This of course included all of the striking battle effects, and then "Fortunes of Destiny," "Il Guarany" and "Mazeppa."

We have told you that Rothapfel wants to send his people away from the theatre laughing or humming intimate music and that is the reason that he needs a comedy last, almost always. But this week he wanted to achieve a different effect. This is only the first of six sets of these pictures and he wanted to leave the tense interest, the desire to see more. He strived for and achieved the continued story effect in a way that will net him thousands of dollars in word of mouth advertising.

Rialto has a real St. Patrick's bill this week; that is the motif of it and the Irish quality of good humor stamps the comedy feature and the Arbuckle nonsense as well. "Irish Rhapsody" by Herbert is the overture, and this includes a number of the most popular Irish favorites. Then follow scenes in Ireland and after that Joseph Martell, accompanied by a quartette of male voices, sings "Kerry Dances." Green lighting effects are used, with the side panels parting and showing Irish country life scenes.

Rialto Animated opens with Universal pictures of hoisting the Liberty banner over the battleship "Recruit" and "Daughter of the Regiment" and "Stars and Stripes Forever" help get this continuous applause. Universal also contributes pictures of making big guns and the newly invented steam gun, for both of which the music is "Daughter of the Regiment." Pathe pictures of Cauterets, France, follow—one of the few cases in which we disagree with Mr. Rothapfel's arrangement, for we would have omitted it here. Then come Universals of California snow festival, shown to "Petersburg Sleigh Ride," and then follow most interesting Pathe analyses of children dancing. It delighted the audience when we saw it and there was a good reason for using it in one of the sub-motifs of the presentation, for dancing was the foundation of the pleasing feature, Enid Bennett in "Naughty, Naughty." "Tarantella," a jig, and "Gold and Silver," waltz, are used for the dance pictures. Pathe supplies also the pictures of the California gas fire and the steamer "Kershaw" ashore, for which a special agitato is played. New Zealand boat races (Universal) is shown with "La Symphides," and then come Screen Telegram pictures of Toronto workmen in a beer protest with another agitato mobilization of British man power, shown with "Sons of Britain," march, is especially moving. Now watch the patriotic inspiration to the end of the Animated. Next comes pictures of decorating the French heroes (Pathe) and this is played with "Sombre et Meuse," and this gets striking attention and then at the end it merges in a cartoon, showing a statue of the war hero of the past, such as we are familiar with, seated on a rearing horse fading into an aeroplane with an American at the wheel.

Miss Gladys Rice then contributes one of the most delightful bits with "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "You'd Better Ask Me," both Irish compositions. For the first selection the center of the main dome is in red with the border in blue and the stage semi-dome in blue. After the first selection all of these fade to a darker blue and the orchestra gives away to harp and organ echo effect that brings the melody close to the heart.

Wish we had time to tell you how the feature was handled. At one point during an amateur entertainment that starts all the trouble in "Naughty, Naughty," a girl singer appears on the screen, and there the orchestra rags "Silver Threads Among the Gold," and a little later on gives some jazz effects with the dance hall scenes, only the piano, two horns and a violin being used.

"Queen of Sheba" march, one of the most brilliant selections ever used, follows, and when we say it, it got even more applause than the overture. Then follows Fatty Arbuckle in "The Bell Boy," an unusual slap-stick comedy that sends the audience away with delight with the world.

At the left is the stage setting of the Colonial theatre, Columbus, O., on "Blue Blazes Rawden," and at the right "The Hired Man."

This Week at the Strand

THREE musical numbers at the Strand and the feature, too, for that matter pay a tribute to St. Patrick's day. In the article on the Rialto and the Rivoli we mention that two men hit upon the same thing very often, and so it is proved for Managing Director Harold Edel has picked the same overture that is used at the Rialto. Victor Herbert, "Irish Melody." This is played with special effects.

Lighting of the stage is a bluish green, and as the selections continue these dim into a darker blue and the moon appears and afterwards the moon goes out and the lights come up again.

There is a smashing effect achieved in the Topical with the use of "Marseillaise." Though at first the audience was hesitant about rising, it did get up and toward the end there came cheer after cheer from all parts of the audience. The Topical opens with Pathe pictures of selling smileage books at Camp Logan, and then pictures of the "Kershaw" ashore, with special musical effects followed by the British recruiting drive at Albany. The California gas fire is made the more realistic by using a red tinting slide in front of the projection machine. Hawaiian music is used with Paramount-Bray pictures of scenes in Hawaii, and although the "Hula Hula" dance pictures introduced are rather frank they get a good laugh. Then follow the pictures of the British man-power mobilization, made all the more effective with the employment of trumpet calls and the drum effects. Pathe also supplied the closing number that gets the big demonstrations. These are the same pictures that are shown at the Rialto, but more of them are used, for after the decoration of the heroes comes the marching men and the sub-titles that are used breathe the spirit of victory, and there is enthusiasm enough even without the French national air, but that, after it is recognized brings one of the biggest outbursts that we have ever seen.

Charles Formes, baritone, then brings back the Irish touch with his renditions of "Killarney" and "Macushla." Then comes the second instalment of the Ditmars "Depths of the Sea" pictures which are making such a big hit. This week some of the novelties shown are fish that walk on the ground, the sea cat that enters the devil fish's lair unafraid and unattacked, the dog fish, and then one of the most wonderful of pictures, the gas clouds that are given out by the cuttle fish to hide from attack. There is quite a thrill when the devil fish attacks the fish equipped with the electric ray and is stunned for his trouble.

"Bobby Bumps," a new Paramount-Bray, gives a good laugh and then Miss Edith Sinclair, harpist, plays "Believe Me If All Those Endearing Young Charms." We dislike comparisons, but this is for the benefit of the exhibitor. When the curtains part showing the salon, the first thing that happened—at least when we saw the show—was that the soloist got up and bowed. Then she sat down and played. And then at the end she got up and bowed again. To us that loses a whole lot of the charming effect. At the Rivoli this week there is a similar number, yet as the curtains part they reveal the girl seated and she begins playing with the sight of her and as the last strains are dying away the curtain falls. One seems to reveal the mechanics of the thing, if we may call it such. The other way leaves the complete artistic touch, the feeling with the audience that it has been delighted but hardly had enough.

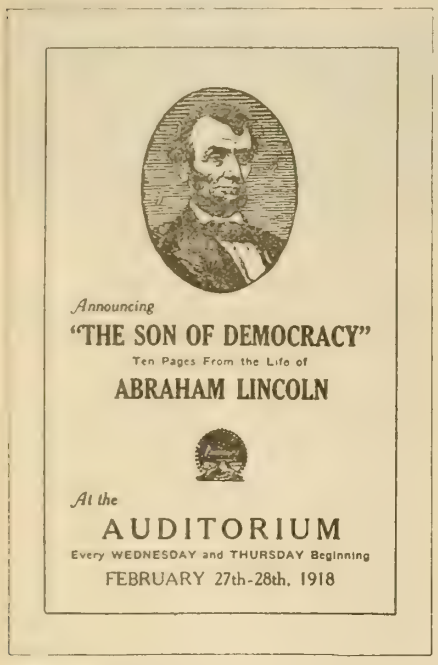
Mabel Normand is a little Irish girl—O'Rourke in "The Floor Below."

Miss Rosa Lind, in the costume of a French soldier and carrying a French flag sings "Daughter of the Regiment" most effectively, and the performance comes to a pleasing ending with "The Stenographer."

Marcus Strikes News Note in Stage Displays and Scores Big Hit

M. MARCUS, manager of the Colonial theatre, Columbus, O., has achieved the most novel effect that we have ever seen in stage settings and his plan can be followed by almost any exhibitor at the minimum of expense. These are the first of a series and we expect that Mr. Marcus will send us a number of others, together with descriptions of the method used in constructing them. The chief requirement for their use is ample space on either side of the screen, on a special stage if possible.

They certainly achieve wonders in getting the atmosphere of the features and they are bound to make a big hit with the audiences.



For "The Hired Man" Mr. Marcus represented the rural atmosphere even to the extent of using a dozen live chickens in a wire coop in front of the screen as well as live pigs and a cow. While the chickens cannot be seen in the picture, they certainly made their presence known when the curtains were drawn aside and the orchestra began to play the prelude to the picture. To further carry out the idea the entire staff of the Colonial was dressed in "rube" costume. This display attracted a great deal of attention from the Columbus papers.

Logs were borrowed from a local sawmill for the Hart picture, "Blue Blazes Rawden," and the service of ten four-horse teams were required to haul them to the theatre. These logs represented an investment of $1,500 at the present price of lumber. The very hauling of these through the streets was made capital for advertising, for each of the wagons bore a banner inscribed "William S. Hart as the fighting lumberjack in the dense wilderness of the Northwest, where men fight and fight hard, at the Colonial all this week."

The atmosphere of these stage settings was carried out all through the theatre, in the lobby and the foyer.

Your Idea---and Ours

THERE has been a great deal of intelligent exploitation work on "The Sons of Democracy,' but quite the best of these is an eight-page folder prepared by Walter H. Brooks, manager of the Coatesville, Pa., Auditorium. Some of the material as has been supplied by Paramount was used, but this matter was rewritten and extracts from Lincoln's Gettysburg address used on the back cover.

This is the sort of exploitation that is at once dignified and convincing. Mr. Brooks avoids the ballyhoo style of advertising in all of his matter, and that is the reason why he is so successful. "Don't let them tell you that any first-class house cannot afford to put out the more elaborate style of work, for I can assure you that my booklet is far the best investment." That is his own comment on the fact that he has used good paper and had spent a little more money to make it something worth while.

If you hit the trail now you'll get a lot further than if you sit around and wait for a pair of Seven League Boots.

HOW much attention are you paying to the appearance of your ushers? A couple of years ago most theatres thought that they were doing enough if they simply had some one in the doorway to direct the patrons which way to go. As the exhibition business has progressed more and more attention had been paid to this service end of the theatre.

Ordinarily there would not be much reason for printing a photo of a row of ushers, but we are doing this to emphasize that Sam W. B. Cohn, manager of the Liberty, Spokane, Wash., believes that this is one of the most important points, and so he has equipped his force with new raiment. The ushers' suits are made of dark brown cloth trimmed with silver, and each one wears a fac-simile of the Goddess of Liberty on his breast. The negro pages wear red uniforms trimmed with gold.

In to the fires of spring (this spring) the winter garments of non-progressiveness fling. (And don't get out the fire extinguisher.)

"PRICE OF A GOOD TIME" is one feature that seems to have drawn original advertising ideas from various exhibitors, and the picture has been exploited in many forms, ranging from pictures of a chorus and merely the name of the picture to detailed and somewhat overdone emphasis on the sordid part of life shown in the film.

Strand Theatre, Minneapolis, has achieved through a designed display one of the best of all of these that we have seen. Here the title of the picture, which in this case appears to us to be the big selling point, is brought out strikingly, and the finer points are suggested by the scale with Pleasure outweighing Honor and the mysterious question mark arising from the wine glass. In most cases we don't believe in going into detail to tell the public what a picture is about. There should always be enough of the curiosity appeal left to bring the people to the theatre. This display, which occupies a space four columns wide by 9½ inches deep, certainly achieves that object.

You are not in Europe, so keep the gas out of your fights for patronage.

PALACE THEATRE, Waterloo, Iowa, is generally one of our most intelligent advertisers, but in this display it evidences that rules or boxes are very dangerous things to fool with unless the designer has a mighty good idea of what they are going to look like. Rules are never advisable when they break the interest. They are worth while only when they direct the attention from one idea to another in natural sequence. In this display the rule at the left is turned in, with the effect that one is led to believe that the portion of the display below it is about something else.

The block effect around the central display is effective and makes it stand out, yet it would have been much more effective with only the title of the production and possibly the name of the star. The designer has shown too much of a desire to use all possible space by putting in the repeated "7 Parts" at the right hand side.

Don't expect your audiences to do all the cheering; remember that is your first and last duty.

WE have just received this inquiry: "What would you say is the proper balance between cuts, large display matter and descriptive matter about the production in the case of a star who is well known and popular and a picture about which the general public knows little?

In answer to this question we take from last Sunday's Cleveland papers this display of the Orpheum theatre, which fully answers this question. Here the space used was four columns wide by 10½ inches deep. Of course, the big dominating thing about the display is the halftone, which is taken from one of the scenes of the production. Then the name of the star is brought out prominently. Now, of course, "Du Barry" is a well known character in history, but there are probably a lot of photoplay goers who do not know much about her, and so the man preparing this took pains to tell, using small type in a mortise at the bottom of the cut, where it in no way conflicts with the general display. In other words, "you don't have to read it unless you want to." We believe that this is as good advertising of such a feature as we ever saw, and we commend it to those who are looking for answers to that one reader's question.

What Live Wires Are Doing

It is well to bear in mind that this war has rendered expressions in the superlative mere drivel to the ordinary ear.

ARTHUR G. STOLTE, manager of the Strand Theatre, Cedar Rapids, Ia., is one who seems to have achieved the idea of getting out his programs and his special exploitation matter in a dignified form, yet with the intimate appeal that brings business. We have printed many of the specimens of his work here, and now we are presenting the cover of a sixteen page booklet, 4½ by 6 inches, which covers the March attractions. Mr. Stolte uses a cut of the Strand in most of his matter of this sort—an excellent idea.

Inside are short stories about the attractions, each illustrated with a small cut of the star. In addition, there is an appeal, "Go to the Theatre Over Here and Help Our Boys Over There," together with a page of short editorial paragraphs and talks about brand of pictures shown at the house. Mark you, this is on the inside.

If you keep the barrage fire of enterprise before your house, there's no donger of your rival getting your patrons.

MORE and more as this year goes along the motion picture theatres will be called upon to lend a helping hand to the various Government activities. Already most of the theatres have fuly done their parts, but the continuous cooperation with the Government is what counts in the long run.

Manager Harold B. Franklin, of Shea's Hippodrome, Buffalo, who is noted for his stage settings on special events has been cooperating through all of the campaigns, and his patriotic designs have been notable, and frequently reproduced in these columns. Just now he is giving especial attention to War Savings Stamps and recently used the stage setting that is reproduced here. Slides are being shown on the screen and stamp booths have been opened in the lobbies.

The stage setting represented the Capitol at Washington. When the curtains were drawn aside the 26-piece orchestra was playing Victor Herbert's "American Fantasie," the various stage lights were thrown upon the scene and from behind the dome of the Capitol rose a large circle, representing the sun, from which shone the illuminated words "BUY WAR SAVINGS STAMPS." The approval of the audience was instantaneous.

The fellow that gets "over the top" is not the one who hangs back hesitant.

RECENTLY we reproduced the advertisement of a theatre which used special designs each week, but which, unfortunately, based this design on the picture that was to be shown the last two days of the week, when the displays appeared in the Sunday issue. We said then that we liked the design idea, but that this should have been based on the NOW show.

Empire Theatre, Providence, is using this idea, and as we suggested it, with excellent effect. One's eye is attracted immediately by the figure of the man and the horse at the right, which one immediately associates with the current picture, and one is not disappointed. That is another thing to be remembered in advertising. You are to a certain extent misleading the public when you play up a picture through the design and lead them to the thought that it is your current attraction, and then after they read the type matter they find that it refers to some other attraction than the current one.

WE are asked what is the matter with this display. The answer is: Almost everything agrees in giving this display a crowded effect. In the first place, the heavy double border gives the reader the impression that this is made so because the type in the center of it is trying to break out, and when one looks at the type itself one is confirmed in the same impression, for there is simply a mass of matter. This display occupies a space three columns wide by six inches deep and has been given a splendid position in the upper right hand corner, which saves it to some extent.

Here is something to bear in mind: Never use a heavy border unless you can afford to allow lots of white space on both sides of it. In other words, to effectively use such a border you must allow for a certain amount of room between that border and the column rule and then you must give further white space inside the display. If there had been a half inch of white space within the border the effect would have been much better. All the type used is of the heaviest black. There isn't the slightest bit of contrast.

Rothapfel's Answers to Exhibitors

Mr. Rothapfel Will Answer Here any Questions Regarding Problems in Exhibition. The Only Conditions Are That the Questions Must Not Bear on the Merits of Particular Pictures or Services and That They Must Come Through the NEWS. Address Your Inquiries "ROTHAPFEL ADVICE, EXHIBITORS' SERVICE BUREAU, MOTION PICTURE NEWS."

LII—Double bills (two, five or six-reel features) are the fashion in this city of 75,000, but I believe that they are a sad mistake here, if not everywhere, but I have had to follow in the footsteps of the others because of the bargain method which they use in their advertising. This is largely a manufacturing and railroad city. Practically all of the factories are now working on war contracts and there is more money here than ever before in the history of the city. Still the motion picture business is nothing like as good as it was a year ago, and I am satisfied that the war tax is not responsible for a greater portion of the loss, for, as I have said, everyone is making more, and they can afford to pay more. Practically all of the theatres are located on the main street and within three blocks of each other. The theatres are not good advertisers and we get little co-operation from the newspapers. None of the houses seat more than 800, and mine is as large and as good as any of them. Now I am satisfied that there is enough high-class patronage outside of the working class to support one theatre, provided that I can get them into the habit of coming. Ten years ago this was one of the best legitimate towns of its size in the country, but, as you know, we get few good road attractions these days. I feel that I should do something radical to get this former theatrical patronage, for in those days it was not the workingman that supported the legitimate house. Now what can you suggest for me to do to go after this? I am in a position to spend a reasonable amount of money if my bank is convinced that it is good business.—A. M. N.

I AM opposed to double bills. I have said so time and time again. They are not practical and will prove ruinous. I hope the time will come when the large motion picture corporations will not tolerate them. You are stuffing your patrons.

You admit that everything is prosperous around your town. You have the opportunity to use your ability, foresight, initiative, to strike out against the two feature business. You may apparently lose at the beginning, but if you use the money you would have spent on ahe second feature for improving your show in its entirety, with a scenic, a comic, a weekly, good music, live advertising, courteous service, etc., you will achieve results.

You say the business is not as good as it used to be. The trouble with you is similar to the trouble with many. You have gotten into a rut. You have fed the people on stuff so much alike that they have gotten sick of it. You have to do things differently from now on. It is up to you to start a new advertising campaign. It is up to you to make your theatre the thing, and to individualize it by the demonstration of your own personality. Get better talent. Get some novelties. Clean out the house. Give it new carpet; redecorate the interior; give it an attractive exterior.

Wake up. ADVERTISE. That's the way to get business.

Don't go around looking licked. People don't like an atmosphere of trouble. THE WORLD LOVES A WINNER. Look success even though you haven't got it. Keep smiling. Make people believe you are doing a wonderful business. Fill your house somehow or other. Give good shows. Cooperate with the newspapers. Use your head. Surely, if your house is as good as others and you have a population of 75,000, you ought to clean up. It takes showmanship, hard work, perseverance, and above all, initiative and originality.

LIII—As a little town exhibitor I would appreciate it very much if you would tell me how a small exhibitor should pick and book features and short reels for his place, if it is an impossibility for him to see them first. Would you take any film man's advice if he was trying to sell you ser-[illegible]

MY advice to you would be to watch your trade paper very closely and get some reliable advance information on what is doing. I am very sorry to have to advise you not to take the advice of a film man who is trying to sell you service. If you did do this, it would be his individuality that would be running your show shop, instead of your own. Just lock yourself in a room for a few minutes, sit down and use your head and I think you will be able to answer your own question.

LIV—Somehow I don't seem quite able to figure out the time per number on such programs as you present in a way I might be able to offer as much [illegible] our limit. This letter is necessitated by the local custom of two [illegible] evening. These are started at 7 and 9 p. m. respectively. I [illegible] closing Rivoli and Rialto programs of Feb. 10. Please set out the time for each number. How do you make up a two-hour program with a seven-reel feature?—D. H. S.

YOUR position is much easier than mine. You can run two shows very easily at seven and nine o'clock, but if you run a seven-reel feature you will have to cut down on something else. Have a shorter comedy, a shorter topical and scenic, and use approximately eight thousand feet.

Run your feature a little faster. It must depend upon yourself and your taste. Running pictures too slow is as bad as running them too fast. Of the two I prefer the latter. Seven reels does not necessarily mean seven thousand feet. It may only be 5,300 feet. Use about 600 or 700 feet of good topical film, 300 feet of scenic and a good cartoon comedy, and there you are. Just use your head, please.

LV—I am a great believer in serials for smaller communities, and the serial is almost a necessity here if a theatre would appeal to the tastes of the public. I have been making a daily change and running two different serials, each one night a week. I have followed the usual custom and have filled in the remainder of the show with short reels. So far, so good. But the custom for some reason has been to charge a lower admission on serial night than on any other night of the week. The managers at the start figured that they could get the short reels cheaper than the feature and that they were saving money. I find that it is bad policy, because there is a certain element that waits for the cheaper night, not alone because of the serial, but on account of the lower admission. Understand, that I am not knocking the serial, for it is a necessity with me, and after several years' experience I know it. My ordinary bill consists of a feature and a two-reel comedy, or a feature and a one-reel comedy, and a news reel or scenic—an average of seven reels. I have been considering building up the serial night by putting on a feature, the serial and a one-reel comedy. What is your experience with such programs, though I understand that you do not use serials at your two big houses? This program, at my standard prices, would be no greater proportionate expense than is my present serial-night program at the lower prices. I am strong for the uniform admission price, which, I note, prevails at your houses, but I have to do something to get away from custom. Will you give me the benefit of your experience?—SERIAL.

IF you have made the serial a necessity, you of course will have to go through with it, but I think it would be a grave mistake to ever lower your price, because this is always detrimental and will work harm in the end. I would, I think, do what you suggest, that is—putting a feature with the serial and cutting out the comedy and whatever else is necessary to make up your program. You will have to use your best judgment, as you know your conditions better than I.

I would advise you first, never to lower your price; second, to make your show a little better, to add to it even if it becomes a little more expensive, and to work up your bill to a point where the public must come to your theatre. Don't be afraid of the other fellow.

If a serial is good enough it will draw the regular price. In a large city like this a serial is hardly practical.

Nevertheless sit right down and think it all over and you will get results.

By the way, I notice this question is the third one this week where my one advice is to think, think, THINK. There is an editorial in the Hearst Magazine of this month by Mr. Herbert Kaufman; I think. It is entitled "Think." I would advise every exhibitor in America to read this editorial and act accordingly.

ASK WHOM YOU WISH

Any Member of the Advisory Board You Select Will Answer You

ALTHOUGH Mr. Rothapfel will continue to conduct this invaluable department, there may be cases where, because of local condition or because you know that some certain manager has had similar experiences to your own that you want to have some other member of the Advisory Board answer your question.

Any member will do that. The only requirements are that these questions must not refer to the merit of individual films or film services and that all of these questions must come through the NEWS. Use the name of the member of the board you want to answer in your address as: "McCormick Inquiry, Exhibitors' Service Bureau, Motion Picture News."

There is no change in the address for the Rothapfel inquiries, as given at the top of this page.

Putting the Note-Book to Work For Me

This is the eleventh of our series of articles, "The Diary of a Successful Exhibitor," by an exhibitor who tells each week what he is doing to develop his house, the lessons that he learns and the errors that he discovers. It is a frank discussion of the pleasures an devils of exhibition in a town of 15,000, and the tips contained here will probably be of value to managers in all sections.

By a Successful Exhibitor

AS a boy I had read a story of some well known author who is said to have always taken a note book to bed with him because many ideas came to him as he waited for sleep to come. I had had the same experience, but it was chiefly for my waking hours that I began to make it a point to carry a note book with me always and to jot down anything that might occur to me as to how I could better my show. It is not only an antidote for a poor memory, but it is a stimulant to make people think—and that is one of the big things that every exhibitor needs. I believe that little note book and the psychological effect it had on me was more responsible for the success that followed than any other one thing.

This note book plan came to me while I was on the way home from the exchange city. It so happened that I didn't have a piece of paper on hand and a neighbor in the smoking car saw me looking for some and pulled out a loose leaf note book and tore therefrom a sheet. My order for one of these and a stock of sheets was my first business when I got home. Since then I have worn out several of the solid leather covers and a lot of people have thought they had a laugh on me because I stopped to put down some idea that came possibly as an accident—but not as an accident for I finally trained my mind to view things in the light of a motion picture theatre manager and so I got their adaptation.

In an earlier article I have mentioned the circular letter evil and how it has been overdone. I called attention to the fact that some of the producers recommend a series of letters on each production and that if that plan was followed on every production the exhibitor wouldn't get enough returns to repay the postage and that he would also disgust his patrons with keeping them busy opening circulars. Another great evil is the recommendation that "you get your bookseller to arrange a display when you show this picture, because it is based on So and So's famous book. The bookseller can tie up with you and both of you profit." In the material that I get I see this plan recommended so often that it appears to me that the men preparing the exploitation matter as a regular formula—anything to make his employer think that he is hard at work. Why, if this window display recommendation could be followed every time it is recommended to you the stores of your town would never have space to ever display anything that they wanted to sell. Of course, this can be done in the larger cities once in awhile, but it is rot to attempt to use this as a regular stunt week in and week out. And then what about the smaller cities where the bookstore is only a large newsstand or part of a general store?

As I say I had used this plan once or twice and with success, because it was novel, but I didn't keep on doing it. There are other ways of getting around this, and the idea came to me one day when I was in our public library and I heard a high school girl who had just taken out a certain novel say, "Oh, I saw by yesterday's paper that Mary Jones is going to play in this story." She was referring to one of the little notes that I had written for the photoplay column our newspaper had started at my suggestion. It was an idea for my little note book. Of course I knew the pictures I was regularly playing and by watching the MOTION PICTURE NEWS closely I often found that such and such player was to appear in the screen version of a certain story or book and in lots of cases I got this information before work on the picture was started. But, at any rate, I always knew some time before I actually showed the picture. I proceeded to have a series of cards printed, each one bearing the picture of the star, for which I used the stock cuts that I had accumulated and saying "Mary Jones will be seen soon in 'The Last Legend' at the Waterford theatre. If you like this story you will want to see her." I arranged with the librarian to have these cards placed in these books as they were taken out by readers and supplied enough cards so there would be a fresh card for each reader of the book. I also worked the same idea with the bookstores. In most such cases I couldn't give the date of my showing and I am really inclined to believe that this sort of exploitation is better without the date, for then it loses some of the plain advertising flavor.

I could see the results from the start. The first book that I tried this with was one of the new popular novels. There were two copies of it in the library and these were in demand, but though I knew that the story was being made into a feature it would be some time before I would get it. But during the first two weeks of this plan I had more inquiries about when the picture would be shown twice over than could have come even if each reader of the two copies had kept the book but a single day and they were allowed to keep it three. This was a love story that appealed particularly to girls and I could visualize a couple of them together, one telling the other what a delightful story it was and that it was soon to be shown at my house, and how this word would pass around. Then I began to enlarge on this idea, and again my note book came in handy. On this other occasion I was in the library again and I was surprised to find that there was only one copy of another popular novel there, and I asked why. "Oh," said the young lady, "that appeared as a serial in the—(mentioning a periodical that had an immense circulation). Nearly everyone read it there and the demand for it from those that haven't read it will be short lived and we only get one copy of such books."

Another idea: I got from the county agent, or had him get from the boys that worked for him, the names of every subscriber in my territory. This agent got an annual pass for his trouble, but he did a lot more work later. Now the stories from this periodical generally appeared in pictures some time after they had been in print so I used a form of circular letters—very short and to the point—recalling this story and announcing that I was to show it. I gave the date in these announcements because, as I say, these stories never appeared in films at the same time they were running in the magazine. Now if you try this magazine plan, let me suggest two things to you. First, the country subscriber is more apt to read the magazines from "cover to cover" than the town man. Second, the women are the greatest followers of such stories and it is a safe bet to address these reminders to them.

Even more important than making a sole appeal to the individual who has read the story in magazine form, is the creation of the word of mouth advertising. And far more than either was the impression left that my theatre was showing everything worth while.

AT NEW ANGLES

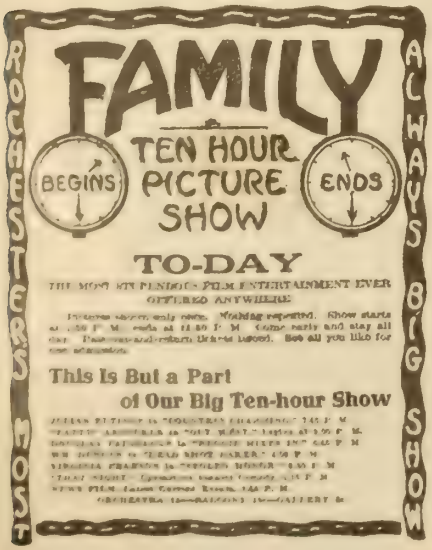
Successful Exhibitor Tells of Using Book Interest

IN this article Successful Exhibitor takes a shot at the methods of some producers who recommend window displays on every film that is made from a well known book, but like other successful men he is not content with criticizing something that the other fellow does, but he tells of how he overcame the difficulties for himself. Particularly, is his plan adapted to a smaller city or a neighborhood theatre and even to the country town of considerable size.

But behind all of these suggestions that he is going to make was the "Note Book Idea." Every time anything happened, he thought of the incident in the light of his motion picture theatre—he sought to adapt the idea down for his use, and so he wrote it down in his note book, not alone to prevent his forgetting it, but to stimulate his mind to look for other things. How many ideas do you dig up for yourself in a year? How many occur to you that you forget or you fail to use?

10 HOURS of Pictures for Dime Record Set by a Rochester Theatre

"TEN hours of motion pictures for a dime!"



Even the Veteran Reviewer is still shuddering. He thinks that it is terrible when he has to sit through three features in one day, and wants an extra salary for it. But he was shown the announcement of ten hours of pictures a week ago Monday and he has been shuddering ever since.

We are aware that April 1 is just two days removed from the date of this issue of the NEWS. But this is no April the first joke; it would be a great deal better for the industry if it were. But it is an actuality and it has happened in Rochester, and the owner of the theatre where it happened says that it is going to keep on happening. Ten hours of pictures, including six five-reel features, three two-reel comedies, a travel picture, a scenic, a topical and a news reel. All for a dime—but nothing is said about the reward for the fellow who sits through all of this.

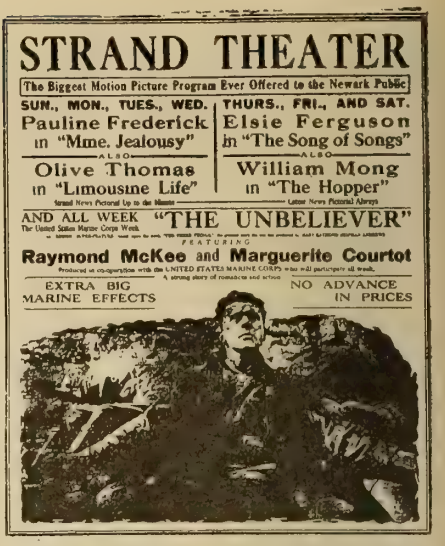
Reproduced on this page is the advertisement of the Family theatre, which struck our eye when we looked at the photoplay page of the Rochester Herald in our search for the display of another house. But we couldn't get away from this one. It occupied the top position in a full two column space devoted to all of the theatres operated by R. W. Fennyvessy and his son. They also control the Rialto and the Strand and have a small interest in three other big downtown houses, the Regent, Piccadilly, and Gordon. This probably enables them to get the films required for the ten-hour show.

Among the features advertised were Julian Eltinge in "The Countess Charming," Douglas Fairbanks in "Reggie Mixes In," William Duncan in "Dead Shot Baker," and Virginia Pearson in "Stolen Honors." The comedy element of the bill was furnished by Mack Sennett and Fatty Arbuckle pictures.

You will note from the advertisement that the show started at 1:30 p. m. and closed at 11:30. According to the management about half of the people stayed five hours and hardly anyone stayed less than three hours. Some six or eight were found who admitted that they had remained through the entire show, keeping themselves alive on pop corn and ice cream, which was sold by a clerk from an adjoining store. To further carry the idea through pass-out checks were given at this first of the Ten Hour shows, allowing the patron to go out and get a little rest and then come back and acquire another dose. However, this pass-out check was given up after the first Sunday.

Family used top position to announce ten hours for a dime

What was the condition of affairs that was responsible for this record-breaking bill? Recently, Edward M. Fay, the New England producer, opened Fay's theatre in Rochester and has been setting a new pace for newspaper advertising and incidentally giving six acts of vaudeville and a five- or six-reel feature. According to the reports from Rochester, Fay's has been getting great patronage and it was to offset this and attract. The management of the theatre believes that this plan paid as an advertisement, although not much profit is expected from such bills.



One of the second Sunday advertisements of the Family barely mentions the ten hour show and then gives its attention to the regular bill of the week, opening Monday and including six vaudeville acts, a Paramount feature and a Sennett comedy. The other, and smaller advertisement, gives a list of some of the pictures which will be seen in the course of the ten hour show, including Norma Talmadge in "The Moth" and Wm. Duncan in "Cupid's Messenger."

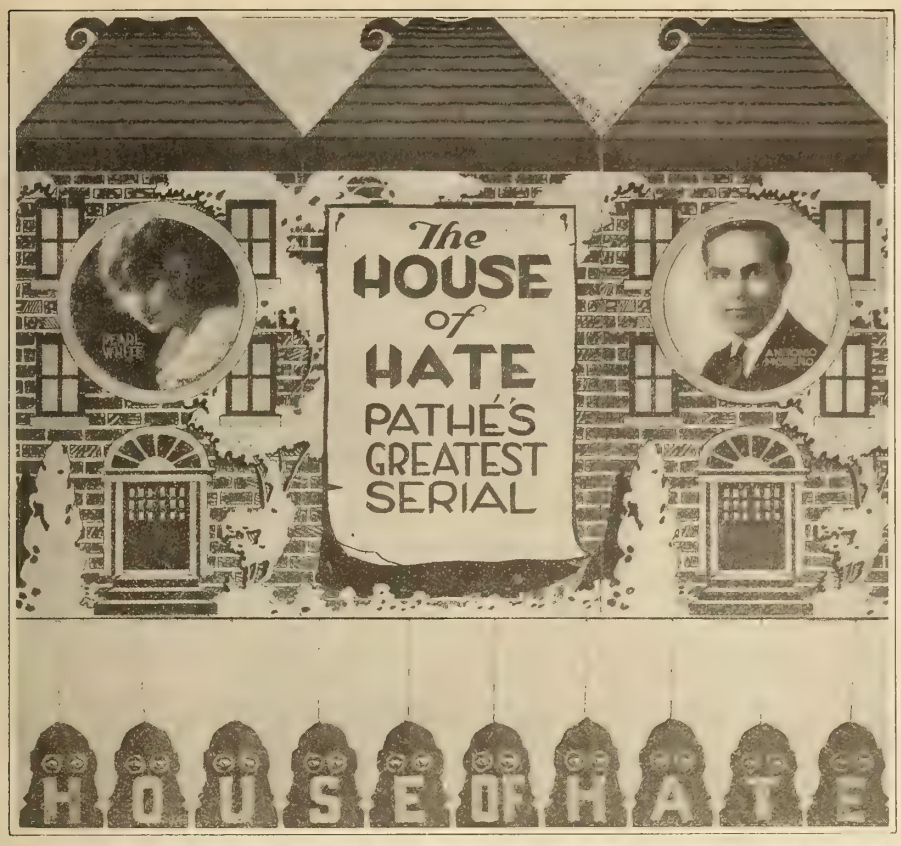
It is no new trick for vaudeville houses, which also give a feature picture, to make the length of their shows at a low price of admission a feature. Of course, the very object of their policy is to meet the low price of the picture houses, at the same time include a picture and give such a long show that they will draw the people who love a "bargain." At the same time they are aiming at the very foundation of the motion picture, and we suspect that they would be very much pleased if they could turn the people from the "movies" and back to the sort of vaudeville that they used to get bigger admission prices for and on which they reaped greater profits. Of course, in the case of the Family theatre, it is largely a vaudeville house during the week, and the Fennyvessy interests appear to be rather linked with pictures rather than vaudeville.

You've often heard the somewhat vulgar expression that "My stomach is turned" against such and such a dish because the person HAD to eat it for so long. It certainly looks like a case of turning the public against the picture.

Here was a case of attempting to meet vaudeville competition. But the Strand theatre, Newark, N. J., with its bill for the last week offers just about the limit for a high class house showing high class features. The advertisement last week contained the announcement of three of these features.

And one of these was "The Unbeliever," a picture that attracted unusual attention when it was shown at the Rivoli, New York. United States marines participated all week in the presentation. As good a showman as S. L. Rothapfel thought that he had put on one of the most striking shows of his career. On a lesser scale the Strand could have done the same and have packed them in all week, it seems to us. But double feature bills appear to have become the habit in Newark and, so, for the first four days of the week the Strand also offered Pauline Frederick in "Mme. Jealousy" and Olive Thomas in "Limousine Life," and during the latter half Elsie Ferguson in "The Song of Songs" and William Mong in "The Hopper," and also a news reel.

Solid page on triple bill at Strand theatre, Newark



It is advertised as "the biggest motion picture program ever offered to the Newark public." For the good of the industry we hope that this will hold the record forever.

Surely the public will need a remedy for motion picture dyspepsia after this program, and a very strong appetizer for the next bill.

Real Photoplay Directory in N. Y. Newspaper

AFTER New York newspapers had practically ignored the motion picture so far as advertising of any except a few of the larger houses is concerned, the Evening Mail has come to their rescue by the inauguration of a Motion Picture Directory, which promises to be a big success. Already it contains the attractions of nearly a hundred theatres and is growing with each day.

It is not generally known that there are some of the finest photoplay theatres in the country that have had a purely neighborhood appeal because they have had no way to advertise their attractions. The small group of big houses in the Times Square section can show only a limited number of features and therefore the followers of certain stars have had to depend on chance information to learn where certain pictures are being shown. The directory system has been successful in Chicago, New Orleans and other cities, and it should make a big hit in New York.

At the top are three of the sides of the Pathe folder on "The House of Hate," which may be hung over an electric light. The fourth page is the same as the center page. At the bottom are the lettered masks, spelling the name of the serial, which take the place of the ordinary banner.

How Portland Newspapers Give Real News About Pictures Every Day in Week

(Continued from page 1876)

his pictures a great deal stronger, but he realized the value of the genuine article and he wanted it. And he was right. When a critic in whom the public has confidence says something good about your bill it is worth a hundred be-adjectived notices. We regret that the reproduction is so small that it is impossible to read this department of the Oregonian.

The page carrying the big and attractive "Huck and Tom" ad is Tuesday's and that is devoted to other notices and some short gossip about the screen. Thursday (the page shown at the right center) marks a change in program at the Liberty, and it uses larger space, while the Sunset advertises the extension of the "Maciste" engagement, and the Majestic is also represented. There are three reading notices for the three theatres advertising and then follows almost a column of breezy notes about the players and the plays—as we have told you many times, the most valuable sort of indirect advertising, even if the notes do not mention your theatre, because they stimulate the interest in your stars and your pictures. These notes are a feature of the daily Oregonian and we'll wager that they are read by a large number of the patrons of the paper.

At the lower left we find the Friday page, with the ad of the People's pasted into it. People's uses large space here because this is the last day of the Madge Kennedy picture, and there will be a change Sunday.

We reproduce two pages from the Saturday issue in order to show the news matter and the advertising. Star, which had not been represented all week uses six columns ten inches deep on its change in program, and People's four columns by eleven inches on its new picture, while the opening of "Scandal" at the Majestic calls for the use of four columns fifteen inches deep. Both Friday and Saturday Liberty uses only eight inches single column, enough for those days with the new bill coming Sunday.

Let us repeat that the daily Oregonian has more than done its full duty by the exhibitor and by the reader, and in our opinion there is not a theatre in the city that can really afford not to advertise EVERY DAY in this paper, and we include the neighborhood houses, and all the rest. There is no house too small that it cannot afford a space of at least five agate lines each day.

Liberty theatre is the only one that we note using the Oregonian. We believe every house would do better by advertising every day, for we believe in driving the nail home with each blow.

Certainly the daily Oregonian could do no more. The theatres can, and they are, losing an opportunity by not doing more. do not know what anyone could expect.

From several points of view Portland is ideal. It has splendid newspaper co-operation in the Oregonian, somewhat less in the Journal, and evidence of willingness to aid in the Telegram, which gets little advertising. Practically all of the advertising that does appear is well prepared. When the theatres do advertise they recognize the value of white space and plenty of it. Some of their work is easily among the very best in the country. Our only criticism is that they have not been convinced that they should be represented every day, even if sometimes the space used is small, and that all of the theatres of Portland are not availing themselves of a splendid opportunity.

But even at this does this sort of advertising pay the newspaper? The answer is that last year the Oregonian carried 38,000 lines of motion picture theatre advertising, the Journal 32,000, the News 11,000, and the Telegram 7,000. That is convincing enough proof to show to any advertising manager when you want to use with him the argument that there should be greater liberality on the paper. Try laying these facts before the management of your paper that is ignoring motion pictures, and then get busy and advertise.

Pathe Offers 2 Clever Ideas in Exploiting "House of Hate"

PATHE, "the house of serials," always seeks to offer the exhibitor something new with each one of the chaptered stories that it sends out, and with the latest of these, "The House of Hate," which features Pearl White and Antonio Moreno, of course, the unusual newspaper campaign in the principal cities is continued and the press book is unusually complete, showing the paper and the lobby displays on the various episodes, specimens of the cuts, slides, etc., besides plenty of stories for the newspapers.

The same old thing will not do in the house exploitation of the serial. There has to be some really new and original stunt to get special attention and Pathe has achieved two things that are pretty sure of centreing interest. The first of these is a folder 19 inches in width by 9½ deep. Two pages represent the entrance to a brick house, roofed in green, one of these bearing the circular picture of Pearl White and the other that of Antonio Moreno. The two other pages carry the words "'House of Hate,' Pathe's Greatest Serial." Folded and arranged according to the simple directions these form an attractive ornament to be hung over electric lights, causing the faces of Miss White and Moreno, which are printed on semi-transparent paper, to stand out prominently.

Ten masked heads, each bearing a letter, take the place of the usual banner. These are printed on both sides, with the body in red and the letters in black, and are to be suspended from a wire running across the front of the house. No matter which way they turn the letters can always be seen, giving the title of the serial, while the masked faces are bound to excite interest.

Ready Made Ad-Talks

"The Sea Panther" Harks Back to Days of Pirates Bold

(Triangle Five-Reel Production)

The days of old when pirates bold sailed over the bounding main are vividly brought back in "The Sea Panther," in which William Desmond and Mary Warren come to the screen of the ——— theatre on ———. It is a 17th century costume play and unusual care is said to have been taken to make the representation historically correct in the matter of costuming. As a general rule productions having their scenes laid in bygone days are not scrupulously correct as regards the styles of the period, but the producers of "The Sea Panther" are said to have secured some rare colored prints and from them have made reproductions which are as nearly perfect as possible. William Desmond makes a dashing pirate chieftain, while in the quaint apparel of 1680, Mary Warren is more captivating than ever. Paul Le Marsan, a gentlemanly freebooter known as "The Sea Panther," captures the British ship "Lady Devon," aboard which is Molly Tarpley, en route to join her uncle, the proprietary governor of the Carolinas. Le Marsan falls in love with her and protects her from his crew. The captives are taken to the Bahamas where Molly is forced to share Le Marsan's home with him. She is overwhelmed with the barbaric splendor of the place, filled with the loot of countless Spanish galleons. She begins to love her captor, who protects her from Braga, a fellow pirate, in a duel to the death. Finally Le Marsan, fearing that he cannot win the girl's love, restores her to the captive ship and attempts to take her to the Carolinas. The captive crew in the meantime have smuggled themselves aboard the ship and they overcome Le Marsan and his pirates. Following the bloody struggle the bold pirate captain is put in chains to be delivered over to the British authorities, but Molly liberates him and assists him to escape.

William Desmond and Mary Warren in "The Sea Panther" will be the attraction at the ——— on ———.

Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge Are Starred in "The Way Out"

(World Five-Reel Production)

Those prime favorites of the screen, Carlyle Blackwell and June Elvidge, in a romantic up-to-date drama, "The Way Out," are booked to appear on the screen of the ——— theatre on ———. Nor are these well-known players the only stars of the production, for Muriel Ostriche and John Bowers are also included in the cast which for general excellence has seldom been equaled in any but big special feature productions. Carlyle Blackwell appears in the role of Robert Barr, a successful young newspaper man, and June Elvidge appears as Alice Thornton, a young society girl in love with Barr. But Mrs. Thornton has a problem on her hands. She wants Alice to marry into the nobility, and as if Robert's love were not enough to vex her she gets a letter from Paris stating that Marcelle Pinet, the illegitimate sister of Alice, is on her way to this country. Alice has always worshipped the memory of her dead father and the mother hesitates to disillusion her. She enlists Robert's assistance and he takes Marcelle under his protection. Later, when Marcelle is discovered in Robert's apartment by Alice, Mrs. Thornton refuses to come to his rescue and the engagement is off. Alice is subsequently taken abroad by her mother and there she meets and marries Count de Joinville. The Count is desperately in love with Alice and all goes well until Robert secures his own transfer to the French office of the firm by which he is employed. Later the Count and Robert meet on a French battlefield and there Robert makes a big decision which vitally affects his own happiness and the future of himself, Alice and the Count. This big scene is superbly done by Mr. Blackwell. In fact, it is one of the best bits of acting he has ever done.

"The Way Out," with a cast which includes Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge, Muriel Ostriche and John Bowers, is announced for ——— at the ———.

Virginia Pearson Has a Stirring Role in "A Daughter of France"

(Fox Five-Reel Production)

If you were a beautiful girl of noble blood and were caught in the German rush into France, how [illegible] you act? And what would you do if a German officer made real love to you while his soldiers were robbing the village and insulting women? In "A Daughter of France," which comes to the ——— on ———, Virginia Pearson shows how one girl acted under those circumstances. Miss Pearson gives a wonderful portrayal and the story, which is by Benjamin S. Cutler and Betta Brouil, is one that is certain to strengthen enthusiasm for the war in this country. The star's dramatic powers are well known, while she is given capable support by a cast which includes such sterling artists as Hugh Thompson, Herbert Evans, Ethel Kaufman and Anthony Merlo, among others of scarcely less distinction in the photoplay world. In the story Miss Pearson has the role of Louise de Ciron, who, as brave herself as her motherland, France, refuses to flee before an invading horde of Huns, led by Col. Rudolph von Knorr. The colonel and his staff, of which Capt. Fritz von Meyring is chief, billet themselves in the de Ciron chateau. Von Knorr tries desperately to make Louise yield to his pleas of love, but she despises him, as she does everything German. Von Meyring, also fascinated by the girl, plots to obtain possession of her. Although Rudolph saves her by killing Fritz it works out in such a way that Louise believes that von Meyring came to his death in trying to save her from his superior officer. Although he establishes his innocence at a court-martial, Louise is still unconvinced. In a spirit of revenge she stabs him, but he prevents her arrest by a statement that his wound is the result of an accident. Gradually she realizes that Rudolph's love is really true and she puts him to the severest test. The ending is a pleasant surprise—too good to be told in advance.

At the ——— on ———, Virginia Pearson in "A Daughter of France."

Alma Rubens, Fashion Plate of the Screen, in Social Drama "The Answer"

(Triangle Five-Reel Production)

Alma Rubens, who made such a decided hit in "I Love You," a short time ago, appears again at the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "The Answer," written by E. Magnus Ingleton, and produced for Triangle under the direction of E. Mason Hopper with A. Nagy at the camera. Miss Rubens is supported in "The Answer" by Charles Dorian, Francis McDonald, Jean Hersholt and Claire Anderson. Miss Rubens has the reputation of being the most fashionably dressed actress on the screen. It is only recently that she has been numbered among the stars of the silent drama, but in that time she has demonstrated that she merits the place she has won. In this late Triangle production, "The Answer," she has the role of Loraine Van Allen, daughter of rich parents and possessing everything that money can buy. John Warfield, interpreted by Joe King, receives an heritage from his father of a certain ineradicable hate for the richer classes, to which his mother had belonged. He becomes a radical socialist and Goldie Shepard, a telephone operator, becomes interested in his work along socialistic lines. Her father is a slave to drink. He is accidentally run down and killed by an automobile in which Loraine is riding. This deepens the hate which she has been taught to foster for the rich. The two work together to stir up discontent among the masses. Warfield inherits his mother's estate in England. He sends for Goldie and they are married. She plunges into a life of ease and luxury. Warfield is unable to keep her within the bounds prescribed by socialism. A jealous suitor kills Goldie and Warfield comes back to America, weds Loraine and together they enter upon the service of uplifting their people.

Alma Rubens, the star of "I Love You," will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in "The Answer."

READY-MADE AD-TALKS PUBLISHED IN LAST WEEK'S ISSUE

March 23, 1918.

FEATURES

TITLE OF PLAY	PRODUCERS
"Amarilly of Clothesline Alley"	Paramount	5 reels
"Sunshine Nan"	Paramount	5 reels
"A Pair of Sixes"	Perfection	5 reels
"The Shell Game"	Metro	5 reels
"The Floor Below"	Goldwyn	5 reels
"Huck and Tom"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Hard Rock Breed"	Triangle	5 reels
"Beauty in Chains"	Universal	5 reels
"American Buds"	Fox	5 reels
"Headin' South"	Paramount	5 reels
"The Girl in the Dark"	Bluebird	5 reels
"Hungry Eyes"	Bluebird	5 reels

Olive Tell, Famous Stage Beauty, In "The Girl and the Judge"

(Mutual Five-Reel Production)

Olive Tell, now starring in the stage success, "General Post," one of Broadway's biggest successes, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week in one of the strongest dramas on the Mutual program, "The Girl and the Judge," adapted from Charles Frohman's most successful stage production. Miss Tell is supported in this silent drama by David Powell, who has been seen to such good advantage in innumerable Mutual releases. He has also been seen on two different occasions in support of Mary Pickford. Charlotte Granville, who is well known behind the footlights, has a principal role, as well as Marie Reichart, who will be remembered for her excellent work in the famous stage success, "The Return of Peter Grimm," which had an extended run at the Belasco several seasons ago. Miss Tell appears as the leading character in a story which tells of a girl's irresistible tendency to steal, having inherited the tendency from her parents. She has the part of Winifred Stanton, who has just returned from abroad. She is the guest at the home of friends. She meets Walter Stuyvesant, who proposes marriage and is accepted. Winifred's father drinks heartily and he and Winifred's mother are on the verge of marital troubles. Winifred's mother is a kleptomaniac. She is accused of taking certain articles in a department store, but friends intercede and she is not searched. Later she is arrested for robbery. Stanton's business is ruined because of the scandal which results. Winifred later confesses to having stolen a valuable piece of jewelry to save her mother from further trouble. It develops that Mrs. Stanton's landlady is the real thief. Mrs. Stanton is cured of her tendency to steal through the incident.

Olive Tell, famous stage beauty, will be seen on the screen of the ——— theatre in "The Girl and the Judge" on ——— of ——— week.

A Sir Gilbert Parker Drama, with Louise Huff, Strong Cast—"Wild Youth"

(Paramount Five-Reel Production)

J. Stuart Blackton, the master of screencraft, presents Louise Huff, the charming little screen actress who has been seen in Jack Pickford's biggest successes. Theodore Roberts, considered by many critics to be the "daddy" of the character impersonators, and Jack Mulhall, who ranks in the first class of juvenile stars, in "Wild Youth" on the Paramount program. "Wild Youth" was written by Sir Gilbert Parker, the noted English author, who was responsible for "The Judgment House," the first Blackton production for the Paramount program. "Wild Youth" was directed by George Melford, who will be remembered for his excellent work in directing Sessue Hayakawa, the clever Japanese actor. One of Mr. Melford's best works and one that is considered a masterpiece of screen art, is "The Thief," in which Hayakawa and Fannie Ward starred. The exteriors of this picture, which are beauties, were taken in and about Bear alley, Hollywood and Los Angeles. Beulah Marie Dix, responsible for many of Paramount's biggest successes, did the scenario. James Cruze and Adele Farrington have principal parts in this production. The story tells of the love of youth for youth. Louise Marzarine, a slip of a girl, marries a man sixty-five years of age. The act was in direct violation of the immutable law which says that youth must love youth. Hence Orlando (Jack Mulhall) and Louise (Louise Huff) are drawn together by the inevitable. Louise is the consideration for the canceling of a $10,000 mortgage and the party of the first part, Joel Marrine (Theodore Roberts) is to his girl-wife a jailer. How the law works out and how the inevitable comes about is told in this remarkable exposition of screen drama.

At the ——— theatre on ——— of ——— week, "Wild Youth" with Louise Huff, Theodore Roberts and Jack Mulhall.

"By Injunction," An O. Henry Western Drama—Full of Pep

(General Two-Reel Production)

A cracking good O. Henry story is "By Injunction," a two-reeler, with G. A. Williams, Patricia Palmer, Chet Ryan, W. L. Rogers, Roy McCray and Jack Wetherby in the principal roles. The picture was produced by the Broadway Star Features under the direction of David Smith and is released on the General Film program. "By Injunction" is one of Henry's Western stories and it is brim full of the spirit of the rancher. "King" McAllister's word is law, judge and jury in the cattle country where he lives with his daughter, Panchita. His foreman, Price Purcell, believed he had a chance of winning Panchita's hand until the arrival of Buck Lumsden, who settled all doubts concerning the likely winner. Buck did not make a hit at first because he was "down and out" but he lingers and is made foreman of the year's round-up which was not altogether to Purcell's liking. Purcell plans to ruin Buck in the estimation of the boss as well as Panchita. After the round-up all adjourn to the dance hall and gambling resort to celebrate, and Purcell lures Buck into roulette game. Buck loses not only his own money but a large amount belonging to McAllister. Purcell returns to McAllister with the news of Buck's disloyalty. Buck has married Panchita. He is obliged to flee the country and sets out to raise enough money to repay McAllister for the amount he had lost to Purcell. O. Henry has conceived a surprise in the way of an ending for his story and "By Injunction," is one of his best works as adapted to the screen.

O. Henry's "By Injunction" in two reels, will be seen on the screen of the ——— Theatre on ——— of ——— week. Western drama.

Roy Stewart in One of His Virile Characterizations in "Faith Endurin'"

(Triangle Five-Reel Production)

Roy Stewart in one of his virile Western characterizations, will be seen on the screen of the ——— Theatre on ——— of ——— week. This time he presents the role Jeff Flagg, in "Faith Endurin'," written by Kenneth B. Clarke and produced for Triangle under the direction of Cliff Smith with Steve Rounds at the camera. In the supporting cast with Mr. Stewart are seen, W. A. Jeffries, Fritzie Ridgeway, Joe Bennett, Edward Brady, Walter Perkins, Graham Pette, and Walter Petty, all typical Western types and typical actors of the Western school. Jeff Flagg and Jim Lee are pals. A newly erected smelter of the Rex Copper Company poisons the water in the irrigating ditches and poisons the grass on the ranch owned by the pals, Jeff and Jim. They set out to get revenge on Edward Crane, general manager of the Rex Company. Helen Dyer is stenographer in the office of Crane, and Vic, her brother-in-law, is the timekeeper. Flagg falls in love with Helen and shortly thereafter Crane orders his men to burn down the property of his enemies, Jim and Flagg, and the feud between the two factions starts. Crane makes advances on Helen and her brother-in-law shoots him and flees. Flagg assumes responsibility for the murder and takes to the desert. A reward is offered for his arrest. In a distant town he meets his old pal, Jim, who has been made sheriff of the county. Neither shows signs of recognition. Flagg enters a poker game and agrees to bare his arm if the cards run against him. The countryside has been notified that Flagg can be identified by a scar on his arm. He loses and before he can bare his arm Jim shoots him and removes all traces of the scar. Jim and Flagg return to the scene of the murder and Flagg is absolved from all blame and he and Helen are married.

Roy Stewart in "Faith Endurin'," a typical Western drama, will be seen on the screen of the ——— Theatre on ——— of ——— week.

"The Preacher's Son," Another Judge Brown Story—Real Live One

(General Two-Reel Production)

Judge Willis Brown comes to the front with another of his stories of juvenile activities. This time it is "The Preacher's Son." King W. Vidor directed. The production is in two reels and released on the General Film program. In the cast are seen Guy Hayman, Wharton Jones, Ernest Thompson, William Devaull and Charles Force. The preacher's son, Charles Raymond, is caught in a night window-breaker raid conducted by a gang of boys. Raymond is taken before the judge next morning. He tells the judge that his father, the minister, uses the rod freely when he has displeased him. The minister promises to give his son another good beating but the judge directs that his son be sent to the country to visit relatives. Raymond soon makes the acquaintance of the boys of his neighborhood and astonishes them when he recounts what a fighter and racer his father, the minister, is. The townsmen needs the services of a new minister and upon Charles' account of his father's reputation, his father is engaged to fill the place. Charles tells his father about the reputation he has given him, and his father, like the good sport that he is, acts the part. He meets every demand of the church committee. Charles has done his "bit."

A Judge Willis Brown picture in two reels, will be seen on the screen of the ——— Theatre on ——— of ——— week.

"An American Live Wire"—O. Henry Subject with Earle Williams Featured

(Vitagraph Five-Reel Production)

Love and diplomacy are the predominating notes of interest sounded in Vitagraph's late production featuring Earle Williams and Grace Darmond. "An American Live Wire" is an adaptation from one of O. Henry's stories, "The Lotus and the Bottle" and represents one of the few O. Henry stories which have been showing in five-reel features. The adaptation was made by William Addison Lathrop, who is responsible for some of the best presentations offered by Vitagraph. In the supporting cast with Mr. Williams and Miss Darmond are seen Hal Clements, Miss Toner, Orral Humphries, Margaret Bennett and Malcolm Blevines. Tom Mills, who has directed many of the screen versions made from the Henry stories, directed this production. When an O. Henry subject is announced for presentation in the silent drama, all are justified in expecting something worth while and something with a real tinge of life as it is led day-by-day by the masses. "An American Live-Wire" is no exception to the rule as laid down in regard to the interesting qualities of O. Henry's works. A young American who thinks that his sweetheart loves another, buries himself in a little South American republic as a United States consul. The young American meets and loves a beautiful native girl and for the time forgets his sweetheart back in the States. But the sweetheart has not forgotten him. She induces the family to take a cruise on their yacht to the South American waters. Her fiance knows that it is her purpose to see the young American consul if possible and he leaves instructions with the pilot to avoid landing near the Republic where he is. She learns of this, puts a note in a bottle, and throws it into the sea. The consul receives it. The climax, which is typical of O. Henry surprises, is revealed in the way of a pleasant surprise.

Earle Williams and Grace Darmond at the ——— Theatre on ——— of ——— week, "An American Live-Wire."

HE DID IT

See the Experience of One Man Who Used This Matter

TURN to this week's instalment of "Diary of a Successful Exhibitor" and see the value of the suggestion that one little paragraph that he had prepared for his local newspaper brought him.

You can get bright little items for your program and for your newspaper out of these Ad Talks, and the little paragraph may bring YOU the BIG idea that will put things over for you —that will convert a mere motion picture house into a SUCCESS. It's worth trying.

Apache Dens of Paris Are Seen in "The Devil's Wheel"

(Fox Five-Reel Production)

Those who are looking for something new in the world of motion pictures and of dramatic production will find it at the ——— theatre on ———, when "The Devil's Wheel" will be shown. Here are portrayed with startling realism the heights and depths of French life—France of the aristocrats and France of the Apaches of the Parisian underworld. Gladys Brockwell, who has few equals among photoplayers in emotional roles, is seen as a beautiful young French noblewoman whom force of circumstances places among the wild denizens of the Paris underworld. Incidentally, Miss Brockwell displays a wardrobe which is unusual, if not startling. William Scott, who plays opposite the star, has come to the William Fox forces with a fine record of photoplay successes. A large and capable supporting cast assists in the interpretation of the story, which, by the way, was written by Charles Kenyon, author of many stage successes, among them "Kindling." Blanche de Montfort, a beautiful young French girl of the aristocracy, shares her father's system to win at roulette. The plan of the system is stolen, and in a fight for its possession she is rendered unconscious. She wakes up in an Apache den. She has lost all memory of her former life, and in the new she is happy, for she becomes the queen of the Apaches and falls in love with their leader. In her vicious abandon she is known as "The Wildcat." By accident she is at length restored to her former surroundings, and an operation brings back her memory, but leaves her Apache life a blank. But something troubles her mind, and it is not until a note from the leader of the gangsters is brought to her that she finds where her true happiness lies. Realizing that her way lies with the man she had grown to love in the underworld, she returns to him.

"The Devil's Wheel," a photoplay of the Paris underworld, at the ——— theatre on ———.

"Ann's Finish," a Clever Comedy-Drama Starring Margarita Fischer

(Mutual-American Five-Reel Production)

"Ann's Finish," a comedy-drama starring Margarita Fischer, will be the attraction at the ——— on ———. There is a delightful air of mystery pervading this photoplay, in which there are real burglars and a romantic, adventurous make-believe burglar who succeeds in concealing his identity until the very end of the story. The success or failure of such a play depends solely upon the interpreting ability of the cast and in this instance the members have been chosen with special care. They include, among others, Jack Mower, Adelaide Eliott and David Howard. All is quiet and serene at Madame D'Arcy's finishing school until Ann Anderson arrives. Then things start. One night she is suddenly awakened from a fudge dream and finds a man in her room. He is a nice-looking burglar and when he pleads that his mother is dying for lack of food Ann's sympathies are aroused. Hearing the principal approaching she conceals the intruder. He is discovered, however, and Ann, to save him, says he is her husband. Ordered from the building the "burglar," to help Ann make good her story, gives her his mother's wedding ring. The next day Ann is expelled, but is allowed to attend the senior reception that night where her sweetheart, Teddy Barnes, having heard of the mysterious "husband," tells her he is through. Broken hearted, Ann returns to her room and tries to "pass out" by the gas route. She is awakened by a real burglar and a struggle follows. The burglar is caught and the next day Ann finds herself a heroine. Her suspension is lifted. Now it happens that Ann prefers widowhood to the "married life" she has been leading, so she dons weeds and tells everybody that her husband has gone down with an army transport. But fate takes her, through devious and exciting channels, into the presence of her "husband" again. The "burglary" is satisfactorily explained and they find they are in love.

"Ann's Finish" is the attraction at the ——— on ———.

"Moral Suicide" Is Photoplay Feature with a Big Punch

(Graphic Seven-reel Production)

Ivan Abramson, who produced "Enlighten Thy Daughter" and other big features which have proved sensations in the motion picture world, has written and produced another film masterpiece in "Moral Suicide," which will be presented on the screen of the ——— theatre on ———. Seldom has a more notable cast of cinema luminaries been assembled in one production than the one which will be seen in this big seven-reel play. Headed by John Mason, noted star of the stage and screen, it contains such other celebrities as Anne Luther, Leah Baird, Jack McLean and Alan Hale, not to mention a number of others of scarcely lesser note. The story shows vividly what happens in nine cases out of ten when rich old men become the objects of the designs of clever adventuresses. Richard Covington, a millionaire Californian, deeply attached to his motherless daughter and son, meets Fay Hope, a young woman with a past. He falls for her allurements and, despite the warning of his daughter that he will be committing moral suicide, marries her. The alliance eventually leads to such antagonism in the household that Covington drives his daughter from his home. Later his son, who has become demented from over-study, shoots his stepmother, is tried for murder and is committed to an insane asylum. What happens to the old fellow, whose mental and moral lapse has brought down all this sorrow upon his household, makes an intensely interesting story.

"Love Me" Presents Dorothy Dalton in an Attractive Role

(Paramount Five-Reel Production)

The attraction for ——— at the ——— theatre will be "Love Me," a Thomas H. Ince production, featuring Dorothy Dalton. This versatile artist of the screen, who is regarded as one of the most attractive of feminine stars, will be welcomed by a large number of ——— patrons, who recall with the keenest pleasure her performances in "Flare-Up Sal" and other plays. In "Love Me" she is seen in a role in which she has an opportunity to display a number of attractive gowns of the latest mode, a feature which should especially interest the feminine portion of the audience and should prove not at all objectionable to individuals of the other sex. The story was written by C. Gardner Sullivan and the production was directed, under Mr. Ince's supervision, by Roy William Neill. It is a society drama dealing with the adventures of a breezy Western girl who marries into an exclusive Eastern family but is not accepted by them until she has made a tremendous sacrifice for her husband's sister. Jack Holt, who supported Mary Pickford in "The Little American," is Miss Dalton's leading man. In the story Maida Madison and Gordon Appleby meet in an unconventional way during the construction of a bridge in North Dakota, on which the young man is working as an engineer. Their friendship develops into love, and when Appleby returns to the East Maida accompanies him as his bride. The family receives her coldly, and even their suspicion is aroused when she is seen to be watching with evident interest the actions of Fenton, a man of the world, and an admirer of Gordon's married sister. Her reasons for watching him form the most vital link in the story, for it is through her vigilance in this matter that she is received into the affections of the family.

Live News from the Producers

William Fox Presents "Salome"

Theda Bara Production Completed, and Private Showing Already Given—Expects It to Surpass Her "Cleopatra"

WILLIAM FOX is to present Theda Bara in "Salome"!

Work on the production has been completed in the West, the negative has been shipped to New York and a private showing of the print has been given by Mr. Fox.

The gorgeous splendor of the East, the pomp and power of a mighty military kingdom, sacred scenes from the Bible, intrigues of a lavish court, ambition, love, jealousy, and, over everything, the purifying influence of a noble sacrifice for a great cause—all these, it is said, have been woven into this Theda Bara super-production that eclipses, according to the Fox offices, every attempt of the kind that has been made in the film world—more massive, more costly, more gorgeous than even "Cleopatra."

Mr. Fox purposes soon to give to the world what he claims is its most striking example of the camera's magic in recording spectacular dramatic action and vividly colorful pageantry on a new scale of endeavor. The accuracy and artistry of ancient Judea, which is builded anew for this film, are said to be amazing.

The picturesque times of the Herodian dynasty are said to offer wonderful opportunities for Miss Bara. In "Romeo and Juliet" she rose to dramatic heights in her expression of passionate love. In "Cleopatra" she portrayed the barbaric lure of "the Siren of the Nile." In "Under Two Flags" she thrilled with the spirit of high romance. In "Du Barry" she won king and courtier by her charms of mind and her coquetry. But in "Salome" she does, it is claimed, all of these things. And, it is said, Mr. Fox spared nothing to give her an opportunity to put into this film play every dramatic and spectacular effect that is known to the scenic art.

While tremendous emphasis is laid on pageantry, action and tense episodes, Director J. Gordon Edwards also insisted on strictest historical accuracy. His scenario is based principally on the works of Josephus, the historian. It was decided not to adopt Oscar Wilde's version centering around Salome's dance and the delivering of John the Baptist's head because it was not suited to accurate presentation on the screen, but the picture as now filmed is said to be truly representative.

Theda Bara, the Fox Star, Has Also "Adopted" a Few Soldiers

Bluebird to Have Four Regular Companies

AN important change has been made in the lineup of the stars and productions which are to be released on its program by the executive officials of Bluebird Photoplays, Inc.

Starting with the week of April 8, the players who will appear regularly in Bluebird productions will be Carmel Myers, Franklyn Farnum, Ella Hall, Ruth Clifford and Monroe Salisbury. The last two play opposite each other and therefore are to be regarded as one unit.

There will therefore be in the future four regular Bluebird companies, containing the stars enumerated above, instead of the greater number that has turned out the features released by this organization heretofore. These companies will provide at least forty of the fifty-two releases for the year. Other stars, however, will occasionally appear on the Bluebird program when their productions are of the quality and standard demanded by the officials of that organization.

Priscilla Dean and Louise Lovely are stars who will provide two of the extra features required to round out the full year's Bluebird output. Examples of their work appear in the list of April's releases.

As they appear in the order of their release, April's Bluebirds are:

April 1, "Fast Company," in which Franklyn Farnum is featured.

April 8, "The Red, Red Heart," with Monroe Salisbury and Ruth Clifford, directed by Rupert Julian.

April 15, Louise Lovely in "A Rich Man's Darling," a comedy-drama.

April 22, "The Two-Soul Woman," an adaptation of "The White Cat," by Gilett Burgess. Priscilla Dean is the featured player.

April 29, Carmel Myers in "The Wife He Bought." The story is by Blair Hall and was adapted by Harvey Gates. Stuart Paton directed the picture.

"Mr. Fix It" Is Title of Fairbanks' Next

Douglas Fairbanks' next photoplay for Artcraft will be entitled "Mr. Fix It," from a story written by Allan Dwan, the supervising director. It will follow "Headin' South" and will be released in April. In the supporting cast are Marjorie Daw, Wanda Hawley, Catherine MacDonald, Frank Campeau, Leslie Stuart and Fred Goodwins. Wanda Hawley plays the most prominent feminine role but Catherine MacDonald and Marjorie Daw also have important parts.

Clara Beranger Does Story for Kitty Gordon

Clara S. Beranger, well-known continuity writer and author of many original screen stories, has joined the World-Picture scenario department and her first work there has been the preparation of an original story for Kitty Gordon. It bears the title, "Her Great Moment," and is now being filmed under the direction of Oscar C. Apfel. Miss Beranger is now at work on the continuity of "The Golden Wall" for World-Pictures.

"Friend Husband" is an April Sennett Comedy

Work is said to be progressing rapidly on "Friend Husband," an April Release of the Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies. In this film Charlie Murray, Wayland Trask and Mary Thurman are featured. Walter Wright is director. The one following that will be "Saucy Madeline," with Ben Turpin, Charlie Lynn and Polly Moran. "Sheriff Nell's Tussle" is the current release and Polly Moran is in the title role with Ben Turpin, Wm. Armstrong, Gonda Durand, Al. McKinnon, etc., in the cast. Wm. Campbell is director.

The Bugle Calls Them to Arms, and Across the Shell-Strewn Field They Charge the Enemy in Vitagraph's "Over the Top." Sergeant Guy Empey is Featured in the Picture, Which He Helped Direct

Spoor Denies Bidding for Stanley Business

In a letter to MOTION PICTURE NEWS George K. Spoor offers an explanation of a misunderstanding that seems to have arisen through the sending of two form letters to the Stanley Booking Company, of Philadelphia, by the Essanay Film Manufacturing Company, of which Mr. Spoor is president. According to Mr. Spoor the Stanley Company's name was left on Essanay's list of exhibitors through error, and instead of Essanay recognizing the Stanley Company, as the latter would have other exhibitors believe, the Stanley Company has been stricken from Essanay list and will receive no more such communications in the future.

Petrova Finishes Fourth Special Release

The Petrova Picture Company announces that "The Great Star," the fourth on Madame Olga Petrova's calendar of eight special releases during the year, has been completed and that Director Ralph Ince and a corps of assistants are now engaged in cutting and assembling the various scenes. The negative will be turned over to the Roth Film Laboratories for developing and printing, under the personal supervision of Watterson Rothacker. "The Great Star" was written specially for Madame Petrova by George Middleton, author of the Broadway stage success, "Polly With a Past."

Paralta Promotes Harry Chandlee

Harry Chandlee, who for a number of months has been in charge of the Eastern scenario department of Paralta Plays, Inc., has been promoted to the head of the scenario department at the Paralta Studios, in Los Angeles, Cal. This promotion will place Mr. Chandlee in active charge of both the Eastern and Western divisions of this department. He will leave New York for the Coast the middle of this week, where he will at once take up his new duties.

Duncan Progresses on Serial

Third Episode Now Reached in Vitagraph Picture as Yet Unnamed—Scheduled for Release in July

WILLIAM DUNCAN, director-star of Vitagraph's two outdoor serials, "The Fighting Trail" and "Vengeance—and the Woman," is now engaged in making scenes for the third episode of his third chapter play. This one, like its predecessor, "Vengeance—and the Woman," was written by Albert H. Smith, president of Vitagraph, and Cyrus Townsend Brady, the author, and is said to carry just as many thrills as did that other.

The title of the new Duncan serial, which probably will be released the last week in July, has not been announced and probably will not be for some time to come, but a statement from President Smith this week carried the cast which will be seen in support of the star. Edith Johnson, in numerous screen plays with Lubin, Selig and Universal, will play opposite Mr. Duncan in the leading feminine role, while Joe Ryan will be seen in one of the two leading heavy roles. Ryan, who has appeared with Duncan in the Wolfville stories in which the latter was starred, has also been seen in "Vengeance—and the Woman" as Alkali Ike. Walter Rodgers, the Von Block of "The Fighting Trail," and one of Duncan's regular company, will be another of the heavies, and Vincente Howard, the Comanche Pete of "Vengeance—and the Woman," will again be seen in the role of an Indian. S. E. Jennings, the sheriff of the other two serials, is another leading member of Duncan's support. Others in the cast are L. Garcia, Leo Malloney and E. Calles.

In addition, Duncan will have a company of cowboy riders, among them Denver Dixon, who made a cross-country tour and appeared in many theatres of the country in cowboy make-up to lecture on the stunts used in making the picture.

Mr. Duncan and his company have been in Bear Valley, California, for several weeks filming scenes for the serial and probably will remain there for some time longer, as a great deal of the action transpires in this locality. President Smith says that in the new serial Duncan will use locations entirely different from any that he has worked in before and for weeks before he began work he had scouts out seeking remote spots which never had been filmed before. As a considerable portion of the story is said to transpire in the Northwest, real Sierra scenery will be introduced, as will the Canadian mounted police.

Knoles Renews Contract With World Film

HARLEY KNOLES, who directed Alice Brady in "Bought and Paid For," Carlyle Blackwell and Evelyn Greeley in "The Burglar" and Madge Evans in all of her recent pictures, has renewed his contract with World-Pictures for a long term of years.

Mr. Knoles is an Englishman by birth, but has resided in this country for a number of years. He received his initial training in the direction of motion pictures in English studios, and upon coming to America grew with the industry until he has become one of the great directors of the day.

"In 'Bought and Paid For,'" says the World announcement, "Mr. Knoles achieved one of the smashing big successes in motion pictures, a big dramatic success with a tremendous box office pull. In 'The Volunteer' he made a novel motion picture with a box office drag which made it one of the biggest successes exhibitors have ever had.

"The renewal of Mr. Knoles' contract means that he will continue in the direction of charming little Madge Evans, and that futher big money-getting pictures may be expected from him. Mr. Knoles's forthcoming pictures will be awaited with great interest by the trade."

Goldwyn's Enigmatical Star, Mae Marsh, Is Said to Have Some New Whims for Presentation in "The Face in the Dark"

Goldwyn Handles Selexarts

Will Offer Three Productions Featuring Howard Hickman and Rhea Mitchell—First Trade Showing in a Few Days

A DEAL has just been announced whereby Goldwyn Pictures Corporation will offer to the exhibitors of North America three productions from the studios of Selexart Pictures, Inc. Though release dates have not yet been announced it is probable that the first production, "Blue Blood," starring Howard Hickman, will be ready for trade showing within a fortnight. "Blue Blood" is from the story by J. Grubb Alexander and Fred Myton and was directed by Elliot Howe.

Howard Hickman, originally an actor of the spoken stage, began his career in a Bernhardt company and then played in repertoire with Melbourne McDowell. His first screen work was with Universal, from which he went to Lasky, where he appeared in "The Sin Ye Do," and "The Female of the Species." For Triangle-Ince, "The Snarl" was his most important work. Of late he has been a Paralta player.

Rhea Mitchell and Howard Hickman are co-starred in "Social Ambition," the second of the Selexart productions. This is from the story by W. E. Wing and directed by Wallace Worsley. Miss Mitchell, too, began her histrionic career on the legitimate stage. She played in stock at the Alcazar, San Francisco, and later was seen throughout the country on the Orpheum Circuit. She has appeared on the screen for the New York Motion Picture Company in "Three Musketeers;" for the American in "Sealed Lips," "The Great Stanley Secret" and "Gilded Youth," and in "Whither Thou Goest." In recent months she has been a featured Paralta player.

Miss Mitchell is starred alone in "Honor's Cross," the last of the group. The picture, directed by Mr. Worsley, is from the story by H. B. Daniel.

The Selexart productions will be booked entirely apart from Goldwyn Pictures, though Goldwyn customers will be given the preference in contracting for the group of three specials.

Pathe Releases New Pearl White Chapter

GLADYS HULETTE and Creighton Hale in a five-reel feature, and Pearl White in a strong sterial episode, stand out in the Pathe Program for the week of March 31.

Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale appear in "Mrs. Slacker," produced by Astra, written by Agnes C. Johnston. This picture marks the first appearance of these players as co-stars. The story tells of the love affair of a boy and girl. The boy's desire to avoid the draft hastens their marriage. The young wife looks upon her boyish husband as being brave and noble, and when she finds out the truth she says she will not be a "Mrs. Slacker," and dons a uniform in an attempt to make up for her consort's shortcomings. Spurred on by his wife's patriotism the boy joins the colors and creditably acquits himself.

Pearl White appears in the 4th episode of "The House of Hate," entitled "The Man from Java," produced in two reels by Astra, under the direction of George B. Seitz, scenarioized by Bertram Millhauser from the story by Charles Logue and Arthur B. Reeve.

"On the Jump" is a one-reel Rolin Comedy. It is said to be one good long laugh from start to finish. Everybody is piled aboard a train for Squirrel Inn. All the Dogs, Cats, Parrots, Babies and Ukeleles must be checked in the baggage car. This is going on when a cry rings out on the nice quiet air, "Stop! I'm Spooky Sam, the hungry detective, and I want a snooper" (whatever that is).

Pathe Educational and Travel split reel in colors is "The Valley of the Dordogne, France," and "The Horse in Action," the latter having been taken with the famous Pathe Ultra camera.

Hearst-Pathe News Nos. 28 and 29 complete this program.

First of Clover Comedies for April 2

The first of three Clover Comedies, featuring "Bud" Duncan, Dot Farley and "Kewpie" Morgan, which are being produced at the Denver studios of the National Film Corporation for General Film distribution, has been completed. The first three subjects announced are "From Caterpillar to Butterfly," "Rip Roaring Rivals" and "The Wooing of Coffee Cake Kate." The initial subject will be released April 2 and others will follow a week apart. "Bud" Duncan is the former teammate of Lloyd V. Hamilton in the "Ham and Bud" comedies. Miss Farley is well known as the comedienne of many Keystone, Universal and Sunshine comedies.

Gunn Appears in Support of Bessie Barriscale

Charles Gunn, well known as a stage and screen actor, has been engaged by the Paralta Company to appear regularly as leading man with Bessie Barriscale. The first Paralta production in which he will be seen is "Patriotism," which has just been commenced. Gunn's professional career began eighteen years ago, when he joined the Alcazar Stock Company of San Francisco. It is an odd coincidence that he appeared in many plays with that company with Bessie Barriscale. His first appearance in pictures was five years ago with Thanhouser. Since then he has been with Universal, Ince and Triangle. In "Patriotism" his role is that of John Hamilton, a wounded American soldier, who is being cared for on the Scotch estate of Sir Angus Cameron, where Miss Barriscale, as Robin Cameron, has turned over her home for use as a hospital.

Charles Gunn Has Been Engaged by Paralta as Bessie Barriscale's Lead

Lauder Gave Chaplin Title for New Comedy

In selecting a title for his first comedy to be released by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Charlie Chaplin is said to have utilized a chance remark made by Harry Lauder during the Scotch celebrity's visit to the new Chaplin studios in Hollywood, California. "It's a dog's life you're leadin' these days, Charlie," remarked the Scotch comedian with a pitying shake of his head. "A dog's life." And a better title could not have been found, in the estimation of Chaplin, than "A Dog's Life."

Michigan Circuit Books Hodkinson Service

Col. Butterfield's circuit of houses in Saginaw, Flint and Kalamazoo, Mich., have booked the Hodkinson Service of Paralta Plays. The deal was consummated by Mr. Prince, of the Detroit General Film Company.

The home office of the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation also reports that contracts covering the Saenger circuit in the Southeastern territory have been received.

The entire service will also be shown in the houses controlled by Messrs. Meyer and Schneider, including the American Movies, M. and S., New 14th, New Law, Odeon and Palace theatres, all in New York city. Mr. Hammell, of the New York General Film office, completed the deal.

Wm. Farnum Has Another "Blue Shirt" Part

William Farnum's last production in the East, "Rough and Ready," completed just before the Fox star's recent return to California, is announced as the next Standard Picture release.

"At our offices," says Mr. Fox, "we speak of 'Rough and Ready' as the hundred per cent. box office production. All the world loves a lover, especially a fighting lover, and it is in this role that Mr. Farnum appears in a tremendously interesting story. The subject also marks this popular actor's return to the 'blue-shirt' character he does so well—the type of portrayal which brought him chief fame before 'Les Miserables.'"

Richard Stanton and Ed Sedgwick wrote the scenario for the picture.

Mary Murillo Has Adopted a Story to the Screen for Petrova

Cites "Blue Bird" Perfection

Lasky Tells Why Screen Version Should Outstrip the Stage Play —Is Released as an Artcraft Production

THE speaking stage has never been able to present Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird" in accordance with the wishes of the author, as indicated by the notes of instruction accompanying the manuscript, according to Jesse L. Lasky, vice-president of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"The production by Maurice Tourneur of this famous play, which will be released as an Artcraft picture, carries out the ideas of Maeterlinck even to minute details," says Mr. Lasky, "which is a remarkable accomplishment. When the play was produced on the stage the unusual effects demanded were so difficult to work out that had it not been for the great name of the author it is questionable if a producer would have undertaken the task.

"In writing 'The Blue Bird' Maeterlinck merely indicated the most intricate and difficult stage requirements, many of which necessitated days of study to gain the desired effect. He simply made a note of what he wanted and let the stage manager wrestle with the problem, and the designers of the properties, mechanical and electrical effects and the scenery were greatly perplexed by the demands.

"When Maeterlinck wished a stone to turn into a flower he made a note of the fact; if he wished a real flesh and blood character to become a stick of candy, or vice versa, he jotted down a memorandum to that effect. One of the problems was to turn the grass of a cemetery into blooming lillies, and another was to send Father Time through space from the Land of Future to the Earth on a ship laden with a cargo of souls of unborn children on their way to their waiting mothers.

"Some of the many instructions that the dramatist gave in his manuscript were impossible of accomplishment on the stage, but when the screen production was made for Artcraft the directions of the poet-dramatist were carried out by Mr. Tourneur to a remarkable degree. The effects secured by dissolving scenes, multiple exposures, etc., should prove wonderfully mystifying to the public, and it can hardly be doubted that this photoplay will create a far stronger impression than the stage piece did."

"The story of 'The Blue Bird' was suggested by an actual incident which occurred to Maeterlinck. One cold winter evening the poet's wife brought to their home in St. Wandrille, Normandy, a little girl who had become lost in the forest. The child's sister was sick, and the mother, a poor widow, was unable to obtain employment or even to give her children bread. The little girl, trusting in the old Norman folk tale that whosoever desired happiness must first take captive the blue bird, set out in the cold and the snow to hunt the bird that was blue and thus end the troubles of her family.

"The poor creature was found in a half frozen condition by Madame Maeterlinck and was warmed and fed, and soon the Maeterlincks brought real happiness to the widow's sad home by providing clothes, food and medical attendance, and securing employment for her.

"The poet's imagination took fire at the incident and he wrote a tale of the Blue Bird quest based on the girl's experience, in which a boy and a girl made a fanciful quest of the Blue Bird accompanied by a troop of fairies.

Petrova Takes Short Rest at Palm Beach

ON March 12 Madame Petrova left for Palm Beach, Fla., for one week's vacation before starting work on her fifth Petrova Picture, which will be founded on the well-known novel, "Patience Sparhawk," by Gertrude Atherton. This occasion will not only mark the first holiday Madame Petrova has permitted herself in the past eight months, but will also celebrate the completion of the first half of the eight pictures to be released through the First National Exhibitors Circuit, which the Petrova Picture Company agreed to make this year.

Without the shadow of a doubt, it is claimed, Madame Petrova has silenced forever the "you've-got-to-show me" attitude of certain types of persons in and about the motion picture world, who predicted when she formed her own company for the making of her own productions, under her own supervision, in her own studios, that the first picture would be the beginning of the end. When a woman undertakes to become her own manager, they argued, and is given too much free rein, what does she do with it but get all tangled up and hang herself in her own rope! However, the Polish artiste's feet are planted firmly on the ground and there is not the slightest evidence of the noose tightening around her neck.

Right on top of the success of Madame Petrova's first picture, "A Daughter of Destiny," came the release of "The Light Within," and at its New York showing at the Rialto again the box office receipts broke the record, it is said. The First National Exhibitors were unanimous in their praise and agreed that the second picture even surpassed the first in artistic production, interest, carefulness as to detail and beauty of photography.

At the private showing of the two other Petrova Pictures the First National Exhibitors have expressed their complete satisfaction, and there is said to be little doubt but what these features, when released, will meet with the same success which has thus far greeted the first two productions.

The fifth Petrova Picture, the Gertrude Atherton story, will be directed by Ralph Ince, who is now at work cutting and assembling the fourth picture. This is said to be widely different from both "A Daughter of Destiny" and "The Light Within," offering the star a role in which her personality is the dominating note.

Pathe Claims a Serial Record

Gives Some Tips on Opening of "The House of Hate" on March 10—Hailed as the Company's Best

"THE HOUSE OF HATE," Pathe's new serial, starring Pearl White with Antonio Moreno and a big cast, including Paul Dillon and Peggy Shaynor, opened on March 10 to what Pathe declares is a larger total of advance collections than any former Pathe serial, not excluding even the "Iron Claw," "The Fatal Ring" or any other of the serials. Actual figures, according to a statement from the Pathe offices, point to this serial as the biggest drawing card the company has ever put out. "The House of Hate" is playing in a number of theatres in New York City, over the Mayer & Schneider Circuit, consisting of the New Law, The Odion, The Mayer & Schneider, Delancey, Sunshine, Hopkins, American Movies and the Palace theatres. The latter has never played a serial before. The picture will also be seen on the Boligini Circuit, the houses of which include The Regent, Ideal, Morningside, York, Seventy-second Street, The Movies, The Village, The Tiffany and Drury Lane. The picture is running at the Grand Opera House, Twenty-third street and Eighth avenue. This theatre seats 2,000 people and the management has posted 1,000, 1 sheets, ½ sheets and three sheets.

Other houses booking "The House of Hate" from Pathe New York Exchange, are the Costello, Spooner, Star, National, Jersey City, the Apollo, Folly, Cretona, Bay Ridge, Comedy, Strand, Porchester, and Hamilton of Yonkers.

It is said that negotiations are now under way which will add during the present year seven or eight more theatres to the M. & S. circuit.

Pathe, in speaking of Mayer and Schneider, said: "With all their success, their fair tactics have not changed. They use no 'strangle hold' methods with exchanges, but believe and stand for a fair deal to all and a live and let live policy, and look upon strong serials as an important factor in building really substantial business."

Final of Chapin Series Set for April

THE three concluding chapters of the Paramount-Benjamin Chapin series of "The Son of Democracy" will be released during April, including "Down the River," issued on the first of the month, a story of Abraham Lincoln's life as a young man, when he starts down the Mississippi River on a flatboat and becomes involved with Northern slave stealers; "The Slave Auction," released April 8, showing Lincoln's first glimpse of the slave market and his efforts to combat the sort of slave traders who were despised nowhere more than among Southerners themselves, and "Under the Stars," a drama of patriotism, with intimate scenes of Abraham Lincoln amid crises similar to those now confronting the United States, released April 15.

"Down the River" is said to be a graphic illustration of the anguish caused by the slave traffic, and the many cases of injustice when free negroes were stolen from anti-slavery states and taken to the South for sale. Lincoln is moved to interfere, but finds himself powerless in the face of the opposition from the dishonest officers of the law, though he takes part in a thrilling fight.

"The Slave Auction" shows how Lincoln outwitted the slave dealers and helped a young negro woman and her child to escape after she had been sold at auction. The incidents in this chapter and the preceding one had an important bearing on the life of Lincoln, as well as the history of the United States, for as he left New Orleans on a floatboat, bound for his Illinois home, he made a vow that some day he would hit the crust of slavery, and hit it hard.

"Under the Stars" is the final chapter of the series, and has been arranged as a fitting climax to the subjects preceding. It shows the tremendous difficulties under which Abraham Lincoln labored and the criticisms to which he was subjected, which time has shown to be entirely unfounded. It forcibly brings to mind the position of President Wilson in these trying times, and is a plea for justice and patience with our Chief Executive, who is today fighting for the same principles of democracy for which Abraham Lincoln battled.

Alice Brady Cast as an Italian Girl

ALICE BRADY'S next Select production, on which the star has been working for some time, and which was started under the working name of "The Phantom Feud," has received as its definite title, "The Ordeal of Rosetta." This title is believed to be more indicative of the action of the picture, which tells the story of an Italian-American stenographer of gentle birth and breeding.

In addition to Craufurd Kent and Ormi Hawley, as leads for Miss Brady, as announced heretofore, the balance of the casting has been completed and the parts are said to have been intrusted throughout to players of established merit. Maud Turner Gordon, character woman, plays Mrs. Hapgood, the hero's mother; Henry Leoni is Professor Gelardo, the heroine's aged father; Hazel Washburn fills the role of Mildred Sanders, the society girl who plots against Rosetta to win the love of Aubrey Hapgood. Others in the cast include Edna Ellwood, Peggy Elmer, Mrs. Shannon, George Henry, Austin Miller, Ed Burns, Jack Burns, Carl La Viness and Joseph Berno in various roles of importance.

The assistant director for "The Ordeal of Rosetta" is Albert Lena, for several years associated with Mr. Chautard. He takes the place of George Odell, who has gone to another production.

Francis X. Bushman Greets Bert Lytell at the Metro Studio

Vaudeville Star's Screen Debut with Metro

Pauline Welsh, well known as a headliner in vaudeville, will make her screen debut in the Metro All-Star Series production, "Social Hypocrites," in which May Allison is starred. Miss Welch plays the Duchess of St. Keverne as a girl, portrayed in later life by Marie Wainwright. Albert Capellani directed this picture version of Alicia Ramsey's stage play, "Bridge."

"A Pair of Sixes" Being Shown to Trade

"A Pair of Sixes," the latest George K. Spoor production starring Taylor Holmes, and which has been set for release April 1, is now being shown to the trade. Many advance bookings have already been reported from the Kleine exchange. Other Essanay releases for the latter part of March include the Broncho Billy reissues, two Chaplin comedies, "The Tramp" and "His New Job," and Snakeville Comedies.

Pathe Hits High Speed

Production of Pathe Plays with Frank Keenan, Bryant Washburn, Bessie Love and Fannie Ward as stars continues in California at high speed. At the Paralta studio Mr. Keenan, with Lois Wilson and Ed Coxen, is at work on "The Bells," screen version of Sir Henry Irving's stage success, under the direction of Ernest Warde. Bessie Love is engaged on "A Little Sister of Everybody," under the direction of Robern Thornby. William Addison Lathrop wrote the story. "The Range Rider" keeps Bryant Washburn and his director, William Worthington, busy, while at Universal City Fannie Ward is now making "A Japanese Nightingale," from Sir William Young's novel, under the direction of George Fitzmaurice.

Meanwhile, at the Astra studio at Jersey City work is progressing rapidly on the closing episodes of the Pearl White serial, "The House of Hate," with Antonio Moreno.

Big Trio Responsible for "Shame"

If the John W. Noble production, "Shame," to be distributed by General Film Company, is as successful as it is expected to be, the three persons responsible will be Director Noble, Zena Keefe, the star, and Niles Welch, the leading man. Each has had a highly successful motion picture career and each considers his or her work in "Shame" as its climax. John W. Noble will be recalled as having directed, among others, "Romeo and Juliet," "The Awakening of Helena Ritchie," "The Brand of Cowardice" and "A Man Without a Country."

Current Events Shows Our Boys in the Trenches

Motion pictures of Pershing's boys in the actual first line trenches in France, made by military photographers of the Photographic Division, United States Signal Corps, are the main feature of Universal Current Events No. 44. The pictures were released to Universal Current Events by the Committee on Public Information through the American Red Cross and are official United States war film.

The scenes open with the departure of the boys, wearing their "tin trench derbies" from the little French village in which they were billeted. Motor trucks loaded with soldiers scurry along the roadways, much of the time under the fire of German batteries. These trucks stop at the communicating trenches and the doughboys have to hoof the rest of the distance below the level of the ground.

The pictures finish with scenes of Red Cross workers passing through the trenches in search of wounded and stretcher-bearers carrying to an advanced dressing station the first case of gas poisoning. The scenes then shift to an American hospital back of the lines, where the wounded rest pending removal to a base hospital somewhere far out of the fighting zone.

Scenes Taken on Warship for "Stolen Orders"

Among the scenes in "Stolen Orders," William A. Brady's picturization of the Drury Lane melodrama, "Sealed Orders," and the first of the series of feature productions announced by Mr. Brady at the time he severed his connection with the World Film Corporation, are some taken on board a United States man-of-war. It is not permitted to mention the name of the battleship which will be shown on the screen, nor its location at the time the scenes were photographed. Suffice it to say that it was somewhere in America and that episodes of dramatic interest were filmed on its deck.

Exhibitors Like Screen

Exhibitors who have booked the Screen Telegram, the new Mutual news serial, the first issues of which were released March 3 and 7, are said to be delighted with the subject matter and photography and have nothing but words of praise for its timeliness and general excellence.

Mutual Names April Releases

Among Stars Are Mary Miles Minter, Margarita Fischer, William Russell and Ann Murdock—Four Features Scheduled

MUTUAL'S schedule of April feature releases includes productions from the studios of the American Film Company, Inc., William Russell Productions, Inc., and the Empire All Star Corporation, starring William Russell, Ann Murdock, Mary Miles Minter and Margarita Fischer.

Mary Miles Minter will be seen in "A Bit of Jade," released April 1. This is said to be an exotic mystery story built around the disappearance of a rare Hindu necklace, which is said to possess a potent charm. The play, which was scenarioized by Karl Coolidge from a widely read story of Mildred Carl Graham, is said to be replete with tense and dramatic situations.

Margarita Fischer, in "Primitive Woman," released April 8, will be seen in a character different from anything she has recently done. Elementary woman in a twentieth century setting is the theme, and the play is said to possess the elements of strength and originality.

Ann Murdock, who has been appearing in photo-drama of Charles Frohman stage plays, has completed "The Richest Girl," released April 15. David Powell, who has supported Miss Murdock in "The Impostor," "Outcast" and "Please Help Emily," will again play the lead.

William Russell, an athletic star, is putting the finishing touches on his first production made by his own company, William Russell Productions, Inc. This picture is "Hearts or Diamonds," and will be released April 22. Mr. Russell is enthusiastic over the results of his initial effort in production and believes it will even surpass "The Midnight Trail," "In Bad," "New York Luck" and "Snap Judgment."

The Smile Betrays Her. It Is Mary Miles Minter, American-Mutual Star

The play is an adaptation of the novel "Adrienne Gascoyne," by William Hamilton Osborne. The story concerns the operations of a gang of international diamond thieves with whom Adrienne Gascoyne, a beautiful young woman unfortunately becomes involved.

Miss Charlotte Burton, who has appeared in several Russell successes, will play the lead. The cast includes Carl Stockdale, John Gough and Robert Klein. It was produced under the direction of Henry King.

Talmadge Feature Draws Lasky Praise

CONSTANCE TALMADGE, Select comedienne, who is at present working in California, was recently the recipient of a very handsome compliment from Jesse L. Lasky, who is now in Hollywood overseeing the work of his company. Mr. Lasky attended the first screening of "Up the Road With Sallie," the newly completed Select Picture, in which Miss Talmadge will be presented by Lewis J. Selznick, and was said to be so enthusiastic over both picture and star that he wired his commendation to the offices of the Select Pictures Corporation.

"'Up the Road With Sallie,'" said Mr. Lasky, "is a charming and delightful picture. It should be a genuine success; I regard it as the best picture that this young star has made." Coming from such an authority, this is considered by Select high praise indeed, and Miss Talmadge and the officers of Select fully appreciate the compliment.

"Up the Road With Sallie" was adapted from Frances Sterrett's novel of the same name by Julia Crawford Ivers and directed by William D. Taylor, both of whom have registered along the very lines of comedy-drama which characterize this picture. Miss Talmadge's previous appearances in "Scandal," "The Honeymoon," "The Studio Girl" and "The Shuttle" are ample guaranty, according to Select, of her sparkling performance in this production.

Norman Kerry and the rest of the cast, Kate Toncray, Thomas Persse, Karl Formes and M. B. Paanakker take full advantage.

Now "Purple Lily"

World-Pictures announces a change in the title of the picture to be released on April 23, in which Kitty Gordon is the star. During the working period this picture has been known as "Devil's Dice," but the title has now been changed to "The Purple Lily," which title is said to conform much more closely to the nature of the picture.

"Secret Service" Organized by Universal

ACTING upon recommendations made to President Carl Laemmle by Joe Brandt, Universal's assistant treasurer, the Universal company is organizing a "secret service" corps of field men whose sole duty will be to report the reception accorded its various productions.

Mr. Brandt conducted a preliminary investigation along these lines while on a recent tour of the Middle West. One of the complaints made by exhibitors generally was to the effect that producers seem to lack knowledge of the kind of pictures best calculated to attract business of their particular patronage.

Frequently the public's tastes for pictures changes overnight. Today it may consist of a desire to see war pictures. Tomorrow society dramas may be in demand, while on the following day Western dramas are wanted. With an organization of "secret service" men constantly in the field to keep their fingers on the public's pulse, it is Mr. Laemmle's belief that his company will be able to cater to the demand within no greater a period of time than is required to turn out the subjects desired.

The men will be called "Secret Service" men because they will not make themselves known to the exhibitors. Instead, they will enter the theatres as ordinary patrons and observe the effect upon the audiences of the Universal and Bluebird productions that are presented. Whatever criticisms are made will be promptly reported to the home office.

After they have been brought to Mr. Laemmle's personal attention these opinions will be forwarded to Universal City where they will be shown to the directors, who will be able to avoid any errors in production they may have committed in the pictures criticized adversely.

Ethel Clayton's "The Witch Woman" Will Be Released by World Pictures

Eight Features on Triangle April List

WESTERN narratives, society dramas and mystery are listed on the Triangle April schedule, which the Triangle Distributing Corporation announces will include eight five-reel features. In accordance with the policy of the company, magazine and novel material has been utilized for the program to a marked degree.

Alma Rubens, Roy Stewart, William Desmond, J. Barney Sherry and Margery Wilson are among the featured players who will make their appearance in the new releases.

Heading the list for the week of April 7 is "The Love Brokers," with Alma Rubens in the stellar role, this story being a screen adaptation of "Another Foolish Virgin," by W. Carey Wonderley, author of the recent Triangle feature, "The Marriage Bubble." The Beaux Arts section of New York provides the locale of the story. "The Boss of the Lazy Y," the second release of the week, is a screen adaptation of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of the same name, and features Roy Stewart in the title role.

"The Law of the Great Northwest," by Ralph Westfall, for many years one of the daring officers of the Northwest Mounted Police, is released for the first part of the week of the 14th. This is the first of a series by this writer, and offers Margery Wilson, who appeared in that other drama of the Canadian Northwest, "Wild Sumac," in an intensely emotional role. "Who Killed Walton," which follows "The Law of the Great Northwest," was adapted from Norman Sherbrooke's magazine story, "The Veil," a mystery story within New York political circles. J. Barney Sherry appears as the typical ward politician of the "Old Guard."

A story of the New York underworld, "The Finger Print," heads the April 21st schedule. This is an adaptation of the Collier's Weekly story, "In the Spring," by John A. Moroso. "The Finger Print" deals with the Italian underworld and shows the inner workings of the police system in the days before the Rosenthal murder. Joe King plays opposite Margery Wilson in this new vehicle, which features Miss Wilson as a reformed crook and Mr. King as a police inspector. William Desmond has the featured role in the second release of the week, an English society drama entitled "Society For Sale."

Another Moroso play, "The Lonely Woman," is scheduled as the opening feature for the week of the 28th, with Belle Bennett in the title role. Roy Stewart has a dual role in the concluding picture for April, which is entitled, "Paying His Debt," which is an adaptation of "The Derelict."

Special Press Service for Drew Reissues

Walter N. Irwin, general manager of the Vitagraph distributing organization, announces that a special press service has been inaugurated in connection with the Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Drew Comedy reissue. The service consists of press sheets and a full line of posters carrying the latest portraits of the stars and stills from their individual comedies. The press sheets are also illustrated with stills and twenty-five thousand of them already have been mailed to exhibitors. The comedies are now in their third week and Vitagraph announces that they are proving even more popular than when originally released.

Branham Books Taylor Holmes Film

Charles G. Branham, manager of the Strand theatre in Minneapolis, has booked "Ruggles of Red Gap," with Taylor Holmes, for the week of March 17. In writing to the Kleine offices, in Chicago, Mr. Branham said: "Several persons who never had read the story viewed the picture with me and seemed to enjoy it even more than I. It is refreshing, and the work of Mr. Holmes and his company should delight all classes, for it is decidedly breezy."

Exhibitor Branham also has a good word for "Brown of Harvard," which is released through Kleine.

World Wings Two with One Shot

Director Harley Knoles, of World-Pictures, has gone to Bat Cave, N. C., where scenes for two World Film productions will be made. They are "The Echo Girl," from the story by C. Hobart Doty, and "Without Paying the Price," by Romaine Rue. The one will be released within two weeks, while the other is not scheduled for release for two months, the winging of the two birds with one shot being in line with the World policy of conservation.

To Assist Alec Lorimore in Australia

The increasing business of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation in Australia has led Alec Lorimore, managing director of that branch, to appoint four executive directors to assist in the general conduct of the organization. The men, who have all been selected for work they have accomplished in the past, are F. W. Wynne-Jones, C. H. Gilbert, William R. Hoggan and D. Lotherington.

This strengthens considerably the position of Paramount and Artcraft pictures in Australia, inasmuch as the whole of the business and its general management are not dependent on one man. The new arrangement relieves Mr. Lorimore of a great deal of the detail work and permits him to devote more of his personal time to building up the branch offices to keep pace with the requirements of the expanding business. The main office is located in Sydney, with the principal branches at Perth and Melbourne.

Universal Lion Scratches the Star

An attack by one of the lions upon Marie Walcamp while working in the first episode of "The Lion's Claws," the new Universal adventure serial, announced for release April 1, resulted in the actress receiving a scar she will carry for life, according to a new announcement from Universal.

Foreign Supremacy of American Films Not Due to War

President Paul H. Cromelin of the Inter-Ocean Film Corporation has issued a statement on export conditions. He says that the lead American films have taken in the foreign market will not end with the war, as has been predicted.

"American films are not leading in foreign fields simply because foreign producing companies have had to reduce their producing activities through the war," states Mr. Cromelin. "The reason for our ascendancy is that our producers have been studying the demand of the international movie fan as against that of the national one. Once upon a time we produced with mainly our own country in view, but then our directors woke up to the fact that the likes and dislikes of the foreign picture-goer had to be considered. We started studying those likes, and the result is that our films today have real international appeal. That is why they are now so strongly planted in the foreign fields.

"American producers, guided by the financial return of their export sales, are going to keep on making the pictures of international appeal. Mere ending of the war isn't going to change this determination. Why, then, should we look for a drop in the sale of American film abroad when peace shall come? There isn't a single, solid reason for believing in such a change.

"As far as the production volume of European films in war times goes, there is a general mistaken belief. There has been some reduction to this volume, but European producing has not stopped by any means. There have been plenty of good productions from the European field, and they have been circulating in the foreign field. The lead that American pictures have attained in those fields is due directly to their quality and their world appeal. The only thing that can lose America this lead after the war, is a distinct drop in this quality and appeal."

Mr. Cromelin announces that the Inter-Ocean have placed the World and Paralta full release program in almost every foreign country, and that brisk sales are reported on "Whither Thou Goest," "Today," "Mad Lover," "Hunting Big Game in the Frozen North," and "The Thirteenth Labor of Hercules," for which the Inter-Ocean are the foreign distributing agents.

Making of Big Guns Shown in Screen Magazine

The various processes in the manufacture of our big guns are shown in Universal Screen Magazine No. 63, released March 22. First are shown the ingots of iron handled by a giant crane. Then they are heated in the crucible and moulded into the barrel of the gun. From this point each process is followed in detail.

Other subjects are Part Two of the series on "The Making of a Newspaper," "Building a Concrete Bridge" and a demonstration of mediumistic tricks by Hereward Carrington.

Chicago Hears United Plans

Lee Ochs Visits Windy City to Address Exhibitors on Unity—Will Not Run for Any Office Next Year

LEE OCHS visited Chicago, March 22, and caused a sensation among the hundred or more exhibitors who listened to his exposition and explanation of the plans for operating the United Picture Theatres of America. It was the first time since the convention of last July that Mr. Ochs addressed a large meeting of exhibitors in Chicago.

Opening his discussion of the new distribution plan by asking that the hatchet which was raised last summer be buried once and for all in the face of the present crisis which threatens the exhibiting industry, Mr. Ochs came out with the flat statement that he would not be a candidate for any office next year. He urged exhibitors to unite in the common cause and to forget the causes of dissent which had kept them apart in the past.

"Co-operation," said Mr. Ochs, "and the collective buying power of the exhibitor must be brought into play if he is to ever get a fair return out of his business or, in fact if he is to save himself from having to close his doors. The present situation is critical and it isn't a time to hold out because of old scores."

Mr. Ochs explains his connection with the proposition: "There are altogether 10,000 shares of stock," he said, "which sell for $250 a piece. There are four other men in this scheme besides myself, and the five of us have 200 shares of stock each. That makes 1,000 shares altogether and the exhibitors themselves will own and control the other 9,000. We will run the system just as long as we do it satisfactorily. When you don't like the way we do things we get out and you put in some one else."

After going into detail on the subject and pointing the proposition in such colors that the audience could scarcely help but be interested in it, Mr. Ochs threw the floor open to debate and invited questions. The exhibitors showed that they had followed Mr. Ochs very closely by their questions and some enrolled before leaving the hall.

C. R. Seelye, general manager of the United Picture Theatres, and formerly with Pathe, was to have arrived in Chicago in time to have been on the platform with Mr. Ochs on Friday, but he didn't arrive in the city until Sunday. Both men assert that they are more than pleased with the way membership applications are coming in, and C. W. Bunn, manager of the local office in the Consumers Building, expressed the same sentiment when asked how the proposition was going locally.

State-Rights Men Are Worried

After Tour of Country, Lesser Declares Independent Market Lacks Suitable Productions and Says Prices Are Too High

THE independent, or state rights buying exchanges are face to face with a serious proposition, and the very lives of such distributing organizations depend upon the correct solution of these problems—the ability to secure subjects suitable for production presentation, and the purchase of them at prices that will allow a profit to the distributor for his work, according to statements made by Sol. Lesser, president and general manager of the All Star Feature Distributors of San Francisco and Los Angeles, and organizer of the State Rights Exchanges, Inc., a national institution buying for state rights exchanges in every field.

Mr. Lesser has just completed a survey of the entire country made possible by the co-operation of the most prominent independent exchangemen in every locality.

"There seems to be no set way for a producer to establish a price for his film for any given locality," Mr. Lesser said. "They attempt to secure outlandish prices, and if they cannot sell to a well established exchange in any given field, it has been the practice of some to induce the establishment of new exchanges. This has brought about the same condition in the distributing, as now exists in the production field, namely: an over-distribution as well as over-production. Recently the manager of one big company made a trip to San Francisco to sell me the rights on a film for six per cent of the country for $12,000. This same man had forgotten he had told me the production cost but $12,000, story, filming, editing and preparation of advertising matter. Later this film sold for the same territory at about one-fourth the price he originally asked.

"Prices for the films for the thirteen territories of the country will eventually adjust themselves, but while this process is going on, the established exchange of today will suffer. The crying need of the state rights distributors is 'good production.' The independent man must have bigger than program pictures, and needs many such films as 'The Whip,' 'Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea,' 'Civilization,' 'The Spoilers,' 'The Cold Deck,' etc. Films of the quality of these can best be distributed by the independent organizations for independent men can give them individual exploitation which means much to the earning power of the picture for producer, distributor and exhibitor. There is not an over-production of good films, but too many mediocre and undesirable subjects. When producers take time enough to make good subjects, they will not only greatly improve the industry generally, but they will establish the state rights and independent men more firmly, for the state rights method has been found to be the most satisfactory for the exploitation of the better films."

Louise Glaum's First Paralta Play, "An Alien Enemy," Has Military Atmosphere Said to Be Very Realistic

No Production Slump at Paralta Studios

DESPITE the fact that Southern California has just had a long period of almost continual rain, there has been no let-up of production at the Paralta West Coast studios. There are a large number of plays in the course of manufacture for the three organizations making pictures at the Paralta plant at the present time, namely: Paralta Plays, Inc., Selexart and Pathe, and during the heavy rainfall practically all of the companies kept busy within the studio.

Having recently completed "Maid o' the Storm," Bessie Barriscale, who has been the most active star at the Paralta studios from the point of productions, completed, started the filming of her sixth Paralta feature under the title of "Patriotism." The story was written by R. B. Kidd and Jane Holly and the screen version was prepared by Julian Louise Lamothe. Miss Barriscale is again being directed by Raymond B. West, who has staged the majority of her Paralta productions. In "Patriotism" Miss Barriscale will be supported by Charles Gunn, Paralta's new leading man.

"An Alien Enemy," by Monte M. Katterjohn, will introduce Louise Glaum as a Paralta star, and will be the first picture Miss Glaum has ever made in which she does not have the role of a vampire. Under the direction of Wallace Worsley the picture was completed during the rainy period by the filming of a few interior scenes which were necessary for its completion.

Henry B. Walthall and J. Warren Kerrigan, the other two Paralta stars, although not actively at work upon new productions are ready to begin filming as soon as their stories are completed by the scenario department. Mr. Walthall eluded the rainy spell by a huried trip to his ranch, which is located at Scottsdale, Ariz. Manager of productions, Robert Brunton, and N. William Aronson, Mr. Walthall's representative, are considering several stories with a view to purchasing them for future Walthall releases. His second Paralta production, "Humdrum Brown," will be released this month through the W. W. Hodkinson Corporation.

Goldwyn Stars Again Active at Fort Lee

MADGE KENNEDY, star of "The Danger Game," by Roy Somerville, which is scheduled for release April 7, has returned to Goldwyn's Fort Lee studios after an illness of a week. Her absence did not materially affect the progress of the production, for Director Harry Pollard found himself able to photograph a series of short scenes in which the star has no part. Edward Dillon, whose direction of Madge Kennedy in "Our Little Life" promised great things for "The Danger Game," was to be seen hobbling about the studios early in the week. Mr. Dillon slipped on the icy pavement and broke an ankle early in the progress of the Madge Kennedy play, and Pollard was engaged to take his place. Under his direction there has been evolved a romantic melodrama declared by authorities to be absolutely unique in motion picture annals.

With the completion of "The Face in the Dark," to be released April 21, Mae Marsh will at once begin work in a new production, which has not yet been given a title, from the story by Edith Barnard Delano entitled "When Carey Came to Town." It is said to give Miss Marsh one of the most delightful roles of her motion picture career. It will be directed by Hobart Henley.

Mabel Normand, who had been in Florida with George Loane Tucker and several players making revisions in "Joan of Plattsburg" to conform with a Government request that certain military material photographed at the great training camp be eliminated, returned on Wednesday, refreshed and eager to start her next production, which is to be made from a famous Broadway stage success. A few more interior scenes for "Joan of Plattsburg" remain to be made and the picture has been tentatively scheduled for release May 6.

World Company in Florida for Single Scene

Montagu Love, Barbara Castleton, Director Travers Vale and their company have gone to St. Augustine, Fla., to shoot a single scene of the first Castleton-Love World production, "The Swarmi." This particular scene requires a setting of peculiar mystic beauty and the director, Travers Vale, decided that the backgrounds of Florida alone would suffice. "The Swarmi" deals with an Anglo-Indian story, the action occurring in both England and India. The cast includes, in addition to Mr. Love and Miss Castleton, Madge Evans, George MacQuarrie, Louise Vale, Irene Blackwell and Jack Drumier.

"Up She Goes" Is Billy Rhodes' Next

Billy Rhodes' next Strand comedy released through Mutual is "Up She Goes," scheduled for March 26. Billie went up with the "Angel's Flight" in Los Angeles and her hubby went after, for he was jealous of the music "professor," who was teaching her the latest livery stable "blues" on the saxaphone. Hubby threw the "professor" out of the house and the saxaphone followed after. That's the way the story goes.

Neilan to Direct Cohan for Artcraft

Marshall Neilan, who directed Mary Pickford in "Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley," "Stella Maris" and "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," and has just completed "M'liss," the little Artcraft star's latest picture, is now in New York where he will direct George M. Cohan for Artcraft in "Hit-the-Trail Holiday." William D. Taylor will direct Mary Pickford in her next picture following "M'liss."

Record Bookings Reported for Jaxon Serial

What is said to be a new record for serial bookings has been established in Baltimore by "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," with Jane Vance, the Jaxon spy serial released by General Film Company. With the halfway mark reached in the release of the twelve chapters, thirty-nine theatres have already contracted to show the big patriotic serial, while new bookings are being received every day from this territory by the Washington office of General Film. Record-breaking booking are being reported from Canada, it is said, as the result of the strong endorseement given the serial by the chief press censor of Canada, Col. Ernest Chambers.

"The Decoy" Comes First

"The Decoy" is the title of the first 500-foot Mutt and Jeff animated cartoon which will be released under the new world-wide distributing arrangement recently completed by Bud Fisher with the Fox Film Corporation.

Mabel Normand, One of Goldwyn's Best Bets in Comedy

Mae Marsh Cast in Dramatic Role

As Mary Garland in "The Beloved Traitor," her next Goldwyn production, is said to be more than the "whim girl of the screen," as she has often been called. In fact, it is said, she is revealed as a dramatic actress with poise and power and no end of emotional force.

Some of the scenes are laid in a New England fishing village and many quaint touches appear. One of the settings is a cottage where Mary lives with her uncle. All sorts of things were done to this cottage to give it the right atmosphere. There are shells without number, nets, models of schooners and the rest of the objects of art fisherfolk always have around. There is a real sea-going parrot in the picture, too.

Vitagraph Now Old Enough to Vote

On March 17, St. Patrick's Day, the Vitagraph Company of America reached the twenty-first anniversary of its birth, and by way of a fitting celebration President Albert E. Smith and other officials of the company gathered on that date at the studio in Brooklyn for the first private screening of "Over the Top," which Vitagraph deems the greatest feature ever made.

It was on St. Patrick's Day, 1897, that Albert E. Smith, president of Vitagraph since its origin, and J. Stuart Blackton started the old American Vitagraph Company, and ever since then the history of Vitagraph has been largely the history of the motion picture industry in the United States, for the big organization has never lost its place in the front rank of motion picture producers.

Flarity Returns to General Film

F. Flarity, formerly branch manager for General Film at Pittsburgh, in which city he has since been in charge of the Jewel Productions exchange, has been placed in charge of General's Albany, N. Y., office. In rejoining General Film for service at Albany Mr. Flarity finds himself again in the territory in which he formerly worked for Pathe.

About New Productions

Mae Marsh is nearing completion at the Goldwyn Studio in Fort Lee of her newest picture, "The Face in the Dark." Niles Welch is opposite the star in this Irvin S. Cobb story.

Tom Mix has finished "Western Blood" in the William Fox West Coast Studios. The picture has to do with a cowboy in a dress suit. This will be Mix's third starring subject.

A rescue from treacherous quicksands is said to one of the exciting feats by Bert Lytell in "The Trail to Yesterday," Metro's picture now being made in Arizona. Edwin Carewe is directing.

Following her return from Palm Beach, Madame Petrova plans to begin at once on her fifth picture, "Patience Sparhawk and Her Times." Ralph Ince is to direct it, from Mary Murillo's scenario.

Triangle is producing a two-reel comedy written by Mrs. Kate Corbaley, author of "Real Folks." The name of the new one is "Mr. Briggs Closes the House." Edwin Brady is in the cast.

Louise Glaum's first picture since her connection with Paralta, has been completed at the company's studio in Los Angeles. Twenty-six working days were utilized in the making. "An Alien Enemy" is the name.

James Young, having completed "The White Man's Law" for Paramount, with Sessue Hayakawa, has begun work with J. Stuart Blackton supervising on "Missing." This is Blackton's second Paramount feature.

After finishing "The Bride of Fear," in the William Fox's West Coast Studios, Jewel Carmen has started work on a new production under direction of Edward J. Le Saint. It has not yet been named.

"The Hillcrest Mystery" is the title of the five-part Pathe Play, in which Ralph Kellard will make his reappearance on the screen. George Fitzmaurice is the director.

Work on the first Mastercraft picture, "The One Woman," from Thomas Dixon's novel, will probably be started at the Paralta West Coast Studios this week. Reginald Barker will direct it.

Alice Joyce, Vitagraph star, has started activities on a Blue Ribbon feature, "The Strength of the Weak," under direction of Tom Terriss. President Smith announces a strong cast.

Norma Talmadge, arriving in New York from Palm Beach, went direct to Saranac Lake for ice "shots" in "De Luxe Annie," her next Select picture. She then bundled up and went to California.

Douglas Fairbanks is said to be working night and day on his newest Artcraft picture, in order to begin his Liberty Loan activities. This will take about three weeks of his time.

C. M. Franklin directed "The Bride of Fear" for William Fox, with Jewel Carmen as star. The production has just been finished.

"His New Job," With Charles Chaplin, Is One of the Essanay-General Pictures Being Reissued

Lottie Briscoe Returns to the Screen in Metro's "The House of Mirth"

Lottie Briscoe Returns to Screen with Metro

Metro's presentation of "The House of Mirth," picture version of Edith Wharton's novel, produced under the direction of Albert Capellani, will mark the return to the screen of Lottie Briscoe, whose absence from the cinema world was due to an operation. At the age of four Lottie Briscoe made her debut on the stage in the company of Richard Mansfield and in later productions was billed as "the greatest child actress on earth." After a long career in stock she entered the picture field in 1910, becoming ingenue lead for Essanay. There she was in the same company with Francis X. Bushman, and it is by a strange caprice of Fate that she now finds herself working under the same roof with him at the Metro studios.

First Lyons-Moran Star Comedy April 8

Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran, formerly featured in Nestor Comedies, will return to the Universal program April 8 and will appear weekly thereafter under the brand name of "Lyons-Moran Star Comedies." Fourteen of these pictures have already been produced and are now ready for consecutive release.

The first of the new series is titled "A Pigskin Hero," and it is said by Universal to be the funniest picture in which the former Nestor pair have ever appeared. As in all the comedies to be released under the new brand name, everything suggestive of the slapstick brand of humor has been carefully avoided, it is said. Instead, situations, acting and story, have been relied upon to furnish the comedy element.

"Selfish Yates" Completed by Hart

The role of a thoroughly selfish man is a unique one for William S. Hart, yet that is the kind of character he assumes in "Selfish Yates," which he has just completed for Artcraft, and which will be released following "The Tiger Man." The Ince star directed "Selfish Yates" himself, as was the case with his two previous productions. The story is by C. Gardner Sullivan.

Hodkinson Speaks of Roth

Thinks His New Partner Should Furnish Valuable Ideas in Advisory Board Recently Formed by Motion Picture News

IN a letter to his associates in New York, W. W. Hodkinson, who is at present in Seattle after his successful closing of the San Francisco territory for the Hodkinson copartnership, comments briefly of his tie-in in California.

"I note with interest," writes Mr. Hodkinson, "the fact that Eugene Roth's name appears on the Motion Picture News Advisory Board being formed by Motion Picture News for the benefit and help of the exhibitors at large.

"I am not surprised that Mr. Roth is included in the roster of leading exhibitors and that he has offered his help to smaller brethren in the present time of stress. Mr. Roth, who is now an active copartner of mine in the Hodkinson business structure, is just the type of man to offer help and advice out of his generous and diversified fund of experience and knowledge.

"His integrity and principle are well known nationally, and, of course, particularly so in California, and for that reason, among others, Mr. Roth is the logical exhibitor to lead the Californian section of the industry in the great and powerful organization of copartners that is just now assuming shape upon the definite plans formed some time ago.

"And by the way, that very same strength of principle and true greatness is one thing that I prize most and look for first when considering the best exhibitors to entrust with the building up of each section of our enterprise.

The Motion Picture News Advisory Board is a splendid effort to accomplish some constructive good, and the News is seeking the aid of the best men in the country—men in whom the average exhibitor has faith and trust, due to their records and achievements, and those are just the sort of men I want, and, as you can see, am getting.

"Messrs. Greaves and Ellison, leaders of the film community in Denver, are another two men of the same character, and when I have completed the structural work in the West I am free to state that I don't think anyone will have ever seen a more powerful, more complete and more united gathering of the biggest men in the industry.

"And the bigger men will convince the smaller men that my plan is businesslike and the thing to tie to without delay."

Chapin Series to Be Completed in April

THE three concluding chapters of "The Son of Democracy," the Paramount-Chapin series depicting incidents in the life of Abraham Lincoln, will be released during April. They are "Down the River," released April 1; "The Slave Auction," released April 8, and "Under the Stars," the final chapter, which will be given to the public April 15.

"Down the River" illustrates the anguish caused by the slave traffic, and the many cases of injustice when free negroes were stolen from anti-slavery states and taken to the South for sale. Lincoln is moved to interfere but finds himself powerless in the face of the opposition from the dishonest officers of the law, though he takes part in a thrilling fight.

"The Slave Auction" shows how Lincoln outwitted the slave dealers, and helped a young negro woman and her child to escape after she had been sold at auction. The incidents in this chapter and the preceding one had an important bearing on the life of Lincoln, as well as the history of the United States, for as he left New Orleans on a flatboat, bound for his Illinois home, he made a vow that some day he would hit the curse of slavery, and hit it hard.

"Under the Stars" is the final chapter of the series and has been arranged as a fitting climax to the subjects preceding. It shows the tremendous difficulties under which Abraham Lincoln labored, and the criticisms to which he was subjected, which time has shown to be entirely unfounded. It forcibly brings to mind the position of President Wilson in these trying times, and is a plea for justice and patience with our Chief Executive upon whose shoulders fall the brunt of responsibility.

Pays Big Bonus for Rights to Chaplins

TURNER AND DAHNKEN, who hold the franchise in the First National Exhibitors' Circuit for Northern California and Nevada, report that they have arranged to release seven of the new $1,000,000 series of Chaplin comedies through the Strand, of San Francisco, instead of the Hippodrome, as originally announced. The Hippodrome will have first run of "A Dog's Life," carrying out the provisions of their contract with Turner and Dahnken, but after that the picture will be shown at the Strand, and will be followed by all forthcoming Chaplins.

It is understood that the Strand executives handed over a bonus of $5,000 in real cash to the managers of the Hippodrome to secure their rights in the series, and that they are also paying a rental price of $3,500 for two weeks' service on each picture.

This figure is supposed to establish a record price for two-reel comedies in any part of the world, and is pointed to as a significant commentary upon Chaplin's popularity on the Pacific Coast, where he is said to possess the largest clientele per capita of any star so far exploited through the medium of the screen.

William A. Brady's "Stolen Orders" Has Genuine Settings as Background

Take Scenes in Maine for "A Doll's House"

Exterior scenes are now being taken in Maine under the direction of Maurice Tourneur for Elsie Ferguson's Artcraft picture, "A Doll's House," Miss Ferguson and her company having gone there last week.

"A Doll's House," Ibsen's masterpiece, derives its title from the fact that Norah, the character played by Miss Ferguson, was reared in an atmosphere free from worldly cares, and her father, who adored her, called her his "little doll," and endeavored to keep her life devoid of worry.

Vitagraph State Feature Completed

Work on "New York, or Danger Within," the big patriotic picture which Vitagraph made under the auspices of the New York State Defense Council, was finished last week, and the assembling of it will be started at once, according to a statement from the office of Albert E Smith, president of the company.

John Robertson directed the making of the picture, in which Corinne Griffith and Webster Campbell are starred.

Metro Engages Edward Abeles for Part

Edward S. Abeles, one of the better known of American actors, has been engaged by Metro to play the important part of Rosedale, the Wall Street broker, in "The House of Mirth." The Edith Wharton novel, which was dramatized by the late Clyde Fitch, has been picturized by June Mathis and Albert Capellani, and will be directed by Mr. Capellani. Mr. Abeles is at present in the cast of "Oh, Lady, Lady," at the Princess theatre. He will work at the Metro studio under Albert Capellani's direction in the daytime, appearing in the Princess theatre production in the evening—not to mention the usual matinees per week.

Big Campaign Planned for Universal Serial

With "Book With Your Eyes Open" as the campaign slogan, the Universal salesmen who are to handle the forthcoming serial, "The Lion's Claws," will be armed with a campaign book which is said to teem with valuable advertising suggestions. In addition, each salesman will have an album containing stills of the first four episodes. In this way the exhibitor can see for himself the action contained in these episodes and can be guided in his effort to reach a decision as to whether "The Lion's Claws" will prove a moneymaking proposition. The album will contain over one hundred stills and as fast as the subsequent episodes are completed photographs will be forwarded to the salesmen for insertion in the volume.

The titles under which the first four episodes of this serial will be issued are, "A Woman's Honor," "Beasts of the Jungle," "The Net of Terror," "A Woman's Scream." April 1st sees the release of the first episode.

"The Life Mask," Petrova's Third, Released

The release date of "The Life Mask," Mme. Petrova's third picture made under her own management, has been set by the First National Exhibitors' Circuit for March 18.

A mystery story in six reels, adapted to the screen by Mrs. L. Case Russell, "The Life Mask," was directed by Frank Crane, and shows the Polish star in an emotional role against a background that shifts rapidly from the higher social circles of New York to the colorful atmosphere of Spain.

The photography of the production is said to present many novel and pleasing features.

Marie Walcamp Is Featured in Universal's Serial, "The Lion's Claws"

Louise Lovely Leads Off for Universal

A STORY by James Oliver Curwood, with whose work both screen fans and readers of the so-called popular magazines are familiar, heads the list of Universal products scheduled for release during the week of March 25th. The production, which is in five reels, is entitled "The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit," and is founded upon Mr. Curwood's magazine story, "The Quest of Joan," which had a wide circulation in published form. Miss Lovely is supported in this feature by a strong cast, which includes Philo McCullough, Charles Hill Mailles, Gertrude Aster, Clyde Benson and H. A. Barrows. Edgar Jones is responsible for the direction.

The Nestor release for the week is entitled "Nothing But Nerve," and presents Gale Henry, former Joker Comedy star. Milton Sims, Charles Hefly and Evelyn Selbie appear in support of Gale Henry. The plot centers about a couple who borrow a house in which to entertain an aunt to prove to her their worthiness to inherit her fortune. Of course, the owner of the house makes an unexpected return with all of the attendant complications which such a layout would bring in its reckless trail.

L-Ko releases a Mack Swain two-reel L-Ko Komedy entitled "Sherlack Ambrose." It is all about a hobo who is mistaken for a detective.

This week brings the release of Animated Weekly No. 17, Screen Magazine No. 64 and Current Events No. 46. It also signals the closing of the extremely successful serial "The Mystery Ship," which features Ben Wilson and Neva Gerber. The eighteenth and last chapter is entitled "The Fight in Mid-Air" and brings the culmination of its romance of treasure-seeking and spy-detecting to a successful finish. It also shows for the first time in moving pictures, it is claimed, an actual battle between aeroplanes, and the destruction of one of them.

"The Bull's Eye," in which Eddie Polo is doing such good work, reaches its eighth episode during the week. The episode is entitled "Dynamite."

The Finley Nature Special concludes the program and is combined with a split-reel comedy cartoon. The Finley picture is entitled "Wild Fowl Nurseries in Southern Oregon," and the cartoon "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masked Ball."

Two Mack Sennett Comedies for April

TWO Paramount-Mack Sennett comedies will be offered to exhibitors during April, "Friend Husband," on the 8th, and "Saucy Madeline," on the 15th. Both pictures were produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Sennett, and are typical subjects from this studio.

"Friend Husband" tells the story of complications that arose when a young husband learns that a wealthy uncle whom he has never met is about to visit him and has promised to bestow $10,000 upon his nephew's baby, which, unfortunately, does not exist. Wayland Trask, as the young husband, makes strenuous efforts to borrow an infant for the occasion. Charles Murray, as the neighboring bachelor, lends his assistance, and Teddy, Wayland's faithful dog, also kidnaps a baby. The result is that too many babies appear at a most inopportune time and in most embarrassing circumstances. In the cast are Charles Murray, Wayland Trask, Mary Thurman, Gene Rogers, Harry Gribbon, Earl Kenton and Laura La Varnie.

"Saucy Madeline" presents Polly Moran in the title role. She has a jealous husband, who conducts a bowling alley. Ben Turpin gets a job in the bowling alley and becomes involved in painful complications with his boss. Madeline's tender heart has been moved by the aged and infirm bowlers and she gets up a benefit for the Old Bowlers' Home and volunteers as one of the actors. The jealous husband drops in at the benefit and is amazed to see his pretty wife come forth attired in blue silk tights and a ballet skirt, and at this point the lives of Ben and Polly become exciting and as time elapses, the excitement develops.

Corinne Griffith Renews Her Contract

CORINNE GRIFFITH, one of Vitagraph's youngest stars, has renewed her contract with Vitagraph for two years more and will continue to star in Blue Ribbon features, according to President Albert E. Smith. Miss Griffith has been with Vitagraph ever since she entered the motion picture field, about two years ago, and in that brief time has risen from a beginner's obscure position to a place among the best-known women on the screen. She has been a star in her own right about a year and has just recently finished work in "New York, or Danger Within," a special feature, which Vitagraph made in conjunction with the New York State Council of Defence.

Miss Griffith is a Southern girl, a native of Texarkana, Texas, and, unlike the prophet of old, she is not without appreciation in her own country, because the Southland is one of the strongholds of her popularity. It has been stated that Miss Griffith was born in New Orleans, but that is an error. She spent her girlhood in the Crescent City and was educated there, but she completed her studies in a girls' finishing school in Dallas, Texas. She made her debut during the carnival season in New Orleans, and until she left the South to go to the Vitagraph studio in California was a favorite in Dallas and New Orleans society circles.

The next Blue Ribbon feature in which Miss Griffith will be seen is titled "The Clutch of Circumstance." Work was started on this production about a week ago.

Jewel gets "

the daringly sensat made New York stand

ILLUSTRATION FROM THE FRONTISPIECE OF LESLIE'S WEEKLY (COPYRIGHTED) BY PERMISSION OF THE LESLIE-JUDGE CO.

The Kaiser"

ional picture that up and cheer like mad!

On these two pages, and the following two pages, Jewel Productions, Inc., makes the greatest announcement in the history of its organization. We have secured the biggest feature of the Century--"THE KAISER"--The Beast of Berlin," the tremendous sensation that made blase New York stand up and cheer like mad.

No production in the wide world, including any and every big one that the trade has seen in the past ten years sets red blooded Americans so wild with excitement as does--"THE KAISER"--The Beast of Berlin." New York went mad over it and when calloused New York goes wild, it will sweep the rest of the country like wild fire.

It is colossal. It will make your audiences boil. It will pack your house. It will smash your house records to smithereens. Every Jewel Exchange (see list on next page) has the picture. Smashing ads and publicity ready prepared. If you ever acted quickly in your business life, NOW is your hugest opportunity.

Read what the New York Newspapers said—

The KAISER

"The beast of Berlin"

Directed by Rupert Julian

"A remarkable and wonderful picture." "Conveys powerful message for every true American. The picture wrung round after round of applause from the Critics." "Worked audience into tremendous pitch of enthusiasm."
—New York Telegraph.

"If there is anyone in America who doubts that we are going to win the war let him visit the Broadway Theatre."—New York Tribune.

"Audience applauded wildly."—New York Times.

"German butchery and 'KULTUR' are revealed in all their hideousness."
—New York World.

"Pictorial revelation. Instructingly vivid."—New York Herald.

"Elaborate picturization."—New York Globe.

"Stirring. Received tumultuous applause from people who packed the theatre." "Polite playgoers become orgiastic mob."—New York American.

"Should be shown to every one of our one hundred million citizens." "Will raise the roof of the theatre."—Motion Picture News.

"Masterful screen production—It is the moving picture stupendous."
—Moving Picture World.

"A Picture to make your blood boil—every American Exhibitor should book it." —"Never yet has a document been written, not even President Wilson's forceful address to Congress in which he declared war on Germany, thereby stirring the whole world, that will drive home this fact more convincingly."—"Grips you like a vise from beginning to end."—"Arouses a desire to make you head for the trenches."—"The Picture is a Masterpiece."—Motion Picture News.

See

the list of Jewel Exchanges where immediate bookings may be had

The KAISER

"The beast of Berlin"

Directed by Rupert Julian

327 9th Street Northwest	Washington, D. C.
412 E. Baltimore Street	Baltimore, Md.
111 Walton Street	Atlanta, Ga.
60 Church Street	Boston, Mass.
35 Church Street	Buffalo, N. Y.
52 E. Broadway	Butte, Montana
220 South State Street	Chicago, Ill.
850 Prospect Avenue	Cleveland, Ohio
1900 Commerce Street	Dallas, Texas
1422 Welton Street	Denver, Colorado
63 E. Elizabeth Street	Detroit, Mich.
113 W. Georgia Street	Indianapolis, Ind.
12th and Walnut Streets	Kansas City, Mo.
717 Hennepin Avenue	Minneapolis, Minn.
1600 Broadway	New York City
938 Penn Avenue	Pittsburgh, Pa.
405 Davis Street	Portland, Oregon
822 So. Olive Street	Los Angeles, Calif.
121 Golden Gate Avenue	San Francisco, Calif.
1304 Vine Street	Philadelphia, Pa.
1304 Farnum Street	Omaha, Nebraska
116 West 2nd Street	Oklahoma City, Okla.
56 Exchange Place	Salt Lake City, Utah
106 Richmond Street, West	Toronto, Canada
914 Gravier Street	New Orleans, La.
918 Locust Street	Des Moines, Iowa
401 Strand Theatre Bldg.	Cincinnati, Ohio
2116 Locust Street	St. Louis, Mo.

Smashing Newspaper "Ads" For "The Kaiser - The Beast of Berlin"

It was physically impossible to even begin to show the amazing newspaper ad smashes at the time of the writing of this advertisement. Sufficient to say they will electrify your town exactly as they did all New York. Your Jewel Exchange will furnish you copies of all ads with mats of cuts.

Extraordinary Publicity Stories For "The Kaiser - The Beast of Berlin"

Tremendous newspaper publicity stories written to arouse the country from end to end. Bookings for "THE KAISER"—The Beast of Berlin" will be accepted by all Jewel Exchanges in order of receipt, AND NO OTHER WAY. Sweep aside your biggest feature booking if you have to and wire for at least a week's run. It is the hugest opportunity in ten years. WIRE your nearest Jewel Exchange or,

Jewel Productions Inc.

1600 Broadway New York

COMING PROGRAM OFFERINGS

Five Big Metro Plays in April

Harold Lockwood, May Allison, Bushman and Bayne, Edith Storey and Bert Lytell to Appear in All-Star Series Productions

METRO will release five All-Star Series pictures in April, with Harold Lockwood, May Allison, Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, Edith Storey, and Bert Lytell as the stellar players, in the order named. Harold Lockwood heads the list with "The Landloper," which will be offered the first week. This picture was directed by George Irving, and is a screen version of Holman Day's romantic story of the same name. Fred J. Balshofer made the screen adaptation. "The Landloper" presents Lockwood as a bright, energetic young American in a role rich in opportunities. Pauline Curley appears in the leading feminine role.

May Allison makes her debut as a Metro star in her own right in "Social Hypocrites," which will be released on April 8. This screen version of Alicia Ramsey's stage play, "Bridge," was directed by Albert Capellani, who also wrote the scenario in collaboration with June Mathis. The leading role of Leonore Fielding in "Social Hypocrites" is said to fit Miss Allison as if written especially for her and she is delighted with the part. She is supported by an all-star cast, which includes Henry Kolker, Joseph Kilgour, Frank Currier, Marie Wainwright and Stella Hammerstein.

"With Neatness and Dispatch," starring Francis X. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, is the release for April 15. This picture is a screen version of Kenneth L. Roberts' story of the same name, published in the Saturday Evening Post. June Mathis and Luther Reed prepared the scenario and Will S. Davis directed the picture.

George D. Baker Has Gone West as Production Manager for Metro

Edith Storey is the star in "Treasure," which will be released April 22. Leighton Osmun is the author of the story, and he and Albert Shelby Le Vino prepared the scenario. Frank Reicher, who guided the star in "The Claim," also directed "Treasure." This picture is said to display Miss Storey's best abilities, both as an actress and sportswoman, in the role of Margaret Elkins.

Bert Lytell makes his Metro debut in "The Trail to Yesterday," which is scheduled for release on April 29. This Western drama is an adaptation by June Mathis of Charles Alden Seltzer's novel of the same name. Edwin Carewe, assisted by his brother, Finis Fox, directed the production. Lytell plays a typical manly Western hero, who is an expert rider and all-around athlete.

J. Stuart Blackton Has Completed "Wild Youth" For Paramount, and the Picture Is Said to Be Typical of the Producer's Skill

Newman Reception Pleases Hammons

E. W. Hammons, President and General Manager of the Educational Films Corporation of America, is much gratified by the reception accorded the first of the Newman Travels when they were shown at the Rivoli theatre during the week of March 10th. Practically two reels were used. The first, entitled "The Forbidden Isle," contains views, the first ever taken in motion pictures, of the Leper Colony at Molokai, Hawaiian festivals, and some remarkable studies of the volcano of Kilauea. The second shows spirited scenes of the American army in Hawaii, a splendid body of men of whom we hear little.

"In the Newman Travels," said Mr. Hammons, "we feel we have scenics of an unusual and unusually fine character. The interest and enthusiasm roused by the first confirms us in our belief that the series will receive a hearty welcome from all who appreciate beauty and romance in scenic pictures. We promise even finer things as the series progresses."

Broncho Billy Reissues Dated for Month

The first of Essanay's Broncho Billy reissues, "Broncho Billy's Leap," was released on March 1 and in succession, under the one-a-week schedule, the others to date are as follows: March 8, "Broncho Billy and the Rattler"; March 15, "Broncho Billy's Close Call," and March 22, "Broncho Billy and the Settler's Daughter."

"Snakeville's Fire Brigade," the first reissue of Essanay's familiar "Snakeville Comedies," is to be released March 23. They will be distributed, one a week, through General Film.

Goldwyn Completes Plans for Capitol Comedies

Goldwyn has completed arrangements for the distribution of Capitol Comedies, starring "Smiling Bill" Parsons. Prints of the first two releases, "Billy's Predicament" and "Bill's Baby," have been shipped to Goldwyn branches throughout the United States and trade showings will be had at an early date. Parsons will play the same character in all of the comedies, though each is built on a story separate and distinct.

"The Rebellion" Current Judge Brown Story

"The Rebellion," a Judge Brown story, is the current release in the series of boy comedy-dramas distributed by General Film Company. The efforts of a small group of boys to escape from what they consider home bondage of the direst sort provides a strong dramatic element which is well worked out in this two-reel subject. Douglas Lansing, Martin Pendleton, Robert Panett and Wharton Jones, the latter an adult, are featured in "The Rebellion." The next release in this series will be "A Boy Built City."

Olive Thomas Is Triangle's Brightest Feminine Star

Current Ince Production Stars Dorothy Dalton

Dorothy Dalton is the star of the Thomas H. Ince production set for release under the Paramount trademark on March 18. "Love Me" is the title, the story having been written specially for the star by C. Gardner Sullivan." This is said to be distinctly a "dressy" picture, staged in elaborate settings depicting the wealth and luxuries of the "smart set." At the head of the supporting cast is Jack Holt, who played with Mary Pickford in "The Little American."

Creighton Hale and Gladys Hulette Co-Starred

Gladys Hulette and Creighton Hale are presented as co-stars in "Mrs. Slacker," the Pathe feature release for the week of March 31. Hobart Henley directed the production.

"Mrs. Slacker," which was written by Agnes Johnston, is the tale of the love of a rich young man for a little orphan girl brought up in poverty. This love culminates in a secret marriage, which is proposed by the man in order to avoid the draft.

Shipman-Whitman Feature Has Western Setting

"The Home Trail," the Vitagraph Blue Ribbon feature to be released the week of March 25, has Nell Shipman and Alfred Whitman as its stars. This is the third feature in which these two players have appeared together, the others being "The Wild Strain" and "Cavanaugh of the Forest Rangers." It is stated that they will be continued as co-stars for an indefinite period. "The Home Trail" has a Western setting and was produced at the Vitagraph Hollywood studio under the direction of William Wolbert.

Glances at the Program

Goldwyn asserts the second screen appearance of Mary Garden, in "The Splendid Sinner," March 24, should prove even more welcome and profitable to exhibitors than "Thais." And Goldwyn knows.

"Queen of the Sea," which Annette Kellermann made for William Fox, has a tentative release for May 5. It has been said this picture surpasses "A Daughter of the Gods." Star and production are perfect, it is said.

"La Tosca," a Paramount version of the French novel, with Pauline Frederick in the name-part, is expected March 25. It is to be a regular program picture, but above the ordinary.

"Social Hypocrites," Metro announces, will be released as a Metro All-Star Series picture, witn May Allison in the stellar role. April 8 is the date that has been set. Much has been said of the cast.

In the society comedy, "Nancy Comes Home," which is scheduled as the first release on the Triangle March 24 program, Myrtle Lind, of Triangle-Keystone fame, appears in her first dramatic lead. Jack Dillon directed.

Enid Bennett's next starring subject under the Paramount standard, "Naughty, Naughty!" presents the Ince star in a comedy role. In "Keys of the Righteous" she had a dramatic role.

General Film has begun the distribution of reissues of the Essanay Snakeville comedies of a few years ago. These one-reel subjects, featuring Slippery Slim, will appear once a week.

Virginia Pearson appears March 24 in "A Daughter of France," for William Fox. It is said to be a vigorous war drama, laid in France, and directed by Edmund Lawrence.

A Western drama de luxe is "Heart of the Sunset," Rex Beach's newest picturization. It will be ready shortly for distribution through Goldwyn as a special.

The next Paramount-Mack Sennett Comedy is "Those Athletic Girls," for release March 25. The picture was directed by Edward Cline, under supervision of Sennett. Louise Fazenda has the lead.

The C. B. De Mille special, "The Whispering Chorus," an Artcraft, for March 25, called all of the studio forces into play in the securing of research data concerning a murder trial.

Goldwyn has sent Mabel Normand and company to Florida for new scenes to put in "Joan of Plattsburg," which is now on the high road to release. It was held up for a time.

Madge Kennedy, Almost Deleted Here by Her Leading Man, Has Completed a New Goldwyn Picture

Pauline Frederick Is to Be Presented by Paramount in "La Tosca"

Irene Castle Stars in "The Hillcrest Mystery"

Irene Castle makes her next appearance on the screen in "The Hillcrest Mystery," a Pathe Play written by Ouida Bergere, directed by George Fitzmaurice and produced by Astra, with illustrated titles by Hy Mayer. The release date is March 24. Included in the cast are J. H. Gilmour, Ralph Kellard and Wyndham Standing.

The story is said to teem with action, suspense and intrigue, with a touch of color from the great war, in which Mrs. Castle's aviator husband, Capt. Vernon Castle, recently lost his life while acting as a flying instructor. Irene Castle plays the role of Marion Sterling, whose father, owner of a shipbuilding plant which he has turned over to the United States Government, is mysteriously murdered. The hand of suspicion points strongly to Gordon Brett, his secretary, who is in love with the daughter, and the plot concerns the successful efforts to clear his name and the apprehension of the guilty party.

"Animated Interviews" for Universal Screen Magazine

An interesting novelty in screen magazine topics is on the program of the Universal Company for release in a forthcoming issue of the Screen Magazine. It is a series of "Animated Interviews" with famous people, the first being Ida Tarbell, known far and wide for her exposure of the Oil Trust, as well as for her many wise and witty writings on other matters. In this interview she discusses that matter of intense interest to every woman, "Is the Man or the Woman Happier?" Miss Tarbell's views on the subject are cleverly illustrated by examples on the screen itself, contrasting the diversified occupation and comparative leisure of the woman homekeeper with the monotonous toil of her husband. Topics such as this, bearing the authority of thinkers like Miss Tarbell, and entertainingly illustrated are sure to provoke the liveliest interest and discussion.

In the Independent Field

Buyers See "Life or Honor"

Many Out-of-Town Buyers Witness Private Showing of Ivan's Late Production—Prominent Territory Sold

I. E. CHADWICK, executive head, Ivan Film Productions, Inc., announces that with the release of "Life or Honor," the late Ivan Productions' independent feature to be offered on the independent market, the company will have a regular monthly release. "Life or Honor" is yet in an unfinished state, it is announced, but many out-of-town buyers reviewed it at a private showing recently with the result that some large blocks of territory have been sold by the Ivan Company.

Among the buyers who attended the private showing were representativs of Harrison and Rifkin, New England Feature Film Company of Boston, Mass., who purchased the rights for the New England States; Merit Film Corporation of New York, for Greater New York; V. H. Hodupp, Inc., of Indianapolis, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo., for Indiana, Missouri and Kansas; the M. and R. Feature Film Exchange of San Francisco, Cal., for California, Nevada and Arizona, and the Ohio Ivan Film Distributors of Cleveland, Ohio, for the state of Ohio.

"Life or Honor" is the first production by this company since Ivan Abramson, former director general of the company, severed connections with the organization. It was directed by Edmund Lawrence. It is the first of three productions, now practically ready for release. The reason assigned for holding the release of this production, by the Ivan Company, is that Mr. Chadwick desired to have enough product on hand to insure a regular monthly release from the date of the release of the first feature. Director Lawrence says that "Life or Honor" is the best work he has ever created for screen presentation.

"Mickey" Is Mabel Normand, Any Way You Look at Her. Western Import Is Exploiting the Feature Very Successfully

Jester Activities in the Comedy Field

WORK on the reconstruction of William Steiner's studio at Cliffside, N. J., where Jester Comedies are made, has been completed. With the new improvements, Mr. Steiner announces that he is in a position to turn out anything in the way of pictures from a one-reel to a ten-part feature. A house warming was given on Friday to commemorate the completion of the studio. Covers were spread for 200 guests.

Benjamin Amsterdam, Masterpiece Film Attractions of Philadelphia, who controls the Jester Comedies for Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey, has given a special showing to the exhibitors in his territory of the first two Jester Comedies, "The Recruit" and "His Golden Romance." Mr. Amsterdam states that this method of placing pictures has proven more than successful and that he has sold his entire territory, solid, for one year.

"The Wrong Flat," the fourth of the Jester Comedies, to be released in May, featuring Twede-Dan, the International Mirth Maker, shows a complete replica of the Tony Pastor's theatre—balconies, orchestra and a complete stage. "The Wrong Flat" is now completed and will in a few days start on its tour through the exchanges.

With the completion of "The Wrong Flat" work was commenced on four more comedies for June, July, August, and September release.

Exhibitors' Reports Speak for "Alimony"

Exhibitors' box office reports received by the First National Exhibitors Circuit on the percentage of business done by "Alimony" indicate that it is destined to prove one of the biggest box office attractions offered on the First National program. Many of the larger houses playing the First National releases report extra big business with this picture.

"Alimony" is shown in six reels and its theme deals with the modern divorce evil. It is said that the eight principal players in this production receive less for their work than any one single star of the screen. This would seem to indicate that the story is of first calibre, the production of the best quality and the work of the cast of high quality. Hayden Talbot wrote the story.

"Cleopatra," with Helen Gardner, Released

The release of Cleopatra Film Company's "Cleopatra," featuring Helen Gardner, is announced. The feature is offered on the independent market. It will open in Chicago as soon as arrangements for a theatre are made, and will run indefinitely, it is announced.

Keeney's Second Production Under Way

James Kirkwood, who is now working on Frank A. Keeney Pictures Corporation's second production, "Marriage," written by Guy Bolton and featuring Catherine Calvert, reports that he and his company are well on the way to the climax. "The Romance of the Underworld," Keeney's first production, has been completed, and will be shown to the trade soon.

In "Marriage," Miss Calvert will be supported by David Powell, Thomas Holding, Hazel Alden and Ida Darling. The interiors for this production are being shot in the old Sanger Studio at 134th street and Park avenue.

Shipman Reports on Hamilton Comedies

Ernest Shipman announces that approximately sixty per cent. of the United States territory has been sold for Shorty Hamilton series of comedies. Mr. Shipman says that he is receiving encouraging reports from independent buyers who are now exploiting these comedies in their territory.

V. H. Hodupp recently purchased Indiana and after a five days' booking campaign wired for Missouri upon the same terms, and the bookings of the Associate Theatres of Minneapolis indicate that they will be working four prints in its district.

Edward Connelly Appears With Bessie Barriscale in "Satan's Pawn," State Righted by W. H. Productions, Inc.

Exchangemen Report on "Cast-Off"

Foursquare Exchange managers throughout the country have reported to the New York office that Foursquare's latest release, "The Cast-Off," is finding ready acceptance at the hands of the exhibitors.

Hy Gainsborg, of the New York Foursquare Exchange; Frank J. Flaherty, in command at Chicago; Samuel V. Grand, of Boston; G. W. Erdman, of Cleveland; E. T. Dux, of Cincinnati; Joseph Horwitz, of Detroit; A. G. Buck, of Philadelphia; Jerome Abrams, division manager of the Foursquare exchanges in the South; Maberry, of St. Louis; Sidney J. Baker, of Kansas City; Ben H. Cohen, of Denver; E. C. Gainsborg, at San Francisco, and Gausman, of Los Angeles all are unanimous that "The Cast-Off" has a compelling heart-interest.

"The Cast-Off" was produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince, by Director Raymond B. West, was written by C. Gardner Sullivan, and features Bessie Barriscale, with Howard Hickman in chief support.

Meyer Bros., Not Riesenfeld

Through error of the publicity department, My Four Years in Germany, Inc., it was erroneously stated in last week's issue that Hugo Riesenfeld had arranged the musical score for "My Four Years in Germany." The music for the authorized film version of former Ambassador Gerard's picture, was written by Meyer Bros., it is announced in correcting the error.

George Stockton Sends Good Reports

George Stockton of the Ohio Ivan Film Distributors, reports big business in his territory on "Babbling Tongues," featuring Grace Valentine and James Morrison and "Raffles," featuring John Barrymore. "Raffles" has been booked in the Stillman, Cleveland; Valentine, Toledo; Grand, Columbus; Park, Youngstown and other houses of this circuit. Mr. Stockton also reports that "The Modern Lorelei," featuring Tyrone Power, is booking heavily.

Hoffman and Superfeatures Make Agreement

BY the terms of a contract drawn last week between M. H. Hoffman, Foursquare Pictures, and Williams and Stevens, Superfeatures, Ltd., Canada, the entire output of Foursquare Pictures will be handled in the Dominion of Canada by the party of the second part, Superfeatures, Ltd. The contract between Foursquare the Metro Film Service, of Canada, is canceled and in the future Superfeatures will handle all Foursquare product distributed in Canada. Superfeatures, Ltd., is one of the most reliable distributing firms in Canada.

Mr. Hoffman said:

"Superfeatures believes, as does our company, that it is the exhibitor and the public who should have first consideration. That only by providing superior photoplays, and booking them at reasonable prices, can a business be constructed which has for its foundation the element of permanency."

General Manager Charles L. Stevens, speaking of the new arrangement, said: "This concern is young, but it is the leader of the independents in the field. Its policy is the consideration—first and at all times—for the rights of the exhibitor, and that is Superfeatures' main policy.

"I have known Mr. Hoffman for many years, and his methods of getting fine photoplays and distributing them according to methods which are essentially business-like are those I approve and endeavor to practise. We shall work together for our common welfare, striving always to secure motion picture merchandise which our patrons will want to book, and which the exhibitors' patrons will want to see."

Business Buzzing at the Bee-Hive Exchange

Julius Singer, executive manager of the Bee-Hive Exchange, reports that his organization has just completed the biggest week's business since its organization.

James Mendelson, who has been promoted from shipping manager to manager of sales for the Brooklyn territory, has closed the following houses for Billy West: "The Linden," "Whitney," "Strand," "Duffield," "Eden," "Colonial," "Avon," "Hamilton" and "Century" theatres.

N. J. Schwartz, who handles the Bee-Hive sales in Jersey, reports that he has closed with Fox's Terminal theatre in Newark for all Billy West comedies for a seven days' run, after showing "The Rogue."

Other Jersey contracts closed on Billy West comedies last week include the "City," "Atlantic Gardens," "Winter Garden," "Casino Playhouse," "Orient," "Walton" of Elizabeth, "Proctor's" Plainfield theatre, "Lyric" and "Majestic" theatres in Paterson, and the "Rialto" of Union Hill. Julius Singer closed a contract with Keith's Greenpoint theatre for a three day run on Billy West comedies, starting with "The Candy Kid" and running through the whole series.

Joseph Sultan, salesman for Manhattan and the Bronx, claims that more than forty per cent of the exhibitors in Greater New York are playing the King-Bee brand of comedies. Sol Rovinger is in charge of the shipping department.

Territory Sold for Reissues

Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge Reissues have been sold to the Friedman Film Corporation, Film Exchange Building, Minneapolis, Minn., reports Hiller & Wilk, Inc., who are selling agents for the S. A. Lynch Enterprises, Inc., owners of these reissues for the territory of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Wisconsin.

In commenting on this transaction Benjamin Friedman, president of the Friedman Film Corporation, said: "If the Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge Reissues do not make the exchange that secures the rights to these pictures the busiest exchange in that territory it certainly is not the fault of the pictures."

Savini Shows Jester to Soldiers

Bob Savini, the pioneer exchange man of the South, who is handling the Jester Comedies, featuring Twede-Dan, gave a special showing of "The Recruit" to the "boys," who are about to go "over there" at the cantonment in Atlanta recently. "The Recruit" is a military story.

Rookies See "The Crucible of Life"

The Rookies at Camp Upton, Long Island, were shown General Enterprises, Inc., "The Crucible of Life," exploited by Herbert Lubin and Arthur N. Sawyer, last Monday and Tuesday. Grace Darmond, Jack Sherrill and Frank O'Connor are featured. It was produced under the direction of Captain Harry Lambert. Messrs. Sawyer and Lubin announce that the feature will be seen by every soldier at Camp Upton.

Twede Dan, Jester Comedian, and Wm. Steiner, His "Boss," Figuring Out a New Lot of Laugh Material

Jewel Buys "The Kaiser"

Jewel Productions, Inc., Gets Rupert Julian's Production from Renowned Pictures — Critics Unanimous in Praise

H. M. BERMAN, sales manager, Jewel Productions, Inc., announces that Jewel has acquired the world rights to Rupert Julian's production, "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," from the Renowned Pictures Corporation, which organization acquired the rights from Mr. Julian. The transfer of rights goes into immediate effect, and for the remainder of its run at the Broadway theatre the production will be sponsored by Jewel. The latter organization is also planning to present the picture in Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, Los Angeles, San Francisco and other large cities for initial showings within the next thirty days.

New York City has given "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," an enthusiastic reception, as is evidenced by the following criticisms:

New York Globe: "'The Kaiser' is full of scenes and incidents which grip the heartstrings irresistibly. Appeals with extraordinary force to American men and women."

N. Y. Evening Sun: "This remarkable —almost daringly startling—production is more powerful than the strongest of recruiting speeches. It is the great world melodrama adapted for the screen and the audience received it as such."

N. Y. Tribune: "If there is any one in America who does not believe that we are going to win the war let him visit the Broadway theatre and be convinced."

N. Y. American: "'The Kaiser' is stirring, sensational, stimulating. It received tumultuous approval from the audience that packed the theatre."

N. Y. Times: "The audience applauded wildly."

Morning Telegraph: "'The Kaiser' defied more than two-score tired, and, therefore, ultra-critical experts to do their worst with their criticisms, but before more than a few hundred feet had been screened the picture wrung round after round of applause from the critics. It is a great picture."

N. Y. Herald: "Spectators found the picture instructively vivid."

N. Y. Evening World: "To get an idea of the German atrocities of the war, the inhuman treatment of the Belgians and a vivid picture of the personal life of the German ruler, one should visit the Broadway theatre, where 'The Kaiser' is being shown."

N. Y. Evening Journal: "'The Kaiser' is a motion picture, stupendous in its treatment of present-day history and in its presentation of heretofore unoffered truths of the personal life of the German demon."

N. Y. Evening Mail: "Unfolds startling incidents in the Kaiser's private life. Picture is well acted and the various scenes are handled in a highly effective manner."

Courrier Des Etats Unis (French): "Success of picture exceeded expectation of producers and it was well merited. We strongly advise our readers to see this feature. They will not regret it."

Harry Webster to Produce "Reclaimed"

HARRY McRAE WEBSTER, president of the Harry McRae Webster Productions, Inc., announces that work has begun on a seven-reel feature, "Reclaimed," by Richard Field Carroll, author of the operetta "Kismet." "Reclaimed" will be produced under the personal supervision of Mr. Webster.

Mr. Webster's stage activities in stage and screen work have been successful. He managed Virginia Harned in a repertoire of her greatest successes. He took over the Empire theatre, in Columbus, O., and installed and directed the stock company that ranked with the foremost in the country. He was with B. F. Keith as managing director of the Chestnut Street Theatre, Philadelphia, and as director of his Providence house. He afterwards took over the Park theatre in Philadelphia, where he installed his own company.

Mr. Webster wrote, and in conjunction with Mr. Frank Henderson, of Jersey City, produced "Lieut. Dick, U. S. A." It was at this time that George K. Spoor and G. M. Anderson persuaded him to enter the film industry and gave him the management of their Chicago Essanay Studio.

Francis S. Bushman and Beverly Bayne, Bryant Washburn, Lenore Ulrich, Dorothy Dalton, Louise Glaum, Ruth Stonehouse and Dorothy Phillips were under his direction. Later he was associated with the Universal Film Manufacturing Co., directing King Baggot. His independent productions during the past three years are "The Victory of Virtue," with Gerda Homes and Wilmuth Myrkle, and "The Devil's Playground," featuring Vera Michelena. This picture will be released shortly.

Last winter he produced for the Monmouth Film Corporation, of which he was president and director general, the "Jimmie Dale, Alias the Grey Seal" series, written by Frank L. Packard and starring E. K. Lincoln. This was released through the Mutual Film Exchange.

Luther and Mason in "Moral Suicide"

Ivan Abramson announces that the first production of the Graphic Film Corporation, "Moral Suicide," will be released soon. Mr. Abramson wrote "Moral Suicide." John Mason, Anna Luther and Claire Whitney are seen in leading roles. The story deals with a common social evil and points the way to overcome it. "Moral Suicide" will have its first presentation at a private showing at the New York Roof, Tuesday, March 12, at 2:30 o'clock.

A Picture No Artist Can Paint! Billy West's Latest King Bee Pose

Goldburg to Handle Rialto-De Luxe Product

Jesse J. Goldburg announces that he has contracted to act as sales and exploitation manager for the Rialto-De Luxe Productions. One five or more part production will be released each month for twelve consecutive months, the first to be released April 1. Mr. Goldburg will handle the exploitation of this product in the United States and Canada. He states that more tha one-third of the United States territory has been disposed of for this product.

Mr. Goldburg will be in charge of sales and exploitation of one-reel comedies produced by the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation, the first six productions now being ready for distribution. The six comedies were produced at the studios of the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation at Scranton, Pa., and are entitled "The Chinese Musketeer," "Feet and Defeat," "Cheerful Liars," "Fate and Fortune," "Parson Pepp," "The Ring and the Ringer." The leading character in each of these comedies is Charles Fang, reputed to be the only Chinese comedian in America.

McCoy Starred in Piedmont Release

Gertrude McCoy, who will be remembered for her work in many of the Thomas A. Edison Company's productions, is featured in Piedmont Pictures Corporation's "His Daughter Pays," adapted from Frederick H. James' play, "La Baccarat." The picture is in seven reels. In spport of Miss McCoy are Charles Graham, Henry Sedley, Barry Whitcomb and Pauline Curley, who is seen in "The Fall of the Romanoffs," and was Harold Lockwood's leading lady in one of his recent productions.

The scenes of "His Daughter Pays" are laid in Paris; the time, shortly before the war. Miss McCoy has the role of a Salome dancer who becomes the wife of a notorious gambler and is called upon to protect her sister from the man she married. It is said that the picture has been given a lavish production, many of the scenes being Oriental in design. The scenes of a Paris gambling resort and cabaret are said to be realistic and revealed in a lifelike way.

Music Publishers to Boost "Mickey"

The Western Import Company, which controls the world rights to "Mickey," featuring Mabel Normand, is in receipt of a letter from Daniels and Wilson, Inc., music publishers, in which Mr. Daniels of that company sets forth in detail the steps which are being taken to place the song "Mickey" before the American public. He says, in part:

"We have taken the matter of circulating the song 'Mickey' up with the large Kress, McCrory, Woolworth and Kresge Syndicate stores, and also the various department stores, all of which number approximately two thousand, and they promise full store displays, with specially decorated windows, at the opportune time. In this way, millions of people will become familiar with 'Mickey.'

"Arrangements are also being made with the music jobbers, such as Plaza, McKinley, Enterprise, Crown and Forster to run ads in their bulletins. These bulletins reach at least fifteen thousand dealers throughout the United States and Canada.

"We are using an illustrated cut of 'Mickey' on the back covers of all future publications. Many thousands of illustrated thematic pamphlets are being printed to be sent out in all our letters, and the dealers will also be supplied with them.

"'Mickey' is the feature song in our professional band, orchestra player-roll and phonograph departments, and we will circularize the entire trade at least twice a month from now on with advance information."

Merit Film to Show Three New Features

Merit Film Corporation, which has recently acquired the Greater New York rights to Ivan's Film Productions' "Life or Honor," Harry Rapf's "The Struggle Everlasting," featuring Florence Reed and "An Accidental Honeymoon," featuring Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein, announces that these three features will be shown to the trade and for review within three weeks. The exact date upon which each feature will be shown, the place and the time will be announced later. The announcement is also made by this company that a number of large contracts for independent features are now pending, and that in the near future a subject a week will be released by this organization.

Adolph P. Reiben, in charge of the Brooklyn and Long Island territory handled by this company, reports that indications point to a big spring business. Mr. Reiben is one of the most prominent salesmen in the New York territory.

Burstein Gets Loving Cup from West Co.

Louis Burstein, president of the King-Bee Films Corp., upon his arrival recently at the Hollywood King-Bee studio, was presented with a loving cup, the present of Billy West, Arvid E. Gillstrom, Ethel Burton, Babe Hardy, Budd Ross, Leo White, Herman Obrock, Ethel Gibson and Joe Bordeaux.

First Run Houses Take "Tarzan"

Big List of New York and Out-of-Town Houses—Ninety Prints to Be Used—Novel Advertising Aids

HARRY REICHENBACH announces the following list of first-run houses which have booked "Tarzan of the Apes," distributed through the First National Exhibitors Circuit exchanges. The picture is scheduled for release Easter Sunday, March 31:

The Isis theatre, Denver; Circle theatre, Indianapolis; Victoria theatre, Philadelphia; Globe theatre, Boston; Tivoli theatre, San Francisco; Marcus Loew's New York, American, Victoria, Greeley, West End, Palace, Boulevard, Fulton, Delancy Street, Royal, Orpheum, Avenue B, Warwick, Circle, National and ten others; William Fox's Academy of Music, Riviera, Audubon, Folly, Riverside, Washington, Star, Crotona and five other houses; B. S. Moss' Hamilton, Jefferson, Prospect and other theatres; S. Z. Poli's Bridgeport, New Haven, Waterbury, Springfield, Meriden, Hartford and Worcester and Proctor Circuit.

Turner and Dahnken's houses in the Far West and the principal theatres at Portland, Seattle, Washington, Wilmington, Baltimore, Richmond, Milwaukee, the Strand, Minneapolis; the Metropolitan, St. Paul; the Victoria, at Wilmington; Webb's theatre, Newark and Trenton, St. Louis, Omaha, Kansas City, Malison theatre, Detroit; the Davidson theatre, Milwaukee, and seventeen other houses of first-run calibre for the first two weeks in April.

It will require twenty-one prints to handle all the first-run bookings in greater New York alone, it is stated, and so great has been the response from exhibitors throughout the country that instead of sixty prints, as at first thought necessary, ninety prints will be used.

The following novelties have been instituted by the First National Exhibitors Circuit:

Twenty-one live apes have been contracted for and will be rented to the exhibitors at cost price to aid in arousing interest; one million heralds, depicting the great ape, have been published, and sensational cards, in twelve styles, are published and are now being distributed and can be used in day to day follow up style by the theatre. Lobby display of papier mache plaques are in abundance and will be loaned to the theatres at a very low figure. Stuffed lions, tigers, apes and gorillas will be hired out for lobby display. Campaign books are being distributed. Display books of great merit and attractiveness are now on the press and will follow the campaign book, while the lithographic posters are being sent to all exchanges for use by the theatre owners.

Pettijohn Reports On Producers-Affiliated

C. C. PETTIJOHN, general manager, Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated, has rendered the following report to the eight independent producers affiliated with the organization, on the progress made:

"Fourteen states have been organized and are ready for distribution. Contracts in twenty-one states are being drawn, and fifteen are being canvassed and the direct sales proposition presented to them. It will require at least from thirty to sixty days before the exhibitors will be sufficiently organized to handle their own distribution. Before these units are completed a meeting should be called which will include from twenty to twenty-five representative exhibitors from over the country to meet the original exhibitors committee and Independent Producers, so that they can co-operate and iron out the permanent contract of the Producers and Exhibitors-Affiliated. Suggestions that will work to the mutual advantage of both producer and exhibitor have been received from exhibitors throughout the country, and have been recommended for insertion into the permanent contract.

"Among those who have suggestions to offer are Messrs. Black, Maine; Herrington, Pittsburgh; Hamlin, Minnesota; Herman Brown, Boise, Idaho; Frank and Hoff, Chicago; Lustig, Cleveland; Rembusch, Indianapolis; Craver, N. C., and Harry Crandall, Washington.

"Their suggestions and recommendations on what these contracts should finally provide were gone over at a meeting on February 27, 1918, by Harry Crandell, Louis L. Levine and myself. All suggestions were considered and made note of, to be presented at a joint meeting between the producers and exhibitors before the final draft of the contract is drawn."

Raver to Start "Silver Lining"

Harry Raver announces the completion of the first of a series of photodramas which Augustus Thomas, the playwright, is under contract to write for him. "The Silver Lining" is the title of the first. Work on the story was started by Mr. Thomas several months ago, but the acceptance of his new play, "The Copperhead," by John Williams, who produced the piece immediately, necessitated laying "The Silver Lining" aside, so that the author could personally stage and direct the rehearsals for "The Copperhead," which is now running successfully on Broadway.

The theme of "The Silver Lining," selected by Mr. Thomas, seeks to prove that democracy can make equality only in material things and that individual superiority is a matter of the beauty of conduct and of our respective ideals and dreams. It deals with the happiness that comes from doing productive work.

Work on the production of "The Silver Lining" will be started at the Raver studios soon.

United Rounding Into Shape

Lee Ochs Reports Success in Middle West—Rosenthal Explains Plan —Exchanges Organized

LEE A. OCHS, president of the United Theatres Corporation, addressed exhibitors in Cleveland, Detroit and Chicago during the first week of a long tour of the country, to tell them face to face of the advantages of getting together in their own company. C. R. Seelye, vice-president and general manager, also announced several additions to the organization last week.

In the absence of Mr. Ochs and Mr. Seelye the secretary of the United, Charles M. Rosenthal, made the following statement:

"It has been charged that Mr. Ochs is not animated by the best interests of the exhibitor in the organization of United Pictures.

"Let me explain the system under which its organizers propose to operate: United Pictures does not intend to make or market film, but to buy it at wholesale and distribute it as any other cooperative association would distribute it. In no sense of the word is United Pictures a manufacturer or peddler of film features.

"Following the original announcement of the plan and scope of United Pictures a few exhibitors in Detroit, to whom Mr. Ochs had not yet explained the purpose of the cooperative association, stated that while they were not opposed to direct booking they wanted to know a little more about United Pictures and to know wherein it was not a reversion to the antiquated program system. United Pictures most emphatically is not based on the principle of paying good money for indifferent features, 'sight unseen.' United Pictures is built on the principle of free selection of stars and productions through an organization democratically controlled.

"Collective buying after collective selection insures the purchase of the best. By making the exhibitor an actual benefiting partner, United Pictures makes sure that he will stick; by paying cash and a guaranteed profit to the producer United Pictures makes sure of him, frees him from financial worries and imposes on him the elimination of waste, and by the distribution of features only among members the expensive exchange systems of existing organizations need not be duplicated."

The following members are announced as representatives of the prominent exchange centres now established for the United:

A. S. Abeles, formerly with Pathe, now exchange manager for the United in New York; Aaron Korn is assisting him; M. F. Tobias, prominent exchange man of Albany district will be in charge of the Northern New York district; N. I. Filkins, formerly with Pathe in Buffalo, will have charge of the United interests in Western New York; H. M. Osborn, handling the United interests in Philadelphia, and Stanley Hand, will have the New England district; D. F. O'Donnell will have the Washington, D. C., district, and C. W. Bunn will look after the United interests in Chicago.

Reissues Meet With Success

IN a statement issued this week by the W. H. Productions, handling two-reel and five and six-reel Hart reissues, including "The Two-Gun Man" in "The Bargain," "The Bandit and the Preacher" and "The Hell Hound of Alaska," and twenty-eight Sennett-produced comedies, a report on the business done by the various exchanges throughout the country indicates the success which these reissues are having. The entire world rights have been disposed of on the Hart reissues. An official of the W. H. Productions said in commenting upon this condition:

"These reissues were sold by us within a period of two months to the keenest and most reliable independent exchange men in the country, and they in turn are now successfully booking these box office features to the leading exhibitors. Good judgment, proper exploitation and fair prices put these excellent pictures over.

"W. H. Productions Company, from its inception, inaugurated a service department for the benefit of the exchanges and exhibitors. Complete advertising and exploitation campaigns have been devised for each individual production, and these campaigns have materially assisted both exchanges and exhibitors to secure maximum results.

"We are about to release a series of five of the greatest Bessie Barriscale pictures. These productions will have exceptional box office values because they lend themselves easily to extraordinary publicity and advertising possibilities. The first of the series is entitled "Satan's Pawn," and is an adaptation from the great play. The cast was carefully selected, not only from the viewpoint of securing the proper types, but also prominent stars to depict these types.

"Miss Barriscale is supported by Edward Connelly, Clara Williams and Rhea Mitchell. The story is one that will appeal to the masses. The production was staged under the supervision of Thos. H. Ince by Reginald Barker, and from an advertising standpoint it can readily be seen that there are half a dozen different angles, each important in itself, that will make the strongest appeal to the public to see this production, and W. H. Productions Company are taking advantage of every one of these possibilities."

Prize Dog in Raver's "The Master Crook"

Many of the exterior scenes shown in Harry Raver's late production, "The Master Crook," featuring Edmund Breese, were taken in and about the grounds surrounding the Tarrytown estate of Jacob Ruppert, baseball magnate, it is announced. In some of the scenes, Colonel Ruppert's prize St. Bernard dog, Prince, appears.

Pina Menichelli, in Harry Raver's "The Soul of a Vampire"

Reports Good on "Today," "Mad Lover"

"Today," starring Florence Reed, and "The Mad Lover," in which Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein are featured, are highly indorsed by buyers and exhibitors in all parts of the country, according to officials of the Arrow Film Corporation.

"That there is a thriving market for good screen stories, well cast and directed, is being proven over and over again by the remarkable success now being achieved by 'Today' and 'The Mad Lover,'" said W. E. Shallenberger, president of the Arrow organization.

"Herman Rifkin, of the Eastern Feature Film Company, of Boston, who last week bought the New England rights to the two pictures, tells me his booking so far shows promise of breaking all records in the New England states. D. M. Vandawalker, Jr., of the Doll-Van Film Corporation, reports bad weather, but exceedingly satisfactory business on both productions. 'Wonderful pictures and money getters,' he writes. 'They were shown at the Ascher Bros. Lubliner and Trinz and Orpheum theatres and in the Alhambra, in Indianapolis. Booking both in the best houses in our territory.'

"Lee L. Goldberg, of the Big Feature Rights Corporation, writes that business throughout Tennessee and Kentucky on these pictures has been very good and that the exhibitors are getting big results with them. 'Today' played a week's engagement at the Strand theatre, Buffalo, and, according to the management, created a great deal of favorable comment. The same reports were also made following runs of this picture at the Strand theatre, Washington; Victoria theatre, Wilmington; Hippodrome, Baltimore, and from Norfolk and Richmond as well."

Rifkin Buys Rights

Herman Rifkin of the Eastern Feature Film Company, of Boston, has purchased the New England rights to "-Today," with Florence Reed, and "The Mad Lover," with Robert Warwick and Elaine Hammerstein, it was announced this week.

Card Assembling Forces in Canada

Lynn S. Card, general sales manager of the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation, is making a tour of Canada to complete the assembling of his distributing forces. Mr. Card will interview exhibitors in that territory in order to establish closer relations between the Hall organization and the showmen of the Dominion. With the expansion of the exchange system of the Superfeatures, Ltd., through which U. S. productions, embracing "The Zeppelin's Last Raid," "Those Who Pay," "The Belgian," and "Just a Woman," recently purchased from Julius Steger and his associates, the booking corporation is now enabled to give Canadian exhibitors a highly efficient service, both in the handling of film and cooperation in exploiting productions released by the concern.

Foreign Buyers See "Just a Woman"

"Just a Woman," adapted from a stage play of Eugene Walter, starring Charlotte Walker, and directed by Julius Steger, was shown at the New York Theater Roof Thursday morning.

The showing was held under the direction of Robertson-Cole Company, of New York and London, with branch offices in many large cities of the world. This concern is handling the foreign territorial rights to the production, the negative of which recently was purchased outright by Frank G. Hall, to be distributed through the U. S. Exhibitors' Booking Corporation. Miss Edna Williams, representative of the Robertson-Cole Company, is in charge of the disposal of foreign rights.

Goldburg to Exploit Scrantonia Films

The Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation has announced a program of steady releases of one-reel comedies to be issued two a month commencing April 1.

A contract has been signed whereby Jesse J. Goldburg will act as exclusive sales and exploitation agent for the productions of The Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation, disposing of the releases on the state rights basis.

The first six comedies are completed, and are titled, "The Chinese Musketeer," "Feet and Defeat," "Cheerful Liars," "Hate and Fortune," "Parson Pepp," "The Ring and the Ringer." Charles R. De Barge is the producing and managing director of the Scrantonia Photoplay Corporation.

"Friendly Enemies," Second Release

W. H. Productions Company announces that it has now in preparation the second of the series of 28 Mack Sennett produced comedies entitled "Friendly Enemies," featuring Sydney Chaplin and Chester Conklin. The first release of this series is entitled "A Small Town Bully," with Mabel Normand, Fatty Arbuckle, Mack Sennett and Owen Moore.

THE INDEPENDENT FIELD TICKER

Territorial Sales Reported During the Past Week

Production	Buyer	Territory
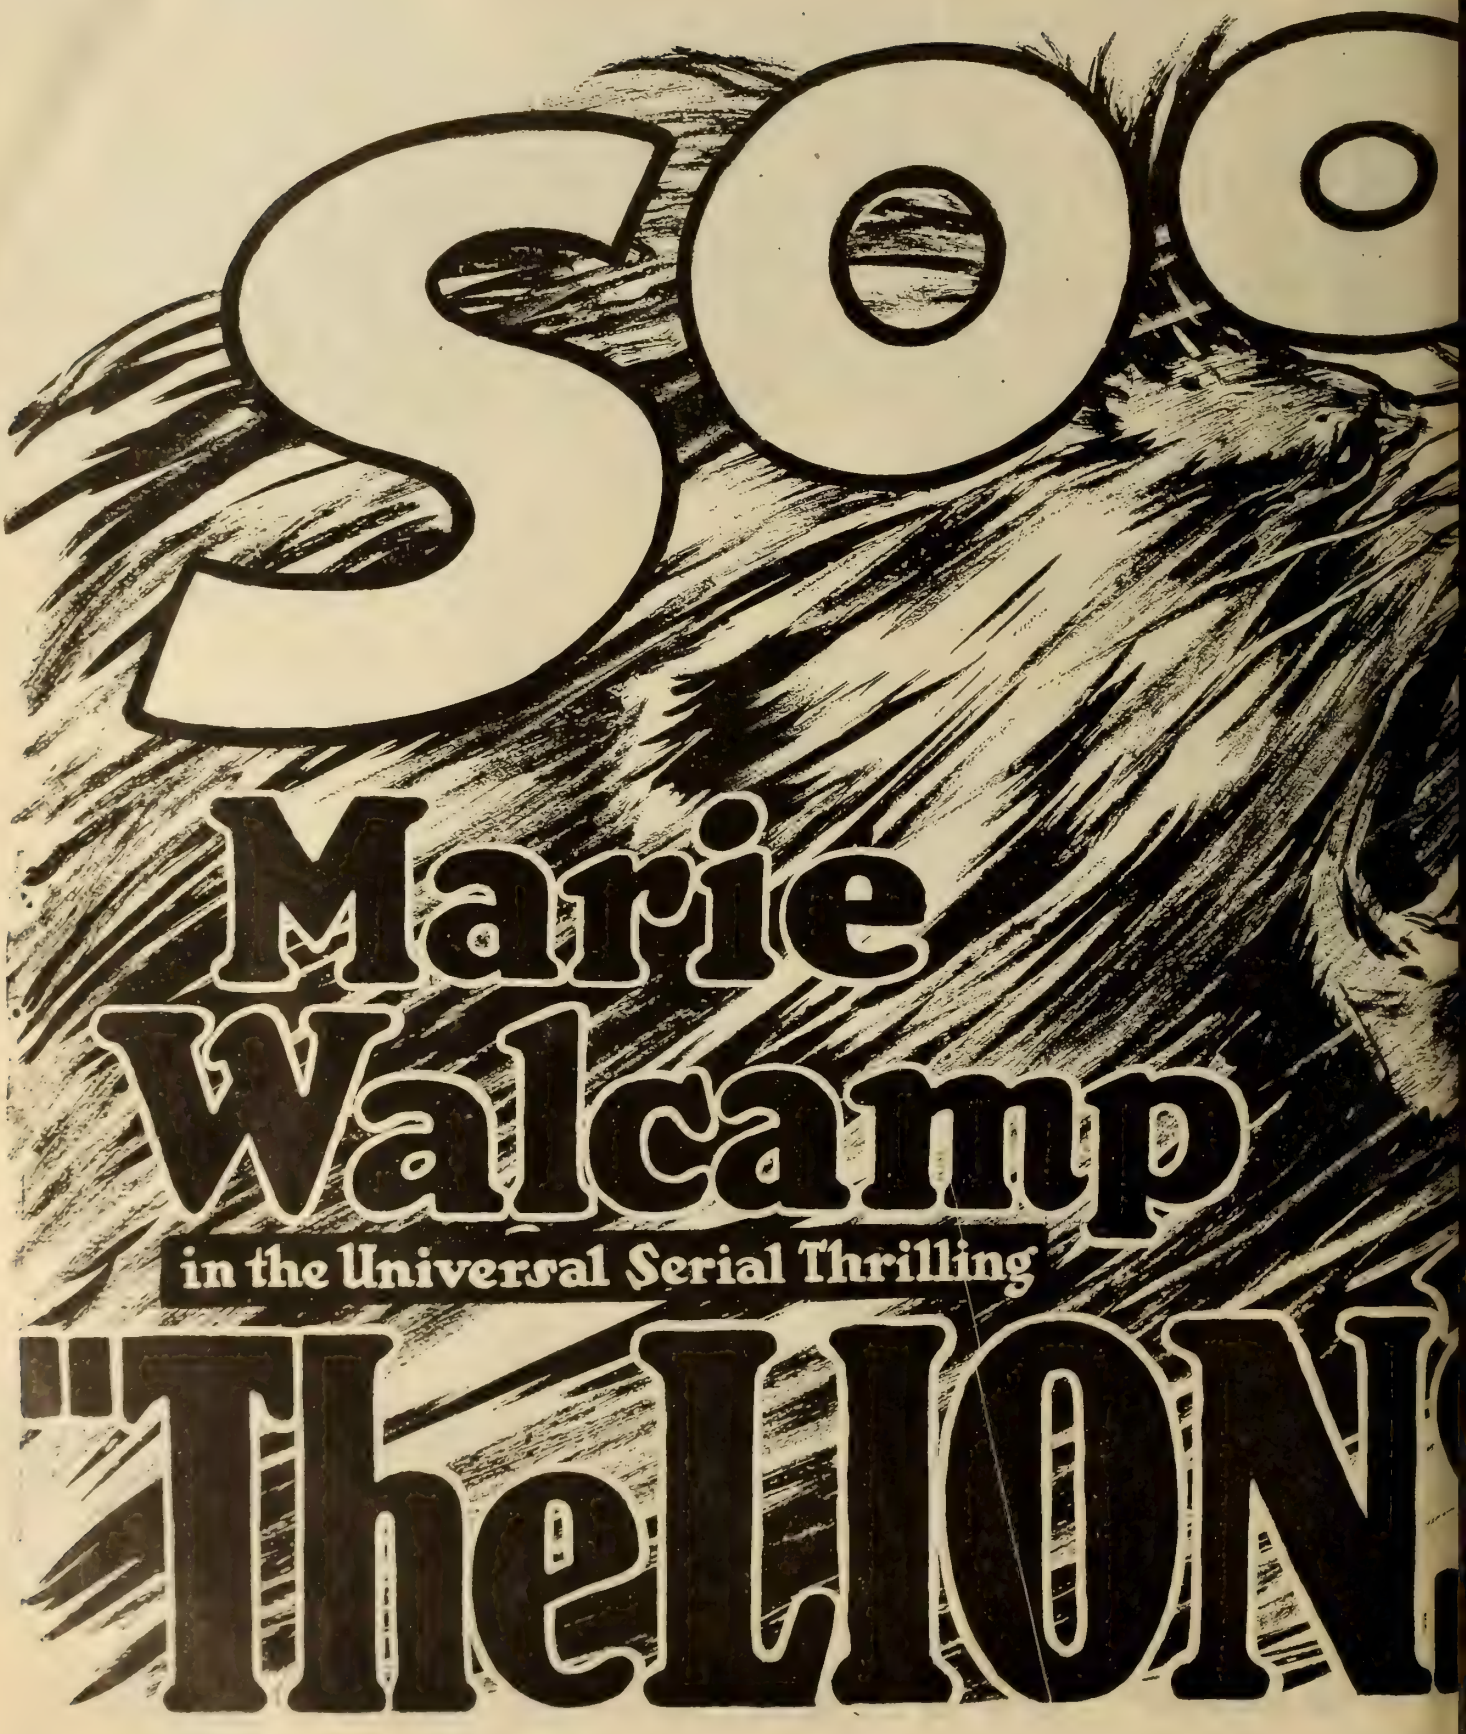
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	Super Film Attraction Co., Syracuse, N. Y.	New York State, outside of Greater New York.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	V. H. Hodupp, Inc., Indianapolis, Ind., and St. Louis, Mo.	Indiana, Missouri, Kansas.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	M. & R. Feature Film Exch., San Francisco, Cal.	Colorado, Nevada, Arizona.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	Ohio Ivan Film Distributors, Cleveland, Ohio	Ohio.
"Life or Honor" (Ivan Productions)	Piedmont Pictures Corporation, New York City	Foreign Rights.
Hart, Fairbanks, Keenan and Talmadge Re-Issues (S. A. Lynch Enterprises—Hiller and Wilk, Agents)	Friedman Film Corporation, Minneapolis	Minnesota, North and South Dakota, Wisconsin.
"Cleopatra" (Cleopatra Film Company)	Boston Photoplay Company, Boston	New England Territory.
"Zongar" (Physical Culture Photo Plays)	Kramer and Lewis (Maytrix Photo Plays, Inc.), Greater New York, Northern New York	New Jersey.
"The Eyes of the World" and "Ramona" (Clune Productions — Arrow Film, Agents)	Harris P. Wolfberg Attractions, Pittsburgh	Western Pennsylavnia, West Virginia.
"Today" and "The Mad Lover" (Arrow Film, Agents)	Herman Rifkin, Eastern Feature Film Corporation, Boston	New England Territory.

"Eagle's Eye" Opens With Bang

Opened in Larger Cities Last Week —Big Success—Fourth Episode Ready—Paulist Fathers of New York Book It

"THE EAGLE'S EYE," the twenty-episode serial story of the Imperial German government's spies and plots in America, by William J. Flynn, recently retired Chief of the United States Secret Service, was released in the New York, Boston and Chicago territories for first-runs this week. Reports from the exhibitors and from the managers of the Foursquare Exchanges, received by The Whartons, indicate that it went "over great" and houses were packed.

In New York the serial had its premier at the 81st Street and the Stanley theatres, both starting it on Monday. A. L. Shackman, owner of the 81st Street theatre, at the conclusion of the three days' run there of the first episodes, said:



"I found that there is a most unusual interest in the picture, and even better than that, the picture is one that increases that interest when it is seen. In addition to being a big business getter for the 81st Street theatre, it brought many patrons from outside the usual territory from which the theatre draws."

Following the showing of the first episode of "The Eagle's Eye" to the Masonic lodges of New York city on March 12, negotiations have been opened whereby the same audience may see the remaining eighteen episodes of the story. "The Naval Ball Conspiracy" and "The Plot Against the Fleet," the second and third episodes of the serial, made up the motion picture entertainment arranged for by New York Lodge No. 330, F. & A. M., at which the members of the other New York lodges were guests. The enthusiasm which greeted the showing of Chief Flynn's expose led to the suggestion that arrangements be made for the showing of the remaining episodes at fortnightly intervals. The showing was given in the lodge rooms of the New York Lodge, in Masonic Temple, on West 23d Street, where it was necessary to install a booth and a machine.

The Paulist Fathers of New York city have booked "The Eagle's Eye" as a regular weekly attraction for twenty weeks, beginning April 19th.

COM
LYONS-MORAN
TO SHAKE THE WO
Keep in Constant Touch with yo

LING
STAR COMEDIES
ORLD WITH LAUGHTER
ur nearest Universal Exchange

SOO
Marie
Walcamp
in the Universal Serial Thrilling
"The LION

ON!

WATCH AND WAIT

Reserve a Date

WITH sixteen smashing serial winners out of eighteen produced to date the Universal has established a record of serial WINNERS that is the envy of the trade.. AND "THE LION'S CLAWS" ADDS ANOTHER WINNER TO THE LIST.

DASHING, reckless MARIE WALCAMP, favored among thousands of Exhibitors because of her ability to pack houses, is again offered, to again pack theatres from one end of the country to the other. Wise Exhibitors understand what we say. Others will learn by booking "THE LION'S CLAWS."

UNIVERSAL FILM MFG. CO.,
"Largest Film Mfg. Co. in Universe"
CARL LAEMMLE, President
1600 Broadway New York

'S CLAWS"

Short Subjects in Review

By Clara DeLissa Berg

Newman Travels Start Auspiciously

Exhibitors who have found that fine scenics are a valuable addition to their programs will welcome the "Newman Travels," released by the Educational Films Corporation of America. The material for these interesting pictures was acquired by the noted traveller and lecturer, E. M. Newman, and covers the entire world. Reviews on the first two of the series will be found below.

Grace—And Disgrace

From the Egyptian slave to the much liberated young ladies of California is a long step, but one which the latter negotiate very gracefully in a series of rhythmic movements which prove that the "dances" depicted on the ancient vases dug up from the tombs of the Pharoahs were nothing more than physical culture exercises. The dancers, under the leadership of Miss Morgan, Director of Physical Culture in the University of California, appear for the current Bray Pictograph, dancing against a pergola on the university grounds.

"Making a Mint of Money" contains interesting scenes in the Philadelphia Mint, showing how coins are cut and stamped, and an ingenious device for counting one thousand of them at a look.

"Goodrich Dirt" has a very amusing and for a time profitable adventure in a Barber Shop. Justice is, however, satisfied at the end.

Paramount-Bray Pictograph, No. 112.
Paramount Pictures Corporation: March 17.

To the Roof of the World

The current issue of the Lincoln-Parker Company's South American travel pictures bears out the good impression made by the preceding. Dissolving maps are used to convey the exact location of the places visited, and the titles make even better reading than those in the former reel. Scenes at Lima show the handsome race-track, the expensive tombs with their elaborately wrought memorial tablets, and, as if for contrast, types of the very poor of the city who receive their daily ration of soup from a charitable monastery.

The trip from Lima to the mining town of Cerro de Pasco is made over the highest railroad in the world, located at an elevation of 15,000 feet, with the peaks of the Andes rising 7,000 feet above. Cerro de Pasco, with its crude architecture and its population of native Indians, offers much that is interesting and picturesque.

"From Lima to the Top of the Andes."
The Kleine System: March.

How the Soldier Man Does It in Hawaii

Did you know we keep a small army in Hawaii? Probably not. But in the second of the Newman Travels we have good evidence of the fact, and a splendid body of men they are, both at work and play. The sight of the marching battalion, with its mathematically exact ranks, is inspiring. The soldier's "boudoir" and the ease and speed with which he sets it in order, is an amusing sight. Work over, come athletic events on horseback that would seem to qualify the riders for a circus.

Because of its subject, the picture will arouse curiosity and interest, while its liveliness and picturesque character insure its value as entertainment.

"Our Hawaiian Army."
Educational Films Corporation: March 24.

Screen Telegram Breaks Booking Record

Three times the circulation of its former news weekly is the tale of the New York Mutual Exchange on its new "Screen Telegram." Many more first-run bookings could be filled, reports the manager, were more prints available.

Is Your Furnace Saving Its Bit?

Latest among the Federal Departments and Bureaus to make its appeal for patriotic co-operation through the medium of the screen is the Fuel Administration, which in Universal Screen Magazine, No. 64, illustrates the proper method of caring for a furnace to insure it against waste. It is a subject of vital interest to all but flat dwellers, and, fortunately, outside of Manhattan, these are but a small part of the population.

A subject as attractive as it is interesting deals with the work of the New York State Police, who ride the rural districts, running down thieves—even poor colored gentlemen after a bit of chicken, stopping runaways, finding the villain dog who killed sheep because his careless master did not remember that dogs must eat to live, and bringing safely back little Miss Marjorie, who had sought adventure with insufficient knowledge of the way back.

The third part of "Making a Newspaper" takes us into the composing room, with the linotypers in action, plates being prepared and matrices made. All the processes that occur between the setting of the type and the starting of the presses are clearly shown to satisfy the curious for whom the workship of a great newspaper is as fascinating as behind the scenes of the theatre.

How a clever chap in Greenwich Village makes ukeles from cigar boxes, and Willie Hopkins with his animated clay faces are subjects of a lighter nature which complete a very good reel.

Universal Screen Magazine, No. 64.
Universal Film Manufacturing Co.: March 29.

The Jumping Horse

In its current split-reel educational, Pathe continues its remarkable exposition, by means of the ultra-rapid camera, of the muscular actions of animals in rapid motion. In this the horse is first shown at normal speed, jumping high hurdles with and without a rider. He is then pictured, through the agency of the special camera, going through the same action at a speed so slow that every movement of legs and head, and the remarkable and singularly graceful co-ordination of the whole can be clearly seen. The picture is a fascinating one by reason both of its interest and its real beauty.

The first half of the reel is another of the colored scenic studios for which Pathe is so well known. It covers the valley of the Dordogne, where rock-walled river, waterfalls, ancient towns and hoary cathedrals combine in a pleasing and picturesque whole.

"The Valley of the Dordogne" and
"The Horse in Action."
Pathe Exchange: March 31.

A Land of Contrasts

In a reel remarkable for its contrasts, Mr. Newman reveals aspects of life in the Pacific Islands that are strongly dramatic. Though the film is entitled "The Forbidden Isle," denoting the Leper Colony at Molokai, this subject occupies but a little space at the opening. However, what is shown of the tiny settlement on a plateau of the rugged island with the surf washing its base has a strange beauty, enhanced by the wonderful blue tints given the film, which reproduce exactly the color of deep sea water. Lest our minds dwell unhappily on the unfortunate who live in the colony, the subject changes to one of a May Day festival, with little girls of many races dancing around a May pole, and native musicians illustrating their skill on strange instruments. A real Hula Hula dance by native exponents of the art is interesting and more than a little amusing.

The latter part of the reel is given over to amazing views of the great lava lake of Kilauea. The currents and eddies of molten lava can be clearly seen, as the camera sweeps the 2,000-foot surface of the lake, while no telescope is needed to discern the mighty jets that shoot into the air like giant fountains. Views taken of the mountain at night show a glowing river flowing down its side.

"The Forbidden Isle."
Educational Films Corporation: March 17.

Devil Fish Demonstrate "Frightfulness"

For sheer sinister deviltry nothing could surpass the fight between an octopus and his victims, a devil fish and a huge loggerhead turtle, which forms the dramatic—or, rather, the melodramatic climax of the first reel of a new series of marine pictures called "The Depths of the Sea." Swimming lazily by means of his curious flapper feet, Mr. Turtle ventures just too near the rock under which the huge octopus lurks. A long, waving arm wriggles up, then another, and the hapless turtle seems doomed. But he pulls and struggles manfully, till a last jerk sets him free. Even more exciting is the fight between the octopus and an aggressive devil fish, which looks like a death grapple of sixteen legs in hopeless confusion. This time, however, the octopus is the first to cry quits and retreats "like an umbrella in a wind storm."

Preceding these fine scenes are glimpses of queer creatures that with their transparent, waving fins and filaments are veritable "skirt dancers"; of the sea hare, who covers his retreat by a thick cloud; and the 'smoking caterpillar,' who literally "gases the enemy" by ejecting puffs of an acrid poison.

You are not going to war. The men who are need all the comforts you can give them. Help them get cigarettes. That is your patriotic duty. If you aren't helping in the "smokes" campaign, get busy—now. Don't be a slacker!

"Good-Night, Paul!" Is the Name of Constance Talmadge's New Select Picture, Which Promises Many Moments Such as This

News Notes from Canada

Ticket Tax Casts Shadow in New Brunswick

Spring in New Brunswick will doubtless, according to reports this week from a representative of MOTION PICTURE NEWS in St. John, N. B., usher in a new war tax on motion pictures. This will be in the form of an added charge on admissions, and is to be paid by the public at large and not the exhibitors. The tax, it is pointed out, will be identical with the one now in force in the United States.

When it became known in June of last year that the Provincial Government was contemplating a bill taxing theatre tickets at the rate of 20 per cent, or thereabouts, the exhibitors became alarmed and at once dispatched to Frederickton a delegation. In its original form the measure did not meet with the approval of the delegates, and, after a lengthy discussion, it was changed to something which was admitted to be more liberal. No provision was made for higher admissions, but a clause was added to stipulate that such forms of amusement as carnivals, circuses, baseball games, etc., should also pay their tribute. The bill in this form seemed to the delegates to be a very fair proposition, and hopes were entertained it would be passed. However, the whole matter was allowed to stand over until the next session, which will commence in March.

Canadian Censor Writes of a Serial

The letter written by Colonel Ernest J. Chambers, Chief Press Censor for Canada, after viewing the first four episodes of "A Daughter of Uncle Sam," proves to have been one of approval fully as warm as intimated by General Film Company. The presentation of the spy menace in the Jaxon patriotic serial was highly commended in the censor's expression to a representative of General Film in Montreal.

This is probably the first time that the Canadian censor has ever issued a letter recommending a picture, and Canadian exhibitors are proving keenly impressed. The serial is enjoying tremendous popularity throughout Canada because of the striking similarity of the Canadian spy menace of early war days with that in the United States as revealed in "A Daughter of Uncle Sam."

"I wish to state that I see no objection whatever from a war censorship standpoint in this feature, and, on the contrary, I consider that this picture is calculated to have a most useful influence. It is a reasonable presentment of a certain phase of war conditions, is well screened and calculated to convey to the public an idea of the risks which countries at war with the German Alliance run, owing to the activities of enemy agents."

Hazza Explains Organization

Exhibitors' Circuit Formed Six Months Ago to Protect Exhibitors Against Alleged Evil—Exchanges Change Their Opinion

THE cause of the formation, about six months ago, of the Western Canada Exhibitors'. Circuit, was explained this week by John Hazza, manager of the Empress theatre of Edmonton, Alta. It was Mr. Hazza who originated the move and to whom much credit has been given for pushing it through.

The members of the organization include the Regent of Calgary, Daylight of Saskatoon, Strand of Prince Albert, Savoy of Moose Jaw, Rose of Regina, Eagle of Swift Current and the Empress of Lethbridge.

"The object in forming this circuit," said Mr. Hazza, "was to protect the exhibitors against the so-called state right features which were at that time flooding the territory. Salesmen would convince the exhibitors they were selling wonderful features and naturally the exhibitors would sign up and spend a great deal of money advertising. In order to do this they were compelled to raise the admission, as the price of the feature was exorbitant. It was only after the picture was shown that they realized their mistake.

"At the time of organization the film exchanges resented, believing that the circuit's aim was to reduce the price of service, but were convinced that the organization was to their benefit, inasmuch as the circuit would rent a feature and book it over their theatres, thereby dispensing with the loss of time and trouble of shipping that the exchange heretofore had to take care of.

"Naturally this did away with the salesman selling state right features, as the circuit would insist upon a screening before signing up, and if the picture was not worth the price asked it would not be rented.

"Later on Schuberg and Dewees of the Province and Rex theatres of Winnipeg and Vancouver, respectively, and the Western Canada Exhibitors Circuit united and formed the First National Exhibitors' Circuit of Canada."

Mr. Hazza expects to see the entire industry, as far as the exhibitors are concerned, unite into chains of circuits, and in this way be able to put the industry on a business basis. He thinks that in time to come each city will have a schedule price for a first run. It is natural, of course, that different exchanges will ask higher prices than others, but this will dispense with the half dozen prices for productions.

Mr. Hazza cites instances where he signed contracts for the first price asked, believing that it was an equitable one; in other cases he rented features twenty-five per cent less than was asked, thereby proving that the industry is not run by business principles.

Manitoba Tax into Effect on April 1

The provincial amusement tax bill of Manitoba, Canada, recently passed by the legislature and calling for a tax on admission to all amusements, will go into effect April 1, according to advices from Winnipeg this week. Showmen and exhibitors devoting proceeds of their shows to charity or for patriotic purposes are understood to be exempt from the tax for such performances only. The sponsor of the bill is Hon. Edward Brown, provincial treasurer.

The new measure provides a one-cent tax on each ten-cent ticket, two cents on twenty-five-cents admission, five cents on fifty-cent tickets, and up to forty cents on a seat costing $2.50.

The Manitoba Motion Picture Exhibitors' Association fought hard for a one-cent universal tax. The law amendments committee granted them but a slight concession, closely adhering to the bill as originally drafted. In the opinion of exhibitors, the graduated tax will seriously interfere with their patronage.

James Willoughby, a member of the present provincial censor board, has been appointed by the provincial treasurer to act as collector for the ticket tax in rural points throughout the province, and Walter Deering, formerly manager of the Walker theatre, Winnipeg, will look after the collections in that city.

Seventy-eight Prints Working in N. Y.

Nat. H. Spitzer, sales manager of the King-Bee-Billy West Comedies, announces that seventy-eight prints of the King-Bee comedies were played in Greater New York last Sunday. Over 40 per cent of the exhibitors in Greater New York are playing Billy West comedies. Julius Singer, manager of the Bee-Hive Exchange which releases King-Bee's in Greater New York, says.

Comedian Buys Farm

Billy West, the star of the King-Bee Comedies, has purchased thirty acres of ground, twelve miles from Hollywood, and will become a California farmer.

In and Out of West Coast Studios

By J. C. Jessen

With Pathe Players

The Baby Marie Osborne Company, of the Diando, is at work on a new Pathe play, and at present it is expected the work of producing a Pathe serial will be commenced within a few days. "The Soul of a Child" is the name of the Osborne picture, the scenario for which was written by Clara Barenger from a story by Burton George.

George Larkin, who is to be featured player in the Diando-made Pathe serial, "The Wolf-Faced Man," has arrived in Los Angeles from New York, and everything is in readiness for Director Stuart Paton to begin "shooting." The serial was written by W. A. S. Douglas and Lucien Hubbard, and besides Larkin the principal players will be Horace Carpenter, True Boardman and Frederick Malatasta.

Producing arrangements have been completed by Lewis J. Gasnier, president of the Astra Film Corporation, for stage space and facilities at Universal City, and work there has already begun on the filming of the first Western made Paralta play starring Fannie Ward. George Fitzmaurice, director of "Innocence" and "The Naulahka" is in charge of production. Doraldino, featured as the Hawaiian dancer, has come to the coast and will take part in productions made by the Astra Company in the west. Norman Manning, who has served as business manager for the Diando Company at its Glendale studio, has been engaged to serve in this capacity for the Astra producing forces and has already taken up his new work.

Live Triangle Items

So well has General Manager H. O. Davis, of Triangle, and his staff predicted the weather conditions for Los Angeles during this rainy season that not a single day has been lost by the producing units during the recent cloudy and rainy days. This was accomplished by the several companies working on exteriors whenever the weather was good and the technical staff keeping ahead on sets, so that they were always ready when it was impossible for the company to be on exterior locations.

There was very little new producing activities last week on the Triangle lot. The William Desmond play, formerly known as "The Honorable Bill," has been given a permanent title of "Society For Sale." This subject has been completed so far as the filming of scenes is concerned, and Desmond is now appearing in scenes for a film to be titled "An Honest Man," the name part being that of a genuine hobo, of the type of a modern Robin Hood. Mary Warren, Ann Kroman and Graham Pette are in the cast.

Another new subject put in production is a two-reel comedy at present known as "Their Neighbor's Baby," with Ray Griffith, Rae Godfrey, Charles Dorian and Fritzi Ridgeway as principals.

Raymond Wells, the Triangle director, has worked a greater part of the week in the Los Angeles City Jail, filming the final scenes for "In the Spring," an adaptation from the John Moroso magazine story.

The Roy Stewart Western subject originally titled "The Derelict," has been completed by Director Cliff Smith and retitled "Paying His Debt." While making a stage coach robbery scene on a deserted lonesome road a number of the players were slightly injured when thrown from the top of the stage coach. The brakes of the vehicle broke and the teams ran away. The location was one with a road that ran down grade for fully a mile, and, consequently, the horses could not be stopped until that distance had been traversed. It was during the wild ride that the players were thrown from the top of the coach, where they had served as human ballast.

The F. P.-Lasky Studio

Thomas H. Ince, with a corps of cameramen, assistant directors and his personal publicity representative, Bert Lennon, spent the past week in San Diego, where they went to secure scenes of the review of troops of Camp Kearney, made under the direction of Major General Strong, commander of the camp, which will serve as part of the film Mr. Ince has been commissioned to make for the U. S. Government.

Since the production of "Civilization" Mr. Ince has been a warm friend of President Wilson, and when it was decided by the Government to make a historical subject showing the country's preparation for war, Mr. Ince was selected to supervise and direct the making. He is now devoting a great portion of his time to this work, and it is his present plan for all stars of the Ince organization to appear in this historical pageant.

Dorothy Dalton accompanied the Ince organization to San Diego, and on Friday was made godmother of one hundred and ninety-four men who comprise Company D, 151st Engineers, of Camp Kearney troops.

Enid Bennett has returned from her honeymoon and in a day or two will begin work in a film to be known as "The Desert Mating," which is from an original scenario by J. G. Hawks. Jack Holt has been selected to play the lead oposite Miss Bennett and Jerome Storm will continue as her director.

The next Dorothy Dalton subject, as yet unnamed, will be of a decided melodramatic nature, and gives this star the role of a secret service woman. The photoplay was written by Octavius Roy Cohen and R. William Neill will be in charge of the direction. Thurston Hall is the leading man for Miss Dalton.

Irvin Willatt, who has been directing Charles Ray, is still at Truckee with a greater portion of the Ray Company filming scenes for the Canadian Northwest picture, many of the exteriors of which were taken in the snow-clad mountains of the Truckee country. Ray has returned to Los Angeles and has already begun work in a new subject to be directed by Victor Schertzinger. In this Ray takes the role of an American lad, the son of a munition manufacturer, who for a time is thought to be a slacker with no patriotic spirit. The lad's love for his country is finally awakened and he then proves to be a veritable wildcat in fighting for his native land.

Paralta Paragraphs

All Paralta companies are busy on new productions. Raymond B. West has started work on another Bessie Barriscale film, which is from a story by Robert B. Kidd and Jane Holly, which has a scenario adapted for the screen by Julian Lamothe. Bertram Bracken, late Fox director, has been selected to direct Henry Walthall, and an original story and scenario by Monte M. Katterjohn is to be the vehicle. This has an Alaskan atmosphere. Reginald Barker is awaiting O. K. of working script for the Mastercraft Company's production of "One Woman," which has been sent to the author of the novel, Thomas Dixon. Clara Williams will be featured in the name role of this initial production from this new company. The first Louise Glaum Paralta Play now completed has been titled "An Alien Enemy." This original Katterjohn story was given its first showing at the studio, where an admission of twenty-five cents to go to the Red Cross resulted in total sales of twenty-three dollars. Miss Glaum sold the tickets, which consisted of discarded frames of film from the photoplay.

E. H. Wood, secretary of the Mastercraft Corporation, has departed for New York after spending a week in conferences with F. E. Farnsworth, manager of production, and Reginald Barker, director.

Charles Gunn, who has been featured in a number of Triangle photoplays following very successful engagements on the stage and at other studios, has been engaged by the Paralta, and will appear as leading man in the next Bessie Barriscale subject.

Fox Studio Doings

William Farnum, who was to come to the coast early in January, according to announcement at the Fox studios, arrived last week and is starting on a new production being directed by Frank Lloyd, Mr. Farnum's former director, who is also author of the story to be filmed. Mr. Farnum reached Los Angeles Friday, March 8, and it will be several days before cast has been selected for his new film. Inasmuch as Jewel Carmen has just completed a sub ject it is hinted she will be leading woman for Mr. Farnum. Recently Miss Carmen has been working under the direction of S. A. Franklin.

The Theda Bara Company has been successful in getting well into production with this star's next film play, "Salome," and the Tom Mix Company, which is directed by Lynn F. Reynolds, is at work on a subject which has to do with the remounting service of the U. S. Army. The company, which now includes a large number of cowboys and Mexicans, has been working in the mountains some forty miles from the studio.

Here and There

The Metro producing unit operating under the name of the Yorke Film Corporation arrived in Los Angeles this week and within a few days will begin work at the studio formerly occupied on Gordon street, in Hollywood. The company came direct from Jacksonville, Fla., where the filming of "The Land of the Loper," adapted from the Holman Day story was filmed, and in Los Angeles the first film to be made will be taken from the Francis Perry novel, "Lend Me Your Name." The members of the organization who have arrived are Fred J. Balshofer, general manager; W. E. Edwards, Jr., his assistant; Wiley Gibson, business manager; Harry H. Poppe, publicity director; Antonio Gaudio, cameraman; John Schoenberger, musician; Stanton Heck and Bert Starkey, technical men; Pauline Curley, leading woman; William Clifford, actor; John B. Clymer, scenario writer, and Harold Lockwood, the star, will arrive within a few days.

Complete reorganization of the producing forces of the Metro is being effected by the new General Western Manager, Joseph Ingle, the treasurer of the Metro Film Corporation, who arrived on the coast two weeks ago, and succeeded B. A. Rolfe as manager of the studio. It is Mr. Ingle's plan to manage the producing plant more effectively by conferences daily, in which the heads of the several departments will take part. This will not become effective until George D. Baker, director of a number of successful Metro pictures, arrives on the coast within the next few days and becomes thoroughly conversant with all details of the studio. Clifford P. Butler, studio manager, who succeeded Clark Thomas, as well as Albert Le Vino, head of the scenario department, will also take part in the daily conferences.

Plans being made at the studio provide accommodations for more companies at an early date, but the conference plan has been adopted by Mr. Ingle in the hope of securing a more efficient organization for production, rather than increasing the number of producing units.

Frank Reichert and company, headed by Edith Storey filming "Treasure," from an original script by Leighton Osmun, has been at Catalina Island for the past ten days working on the exteriors. Louis J. Cody will be leading man, Lewis Willoughby, Joseph Swickard, William De Vall and Tota De Crow are the principals of the Reichart story cast.

Another Metro company, directed by John Collins, is filming "The Night Riders," which stars Viola Dana. George Chesebro is to be leading man of this and Clifford Bruce, who has appeared opposite Miss Dana in the past five or six pictures, will take a most important part of the nature of a heavy. Mabel Van Buren appears in this production, as does Russell Simpson and Monte Blue. "The Night Riders," as the title indicates, is laid in Kentucky.

At Universal City there are many evidences of increased activity and it is safe to say that within a few weeks the producing organization will be increased to almost its former size. At the present time there are three serial companies, six dramatic and the Eddie Lyons and Lee Moran Comedy units at work.

Mary MacLaren, recently engaged, or, rather, re-engaged by the Universal, is working under the direction of Ida May Park in a story known as "The Honorable Billy." Mabel Trunnelle, former leading woman for Mark McDermott, has been assigned to an important place, but the remaining leading players have not been named.

Douglas Gerrard is directing Franklyn Farnum with Priscilla Dean as his leading woman in a play especially written for this star, which is entitled "His Arcadian Wife."

"My Parisian Sweetheart" is the name of the Carmel Meyers picture Joseph De Grasse is directing. The masculine lead is taken by Edwin August and Lon Chaney is playing the leading character role.

Another company to resume production is that of Mae Murray, directed by Robert Leonard, which is working on "Danger, Go Slow," which is laid in New York city and pertains to a lad who went wrong as a yegg but finally righted himself in the eyes of the law, the community and his mother.

Monroe Salisbury is back on the job costarring in a vehicle titled "Silent Smith," which will be directed by Elmer Clifton, and have Ruth Clifford as leading woman. This is an out-door story with a number of scenes laid in the snow country.

Hollywood Hookum

MARCH 30, 1918 NEWS MORE NEWS

Rain—yes, two days.

Roy Stewart was seen without a smile.

Polly Moran "Catcus Center Sheriff" lost her star and couldn't work for two days.

Doug. Gerrard has been scanning the papers to sse what happened to his friends of the Irish Finny organization.

Ben Turpin was threatened with losing his job this week because Mack Sennett looked at him crosswise and thought Ben's eyes had straightened.

The well-known Studio Directory brings to us the information that a certain director's name is Hugh Ryan Conway, and we always knew him as Jack.

Long Beach barbers are getting rich on R. Henry Grey, because Henry still insists that he must have his hair cut every four days. It's fine hair, too.

Tom Geraghty is to have a new continuity necktie made of burlap so that it will not be affected by the dampness, and retain its youthful shape during the rainy season.

Art Shirley was seen on our Broadway wearing his leather puttees, an overcoat, and carrying an umbrella. Yes, it was a rainy day, and Art insisted upon being out.

Bill West was seen cavorting about in a pair of big shoes and a mustache, accompanied by a cane. Maybe we'll offer a prize for the one who can guess what Bill was doing.

Billy Foster threatens to revolutionize the industry even though it is in its infancy, by the invention of a number of new effects for Frank Lloyd's next production with fighting Bill Farnum.

Walter Vodges, who hails from Philadelphia, and charged with being a newspaper man of years' and years' of experience, is wearing out typewriter ribbons while performing his duty as P. A. at the F. P. L. Corporation Studio.

Martin Kinney went to sleep in the barber chair the other day, and the barber almost got his hair cut before he woke up. Now, the razor swinging individual is threatened with a damage suit, for Mart sure loves his hair.

Hal Cooley makes complaint that his Ad is indexed wrong, and so we ask all the readers of the Studio Directory to please note that Hal's face appears on page 283, instead of 269. It will be well to look this up, for this concerns Handsome Hal.

"One Woman" has been married three times, and divorced as many—that is, the Thomas Dixon story to be adapted for the first Mastercraft production is now in the hands of the fourth continuity writer, previous attempts failing to meet the requirement of T. D., Jr.

Chester Withey while filming a war scene, found an Irishman loading shrapnel, who did not care if the whole boat load exploded. The Irisher even pushed over a corded up pile, six or seven feet high, in the presence of our Chesty, and Chester is just now beginning to recover from the nervous shock.

When the news that Griffith's Western front picture was shown to a tryout audience at Pomona under the title of "Love's Struggle," an elderly former Iowa farmer with Yankee whiskers and everything, stopped at the box-office to know what show was on. "'Love's Struggle,' eh?" he said. "Well, I guess I'm too old to struggle for love. What's on to-morrow night?"

On the suggestion of their employer, Douglas Fairbanks, Bessie Fuir, sister of the famous Charley Fuir, and Theodore Badker, honeymooned in an aeroplane. The couple were taken to the 5,000-foot height, when they decided they were giddy enough. When interviewed, they stated the Fairbanks Studio from the dizzy height, made them think more and more that the industry was still in its infancy.

Julian Louis Lamothe has enlisted in the navy. This will be interesting to the War Department when it is known that Lamothe is the originator of reflect action continuity. Lamothe explains this is the kind with a kick, he securing his idea from a well-known animal named Maud. He expects to practice this on the Huns. He leaves at the Paralta Studio, a perfectly good two-year continuous service contract.

Pat Paul Dowling has forsook the film colony where he has P. Aed himself and filmsters to fame, to accept a position with his Uncle Sam, and he is now doing almost solitary confinement in the Detention Ward somewhere on the Pacific Coast. The popularity of this writer of "honest stuff," was illustrated when such celebrities as Tom Geraghty, Ben Ziedman, Al Cohn, Harry Caulfield, John Woodside, Carl Robinson, Ken. McGaffey, Bill Hart, Mitch. Lewis and ye Ed. congregated to bid him a fond farewell. The noted Irish writer of near fiction, in a series of one to thirty-minute talks by the several participants, was given instructions as to his conduct in the navy, and was urged to discontinue his practice of demanding an increase in salary every other week. During the evening Dowling received more telegrams than Nat Wills ever took on, and the crowning event of the occasion was the presentation of a wrist watch, the gift of B. Ziedman and T. Geraghty.

NEWSY ITEMS FROM THE STUDIOS

[Realizing that the voluminous press agent material filling an exhibitor's mail often fails to provide the breezy little items so badly needed for program fillers and your newspaper photoplay editors, MOTION PICTURE NEWS has created this department. It will be conducted by Miss Dorothy Tarbell, and the gossipy personalities presented here will be gathered at first hand in the studios and from the players themselves. Not only the stars, but the lesser known players whose good work has often gained them popularity in different localities, will be treated in human, intimate fashion in this department.

In connection with this "clip-sheet" service for programs and newspapers, this department also offers all the facilities of the Motion Picture Studio Directory to exhibitors and players in forwarding mail, locating players, furnishing information regarding pictures in which different players have appeared, and so on.]

Carey's (Mae Marsh) Adventures Are Only Beginning When the Cabby Delivers Her Into the Hands of the Butler (Alec Francis) in the New Goldwyn Picture from the Story, "When Carey Comes to Town"

A poke-bonnetted, hoop-skirted Carey is Mae Marsh in her new picture from the story, "When Carey Comes to Town." She was as sweet and unspoiled as the Carey of the tale as she drew from her tiny muff for our inspection a small but redolent package labeled "Dr. G—'s Dermal Soap." It seems that a few days before she had admired the thick white locks of her screen "cabby," adding that she wished her hair was as smooth and silky as his. With delightful simplicity the old cabby had just presented her with a cake of the cherished soap to which he ascribed all the credit.

Tom Moore gossiped with us for about an hour, but at the end of that time we felt very much like saying about him what some one else has already said, "It is a matter of dispute which of the three brothers possesses in a greater degree the qualities possessed by all." Thus we could escape the difficulty of adequately describing Mr. Moore. He confessed to us that his interviews were seldom successful. He dislikes to talk about himself and so he does not. But we like to talk about him, and so will you when you see him in "The Danger Game."

Madge Kennedy has the arduous task ahead of her to-day of being interviewed by a fan magazine writer whose avowed intention was an article (or was it a sonnet) on Miss Kennedy's eyelashes. For this reason we talked about such relatively unimportant little things as hanging by a sash a hundred feet above the ground, which she does in "The Danger Game," the troubles of the cast, which included everything from a broken leg to German measles, concluding with an analysis of the theory that every thought and feeling registers, though often involuntarily.

For the first time in his career Alec Francis is playing the part of a butler in the screen version of "When Carey Comes to Town." It almost goes without saying that this is no ordinary butler's part.

We overheard this bet between Hobart Henley, Goldwyn director of "The Face in the Dark," and his new star, Mae Marsh. The question at issue was the arrangement of Miss Marsh's shawl in a certain still.

"I'll bet you a thousand dollars it was this way," said Miss Marsh.

No reply.

"I'll bet you twenty-five dollars it was this way," insisted Miss Marsh.

Still no reply. Finally with an impish "moue":

"I'll bet you a box of candy against a shave," and they shook hands.

Personally we think this was taking a mean advantage of Mr. Henley, who had worked until three o'clock that morning on the picture.

The Irish love of a fight, the Irish tear and a smile, the whole delightful Irish temperament is perfectly portrayed by Mary Pickford and her family in "Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley." Small boys will adore the fistic encounters throughout, particularly the triumph of Mary's next to littlest brother.

Susanne Willa, one of the three leading ladies of "Empty Pockets," is now back on the legitimate stage in "The Squab Farm," which opened this week. She should be in her element, as the play revolves about a motion picture studio.

Another screen deserter is Grace Darling, who will soon be seen on Broadway in the musical play, "Rock-a-Bye Baby."

The way in which Jack MacLean, as Covington's son in "Moral Suicide," sustains the impression that overwork is slowly causing him to lose his mind, is truly remarkable.

Alice Mann is coming East by leaps and bounds. From the West Coast, where she was Fatty Arbuckle's leading lady, she jumped to Chicago, to play opposite Taylor Holmes in "A Pair of Sixes." From there she has jumped to New York. The question now is, "Who is the lucky leading man?"

William Tell's son has nothing on Arthur Donaldson. While they were shooting an interior for "Over the Top" at the Vitagraph studio, an extra picked up one of the heavy guns and proceeded to illustrate how to "spit the Boche." The bayonet slipped its catch, whizzed through the air, and splintered the wall exactly one inch above Mr. Donaldson's head.

First conductorettes, now butlerettes. For proof, see Adela Barker in "Breaking Into Eden," the new Bushman-Bayne picture. Miss Barker tells us they are no novelty in England now, but that she is probably the first one in America.

By the way, Will Davis did not have to go to Mesopotamia to find Eden for this picture. He found it in New Jersey (personally we have never found much there but the proverbial mosquito). All joking aside, he has discovered an almost perfect location for a picture necessitating a large country estate. He has used it in directing four stars and has not shot the same spot twice. The house has three very imposing main entrances and is surrounded by marvelously kept grounds.

FOR YOUR PROGRAM AND NEWSPAPERS

Agnes Ayres, who gave such a delightful portrayal of an O. Henry girl in "The Rubaiyat of a Scotch Highball," has a brother in the Quartermaster's department in France. Outside of the studio she is spending all her time making woolen sweaters for soldiers, which she says are much more serviceable than knitted ones. She ought to know with information from the base of supplies.

"One More American" is timely not only because of its patriotism but because of its intimate glimpses of a puppet show, that type of entertainment which is regaining some of its former popularity. Raymond Hatton, in his splendid characterization of Bump Rundle, the lightweight prize fighter, ran a close second to George Beban.

Elisabeth Risdon has the distinction of appearing on Broadway on the screen and on the stage at the same time. She depicts two widely dissimilar characters. In "Mother" she is a wrinkled and gray haired old woman; in "Seven Days' Leave," a girlish ingenue.

We hear that Nilde Babbette, the French comedienne, who recently arrived in this country, has made good so quickly that her contract with the Jester Comedy Company has been changed to two years instead of one.

Sylvia Breamer Is Leading Woman in "Missing," a Blackton-Paramount Production

Artcraft's "Blue Bird" Promises to be Complete in Every Detail, the Settings Making It a Veritable Spectacle

Viola Dana Is Soon Coming East Again

VIOLA DANA, whose contract with Metro calls for her presence six months of the year in the East and six months in the West, will return to New York from the Pacific Coast as soon as she has completed "Night Riders," written and directed by John H. Collins. Miss Dana has already given the West good measure and running over, for her six months there were up in February.

Maxwell Karger, production manager of Metro's New York studio, has his staff of scenario writers and story scouts running several good photodramas to earth in order to provide Miss Dana with the right kind of pictures for the Eastern location.

Four productions will have been completed at Metro's Hollywood studio by the time Miss Dana finishes her present stay on the Pacific Coast. These are "The Winding Trail," by Katharine Kavanaugh and June Mathis; "Weaver of Dreams," by Myrtle Reed; "Breakers Ahead," by Charles J. Brabin and H. P. Keeler, and "The Night Riders," by John H. Collins. All of these were directed by Mr. Collins with the exception of "Breakers Ahead," which Mr. Brabin directed. The star's characterizations in these four Metro productions have a wide range. They are, in the order named, Audrey Graham, a Broadway dancer; Judith Sylvester, a New England waif; Ruth Bowman, a Cape Cod lassie, and Sally Castleton, a Kentucky girl of the "blue grass region."

John H. Collins, her director; John Arnold, cameraman; Albert H. Kelley, assistant director, and several players, will return to New York with the star.

Milton E. Hoffman Very Busy Man

Milton E. Hoffman occupies the important post of studio manager for the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation at Hollywood, Cal., which carries with it the care of five hundred employees. To gain an idea of the multitudinous duties required of him it is necessary to know the routine which is followed.

The story is forwarded from the New York office to Frank E. Woods, head of the scenario department in the west, to be read. If it meets with his approval and seems adapted to some one star, he and Mr. Hoffman arrange when work shall start on the production, and a director is assigned to the work. Mr. Woods then puts a continuity writer on the story, and after it is completed copies are given to the departmental heads. After the scenes have all been taken, Mr. Woods, the director, and Mr. Hoffman get together and decide on the cutting, the titles, etc. When difficulties come up the studio manager is very much in demand, and it is his business to be the "fixer" for the organization.

Screen Examinations

"Faith Endurin'"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

ROY STEWART is rapidly increasing in popularity as a portrayer of Western characters. This is a result of his own natural presence before the camera and because the Triangle company has been giving him the best of stories. "Faith Endurin'," by Kenneth B. Clarke, combines all the elements that one expects in a Western, with an originality of development and incident that gives them additional interest. The plot contains no waste action—it commences with a highly intense situation, builds with accumulative interest, and includes a fine share of human interest action before it terminates with a rousing climax. It is such pictures as "Faith Endurin'" that help retain the popularity of the Western.

Mr. Stewart, with a fascinating air of the dare-devil, with a smile that ever suggests the big heart typical of the characters he portrays, has the ability to adapt himself to the dramatic situations with apparently the same ease as he adapts himself to the saddle and the dashing broncho. In "Faith Endurin'" he receives adequate support from W. A. Jeffries as a cowboy pal, Fritzi Ridgeway as the girl and a number of others.

Mr. Clarke's story has a number of humorous touches, crisp and effective. Cliff Smith has given it a production that meets all requirements. The high lights in particular are handled with fine effect. Steve Rounds photographed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Jeff Flagg (Roy Stewart), cowboy, is rescued from yeggmen who are breaking a railroad station safe by Jim Lee (W. A. Jeffries). From this incident springs a strong friendship. They go into the ranching business together, but before long a copper mining company commences operations on neighboring property and their prospects for successful expansion are killed. So Lee departs for other fields, while Jeff stays, mainly because of the fact that Helen Dryer (Fritzi Ridgeway), secretary of the copper company's local office, has attracted his attention. Crane (Edward Brady), the manager of the company, insults Helen and her brother (Joe Bennett) in protecting her kills him. Jeff takes the blame and escapes. A price is offered for his capture and posters revealing the fact that he may be identified by a scar on one arm are scattered about the country. In a distant town, Jeff enters the bar room for a game of poker. Boldly he sits beneath one of the bills offering a reward for his capture. The sheriff is in the game, also, and the sheriff proves to be Jim Lee. A hard loser realizes Jeff's identity and demands to see his scar. Lee also demands that he show it and Jeff pulls his gun. But before he gets it out Lee shoots him in the arm and so destroys the final means of identification. Jeff returns to the town to discover that Helen's brother has confessed and has been pardoned by executives of the copper company after the situation anent the shooting has been learned. So a happy ending comes around for everyone, particularly as Jeff's old ranch is found rich in copper.

"The Moral Law"

(Fox—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

GLADYS BROCKWELL'S ability has been displayed before, but probably never in such full measure as provided in her latest vehicle, "The Moral Law." She essays the dual role, a difficult brace of characters which would have overtaxed any lesser actress, but which Miss Brockwell interprets with individual skill and feeling. She appears as half sisters, the one good, the other bad, and shades them so well that the characters remain absolutely distinct in the spectator's mind. But her greatest talent is displayed when as the bad sister she assumes the rightful place of the good one. Here the actress acting one part must proceed to act the second, but still keep in the spirit of the first characterization. The success which Miss Brockwell has in so doing is phenomenal.

The vehicle in which the dual role is set is melodrama of the most interesting type. The action is rapid and the tangle in which the sisters are involved (though not in any way an aggravating tangle before the audience) results in good suspense before it is ultimately straightened out. The scenes are well staged, including those in the South American gambling house, and the exteriors are well selected and in many instances beautiful. The whole production is well photographed.

Colin Chase is a quiet hero, Rosita Marstini, a typical adventuress type, and Bertram Grassby and Joseph Singleton make a contrasting pair of villains. E. Loyd Sheldon is author, Charles Kenyon did the scenario, and Bertram Bracken directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Isobel (Gladys Brockwell) determines to seek out her half sister in South America and divide with her her late father's fortune. Anita (Gladys Brockwell), this sister, is the shining jewel in a gambling house conducted by her mother (Rosita Marstini). She is avaricious, quite without honor, and spends the greater part of her time extracting small fortunes from her admirers. It is the misfortune of Isobel to land in South America immediately after Anita has attempted to poison Umberto (Joseph Singleton), who has grown too strenuous in his attentions. Anita and her mother cause Isobel to be arrested for the crime and then, for safety's sake, Anita goes to Florida, Isobel's home, and takes her place as head of the household. While Grant (Colin Chase), Isobel's fiancee, notices a change. He says nothing and arrangements are made for the marriage. But Anita's confederate, Don Pedro (Bertram Grassby), jealous, has seen to the liberation of Isobel. She arrives just after the wedding, followed by Umberto. It develops that Anita was married to Umberto and that her marriage with Grant is invalid. So all obstacles between Grant and Isobel are cleared away.

"Moral Suicide"

(Graphic—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Samuel D. Palmer

VAN ABRAMSON, as author and producer, presents through the medium of the Graphic Film Corporation, "Moral Suicide," in seven reels.

Obviously, it is the author's intention to teach a great moral lesson. That lesson is that rich old widowers should beware of good-looking, wicked, young adventuresses, for, if they are not very circumspect in their behavior, invariably the good-looking, wicked, young adventuresses corrupt the morals of the rich old widowers and incidentally spend all their money. To every rich old widower in the audience, therefore, "Moral Suicide" carries a tremendous moral punch.

With a few exceptions in the work of the cast and in the minor details of direction the production is well done. The cast is a notable one, including John Mason, Anne Luther, Leah Baird, Alan Hale, Sidney Mason, Hazel Washburn, Claire Whitney, Jack McLean and William Lampe. As has been the case in but few of his stage or screen appearances in recent years John Mason has a role that fits him. So well does he look and act his part that one is constrained to overlook entirely his few lapses of overacting. Leah Baird is very, very wicked in her semi-vampire role, and Anne Luther, as the old man's much-aggrieved daughter, quite satisfies. The highest honors, however, belong to Jack McLean, who, as the demented son, presents a truly remarkable portrayal.

The lighting effects are above the ordinary, especially in the contracts between daylight, moonlight and the artificial variety, and the scenes, both interior and exterior, are well photographed. The prologue and the names of the cast, however, will be lost upon those occupying the rear seats of even a medium-sized house, for they are too dim to be read with normal eyes.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Richard Covington (John Mason), an aged California millionaire widower, is devoted to his children, Beatrice (Anne Luther) and Waverly (Jack McLean), the latter of whom has become demented through over-study, until he meets Fay Hope (Leah Baird), a young woman with a tarnished past. Warned by his daughter that association with Fay meant moral suicide, the old fellow nevertheless falls into the snare set for him by Fay and her friend, "Lucky" Travers (Alan Hale), the arch villain. Covington eventually marries the woman. Now it seems that Rodman Daniels (Sidney Mason), Beatrice's fiancee, once had an affair with Fay, a fact which is discovered when Rodman returns from the East. Beatrice upbraids Fay and is banished by her father from the parental roof. Subsequently Waverly, the son, kills Fay and, being found insane, is sent to an asylum. Covington goes down and out, and wandering through the streets of New York he comes upon Beatrice in the company of Travers, the villain. The girl is just about to turn her companion over to the authorities as a spy. The old man straightens up, the boy is released from the mad-house as cured and Beatrice forgives and marries Rodman.

"Ann's Finish"

(Mutual-American—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Lisle M. Albright

ALTHOUGH the story of "Ann's Finish" is a combination of situations that have often been used with effect in the past, the picture is, nevertheless, the best that Margarita Fischer has been in for a long time. It is a comedy drama of the lighter sort in which Miss Fischer is afforded a role that fits her like a tailor-made suit.

The background for the picture is a girl's finishing school, and it is not very difficult to guess, even if one knows nothing about the plot of this particular drama, that Margarita has a difficult time to keep from being finished long before she should be. A burglar, in reality a young author trying to get a little touch of real color for a story, crosses Ann's trail soon after she arrives at the boarding school and gets her into a predicament that furnishes fun throughout the remaining reels.

He is a good looking burglar, and Ann, rather than give him up to the police when they trace him to her room, hides him in the linen closet and later has to claim him as her husband to save him from arrest. Her confession throws a monkey wrench into her stay at the school, as married women are not desired, and the matron wants to send her back home.

To save herself from being expelled, Ann goes into mourning and tells the matron that she has just received a letter stating that her husband has met his death on a torpedoed transport while on his way to France. Just as the sky begins to clear for her again, her burglar turns up and she has more camouflage work to do.

There is many a laugh bottled up in this picture, and it ought to meet with the approval of exhibitor and patron alike. Lloyd Ingraham directed the production and Jack Mower, Adelaide Elliott, David Howard, John Gough, Robert Klein and Perry Banks give Miss Fischer all the support she could desire.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Ann Anderson (Margarita Fischer) is the cut-up in a finishing school. One night, awakening from a fitful fudge dream, she finds a burglar in her room. He is good looking and tells her it is his first offense and that his mother is dying for lack of food. Ann takes pity on him, and when the watchman of the grounds and the matron of the school pound on her door, she hides the robber. In the search that follows, he is discovered and Ann then claims him as her husband. He is allowed to depart but Ann is expelled. The next day another burglar enters her room while she is dosing and attempts to remove her necklace. After a struggle she gives an alarm, but is shot in the arm. The burglar is caught and Ann finds herself the heroine of the school. Deciding that she would look nice in widow's weeds, she announces that her "husband" has gone down on a transport.

Ann is kidnapped by the pals of the man she caused to have captured and is rescued by her first burglar, who turns out to be a novelist in search of atmosphere for a story. Ann sees her "finish" and decides to forsake her widow's weeds and go back to her "husband."

"By Right of Purchase"

(Select—Six Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

NORMA TALMADGE'S last picture, "Ghosts of Yesterday," was so meritorious from every viewpoint that "By Right of Purchase" which, though it has the advantage of a fine title, is just a little disappointing. It attains the average standard maintained in the productions of marital complications, but "Ghosts of Yesterday" has made such an impression that one is inclined to expect and demand something more than the average from Miss Talmadge. It was written by Margery Land Mason and scenarioized by Harry O. Hoyt. In some respects the continuity of the action is too stringy to bring out the dramatic strength of the story's situations, but taken on the whole it has been produced with a keen sense of its dramatic values by Director Charles Miller. There is plenty of suspense in the development of the lives of Margot and Chadwick, after the marriage, on which Margot looks as purely a matter of business.

But leaving the picture's dramatic value aside, the production given it cannot be spoken of in high terms. The settings, supposedly in a home of the rich, are gaudy and out of tune. Wall papers with ungainly designs serve to detract from the action. How much better is the plain paper or the fine panelling often seen! The photography is none of the best either. It lacks clarity and the sharpness resulting from good lighting. Small faults, both of these, when apparent in only a few places throughout a picture, but when obvious practically all the time, exceedingly annoying.

Miss Talmadge, with that emotional ability for which she is noted, succeeds in making her role effective, despite the fact that she must of a necessity be unrealistic when the part demands it. Eugene O'Brien is again opposite the star, and gives a full and impressive interpretation of the man of honor who is led into bargaining for his wife because of his infatuation for her. William Courtleigh, Jr., presents the role of the rounder realistically while Ida Darling, Charles Wellsley and Florence Billings are good in supporting parts of prominence.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Margot Hughes (Norma Talmadge), though she believes herself in love with Dick Derwent (William Courtleigh, Jr.,), marries the wealthy Chadwick Himes (Eugene O'Brien) when sufficiently urged by her mother (Ida Darling). The bargain is that if after two years she still does not love him he will allow her to divorce him. On their honeymoon Margot makes it plain that the marriage has given her only Chadwick's name. On their return to the city Himes plunges in work, now certain of the fact that he will never win Margot's love, but still desperately in love with her. Margot welcomes the attentions of Dick, but when he attempts to trespass on their friendship, which she merely regards as platonic, she resists. She lends him money on his plea. Later Nugent (Charles Wellsley), a great friend of Himes', visits Margot and pleads that she refuse further attentions from Dick and accept her husband's love, which, he assures her, is great. Realizing at last the worth of her husband, Margot visits Dick's apartment with the intention of requesting the return of her checks. She overhears him in conversation with another woman, and his true character is revealed to her. Himes sees her coming from the apartment and denounces her as untrue to the conditions of their contract. But Nugent also brings Himes to his senses by relating the plain truth, and when the picture closes Himes and Margot are off on a second and happier honeymoon.

"All Fur Her"

(Jester Comedy—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Leland S. Ferguson

"ALL FUR HER," the third Jester Comedy featuring Twede Dan, shows high signs of being "all for the exhibitor who books it." This means that the reviewer considers the picture a worthy successor to Twede Dan's other Jester celluloids, and there can be no denying they started off throughout the country with a bang that reverberated success into the very inner sanctums of the Jester home office.

"All Fur Her," which is to be state righted for April, is a drastic departure from the previous Jesters, and that is a very commendatory statement. It means Twede Dan has versatility, and that the director has a seemingly endless supply of gags and stunts that we predict will draw dimes from the multitudes and additional bookings from the exhibitor who shows the films. This is as much as can be expected of comedy, and that's plenty.

As previously stated, the Jester Twede Dan comedies have a well carried plot, and "All Fur Her" is very fortunate in this respect. As the name would suggest, most of the action is around a set of furs upon which Twede Dan's wife (in the picture) has set her heart. And when we say action, in this case we mean action, as there is not a dull moment throughout. Moreover, the comedy is of the clean sort that brings an audience back.

"All Fur Her" delivers the goods.

"Finishing Mary"

(Mutual-Strand—One Reel)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

THIS single reeler featuring Billie Rhodes is, without a doubt, one of the best of the Strand series. It is brimful of harmless, innocent, mirth provoking incident, in which Billie as the irrepressible Mary gets in trouble, next is pointed out as the model student in the finishing school, and lastly gets "in dutch" worse than ever through the harmless agency of a pillow fight. The whole theme centers about a "finishing school" as the title aptly implies, and Mary resorts to innumerable tricks—some old and others new and unique—for defeating the stern rules and regulations as laid out by Miss Sprout, the preceptress. For instance, her ladyship, Miss Sprout, will indulge in a soda at a neighboring drug store, the clerk of which is in love with Mary, and while partaking of her soda the clerk deftly slips a little note in the neck band of her costume, which Mary as deftly extracts when the preceptress crosses her path. Mary is the veritable "Peck's Bad Boy" and only redeems herself by capturing a thief who seeks refuge under her bed.

The reel is composed of surefire comedy and cannot fail to make a hit wherever shown. Release date Tuesday, March 12.

"The Answer"

(Triangle—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THE author of "The Answer" has based her story on a theme that deals in some way with socialism—the universal brotherhood of mankind; but inasmuch as the theme is swayed to fit the action of the story's characters it proves something of a burlesque on a political reform that every one, even its antagonists, take seriously. Why it is that picture socialists always begin activities by building some sort of a House of Refuge for "those in the winter of life" is quite beyond the comprehension of the writer. In reality they elect members to the State Assembly and to Congress. But the futile dabbling in a theme that really deserves careful handling is not the greatest of the picture's weaknesses.

It will be noted that "The Answer" is in seven reels. This in the face of the slimness of the story and the style of its continuity is regrettable. It appears to have been produced with the intention of cutting it down to the average length. Both the action and the subtitles repeat more than once and there is voluminous detail which succeeds in being neither colorful nor interesting. Incidentally the continuity writer has displayed small dramatic sense. Perhaps this party should not be criticised, however, for it is apparent that the original story was wholly narrative in style possessing no sustaining sequence and rising to a crisis only in the end when a murder and a suicide claim the attention for the quite mechanical purpose of creating a sensation, not for any logical connection they may have with the body of the narrative.

Alma Rubens is featured, although performances of equal prominence are rendered by Joe King, Claire Anderson and Francis McDonald. These four principals interpret their roles realistically which is the highest praise that may be bestowed upon them all things considered.

E. Magnus Ingleton is author, while E. Mason Hopper directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

John Warfield (Joe King), social worker, meets with Guido Garcia (Francis McDonald), a radical with a grudge against the rich, and together they establish a home for the unfortunates of society. Goldie Shepard (Claire Anderson), daughter of a man whose death is caused by drink, acts as Warfield's secretary.. Lorraine Van Allen (Alma Rubens), a society girl, meets this trio through the tragedy of Shepard's death, and after a time lends her personal efforts and money to the success of the Refuge. Warfield receives word that his mother has died in England, leaving a huge estate. He makes the trip across the ocean to straighten out affairs, and shortly afterwards sends for Goldie. They are married. Fortune completely turns Goldie and she no longer believes in social equality, she enjoys playing in the lap of luxury and displeases Warfield. Guido, not hearing from his partner, makes the voyage abroad and learns of the situation. Warfield leaves for home. Guido, to terminate the unhappiness of Warfield, shoots and kills Goldie and subsequently jumps from a high bridge to his own death. Later a new day dawns for Warfield and Lorraine, kindred spirits in charitable pursuits.

"The Way Out"

(World Film—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

CAPABLY enacted with a cast headed by three favorites and properly presented, "The Way Out" is not the perfect pictorial entertainment because of its story. It is interesting in part and the intensity of the scene where the Count and Robert meet is not to be denied. In fact the action concentrates almost wholly on this scene. But after all the melodrama with a male heavy is better. The Count and Robert are two such decent fellows that neither one is able to steal sympathy from the other, which is too bad for dramatic purposes. The villain is the girl's mother, and she is such an arrogant being who opposes her daughter's contemplated marriage with such small cause that she is neither realistic nor convincing, despite all the poise brought to the part by Kate Lester.

What merit the picture possesses is apparently due to the careful direction of George Kelson. Certainly never has June Elvidge acted with more grace and ease or with better sense of her part than she does as the unlucky girl in "The Way Out." And Carlyle Blackwell shows unusual ability in the tense scenes. John Bowers and Muriel Ostriche also contribute to the good side of the picture. Their performances are of such even merit that it is more than likely that Mr. Kelson is responsible. And moreover he has made the rather mechanical arm of the picture which brings about the separation of Robert and the girl, run like a well oiled machine. With all its obviousness there is a sustaining element about it. Mr. Kelson has, in fact, shown his ability throughout the film. He has handled every episode with a keen sense of its value and only in its lack of contrast in the two male characters is the picture disappointing.

Jack O'Mara is author, and Clara S. Beranger prepared the scenario.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Alice Thornton (June Elvidge) and Robert Barr (Carlyle Blackwell) are engaged. Mrs. Thornton (Kate Lester), ambitious, frowns on the prospect of the marriage. Her husband had been married to another woman by whom he had a daughter. This daughter (Muriel Ostriche) arrives in the United States from France after her mother's death. Mrs. Thornton secures a position for her in Barr's law office. She is lonely and Barr extends sympathy. One afternoon, out for a walk, they are caught in the rain. Barr takes her to his apartment to dry her clothes and Alice discovers her there. Barr refuses to tell who the girl is as Alice's memory of her dead father is sacred. As a consequence the engagement is broken. Mrs. Thornton takes Alice abroad, where she meets Count de Joinville (John Bowers). They marry. The Count discovers one of Robert's old letters and denounces his wife. Robert, restless, follows Alice to Paris and learns of her marriage. He calls and the Count, realizing his identity, demands satisfaction. Robert refuses to fight and explains the whole episode of Alice's half sister. The scene then shifts to the battlefield. The Count is wounded and rescued by Robert. Sent to his own home, which had been converted into a hospital, he realizes where Alice's love lies, and ripping the bandages from his wounds, dies.

Three O. Henry Subjects

(General Film—Two Reels Each)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

"THE SONG AND THE SERGEANT," "By Injunction" and "The Rathskeller and the Rose" are three of the latest O. Henry subjects produced by General Film, in all of which the quaintness of O. Henry's style is very much in evidence. In "The Song and the Sergeant" the original story has been faithfully followed, and in the other two no serious deviation is noted.

"By Injunction" is a virile story of Western life, and Director David Smith has made the most of every phase. The cattle round-up, the gambling den, the saloon and dance hall are all vividly portrayed and the photography is uniformly good.

"The Rathskeller and the Rose" is a fine piece of comedy-drama, the leading character in which Posie Boggs is delightfully portrayed by Adele De Garde. This will be accorded a warm reception wherever shown, carrying as it does an intensely humane vein throughout. George Ridgewell directed.

"Those Athletic Girls"

(Paramount-Mack Sennett—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

LOUISE FAZENDA is seen in "Those Athletic Girls" as janitress of a girl's boarding school. She has a pretty hard time catering to their needs, trying to please the principal and keeping her husband away from the perfect specimens of feminine pulchritude with which the school is crowded. These Sennett beauties have more to do in "Those Athletic Girls" than they have had heretofore, and it need hardly be said that they are far from uninteresting. In fact the girls supersede the gags in this picture. The inventive genius of Sennett or his underdirectors is apparent only in spots save for the end of the last reel when Teddy, the remarkably clever dog, is introduced. But it is good fun, "Those Athletic Girls," every bit of it. Ethel Teare, Glen Cavender, F. B. Cooper and Laura LaVarnie are named in the cast supporting Miss Fazenda. Edward Cline directed in collaboration with Hampton Del Ruth.

"The House of Hate"

(Pathe—Fourth Episode)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THROUGH his own efforts Gresham is reinstated in Pearl's favor despite the protests of her various convincing relatives. An additional character of importance is also introduced in this episode. He is the title character, "The Man from Java," and is a tough and surly sailor, Patch Eye Pete by name, who has information concerning the death of Waldon and the identity of the Hooded Terror. Pearl consents to meet him by the river at a certain hour and bring with her ten thousand dollars for his information. But the Hooded Terror is also on foot and attacks Patch Eye, knocking him senseless. He is choking Pearl to death as the episode closes with Harvey rushing to the rescue.

"Thieves' Gold"

(Universal—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS latest Harry Carey production departs from the general theme that has been followed in his recent pictures, in which the cowboy and his pals are initiated into the conventionalities of a new environment, and goes back to western melodrama. The change is welcome, for besides the value of variety, and the fact that the western melodrama was once the star's popular vehicle, "Thieves' Gold" is a satisfactory picture, containing the requisite amount of thrills and stirring situations and offering Carey a role in which he is thoroughly at home. Instead of the bad man he is a robber with only one holdup to his discredit, and this because of the influence of the real bad man of the film. His romance with the girl is interesting, though introduced rather suddenly, and the attractiveness of Molly Malone who plays the parts adds to it.

Carey performs a sensational stunt when he rescues the girl from the runaway team. The action in the Mexican bar-room is typical of such favorite locales of the picture producer, while the final clash between Carey and Simmons is well handled from the point of view of suspense. The camera man secured some excellent shots of the western country and fine photography prevails throughout.

Fred R. Bechdolt wrote the story and Jack Ford directed.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Cheyenne Harry (Harry Carey), cowboy, becomes restless with the routine life on the Savage ranch and gives his employer (L. M. Wells) a notice that he is to leave. He falls in with Simmons (Vester Pegg), an outlaw, and gets mixed up in a shooting across the Mexican border. The next day, while under the influence of liquor, he is persuaded by Simmons to assist him in holding up a shipment of gold consigned to Mexican revolutionists. Harry is unaware of the fact that he further violates the law this time in Arizona instead of Mexico. When he sees from the top of a mountain a runaway he determines to rescue the occupants of the carriage, no matter what the cost is to himself. The passengers are Alice Norris (Molly Malone), who is on her way to visit at the Savage ranch, and Larkin (John Cook), the drunken driver. Harry rescues the girl, but is then unable to escape the sheriff and his posse. He is cast in jail. Savage secures his pardon, realizing that he is good at heart. Harry comes back to the ranch and after a time Alice and the cowboy fall in love. She is unaware of his jail sentence. When she discovers this and the cause of it, she sends for a former sweetheart and contemplates leaving with him. Simmons, to get even with Harry for a former act, holds him up on the desert. But through a trick, Harry gets the upper hand and is forced to kill his man, not before he has been wounded himself, however. When Alice drives by on her way to the station she discovers him lying unconscious and then and there she decides that it is Harry she wants after all.

"The Marriage Bubble"

(Triangle—Three Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

WILLIAM DESMOND in a dual role, and Anna Luther in the principal feminine role, put over this short feature with the comedy situations rightly accented, the straight dramatic work nicely intermingled, and the action set at top speed from first to last. W. Carey Wonderly wrote the story and it was produced under the direction of Walter Edwards, supervised by Thomas H. Ince.

William Desmond succeeds in getting a laugh in every scene of this comedy-drama. He impersonates a wealthy young millionaire who is given to excessive drinking. A five-a-day actor comes to town and is mistaken for the wealthy young imbiber because of his close resemblance. The millionaire's sister sees the actor as he is about to leave with the troop and suggests to him that she has a plan whereby he can make some easy money. She takes him to her home, dresses him in her brother's clothes and even the drunken one's mother is fooled. He is entertained, wined and dined. Marty Conrad, as the drunken one is known, escapes from confinement in his room and comes face to face with his double. The actor believes that he has performed his mission and leaves, but returns in time to save Marty's sister from a fire which starts in her home. The comedy that is revealed in this fire scene is of sure-fire brand and will get a laugh from the most sedate in the audience.

Maude George and Florence Dagmar have the principal supporting roles opposite Mr. Desmond and Miss Luther. "The Marriage Bubble" is one of the best short features seen for some time. The photography is up to the Triangle standard. The sub-titles are to the point and explain rather than supply action.

"Unfaithful"

(Triangle—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

DOROTHY DALTON carries the colors in this Triangle production in two reels, titled "Unfaithful." Lambert Hilyer wrote the story and it was produced under the direction of Charles Miller. Although of the abbreviated variety of comedy-dramas it is supported by actionable material and plenty of it with the result that we are not left wondering when the end will come.

The story tells of a young novelist whose ambition to write leads him to neglect his wife. He wishes to incorporate in his book a few pages devoted to infidelity. His wife learns of this and plans to create material upon which he can build. She arranges with a friend who brings the matter before the husband with sufficient strength to arouse his jealousy. The scheme works and the husband sits down and completes his book. The plan is explained after the husband has become so enraged as to attempt the life of his wife. All turns out happily.

Dorothy Dalton, in the role of the wife, carries the comedy and more dramatic action effectively throughout the run. Robert McKim as the husband, and Charles Gunn as the friend, do good work. Charlotte Vermont is good in a supporting role. The picture was produced under the supervision of Thomas H. Ince and photographed by Clyde DeVinna.

"Thief or Angel"

(General Film—Two Reels)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

THIS Judge Brown picture has for its theme the methods adopted and schemes resorted to by Antoinetta, an Italian mother (Ruth Hampton), to procure pure milk for her baby and others in the Italian tenements. She boils her milk and fills old milk bottles which are supplied to her by a gang of boys who gather up and sell them to her. She too has also been detected stealing bottles of milk from houses where she knew there were no children. When the gang is rounded up and their leader's identity becomes known, as does also their object, the Judge decides Antoinetta, who, in male attire had headed the gang, is not guilty and instead of branding her as a thief, hails her as an angel.

The youngsters who compose the gang are a precocious lot and acquit themselves as ably as the average keen street arab, who is up to all the tricks of the slums.

It is an interesting subject, well taken care of by the author and competently directed by King W. Vidor.

"His Quaker Girl"

(Mutual-Strand—One Reel)

Reviewed by F. G. Spencer

CAPRICIOUS BILLIE RHODES scores a decided hit in the title role of "His Quaker Girl," a Strand single-reeler. Bubbling over with merriment and mischief one moment, the next moment finds her as a Quaker maid, demure and docile. Cullen Landis, who plays the lover part to her, is attracted by the rough tactics of a troup of motion picture people on a public thoroughfare where a strenuous scene is being filmed. He is thoroughly disgusted and seeing Mary in her Quaker costume he takes the opportunity of denouncing actor people and eulogizing the friends. Still believing Mary to be a Quakeress, although she had just completed a Quaker scene for a motion picture, he calls on her parents (?), who decide to keep up the deception. This, they do to a certainty and the perplexities that ensue for Jack are amusing in the extreme. This is a single-reeler of merit, and will take well anywhere. Release date, March 19.

"On the Jump"—Rolin

"ON THE JUMP" is one of Harold Lloyd's funniest single reel comedies. He is seen as a bell hop and the manner in which he rules it over the hotel guests is very comical. Bebe Daniels is the ingenue, Harry Pollard, a burlesque detective, while the ever-present dwarf of Rolin comedies adds considerable merriment on his own account.

"The Sea Panther"

(Triangle—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

WITH a touch of adventure and romance similar to that revealed in Stevenson's "Kidnapped," but wholly unlike it in plot construction, "The Sea Panther," with William Desmond in the featured role, is a picture of piratical adventures which will stir the blood of all inclined toward the life on the high seas. It is not essentially melodramatic as the title would imply. There is none of the "blood and thunder." There are touches that will suggest the melodramatic but the love element predominates and it will be accepted as a love romance of the seas.

Director Thomas N. Heffron has obtained the true atmosphere of the days when the sea pirates held sway. The atmosphere is there and never once are there indications of the present times peeping through the clever disguise which takes you back to the days of which Stevenson wrote when he penned his "Kidnapped." Mr. Desmond has the role of the gentlemanly pirate who in his pastime of taking what didn't belong to him, graciously confiscated a beautiful young girl from an English ship. He takes her to his stronghold, and there by gentlemanly tactics and gallantry wins the love of the girl.

Kenneth B. Clarke, who wrote the story, has not once created incidents or situations which take the action of the story away from the atmosphere of the sea. It is a drama of the sea, by the sea and for the sea. William Desmond gives commendable characterization of the sea pirate. Mary Tarpley, in the role of the girl, fits the part like a glove. Jack Richardson, Arthur Millet, Lillian Langdon and Lee Hill are in main support. Jack Richardson does his usual good character work and Lillian Langdon in the matron's part registers a good percentage.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Paul Le Marston (William Desmond), gentlemanly freebooter, whose exploits on the sea have gained for him the title of "Sea Panther," captures his most precious prize, the beautiful daughter of an English sea captain. Molly Tarpley (Mary Warren) is en route to join her uncle, proprietary governor of South Carolina, when the Sea Panther takes her as his prize. Le Marston takes her to the pirates' town of Cayo del Muerto, in the Bahamas, and there establishes her in his pirates' home by the sea.

Le Marston loves the girl and shows his love for her when he fights to the death with Braga, a fellow sea pirate. Le Marston is followed by the captain of the English ship, who had been liberated, and bound in chains. Molly frees him and he escapes over the side of the ship.

"Love Me"

(Paramount-Ince—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

CONTRASTING the pure spirit of the West with the puerile East once again, with the chief protagonist a big hearted woman instead of a man, and delineating in a highly dramatic way the manner in which she untangles the lives of a family with false standards—this is C. Gardner Sullivan's story of "Love Me" briefly speaking. But brief speaking seldom does full justice to this man's work. Whatever drama he undertakes he always has the happy faculty of bringing out the stronger qualities of the commonplace. This is what makes his work human. He is always progressive in his writing, includes no unnecessary characters or situations, handles a big scene without recourse to the cutback and builds to a logical climax—this is what makes his pictures realistic. And an Ince director, assisted by the production department, knows how to present the story. This is what makes his work realistic.

All these merits "Love Me," which features Dorothy Dalton, possesses, and as a consequence it is human, dramatic and realistic. Mr. Sullivan has builded to a mighty strong climax. In fact it is so strong that one forgets while seeing it that it is conventional. But what if it is? There is nothing new, we know, and it is only when the conventional is handled without skill that it becomes obviously so. R. William Neill's handling of the story in the directing is worthy of great praise. Particularly in the climax, which is a long scene in one set with few camera changes, has he brought out the effectiveness of Mr. Sullivan's drama. As for the production department, its work is excellent. A title informs "a home of a family of high social standing" or words to that effect and the production department makes you believe it.

Miss Dalton brings out the wholesomeness of Maida, the western girl, and plays with feeling at all times. Jack Holt is genuine as the genuine Gordon Appleby, her husband. Robert McKim is excellent as the snob, Dorcas Matthews is successful at suggesting the weak woman, and Melbourne MacDowell, William Conklin and Elinor Hancock are adequate in important parts.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Gordon (Jack Holt), youngest in the family of Grant Appleby (Melbourne MacDowell), returns from the West with a wife, Maida (Dorothy Dalton). Her genuine character contrasts strongly with the other members of the Appleby family, which includes Mortimer (Robert McKim), a snob, Eunice (Dorcas Matthews), whose husband is away at sea, while she accepts the attentions of Fenton (William Conklin), and Mrs. Appleby (Elinor Hancock), who places pride of family and social position above all else. Maida is coldly received and though practically insulted at times, determines to stay it out for Gordon's sake. She learns that Eunice contemplates eloping with Fenton. Fearful of the consequences, she visits his apartment to plead with him. When Eunice arrives she rushes her into a room just before Mortimer, who has followed Maida, enters. To save Eunice, Maida shows herself. At home she stands the lecturing of all the family, save Gordon. He alone believes her true. Her plight, however, eventually moves Eunice to confess her foolishness and not until then does the Appleby family awake to a full realization of Maida's noble character.

"The Bell Boy"

(Paramount-Arbuckle—Two Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

THIS two reeler, Roscoe Arbuckle's latest for Paramount, reaches the very heights in the type of comedy which gave him his reputation. There is originality in the gags and plentiful opportunities for both Arbuckle and his excellent supporting team, Buster Keaton and Al St. John. The three are seen as the proprietors, bell boys, elevator men, waiters, barbers and porters of a small town hotel. The utter ease with which they go about their ridiculous work is a rare treat in the comedy line. As for the gags, they have a horse to hoist the elevator, their own trolley car to bring the guests from the station and innumerable smaller ones which might come under the head of business, but which must have taken considerable thought to originate. Keaton specially and St. John, too, get in some wonderful acrobatic work, and even Fatty does a number of falls and acts surprisingly lively for one of his weight. There is pretty Alice Lake as ingenue and Joe Keaton does a funny scene with his son. A better comedy than "The Bell Boy" would be hard to find and this statement may be taken to include the Chaplins and the Sennetts.

"The Curse of Iku"

(Essanay—Seven Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"THE CURSE OF IKU," as the title implies, is a story of Japan and the Japanese, with the greater part of the action laid in Japan. The action in the initial reels, is in the nature of a prologue telling of the barbaric days of a half century ago, in Japan. Frank Borzage directed and plays the leading male role, with Tsuru Aoki, a Japanese actress, presenting the leading feminine role. The picture was produced by Essanay for release on the Perfection program. It is in seven reels.

The Jap and the American are placed at dagger points throughout the run of the picture. It is one against the other and the author, in the creation of his plot material, has made the American girl the object through and by which the Jap shall obtain his revenge. In developing this material, the author has conspicuously staged the problem of the sexes. He has brought to the surface, with prominence, the risque, and it is to be doubted whether or no an American audience will receive these situations with any degree of satisfaction, especially when the offending party is not an American. The picture would not meet with approval in communities where there is an appreciable Japanese element.

"The Curse of Iku" is characterized by excellent acting. Tsuru Aoki, the little Japanese actress, gives a fine characterization of an aged Japanese woman and a Japanese actor, whose name is not mentioned on the program, is seen to excellent advantage in the role of the Japanese villain. His work is commendable and executed with the ability of a dramatic artist.

Frank Borzage, who directed, has done wonders in duplicating the atmosphere of Japan, both during the days when the country was in a semi-barbaric stage and during the present time of highly civilized state. He has made it a Japanese picture in every sense of the word. The story is characterized by strength in action and plot, but the production could be cut to less footage to a great advantage. In his eagerness to plant the fact that the villain seeks to avenge himself on the American girl, the director has flashed several scenes of him attacking the girl with sinister motives. It would seem that one short scene depicting this would have been sufficient to convince. The picture is of high qualities in a good many respects. There is a fine demonstration of dramatic acting, evidence of careful and faithful direction, and a strong, convincing story. The photography is ideal throughout and the settings are faithful to the atmosphere of Japan.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

The initial reels tell of an episode in the barbaric days of Japan about fifty years ago. An American sailor (Frank Borzage) is shipwrecked on the coast of Jnpan and picked up by Yori, a Japanese prince who is an enemy of Iku. He is harbored at the prince's home. Iku learns of it and sends his sister, Omio San (Tsuru Ooki) to learn who the stranger is. At that time no foreigner was allowed to land on the shores of Japan, excepting Dutch traders. To land meant death to any other person.

Omio San reported to her brother that the stranger was a white god. Iku becomes enraged to think that his sister had fallen in love with the stranger and sends her to the wharf, where he marries her to a Dutch sailor that he might accuse the stranger of being the father of her child. The stranger is captured and ordered burned in oil, as a penalty. His friend, the prince, is crucified. The stranger escapes. Fifty years later a descendant of the stranger is found in California. A descendant of Iku comes to America to study conditions and meets Carroll (Frank Borzage), whom he recognizes as a descendant of his forefather. He sets out to get revenge through Carroll's sweetheart. After a series of adventures which takes the participants to Japan, the girl, who has been kidnapped by the Japanese, is rescued.

"The Wine Girl"

(Bluebird—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"THE WINE GIRL" is not up to Bluebird standard. The principal trouble is in the story and it is evident that the director did not take trouble to remedy any of its defects. The picture could be cut in any number of different places and a complete story would be told in the detached part. The plot is forced throughout. "The Wine Girl" is a series of pictures flitting across the screen, starting nowhere and getting nowhere.

Carmel Myers as the heroine is the shining light of the picture. She is given a character role, which if it had a logical and well-written story through which to show itself to advantage, would have rendered a good account of its stewardship. Miss Myers is handicapped from start to finish. She is unable to overcome the defects in the story. E. A. Warren, in a George Beban characterization, gives a most convincing impersonation of the Italian villain. Kenneth Harlan in the straight lead is over-enthusiastic at times, but like the others in the cast, cannot overcome the handicap the story presents. Katherine Kirkwood and E. A. Warren are good in other supporting roles.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Andrea Minghetti (Rex De Roselli), by saving, had become the owner of a vineyard in Southern California. His niece, Bona (Carmel Myers), an orphan, had been left to his care. Chico (E. A. Warren), a workman in Andrea's vineyard, attempts to force his affections on Bona, but is repulsed. Frank Harris (Kenneth Harlan), with a party of friends, has had a wild "joy ride." The party arrives at the vineyard and it is suggested that they have "one more drink." Frank is dared by his companions to hire out to Andrea for a week. He accepts the dare in view of the fact that he will have wine for breakfast, dinner and supper.

Frank is attracted to Mona and saves her from the advances made by Chico. His mother learns where he is and goes for him. He suggests that she take Mona back with her, as cook. She consents and Mona is established in the Harris home. Chico seeks revenge on Mona, because Andrea had refused to give his niece to him in marriage.

Mona is not long at the Harris home before she incites the anger of Frank's mother. Mrs. Harris implies that Mona is a thief and she prepares to leave. A lawyer arrives at the Harris home and inquires for Mona. He informs her that her uncle had been missing for some time and that in his will he had left his fortune to Mona. Mrs. Harris attempts then to persuade Mona to stay. But she returns to her uncle's vineyard to clear up the mystery of his disappearance. She tells her story to the police and they wait for Chico, who she believes will seek her out. He does and is captured. Andrea turns up very much alive and Frank and Mona are united.

"Broncho Billy's Close Call"

(Essanay-Broncho Billy Reissue—One Reel)

Reviewed by Joseph L. Kelley

"BRONCHO BILLY'S CLOSE CALL" is the late Broncho Billy reissue shown for review by Essanay. It smacks of the typical Western drama told in a short, snappy reel of sure-fire action. Billy is serving as guard to the overland stage coach and after he has put a band of hold-up men to flight he is

NOT A DISSENTING VOICE

JESTER

(SUPER)

COMEDIES

FEATURING

TWEDE-DAN

THE INTERNATIONAL MIRTH MAKER

VOTED "BOX OFFICE WINNERS" BY ACCLAMATION

FEBRUARY
"The Recruit"

APRIL
"All 'Fur' Her"

MARCH
"His Golden Romance"

MAY
"The Wrong Flat"

ALL TWO PARTS—RELEASED MONTHLY

Booked on the "SHOW YOU" policy
Through the following Exchanges:

For State of New York and Northern New Jersey—Photo Drama Co. (Ben Title, rep.), 220 West 42d St., New York City, N. Y.
For Eastern Pennsylvania and Southern New Jersey—Masterpiece Film Attractions, 1225 Vine St., Philadelphia, Pa.
For Western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky and West Virginia—United Business Association of Pennsylvania, Inc., 224 Columbia Bldg., Cleveland, O.
For State of Michigan—The Strand Features, 94 Griswold St., Detroit, Mich.
For Northern Illinois and Southern Wisconsin—Unity Photoplays Co., 207 So. Wabash Ave., Chicago, Ill.
For Minneapolis, Minn.—Standard Film Exchange.
For Omaha, Neb.—Standard Film Ex.
For St. Louis, Mo.—Standard Film Ex.
For Kansas City, Mo.—Standard Film Ex.
For Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Utah and Southern Idaho—Swanson & Nolan Supply Co., Denver, Colo.
For California, Nevada, Arizona and Hawaiian Islands—Western F. F. Co., 180 Golden Gate Ave., San Francisco, Cal.
For South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and Tennessee—R. M. Savini, 63 Walton St., Atlanta, Ga.
For North Carolina, Eltabran Film Co. Charlotte, North Carolina.
For Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., 1911½ Commerce St., Dallas, Tex.
For Louisiana and Mississippi—Foursquare Pictures, Inc., New Orleans, La.
For the New England States—R. D. Marson Attraction Co., 26 Piedmont St., Boston, Mass.

Foreign Reps.: ARROW FILM CORP., Times Bldg., New York

A few territories still open. Call or write for terms.

JESTER COMEDY CO.
220 W. 42nd Street, New York
Telephon Bryan

Studios For Rent

Most conveniently located Studio in New York City—

318-320-322 East 48th Street.
Floor space—80 x 100.

Room for six good sized sets.

Carpenter shops equipped with latest machinery.

2000 Amperes gives any kind of light effects.

Will contract to furnish you your sets on a 10% basis, saving you your rent in lumber alone.

People can reach your Studio in four or five minutes. Props, on a minute's notice. No waits on account of location of Studio. A big money saver.

Rent by the week or month, also yearly leases.

Address ROLAND WEST
318 East 48th Street New York City

SOCIETY
of
MOTION PICTURE ENGINEERS

Meeting to be held at ROCHESTER
APRIL 8-9-10

Headquarters at the HOTEL SENECA

All those interested in the mechanical branches of the industry are urged to be present. Reservations can be had upon immediate application.

rewarded by the smile of a pretty girl who is a passenger, and later by her hand in marriage. Her brother arrives in the Western town and the town cut-up sees the brother greeting his sister with a kiss and reports to the townspeople that Billy's wife is untrue to him. Billy is off on a trip with the coach. A cowboy is dispatched to fetch him back. He sees the strange man holding his wife in tight embrace, and resorts to a saloon, where he purposely cheats in poker that someone might shoot him. He refuses the aid of a doctor until it is learned that the stranger is his wife's brother. Then the doctor is called, Billy's wound is healed and all ends happily.

"Broncho Billy's Close Call" is of typical Broncho Billy type and G. M. Anderson presents the Western character in the same adventurous style as of yore. Marguerite Clayton is in chief support and Vic Potel is seen in one of the boob parts to good advantage.

"Wild Youth"

(Paramount-Blackton—Five Reels)

Reviewed by Peter Milne

J. STUART BLACKTON again writes "presents" after his name in connection with "Wild Youth," a feature adapted from Sir Gilbert Parker's novel. Mr. Blackton offers a fine picture retaining all the merits of the original work and presenting the story with intensity and force. Beulah Marie Dix's adaptation is in keeping with her fine work done in Lasky pictures, and George Melford, one of the same company's best directors, has handled the scenes with rare judgment and has been successful in turning out a dramatically strong picture. Mr. Parker's theme lends itself to the screen as if it had been written for it. The tragedy of the marriage of Louise, a sweet, young girl, to Mazarine, a man fully old enough to be her grandfather, and her love story with Guise offers plenty of situations of intense character. The story works to a strong climax relating the cruelties imposed upon Louise by Mazarine, her honorable love for Guise, the violent death of her husband, the accusation of Guise and his subsequent exoneration, when the real murderer confesses. All through these various crises the interest is held firmly.

Much credit should also go to the well chosen cast. Louise Huff as Louise gives a performance full of sympathetic appeal and handles her many big opportunities with a skill that results in a very human character. Theodore Roberts as the wicked old Mazarine carries the role to a nicety of perfection. Jack Mulhall as Guise, does perhaps the best work in his career before the camera. James Cruze as the Chinese servant contributes one of those fine character studies for which he is popularly known. His makeup is no less than remarkable.

The exteriors taken in Bear Valley, California, are impressive because of their bigness and Paul Perry the photographer has included a number of realistic light effects in his generally excellent work. The various episodes of the story are punctuated by allegorical touches bringing in the relationship of the personification of Youth (always surrounded by a score of dancing maidens) with the bearing it has upon the story.

THE STORY AND PLAYERS

Louise (Louise Huff) is forced into a marriage with her ancient guardian, Joel Mazarine (Theodore Roberts) because of the fact that she owes him money and that he practically forces himself upon her. On his ranch she lives an unhappy life, pining for the freedom and companionship of youth. Orlando Guise (Jack Mulhall), a neighboring ranch owner, meets Louise and his heart goes out to her. In saving Mazarine from robbers he is wounded and taken to his home to recover. Close association with one of her own age revives Louise's spirits but the two young people suffer through the forced suppression of their emotions. When Louise gets lost in the forest and does not return until the next morning, Mazarine insults her honor and bodily mistreats her. Li Choo (James Cruze), his Chinese servant, on seeing this kills him, Guise comes on the scene and when others arrive he is accused of the murder. At the inquest he is found guilty but the confession of Li Choo removes the shadow.

GET YOUR RELEASES IN BY SATURDAY

Features---Current and Coming

Bluebird Photoplays

Mar. 4. The Girl in the Dark (Carmel Myers) 5
Mar. 11. Hungry Eyes (M. Salisbury)..... 5
Mar. 18. Brace Up (Herbert Rawlinson)... 5
Mar. 25. The Wine Girl (Carmel Myers).... 5
Apr. 1. Fast Company (Franklin Farnum).. 5
Apr. 8. The Red, Red Heart (Monroe Salisbury) 5
Apr. 15. A Rich Man's Darling (Louise Lovely) 5

Universal Productions

Feb. 11. New Love for Old (Ella Hall, Emory Johnson) 5
Feb. 18. The Flash of Fate (Herbert Rawlinson (Sally Starr)..... 5
Feb. 25. Wild Women (Harry Carey, Molly Malone) 5
Mar. 4. Nobody's Wife (Louise Lovely)... 5
Mar. 11. Beauty in Chains (Ella Hall).....5 D
Mar. 18. Thieves' Gold (Harry Carey, Molly Malone)..... 5
Mar. 25. The Girl Who Wouldn't Quit (Louise Lovely) 5
Apr. 1. The Magic Eye (Little Zoe Rae)... 5
Apr. 8. The Risky Road (Special Attraction) (Dorothy Phillips)..... 5

Famous Players-Lasky Corp.

(Successors to Paramount Pictures Corp.)

PARAMOUNT PICTURES

Mar. 4. Eve's Daughter. (Billie Burke).....
Mar. 4. Huck and Tom (Jack Pickford).....
Mar. 11. The Family Skeleton (Charles Ray).
Mar. 11. Sunshine Nan (Ann Pennington)...
Mar. 18. Prunella (Marguerite Clark).....
Mar. 18. J. Stuart Blackton's Wild Youth....
Mar. 18. Love Me (Dorothy Dalton).....
Mar. 25. LaTosca (Pauline Frederick)..... 5
Mar. 25. "Naughty, Naughty!" (Enid Bennett) 5
Apr. 1. Honor of His House (Sessue Hayakawa) .....
Apr. 8. His Majesty, Bunker Bean (Jack Pickford) .....
Apr. 8. The House of Silence (Wallace Reid)

ARTCRAFT PICTURES

Mar. 11. Amarilly of Clothes-Line Alley (Mary Pickford) .....
Mar. 25. De Mille's "The Whispering Chorus" .....
Mar. 31. Maeterlinck's "The Blue Bird"....
Apr. 1. Tiger Man (Wm. S. Hart).....
Apr. 8. The Lie (Elsie Ferguson).....
Apr. 22. Mr. Fix-It (Doug Fairbanks).....

Fox Film Corporation

(Special Features)

Feb. 10. Jack Spurlock — Prodigal (George Walsh) 5
Feb. 17. The Moral Law (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Feb. 24. Six-Shooter Andy (Tom Mix)..... 5
Mar. 3. The Girl with the Champagne Eyes (Jewel Carmen)..... 5
Mar. 10. The Debt of Honor (Peggy Hyland) 5
Mar. 17. The Devil's Wheel (Gladys Brockwell) 5
Mar. 24. A Daughter of France (Virginia Pearson) 5
Mar. 31. The Kid Is Clever (George Walsh). 5
Apr. 7. A Camouflage Kiss (June Caprice). 5

Fox Standard Pictures

Jan. 20. Cheating the Public..... 7
Feb. 3. The Forbidden Path (Theda Bara).. 6
Feb. 10. Les Miserables (Wm. Farnum)..... 9
Feb. 24. American Buds (Jane and Katherine Lee) 7
Mar. 17. Woman and the Law..... 7

Goldwyn Features Corp.

Feb. 10. Our Little Wife (Madge Kennedy). 6
Feb. 24. The Beloved Traitor (Mae Marsh). 6
Mar. 10. The Floor Below (Mabel Normand). 6
Mar. 24. The Splendid Sinner (Mary Garden) 6
Apr. 7. The Danger Game (Madge Kennedy) 6

GOLDWYN SPECIALS

The Manx-Man..... 7
For the Freedom of the World..... 7

W. W. Hodkinson Corporation

(Paralta Plays)

Jan. 1. Madam Who? (Bessie Barriscale).. 7
Jan. 15. His Robe of Honor (Henry B. Walthall)..... 7
Feb. 15. The Turn of a Card (J. Warren Kerrigan) 7
Mar. 1. Within the Cup (Bessie Barriscale). 7
Mar. 15. Humdrum Brown (Henry B. Walthall) 6

Jewel Productions, Inc.

Sept. — Come Through (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Pay Me (Drama)..... —
Sept. — Sirens of the Sea (Drama)..... —
Oct. — Man Without a Country (Patriotic). —
Oct. — The Corespondent (Drama)..... —
Nov. — The Price of a Good Time (Drama).. —
Dec. — The Grand Passion (Drama)..... —
Dec. — K (Drama)..... —

George Kleine System

(PERFECTION PICTURES)

Uneasy Money (Essanay)..... 6
Brown of Harvard (Selig)..... 6
I, Mary MacLane (Essanay)..... 7
The Unbeliever (Edison)..... 7
Ruggles of Red Gap (Essanay)..... 7

Metro Pictures Corporation

Mar. 4. The Shell Game (Emmy Wehlen) Metro 5
Mar. 11. The Brass Check (Francis X. Bushman, Beverly Bayne)..... 5
Mar. 18. The Claim (Edith Storey) Metro Rolfe 5
Mar. 25. Breakers Ahead (Viola Dana), Metro-Rolfe 5
Apr. 1. The Landloper (Harold Lockwood) Metro-Yorke 5
Apr. 8. Social Hypocrites (May Allison)... 5
Apr. 15. With Neatness and Dispatch (Bushman and Bayne)..... 5

(METRO SPECIALS)

Blue Jeans (Voila Dana), Metro-Rolfe..... 7
The Legion of Death (Edith Storey), Metro-Rolfe 7
Revelation (Nazimova), Metro..... 7
The Slacker (Emily Stevens)..... 7
Draft 258 (Mabel Taliaferro)..... 7

Mutual Film Corporation

Feb. 11. Jilted Janet (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Feb. 18. My Wife (Ann Murdock) Frohman 5
Feb. 25. The Midnight Trail (Wm. Russell) American 5
Mar. 4. Powers That Prey (Mary Miles Minter) American..... 5
Mar. 11. Ann's Finish (Margarita Fischer) American 5
Mar. 18. The Girl and the Judge (Olive Tell), Frohman 5

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Feb. 10. Loaded Dice (Frank Keenan, Florence Hillings, Guy Coombs), Pathe 5
Feb. 17. The Inner Voice (I. I. Mozukin), Russian Art 5
Feb. 24. The Naulahka (Antonio Moreno, Helene Chadwick, Doraldina, Mary Aldin, Warner Oland) Astra..... 6
Mar. 3. Daddy's Girl (Baby Marie Osborne) Diando 5
Mar.10. The Great Adventure (Bessie Love, Donald Hall, Flora Finch, Chester Barnett, Florence Short)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Beggar Woman (Mme. N. A. Lesienko, I. I. Mozukin)..... 5
Mar. 24. The Hillcrest Mystery (Irene Castle, Ralph Kellard, Wyndham Standing, J. H. Gilmour) Astra..... 5
Mar. 31. Mrs. Slacker (Gladys Hulette, Creighton Hale) Astra..... 5

Petrova Picture Company

Dec. 23. Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Light Within (Mme. Petrova). 5
Feb. 1. The Life Mask (Mme. Petrova).... 5

Select Pictures

Nov. — Her Silent Sacrifice (Alice Brady).. 5
Nov. — Secret of the Storm Country (Norma Talmadge) 5
Dec. — Shirley Kake (Clara Kimball Young). 5
Dec. — The Honeymoon (Constance Talmadge). 5
Jan. — Woman and Wife (Alice Brady)..... 5
Jan. — Ghosts of Yesterday (Norma Talmadge) 6
Jan. — The Marionettes (Clara Kimball Young) 5
Jan. — The Studio Girl (Constance Talmadge) 5
Mar. —. By Right of Purchase..... 6
Mar. —. The Shuttle 5
Mar. —. The House of Glass..... 5
Mar. —. The Knife 5

SPECIAL RELEASES

Over There (Chas. Richman, Anna Q. Nilsson) 6
The Lone Wolf (Bert Lytell, Hazel Dawn)... 5
The Barrier (Rex Beach Production)..... 7
The Wild Girl (Eva Tanguay)..... 5

Triangle Distributing Corporation

Mar. 3. Heiress for a Day (Olive Thomas).. 5
Mar. 3. Shoes That Danced (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 10. The Hard Rock Breed (Margery Wilson) 5
Mar. 10. The Sea Panther (Wm. Desmond).. 5
Mar. 17. Faith Endurin' (Roy Stewart)..... 5
Mar. 17. The Answer (Alma Rubens)..... 7
Mar. 24. Nancy Comes Home (Myrtle Lind). 5
Mar. 24. Innocent's Progress (Pauline Starke) 5
Mar. 31. Unfaithful (D. Dalton) 2 reels, and The Marriage Bubble (Wm. Desmond), (Split Feature)..... 3
Mar. 31. Another Foolish Virgin (Margery Wilson) 5
Apr. 7. The Love Brokers (Alma Rubens).. 5
Apr. 7. The Boss of the Lazy "Y" (Roy Stewart) 5
Apr. 14. The Law of the Great Northwest (Margery Wilson)..... 5
Apr. 14. Who Killed Walton? (J. Barney Sherry) 5

Vitagraph V-L-S-E.

Mar. 4. The Song of the Soul (Alice Joyce, Walter McGrail) 5
Mar. 11. The Desired Women (Harry Morey, Florence Deshon) 5
Mar. 18. An American Live Wire (Earle Williams, Grace Darmond)..... 5
Mar. 25 The Home Trail (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman) 5
Apr. 1. Little Miss No-Account (Gladys Leslie 5
Apr. 8. The Business of Life (Alice Joyce).. 5
Apr. 15. The Girl from Beyond (Nell Shipman, Alfred Whitman)..... 5

World Pictures

Mar. 4. Spurs of Sybil (Alice Brady)..... 5
Mar. 11. The Wasp (Kitty Gordon)..... 5
Mar. 18. Wanted, A Mother (Madge Evans).. 5
Mar. 25. The Way Out (Carlyle Blackwell, June Elvidge) 5
Apr. 1. The Cross Bearer (Montagu Love).. 5
Apr. 8. The Witch Woman (Ethel Clayton). 5
Apr. 15. Devil's Dice (Kitty Gordon 5

Releases in the Independent Field

For Manufacturers' Addresses, Names and Addresses of Buyers handling films in any territory, or any other additional information write—State Rights Department, Motion Picture News

A. Kay Co.

Twenty Thousand Feats Under the Sea....
Golden Spoon Mary.....1 C
Some Barrier .....1 C
His Trial .....1 C
(Terry Human Interest Reels)
No. 1. Character as Revealed in the Face...Ed.
No. 2. Character as Revealed in the Eyes...1d.

American News Weekly

One reel each week exclusively on Army and Navy activities.

American Standard M. P. Corp.

May 5. Jones' Jonah Day (Sunshine), C..1 reel
May 7. When Justice Errs, D.....5 reels
May 12. (Educational Subject) .....1 reel
May 14. The Daughter of Darkness, Episode No. 1, D.....2 reels
May 19. Ghosts (Sunshine), C.....1 reel
Sept. 17. My Country First.....6 parts
Oct. 7. The Mystery of the Boule.....5 parts
Oct. 15. Blackmailer .....5 parts

Argosy Films, Inc.

The Celebrated Stielow Case.....6 reels
Where D'ye Get That Stuff.....5 reels
Absinthe (King Baggott), Universal Reissue .....5 reels

Arrow Film Corporation

The Deemster.
Eyes of the World.
Ramona.
Weavers of Life.
Souls Redeemed.
Persuasive Peggy.
Today.
The Mad Lover.
The Woman's Law.
Right Off the Bat.

Bluebird Extraordinary

The Eagle's Wings (Herbert Rawlinson).
Hell Morgan's Girl (Dorothy Phillips).
Mother o' Mine (Rupert Julian, Ruth Clifford, Ruby La Fayette).

Brenon Productions

Lone Wolf .....7 parts
Fall of the Romanoffs .....8 parts
Empty Pockets .....7 parts

Jules Burnstein

Shame .....7 parts

Cardinal Film Corporation

Joan the Woman (Geraldine Farrar).....11 reels

Century Comedies

(FEATURING ALICE HOWELL)

Balloonatics .....2 reels
Automaniacs .....2 reels
Neptune's Naughty Daughter.....2 reels

BENJAMIN CHAPIN'S PARAMOUNT SERIES

The Son of Democracy..

Christie Film Company

Honeymooners.
Out for the Coin.
Her Awful Predicament.
Crazy by Proxy.
Green Eyes and Bullets.
Betty's Big Idea.
Local Color.
Love and Locksmiths.
Hearts and Clubs.
Almost a Bigamist.
More Haste Less Speed.
Betty Wakes Up.
Stepping Out.
Almost Divorced.
Help! Help! Police!
Their Seaside Tangle.
One Good Turn.
Thirty Days.
Nearly a Papa.
Cupid's Camouflage.
Five to Five.
Many a Slip.
The Night of His Life.
Mum's the Word.
Circumstantial Evidence.
In the Dark.
Whose Wife?
The House that Jack Built.

Cinema Distributing Corp.

The 13th Labor of Hercules.

Clune Productions

Ramona .....8 reels
Eyes of the World.....9 reels

Commonwealth Pictures Corp.

Charlotte, in The Frozen Warning.

Corona Cinema Company

The Curse of Eve (Enid Markey).....7 reels

Coronet Film Corporation

LIVING STUDIES IN NATURAL HISTORY
Animal World, No. 1 Issue.
Animal World, No. 2 Issue.
Birdland Studies.
Horticultural Phenomena.

Cosmofotofilm Company

Incomparable Mistress Bellairs.....4 reels
Liberty Hall .....4 reels
The Black Spot.....4 reels
Victoria Cross .....4 reels
His Vindication .....5 reels
I Believe .....7 reels

Dixie Films

Tempest and Sunshine (Evelyn Greely)..5 reels
Just a Song at Twilight.....5 reels

Ebony Film Corporation

A Natural Born Shooter.....1 reel
Dat Blackhand Waitah Man.....1 reel
Shine Johnson and the Rabbit's Foot.....1 reel

E. I. S. Motion Picture Corp.

Trooper 44 .....5 reels

Elmont Feature Film Co.

People vs. John Doe.....6 reels
God's Law .....6 reels

Emerald Motion Picture Co.

The Slacker's Heart.....5 reels

Export and Import Film Co.

Robespierre .....— reels
Ivan the Terrible.....— reels

Fairmount Film Corporation

Hate .....7 reels

Flora Finch Film Co.

War Prides .....2 reels

First National Exhibitors' Circuit, Inc.

On Trial.
Charles Chaplin.
Daughter of Destiny (Mme. Petrova).
Herbert Brenon's "Empty Pockets."
The Sign Invisible (Big Mitch Lewis).
The Fall of the Romanoffs.
Tarzan of the Apes.

THE FORDART FILMS, INC.

Berlin via America.

FOURSQUARE PICTURES

The Eagle's Eye (King Baggot and Marguerite Snow).

Fort Pitt Corporation

The Italian Battlefront.

Fox Film Corp.

(Standard Pictures)

The Spy.
The Honor System.
Jack and the Beanstalk.
The Conqueror.
Camille.
Oct. 18. Aladdin and the Wonderful Lamp.
Nov. 18. The Babes in the Wood.

Frieder Film Corporation

The Birds' Christmas Carol (Mary Louise).5 reels
A Bit O' Heaven (Mary Louise).....5 reels

Friedman Enterprises

A Mormon Maid (Mae Murray).....6 reels

Frohman Amusement Corp.

The Witching Hour (C. Aubrey Smith, Jack Sherrill, Helen Arnold, Marie Shotwell and Robert Conness.....6 reels
Conquest of Canaan.....5 reels
God's Man .....9 reels

General Enterprises, Inc.

Mother (Elizabeth Risdon, McClure)....6 parts
The Warrior (Maciste) (McClure).....7 parts
The Liar (Jane Gail, Stanley Walpole)...6 parts

Gold Medal Photoplays

The Web of Life (Hilda Nord, James Cruze, George Spencer).....5 reels

Golden Features

A Bit of Life.....1 reel

Grand Feature Film Company

Rex Beach on the Spanish Main.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Pirate Haunts.....5 reels
Rex Beach in Footsteps of Capt. Kidd....5 reels

Graphic Features

The Woman and the Beast.....5 reels

D. W. Griffith

Intolerance .....9 reels

Hanover Film Company

Maciste .....— reels
How Uncle Sam Prepares.....4 reels

William S. Hart

The Cold Deck .....5 D
The Two Gun Man.....5 D

Hawk Film Corporation

Monster of Fate.....— reels

Herald Film Corporation

Around the World in 80 Days.....6 reels

Hiller & Wilk, Inc.

The Battle of Gettysburg.....— reels
The Wrath of the Gods (Sessue Hayakawa).5 reels

Historic Features

Christus .....8 reels

M. H. Hoffman, Inc.

One Hour (Zeena Keefe and Alan Hale).6 reels
The Silent Witness (Gertrude McCoy)...6 reels
A Trip Through China (Brodsky's Art Pictures) .....8 reels
Her Fighting Chance (Jane Grey).....6 reels
Should She Obey? (Alice Wilson, Gene Genung and Norbert Myles).....6 reels
Whither Thou Goest (Rhea Mitchell and Orrin Johnson) .....5 reels
The Great White Trail (Doris Kenyon)..6 reels

Iliodor Picture Corporation

The Fall of the Romanoffs (Iliodor, Nance O'Neil, Ekaterina Galanta, Alfred Hickman and Conway Tearle).....— reels

Inter Ocean Film Corp.

Enlighten Thy Daughter.....— reels

Ivan Feature Productions

One Law for Both (Rita Jolivet, Vincent Serrano, Leah Baird, Pedro De Cordoba, James Morrison).....7 reels
Babbling Tongues (Grace Valentine, James Morrison, Arthur Donaldson).....7 reels
Married in Name Only (Gretchen Hartman, Milton Sills, Marie Shotwell).....6 reels
Sins of Ambition (Barbara Castleton, Wilfred Lucas, Leah Baird, James Morrison) .....7 reels
Human Clay (Mollie King).....5 reels

Jester Comedies

Feb. —. The Recruit (Twede Dan).....2 parts
Mar. —. His Golden Romance (Twede Dan) .....2 parts
April —. All "Fur" Her (Twede Dan)...2 parts
May —. The Wrong Flat (Twede Dan)..2 parts

Juvenile Film Corporation

World War in Kidland.....1 reel
A Chip Off the Old Block.....1 reel
Chip's Elopement .....1 reel
Chip's Backyard Barn-Stormers.....2 reels
Chip's Rivals .....1 reel
For Sale, a Daddy.....1 reel
Chip's Carmen .....2 reels

Klotz and Streimer

Whither Thou Goest.....5 reels
The Secret Treaty.....5 reels

(Continued on page 1932)

Short Subjects Current and Coming

Educational Film Corp. of Amer.

SCENICS—EDUCATIONAL

Oct. 24. From Studio to Screen.
Oct. 31. A Trip Through Japan, No. 1.
Nov. 7. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 1.
Nov. 14. A Flying Trip Through the Hawaiian Islands, No. 2.
Nov. 21. Me and My Dog.
Nov. 28. The Chain Gang.
Dec. 5. The Land of Enchantment (Yosemite Valley).
Dec. 12. Fishing for Fish.
Dec. 19. A Trip Through Japan, No. 2.
Dec. 26. Beside the Glimmer Glass.

DITMARS "LIVING BOOK OF NATURE"

Nov. 19. The Animals of Australia.
Nov. 26. The Smaller Monkeys.
Dec. 3. Enemies of the Garden.
Dec. 10. Our Vanishing Game.
Dec. 17. Nature's Weavers.
Dec. 24. Nature's Songsters.
Dec. 31. The Animals in Midsummer.

Fox Sunshine Comedies

Dec. 23. Damaged—No Goods .....2 C
Jan. 6. Shadows of Her Pest.....2 C
Jan. 20. Son of a Gun.....2 C
Feb. 3. Hungry Lions in a Hospital.....2 C
Feb. 17. Are Married Policemen Safe?.....2 C

General Film Company

BROADWAY STAR FEATURES
(O. HENRY STORIES)

The Trimmed Lamp (Mildred Manning, Alice Terry) .....2 C-D
Schools and Schools (Jean Paige, Chas. Hutchison) .....2 D
A Madison Square Arabian Night (Duncan McRae, Patsy De Forrest).....2 D
The Rathskeller and the Rose (Adele De Garde, Evart Overton).....2 D
By Injunction (Chet Ryan, W. L. Rodgers, Patricia Palmer).....2 D
The Song and the Sergeant (Alice Terry, Stanley Dunn, Templar Saxe).....2 D

ESSANAY
GEORGE ADE FABLES

The Fable of the Toilsome Ascent and the Shining Table Land.....2 C
The Fable of the Back Trackers from the Hot Sidewalks.....2 C

ESSANAY COMEDIES (1 reel)

The Soup and the Fish Ball.....1 C
A Tough Knight.....1 C
Our Little Nell.....1 C
Check Your Hat, Sir.....1 C
Wild Algy of Piccadilly.....1 C
All Stuck Up.....1 C
The Lie That Failed.....1 C
The Jazbo Sheriff.....1 C

SNAKEVILLE COMEDIES
(One reel each)

The Snakeville Fire Brigade.
The Snakeville Sleuth.
Slippery Sam and the Fortune Teller.
Slippery Sam and the Green-Eyed Monster.
When Macbeth Came to Snakeville.

ESSANAY SCENICS

Water Powers of Western Canada.....1 Sc.
Through Canada from Coast to Coast.....1 Sc.
How Canada and the Farmer Co-operate in Grain Raising .....1 Sc.
Agricultural Opportunities in Western Canada .....1 Sc.
Water Powers of Eastern Canada.....1 Sc.
A Romance of Rails and Power.....1 Sc.
Grand Canyon of Arizona and Canyon de Chelley .....1 Sc.

CHAPLIN COMEDIES

By the Sea.....1 C
In the Park.....1 C
Work .....2 C
A Woman .....2 C
The Tramp .....2 C
His New Job.....2 C

GRANT, POLICE REPORTER SERIES

The Mystery of Room 422.....1 D
A Deal in Bonds.....1 D
The Sign of the Scarf.....1 D
The Man with the Limp.....1 D

A DAUGHTER OF DARING SERIES

A Race to the Drawbridge.....1 D
The Munitions Plot.....1 D
The Detective's Danger.....1 D
The Railroad Smugglers.....1 D
The Deserted Engine.....1 D

JAXON FILM CORP.

"A DAUGHTER OF UNCLE SAM"
SERIAL (Jane Vance, Wm. Sorelle) 12 Episodes .....1 D

JAXON COMEDIES

What Will Happen Next?.....1 C
Which Was Lucky?.....1 C
The Unofficial Maneuver.....1 C
What Occurred on the Beach.....1 C
An All-Fools' Day Affair.....1 C
Beating Him to It.....1 C
Forced Into Matrimony.....1 C

JUDGE BROWN STORIES

Marrying Off Dad.....2 C-D
The Preacher's Son.....2 C-D
Thief or Angel.....2 C-D
The Accusing Toe.....2 C-D
Black and White.....2 C-D
The Rebellion.....2 C-D
A Boy Built City.....2 C-D
I'm a Man.....2 C-D

SPARKLE COMEDIES

On the Love Line.....1 C
The Detective .....1 C
Smashing the Plot.....1 C
After the Matinee.....1 C
Double Cross .....1 C
The Best of a Bad Bargain.....1 C

THREE C COMEDIES

Stealing a Sweetheart (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
A Hash House Romance (Lou Marks, Pearl Shepard, Oom Paul).....1 C
The Hod Carrier's Million (Claude Cooper, Virginia Tracy Clark, Kenneth Clarendon) .....1 C

HANOVER FILM COMPANY

Camille (Helen Hesperia).....6 D
The Marvelous Maciste.....6 D

PHYSICAL CULTURE PHOTO PLAYS CO.

Physical Culture Magazine (Issued Monthly) .....1 Edc.

PIEDMONT PICTURES CORPORATION
(SELBURN COMEDIES)

Hubby's Holiday.....2 C
Too Much Elephant.....1 C
Wedding Bells and Lunatics.....1 C
His College Proxy.....1 C

BLUE RIDGE DRAMAS
(Ned Finley)

The Return of O'Garry.....2 D
Mountain Law.....2 D
The Raiders of Sunset Gap.....2 D

King Bee Comedies

Jan. 1. The Slave .....2 reels
Jan. 15. The Stranger .....2 reels
Feb. 1. His Day Out.....2 reels
Feb. 15. The Rogue .....2 reels

SELIG-HOYT COMEDIES

Aug. 6. A Dog in the Manger.....2 C
Aug. 20. A Trip to Chinatown.....2 C
Sept. 3. A Midnight Bell.....2 C
Sept. 17. A Contented Woman.....2 C

George Kleine System

MONTGOMERY FLAGG'S COMEDIES
"GIRLS YOU KNOW"

Jan. 2. The Screen Fan.....2 C
Jan. 16. The Bride .....2 C
Jan. 30. The Superstitious Girl.....2 C
Feb. 13. The Matinee Girl.....2 C
Feb. 27. The Artist's Model.....2 C
Mar. 13. The Spoiled Girl.....2 C

Metro Pictures Corporation

METRO-DREW COMEDIES

Mar. 4. Before and After Taking.....1 C
Mar. 11. His Strength of Mind.....1 C
Mar. 18. Special Today.....1 C
Mar. 25. When a Man's Married.....1 C
Apr. 1. Gas Logic.....1 C
Apr. 8. A Youthful Affair.....1 C

Mutual Film Corporation

STRAND (BILLIE RHODES)

Feb. 5. Her Friend Brown.....1 reel
Feb. 12. Three Times and Out.....1 reel
Feb. 19. Miss Cinderella .....1 reel
Feb. 26. Up in the Air.....1 reel
Mar. 5. Waltzing Around .....1 reel
Mar. 12. Finishing Mary .....1 reel
Mar. 19. His Quaker Girl.....1 reel
Mar. 26. Up She Goes.....1 reel

SCREEN TELEGRAM
Issued Sunday and Wednesday of Each Weed

MUTUAL-CHAPLINS

Oct. 29. The Adventurer.....2 C

Paramount Pictures Corporation

KLEVER KOMEDIES (Victor Moore).

Jan. 14. Meatless Days and Sleepless Nights.1 C
Jan. 20. Out West .....2 reels
Jan. 28. He Got His.....1 C
Feb. 3. Watch Your Neighbor.....2 C
Feb. 10. Sheriff Nell's Tussle.....2 C

BLACK DIAMOND COMEDIES

Oct. 15. Nearly a Baker.....1 C
Nov. 12. A Society Scrimmage.....1 C

ARBUCKLE COMEDIES

Dec. 10. A Country Hero.....1 C
Dec. 20. Out West .....2 C

BURTON HOLMES TRAVEL PICTURES

Jan. 7. Sydney, the Antipodean Metropolis.1 reel
Jan. 14. A Trip to the Jenolan Caves of Australia .....1 reel
Jan. 21. Melbourne, the Magnificent.....1 reel
Jan. 28. 'Round About Melbourne.....1 reel
Feb. 4. Adelaide, Capital of South Australia .....1 reel

WHO IS NUMBER ONE? (Serial)

Jan. 7. Episode 11. The Rail Raiders.....2 D
Jan. 14. Episode 12. The Show Down.....2 D
Jan. 21 Episode 13. Cornered .....2 D
Jan. 28. Episode 14. No Surrender .....2 D
Feb. 4. Episode 15. The Round-Up.....2 D

MACK SENNETT COMEDIES

Jan. 13. The Kitchen Lady.....2 C
Jan. 27. His Hidden Purpose.....2 C

Pathe Exchange, Inc.

Sunday, March 24, 1918

Let's Go (Harold Lloyd, Harry Pollard, Bebe Daniels), Rolin .....1 C
"Pests of Our Fruit Trees (Col.), Educ. and Picturesque France, Arcachon, Trav. Split Reel

Wednesday, March 27, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 26.....1 top

Saturday, March 30, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News, No. 27.....1 top

Sunday, March 31, 1918

On the Jump (Harold Lloyd, Bebe Daniels, Harry Pollard), Rolin.....1 C
"The Valley of the Dordogne, France." (Col.), Trav., and "The Horse in Action," Part 2 (Col.), Educ.....Split reel

Wednesday, April 3, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News No. 28.....1 top

Saturday, April 6, 1918

Hearst-Pathe News No. 29.....1 top

SERIALS
"The House of Hate" (Astra)
Two reels each
(Pearl White, Antonio Moreno, Paul Clerget, John Webb Dillion, Peggy Shaner)

Mar. 10. First Episode, The Hooded Terror.
Mar. 17. Second Episode, The Tiger's Eye.
Mar. 24. Third Episode, A Woman's Perfidy.
Mar. 31. Fourth Episode, The Man from Java.

Triangle Distributing Corp.

TRIANGLE COMEDIES

Mar. 3. A Discord in A Flat.....1 C
Mar. 3. His Hidden Shame.....1 C
Mar. 10. Wives and Worries.....1 C
Mar. 10. She Didn't Do It.....1 C
Mar. 17. A Social Shock Absorber.....1 C
Mar. 17. Caught with the Goods.....1 C
Mar. 24. Fork Over.....1 C
Mar. 24. A Janitor's Fall.....1 C
Mar. 31. A Good Elk.....1 C
Mar. 31. Her Bohemian Party.....1 C

KEYSTONE RELEASES

Mar. 3. A Lady Killer's Doom (Wm. Franey, Maude Wayne, Dale Fuller, Milt Sims) .....2 C
Mar. 10. Did She Do Wrong? (Harry Gribbon, Claire Anderson, Frank Bond, Dora Rogers) .....2 C
Mar. 17 Mud (Ray Griffith, Peggy Pearce, Max Asher, Henry Depp.....2 C
Mar. 24. A Safe Danger (Al Edmonds, Rae Godfrey, Sylvia Ashton, Chris Richards .....2 C
Mar. 31. A Playwright's Wrong (Wm. Franey, Dora Rogers, Milt Sims, Maude Wayne).....2 C

Universal Film Company

Monday, March 18, 1918

NESTOR—I'll Fix It (King Baggot).....1 C

Wednesday, March 20, 1918

L-KO—Cooks and Crooks (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack, Dave Morris).....2 C

Monday, March 25, 1918

NESTOR—Nothing But Nerve (Gale Henry).1 C

Wednesday, March 27, 1918

L-KO—Sherlock Ambrose (Mack Swain)....2 C

Monday, April 1, 1918

NESTOR—Pink Pajamas (Dave Morris, Gladys Tennyson).....1 C

Wednesday, April 3, 1918

L-KO—Gowns and Girls (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack, Dave Morris).....2 C

Monday, April 8, 1918
NESTOR—Hickory Hiram (Neal Burns, Stanley Laurel).....1 C
Wednesday, April 10, 1918
L-KO—Saved from a Vamp (Gale Henry, Hughie Mack).....2 C
Monday, April 15, 1918
NESTOR—The Shifty Shoplifter (Eileen Sedgwick, Milton Sims).....1 C
Wednesday, April 17, 1918
L-KO—(Title not decided).....2 C

UNIVERSAL ANIMATED WEEKLY
Mar. 4. Number 14.
Mar. 11. Number 15.
Mar. 18. Number 16.
Mar. 25. Number 17.
Apr. 3. Number 18.
Apr. 10. Number 19.

UNIVERSAL SCREEN MAGAZINE
Mar. 2. Issue Number 60.
Mar. 9. Issue Number 61.
Mar. 16. Issue Number 62.
Mar. 23. Issue Number 63.
Mar. 30. Issue Number 64.
Apr. 6. Issue Number 65.
Apr. 13. Issue Number 66.

UNIVERSAL CURRENT EVENTS
Mar. 2. Issue Number 42.
Mar. 9. Issue Number 43.
Mar. 16. Issue Number 44.
Mar. 23. Issue Number 45.
Mar. 30. Issue Number 46.
Apr. 6. Issue Number 47.
Apr. 13. Issue Number 48.

LYONS-MORAN STAR COMEDIES
Apr. 8. A Pigskin Hero.....1 reel

SERIALS
"THE MYSTERY SHIP"
Two Reels Each
(Ben Wilson, Neva Gerber)
Mar. 4. Fifteenth Episode, The House of Trickery.
Mar. 11. Sixteenth Episode, The Forced Marriage.
Mar. 18. Seventeenth Episode, The Deadly Torpedo.
Mar. 25. Eighteenth Episode, The Fight in Mid-air.

"THE BULL'S EYE
Two Reels Each
(Eddie Polo)
Mar. 4. Fifth Episode, The Swing of Death.
Mar. 11. Sixth Episode, On the Brink.
Mar. 18. Seventh Episode, Riding Wild.
Mar. 25. Eighth Episode, The Flaming Crisis.
Apr. 1. Ninth Episode, Dynamite.
Apr. 8. Tenth Episode, Coyotes of the Desert.

"THE LION'S CLAWS
Two Reels Each
(Marie Walcamp)
Apr. 1. First Episode, A Woman's Honor.
Apr. 8. Second Episode, Beasts of the Jungle.

FINLEY NATURE STUDIES
Split Reel
Mar. 4. Number 8, "The Indian Fisherman" and "The Grandeur of Switzerland."
Mar. 11. Number 9, "The Geysers of Yellowstone Park" and "Flowers of the Orient."
Mar. 18. Number 10, "Where Rolls the Oregon" and "Mosquito."
Mar. 25. Number 11, "Wild Fowl Nurseries of Southern Oregon" and "How Mr. Noodle Went to a Masque Ball."
Apr. 1. Number 12, "A Day at Yellowstone Park" and "Beautiful Devon—the Land of Romance, England."
Apr. 8. Number 13, "Sea Birds and Animals" and "The Land of Long Ago."

Vitagraph

BIG V COMEDIES
Feb. 18. Courts and Convicts.
Feb. 25. Rooms and Rumors.
Mar. 4. Jumping Jacks and Jail Birds.
Mar. 11. Meddlers and Moonshiners.
Mar. 18. Tramps and Traitors.
Mar. 25. Stripes and Stumbles.
Apr. 1. Sleuths and Slackers.
Apr. 8. Rummies and Razors.
Apr. 15. Counts and No Counts.

VITAGRAPH COMEDIES
Feb. 4. Surprising Husband.
Feb. 11. Coals for the Fire.
Feb. 18. Sweets to the Sour.
Feb. 25. Their Godson.

VENGEANCE AND THE WOMAN (Serial)
Jan. 28. The Lure of Hate (Sixth Episode).
Feb. 4. The Wolf Trap (Seventh Episode).
Feb. 11. The Mountain of Devastation (Eighth Episode).
Feb. 18. Buried Alive (Ninth Episode).
Feb. 25. The Leap for Life (Tenth Episode).
Mar. 4. The Cavern of Terror (Eleventh Episode).
Mar. 11. The Desperate Chance (Twelfth Episode).
Mar. 18. Sands of Doom (Thirteenth Episode).
Mar. 25. The Hand of Fate (Fourteenth Episode).
Apr. 1. The Reckoning (Fifteenth Episode).

Favorite Film Features

Mar. 4. An Officer and a Gentleman.....2 D
Mar. 4. Unlucky Louis .....1 C

DREW COMEDIES
Mar. 11. Their First Quarrel.
Mar. 18. A Telegraphic Tangle.
Mar. 25. His Wife Knew About It.
Apr. 1. Following the Scent.....1 reel
Apr. 8. The Home Cure.....1 C
Apr. 15. The Deceivers.

RELEASES IN THE INDEPENDENT FIELD

(Continued from page 1930)

Lincoln Motion Picture Company

The Realization of a Negro's Ambitions...2 reels
Trooper of Troop K.....3 reels

Marine Film Co.

Lorelei of the Sea.....— reels

Masterpiece Drama Productions

Who's Your Neighbor?..... —

Masterpictures

LION COMEDIES
Oct. 29. Nathan Busts Into the Movies....1 C
Nov. 5. A Village Villain.....1 C
Nov. 12. Her Fatal Resemblance.....1 C
Nov. 19. An Account of a No-Account Count.1 C
Nov. 26. Hicks and Hornets.....1 C
Dec. 3. Waves and Wimmen.....1 C
Dec. 10. Fizzled Finance .....1 C

Mayfair Film Corp.

Persuasive Peggy.....— reels

B. S. Moss M. P. Corporation

Birth Control .....6 reels
The Power of Evil.....5 reels
Boots and Saddles.....5 reels
The Girl Who Doesn't Know.....5 reels
In the Hands of the Law.....5 reels
One Hour (Sequel to "Three Weeks").. ....

Ogden Pictures Corp.

The Lust of the Ages.....— reels

Paragon Films

The Whip .....8 reels

Photoplay Magazine

Screen Supplement—One-reel releases, giving intimate interviews of all the stars. (Through independent exchanges).

Popular Picture Corporation

Corruption .....6 reels

Public Rights Film Corporation

The Public Be Damned (Charles Richman and Mary Fuller).....5 reels

Renowned Pictures Corporation

The Public Defender.....6 reels
Naked Hands .....5 reels
Mother Love and the Law.....7 reels
In Treason's Grasp.....5 reels
Should She Obey?.....7 reels

Selig Special

Beware of Strangers.....7 reels
The Ne'er-Do-Well.....8 reels
The Garden of Allah (Selig).....10 reels
Who Shall Take My Life?.....— reels

Frank J. Seng

Parentage .....7 reels

Sherman Eliot, Inc.

The Crisis .....10 reels

Sherman Pictures Corporation

I Believe .....7 reels
The Land of the Rising Sun

State Rights Distributors, Inc.

Carmen of the Klondyke (Clara Williams).

Julius Steger

Redemption .....6 reels

Sterling Pictures Corporation

The Mystic Hour (Alma Hanlon feature).6 parts
When You and I Were Young (Alma Hanlon feature) .....5 parts
The Golden God (Alma Hanlon feature)..5 parts
She Was a Dangerous Girl (Cartoon comedy) .....500 ft.
Zippy the Fireman (Cartoon comedy)....500 ft.
Zippy in a Sanatorium (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Zippy Buys a Pet Pup (Cartoon comedy).500 ft.
Slick and Tricky (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Doctor Bunny's Zoo (Cartoon comedy)...500 ft.
The Old Forty-Niner (Cartoon comedy)..500 ft
Mr. Coon (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Mose Is Cured (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Insurance (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
Zippy's Pets (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.
The Unknown (Cartoon comedy).....500 ft.

Moe Streimer

A Daughter of the Don.....10 reels

Submarine Film Corporation

The Submarine Eye.....7 reels

W. H. Productions Co.

William S. Hart as Two Gun Man in "The Bargain" .....6 reels
William S. Hart in "The Bandit and the Preacher" .....5 reels
William S. Hart in "The Hell Hound of Alaska" .....5 reels
Also Series of two-reel W. H. Hart productions.

WESTERN IMPORT CO.
Mickey (Mabel Normand).

Wholesome Films Corporation

The Penny Philanthropist (Peggy O'Neil and Ralph Morgan), D..... 5
Cinderella and the Magic Slipper (Special Children's Cast), Juv..... 4
His Awful Downfall (Rex Adams), 1,000 feet, C.
Little Red Riding Hood (Juvenile), 4,000 feet.

World Pictures

Over Here .....5 reels

EXHIBITORS' PERSONALS

ALABAMA

The Majestic theatre, at Montgomery, was reopened recently with pictures and musical comedy, after an enforced shut down due to quarantine at the army camp.

CONNECTICUT

Joseph Hayes, who recently assumed the management of the motion picture theatre at Broad Brook, has thoroughly renovated and improved the house and is doing capacity business.

GEORGIA

The Rialto theatre, of Atlanta, one of the most up-to-date motion picture theatres in the South, had been temporarily closed for the last sixty days for alterations and improvements. This theatre opened with a Paramount production, "The Song of Songs," featuring Elsie Ferguson, and is enjoying an excellent run. Fox's "Cleopatra" is booked for the week of the 11th, and Jake Wells, the manager, states that nothing but special pictures and first-run Paramount-Artcraft features will be shown.

MISSOURI

The H. J. Hirsch Real Estate Company reports the sale of the Chippewa theatre, at Broadway and Chippewa street, St. Louis, for a client to Clyde Carson for $35,000. Carson will continue to operate the theatre with motion pictures during the summer season. The theatre will be under the management of Joseph J. Walsh. Extensive alterations will be made to make the house one of the most popular in the city.

NEBRASKA

Harry Plattner has purchased the Ideal theatre at West Point.

I. O. Florence and H. Bartlett are now in control of the Princess theatre at Thompson.

C. W. Martin, manager of the Temple theatre at McCook has disposed of his interests in the Strand theatre at Hastings.

NEW JERSEY

M. M. Kridel, formerly manager of Fox's Terminal theatre, Newark, has taken over the lease of the Goodwin theatre at 863 Broad street, and has already assumed its active management.

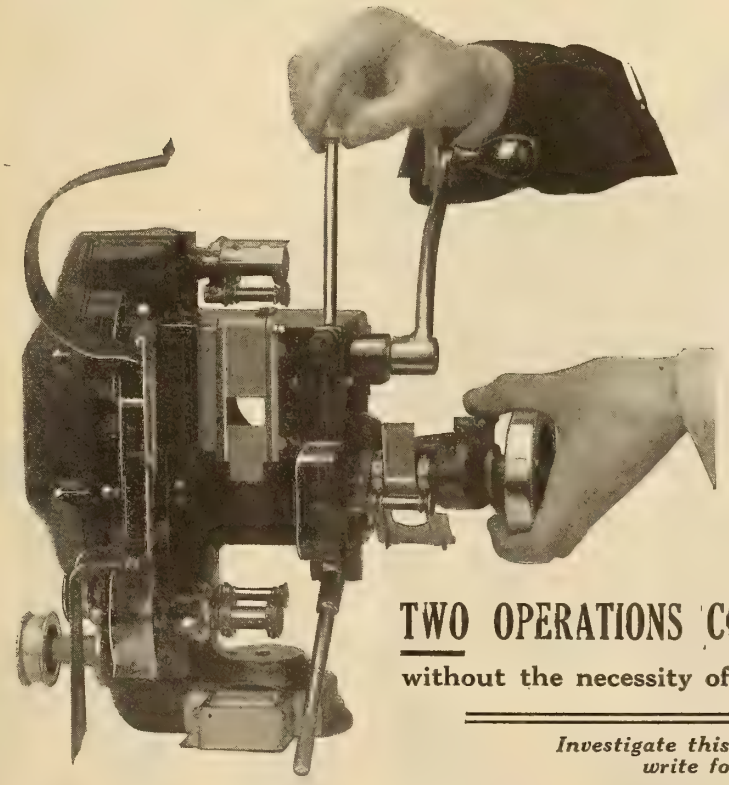
OHIO

The Milo theatre, Miles avenue and East 100th street, Cleveland, has recently been sold by Flahaven and Palmer to the Milo Theatre Company, which organization is headed by S. W. Manheim, Bert Todd and J. V. Wolcott. The Milo Theatre Company now owns and operates three motion picture theatres in this city. The Iris, 1885 West Twenty-fifth street; the Princess, 229 Euclid avenue, and the Milo.

E. A. Stephens has purchased the Weber theatre at Dover.

Steve Chakiris has purchased the Bijou theatre at Middletown, and is making extensive improvements.

PENNSYLVANIA



The Colonial theatre in Farrell has been purchased by Max and Herman Stahl, proprietors of the Lyric theatre.

Frank A. Gould, owner and manager of the Rex theatre, has taken over the Majestic, on Oley street near Front street, Reading. Mr. Gould erected the Rex seven years ago, and has successfully conducted it ever since. He will run the two houses. A program of high-class photoplays will be exhibited.

Accessory News

— SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS —

SPEAKING OF ACCESSIBILITY ON THE MOTIOGRAPH DE LUXE

There Are

NO GEARS TO REMOVE

NO MOTOR ATTACHMENT TO TAKE OFF

and

NO SHUTTER RESETTING

when

the framing device is removed or replaced

TWO OPERATIONS COMPLETE THIS CHANGE

without the necessity of rebuilding the mechanism

Investigate this new projector and write for literature

ENTERPRISE OPTICAL MFG. CO., Inc.

564-72 West Randolph Street Chicago, Ill.

Better Projection at Less Cost

Nearly every means of improving your projection means added cost. But here is a chance to better the screen illumination and save cost. NATIONAL MAZDA lamps give a steady, flickerless light. They make the illumination uniform from edge to edge of the screen. They do away with phantoms and shadows.

Besides all that, they make conditions in the booth more satisfactory. Once focused, NATIONAL MAZDA lamps require no further attention. They need no adjustments. They leave the operator "nothing to watch but the film." They lower the temperature and better the air in the booth. They prevent the heat-breakage of lenses. When NATIONAL MAZDAS are used, there are no more broken carbon jaws to contend with. Repair expense is reduced. And the consumption of current is cut two-thirds.

With all these advantages and all these savings, NATIONAL MAZDA lamps ought to interest every exhibitor. To get full information ask your supply house—or Nela Specialties Division, National Lamp Works of General Electric Co., 111 Nela Park, Cleveland, Ohio.

NATIONAL MAZDA

THE WAY TO BETTER LIGHT

Accessory News

SECTION OF MOTION PICTURE NEWS

Devoted to the technical branches of the motion picture industry, containing records of the latest accomplishments in the mechanical and scientific field; projection helps, inventions and suggestions; camera devices analyzed and commented upon; musical cue sheets for important feature pictures; improvements and innovations in the building and furnishing field.

No charge is made in these departments for answering questions of any nature. Correspondence is invited.

E. Kendall Gillett.....Editor

Alfred S. Cory.....Technical Editor

Forty Per cent Increase

I HAD an interesting talk the other day with a man well versed in the subject of theatre music. He made the statement that theatre owners and managers do not realize the importance of music as a patron builder. He showed me conclusively where a man with a small house in a good picture neighborhood could afford to put in a small organ with attachments or a one-man instrument, particularly since these instruments are handled so that they do not have to be paid for all at once, but can be had for a substantial first payment and after that regular monthly installments.

Here is an illustration in point. I went into a house last week —six hundred seats—fine exterior—attractive lobby—comfortably arranged—well ventilated—fine projection—good pictures—half filled or less, while people passed continuously outside. A large percentage of these might just as well have been turned into patrons. Why was it? Later I studied the neighborhood as well as possible—there was no seeming trouble there. As the patrons left the house after the show was over I learned at least one very important reason why double the business was not being done.

"Oh, dear, that piano will get me yet," ventured one young woman.

"Gee whiz, I wish that fellow would get a new tune," said another.

"If they don't fire that guy who beats the box I'll shoot him," remarked a young man not far behind.

And so the remarks went. They were not all directed against the music. Some praised the picture—others told how much of a rest the "movies" were to them—while others marveled at the wonders in the scenery and landscape shown in the picture, but when there were complaints they were all directed at the music.

When the owner of the house came around to where I was standing to listen with me, the remarks about the show ceased and those who passed either said good afternoon or went by in silence, but the secret of his troubles had been divulged, and after he had shut up and was preparing to go home for dinner I told him what I had heard and where I thought the answer to all his difficulties lay. His patrons would not be honest with him though he repeatedly asked for suggestions.

This case is no isolated exception to the rule. There are hundreds just like it all over the country. The trouble is that money is wasted trying everything else which is cheaper in the hope that the public will be fooled into liking the theatre—liking the show—and being so comfortable that they will turn their deaf ear to that part of the entertainment which alone takes the place of the spoken word on the legitimate stage—the music. After all this beating around the bush and spending money foolishly the owner finally either closes up or does something to his music which causes favorable comment, and brings the desired result—providing the house in other respects is up to date—music under all circumstances is not a cure-all.

The musical installation, whether it be organ or one-man instrument is playing still another role as a patron builder. In those localities where Sunday shows are prohibited exhibitors are advertising in the local papers that they are giving free Sunday musical concerts at certain definite hours. These are becoming most popular in many places, in fact in one town these entertainments have become so widely patronized that the house, which had been showing a fair profit, jumped to the point where it became a young gold mine and all due to the patrons who were first "dragged" into the "movie" house lured by a Sunday organ recital. All that is necessary is to start the picture habit and it cultivates itself.

An improvement of this kind does not mean immediate success necessarily. It takes time to have the good news noised around. Then if the public have been used to hearing your sixteen-dollar-a-week boy "bang the box" they have to be convinced beyond doubt that the improvement is there to stay and that they are not being dragged in under a false pretense. In other words, the new patrons have to have the show and the music sold to them and those who have deserted pictures must be resold, which is often harder than convincing a man for the first time.

Another important question is the man who plays the instrument. There is no use even trying the old piano player—he must be lost sight of forever. Every instrument should be sold W. P. (with player) or the theatre man is at once at a disadvantage. One company, at least, which I know of conducts a school where players are taught how to get the most out of the instrument and then are recommended to the theatre men who buy their instruments. In this case the theatre man can forget his musical troubles, except for inquiring from time to time of his patrons as to whether the new equipment is filling the bill, which can be fairly well checked up by the cash drawer.

Picture houses as a rule are today doing better than for sometime past, so that this should be the psychological moment to step in and start building patronage for the future. One theatre man in Boston recently put in an organ in one of his houses which increased his profits three times. The result was he installed the same equipment in his two other houses all with the same result. They were good investments, and though they showed a total outlay of some $50,000 when paid for they have already proved well worth while.

These facts are worth thinking about—the examples shown are worth following—if you want any help or further advice we will be glad to help, to the extent of our knowledge and ability. Good music is 40 per cent of any picture theatre entertainment.

E. K. Gillett.

Equipment Operating — Projection — Questions Answered

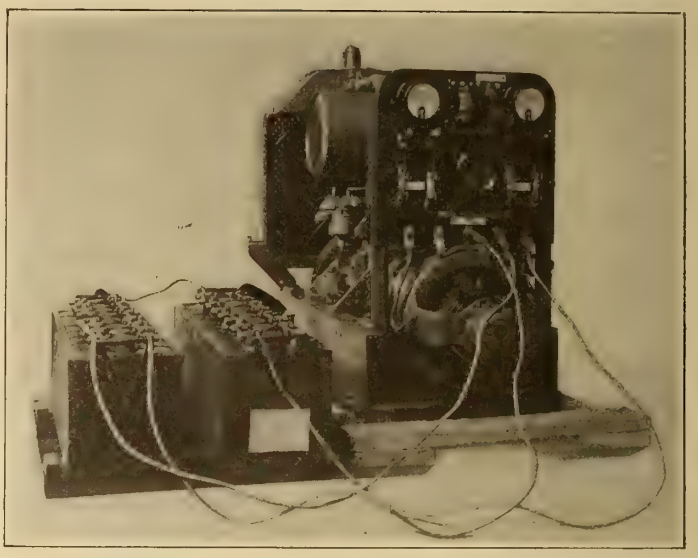
The "Imsco" Motion Picture Lighting Plant

THE applications of the incandescent electric lamp to motion picture projection are being constantly extended, and the most recent development along this line is the Imsco Light and Power Plant, which is manufactured and distributed by the Independent Movie Supply Co., 729 Seventh Avenue, New York.

The Imsco lighting plant is designed to operate an incandescent lamp from a series of storage batteries, which are charged by a dynamo driven by a gasoline engine—the engine, dynamo, batteries and their necessary auxiliary apparatus forming the complete Imsco outfit.

A good idea of the appearance of the Imsco lighting plant will be gained from the appended illustrations, but we shall proceed to describe the outfit more in detail.

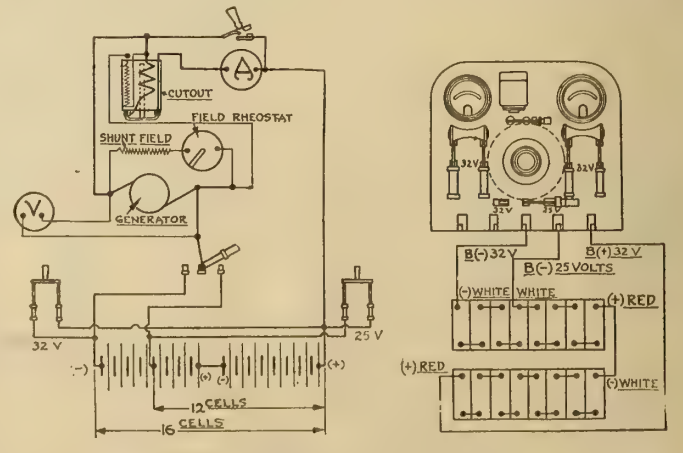
The engine is of the L-head type and is 4 cycle, having a 3-inch bore and a 4-inch stroke. It develops 3 H. P. at a running speed of 1,250 R. P. M., and when it is running at this speed the generator delivers 31 amperes.



The Imsco Portable Light and Power Plant—Showing Engine and Generator

The cylinder head and cylinder are of gray iron, cast in one piece, and machined and ground with great accuracy. Careful selection of materials, combined with accurate machine work, also characterizes the manufacture of the crank-shaft and connecting-rod, which are drop-forged from open-hearth steel, are of large dimensions, and are very accurately balanced. The main bearings of the motor are lined with white bronze and are of the split type, being therefore adjustable for wear. The piston is of the trunk type, and is provided with a guide ring and two compression rings.

Ignition is of the jump spark type derived from a Bosch high-tension magneto, which is directly connected to the cam shaft of the engine; the carburetor is a Schebler type M. The oiling is accomplished by the splash feed method, and the base of the engine has been designed to permit of a large quantity of oil being stored in the crank-case. As the illustration shows, the engine is cooled by a large radiator of the automobile type in conjunction with a revolving fan and a bronze circulating pump, which is gear-driven from the engine shaft. The engine is a self-starter and is closely regulated, as regards uniformity of running speed, by a centrifugal governor mounted on the engine shaft. This regulation is a factor in securing steady voltage.



Passing next to the generator, this is a 1 K. W. General Electric shunt wound machine, and is attached directly to the engine frame. The armature of the generator is connected direct to the shaft of the engine, but the coupling is a flexible one, which therefore allows the armature to float and thus select its magnetic balance.

The function of the generator is to charge the batteries from which the incandescent projecting lamp is operated, and the storage battery is a 16-cell Willard, of 32 volt, 80 ampere hour capacity. The engine, generator, storage batteries and their complementary devices are all mounted upon wooden skids, and it is in this position that the Imsco lighting plant is operated and transported.

Front View—Showing Switch-board and Storage Battery

As the light source for motion picture projection an Edison T 29 Monoplane Filament lamp is recommended for use with the Imsco outfit, and this type of lamp consumes 30 amperes of current at 25 volts. This lamp is operated from 12 cells of the Willard battery, as the wiring-diagram shows, while the entire 16 cells of the battery supply current at 32 volts which may be utilized for the incandescent lighting of the building where the outfit is located. Any other electrical apparatus designed to operate on 32 volts may likewise be run from the complete battery, provided it does not consume current in excess of 1,000 watts, which is the amount that the generator is designed to deliver. It is practically impossible to connect up the Imsco outfit incorrectly, because the three wires from the battery to the switchboard are provided with lugs of different shapes which will only attach to the proper binding-posts, and the terminals of all the battery cells are distinguished by their color. The positive terminals are colored red and the negative terminals white, and by bearing this in mind it is extremely easy to connect the various units of the Willard battery in the proper manner.

Wiring Connections of Imsco Outfit

The exact regulation of the current is rendered easy by the convenient arrangement of the switchboard, which is clearly shown in the illustration and diagram. The current may be varied up to 31¼ amperes by adjusting the rheostat control wheel on the front of the switchboard. Should the engine be running too slow, the carburetor may deliver too much gasoline, but the flow is adjusted by means of a needle valve, which is part of the carburetor.

When the generator is running up to its normal speed of 1,250 R. P. M., and the 30-ampere projection lamp is in operation, the ammeter on the switchboard will read 30 amperes. This shows that the lamp is consuming the current supplied by the generator, and in this case the storage battery is simply floated across the line maintaining the lamp voltage at its normal value.

In a demonstrational exhibition, the Imsco light plant proved itself capable of satisfactory illuminating a 14-foot picture at a throw of 85 feet, which is about the limit of the present capabilities of the tungsten filament lamps. The engine requires about 1 pint of gasoline per hour, and the capacity of the gasoline storage tank is 5 gallons.

A more intimate report on the capabilities of the Imsco outfit can only be rendered after its behavior in everyday use has been studied, but we believe that this brief description, and a study of the illustrations, will create a favorable impression as to the design and construction of this newcomer among portable lighting outfits for motion picture projection and house lighting.

A Cameraman on the Subject of Speed Indicators

Mr. Perry J. Sherman, Corpus Christi, Texas, writes: "I have watched the matter of speed indicators for motion picture machines for some time, and, as I have a different side of the matter to call to your attention, I decided to present my views, and I think if you will give the matter some study that you will change your views in the matter.

"I have been in the game over twelve years, and I think I am one of the few operators in the game that also handles the crank on the photographic end, and therefore have some experience that does not fall to the lot of the average operator.

"A few months ago I received a commission to secure some topical stuff that required my standing in water to such a depth that I stood the risk of a water-soaked, or possibly completely ruined camera, as I had to get some very essential shots, so that the spectator would get an idea of the general surroundings.

"Well, these shots were made, and then came a cute little stunt of trying to keep a camera and tripod from skidding off the deck of the boat into the Gulf of Mexico, and all the while I was panning, watching the view-finder to keep my field, and grinding with the other hand.

"Now, Mr. Editor, do you think that my taking speed was uniform?

"Again. When the action starts, do you suppose that the actor will always go after the villain like he meant business, or will he go at it like he was giving him a dancing lesson?

"A few days ago we were running a feature produced by Triangle, and the hero of the picture was in an 'offul' hurry and, rushing out of the house, he shouted to his negro driver, and the next scene showed what? That the old faithful cayuse drawing the old surrey was evidently affected with the hook-worm, for he had a gait that would put a tortoise to shame.

"Now the only way to carry out the desired action was to speed up the projector, which I did. Do you see the point?

"Now my stand always has been, and always will be, that there is no 'sich' animal as a set speed for projection, and there never will be, for there are many other points, as yet unnamed, that enter into the matter, and I will always believe that the matter of fixed speed is a joke, and yet again I will say that in one way there can be a set speed that in reality would work out to my point.

"The Essanay Company on their posters invariably give the screen time, and I find these quite reliable, but the proposition stands right here:

"An operator has got to be an observer of everyday life, and he has got to study his speed of projection closely in order that his screen life shall be natural, not a dream of a 'hop fiend,' and the operator that knows what life is and knows how to vividly portray it on the screen is the man that interprets it, not according to a fixed speed, but according to life as it really is.

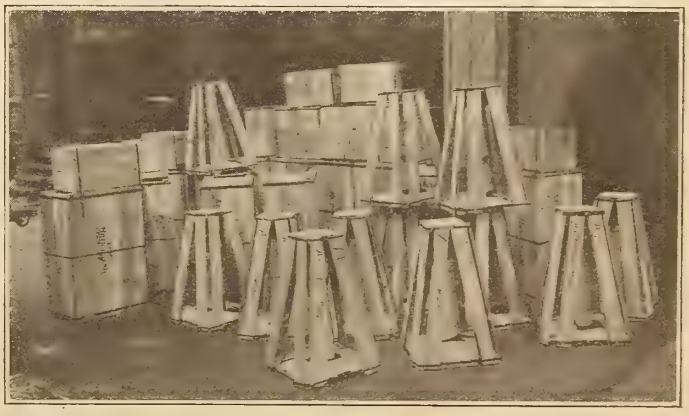
"After carefully screening the production, the time for each reel can be determined, but this should not be based on a constant speed proposition nor anywise near, and if it could be so based, the speed control of the present day projector would not need such a large degree of flexibility.

"I would like to hear from the 'Rialto' and 'Rivoli' Chief on this subject.

"Also would like to hear from Fort Dodge, Iowa, as I am an old Iowa boy, hailing from Rolfe, a neighbor city of Fort Dodge.

"I certainly enjoy your camera section, and only wish it covered at least twenty or more pages each week."

Comment: Not every operator can claim the possession of the experience which Mr. Sherman has gained in his work as a cinematographer, but we think that we can share his viewpoint as we have served our time at both projecting and photographing, and we feel that Mr. Sherman's letter will be received with great interest by our readers.



In our former remarks upon the subject of speed indicators, we by no means meant to suggest or recommend that motion pictures should be screened at any specific or constant rate per reel; we certainly agree with Mr. Sherman, that all pictures which are worth exhibiting at all, are worthy of the best efforts of the operator along the line of portraying their action in a natural and lifelike manner upon the screen.

This in no way depreciates the value of a good speed indicator, however, for it is the result of experience that such a device is a necessity to the exhibitor who puts on a carefully thought-out entertainment, and we believe it will be appreciated that the necessary preliminary knowledge of the running time of the various reels can be ascertained much more conveniently by a good speed indicator than by the more orthodox method of watching the clock.

An ordinary speed indicator is perhaps not much of a step in advance, but the Robin indicator, which we have mentioned before, will be found replete with possibilities by the operators and managers of high-class photoplay houses, and we will present a detailed description of this device in an early issue. Our various correspondents upon the subject of speed indicators should appreciate that we do not recommend the installation of accurate and expensive devices of this kind in small theatres, for in such houses their true value and usefulness could neither be appreciated nor fully made use of. The importance of the speed indicator in the large house, which presents its programs on a definite schedule, is, however, becoming more and more apparent to the managers and operators of such theatres.

We trust that the publication of Mr. Sherman's letter will serve to put him in touch with some of the Iowa operators, and for the benefit of any such as would like to correspond with him we subjoin his address, which is care of the Amusu theatre, Corpus Christi, Texas.

Many thanks, Mr. Sherman, for your kind words concerning the Camera Department. In common with our policies concerning the conduct of the Projection Department, we are guided at all times by the desires of the readers, and suggestions or contributions for either department are welcome at all times.

Shipment of Fifteen Motiograph Projectors to Johannesburg, South Africa, Recently Made by Enterprise Optical Company

SPEER

the Carbon with

A REPUTATION

SPEER ALTERNO CARBONS
for A.C. Work
AND
SPEER HOLD-ARK CARBONS
for D.C. Work

Have Proved Their Worth and Value

Write for descriptive folder, also the pamphlet showing operators' endorsements

Full Information Supplied By Your Dealer

"The Carbons with a Guarantee"

MANUFACTURED BY

SPEER CARBON COMPANY
ST. MARYS, PA.

ADVERTISE YOUR BUSINESS

BY THE QUALITY OF YOUR PROJECTION

Nothing is as good as the Best, and the Best can only be obtained by an up to date machine.

We will take in your old machine on part payment on a New Machine or sell you a New Machine on the MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN.

Write today for Particulars and Catalog

AMUSEMENT SUPPLY COMPANY
Largest Exclusive Dealers to the Moving Picture Trade
300-302 Mallers Building 5 South Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Dealers in Motiograph, Standard and Simplex Moving Picture Machines, National Carbons Minusa Screen and Everything for the Theatre

WE SELL ON THE INSTALLMENT PLAN

STOP LOOK

Before you lay this aside write to us at once and ask us to send you a descriptive catalog of our Motor Equipment for Power's 6A that will save you from $28.00 to $31.00.

We guarantee the efficiency of our Motor Equipments. We have Genuine Power parts, and we are Exclusive Distributors for the Peerless Simplex Projectors and all supplies.

LEWIS M. SWAAB
1327 Vine Street PHILADELPHIA, PA.

A Weighty Deduction!

ON several recent occasions the question has been raised as to whether the screen illumination derived from a projection machine in operation was the same for all speeds of projection.

A consideration of the proposition will show very readily that when we have a shutter revolving in a light beam of given intensity, the sum of the intensities of the light impulses transmitted through the openings in that revolving shutter in a given interval of time will be equal, regardless of the speed at which the shutter is revolving. This was recently explained (NEWS of January 9, page 904) in our answer to a correspondent, where we said:

"It is obvious that if the shutter is revolving slowly there will be a certain number of light flashes of comparatively long duration in the time interval we select as unit. When the shutter is speeded up the flashes are of shorter duration, but there are more light flashes within the unit time interval, and the sum of the intensities of either series of flashes will approximately equal the other."

It does not take inntelligence above the average to comprehend that in a problem of this kind the integration of the light flashes, or separate intensities, must be taken between some definite limits i. e., the effect of the succeeding light flashes must be considered within some definite space of time, and that in a problem concerning the action of a shutter of given dimensions revolving in a light beam of given intensity, other factors do not necessarily enter.

This aspect of the matter appears to have been lost sight of entirely by the writer of an item purporting to be of instruction to operators, which we have recently come across in the course of our reading. The item in question, which doubtless cost its author a great mental effort, says:

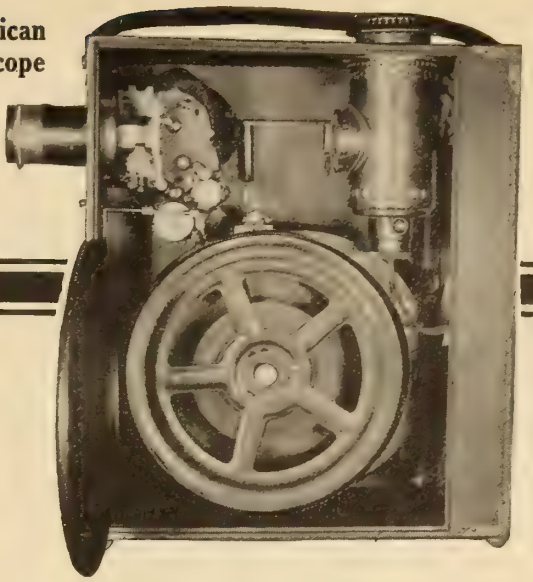
"It has, however, just occurred to me that a minor equation enters into the matter. In so far as the projection machine itself be concerned, it would pass exactly the same light percentage at any speed of projection. But the film itself cuts a certain amount of light, and since we are passing more film in a given time at 70 than at 60, would not the extra film act to reduce the light total?"

Certainly no one would dispute that with a given strip of film the added densities of successive images would very quickly produce complete opacity, but we marvel at the flight of fancy which has taken the writer of the above remarks so far afield from the actual exigencies of the problem in question, and we are at loss to understand the introduction of photographic densities into the photometric problem of the rotating sector disk.

If we attempt to consider separately the effect of adding together the densities of the succeeding images upon the film which is being projected, it will be found that the combined densities of the images on a very few feet of film will completely prevent any light from reaching the screen, but we know that such a result does not occur in practice, because each image is accompanied by the light flash necessary to project it upon the screen, and the combined effect of these flashes during unit time would be the same regardless of the speed of projection, just as in the case when no film was present, although the mean value of the screen brightness is, of course, lower when films are projected than when the light alone is projected.

It therefore appears that the writer of the remarks in question can omit his "minor equation" from his deductions, thus leaving the problem in its original simplicity.

Pennsylvania Has New Law for Licensing Operators



NEW regulations governing the operation of the motion picture machines in the 6,000 odd theatres throughout Pennsylvania, were issued on March 11, in Harrisburg, by the Indusrial Board of the Department of Labor and Industry, to be effective on and after March 1.

Of particular interest to the trade is the announcement contained in the regulations, that an operator of a machine, in order to obtain a license, must be at least eighteen years of age, although any person under eighteen and over sixteen years old, who prior to the enforcement of these regulations has been engaged for at least one year in the projection of motion pictures, shall be granted an operator's license if after examination they shall prove competent.

(Continued on page 1940)

The American Projectoscope

Announcing

A New Portable Projecting Machine

For Showing Standard Sized Films

THIS announcement heralds the completion of a new and perfect portable motion picture projecting machine—the American Projectoscope. This new device is the result of more than three years of constant experimentation, improvement and refinement.

It takes standard sized film, and can be operated from any electric light socket (either direct or alternating current). It throws a perfect white light at a distance of five to fifty feet; permits the running of the film either backward or forward; will hold the film stationary on the screen like a stereopticon—without any adjustment. It weighs only 19 lbs.—you can take it anywhere. It will show films on any wall, shade or screen.

Built by Film Experts

The American Projectoscope was designed and constructed under the supervision of the technical experts of the American Film Co., Inc.—one of the oldest established film manufacturers.

It has undergone actual tests for more than a year and a half. More than a million feet of film have been projected through one American Projectoscope—without a break or tear.

It has received the highest endorsement from such a projection expert as Donald Bell, of Bell & Howell. Among the purchasers of this new portable motion picture projecting machine are:

G. Gennert, of New York City, Chicago and San Francisco.
Henry Disston & Sons, Philadelphia, Pa.
Hanson-Bellows, Co., Chicago
National War Council, San Antonio, Tex.
United States Naval Training Station, Great Lakes, Ill.
Square Turn Tractor Co., Norfolk, Neb.
A. B. Dick & Co. of Chicago—
And the British Navy.

Descriptive Booklet—Sent FREE

Write for descriptive booklet outlining the technical features of the American Projectoscope—showing how it can be operated either forward or backward; how the film can be held stationary on the screen and explaining its many other advantages.

Film manufacturers, executives, directors, stars, film editors, exhibitors, educational institutions, supply dealers, etc., are urged to write for a copy of this booklet. You should know about this remarkable new portable projecting machine and its numerous advantages. A copy of the booklet will be sent FREE on request.

American Projecting Company

SAMUEL S. HUTCHINSON, President
6235 A Broadway Chicago, Illinois

Dealers and Jobbers: The American Projectoscope offers you an exceptional sales opportunity. Write at once for our DEALER'S PROPOSITION.

Film Companies will find the American Projectoscope especially valuable for use in executive offices—for showing the new prints as they arrive. Also for State Rights subjects, for cutting and editing. The outstanding feature of this machine for this work, is that the film can be held stationary on the screen at any point; and that the film can be turned either backward or forward, without adjustment.

Directors will find the American Projectoscope a great help in looking over the day's "shots:" in assembling, cutting and reviewing film. The film can be held stationary on the screen, thus permitting the checking of minute details.

Stars will find it pleasant to possess an American Projectoscope which they can operate themselves and use to inspect their own productions. It uses current from any electric light socket.

Film Editors will find the American Projectoscope of exceptional value in cutting and editing productions. You can stop the film anywhere and examine details. You can turn the film backward or forward, without adjustments.

Musicians can facilitate their work of writing music cues by the use of the American Projectoscope.

Educational Institutions will find the American Projectoscope valuable in class rooms. Educators will find this machine valuable in censoring films. It takes a full reel of standard size films and runs without interruption. IT REQUIRES NO APOLOGY.

Exhibitors will find the American Projectoscope valuable in examining films in their private offices, for cut-outs, etc., while their large projecting machines are in use.

Send Coupon for FREE Descriptive Booklet

AMERICAN PROJECTING COMPANY
6235 A Broadway, Chicago, Ill.

Send me descriptive booklet and tell me how the American Projectoscope may be of service to me.

Name .....

Position .....

Address .....

City ..... State .....

The Eyes of the World

follow nightly the swift rush of events across the motion picture screen. Are those eyes tired from gazing at blurred images? Not in your house, if you use

Bausch and Lomb Projection Lenses

They make pictures easy to watch, because they give perfect clearness, even to the edge of the screen, and make the most out of every detail of the film. As essential to good pictures as is the film itself.

Booklet on request. Let us quote on your requirements.

Bausch & Lomb Optical Co.
569 ST. PAUL STREET ROCHESTER, N.Y.
New York Washington Chicago San Francisco
Leading American Makers of Photographic and Ophthalmic Lenses, Microscopes, Projection Lanterns (Balopticons) and Other High-Grade Optical Products.

The OLD Story

The name "EVANS" is synonymous of perfection, reliability and prompt service in the DEVELOPING and PRINTING field

A reputation earned through actual achievement, to which we point and on which we ask for your consideration

EVANS FILM MFG. CO.
416-24 West 216th St. New York City
Telephone, St. Nicholas 3443

The age limit for operators had been the subject of much controversy in Pennsylvania. There have been several hearings held on the subject before the Industrial Board, which under a state enactment of June 2, 1913, has authority to make regulations for the motion picture industry. Representatives of motion picture exhibitors, machine operators and civic and welfare bodies have appeared before the board from time to time to present their views as to what should be the age limit.

Men in the trade contended, for the most part, that the limit should be set at sixteen years, pointing out the difficulty of obtaining men in view of the war's demands for workers in all industries. The civic and welfare workers, on the other hand, for the most part advocated eighteen years as the minimum age for operators, contending that this was necessary in order to insure reliability of the men in the booths.

The Industrial Board's ruling, just made public, largely upholds the contentions of the latter, though a concession is made with respect to operators between sixteen and eighteen years of age, who up to this time have been employed in motion picture projection work for a period of at least one year.

Some other important provisions of the new regulations include a ruling that no person shall be allowed in a booth during a performance unless he has necessary business to transact; that apparatus and its connections shall be tested by the operator prior to each performance; that badly torn films shall not be used, and that their presence in the booth shall be reported to the management as soon as practicable; that no applicant for an operator's license who has failed in one examination shall present himself for re-examination until one month has elapsed, and that every application for renewal of a license shall be made within thirty days of the expiration of such license. Licenses shall be renewed once each year.

It is set forth further that only those applicants for licenses who secure a mark of at least 70 per cent in the written examination shall be eligible for the practical examination. The penalty for violation of the regulations is a fine of not more than $100, or imprisonment not exceeding one month or both.

The regulations go into detail as to the requirements for persons seeking to qualify as operators, and prescribe strict rules for the safe operation of motion picture machines. The members of the Industrial Board, who prepared the regulations, are Labor Commissioner John Price Jackson, chairman; Otto T. Mallery, Richard B. Farley, Dr. A. L. Garver, Mrs. Samuel Semple, and William Lauder, secretary.

N. A. M. L. Enrolls First Lady Member

ON the roll of honor this week will be noted the name of Mrs. L. W. McClung, of Williams, Ind., who can claim the distinction of being the first of the fair sex who has decided to uphold the principles of the National Anti-Misframe League. Friend husband has, of course, joined, too, but we are wondering who is to be given the credit of taking the initiative.

Mr. and Mrs. McClung are spending the Winter at St. Petersburg, Fla., where they have charge of the projection at the Grand theatre.

REMBUSCH SCREEN CO

ALL KINDS OF MOTION PICTURE SCREENS EST. 1903

SHELBYVILLE, INDIANA.

WANTED—MOTION PICTURE PROJECTION LENSES, 3 to 4 inch focus, in standard size tubes. State number, make and price.
Address: Box 60, MOTION PICTURE NEWS, 729 7th Ave., New York

National Anti-Misframe League

Pledge

AS a motion picture operator who has the interest of his profession at heart and is willing to assist in eliminating some of the evils practised in the operating-room, I promise that I will to the best of my ability return films to the exchange in first-class condition. Furthermore, I will when it becomes necessary remedy all misframes, bad patches, etc., that may be in the film which I receive and in this way co-operate with my brother operators and give greater pleasure to those who make up the motion picture audience by showing films that are free from such defects. I also promise that I will not make punch marks in film, and when film is received by me, with punch holes, I will notify the exchange to that effect so that they may use their efforts to correct this evil.

Notice! Anti-Misframe League Members

Membership cards are now ready and are being sent out as fast as possible. There are a number of operators, however, who have neglected to send in the desired information. If you will fill out the blank and mail to this office, button and membership card will be forwarded.

Member's name .....

Home address .....

Name of theatre where employed.....

Address of theatre and name of manager.....

Roll of Honor

Carl Howick	Manchester, Ia.
Everett Clawson	Oklahoma City, Okla.
Wm. J. Derby	Moline, Ill.
Ray C. Cash	Waterville, N. Y.
Harry Wolcott	Waterville, N. Y.
Glen H. Lewis	Herkimer, N. Y.
David Muirhead	Brandon, Man., Canada.
Herbert P. Gibbs	Richmond, Va.
Oscar J. Kommell	East Liverpool, O.
Chas. R. Wahl	Wood River, Ill.
Neil Walsh	Sharon, Pa.
Giles Millspaugh, Jr	Natchitoches, La.
J. I. Kimes	Protection, Kans.
N. R. Newman	Selma, Ala.
J. L. Gill	Selma, Ala.
Raymond Lawrence	Roanoke, Va.
J. E. Shay	Milan, Mo.
Budd Welliver	Williamsport, Pa.
Walter L. Greene	Morgantown, N. C.
C. B. Leffler	Paris, Tenn.
Lewis P. Garvin	Columbia, Ky.
Robert C. Gray	Lowell, Mass.
Harold E. Brown	Lowell, Mass.
Frank A. Wiles	Honea Path, S. C.
J. Evans Harper	Honea Path, S. C.
Elmer R. Featherston	Detroit, Mich.
L. W. McClung	St. Petersburg, Fla.
Mrs. Lottie McClung	St. Petersburg, Fla.
Wallace Yutzy	Albert Lea, Minn.

Members Previously Recorded	780
Members Recorded This Week	29
Total Membership to Date	809

This notice does not apply to those who have already sent in this information, but it is for those who have neglected doing so, many having merely given their names and name of city, without any street address, making it impossible for the post office to deliver the letters addressed to them.

The Carbon For Perfect Projection

The progressive exhibitor does not care to project pictures that are indistinct, that flicker and that are further marred by the presence of negative ghosts. To project pictures with such reality and clearness as to meet the full approval of the audience, is, after all, the prime problem of the motion picture industry.

The exhibitor who is progressive enough to realize the great importance of good projection, who aims to show on his screen a picture that is free from all defects, uses the National-Silvertip combination.

The light given by Silvertips is a pure white light, flickerless and free from negative shadows. The direct current arc using the negative Silvertip carbons is the best illuminant known for the projection of the modern photo-play film in the large and up-to-date theater where the length of throw and class of pictures demand a pure white light of high intensity.

Silvertips Are For Direct Current Only

FOR ALTERNATING CURRENT PROJECTION

The White A. C. Special carbons give a noiseless, pure white light that gives true daylight screen illumination. To use this artificial daylight you need not make a single change in your equipment. Simply take out the old carbons and insert in their place the White A. C. Specials.

Write today for further information

NATIONAL CARBON COMPANY, Inc., Cleveland, Ohio

The Camera

Some Anomalies of Cinematographic Reproduction

Mr. L. L. Miller, Somerville, N. J., propounds the following:

"(1) If the cameraman turns the crank of his camera very slowly while taking a moving subject, will the projecting machine, running normally, show this subject on the screen as moving very rapidly, and why?

"(2) If the cameraman turns the crank of his camera very rapidly while taking a moving subject, will the projecting machine, running normally, show the subject on the screen as moving very slowly, and why? Or, how are subjects photographed by the cameraman so that when projected they will either seem to be moving abnormally slow or abnormally fast, as is often seen in comedy pictures?

"(3) In the case of a vehicle moving parallel to the picture plane when projected on the screen, why do the wheels appear to be moving in the opposite direction to the way the vehicle is moving?"

Reply: As is well known, the standard rate for taking and exhibiting motion pictures is 16 pictures per second. When the camera is operated so as to take less than 16 pictures per second, but the resultant picture is projected at 16 or more per second, the result of accelerated motion will be apparent to the spectator, and the degree of acceleration will be primarily governed by the extent of the departure from the normal taking rate. In such pictures as Keystone comedies, for instance, the chase scenes are photographed at about 8 pictures per second (half normal speed). In order to accomplish this class of work successfully the camera shutter requires regulation. The exposing shutter of a cine camera is an opaque, black rotating disc, with an angular segment removed. It is through this angular opening that the successive exposures are made as the same passes the lens at periodic intervals. For regular motion photography (16 per second) the angular extent of the shutter opening is about 120° to 180° (one-half to one-third of the disc), but in photography at a reduced rate of speed the shutter opening has to be closed down to a much smaller size (about 45° or ⅛ of the disc) in order to avoid over-exposure of the negative and excessive blurring in the moving objects. Another way in which movement is sometimes accelerated in motion pictures is by the use of the single picture spindle (and gearing) of the camera. When the camera crank is attached to the single picture spindle, only one picture is photographed at each complete turn of the camera crank instead of the customary 8 pictures per crank revolution. The single picture spindle finds its principal utility, however, in the making of cartoon subjects now so much in vogue. The reason why motion is accelerated in the case of objects taken at a speed below normal, but projected at the normal rate, is perfectly obvious. It is simply a case of displaying a series of motions in a fraction of the time actually required to perform those motions. If scenes are taken at the rate of 8 pictures per second and shown at the rate of 16 per second, the amount of movement occuring in ⅛ of a second is reproduced (on the screen) in 1-16 of a second, or, in other words, it is accelerated 100 per cent.

(2) The preceding considerations apply in an inverse manner to the case where motion pictures are photographed in excess of normal speed, but slowed down in the screen reproduction by projecting at normal speed. In this case the action which took place in an exceedingly short interval of time is spread out over a period of 5 to 10 times longer than the interval in which the original action took place, and in this way rapid movements, such as the performance of athletes can be analyzed. For the analysis of the movements of horses, or athletes 100 to 200 pictures per second is a sufficient taking rate, but we have a short film taken at the rate of 1,200 pictures per second, which shows the languid flight of a rifle bullet across the screen, and the way in which a jet of water is bent far to one side before breaking when struck by the bullet, and also how the jet rights itself again after the bullet has passed.

(3) The anomaly of the rotating wagon wheel, as reproduced in motion pictures, is readily explained by considering the amount of movement of the wheel during the time when the shutter covers the camera lens between successive pictures, and the result on the screen is dependent upon the angular velocity of the spokes of the wheel. The problem can readily be demonstrated mathematically, but in simple language the facts are as follows:

If the angular movement of the spokes between successive pictures is exactly equal to the angular distance between the various spokes of the wheel, then the spokes will appear to stand perfectly still when the picture is projected, because if the spokes are advanced in each succeeding picture by an amount just equal to their angular separation around the wheel, there will, of course, be no apparent change in their position.

If the angular movement of the spokes between successive pictures is less than the angular distance between the spokes, then the spokes will appear to move backwards when the picture is projected, because in this case the spokes have not advanced far enough (in the interval between pictures) to occupy the positions in which their predecessors were situated.

When, however, the angular movement of the spokes between successive pictures is greater than the angular distance between ths spokes, the wheel will appear to be moving in the proper direction, because each succeeding picture (on the film) shows each of the spokes in a position more advanced than it occupied in the preceding picture.

It remains to be pointed out that regardless of the appearance of the spokes, the rim of a wagon wheel always progresses across the screen and appears to be turning in the proper direction.

Making Transparencies from Tricolor Negatives

H. R. Wyman, Dayton, Ohio, inquires: "Could you outline a practical method of making natural color transparencies, for use as lantern slides, from sets of three-color negatives? Kindly give complete formulas and instructions for preparing the necessary materials."

Reply: There are numerous ways in which tricolor transparencies may be prepared, but we believe that satisfactory results will be secured by proceeding as follows:

Roll films, such as are used in Kodaks, are sensitized in a bichromate solution, which yields the so-called bichromated gelatine films, upon which the positives from the color-selection negatives are to be printed. The bichromate sensitizing solution is prepared as follows:

Potassium bichromate	4 Drams
Citric acid	1 Dram
Water	25 Ounces

This solution should be made up with hot water, and when it has cooled to some extent about 3 drams of ammonia is added. This changes the deep orange color of the bichromate solution to a light yellow, or lemon color. The Kodak films are now sensitized by immersion in this solution for a brief period (five minutes is sufficient), and are then hung up in the dark to dry. When the films have dried, the back, or celluloid side, of the same must be cleaned, or polished, so as to remove all streaks and water marks, as printing from the color-sensation negatives is accomplished through the back (or celluloid side) of the bichromated films.

When a piece of the bichromated film has been placed in the printing frame, with its celluloid surface in contact with the negative, the printing exposure may be made. As the bichromated material is relatively low in actinic value compared with lantern plates or gaslight paper, the exposure may be made to daylight, or to arc light, and the progress of the exposure may be judged in the usual way, after experience has been gained, or a print meter may be used to determine the exposure time.

The action of light on the bichromated gelatine renders the exposed parts of the print insoluble, even in hot water, and it is in warm water that the film is developed after printing. Upon development in warm water the unexposed gelatine dissolves away, leaving a positive image in relief in clear gelatine. As the silver bromide of the original negative emulsion is still present, however, in the gelatine image, this is now removed by immersing the developed film into a clean hypo bath, to which it is sometimes advisable to add a little ferricyanide.

When the silver bromide has been removed by the hypo bath the films are, of course, given a thorough wash, after which they are ready for dyeing up, or staining.

One precaution which should be taken before the positives are developed is to mark the films printed under the respective color-sensation negatives in some suitable manner so that they may be subsequently distinguished from one another. A convenient way of doing this is to cut notches in the edges of the films just before printing, as for instance, one notch in the edge of the film to be printed under the green-sensation negative, and two notches in the edge of the film to be printed under the blue-sensation negative. As the positive from the red-sensation negative is not made upon bichromated film in the process now being described, it is not necessary to mark the red-sensation positive.

Coming now to the dyeing up, or coloring, of the color-sensation positives which go to make up the composite color transparency, it must be remembered that, as the method now under consideration is a subtractive method, the respective positive images must be complementary in color to the hues of the filters through which their corresponding negatives were photographed. Therefore: The positive from the red negative is dyed blue-green; the positive from the green negative is dyed pink, and the positive from the blue negative is dyed yellow.

For lantern slide work it has been found most practicable to make the positive print from the red-sensation negative on a glass lantern slide plate (ordinary positive emulsion), which, after development in the usual way (giving a black image), fixing, washing, etc., is toned blue by thoroughly bleaching in a bath of ferricyanide (red prussiate of potash) and then immersing in a weak solution (about 1:100) of iron perchloride. After rinsing, the transparency is next placed in a clean hypo bath, after which it is washed and dried, and will be found to be of a cyan-blue color, which is generally very close to, if not exactly, the complementary hue to the red taking-filter. The exposure, when printing the red-sensation positive, and also its subsequent development, should be so gauged as to yield an image of soft quality but full of detail.

The developed, fixed and washed prints (on film) from the green and blue-sensation negatives are, however, to be dyed to their appropriate hues, which is accomplished as follows:

The positive from the green-sensation negative (to be dyed pink) is immersed in a dye bath composed of:

Erythrosin (1:200 water)	5 parts
Alcohol	30 parts
Water	100 parts

and the positive from the blue-sensation negative (to be dyed yellow) is immersed in a bath composed of:

Napthol yellow (1:200 water)	20 parts
Glacial acetic acid	10 parts
Alcohol	30 parts
Water	100 parts

When the colorless transparent images of the positive films have taken up a sufficient amount of dye they are removed from the dye baths and rinsed in water, to remove superfluous dye and clear up the highlights. It makes no difference if the positives have taken up too much dye, because the dye can be washed out until the positive images are of the proper hue.

After the dyed films have become dry, the blue positive plate and the pink and yellow films are held together in register to see if the correct color effect has been attained. Should the colors of the composite transparency be not quite what is desired, the intensities of the tints on the pink and yellow positive films may be altered to any required extent, by washing out more dye if the coloring is too deep, or by further immersion in the proper dye bath, if the colored image is lacking in intensity.

When the colors of all three positive images are such as to yield a satisfactory color rendition in the composite transparency, they are bound together in register, thus forming the complete lantern slide. Some workers cement the films to each other and then to the lantern plate (or blue positive) with Canada balsam.

The film that first made motion pictures practical is easily identifiable by the words

"EASTMAN"
AND "KODAK"

on the film margin.

EASTMAN KODAK CO.,
ROCHESTER, N. Y.

Six New Features For Sure Results!

Faster, finer and CERTAIN results now are gained with the new improved Universal Motion Picture Camera—the camera that keeps abreast of the science of motion picture photography.

The New Advantages of

UNIVERSAL

MOTION PICTURE CAMERA

New framing adjustment—Better film transmission—Advanced film channel—New focusing tube—New Footage indicator—New "static" prevention. New automatic dissolve now ready. 200 feet magazine capacity—more speed—better results.

At Less Than Half the Price of other similar cameras

Send Postal Today

for complete description of the world's greatest value in motion picture cameras.

BURKE & JAMES, INC.

Sole Wholesale Agents

240 East Ontario Street, Chicago

Eastern Branch: 225 Fifth Avenue, New York City

Music and the Picture

Musical Review of Latest Compositions

1—"Way Down in Macon, Georgia," by Paul Biese. A composition of exceptional standard quality in 2/4 time. (Published by Frank K. Root Music Co.)

2—"America, I Love, My Yankee Land," by Jack Frost. A wonderful, inspiring and martial composition. (Published by the McKinley Music Co., 1501 E. 55th street, Chicago, Ill.)

3—"The Garden of Allah, by Moonlight," composed by Florence Blackwell. A remarkable Fantasia of Oriental character, most appropriate for Oriental scenes. (Published by the McKinley Music Co.)

4—"That Cabaret in Honolulu Town," by Jack Frost. This composition is an all around favorite and a popular composition of exceptional merit. (Published by Frank K. Root Music Co.)

5—"Valley Rose Ballad," by Evans Lloyd. A beautiful Andante con espressivo movement, considered to be the greatest ballad ever written by an American writer; it is a composition of artistic value from a musical standpoint and still so wonderfully constructed that the listener or player, after hearing it once is bound to remember it forever. For pathetic scenes and the like, this composition is unreplaceable. (Published by Jeff Branen, 145 W. 45th street, New York City.)

6—"Missouri Waltz," by John Valentine Eppel. About this waltz we have nothing to say. Get it for your picture work, it will speak for itself. (Published by J. A. Forster, Chicago, Ill.)

7—"Your Voice Came Back to Me," by Clinton Keithley. A charming slow movement with a most delightful melody, growing constantly in popular favor—it is in "Andante Expressivo" of exceptional beauty, a really exquisite composition which every music lover will appreciate. (Published by the Frank K. Root Music Co.)

8—"I Don't Know Where I'm Going, but I'm on My Way," an inspiring and catchy melody by Geo. Fairman. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

9—"Homeward Bound," by Geo. Meyer. A typical composition of popular appeal, introducing a new surprise in every bar. A fine, snappy number with unusual attractive chorus and arrangement which leaves absolutely nothing to be desired. (Published by Leo Feist, Feist Bldg., New York City.)

10—"Just as Your Mother Was." A beautiful and melodious waltz movement. (Published by Harry von Tilzer.)

11—"Cradle Time," song by Shannon. A melodious lullaby—very expressive, and splendidly arranged. (Vanderslott Music Co.)

12—"Chasing the Chickens." A Fox-Trot and jazz number, has recently been published by the Forster Music Co., 509 South Wabash avenue, Chicago, Ill.

13—"Slippery Hank," by Losey. A characteristic one-step of exceptional merit, which should be in every musician's library. (Vanderslott Edition.)

14—"Love's Melody" (Reverie), by Shannon. A charming slow movement with a most delightful melody—most appropriate for love scenes. (Vandersloot Edition.)

15—"Astralita Serenade," by Mabel A. Whaley. Considered by deserves to be owned by any orchestra leader or piano player. (Published by the "Red Star Music Co.," Red Star, Ark.)

16—"All That I Want Is in Ireland," by Lloyd. An exceptionally fine "andante con espressivo movement," typical and original in every bar. It is a composition of standard quality. (Published by Jeff Branen, 145 W. 45th street, New York City.)

17—"Elk's March," by M. L. Lake. A brand new novelty march. (Carl Fischer Edition.)

18—"Berceuse," by Huerter. Another wonderful composition by this gifted writer. "Berceuse," by Huerter is a delightful and charming melody, very effectively arranged and obtainable for any combination of instruments. (Published by the Boston Music Company.)

19—"A Russian Pansy," by Otto Langey. An attractive new intermezzo from the pen of Otto Langey. It has much of the appeal of the familiar "Flower Song," by Gustav Lange, together with the freshness and the interest attached to a new composition. (Published by G. Schirmer, New York City.)

Ideal Usefulness of the Organ for Motion Pictures

THE Motion Picture Industry, in its remarkable development during the last few years from a mere commercial enterprise to what might be properly termed a new art, has found in music a natural complement.

The Photoplay is the "dumb art," and music, properly adapted, not only supplies this deficiency, but imparts new life and virile emotion to the visualized sentiment.

What medium should, then, be employed to provide a proper musical accompaniment to the pictures? Everything from a hurdy-gurdy to a symphony orchestra has been tried. The modern Pipe Organ as a basis on which to build seems to be the ideal instrument, inasmuch as it embodies a great variety of tone color, with the possibility of numerous traps and effects, all at the command of one performer.

The orchestra is unwieldy under ordinary circumstances, and with difficulty follows the rapidly changing scenes on the screen. The versatile organist on the other hand has no trouble at all. Of course, the size and quality of the instrument is an item of great importance. Theatres like "The Rialto," "The Rivoli," "The Strand" in New York, "Temple" in Toledo, and scores of others, employing large orchestras have found the organ an indispensable part of the musical equipment.

During the intermissions of an orchestra in large houses during Church Scenes—and other portrayals where the action is of a pathetic or emotional character, the organ is of greater value than an entire orchestra. As an accompanying instrument, especially in ff movements and crescendos, the organ has proven to be a very important factor and with only one operator can replace tone volume of any medium sized orchestra.

It has been claimed that in some theatres the organ has proven to be an orchestral tone destroyer—but, from recent experience, I have come to the conclusion—that if true orchestral tone is destroyed by the organ, it is, in most cases the fault of the organ player, or due to a weak instrument.

A large well-trained orchestra is a great attraction in itself, but it can not play for eight or nine hours in succession. It must have relief which adds to the expense. The clap-trap piano player is worthless, though in the small houses an artist on the piano makes a very good impression though his range is limited. The organ, however, with its attachments, is never out of place. With the proper man at the keyboard it can be made to almost talk, and adds forty per cent to the show. Every man should go into his house and give this musical question deep thought. He should get an expert to advise him and then make the purchase which best suits his needs.

Times Music Company Growing Rapidly

Rudolph E. De Vivo, president of The Times Music Company, 145 West Forty-fifth street, has accomplished a great deal for the company during the short time that it has been doing business. In the first place he has built up a professional following and has put himself and his company in right with the trade. In writing lyrics for his own company or selecting songs from others for publication he keeps an eye out for the kind of songs that will sell over a music counter on merit, as well as having a punch for performers. His advertising and publicity campaign has secured for him quick recognition from performers, jobbers and dealers. To sit back and let the jobbers and dealers do all the "plugging" is not his idea of doing business. Like a few other live wires in the game he believes in helping the dealer to help himself, and in helping the dealer he is doing the performer and jobber a good turn. The result is that his numbers are getting plenty of calls and the right kind of co-operation from every one.

"America, Make the World Safe for Democracy," is a patriotic number published by the Times Music Co., with the lyric by De Vivo and the melody by Sol P. Levy. The lyric is good, in fact, good enough for Reine Davis to feature. The melody is fine for motion picture work, and there is no reason why it should not be, for Levy is a past master at handling picture music. He prepared several books of picture music for Hamilton S. Gordon Music Co., which have become very much in demand with musicians all over the country. And most of the cue sheets going out with feature pictures carry titles of Levy's compositions.

"That's My Girl," is a novelty number by De Vivo, Weslyn, and Levy. "Love Cannot Say Good By," by Brett Page, De Vivo, and Levy, is a splendid high class ballad both in lyric and melody, which should become a favorite with singers and musicians and a steady seller on music counters. "St. Patrick's Day in the U. S. A.," "Little Yokohama Lady" and "If You'll Return" are some other numbers issued by The Times Music Company, and all by writers who have proved their value in the song-writing game.

The Buckeye Music Co., Columbus, Ohio, is another firm that is beginning to stir up things in the music field. Chas. Roy Cox, the president of the company, has been in the game for a number of years, but it is only recently that he started out after his catalog in a real way, and he finds that he is getting excellent results from his activities. Last week he was in New York City for a few days and did a great deal of business with the jobbers. Of late Mr. Cox has been grabbing off quite a few headliners for his numbers and has had most of them featured by leaders and musicians in the picture field. While in town he said that the results obtained from his copy in the Saturday Evening Post were more than gratifying. His songs have been welcomed in theatres and homes that were formerly more or less indifferent.

E. M. Wickes.

General Comments

Gilbert & Friedland have just issued two first class novelty numbers, good for singing, dancing and motion picture work, in "I'm a Brother of Lily of the Valley," and "You've Been Your Mother's Baby Long Enough." If the reception that Gilbert & Friedland received when they introduced them at the Alhambra theatre this week is any criterion of their prospects, the both numbers look like sure fire hits.

In the future it will be better for a publisher to have a stone tied about his neck and be cast into the trenches with the Boches than to bring out unpatriotic songs.

In "You're So Cute, Soldier Boy," Anatol Friedland has the

NONA

THE SENSATIONAL WALTZ HIT !!

Waltz, for Piano - - -	15c
Vocal - - - - - -	15c
Orchestra, 11 and Piano -	25c
Orchestra, Full and Piano -	35c

The Tune That Sticks

W H Y ? I T ' S D I F F E R E N T !

VANDERSLOOT MUSIC PUB. CO.
WILLIAMSPORT, PA.

"MISSOURI-WALTZ"

The World's Greatest
and
Most Popular Waltz

For Piano - - - 30c Per Copy
For Orchestra - 11 and Piano 25c
For Orchestra - Full and Piano 35c

Forster Music Publisher, Inc.
509 So. Wabash Avenue
CHICAGO, ILL.

Better Satisfaction

This notice is addressed to the minority of our subscribers who do not regularly answer advertisements.

The service described is, however, open and free to all who wish our help.

We do not wish to discourage you from writing direct to our advertisers; in fact, you do not do enough of it for your own good, but we do want you to get the proper goods to fit your needs.

There are many, perhaps you, who are too busy to write each company separately; therefore we are offering our co-operation, which means that you will receive full information on any subject which you may designate by merely filling out the coupon, designating by numbers the goods in which you are interested.

Your inquiries thus received will be forwarded to reputable manufacturers, even though the goods on which you wish information are not advertised in the "News."

1. Arc Controllers
2. Advertising Novelties
3. Brass Rails
4. Building Materials
5. Cameras
6. Camera Lenses
7. Carbons
8. Chairs
9. Chair Upholstery
10. Change Making Machines
11. Condensers
12. Converters and Transformers
13. Developing and Printing
14. Developing Materials
15. Developing Tanks
16. Disinfectants and Perfumes
17. Economizers and Rheostats
18. Electric Signs
19. Elevators and Escalators
20. Exterior Lighting
21. Film Cabinets
22. Film Carriers
23. Film Cleaners
24. Film Dyes
25. Film Stock
26. Fire Extinguishers
27. Floral Decorations
28. Gas Engines
29. Heating
30. Heralds
31. Interior Lighting
32. Interior Telephones
33. Lithographs
34. Lobby Display
35. Metal Ceilings
36. Motors
37. Mural Paintings
38. Musical Instruments
39. Paints
40. Perforating Machines
41. Printing Machines
42. Programs
43. Projection Booths
44. Projection Lenses
45. Projection Machines
46. Projection Machines (Home)
47. Reels
48. Rewinders
49. Safety Exit Locks
50. Screens
51. Slides
52. Stage Settings
53. Studio Lights
54. Ticket Selling Machines
55. Ticket Taking Machines
56. Uniforms
57. Ventilating and Fans
58. Vacuum Cleaners

Gentlemen: Please send me descriptive matter on the subjects marked in the above lists.

Name .....

Theatre .....

City .....

State .....

hit song in the new musical comedy now playing at the Cohan theatre.

Mrs. Lena G. Ford, author of "Keep the Home Fires Burning," is reported to have been killed in London during a recent air raid by the Huns.

By purchasing "I'm Sorry I Made You Cry" and "Don't Leave Me, Daddy," from the Triangle Music Company of New Orleans, Leo Feist has added two more hits to his big catalog. His song book for Soldiers and Sailors is selling faster than he can print it.

Private Frederick Rath, who was very active in the motion picture field before he joined the army, came from Camp Upton this week to place two new songs. His "When the Moon Is Shining Somewhere in France" is one of the big sellers of the Jos. W. Stern & Company's catalog.

"SHOES THAT DANCED"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on Page —)

Mysterious Theme: Heavy Mysterioso by Sol. P. Levy

Love Theme: "Love Song" (Dramatic) by Flegier

1—Mysterious Theme, until—S: Girl dancing.
Note—Watch shot.
2—Piano Solo, improvise to action, until—S: Police enter.
3—Short Agitato, until—T: "Evening Extra, Murder!"
4—"Intermezzo" (2/4 Presto), by Arenski, until—T: "Hogan, a plain clothes man."
5—Continue pp, until—T: "In the headquarters of the Hudson Dusters."
6—Mysterious Theme, until—T: "Meantime, the Pepper Pot."
7—"Homeward Bound" (Leo Feist Ed.), until—S: Interior of dining room.
8—"I Don't Know Where I'm Going" (Tilze's Ed.), until—S: Hagen enters room.
Note—To be produced as a vocal solo.
9—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "A new day."
10—"Intermezzo" (Moderato), by Huerter, until—T: "Late afternoon find, etc."
11—"Le Secret" Intermezzo (Allegretto), by Gautier, until—T: "Don't carry it any more."
12—Love Theme, until—T: "So long, kid!"
13—Mysterious Theme, until—T: "The Harmony Lad's debut."
14—"Mother Machree" (Popular Song), until—T: "God bless you."
Note—To be produced as a vocal solo with piano accompaniment.
15—"Missouri Waltz" (Forster Music Co.), until—S: Exterior scene.
16—Mysterious Theme, until—T: "It's a secret."
17—Love Theme, until—T: "I'm going to take, etc."
18—"Dramatic Agitato," by Hough, until—T: "The Rat's garret in New Jersey."
Note—Watch shots.
19—"Dramatic Tension," by Winkler, until—T: "The lights flare early."
20—"Blue Rose Waltz" (Forster Music Co.), until—S: Dancing.
21—"Homeward Bound" (One Step, Leo Feist Ed.), until—T: "Early morning."
22—Love Theme, until—S: Dancing.
23—"Amerinda" (Fox Trot, Feist Ed.), until—T: "Realizing that the Harmony Lad, etc."
24—"Dramatic Tension," by Borch, until—T: "As per orders."
25—Hurry to action, until—S: After the fight.
26—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—T: "Comes morning and——"
27—Love Theme, until * * * * *END.

"HEIRESS FOR A DAY"

(Triangle Production)

(Reviewed on Page 1466)

Theme: "Love Theme" by Abbot Lee

1—"Intermezzo" (Allegretto), by Bohm, until—T: "Grace Antrin, a social parasite."
2—"Laverne" (Melodious Valse), by Henton, until—T: "Jack, you must not be, etc."
3—Continue to action, until—T: "Daniel Hodges, multi-millionaire."
4—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "The weekly hop at the Maryland."
5—"Just as Your Mother Was," Waltz (Harry von Tilzer), until—S: Change of dance.

PHOTOGRAPHERS and LABORATORY MEN, Submit your questions to the CAMERA DEPARTMENT.

6—Popular Trot to action, until—S: Young man talking to girl.
7—Theme, until—S: Dancing.
8—"Chasing the Chickens," Trot (Forster Music Co.), until—T: "Your conduct amazes me."
9—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Stealing away from the match-makers."
10—"Serenade" (Allegretto), by Saint-Saens, until—T: "Sir, I have nothing to say."
11—"Valse Caprice," by Rubinstein, until—T: "I presume you will have to remain, etc."
12—"Sweet Ponderings" (a Melodie Sentiment), by Langey, until—T: "But they told me, etc."
13—Sorrow Theme, by Edw. Roberts, until—T: "Rumors of wealth bring, etc."
14—"Le Secret" (Allegretto Intermezzo), by Gautier, until—S: Dancing.
15—"Missouri Waltz," until—T: "With love leading her, etc."
16—Theme, until—T: "Credit then some more credit."
17—"Dawn of Love" (Melodious Allegretto), by Bendix, until—T: "Trying to be one of his people."
18—Continue to action, until—T: "I did all this to please him."
19—Theme, until—T: "We gotta get the money or the goods."
20—"Pathetic Andante," by Paul Vely, until—S: Helen in jewelry store.
21—"Tragic Theme," by Paul Vely, until—T: "Determined to play the game."
22—"Reception and Banquet Scene" (Valse) by Braham, until—S: Dancing.
23—"America, I Love You," Two Step (McKinley Ed.), until—T: "Don't you dare tell him."
24—Theme, until—T: "Please deliver this to Mr., etc."
25—Continue ff, until * * * * * END.

"THE HOUSE OF GLASS"

(Select Pictures)

(Reviewed on Page 1608)

Theme: "Dramatic Narrative" by Pauline Pement

1—"Sidewalks of New York" (Popular Old Song Hit), until—T: "James Burke, a chauffeur."
2—"Petite Bijouterie" (3/4 Tempo di Valse), by Bohm, until—T: "And so the next day."
3—"Serenade d'Amour" (Moderato), by Blon, until—T: "You promised you wouldn't wear it."
4—Theme, until—T: "Hide them, anyway."
5—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Please, don't take him away."
6—Tragic Theme by Paul Vely, until—T: "The way of the lost footstep."
7—Melody by Friml, until—T: "Eighteen months of silence."
8—Continue pp, until—T: "Freedom without reference, etc."
9—Theme, until—S: Interior of railroad station.
10—Continue pp, until—T: "Later in Kansas City."
11—"Visions" (3/4 Andante), by Tschaikowsky, until—T: "Margaret unmindful of the past."
12—"Lanette" (Valse Lente), by Henton, until—S: Margaret recognizes Burke.
13—Theme, until—T: "You will never see me again."
14—"Nocturno in F" (Melodious Mod.), by Krzyzanowski, until—T: "Their arrival in New York."
15—Open with railroad effects, until—Followed by 16—"L'Adieu (12/8 Dramatic), by Favarger, until—T: "The months go by."
17—"Serenade" (Dramatic Moderato), by Widor, until—T: "Before long the rich young Jackson."
18—Dramatic Recitative to action, until—T: "Will you let that boy go?"
19—Theme, until—T: "Good-bye, Mrs. Lake."
20—"Erotik" (Dramatic), by Grieg, until—T: "It is useless to fight further."
21—Prelude from "Eva" (Dramatic), by Massenet, until—T: "You've got James Burke in this house."
22—"Dramatic Tension No. 2," by Reissiger, until—T: "I am a cop and it's my business."
23—"Adieu" (Dramatic), by Karganoff, until—T: "There is another case, etc."
24—Theme, until * * * * * END.

"FORBIDDEN PATH"

(Fox Standard Production)

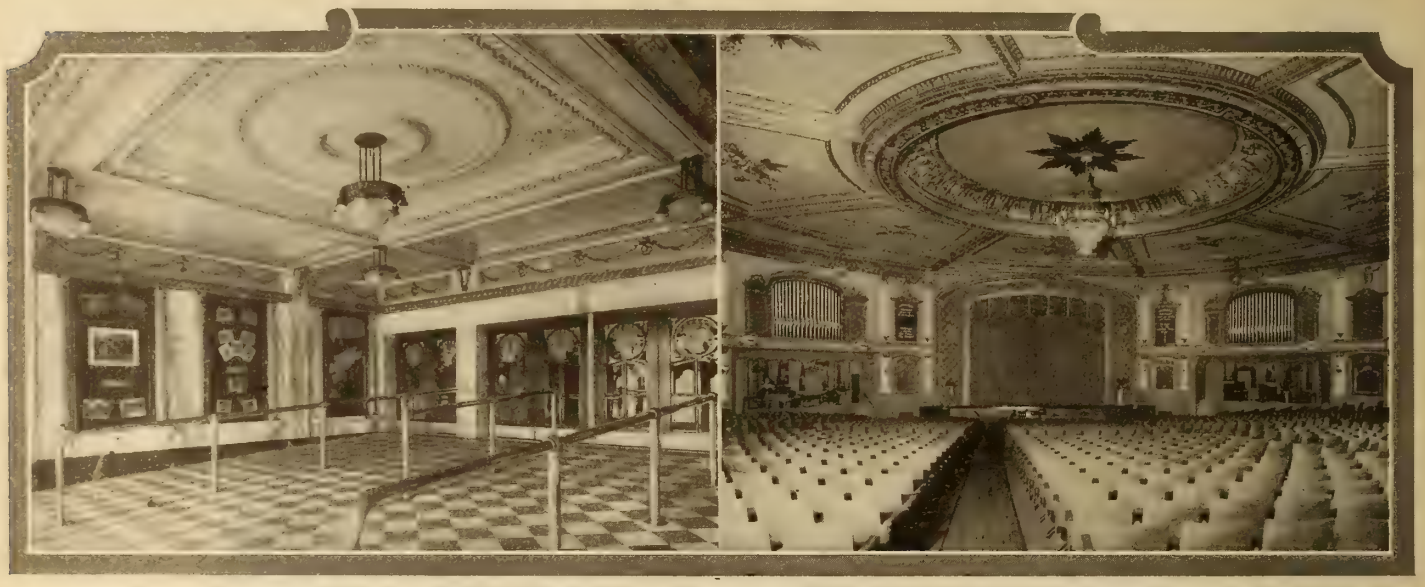
(Reviewed on Page 1030)

Theme: "Ave Maria" (Dramatic) by J. Ascher

1—"Yester Love" (Intermezzo Andantino), by Borch, until—T: "While Nelly's gentle mother, etc."
2—Piano Solo—improvise to action, until—S: Woman stops playing piano.
3—"Nocturno in F" (Melodious), by Krzyzanowsky, until—T: "The first sitting."
4—Theme, until—T: "My car is outside, may I? etc."
5—"Erotik" (Dramatic), by Grieg, until—T: "As the picture nears completion."
6—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—S: Interior of Nelly's home.
7—Theme, until—T: "The day of the last sitting."
8—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "The Trap."
9—Continue to action, until—T: "She's dared to disobey me."
10—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Sol. P. Levy, to action pp or ff, until—S: Young man smoking cigarette.
11—Theme, until—T: "At the mountain camp."
12—"Bond of Love" (Waltz), by A. Roth, until—T: "You have been promising to get."
13—"Ave Maria" (heavy Dramatic), by Langey, until—T: "In New York."
14—"Valse Lente," by Schuette, until—T: "There comes a day, etc."
15—Theme, until—T: "With what irony did? etc."
16—"Cavatine" (Dramatic Moderato), by Bohm, until—T: "And with the morning."
17—"Prelude" (Dramatic), by Rachmaninoff, until—T: "In the city."
18—"Heartwounds" (Dramatic), by Grieg, until—T: "So Nelly passes another milestone."
19—"Felize" (Andantino), by Langey, until—T: "To consult with Felix."
20—Theme, until—T: "In the path of his search, etc."
21—Piano Solo—to action Rags, etc., until—T: "He said you'd died."
22—Theme, until—T: "Nelly poses with the burning, etc."
23—"L'Adieu" (12/8 Dramatic), by Favarger, until—T: "It's a damnable trick."
24—"Dramatic Agitato," by H. Hough, until—T: "Oh, no, it is not a costume."
25—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "And so the bitter game goes on."
26—"Le Sylphes" (Valse Characteristic), by Bachman, until—T: "The climax of her revenge."
27—"The Vampire" (a Dramatic Theme), by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Give me the police station."
28—"Tragic Theme," by Vely, until—T: "I've reached my goal, etc."
29—Theme, until—T: "You are right, Felix, etc."
30—"Mysterioso Agitato," by Becker, until—T: "At the hour set."
31—Organ Solo to action (Interior Church Scene), until—T: "No, he is not fit, etc."
32—Theme, until—T: "Judge me as you will."
33—Sorrow Theme by Ed. Roberts, until * * * * * END.

"SIX SHOOTER ANDY"

(Foxfilm Production)



(Reviewed on Page 1468)

Theme: "Love Theme" by Abbot Lee

1—"Western Allegro," by Winkler, until—T: "Andy Crawford, a trapper."
2—"Intermezzo" (Moderato), by Huerter, until—T: "Two of the Sheriff's gang."
3—Continue pp, until—T: "Look a couple of bandits, etc."
4—"Dramatic Tension," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "An entertaining day, etc."
5—"Trombone Sneeze," by Sorensen, until—T: "Mio Dio, what a beautiful Senorita."
6—"Dramatic Tension," by Ressiger, until—T: "Andy and his father, etc."
7—"Vanity" (Allegro Caprice), by Jackson, until—T: "The slayers of Susan's father."
8—"Aragonaise," from "Le Cid" (Allegro), by Massenet, until—S: Dead man on ground.
9—Theme, until—T: "At the gang's headquarters."
10—Finale from "Ariele" (Allegro), by Bach, until—T: "Be ready to shoot."
11—"Dramatic Recitative," by Sol. P. Levy, until—T: "Andy is going to fight."
12—Heavy Agitato to action, until—S: Shots are fired.
13—Produce effects, followed by
14—Silence, until—T: "So Andy makes progress."
15—"Missouri Waltz" to action, until—S: Musicians commence to play.
16—Virginia Reel to action, until—T: "Andy, do you know the Sheriff?"
17—Silence, until—S: Dancing.
18—"I wonder How the Old Folks Are" (Waltz), until—S: Musicians stop playing.
19—Theme, until—T: "You're missing the entertainment."
20—"Baby Sweetheart" (Allegretto), by Corri, until—T: "Stop, where is the sheriff."
21—"Dramatic Tension," by Ascher, until—T: "With public opinion."
22—"Moderato Agitato," by Becker, until—T: "The forty-eight hours, etc."
23—Hurry to action, until—T: "And during the same night."
24—"Heavy Mysterioso," by Sol. P. Levy, until—S: Kids fighting until Mexican.
25—Hurry to action, until—S: Interior of barroom.
26—Piano Solo improvise to action, until—S: Exterior scene, Andy on horse.
27—Galop to action, until—T: "You'll learn to like me better."
28—"Erl King" (Dramatic Agitato), by Schubert, until—S: Andy opens door and sees Susan on floor.
29—Continue pp until—T: "I'll give you one hour to leave."
30—"Dramatic Agitato," by Hough (watch shot), until—T: "Much obliged, sir."
31—Theme ff, until—T: "Let us drop into the alder Gulch, etc."
32—"Lohengrin Wedding March," by Wagner, until * * END.

THE BARTOLA
Will put you in advance of all competitors
Write for catalogue
CHAS. C. PYLE, General Sales Agent, 707-712 Mallers Bldg., Chicago, Ill. Factory, Oshkosh, Wis.
If you like the "News," write our advertisers; if not, tell us.

Theatres Worth While

Lobby and Interior View of the Crystal Theatre, Chicago

Crystal Splendid Neighborhood House

SCHAEFFER'S CRYSTAL THEATRE, which was opened on November 8 of last year, has the distinction of having the largest seating capacity on one floor of any theatre in Chicago, taking care of 1836. It is also one of the most attractive houses in the country.

The building, which is located on North street, near California avenue, is of fireproof concrete construction throughout. The exterior is finished in terra cotta and brick. The lobby, which is 27 by 60, is done in marble, the mosaic floor which continues on into the foyer, representing a Turkish rug. The lobby frames are set in marble.

Interior of the house is decorated in old rose and blue with tapestry effects on the walls. The main lighting system of the auditorium is a high crystal fixture which is eight feet in diameter and fifteen feet high. Both direct and indirect lighting systems are used. One of the novelties of the house is a large push-button curtain which hangs just before the screen and which can be operated electrically from the projection booth.

I. L. G. ventilating system has been installed. A. H. Andrews and Company furnished the chairs. There are two Simplex machines which have a throw of 134 feet to a Rembusch screen. The operating room is also equipped with stereopticon, spot light and arc controller.

Music is one of the big features of the theatre, and a splendid Bartola de luxe has attracted attention from thousands of patrons. In addition there is a twelve-piece orchestra.

Program is changed daily, there being five shows each day of seven reels each. Matinee admission is ten cents and fifteen in the evening. Billboards and newspapers are used for advertising.

The theatre is owned by the Schaeffer Brothers Theatre Company, and the house manager is T. J. McKenzie.

The Crystal has been declared by many experts to be one of the finest examples of the neighborhood theatre in the country,

YOUR THEATRE'S PICTURE

Let Us Know When It Is Ready and We Will Tell You the Data We Want

WE are anxious to print pictures and descriptions of the Worth While theatres in this department—especially the new houses. However, with the present delays that are encountered in the shipment of building materials, it is impossible for us to keep any accurate account of the days for future openings and we invite managers to send in photographs of such new houses, both interior and exterior views together with description and we will then send a blank for the additional data that we need.

Established houses which have not been pictured in the NEWS are invited to share these columns. This matter is intended not only to give an account of the better houses, no matter the size, but also to give hints which may prove of value in future construction and equipment.

In sending photos be sure to enclose them in cardboard to prevent breakage.

Red Cross Tea Room of the Kinema Theatre, Los Angeles and its prosperous business bears witness to its popularity among the residents of the section, while it also draws much automobile patronage from all parts of the city.

The Fifty-Fourth Street Studio

ONE of the studios most conveniently located in New York City is the Fifty-fourth Street Studio at 517 West 54th Street. It is safe in saying that this studio is up to the minute in every respect.

The lighting equipment consists of sixteen overhead and five side bank Cooper-Hewitts, making a total of twenty-one. A number of old broadsides and Kliegl lights with the fuses help to make this lighting equipment up-to-date.

The stages are spacious and suitable to accommodate any size scene. A carpenter shop fully equipped and ready at all times to make up props adjoins the stages. The dressing rooms are well fitted and have hot and cold running water. There are also a number of shower baths for the convenience of the actors and actresses.

Many well known companies have used this studio and found it to be adequate in every respect. These companies are as follows: Famous Players, Frohman Amusement Company, Fox, Brenon, Selznick, and Douglas Fairbanks.

McLaughlin and Stern of 15 William Street, New York, have the rental of this studio.

Directory of New Theatres

ARKANSAS

H. E. Lynch is erecting a new motion picture theatre at Clarendon to replace the one destroyed by fire in December. Mrs. O. R. Perry, of Marianna, will operate same.

CALIFORNIA

The Hamblen, a new film theatre on Part street, Alameda, has recently been opened by Hamblen and Rasmussen. It is a house of most modern design and equipment, and has a seating capacity of 1,500.

A. C. Dippo, proprietor of the Avenue Theatre, located at Fifty-ninth street and San Pablo avenue, Oakland, is enlarging and remodeling the house. The seating capacity is being increased from 500 to 1,200, and it is expected to be ready for reopening the latter part of this month.

S. Morton Cohn, of Portland, Ore., and Eugene Levy, of Seattle, Wash., are behind a project for the erection of a new theatre in Los Angeles. The site has not yet been decided on, but in all probability will be on Sixth street, somewhere near the Burbank theatre, the present headquarters of the newly formed Pacific Coast Revue Wheel, under whose auspices the new theatre will be operated. While originally intended as a vaudeville house, first-run feature pictures also will be shown. The seating capacity will be 2,500.

With work progressing rapidly now on the new building, it looks as it the new Miller theatre, at Los Angeles, will be finished in time for a grand opening on or about September 1. Fred Miller, Roy Miller, Harry Leonhardt and Herman Bosley are in daily consultation with Architect Rosenthal planning out the different details by which they intend to make this the finest exclusive picture palace on the whole Coast.

DELAWARE

J. J. Kennedy has under way plans for a motion picture theatre in Delaware street, New Castle, for John L. Tobin. The theatre is to be of brick, fireproof construction, limestone trim, one story in height with basement, 30 x 100 feet, slag roof, steam heating, electric and gas lighting.

ILLINOIS

The Olympic theatre, at Kewanee, was recently reopened under the management of D. Fahay. The theatre has been dark for several weeks pending its complete overhauling.

H. L. Curry, the lessee of the Fourteenth Street theatre, located at 1405 State street, East St. Louis, has changed its name to the New Curry theatre, and reopened recently under most auspicious circumstances. The playhouse has been repainted, redecorated throughout, new seats have been installed, and it now has a most attractive appearance.

INDIANA

Will Francis, proprietor of the Southside Motion Picture theatre, Greensburg, has leased the room now occupied by the Citizens' National Bank, and will install the necessary paraphernalia for a motion picture show by the end of April, when the bank expects to be in its new home.

A deal was recently consummated whereby a building on Main street, Farmland, hitherto used as a church, now goes into the possession of Bodkin Bros., who will remodel it and fit it up as a motion picture theatre.

The Temple theatre, Brook, erected by Robinson and Burley, was thrown open to the public a week ago, and was declared by patrons to be a model of neatness and comfort. The owners have gone to considerable expense to equip this building. It has a raised floor and balcony, and is equipped with opera chairs. The new Simplex machine, electrically operated, has been installed, and electric lamps will be used. The operating room is completely encased in galvanized iron to prevent the possibility of fire, and the use of electric lamps behind the film will also make the operation of the machine perfectly safe.

MASSACHUSETTS

Building permits have been granted to Bessie Greenburg for alterations to her store and theatre, 52-58 Meridian street.

MICHIGAN

Otis Rule has secured a lease of the new motion picture house to be opened April 1 in the Odd Fellows' Block, Negaunee. The new theatre which will be known as "the Liberty theatre," will be one of the neatest and most up-to-date in the Upper Peninsula. It will be thoroughly equipped, and it is the intention of Mr. Rule to produce at all times the finest pictures

Comfort plus Good Picture
EQUALS
SATISFIED PATRONS

You have the picture. Have you the necessary comfort? You must have only the right sort of seating equipment to give a satisfactory reply to this question.

OUR

OPERA CHAIRS

Assure

That necessary comfort to patrons and economy to you. Low prices, but high quality. Quick shipment of many styles.

Write for Catalogue N.

STEEL FURNITURE CO.
1475 Buchanan Ave., S. W., Grand Rapids, Mich.

Why Work In The Dark?

You would laugh at the business man who refuses to use light while he is working, to keep down expenses. That man would be paying dearly for his so-called economy. But you are doing the very same thing with your theatre, unless you subscribe for

"Screen Opinions"
The Independent, Comprehensive Reviewing Service

It tells you all about all the pictures released—reviews—synopses—casts—number of reels—author—director—star. And if you don't know these things you are working blindly—you are booking your pictures in the dark. It costs less than a nickel a day for this service—less than it costs for two lights in your lobby—investigate the proposition now

Write In for Full Information

Cahill-Igoe Co. Chicago
117 W. Harrison St · THE HOME OF CICO PRODUCTS

"NEWMAN" BRASS FRAMES AND RAILS

Read what C. A. Morrison of The Princess Theatre, Hartford, Conn., says about Newman Quality:

Gentlemen:
We have purchased quite a number of Brass Frames and Easels, together with Brass Ticket Rail and Three-Sheet Brass Poster Frames of your Company.
All of these goods reached us in perfect condition and the quality was the best. I have told several other managers in the city of your goods and in several instances orders have been sent you—all of which goes to show that your best advertiser is a satisfied customer.

PRINCESS THEATRE CO., Inc.
C. A. Morrison, Mgr. Hartford, Conn.

INSIST ON THE NAME "NEWMAN" WHEN BUYING FRAMES
Write for New 1918 Catalog

The Newman Mfg. Company

ESTABLISHED 1882
Frames, Easels,
Rails Grilles,
Signs, Choppers,
Kick Plates, Door Bars

717-19 Sycamore Street, Cincinnati, Ohio
68 W. Washington Street, Chicago, Illinois
Canadian Representative—J. T. Malone, Rialto Theatre Bldg., Montreal, Canada
Pacific Coast—G. A. Metcalfe, San Francisco, Cal.

that can be procured. Mr. Rule is to be assisted in the management of the theatre by Ted Butler, who is well posted in the theatrical business.

NEBRASKA

A deal was recently consummated whereby Frank Dillard and his son Floyd have leased the Opera House at Auburn, and are now conducting it as an up-to-date motion picture theatre.

The Livingston Construction Company is erecting a new theatre at Potter.

NEW YORK

M. J. Gerson, general manager of the Whitestone Motion Picture Compani, is negotiating to buy a site at College Point, on which to erect a theatre, with a seating capacity of 1,000. Vaudeville and motion pictures will be shown.

The Board of Appeals of the Building Department of New York City has granted permission to B. S. Moss, head of the Moses Theatrical Enterprises, which operates a chain of theatres, to erect a playhouse at the northwest corner of Broadway and 181st street.

Mrs. Rosetta Corn will erect a moving picture theatre, 30 x 80 feet, to cost $12,000, on the east side of Bell avenue, 101 feet north of Montauk avenue, Bayside.

TENNESSEE

The Crescent Amusement Company, owners of the Princess and Elite theaters, Nashville, is now having plans drawn for the erection of another large vaudeville theatre in Nashville. The location will be on Fifth avenue, right in the heart of the theatre and shopping district. Long-term leases have been taken on Fifth avenue property, and a new fireproof theater will be erected. The plans, which are being drawn by Marr and Holman, architects, call for the last word in theatre construction. The building will be entirely of steel and reinforced concrete, and will contain, in addition to the large orchestra floor, two balconies and a mezzanine floor, which will be equipped with private loggias or boxes. The total seating capacity will be 2,500. The stage will be the largest in the city, and will be of sufficient size to accommodate the largest acts of vaudeville or any other theatrical production that is shown in any theatre in the country. The stage will be equipped with all the latest and most modern equipment and special attention will be given to the electrical effects. There will be a fireproof curtain made of sheet steel and operated by electricity, and so arranged that it will immediately close and separate the stage from the audience in case of emergency. Tony Sudekum is president of the Crescent Amusement Company.

WISCONSIN

The Crystal theatre, Anderson and Dahms' new motion picture enterprise, at Brooklyn, was opened last week to capacity business.

How Is Your Lobby?

DOES IT NEED ATTENTION?

Write to

WM. F. LIBMAN

LOBBY EXPERT

of

MENGER, RING & WEINSTEIN, Inc.
304-306 W. 42d St. New York

Catalogue Ready

Theatre and Exchange Mailing List Service

We rent lists of or address contemplated or existing theatres, exchanges, state rights owners, publicity mediums and producers, selected as to territory, class, etc. Twenty thousand changes were recorded in our list last year. Its use means a saving to you of from 30 to 50% in postage, etc.

MOTION PICTURE DIRECTORY CO.
80 Fifth Avenue, New York
Phone, 3227 Chelsea
425 Ashland Block, Chicago
Phone, 2003 Randolph

Addressing Printing N 156 Multigraphing Typewriting

PHOTOPLAYLETS

MAKE YOUR LOCAL MERCHANTS GLAD TO USE
SCREEN ADVERTISING

Exclusive Territory—Wonderful Sample Outfits—Helpful Cooperation—Investigate

ROTHACKER FILM MFG. CO. 1339-51 Diversey Pkwy. CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

Emergol

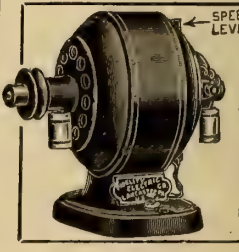
METOL'S RIVAL

THE PERFECT FILM DEVELOPER
WRITE
Franklin Import and Export Co.
220 BROADWAY (INC.) NEW YORK

Business Offerings

WANTED—A cornet player for position in Virginia—seven days' work — $22.50 per week — good, steady job—absolutely no grind—5½ hours work per day. W. F. Harris, Broadway Theatre, Hopewell, Va.

TWENTY-FIVE guaranteed rebuilt Motion Picture Machines, all makes, and hundreds of film subjects for sale cheap. Feature Film Company, 50 West Seventh Street, St. Paul, Minn.



WHY HESITATE
to SAVE yourselves MONEY on M. P. Supplies and Accessories.
VISIT the INDEPENDENT
MOVIE SUPPLY CO.
and receive
PERSONAL ATTENTION
Room 603 729 7th Ave., N. Y.

TransVerteR

Automatically supplies only such voltage as arc requires. No waste of current in ballast.

HERTNER ELECTRIC & MFG. CO.
W. 114th St., Cleveland, Ohio, U.S.A

Unless You Have The
Automaticket System
You Are Losing Money
1733 Broadway, New York

MOVING PICTURE MACHINE MOTOR
$16.00
Alternating or Direct Current Complete with variable speed lever. Immediate delivery.
Fidelity Electric Co. Lancaster, Pa.

For Better Music
The Fotoplayer
62 West 45th Street AMERICAN PHOTO PLAYER CO. New York City

TYPHOON COOLING SYSTEM
TYPHOON FAN COMPANY 1544 BROADWAY NEW YORK CITY

$117.50 the First Week!

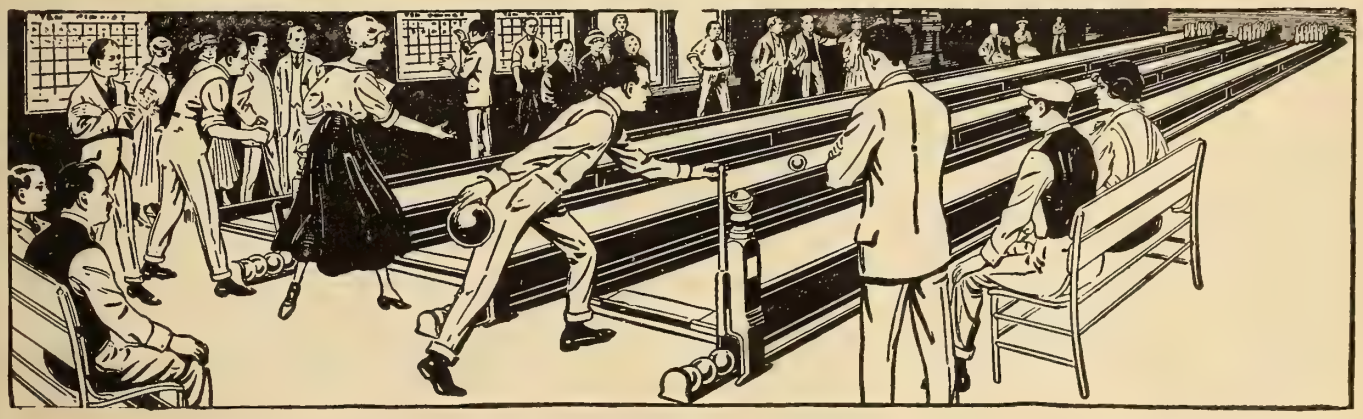
RECORD Made by W. T. ARCHER in a Small Georgia Town With Three Alleys of



TEN-PINNET

The New AUTOMATIC Bowling Game

Daily Receipts

Taken from
Mr. Archer's cash book:

First Day	$ 12.60
Second Day	15.35
Third Day	25.20
Fourth Day	16.25
Fifth Day	20.15
Sixth Day	27.95
Total	$117.50

Motion Picture Men Make Big Money With TEN-PINNET

Owners and Operators—this is a live proposition that will appeal to you. What Mr. Archer has done, anybody can do—you can do it. Ten-Pinnet is a fascinating, full fledged bowling game that operates automatically and takes like wild fire wherever it is played. Requires very little attention and will not interfere with your present business. One boy or man can take care of twelve alleys. Practically all the money you take in is clear profit. Our plan whereby you pay for the alleys out of your profits makes it easy to get started. You take no chances on a big investment—we take care of that. Send the coupon now for full information.

This is the harvest season for Ten-Pinnet owners. Get in on it right now. Remember—the money you take in is practically all profit. No excessive overhead for upkeep or operation. Ten-Pinnet works automatically. No pin boys are needed. The bowler spots his own pins and returns the ball by simply pulling a lever. Ten-Pinnet is a live proposition for live wires everywhere. Our special offer makes it easy for you to get started at once. Fill in coupon and send it right now.

$3,000 in 15 Weeks!

Mr. A. Moeller of Waldemere Park, Pa., writes: "I should be very much disappointed if Ten-Pinnet would not net me $3000 in fifteen weeks, which is the minimum amount I expect from this concession."

$708 in One Month!

L. D. Kunkil writes: "I am about $3000 to the good. The largest day's business I ever had was Labor Day. On my four alleys I took in $48.90. The same week I took in $211. During the month of September $708. My investment in Ten-Pinnet Alleys was by far the best investment I ever made."

Send This Special Offer Coupon Now!

Do not wait another minute—fill in and send this coupon at once. Get this big, free book explaining Ten-Pinnet and our special offer. You incur no obligation by writing, and it may be the means of putting you in touch with just the kind of a big money-making proposition you have been looking for. This is, without question, the greatest attraction that has been offered for many years. You have read what one man did in a small Georgia town. You can do the same, but it means getting busy right away and sending in this coupon. Just tear it out, fill it in and send it RIGHT NOW!

TEN-PINNET CO. Dept. 1483 Indianapolis, Ind.

Ten-Pinnet Co.
Dept. 1483—Indianapolis, Ind.

Gentlemen: Please send me your big, free book and full particulars about the special offer on Ten-Pinnet, the new automatic bowling game.

Name .....

Address .....

.....

Many a packed house is directly traceable to an advertisement in the "News."

"OVER THERE"

The dominant requirement in all things is EFFICIENCY; and to attain this means, in the highest degree, MERIT.

In France, Russia and Italy Over 250 of our projectors are being utilized at the many bases of the Y. M. C. A.

Power's Cameragraphs are recognized as machines that stand the strain and give SERVICE; and over there, where the strenuous conditions demand STRENGTH as never before, they are faithfully

"Doing Their Bit"

THE WILLIAMS PRINTING COMPANY, NEW YORK

Simplex

We all make mistakes — sometimes

When we had designed the Simplex we were rather proud of the job. Naturally.

So we showed the Machine to our friends in the industry. And of course we enjoyed their favorable comments, for these encouraged us as to the future.

We had done our best, and hoped to be rewarded for our efforts.

But there was one man in particular, an expert, by the way, who discouraged us. Said he: "That Projector of yours is all right, but the trouble is that it's too good. The motion-picture industry is young and crude and won't appreciate as refined a Machine as this is."

We didn't believe him. We believed that a Machine so much better from a projection standpoint was bound to be preferred by the Exhibitor.

Well, we needn't tell you who was mistaken and who was right. The events of the last few years have proven two things:—

(1) If the Simplex had not been better to start with, and if the industry had been satisfied with what was then considered best, we would never have succeeded.

(2) If the Simplex had not been kept better, and if the industry had not wanted the better all the time, we wouldn't now be building more high-grade Projectors than any other manufacturer in the world.

The success of the Simplex proves that the best is wanted and that it pays

THE PRECISION MACHINE CO. INC.
317 East 34th St. New York

"Alludin' to your sister, young fellow—do you know what's goin' on in that house over there?"
"The PRICE OF A GOOD TIME"
The LOIS WEBER PRODUCTION
Featuring
Mildred Harris
Which is
The Biggest Money-maker of 1918
JEWEL
PRODUCTIONS Inc.
1600 BWY. N.Y.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS
0 007 551 508 A